ESTABLISHMENT OF GOVERNMENT POSTS ALONG THE TEXAS FRONTIER.

Some Interesting Reminiscences of Early Texas Events.

BY CAPT. W. J. MALTBY.

Written Especially for The Star.

EDITOR STAR:

To give Mrs. Joel Nabers a more correct account of the location of the historical government post of Phantom Hill, and to refresh the memory of Mr. Jesse Johnson, Sr., in Comanche Chief, I herewith give you the facts in detail as near as the memory of man can narrate after the lapse of 55 years; and in this connection will give your many readers the dates of the location of most of the government posts in Texas, by whom located, etc., as a matter of history that should be of interest to the many who have enjoyed the blessings that have followed their location.

From 1844 to 1852 General Arbuckle, of the U. S. A., was in command of the western part of Arkansas, the Indian Nations, with their five tribes, and the north part of Texas, with his headquarters at Fort Smith, Ark. After the close of the Mexican war of 1846-7, the United States was responsible for the protection of Texas, with a frontier on the north on the 32nd parallel running from Red River to the Rio Grande, a distance of six or seven hundred miles. This country was roamed over and depredated upon by all the different hostile bands of Indians; and from El Paso on the west to Corpus Christi on the south, a like distance of seven hundred miles, there was exposure to the depredations of marauding bands of Mexicans that infested the borders all along the Rio Grande.

So our Uncle Samuel had fifteen hundred miles of much exposed frontier to guard, and the only way to do it was to build a line of posts from east to west and north to south, with many intermediate posts near the settlements to guard the settlers and their property. General Twiggs was placed in command of the west or Rio Grande division, with headquarters at San Antonio, and ordered the building of the following posts, to wit: Fort Bliss, El Paso; Fort Leaton, Presidio Del Norte; Fort Duncan, Eagle Pass; Fort McIntosh, Laredo; Fort Brown, Brownsville.

As it will only be necessary to mention one of these named posts and Robt. E. Lee's connection with it, we go back and take up the thread of our narrative in the location of Phantom Hill and what led up to it.

In 1849 General Arbuckle ordered the fitting out of an expedition of one company of United States infantry, Captain Marcellus French to command, Lieutenant Mc-Yers to act as quartermaster, with one hundred ox and mule teams, carpenters, sappers and miners, and everything necessary to build and maintain a government post in the Creek Nation, somewhere near the Canadian River. I employed myself to the acting quartermaster at Fort Smith, Captain Montgomery by name and rank. He kept me in his office while the expedition was fitting out to carry orders and purchase what the department did not have in stock, and when the expedition started I was sent along as a supernumerary to do anything, or to work in such harness as the quartermaster might throw on me.

The progress of the expedition was rather slow as we had to make the road as we went. When we had got, say 75 miles from Fort Smith and had to stop to build a road over a creek with high banks, one of the men was taken very sick and on the third day developed a full case of the smallpox of a malignant type. Here was consternation of the worst form, and the only thing that could be done was for the government doctor to order every man up to his tent and vaccinate as fast as possible. The sick man died, and no one else of the entire party took the disease. Considering this in all its bearings, it was Providential.

The expedition moved on to its objective point, and Fort Arbuckle, No. 1, was located and built. When built it looked more like an old-fashioned nigger quarters than a government post, for there was nothing to be had but the native timber as it stood in the forest.

Late in the fall Captain French discovered a better location for a post, some 18 miles south at a big spring near the Washita River, in the Chickasaw Nation. So Fort Arbuckle, No. 1, was given to Black Beaver, chief of the Delaware tribe of Indians, for his headquarters and the troops were moved to the Big Wild Horse Spring in the Chickasaw Nation, and Fort Arbuckle, No. 2, built, where it has stood as a government post ever since.

A big government ox train loaded with supplies arrived about the first of November. I went back to Fort Smith with it and reached there the last of the month. A cabin was built in the Porto River bottom, a big canebrake, and the oxen were moved to it. I was put in charge with a few of the teamsters to herd the oxen, preparatory to the location of two government posts on or about the 32nd parallel in Texas, which posts after location were named Belknap and Phantom Hill, respectively.

So, in the spring of 1850 a train of 100 or 150 ox and six-mule teams was fitted out at Fort Smith, with several companies of the 5th Infantry, and ordered forward to locate the above posts. When the expedition reached old Fort Washington in the Choctaw Nation, near the line of Texas Lieutenant Bliss was ordered to take some men and teams and go to Shreveport, La., after some ordnance stores, etc., with instruction to travel back on the west side of Red River until he struck the road made by the command which was to cross Red River at Coffey's Bend at a little town called Preston, and establish a quartermaster's store there, with Maj. Geo. W. Wood as quartermaster.

I was sent with Lieutenant Bliss to Shreveport, at which place I was promoted to engineer. With six fine gray government mules and a six-pound brass cannon I was to Land for Sale.

Baird, Texas, Feb. 21st, 1905.

To the People of Callahan County:
Messrs. Harp and Wilkins have submitted an offer to the Court to buy the Callahan County School Land, consisting of 17,713 and 6-10 acres, situated in Floyd and Hale Counties, at $5.00 per acre, aggregating $88,568.00 for the entire tract, to bear interest at 3 per cent per annum, for three years and five months and 5 per cent for the remaining seventeen years, the interest payable annually in advance, purchasers to have option of paying for the land at any time after ten years from date of sale.

We believe that it is a good price for said land and that we ought to and will accept the same, unless the people of this county will buy said land at same price and on same terms.

We favor selling the land to Callahan County people, if they desire to buy it, in tracts of not less than 160 acres and to that end we give this notice that we will meet on March 15, 1905 to finally consider this matter and ask that if any citizens of this county desire to buy any of said land that they submit bids to us at that time for such tracts as they may desire to purchase.

If said land is sold such sale or sales will be made subject to the permanent lease on said land, which terminates April 1, 1908 and possession cannot be given purchasers until the expiration of said lease.

The Court reserves the right to reject any and all bids or to sell the land for higher price.

Respectfully,

I. N. JACKSON,
W. A. HINDS,
A. E. KENDRICK,
J. H. BERNAM,
JNO. W. AIKEN.

lead the expedition the balance of the trip. To say that I was proud of my promotion would be expressing it very mildly.

In the country through which we traveled the settlements were few and far between, but coming to a nice farm house where everything betokened some refinement Lieutenant Bliss ordered me to halt while he dismounted and went in. He presently reappeared with a nice old lady and, oh, my! two beautiful daughters for us boys to feast our eyes upon, which was a treat, indeed, for we had been away from home and society until the pretty girls looked to us like angels. The old lady was much excited over the cannon, and inquired of the Lieutenant if it was the kind of gun that Captain Taylor had in Mexico. The Lieutenant smilingly replied, "Yes, madam, that is one of the little things General Taylor had for toys when he played with the Mexicans."

Lieutenant Bliss struck the road

made by the command in Grayson county west of Preston and followed it, overtaking the command where it had halted, and located Fort Belknap, Post No. 1. Here a rest of some time was taken to recruit the teams for the onward march to locate Post No. 2. So, I will say that about the 15th of December the order was given to load, hitch up and march, and, my recollection is, with one company of the 5th Infantry, Major Thomas as the commanding officer, Black Beaver, chief of the Delaware Indians, as guide and 100 mules and ox teams to haul camp equipment and supplies. The expedition moved forward on Captain Marcy's Santa Fe trail, which led west on the north side of the Clear Fork of the Brazos.

The third night after leaving Fort Belknap we camped in a beautiful basin surrounded by mountains, an ideal camp ground, and as we had to depend entirely on grass for forage, mules were tied to the wagons until 2 o'clock in the morning and then turned loose to graze, with men to herd till daylight.

MRS. FOSTER DEAD.

Mrs. Zeni Foster, formerly of Baird, late of Mannsville, Oklahoma, died at her home last week. Mr. Foster passed through on the train last Thursday with the body of his wife, on his way to Jones county, where the burial took place. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Foster were shocked at the news of Mrs. Foster's death, as they had not even heard that she was ill. THE STAR tenders Mr. Foster sincere sympathy in his affliction.

Let's reorganize our Commercial Club.

Baird needs a better school building. Why can't we build it?

The legislators who visited Laredo seem to have met a warm reception from the pickpockets.

Four years of Rooseveltism means four years of trouble for the lawless trusts, if some interpret the signs of the times aright.

If we had our Commercial Club in good working condition that we had a few years ago, we might get capital to take over the light plant, improve it and start it up again.

The man or the town that does not try to help themselves usually get left in the battle of life, and the palm of victory is awarded to those who strive for and deserve it.

The pros are certainly riding on the popular wave of success, and many an anti is yelling louder than the real pros. Office, office. There will come a reaction some day, and many politicians will become stranded as the prohibition wave recedes.

Brownwood promises to give the press gang a royal reception on May 10th, and every member of the Association in Texas should attend. This is the first time the Association has ever met in this part of the state, and the boys from north, east and south Texas should come out and see what kind of a country we have out here.

A carload of scrapers for the north and south railroad company has arrived at Abilene to be used, in the "sweet by and by," in grading the road. So say the Abilene papers. So it will be seen that talking accomplishes something, after all. After twenty years of railroad talk Abilene has got a carload of scrapers. This is something, even if the scrapers are used for other purposes than building railroads.

President Roosevelt's inauguration at Washington Saturday eclipsed anything of the kind ever attempted. Jefferson's old horse that he rode to his inauguration would have been greatly astonished had he been living and viewed the brilliant parade Saturday, as compared with the one-horse show he and his master made as they cantered down Pennsylvania avenue one hundred and four years ago. [Jefferson was inaugurated March 4th, 1801.] Times have greatly changed since Jefferson's day; but THE STAR is not one of those that believes every change is for the worse. We are a great people, and don't do things as they did a century ago.

Jim Lowery, of the Honey Grove Signal, has met with a great loss; his gasoline engine is dead. Speaking of the sad catastrophe, he says: "True to Fannin county proclivities, it filled up on cold water, froze up and busted wide open." That cold Sunday was too much for Jim's engine, and it just kicked the bucket. No wonder he is sad. Jim Lowery will be the next president of the Texas Press Association if he lives, but we doubt if this high honor will compensate him for the loss of the engine that died from too much water on the stomach.

Hostilities have again broken out in Manchuria and the reports have already killed over seventy thousand Japanese and Russians. A battle over there in which less than fifty to sixty thousand men are killed is not noticed. When we understand that the Japs will not allow correspondents closer than eight to twelve miles of a real battle, and the Russians will not permit anything sent out but what suits them, we begin to realize that much of the lurid writing done by the war correspondents is pure and unadulterated fiction. Sometimes we almost doubt if there is any real war over in the Far East. Both Japs and Russians are such unaccountable liars that it is hard to believe anything they publish. The real facts about the war will not be known until after the war is over, if there is any war, and perhaps the truth will never be known.

PAYING UP.

Quite a number of subscribers who have received bills for subscription have responded in a way that is enough to make an editor feel good. They not only send the money but many write appreciative letters explaining that it was an oversight, which we know is the case. Some people get mad when they receive a bill, and sometimes write rasping letters to the one they owe; but we are glad to say we have not received any such, but exactly the reverse. Not much, so far, has been received, but we expect more. Buying new material and short collections combined—the latter not anticipated—made it unusually rocky for us; but if our other subscribers will come up like the first few that received bills, we will soon be in shape to square up our own accounts. We have no earthly use for money but to pay our debts. We thank those who responded so promptly.

We would like to have a slice of the czar's salary, but none of his honors or responsibilities.

Bleeding Kansas has hit the Standard oil trust a good solid blow. May the war continue.

The only trouble with our president is we cannot guess with any degree of certainty just where he will break out next.

The T. & P. will build a branch road from Roscoe north through the Panhandle. It is reported that part of the material is on the ground at Roscoe.

So Texas is not free from grafters. The Kirby-Moore trial at Austin has at least demonstrated this much, though it has not been decided which side worked the graft.

To the legislature: It is either higher license and stricter control of the liquor traffic, or state prohibition. It may be too late now to do what should have been done years ago.

It is reported that work on the "Sorghum Belt" will be resumed real soon, and that the first new town north of Abilene will be called Cockerell, and rolling stock will be put on as soon as the road is completed to that point. Perhaps the "Sorghum Belt" will be built yet.

The public does not seem to believe that Denis Donohoe is telling the truth about Frenzied Finance in Public Opinion. The people prefer to believe Lawson, though he may be, and doubtless is, the rankest kind of a fake. Even a fakir can tell a truthful story out of school sometimes.

It will soon be time to murder the spring poets; that is, most country editors feel that way about it. This does not mean that the average editor does not appreciate good poetry, because most of them do, and that is one reason they feel like strangling some of the authors of the so-called poetry sent them.

DEATHS.

Miss Annie Cowan died at the residence of her brother, Mr. V. H. Cowan, Monday, March 6th, 1905, after a brief illness. Funeral services were conducted at the residence Tuesday morning by Rev. C. W. Daniel, pastor of the Methodist church, after which the body was interred in Baird cemetery. Miss Cowan and sister only recently arrived here from North Carolina, and it is particularly sad that she should be so soon called away. THE STAR tenders sympathies to the bereaved brother and sister who are thus called upon to part with their loved one.

DO YOU NEED GLASSES?

DR. A. LEVEY, the well known Optician, asks THE STAR to inform his many friends in Baird and the public generally that he will be at R. Phillips' Drug Store on next Monday and Tuesday, March 13th and 14th. Come and have your eyes tested and fitted with glasses by a thoroughly reliable and competent optician. We have known Mr. Levey for several years and can cheerfully recommend him to our friends. He makes regular trips to Baird, and naturally takes more interest in giving satisfaction to his patrons than those who do not visit the town regularly. Remember the date, March 13th, and 14th. He may stay longer, but if you need his services don't delay, as he will not stay longer unless the business justifies.

CARD OF THANKS.

We desire to thank our many friends for their assistance during the illness of my sister, and especially the ladies of the Eastern Star, for the timely aid and assistance rendered us. V. H. COWAN, and family.

JUDGE REAGAN DEAD

Hon. John H. Reagan, the last surviving member of Jefferson Davis cabinet, died at his home near Palestine Tuesday morning. In the death of Judge Reagan Texas loses one of her ablest and purest public men. For sixty years he served his state in various public positions, from deputy surveyor to congress, cabinet officer, United States senator and late railroad commissioner. He voluntarily retired last fall after serving twelve years as railroad commissioner. He was a faithful and loyal son of the South—honest, able, and sincere and faithful to every trust. He was born in Tenn., in 1818, consequently was in his 87th year. Peace to the memory of the Grandest Old Southerner of the Grand Old South.

The following appreciated notice of THE STAR appears in the March number of the Western Publisher, Chicago: "It is always a pleasure to mention THE BAIRD STAR, as it is very close to an ideal country paper, always clean, fearless and concise in its statements of facts. THE STAR has just entered upon its eighteenth year, and it has grown better and better each year."

THE SICK.

J. F. Ferguson, living in the east part of town, has been dangerously ill with slow or typhoid fever for over two weeks, but at last reports was some better.

Grandma McKenney, who has been ill a long time, took a turn for the worse Monday night and the attendants thought she was dying, but she rallied and was much better yesterday.

Grandma Powell is reported on the sick-list this week.

Jasper McCoy is reported sick with the grip at his home on the Bayou.

BAIRD'S GREATEST DRY GOODS STORE.

WE WANT EVERY MAN'S, WOMAN'S, GIRL'S AND BOYS TRADE IN CALLAHAN COUNTY.

Kantbeest

We propose to treat you better than any other store in the West can treat you. We have several reasons we believe we can do this:

1. We buy more dry goods than all the rest of the county put together. In buying in these large quantities we can buy cheaper than our competitors.

2. We sell more dry goods than all the rest of the county put together, by buying and selling in such large quantities, the expense on each article is less than our competitors.

So if you trade with us you get the benefit of both the buying and selling, besides this we are very anxious for your trade, we do all in our power to benefit our customers. For 20 years we have followed this same policy and our trade has grown larger every year and now we have the largest trade of any dry goods house West of Ft. Worth. It shows to you plainly that those who trade with us prosper and bring us a new customer, and if you are not already a customer we are anxious for you to become one. If honest goods, low prices and fair treatment is any inducement, we have them all, so please make your arrangements to trade with me this year.

T. E. POWELL.

Remember we are the exclusive agents for the Hamilton-Brown shoe the best on earth. Every pair of our own make guaranteed. Buy good goods and be happy.

We have a large stock in all lines, we again solicit your trade. Come give us a show, do your business with us for the year 1905. Thanking you for the year just past, one of the largest we have ever had, but hoping to make this one still larger we remain yours to please.

We have the largest assortment of Wedding Suits there is in Baird. In fact for any thing in the line of Clothing, either men or boys, come to headquarters. We have more boy's clothing than all the town put together. All nice, clean, up-to-date stock. Remember we don't carry any shoddy goods, if you want that class of goods we are not the people, but for good goods come to see us.

W. J. Bryan of Abilene, W. R. McClellan of Coleman, Curtis Hancock of Dallas, Mr. Crockett of Washington county, and Mr. Beaty of Caldwell, committee of the House of Representatives to examine the Epileptic Colony at Abilene, passed through Baird last Friday on their way to Abilene. The committee, with whom we talked, were highly pleased with the way the new institution is managed. They seem to think Dr. Preston, the superintendent, is the right man in the right place. There are now 214 inmates in the colony, and as many more have been turned away for lack of room. The colony will have to be enlarged. The editor went to Abilene on the train Saturday and returned with the committee on the night train.

Jack Jones and family moved to Dublin about the first of the month; but Jack returned the first of the week to settle up his affairs. He informs us that he has sold all his property here except his home. He and Will Brasher have opened a barber shop at Dublin, and THE STAR wishes the boys every success in the new field. Jack Jones did well in Baird in a business way. He came here several years ago with very little property, and after a time learned the barbers' trade which he steadily pursued up to the time he left. He made a good living for his family and steadily accumulated property, and at one time had several houses rented out. Compared with the average he certainly had no room to complain, because he succeeded where many others coming from the country fail. When we come to think of it, however, most of the successful business men of the towns and cities come from the country.

A woman and five little children from Poland got off the train Thursday. None of them could speak a word of English and the woman was in great distress. One of the show-women took them in charge and hunted up some one who could speak her language. Finally they met Phil Schwartz, of Dallas, who was in town and the woman was overjoyed to learn that he could speak the Polish language. It seems the woman should have gotten off at Strawn, where her husband is at work in the coal mines. The woman and children returned to Strawn on the night train with Mr. Schwartz, who was going home and said he would see that they got off at the right place.
