New GTE Service Office Will Open Here June 14

Members of the Muleshoe City Council met with General Telephone representatives O. D. Hearn and Bruce Chapman Tuesday, May 18, to discuss the opening of a new local contact office in Muleshoe. Hearn told the group that the new office would be located at 122 West Avenue C and will be staffed with a service representative and by the local manager, Bruce Chapman.

The office when opened on June 14 will accept payments, take orders for phones, offer phone selections and discuss billing problems and corrections. Although repair reports will still be processed through the Brownfield office, Hearn said that minor adjustments can be made to individual phones such as bell adjustment, etc.

The grand opening of the new facility is scheduled for June 21. According to Hearn, three other offices of this type have been opened recently with good results. "We are looking for a one on one contact with our customers, and we think it is needed and that this is the way to do it," said Chapman.

In other city business, council members approved a play of property located 3 miles east of Muleshoe, known as the Black Sub-division.

County Agricultural Weather Advisory Program Begins

Bailey County Extension agent, Spencer Tanksley, is now receiving agricultural weather advisories for use by producers in the county. The advisories are coming from Dr. Bill Dugas, Assistant Professor with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Agricultural Meteorology Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service stationed at the Blackland Research Center in Temple, Texas. Dr. Dugas has established an automated weather station in the county located at the Bill Vinson farm in the West Camp community. Information from this weather station and other National Weather Service observing locations in the county are incorporated into agricultural weather advisories which County Agent Tanksley will disseminate on a routine basis.

The weather station collects information on soil temperatures, air temperatures, precipitation, relative humidity, wind speed, and sunshine. The objective of the program is to assist producers in making management decisions, especially those related to weather and climate.

The advisories will give producers information as to status quo conditions concerning crops and soil moisture and this information, in conjunction with National Weather Service forecasts, will increase the information base with which producers have to make decisions.

Similar programs exist in the Central Texas area and in the Coastal Bend.

Bailey County experienced generally warm, dry weather during the period from the 5th through the though many could not yet get into their fields to view the crops as yet due to the heavy flooded areas.

On 1760 west, Eugene Shaw reported about 6/10 of an inch of rain recorded and surmised that the moisture ranged from 1/2 to 7/10 in that general area.

In the southern part of Bailey County, encircling Bula, Enochs, Maple and Goodland communities, reports ranged around 1/4 of an inch overall. North of West Camp, reports showed from 1/2 to 1 1/4 inches and north of Muleshoe reports recorded indicated 1/2 to 1 3/10 inches. Muleshoe proper received .43 and the Wildlife Refuge recorded an official 1/10. Needmore's rainfall was about 1/10 of an inch.

In the far western part of the county, from Stegall where they only had a trace, Aubry Phillips recorded 8/10 of an inch at his home. He did say however, that a mile back east, there was not any measurable amount of moisture.

Jerry Don Glover in the Lazbuddie area reported generally from 2/10 to a good 1/2 inches of rain with some hail. Glover said that the hail pruned back his young cotton some, but felt it would come back out. He did say however, that north of Lazbuddie he had heard reports of 3/4 to 1 inch with hail severe enough to shred up some sugar beets on the Magby farm.

Matt Phelps who farms 10 miles south and 6 miles west of Muleshoe reported about 2/10.

County Agent Spencer Tanksley said that his reports indicated that the Oklahoma Lane Community received a large amount of hail. In assessing the county situation, Tanksley said that golf ball size hail injured some plants and caused some damage to grains and possibly to corn. The irrigated land received most of the moisture which will help to uniform the existing soil moisture, thereby allowing total germination of seeds. "The story seems to be the same where rain was received," he said. "Farmers can't yet properly survey their fields to determine the extent of damage until they dry up enough for them to do so." Tanksley also stated that the dryland farms did not get enough moisture to help them much. "I have not heard any reports where a producer was totally wiped out," the agent said.

Among the questions discussed by the groups were: What does the school and its personnel need to do to meet the educational needs of gifted students? What can the parents do to help meet these needs? What responsibility must the individual student take for his/her education? As the seminar was ending Dr. Feldhusen asked that the groups put all of their work into a report and send it to him. He would then review each report and give an award to the best reports.

After the seminar ended, Dr. Feldhusen remarked that he was very impressed with the good work done by the Muleshoe students.

Tax Refund Checks Mailed

State Comptroller Bob Bullock Monday mailed the state's first tax refund checks paying taxpayers the same rate of interest as the state charges for delinquent taxes.

"For the first time, the state and the taxpayer get the same interest on overpayments and delinquent taxes -- 10 percent," Bullock said.

Before the Legislature set the 10 percent rate last year, taxpayers were charged 7 percent on delinquent taxes but received only 6 percent on protested payments and no interest on overpayments, Bullock explained.

The warrants mailed on Monday represented nearly $60,000 in refunds and interest on motor vehicle, motor fuel and sales taxes overpaid by 24 Texas taxpayers in January.

Future refund payments will be processed and mailed daily by the Comptroller.

RECIPE

By Sarah Anne Sheridan

Since strawberry time has arrived we may regard the dessert problem as settled. When buying strawberries be sure they are a bright red color, keep in a cool place and handle them as little as possible until served.

Strawberry Pie

- 1 c boiling water
- 1 pkg strawberry flavored gelatin
- 1/2 c cold water
- 1 pt vanilla ice cream
- 1 c sliced fresh strawberries
- Whipped cream
- 1 9-inch pastry shell

Add gelatin to hot water and stir until dissolved. Add cold water. Cut ice cream into 6 pieces and add to the hot liquid. Stir until mixture begins to thicken and mound when spooned. Fold in strawberries. Pour into cooled, baked pastry shell. Garnish with whipped cream and sliced strawberries. Chill until firm.

Christian living means obeying your good impulses every day, and not waiting for Sunday services to come around.

Oldest, Youngest Honored At 'Mother's Day' Tea

Maggie Edith Bruns, and Josefine Wenner were honored as the "Oldest Mothers" and Rosemary Pool as the "Youngest Mother" (residing at the Muleshoe Nursing Home) at a Mother's Day Tea, on Friday, May 7, hosted by the ladies of the Lazbuddie Church of Christ.

Mrs. Bruns was born in Boone County, Indiana on August 1, 1889. She was the fourth of eight children and is the only surviving one.

She moved to Kiowa County, Oklahoma, near Snyder, in 1902. There she later met and married Fred Bruns, of Missouri. They were married December 25, 1912.

They moved to Parmer County in 1929, and later moved to Muleshoe. Her husband died in 1969.

She is the mother of five children, Leo and Don, and Ruth Briscoe, all of the Muleshoe area. Another son, Jack, died in 1967. Thirteen of her 17 grandchildren live in this area also.

Mrs. Bruns is a long time member of the Church of Christ.

Mrs. Wenner was born February 14, 1890, and moved to Parmer County in 1927, and to Muleshoe 27 years ago. Since 1980, she has resided at the Muleshoe Nursing Home.

Over the years, Mrs. Wenner's love for making quilts inspired her to make a quilt for each of her grandchildren. She has also made over 100 dresses for orphanages and needy children.

Her hobbies include painting on glass and covering coat hangars. She has painted a number of pictures and has given the majority of them away.

Mrs. Wenner has four living children, Deter and Doris of Muleshoe, Reaford of Lazbuddie, and Ralph of San Diego, Cal. She also has nine grandchildren and 11 great grandchildren.

The 'Youngest Mother' is Rosemary Pool who was born February 15, 1936 and grew up here in Muleshoe. She enjoys music, art and poetry. She has one son, Mike Pool, of Denver, Color. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lee Pool of Muleshoe.

The ladies of the church presented a corsage of silk flowers to each of the mothers attending. David Lasater, minister, led the ladies in singing hymns. Following singing, they also read poems. Assorted cookies and punch were served to all those attending.

At General Telephone... We're Not Simply Talking About Service Improvements We're Making Them In Muleshoe

At General Telephone, better service isn't just a goal. It's a solid commitment. General Telephone spent over 354 million dollars in 1981 on capital expenditure projects. (i.e. new electronic switches, expanded cable projects, modernization), and GTE will spend over 410 million dollars in 1982 to provide you the best telecommunications available.

For Muleshoe this investment in service improvement is working as shown below. General Telephone is working hard to continually provide you with the best of service.

The Texas Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has established certain standards in public hearings, and our service results are listed against those standards.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN—While most of us think we have been given more than an appropriate share of problems and suffering, few of us have experienced anything as tragic as the autistic syndrome. Yet, it is fact that many individuals in our state have been diagnosed as autistic.

Autism is difficult to deal with and understand because of the vagueness which surrounds it. There are no clear symptoms which relate absolutely to autism; therefore, there is no clear-cut diagnosis of the disease. To confuse the issue even more, there has been controversy and uncertainty surrounding the definition and the use of the word, autism.

Symptoms and diagnosis of autism are so closely related and entwined that it is necessary to discuss them together, and perhaps it is even impossible to discuss them separately.

Unfortunately, there are no medical tests for autism, therefore, diagnosis has to be based on observations of a child's behavior. Often the diagnosis is a result of the process of elimination. In addition, autism may occur by itself or in association with other disorders which affect brain functioning. For example, such disorders as perinatal viral infections, epilepsy, or mental retardation may result in autistic behavior.

Accurate diagnosis is very difficult because the characteristics of this disorder may resemble those of such things as mental retardation, severe reactive disturbances, or deafness. In its milder form, autism most resembles a learning disability such as childhood aphasia (inability to speak). Usually, however, people with autism are substantially handicapped.

Some of the behaviors which can aid a physician in reaching a diagnosis of autism are: difficulty in mixing with other children; acts as deaf; resists learning; no fear of real dangers; resists change in routine; indicates needs by gesture; marked physical overactivity; no eye contact; and standoffish manner.

Other children—some normal and some with other disorders—may show any of the above behaviors, but autistic children exhibit several of these traits, and their behavior is constant and inappropriate to their age.

When considering a possible case of autism, the patient should be given thorough medical and psychiatric examinations as well as developmental and intelligence tests. Additionally, a social history is critically important in providing the information needed for a conclusive diagnosis.

Autism can be severe and difficult to treat. It can cause extreme forms of self injurious, repetitive, highly unusual, and aggressive behavior. The behavior may persist and be resistant to change, posing a tremendous challenge to those who must manage, treat, and teach autistic people.

No single treatment is effective in all cases of autism and there is no "cure" in a medical sense.

However, highly structured, skill-oriented training, tailored to the individual, has proven to be most helpful. Social and language skills should be developed and work should be done toward avoiding secondary handicaps, such as loss of muscle tone when inactivity is a problem.

Proper counseling for families with members who have autism is crucial. No known factors in the psychological environment of a child have been shown to cause autism; therefore, counselors who believe that poor parental attitudes and behavior cause autism should be avoided.

Because autism presents unique problems to many citizens of our state, the 67th Legislature created a joint interim committee to study the needs of autistic citizens and to make recommendations concerning the state's role in providing for these needs.

The committee will make a complete report, including findings, recommendations concerning methods to meet identified needs, and drafts of any legislation deemed necessary, to the 68th Legislature when it convenes in January, 1983.

athletics and also to the cheerleading, pom poms and megaphones.

Seated at the head tables were Coach and Mrs. Bo Lance, Coach and Mrs. Roger Boyles, Coach and Mrs. Mack Lowe, Coach and Mrs. Cliff Stephens, Coach Dyke Gaston and Ann Nix.

Marie Withrow gave the benediction prior to the meal of chicken fried steak, tossed salad, baked potato, green beans, rolls, cherry cobbler, ice cream, tea and coffee.

Billy Scott gave the welcome following the meal, with Head Coach Mack Lowe introducing the speaker of the program. Janet Nix, a senior athlete gave a speech on "Always Do Your Best and Set High Goals."

Sheila Summer, Dale HARPER and Johnny Nelson, all senior athletes gave the challenge to the underclassmen. We, the seniors of '82, give this challenge to the upcoming seniors of '83". Know yourselves and set high reaching goals. Goals that are inspiring yet challenging enough to encourage you to give 100 percent to the achievement of these goals whether it be in sports, scholastic or career advancements. Set a goal, give 100 percent toward reaching it and if you lose—lose gracefully but always with a sportsman-like attitude.

Lowe presented Son Qualls a gift of appreciation as did

Edward Fisher, president of Sudan Booster Club. Fisher presented gift certificates to each coach on behalf of the Booster Club.

Dyke Gaston presented the Tennis awards and introduced each team.

Stephens, girls coach, presented the girls tract team and Bo Lance presented the Boys track team, and each made comments pertaining to the teams.

Awards were presented to the Basketball teams also with Hustlin' Hornette going to Janet Nix. This award is voted on by team mates in regard to who best serves the team with cooperation, commitment and support and represents the team in school as well in other areas of their lives.

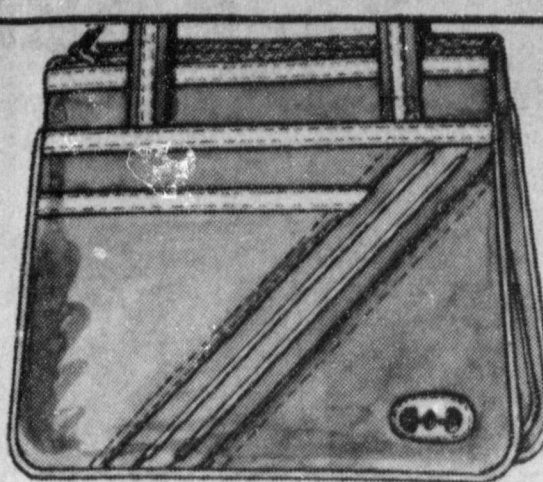

The Junior Varsity team was recognized and presented awards and it was noted that they won all but one of their games and that was only by one point.

Varsity girls won 27-2 having lost only the two games to Nazareth.

Missy Fisher and Judy Wiseman read a poem to the two graduating seniors, Sheila Summer and Janet Nix. The poem was written in appreciation and admiration by the team mates.

Coach Roger Boyles presented the Boys Basketball team and awards making comment on the cooperation and support of each team member.

Letters To The Editor

Publisher
Bailey County Journal
P. O. Box 449
Muleshoe, Texas 79347

Dear Publisher:

I want to share with you my reasons for calling a special session of the 67th Legislature on May 24, 1982, to consider a constitutional amendment repealing the State ad valorem tax which goes to college construction.

In 1979, the Legislature sent to my desk as part of the Peveto Bill a provision represented to me as, in effect, repealing the 10-cent State property tax supporting construction projects at 17 colleges and universities outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M University systems. Under that provision, the tax could be levied against only .0001 percent of market value. As Governor, I signed the bill into law with the understanding that it constitutionally abolished the 10-cent tax.

Attorney General Mark White in AG Opinion 147, March 14, 1980, concluded that tax assessor-collectors could defer assessing and collecting the ad valorem taxes because the rate had been reduced to where no real revenue would be realized. Midwestern University, later joined by other affected institutions of higher education, subsequently filed a lawsuit questioning constitutionality of the legislative action and asking the tax be collected at full value. Not until then was the very serious question raised as to whether the tax, levied under terms of the constitution, could, indeed, be abolished or reduced without approval of voters in a constitutional amendments election. It also became clear that Texas property owners, should the Midwestern suit prevail, will be faced with an $800 million to $1 billion back tax liability, since the 10-cent levy has not been collected since 1979.

During the regular session of the 67th Texas Legislature last year, I urged repeal of the ad valorem tax, but no final action was taken. Again, during the first called special session of the 67th Legislature, convening July 13, 1981, property tax repeal was one of five topics which I submitted for consideration. The Legislature again failed to act.

The issue certainly is well known to the Legislature; and it is my hope that this third convening of the 67th, limited to this subject matter alone, will be the charm. I am asking for submission of a constitutional amendment repealing the State property tax and "forgiving" collection from September 1, 1979. I will also call on legislators to appropriate emergency funds (estimated at about $100 million) for college construction at the affected institutions, contingent on voter approval of the tax repeal amendment.

The special session has been called for late May to enable corrective legislative action to be taken prior to the scheduled June 2 trial date of the Midwestern lawsuit and to allow sufficient time for placement of the constitutional amendment on the November 1982 general election ballot. I firmly believe that the State of Texas should not be in the ad valorem tax business. Property taxation is an area properly reserved for our local governments and schools.

I earnestly ask for your strong consideration and active support of repeal of the State ad valorem tax, forgiveness of the collection since 1979 and passage of a one-time single shot bill financing college construction programs. Your active support of these initiatives will help ensure a just and expeditious resolution of this matter by the Texas legislature during the May special session and by the voters in the November 2 constitutional amendments election.

Sincerely yours,

It is hoped, through your cooperation in publishing this letter, a Texas family will volunteer to host Gonzalo, not only to uphold the state's reputation, but because they would actually

A&M economist says lower productivity can cause inflation

COLLEGE STATION — While most economic reports focus on inflation, interest rates and layoffs, one economist says a vital, but often ignored, statistic has been the continual decline in productivity.

Productivity increased at an average annual rate of 2.8 percent between 1948 and 1966, dropping to 1.6 percent between 1966 and 1973 and even further to an average .8 percent annual rate between 1973 and 1978, says Dr. M. L. Greenhut, who holds the title of Distinguished Professor of Economics at Texas A&M University. Inflation will follow decreasing productivity, even if the budget is balanced, provided the Federal Reserve increases the money supply to recent rates, he said.

"The current period of protracted inflation began around 1966 and was initiated by greater commitments in Vietnam without any timely changes in our tax and other policies," said Greenhut, co-author of a recently published book, "Economics for the Voter," which put current economic thoughts in layman's terms.

Dear editor:

More and more people are becoming alarmed over the world wide catastrophe that'd result from an all-out nuclear war.

I guess catastrophe is the right word to use when you're talking about the elimination of human life on earth, along with a lot of other creatures including cats whose nine lives won't be enough if it's true there are enough warheads on hand now to kill everybody ten times over.

School has really been busy these past few weeks and many activities have been held. On Wednesday the 21st, the annual staff showed the movie 'North Avenue Irregulars.' The students really enjoyed the day.

On the 29th of April, the Student Council sponsored their talent show. There were several good acts as well as the always popular eighth grade speech play. The students were very responsive to the talent shown.

On May 3rd, elections were held for the Student Council officers and cheerleaders. Everyone gave their best speech or yell in front of the students and then the students voted on their choice.

The Muletrain Jr. annual came in. Mrs. Pat Watson was very surprised when she opened them and found they were dedicated to her! The annual staff had done that in secrecy so that it would be a big surprise. Congratulations on a well deserved award, Mrs. Watson!!!

May 14 will be eighth grade day. They plan to spend the day at the park playing games and eating. Sounds like fun. On the 19th, will be the awards assembly. Each teacher picks an outstanding student from each course and that student receives an award.

Congratulations to the seventh and eighth grade boys for winning district in track! The eighth grade boys have won district both years.

Congratulations!!!!

You've passed another important milestone.

Something Special

things, there's another argument that ought to be put forward: the protection of our investment.

It's impossible to get an accurate figure, but a rough estimate is that the world, including the underdeveloped countries who stand to get vaporized scot-free, has about $400 billion invested in nuclear arms already stockpiled, with more being produced regardless of how far it extends the world's deficits.

So look at it from a financial standpoint. We've got all that money invested and who wants to risk losing it in an all-out battle? There's nothing more wasteful of weapons than getting them involved in a war.

Properly stored and kept out of the rain and out of the reach of children and mad men, the world's present stock of nuclear bombs ought to last for generations. Oh, somebody may come out with new models now and then, probably call them designed bombs, but the basic product will remain unchanged and sensible people shouldn't be swayed by every new fashion whim that comes along. I wouldn't give a penny more for a nuclear bomb just because it has some movie star's name on the hip pocket or wherever it goes on a warhead.

I'll say it again, the world's got too much money invested in nuclear bombs to risk losing all of it in a way. Be the dumbest financial move mankind could make.

Yours faithfully, J. A.

The Scientists Tell Me...

How Texas Farmers and Ranchers Can Benefit From the Economic Recovery Tax Act

By Robert L. Haney
TAES Science Writer

For the majority of the farmers and ranchers in Texas, the Economic Recovery Tax Act will not provide any immediate economic relief according to Dr. James W. Richardson, Agricultural Economist, Texas A&M University.

The New Tax Act provides reductions in individual income tax rates, more rapid depreciation (cost recovery) of equipment, and more liberal investment tax credit and investment tax credit recapture rules.

However, farmers and ranchers with low net incomes or losses for 1981 will not benefit from these measures designed to boost the economy, Richardson says.

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 was passed by Congress as one of the first pieces of legislation in the President's plan to put Supply-Side Economics into effect. The income tax cuts in the new Act are designed to induce economic growth by freeing money for investment in productive assets.

This phenomena would occur naturally in agriculture if farm incomes were positive and the new act resulted in income tax savings. However, low crop prices in 1981 have resulted in negative taxable incomes for most farmers.

What would be the consequences of the new Tax Act in a normal year when farmers have a positive taxable income?

To answer this question, Dr. Clair J. Nixon, Accounting Department at Texas A&M, used a computer program that simulated for 1982-1991, assuming above average cotton prices and moderate increases in the prices paid for production inputs.

The results of the analysis indicate the new tax act would probably reduce the typical operator's income tax burden about 36%. Other analyses revealed a similar level of income tax savings when crop prices and yields vary at random from year-to-year.

What causes these savings in personal income taxes? The majority of these tax benefits come from two things: (a) reduced individual income tax rates, and (b) more rapid cost recovery (depreciation) of farm machinery.

The cumulative effect of the individual income tax rate reductions will be 10% in 1982, 19% in 1983, and 23% in 1984. These drastic reductions in the tax rates provide substantial benefits for all individuals.

Farm operators will benefit additionally from the accelerated cost recovery system (ACRS) for most depreciable items, according to Richardson. Most pieces of farm equipment can be recovered in 3 to 5 years and salvage value is no longer considered in the depreciation calculation.

This change in the law significantly increases an operator's income tax deductions, provided that there is sufficient income to buy equipment. The additional first-year depreciation under the old tax law has been replaced with an option to immediately expense or write off a portion or all of the property acquired.

An operator may expense up to $5,000 in 1982 and 1983, $7,500 in 1984 and 1985, and $10,000 in 1986 and thereafter. The amount expensed in the year acquired is treated as depreciation and reduces the asset's basis for cost recovery under ACRS.

Changes in the investment tax credit and investment tax credit recapture rules will also benefit the agricultural sector. Property in the 3-year class (light trucks, etc.) will be eligible for a 6% tax credit and property in the 5-year class (most farm equipment) will be eligible for a 10% tax credit.

Under the new law, the operator earns a 2 percent credit per year which is used to offset potential recapture when the property is sold. This contrasts to the old law where the full credit was recaptured if the property was sold within 3 years.

What should a farm operator do to take advantage of the new tax law? With the dramatic reductions in the income tax rates, farm operators should consider the income tax and cash flow implications of postponing the recognition of income to later tax years.

For example, possibilities include selling crops and livestock in the next tax year on deferred collection of debt. The level and type of income (ordinary vs. capital gain) should be considered along with the tax rates when developing an income recognition strategy.

Since the postponement of income recognition for most cash basis taxpayers results in foregoing the use of income, the benefits of reduced future income tax should be compared to the opportunity cost of foregoing the use of income presently.

If deferring the recognition of income is not a possibility, Nixon suggested the acceleration of expenses in the current year can also effectively reduce taxable income.

Furthermore, sales of crops and livestock in January versus December allows one to not only use the funds from the sale for almost an additional year before paying taxes, but the income will also be taxed at reduced future rates.

Thus, prepayment of expenses and/or postponement of income recognition can help farm operators receive maximum benefits under the new law.

AUSTIN—With springtime naturally sprucing up the outdoors, people also are inspired to fix up their own living spaces. While the desire is present, the know-how may not be. Lacking such expertise, homeowners easily can be persuaded to accept the assistance of an independent contractor. Such assistance will prove worthy only if the independent contractor is reputable. Remodelers, roofers and pool builders, for example, can fall into the category of fraudulent contractors.

Consumers can protect themselves in this area by being aware of some of the characteristics associated with fraudulent contractors. Often your first contact with these people is when they approach you at your residence. They can be quite capable of convincing the home owner that they will perform a quality job at a discounted rate. These contractors justify the discounted rate with such rationale as they are new in town and have not yet acquired clientele, or they have not had time to establish a set place of business.

Various business practices could qualify such contractors to be termed fraudulent.

Army recruiters across the nation report that high school graduates can now accumulate a fund of up to $15,200 for serving only two years in the Army.

The Army offers a free booklet explaining the program in detail. It's available at any recruiting station. Look in the yellow Pages under "Recruiting."

The program, called "The Army College Fund," involves soldiers' savings, government matching funds, and Army grants.

Mother--Well Eddie, did you let little sister choose which one of the two apples she wanted?

Here's how it works: Qualified soldiers save from $25 to $100 of their pay each month up to a maximum of $2,400 in two years. The government will match the soldier's savings two-for-one. The Army makes an additional grant of $8,000 to soldiers who serve for two years in selected skills.

Soldiers who serve for three or more years can save up to $2,700. The government matches that two-for-one, then the Army adds $12,000, for a total of $20,100.

New Italian Market For Grain Sorghum

A change in consumer demand may open a new Italian market for grain sorghum. Italian housewives are asking for poultry with a very white fat. In fact, they are even willing to pay a little extra to get it. This is a reversal in buying choices. Until recently, the notion prevailed in Italy, as in many other parts of the world, that a healthy bird must have yellow fat.

for Italy, Dr. Romano Graziani.

"Just a few years ago, we were trying to convince Italian housewives that the color of the fat made absolutely no difference in the quality of the meat," said Elbert Harp, executive director of Grain Sorghum Producers Association. "We even had poultry nutritionists develop rations with additives to produce the yellow color in the fat of poultry."

"We were able to tell the Italian poultry producers that they can have poultry rations as good, or better, than those they are now feeding if they will use grain sorghum -- and that it will produce birds with white fat," said Harp. "They are definitely interested in trying sorghum. We will need to help them set up trials for demonstrations."

Harp and Dr. Earl Gleaves, Poultry Specialist with the Nebraska Extension Service, were in Italy April 17-22 to meet with feed manufacturers and poultry and egg producers. The project was sponsored by U. S. Feed Grains Council and arranged through their director

The Italian poultry market is definitely one that is worth promoting, according to Harp. "If they decided to use sorghum as the principle grain in their broiler and turkey rations, it could amount to sales up to 40 million bushels of sorghum per year or the equivalent of five percent of the annual U. S. grain sorghum production.

Money multiplies the power of man either for better or for worse.

Accent On Health

Texas Department of Health
Robert Bernstein, M.D., Commissioner

Measles, an acute viral illness which occurs primarily in unvaccinated children, continues as a health threat in Texas today because of the serious complications it can cause.

Measles, although most common in late winter and early spring, may occur anytime with possible complications ranging from pneumonia and middle ear infection to encephalitis, mental retardation, and death.

In 1981, nearly 900 measles cases were reported in Texas with major outbreaks occurring in El Paso, San Antonio, Houston, and the Lower Rio Grande Valley. During these episodes many young children developed pneumonia following measles illness, and one child died from complications following the disease. Through mid-April of this year, 21 measles cases were reported to the Texas Department of Health, compared to 67 for the same period a year ago.

The importance of early immunization against measles cannot be overstated because of the health problems the disease can create. There is no specific treatment for measles once the disease occurs.

On September 1, 1981, measles immunization requirements were revised by the Texas Board of Health because many students enrolled under preexisting requirements became ill with measles. Revised regulations require all students enrolled in public and private schools to be vaccinated against measles on or after their first birthday or present a physician validated history of measles illness.

Normally, children are vaccinated against measles at 15 months of age. The vaccine used is usually a compilation of measles, mumps, and rubella vaccines. The vaccine is safe and quite effective as protection against these three diseases.

Public health authorities urge all physicians, health care providers, school officials, and child-care facility operators to report promptly any rash and fever illnesses that resemble measles. This will assist public health officials in the control of measles outbreaks and will eliminate measles as a threat to public health.

Track, Field Camp Planned May 30

Applications for Wayland Baptist University's first annual Summer Track and Field Camp are now being accepted, according to Head Coach Glen Sefcik.

A unique concept in summer camps, the Wayland Track and Field Camp is slated for Sunday, May 30 through Thursday, June 3, concluding with a track meet the final day.

Open to both boys and girls between the ages of eight and 18, the camp will offer instruction in all areas of track and field. Each daily program will be a re-education of training for seasonal development through drills and learning activities for each event.

Competent and successful high school, junior college and university coaches will use lectures, demonstrations, and visual aids to enhance the camper's learning experiences.

Topping the list of instructors for the inaugural camp is Sefcik, a veteran of more than 10 years of coaching on the high school college and international levels. Also on the teaching staff are PeeWee Halsell and Bob Carey, assistant track coaches at WBU.

Individualized instruction will be geared to accommodate the range of each camper's performance capabilities, with emphasis on self-discipline, weight programs, rest and setting high goals. The daily schedule will provide time for recreational activities.

Campers will be housed in a modern residence hall on the WBU campus, and meals will be provided and served by the university staff in the campus dining hall.

Cost for the camp is $130 per resident camper and $80 for nonresident campers. Enrollment is limited to the first 100 participants who apply, and a $25 deposit is required at the time application is made.

Registration will take place on Sunday, May 30, from 3 until 5 p.m. in Hutchinson Physical Education Center.

Letters of application and deposit should be mailed to Glen Sefcik, Wayland Baptist University, Plainview, Texas 79072. For more information contact Sefcik at 296-5521.

Preventive Maintenance Cuts Home Cooling Costs

With even minor repairs of air cooling systems taking a big bite out of beleaguered budgets, smart homeowners are practicing preventative maintenance which will rack up real dollar savings every summer.

If you have a service contract with a local heating and air conditioning dealer, now is the time to schedule that check-up of your central cooling system.

Your dealer will clean the unit's condenser, wash or replace the air filter if dirty, check the wear on belts and fans, and oil the motor. Tackling these critical maintenance steps, while fairly simple for a professional, would be unwise and possibly costly for an inexperienced homeowner.

It's far less expensive to pay for the annual service check-up now than to wait for something major to go wrong later in the season.

If you don't already have a maintenance contract, check the Yellow Pages for a heating and air conditioning dealer in your area. He'll be glad to give you the details of his service contract over the phone. While you're lowering the temperature of your home, you also can be cooling off the energy costs on your monthly utility bills.

One smart way to save money while cooling is to install a Coolpak Precooler™ on your central air conditioner. It will increase the cooling efficiency of the system, while lowering your operating costs by as much as 20 percent.

Attached easily to the condenser cabinet, it reduces the temperature of the outside air by passing it over a unique water panel. As the water evaporates, the air is cooled on its way to the condensing coil. Your air conditioner won't have to work as hard to cool your home because head pressure is lowered. This reduces compressor failures.

Ask your heating and air-conditioning dealer about the Coolpak Precooler. There are sizes to fit nearly every condenser model, including those for commercial refrigeration and air conditioning systems.

Investing in small firms brings greater stock returns

COLLEGE STATION — Investing in small firms whose outstanding shares seldom change hands could bring greater stock market returns than investing in the so-called "blue chips," says a Texas A&M University finance professor.

"There's some evidence that this might be the case, although when you invest in the smaller firm you're usually taking more risk," said Dr. S. Kerry Cooper of Texas A&M's College of Business Administration.

Maintaining your cooling equipment properly, coupled with simple conservation measures, will help guarantee that monthly utility bills won't send your own temperature skyrocketing this summer.

Keep your air conditioner fan set on high except in humid weather when a lower fan speed will help remove moisture from the air.

Setting your air conditioning temperature lower won't cool your home any faster. But each degree you lower it from the recommended 78 degrees will add between 3-5 percent to operating costs.

Stay cool all summer long with more efficient use of your air conditioning equipment and lower energy costs.

Adjust Cash Flow Projections

Successful farm management involves the correct combination of marketing, financing and production decisions along with some luck. Survival of some agricultural producers in 1982 and later years will depend upon how effectively they plan and manage the business cash flow.

Effective planning of the business cash flow requires the integration of marketing, financing and production considerations.

With '82 crops being planted or to be planted soon, cash flow budgets prepared earlier this year are leading to actual cash flow statements, as dollars are spent in producing this year's crops.

As slack time periods come about, producers need to update the business cash flow budget. Such corrections convert the cash flow budget to a statement of actual dollars removed from the business 'cash tank' for payment of production items. From a producer and lender viewpoint, the real managerial significance is in projection made in the cash flow budget and the financial control which results when actual cash flow is compared with projected cash flow.

As the year wears on, cash flow projections often need to be adjusted for the remainder of the year. Since the original cash flow projection was probably completed several weeks or months ago, new or improved information is now available and additional decisions have been made.

To illustrate, revisions in cash flow projections can reflect refinements in fertilizer rates actually applied or to be applied, acreage reduction decisions, lease and rental adjustments, last minute changes in the crop mix, insect control on small grains, and more accurate estimates of crop and livestock marketings.

Two financial management publications are available from the county Extension office to help producers and lenders.

One is the "Annual Operating Budget and Credit Plan" (MP-1240) which is designed for summarizing quantities, cost and dates of expenditures for operating and capital items as well as expected dates and revenues from marketing of commodity and capital items. The publication also contains a cash flow projection worksheet by months.

The other publication, "Financial Record - Agriculture" (L-1410), is a valuable tool for summarizing and analyzing a business' past performance and financial condition. The supporting documents available in this publication could provide essential information for completing cash flow projection.

H. S. students lack interest in consumer issues

COLLEGE STATION — A lack of interest in consumer issues by high school students is the biggest obstacle in establishing a consumer education program in Texas Schools, says a university marketing professor.

In a study comparing 1970 and 1981 state high school consumer education programs, Dr. James McNeal of Texas A&M University said a lack of student interest and already-crowded curriculums keep them from doing well.

"Half of our high schools don't offer a separate course and more than 10 percent of the high schools offer no consumer education at all," said McNeal, a specialist in consumer research.

Some Handymen Keen on Roofing

Do it yourself continues to rise, in some case to the very tops of homes.

More homeowners, hoping to save money, are taking on the job of reroofing themselves. It can be a tough and hazardous job. It can also be a satisfying project for someone skilled in carpentry and knowledgeable about roofing terms.

If you are considering reroofing as a do-it-yourself project, the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturer's Association suggests that you think carefully about the following:

Weigh Carefully

Are you comfortable working at heights? Are you willing to devote the time and effort to getting the job done properly? Are you skilled at application techniques?

Unless the answer to all three questions is an unqualified yes, you're better off leaving the job in the hands of a professional roofer. However, a skilled handyman who follows recognized safety procedures should be able to handle a moderately-sloped roof or a single-story ranch style home.

Unusually high roofs, those with steep slopes or lots of gables and planes, says ARMA, are best left to professionals. To determine the pitch of your roof, measure how many inches it rises for each foot it runs.

Measure Slope

Roofs with slopes of four or five inches per horizontal foot are the safest and easiest for the do it yourselfer. For slopes of less than four inches per foot, special application procedures are recommended.

The basic tools required for reroofing include a hammer, roofing nails, tape measure, utility knife, chalk line for proper shingle alignment, and a pointed trowel for applying roofing cement. A carpenter's apron keeps tools handy. Ladders, scaffolding and safety harnesses can be rented.

Safety First

Be sure to heed the following safety precautions:

- For secure footing, wear rubber-soled, construction-type shoes.
- Secure ladders top and bottom. Keep the roof surface clear of debris.
- Never allow ladders to come in contact with power lines.
- Place shingles and tools where they won't slide off the roof. Keep people away from the work area.

- Lift only easy loads.
- Apply shingles on clear days when it is warm, but not hot.

- Do not reroof in wet weather or when the temperature is below 40 degrees F.
- Reroof only when the roof deck and existing shingles are dry. Moisture makes roofs slippery and dangerous.

Read Carefully

Before starting the job, read the manufacturer's recommendations for application found on the shingle-bundle wrapper. Following these recommendations should result in a roof that not only is attractive, but will last for many years.

Additional information on how to install roofing can be obtained for 50 cents from ARMA, Dept. DY, Box 3248, Grand Central Station, New York, New York 10163.

Firefighters in Action

The Muleshoe Fire Department wishes to recognize an outstanding citizen and fireman. Earl Ladd Jr. served his community in many ways, one of these was with the volunteer fire department from 1958 to May 9, 1982. He served as local training officer, lieutenant, president, team captain and member of the executive board.

He helped with the Canyon Fire School as training officer and was instrumental in maintaining the certification training program set by the state. His vast knowledge and understanding of fire department procedures and requirements helped keep the department abreast of the changing times.

Earl Jr.'s strength and determination through the last few years will be an inspiration to all who knew him or met him. His mark here in Muleshoe and in the fire department will be remembered and respected for many years. We now extend our deepest sympathy and love to the family of Earl Ladd Jr.

Three local firemen will travel to New Braunfels for Jaws of Life training at the annual Hurst Rescue Seminar May 22 and 23.

Computer literacy necessity for today's educators

COLLEGE STATION — Computers have become a new factor to be considered in the age-old quotient of reading, writing, and arithmetic, says a national leader in teacher education.

That means teachers today must be able to show their students how to use computers in mastering those skills. And if teachers going into the school systems need to know computers, it follows that university faculty who teach those teachers must know computers as well, said Dr. Dean Corrigan, dean of Texas A&M University's College of Education. Corrigan also is president of the American Association of Colleges for Teachers Education.

"Computer literacy is almost a basic skill now," Corrigan said. "Students can use computers for sociology classes as well as mathematics. We want to make sure our prospective teachers are competent to teach their students in the schools in the use of computers."

Information For Veterans

According to Dorothy Turner, Service Officer for Bailey County, a law recently passed by the Congress will provide a number of liberalized benefits for eligible veterans of the U. S. Armed Forces.

The new law is Public Law 97-72, entitled "Veterans Health Care, Training and Small Business Loan Act of 1981," and was signed by the President on November 3, 1981. The following provisions are included in the law:

(A) Veterans who served on active duty in Vietnam or who were exposed to ionizing radiation from detonation of a nuclear device, may receive medical care for disabilities resulting from Agent Orange, toxic substances or radiation. Medical care is provided through VA hospitals and clinics.

(B) Provides liberalized program of dental outpatient care to certain eligible veterans.

(C) Extends for three years readjustment counseling for Vietnam veterans through the special VA Counseling Centers.

(D) Provides a two-year extension for certain veterans to use their GI Bill educational benefits. This extension period applies to veterans whose ten-year delimitating date has passed and they have unused entitlement.

(E) Authorized the VA to operate a small business loan program for Vietnam and service-connected disabled veterans. Thus far, no funds have been appropriated for this program. It cannot begin until Congress appropriates the money for the VA to initiate the program. The effective date, if funds are provided, was May 3, 1982.
