Longtime Area Civic Leader Dies Monday

Services for W. D. 'Bill' Moore, age 79, were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the First United Methodist Church of Muleshoe with the Rev. Bill Kent officiating. He died at 10:40 a.m. July 5 in West Plains Medical Center.

Freedom Day Celebration Draws Large Crowds

Saturday, July 3, was another big Independence Day Celebration for the City of Muleshoe, with many contests and events throughout the day.

The Freedom Parade was spangled with many local dignitaries and the 1982 parade marshalls, Jenne McVickers and Bob Sanders. Riding clubs, civic and other organizations turned out to make the event a memorable one.

Float winners in the freedom parade were: In first place ($75) Alpha Zeta Pi Sorority, second place ($50) Boy Scouts and Webelos, and third place ($25) Cub Scouts Pack 620. The Jenny slippers also had an exceptional float, but since they were involved with the direction of the parade, were unable to compete for the prizes.

Riding club winners were first place: Lam's County Sheriff's Posse, and second place, Lubbock Saddle Club. Both were senior clubs. In the Junior club division, the Lubbock Rangers took first place. Judges for the riding club competition were Alice Liles, Jim Pearson and Shirley Farmer.

A color guard from Reese Air Force Base in Lubbock led the way for the floats and other entries. Due to unfavorable weather conditions, the pony express race was cancelled, thus dropping a traditional event from the July celebration.

The 4-H Omelet Rodeo was met with success again this year, as many citizens took advantage of the unusual fare for an early breakfast.

In the World's Championship Mule Shoe Pitching Contest, overall world reigning champion, Ed Neutzler retained his title again this year. Neutzler was also champion in the men's division and was followed by James Turnbow with second place.

In the women's division, Brenda Scott won the championship with Mary Hicks taking second place in that division.

Smoke Signal Announces Tolk Plant Fire-Up

A short-lived "smoke signal" soon will announce the firing-up of Southwest Public Service Company's giant new coal-fired plant near Muleshoe.

There is no reason to be concerned about the "smoke" which will be seen coming from the plant's 400-foot tall boiler stack, said Ben Green, manager of Tolk Station.

The emissions will be harmless fly ash, Green said, and will puff from the stack "for only a very few days."

Thereafter, there will be no fly ash "smoke."

Fly ash is the unburnable mineral content of coal, Green said. "It is material that will be collected with greater than 99 percent efficiency by our environmental containment equipment," under routine operating conditions.

But SPS's environmental containment equipment will not be in use during the preliminary firing, Green said. So there will be a visible emission for a few days from the boiler stack.

Answer May Come Within One Week

In a townhall type meeting in Muleshoe Tuesday, U. S. Representative Kent Hance told the Journal that he was very optimistic for the disaster payments for the 25 High Plains counties that have been so hard hit by weather disasters this year. Hance said, "I feel that we have about an 85 percent chance of seeing this aid come through."

When asked how soon it could be activated, Hance had this to say: "We could see some relief in about one to two weeks. We should know or have an answer from Secretary (John) Block in about a week."

Speaking to about 50-60 people, Hance sympathized with the farmers and businessmen; and, made his pledge to them to keep on trying to "hang in." Citing the defeat or tie on the Farm Crisis Bill, Hance stated that he hoped to get the bill tied in by attaching it to the reconciliation bill which will come up in August. He stated that several strong factors helped to kill this bill in the first go-round; one of them was the National Cotton Council and the other was Farm Bureau which had issued statements that farmers did not know enough to vote on such a bill. Hance is predicting about a 40 percent chance of getting the farm crisis act into the '83 Farm Bill. "Of course, that will not change things now, except for giving people some hope of a better future in the farming business, and an incentive to hand on and keep going." Hance will be back in Washington on Monday, July 12, to begin work on the reconciliation budget and the game plan at that time is to try to do something about the farm bill at that time. He said that there might be possible to have some answers by the last of August.

Regarding the resignation of Alexander Haig, former Secretary of State, Hance stated that it was "long overdue." The man had a tremendous ego and was difficult to work with, besides not wanting to be held accountable to anyone, Hance ventured. The 19th District Congressman predicted that George Shultz, who was named to replace Haig, will give more direction to the agricultural policy of the U. S. "He is certainly a free trade person, and understands the problems and policies of trade with foreign countries."

Hance stated that he felt it was "Good policy to sell grain to the Soviet Union; better to sell them grain and keep them well fed than to sell them technol-

Regina Finke & Sam Damron

"We are here to serve the people of the Muleshoe area," said Sam Damron, carrying on a tradition established by his late father, Joe Damron, who opened the first Damron Drug Store in Muleshoe 50 years ago.

Joe and Robbie Damron came to Muleshoe as young people and established Damron Rexall Drug in the 200 Block of Main Street. And, when Sam graduated from Muleshoe High School, he attended Baylor University in 1942-43, then transferred to the University of Texas where he graduated in 1948 with his degree in pharmacy.

Since his graduation, he has been associated with Damron Drug. He formed a partnership with his father and mother in 1951 and continues that partnership with his mother, following the death of his father nearly six years ago.

Sam said that up until the time of his death at 83 years of age, Joe still came to the drug store daily to work, even though he did not work fulltime by that time. Joe still helped in the pharmacy, assisting the customers he had known so well over the years, and visiting with longtime friends.

Currently located in the 300 block of Main Street, Damron Drug still offers a full line of drug store items, as well as gift items, and has a lunch and refreshment counter.

Sam said he still offers the after hours prescription service which has long been a tradition of Damron Drug and he and his assistant, Regina Finke, can fill any prescription ordered by the doctor.

Sam served on the Texas State Board of Pharmacy from 1973 to 1979 and in 1977 served as president of the board.

An accomplished pilot, as well as his wife, Elaine, he also enjoys hunting and photography for relaxation.

Rickey Barrett, Ray Davis, & Durk Green

When Farm Bureau was first organized in 1912, it was as a farm lobbying and political group, to represent farmers across the nation in their efforts to obtain 'fair' pricing for their commodities -- a subject still foremost on the mind of the farmer today.

However, as the organization grew, it began to diversify, and in 1947, the Texas Farm Bureau began selling insurance. Bailey County chartered for a county Farm Bureau in 1951 and opened their first office here in 1952.

Ray Davis, who moved to Muleshoe eight years ago as the manager of the local Farm Bureau office, said Farm Bureau is not restricted to farmers, but is open to anyone interested in agriculture.

Farm Bureau first opened offices in Muleshoe on East Avenue B, then after a short time, moved to their current location on West American Boulevard.

Davis said they could insure anything a farmer might need insured, as well as offering commercial, homeowners, life, auto, health and other insurance.

All insurance handled by Farm Bureau is underwritten by their organization -- except health insurance -- which is underwritten by Travelers.

Davis explained that Farm Bureau does not handle Federal Crop Insurance, but does underwrite their own crop insurance.

Also, for members, the Farm Bureau organization offers tires, batteries, disk plows, chisel points and other related merchandise at a better price through group marketing, added Davis.

He said he and his agents, Durk Green and Rickey Barrett, along with the office workers, Bobbie Harrison and Diane Gustin, are ready to help anyone who is a member, or interested in the Bailey County Farm Bureau.

The Bailey County Farm Bureau has always supported the Muleshoe Fire Department. When there is a fire, outside the city limits, Farm Bureau pays the fire department for answering the fire. This helps the fire department in obtaining needed equipment. Also, Farm Bureau has a portion of the fire school at Texas A&M and help sponsor firemen each year from this county to attend the school to keep their certification current.

Also, the Bailey County Farm Bureau helps sponsor leadership seminars for three Bailey County youth each year. The three junior or senior students are sent to the leadership seminars at Baylor University. "When they come back from the seminars, they are proud of what they have learned," said Davis.

Jody Lynn Vernon became the bride of Charlie Porter Lyle in a candlelight ceremony on Saturday, June 26, at 9 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Sudan. Rev. Truman Johnson, pastor, read the double ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Vernon of Sudan and Mr. and Mrs. Charlie A. Lyle of Houston.

The church was centered with an arch entwined with rose colored silk flowers flanked with two heart shaped candelabras also decorated with rose silk flowers. In back of the archway was a unity candle decorated with flowers and ribbon. Rose satin ribbons marked the pews.

Gracie Evins provided organ music as the guests arrived. Sharon Nixon, cousin of the bride, sang "Endless Love," and "That's The Way," accompanied by Bert Byerley on the piano.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white silk organza and lace trimmed in lace and pearls. The high collar of lace topped the illusion bodice of lace and pearls, styled with an empire waistline. Lace and pearl appliques circled the waistline and skirt.

The back of the gown featured a bodice of a circle yoke with illusion outline in lace and a bow at the waistline. The cuffs were embroidered with pearls. The full skirt swept into a full chapel train accented in lace.

Her fingertip veil of illusion was gathered to a Juliet cap of chantilly lace embroidered in seed pearls and edged in chantilly lace.

She carried a cascading bouquet of rose colored silk roses and baby's breath atop a white Bible, used by several brides in the family. She carried this as something old. A white linen handkerchief was something borrowed, something new was a white lace marriage handkerchief, something blue was her garter and in her shoes she wore pennies minted in the year of their births.

Attending the bride as maid of honor was her sister, Shanda Vernon. The bridesmaids were Kelli Flowers of Sudan, Brenda McClaugherty, cousin of the groom, and Betty Lyle, sister of the groom, both of Houston.

The attendants wore formal length gowns of rose qiana knit featuring a ruffled scoop neckline and velvet ribbon around the natural waistline and each carried a silk rose and baby's breath.

Geneva Newman, aunt of the bride, registered the guests.

Serving as best man was Charlie A. Lyle, father of the groom. Groomsman were Chris McClaugherty, cousin of the groom, Ray Douglas and Dennis McLarty, all of Houston. They wore silver tuxedos with burgundy ruffles. The groom wore a white tuxedo.

Ushers were Jimmie Newman, uncle of the bride and Roy Don Dudgeon of Abilene. Candlelighters were Bonnie and Teena Newman, cousins of the bride.

Christie Stephens was the flower girl. She and the candlelighters wore pink and floral sheer organza dresses with a tiered ruffle.

Before exchanging vows, Sharon Nixon sang "The Wedding Song."

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall. Serving the guests were Lori Harper, Pam Kent, both of Sudan and Lessa Herring of Brownfield. Bonnie and Teena also passed out the rice bags.

Following a wedding trip to New Mexico and Colorado, the couple will reside in Huntsville where he is a mechanic at Brown Oil Co. The bride is a Texas Tech University graduate and will be employed as a teacher by Willis ISD in Huntsville.

Among the out of town guests were Mrs. Betty Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Chris McClaugherty, Dennis McLarty, Ray Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie A. Lyle, Betty and Dennis Lyle, and

FUN WITH FIGURES

It's often said that it is possible to search the world for treasure only to find it buried in the backyard. That can be true for many former Army soldiers. Although they've received training in the Army, they still have to search to find a job with the current unemployment rate at about 9.6 percent.

The Army Reserve can make the transition to the civilian world easier for these former full-time soldiers. The Army Reserve Personnel Appropriation for the 1982 fiscal year is estimated at $973 million. Much of that goes to those who serve one weekend a month and two weeks of annual training. For example, a Sergeant, E-5, who enlists in the Army Reserve, can depend on an extra $1,800 a year to help combat the tough economic situation.

IT'S TIME TO EAT—Residents of the Mulshoe Nursing Home started the holidays off in style with a cookout at noon Friday, in front of the Nursing Home. Hamburgers and all the trimmings, plus ice cream, were on the menu for the cookout, which was under the direction of Ruby Clark, dietician for the Nursing Home.

YOUR TELEPHONE SERVICE - A REAL BARGAIN

All things considered, talking is a real bargain. The chart below shows how your telephone costs compare against other goods and services you use daily.

(Figures based on data gathered from U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics from October 1976 to October 1981.)

GASOLINE	125.2%
GAS & ELECTRICITY	85.5%
HOME OWNERSHIP	68.2%
ENTERTAINMENT COMMODITIES	41.0%
MEDICAL CARE	61.4%
FOOD*	56.5%
NEW CAR	56.4%
TELEPHONE	22%
CONSUMER PRICE INDEX	91.5%

*Away from home
Basic local service in GTSW's Texas exchanges

Frequently, the convenience of the telephone is taken for granted. For instance, a few things you use your phone for:

1. Shop ahead, save gas
2. Make appointments (doctor, sales, calls, lawyer, preacher)
3. Emergencies (police, fire, ambulance)
4. Talking with loved ones in other towns
5. Conducting business via long-distance, save on travel cost
6. Calling scout troop, civic club, little league team, etc.
7. Visit with a friend across town.

Talk is cheap and also a real bargain. For a true picture, divide your basic local service rate by the days in the month. For just pennies a day, excluding long distance and special services, you have your town at your fingertips.

Students To Attend Citizenship Seminar

The Texas Farm Bureau Citizenship Seminar for junior and senior high school students will be July 19-23 on the Baylor University campus in Waco.

Planning to attend from Bailey County are Donna Horn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hutton; Kristi Ethridge, daughter of Mr.

Comparisons of the different kinds of economic systems are outlined in lectures, discussions and films presented by outstanding authorities in government, history and economics.

Several excellent speakers will be at this year's seminar. They include Dr. Clifton Ganus, president of Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas, who will cover "Understanding and Preserving our American Heritage."

Alex Shekkel, a Russian immigrant who now lives in Waco, will discuss "The Real Russia" as he left it five years ago. Glenn J. Kimber, vice president of the Freeman Institute, in Salt Lake City, Utah, will speak on "Miracle of America."

Dr. Thomas Cunningham family life specialist from Stillwater, Oklahoma, will speak on "Citizenship and the Family." The topic of Jack Jackson's speech will be "The Price of Free Enterprise." He is an instructor with American Airlines in Fort Worth.

Students attending the citizenship seminar will be eligible to enter the TFB Young Speakers for Free Enterprise contest.

CAPITOL UPDATE

John Tower
U.S. SENATOR for TEXAS
142 RUSSELL OFFICE BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20510

The question of whether the federal government should spend money to create jobs or to train individuals for employment is a complex one, and one which requires us to look at the fabric of our economic system.

This system -- the strongest and more prosperous in the history of the world -- is built on the foundation of individuals working in privately owned firms. We believe that this private enterprise system is better able to provide productive employment and to produce goods and services than any means which relies primarily on government to serve these functions.

However, in this technological age many who are willing to work cannot because they do not have the skills required to be productive employees. Sometimes, the private sector simply is not able to bear the cost of training these willing but unskilled workers.

Since the Great Depression of the 1930s, the federal government has stepped in to fill this training gap. Over the past 20 years we have tried a number of methods to bring more workers into the economy. Unfortunately, many of the approaches we have used have been unsuccessful. They have cost vast sums of money and have fallen short of fulfilling their mission. The Comprehensive Employment and Training Act has been the most ambitious of these.

When we look at the reasons these well-intentioned programs have had less success than we had hoped, we usually find that they have not been responsive to the needs of the businesses we counted on to employ newly trained workers.

This summer Congress will consider legislation to create a new program which I believe will prove more successful both in terms of its benefit to participants and its cost-effectiveness.

The Job Training Act of 1982 is designed to encourage businesses and state and local governments to work together to train and place workers in permanent private sector jobs.

Training programs would be designed by a private industry council in cooperation with local elected officials. These councils at the local and state levels would design programs to meet area needs. Programs would be evaluated under performance standards which measure earnings gains and welfare payment reductions.

Special emphasis is given to training young people, welfare recipients and dislocated workers who have no reasonable prospect of returning to their prior employment.

The program requirements would be structured in such a way that 70 to 85 percent of the total cost would go directly into training instead of administrative and support services.

In short, this legislation is consistent with the mandate of the American people to give local authorities, who are in a position to respond to community needs, a greater measure of control over programs, and to make federal spending more cost-effective.

Certainly, the federal government cannot abdicate its responsibilities to bring willing workers, particularly young people, into the economic mainstream. I believe the approach taken in the Job Training Act of 1982 will be much more effective in meeting this goal than CETA has been.

It is my hope that Congress will act quickly to pass this legislation.

The Texas Consumer Association Education Fund's Report from Austin

By Rebecca Lightsey, Director

The claims make it sound like a miracle cure.

It creates hundreds of jobs, brings down utility rates, revitalizes communities, and saves the environment. What is this golden cure? An alternative to providing electricity from nuclear power plants.

Electricity from nuclear plants, originally touted as "energy too cheap to meter," isn't turning out to be the salvation after all. Instead of being too cheap to meter, it's going to be too expensive to afford, if the current trends keep up.

Take the South Texas Nuclear Project, which Houston Lighting and Power is building to supply energy to Houston, San Antonio and Austin. Original estimates were that it would cost $964 million. Now it's projected to cost $4.3 billion, that's about 5 times the first estimate. And it's already six years behind schedule. Who knows when it will ever start generating electricity.

Or look at the Comanche Peak plant that Texas Power and Light is constructing to bring power to 54 counties in north central and east Texas. That plant was started in 1974, with a price tag of $770 million. Now it's up to $5.8 billion and still not completed. Last week, TP&L's customers got notice that their utility bills are going up another 15 percent. A big hunk of that jump in electric rates is to pay for the yet - unfinished nuclear plant. The Public Utility Commission just let the utility company pass 60 percent of its financing costs of Comanche Peak on to ratepayers.

As a result of the nuclear plants' construction, ratepayers' bills go up, investment dollars go out of their home towns to the big Wall Street financiers, and only a handful of town folks get jobs. And so far, no one has received a single watt of electricity to show for it all.

Fortunately we're not doomed to a black energy future of having our pocketbooks emptied while we're waiting for nuclear power, because there's another way to "generate" enough energy to make nuclear plants unnecessary, some energy experts explain. We've already got the know-how and where-with-all to do it - we just need to turn out attention to conservation and using different, small-scale energy sources.

Using rather simple techniques such as weatherization, passive solar hot water heating and the like is astonishingly cheaper than building giant power plants so look at the figures: the cost of energy from a nuclear plant is at least 10 cents a kilowatt hour compared to 3.9 cents per Kwh from alternative energy investments. That adds up to a staggering difference in those monthly utility bills.

And, there's another huge advantage to conservation and renewable energy technologies - they provide jobs and business opportunities in the communities, not Wall Street. Since these methods require a small-scale, unit by unit application to work, as opposed to the large infusion of dollars that power plants need, they are labor-intensive, not capital - intensive. Producing, installing and maintaining these other sources of energy makes use of hundreds of people - which translates into hundreds of jobs.

The fact is that solar-conservation programs overall employ three to six times as many people as a nuclear plant, several studies show. These jobs go to people who actually live in these towns, not to a few construction workers a hundred miles away and New York investors. When you compare employment created in a community versus communities that are paying for the employment created in a community versus communities that are paying for the employment, the figure is even more dramatic.

Take Austin, for example. For Austin's share of building the S. Texas Project, it's only getting 500 job years for Austinites, while alternative energy investments would create 16,700 job years. And they go to people with all sorts of skills, from elementary construction to plumbing to engineering and computer programming.

The Public Utility Commission could help get these innovative programs underway, but it's not doing so now. If you'd like more information about how this would work or what the PUC could do, write the Texas Consumer Association, 500 W. 13th, Austin, Texas 78701.

U.S. showed positive trade balance in 1981

AUSTIN--For the first time since 1977 the United States experienced a positive trade balance in livestock, meat and livestock products, Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown reports.

"This is good news for the Texas ranchers who produce the largest amount of cattle, sheep and goats in the nation," Brown said. Frozen and fresh beef and veal exports from the United States increased roughly $45 million in 1981. During the same year, U.S. beef exports to Japan, the nation's largest beef market, reached nearly $160 million in fresh and frozen beef. Also in 1981, Texas meat exports totaled roughly $74 million or nine percent of the nation's total meat export. While total red meat trade in the U.S. remained negative, there was a marked narrowing of the deficit.

Texas also contributes a large percentage annually to total U.S. live animal exports which increased in both quantity and value during 1981. There were 17,906 head of cattle shipped from Texas exporting facilities during 1981 along with 48,525 head of goats, 128,359 head of sheep, 3,899 swine and 739 horses. The total value of animals exported from Texas during 1981 totaled about $33.4 million. Overall, U.S. live animal exports increased in value by approximately $40 million.

The import of live animals and their meat products to the United States showed a decline in 1981. Beef and veal imports declined about $373 million and almost 100,000 tons on a product weight basis from previous years. Live cattle imports declined in both number and value during 1981 with feeder cattle imports dropping approximately 12,000 head for a decline in value of roughly $24 million.

Based on preliminary figures, U.S. exports of livestock, meat and livestock products exceeded imports in 1981 by about $307 million. While imports declined by nearly $325 million from the 1980 value, exports grew approximately $105 million. "An increase in exports of our nation's raw and processed foods should alleviate several economic problems that we are now facing by helping to eliminate surpluses, which are costly to maintain," Brown said.

Mayors concerned over federal aid cuts.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--In recent years some brave individuals in the public eye--politicians, film stars, etc.--have individually come forward and stated that they are alcoholics or that they are drug addicts. These public figures are only a few of the many brave people who have met the crisis of accepting themselves as drug dependent and who admit to their families, friends and co-workers that they have a problem and need help.

Acknowledgement is the first step towards recovery but recovery is never total; it requires a day-to-day commitment to resist dangerous, habit-forming drugs and intoxicants.

There are many who never make the first step and fail to keep their commitments. We read about these public figures whose drug deaths become sad reminders of the destructiveness of drug dependency. But of course there are many others who meet a similar fate that we do not hear about.

The problems of drug and alcohol addiction are diverse; help needs to come from many directions and sources. Recently, Texas took the lead in addressing the problem of drug-dependency by the passage of SB 26 during the first special session.

This new legislation requires health insurers, health maintenance organizations and nonprofit hospital and medical service plan corporations in Texas to make available, under group hospitalization and medical coverage policies, benefits for the care and treatment of alcoholism and drug dependency. These benefits are to be comparable to those for other illnesses of the same duration, dollar, and deductible limits.

The group contract holder, that is an employer, has the right whether or not to include this coverage in the group policy he chooses for his employees.

The benefits of such coverage will be provided as if the treatment for the alcohol or drug dependency at a treatment center was treatment in a hospital. The treatment centers must meet certain specifications set forth in the legislation.

This legislation went into effect January 1, 1982 for group policies renewed, extended, or amended.

Certain exceptions to coverage are provided such as for persons who are eligible for similar coverage under Medicare.

The Governor with the assistance of the State Board of Insurance has mailed approximately 2800 letters to employers throughout the state to notify them that this new coverage is now available.

Employers should be encouraged to include this new coverage in their group policies and should encourage their employees to take advantage of it. We may not be able to "cure" alcoholism and drug dependency, but nearly all cases can be treated so that the individuals involved have a good chance of being responsible members of society and capable employees.

If an employee or employer would like additional information on this coverage, contact The State Board of Insurance, 512-475-4285.

Southwestern Public Service Company works around the clock to provide you with a dependable supply of electricity. When storms or other problems occur, SPS crews are ready to repair damaged equipment quickly. During the recent tornadoes that swept through parts of the SPS service area, many of our employees worked through the night and well into the next day to restore power to customers whose service was interrupted.

Donald French, Line Supervisor, Lubbock.

Investor-owned utilities, like Southwestern Public Service Company, provide about 77% of our nation's electricity. The cost of producing this power has increased each year due to inflation, the high cost of fuel, and many other factors. Keep this in mind when you receive your next electric bill, then take a look around your home. Chances are that your air conditioner, range, and television all use electricity. Remember, our country's standard of living depends on the availability of electric power--let's not take that power for granted.

John Merchant, Electrical Engineer, Carlsbad.

SPS' bond rating is AA. This rating allows investors to judge our company's financial condition and its ability to repay borrowed money. Bond-rating firms consider the financial health of the company, the stability of our fuel supply, management goals, construction, and many other factors. Companies with the highest bond ratings pay the lowest interest rates when borrowing money. SPS' solid rating allows it to raise capital for construction at lower interest rates, which saves our customers money.

Accent On Health

Texas Department of Health
Robert Bernstein, M.D., Commissioner

Many Texans looking for ways to stay healthy and live happier lives are using free pamphlets, brochures, booklets and posters distributed by the Literature Unit of the Texas Department of Health (TDH).

"Individuals are learning it's up to them to assume more responsibility for their own health in order to live longer and more productive lives," says Mrs. Nancy Jo Murray, Supervisor of the TDH Literature Unit in Austin. "We distribute about six million pieces of health literature to Texans each year."

There are 525 individual items of literature, each with an educational message or information the reader can use to improve his or her lifestyle. "Send us a postcard or a letter requesting what you need, and include your name and address," Mrs. Murray said. "If you aren't sure what you want, or what we have, ask for a catalog."

Write to Literature Unit, Texas Department of Health, 1100 West 49th Street, Austin, Texas 78756. It's possible to request information by subject matter without knowing specific titles. Some literature is available in Spanish.

Mrs. Murray said the Maternal and Child Health category in the TDH literature catalog is one the public should know more about. "There is valuable information beginning from the time before a child is born and continuing up into the teenage years," she said.

Examples include the prenatal pamphlet, "Eating for Two — A Healthy Baby and You;" "Be Number One — Win the Race for 1st Place," a nutritional guide for teenage boys 13-16 years of age; "The Right Kind of Beauty Helpers," a nutritional guide for teenage girls 13-16 years of age; "Helpful Hints for Healthy Hearing;" "Baby's Formula Preparation;" and "23 Most Frequently Asked Questions About Lice."

Because of the high volume of requests for free material, most items are limited to 10 copies per request and some are restricted to one. Requests for larger quantities should be made individually to Mrs. Murray. State your need and purpose for the materials. Literature with the TDH logo may be reproduced.

UNSUNG HEROES Our Medical Experts

Thanks to some clever scientists and dedicated doctors, millions of diabetic Americans may be able to lead healthier, more normal lives.

Diabetics dependent on insulin must keep a close watch on the level of sugar in their bloodstreams in order to control their disease. When the sugar level goes up or down, the prescribed regimens of diet, exercise and insulin must be adjusted, depending on the type and severity of each case.

Scientists for years have sought ways to monitor glucose (sugar) levels quickly, accurately and inexpensively. Blood sugar levels vary widely depending on the amount of exercise a person takes, how much and what is eaten and how the insulin is administered to and distributed in the body.

The last few years have seen a revolution in the way doctors can manage diabetic patients. The revolution is known as self-monitoring. Doctors are now teaching their patients how to check their blood sugar levels at home and then how to make the necessary adjustments.

A recent breakthrough in technology is partially responsible for this dramatic change. This breakthrough is a blood glucose test which patients can do anywhere quickly, easily and inexpensively. The results are highly accurate. This immediate information about the sugar level in the blood enables the diabetic to alter his food, exercise or insulin intake immediately and bring the body back into balance.

This home blood glucose monitoring test is made simpler by a chemically treated Chemstrip bG test, developed and produced by Bio-Dynamics, a Boshinger Mannheim company.

Diabetics participating fully in their own self monitoring tests can now lead freer lives, thanks to our medical experts.

WE MUST PLAN AHEAD

AUSTIN — One issue the Legislature must face in the 1983 session is that of a statewide water plan for Texas. Such a plan is important for the whole state, although sometimes it seems like people in our area are the only ones who realize how important it is.

Actually, most people would agree on the need for such a plan. We would go further. We believe we not only need a good water plan, but we also need to begin to implement that plan.

One thing seems certain. We need more water in our area. The water table of the Ogallala is dropping. Even though we sometimes have too much water in one place at one time, flooding is rare.

Flooding like that we have experienced recently in some counties is just one example of why we need a comprehensive water plan for the state. If we had the proper reservoirs, we could retain much of the flood water that pours through the Panhandle and South Plains. Many residents of East Texas take up arms every time someone from our part of the state mentions a water plan. They are afraid we will try to steal their water.

With a good plan to catch our own flood water, we should not need any East Texas contribution.

Where should these reservoirs be located? How many of them do we need?

What size should they be? How should we transport water from the reservoirs to the site where it is needed? What effect will this storage and transportation system have on the environment?

These are just some of the questions we must answer. The nation is losing 12 square miles of farmland every day. We must protect the farmland we have in Texas and we must make sure we have the water that farmland needs.

We must examine our water and wastewater problems for urban areas, too. Texas will be the second most populous state in five years or so, and most Texans will live in cities.

Despite the defeat of the "Water Trust Fund," the Water Development Board has $40 million to spend on water development: conservation, transportation, flood control, wastewater and related fields. This is not enough money, but the expenditure of this money needs guidance. We need a master plan for the development of water.

We will be working, during the next session of the Legislature, for a plan to develop water wisely. We need your help in deciding what type of development is important. We hope you will write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711, and tell us about your water needs.

Solid Vinyl Sides With Status

The best architectural standards are the kind that give homes a unique identity. Otherwise, whole neighborhoods take on an appearance of sterility and sameness.

Many architects and builders say that good design, the use of appropriate materials and a sense of individuality are the elements that add up to status in a home, whether new or old.

Some older homes gain status when modern materials that offer the combination of good looks, durability and easy-care are used in remodeling. An example of such a product is solid vinyl siding.

Suitable for practically any architectural style, vinyl siding can be used to update older and traditional homes, while retaining their architectural integrity. Vinyl siding is especially appropriate in maintaining the esthetic appeal of traditional Colonial and Federalist clapboard homes and is popular in re-siding because it adds to the value and beauty of these homes, yet requires minimal upkeep. Another advantage is that it can be installed over most existing sidings.

Available in a range of clapboard widths, in horizontal or vertical styles, and in smooth or woodgrain textures, vinyl siding also boasts a full line of matching accessories, such as shutters, soffits, fascia, gutters, downspouts and other trim. All these low-maintenance products

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas, effective July 27, 1982, unless otherwise determined by the Commission.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish a 13.4 percent increase in the company's intrastate revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas. The Commission staff has contended in the past that all rates are subject to change as a result of Southwestern Bell's rate application.

Notice to El Paso Area Customers

Effective January 1, 1982, Southwestern Bell adopted the Mountain States tariffs in effect for El Paso County. Southwestern Bell proposes to merge the separate El Paso tariffs with its tariffs applicable to the rest of Texas. The resulting new rate schedule is on file with the PUC and the El Paso area municipalities served by Southwestern Bell, and is available for inspection at our El Paso business office.

Notice to Customers of Other Telephone Companies

The filing includes, but is not limited to, proposals to increase rates for interexchange private line and foreign exchange (FX) service. Changes in such rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies, because such companies provide interexchange private line and foreign exchange service in accordance with rates specified in Southwestern Bell's tariffs. While Southwestern Bell has proposed no increase in long distance rates, any change in those rates would also affect customers of other telephone companies.

Aviso Público

Southwestern Bell, en conformidad a las reglas del Public Utility Commission (Comisión de Servicios Públicos) de Texas, por la presente hace saber su intención de establecer un nuevo arancel para servicio de teléfono en Texas con vigencia a partir del 27 de julio, 1982, a menos que la Comisión haga otra determinación.

Se espera que el nuevo arancel que se ha solicitado rendirá un aumento de 13.4 por ciento en los ingresos intrastatales de la compañía.

Una copia completa del nuevo arancel se ha archivado en las oficinas del Public Utility Commission en Austin, Texas, al igual que en cada municipalidad afectada y servida por Southwestern Bell, y cada una de las oficinas de la compañía para negocios con el público en Texas tiene una copia para lectura pública. En el pasado, la Comisión ha sostenido que toda tarifa está sujeta a cambios que resulten de la manera en la cual Southwestern Bell aplique sus tarifas.

Aviso a Clientes en la Región de El Paso

Con vigencia a partir del 1 de enero de 1982, Southwestern Bell ha adoptado las tarifas de Mountain States efectivas en el condado de El Paso. Southwestern Bell propone unir las tarifas de El Paso con sus otras tarifas que se aplican al resto de Texas. El nuevo arancel que resulta de esta unión se ha archivado en la Comisión de Servicios Públicos (Public Utility Commission), al igual que en las municipalidades de la región de El Paso servidas por Southwestern Bell, y está disponible para inspección pública en nuestras oficinas de El Paso.

Aviso a los Clientes de Otras Compañías de Teléfono

El registro incluye, pero no se limita a, propuestas para aumentar las tarifas para servicio de línea privada entre centrales telefónicas (interexchange private line) y servicio de central telefónica extranjera (foreign exchange FX). Cambios en dichas tarifas de servicio también afectarían a clientes de otras compañías de teléfono porque dichas compañías proveen los servicios ya mencionados en conformidad a tarifas especificadas por Southwestern Bell. Aunque Southwestern Bell no ha propuesto un aumento en las tarifas para larga distancia, cualquier cambio en las mismas también afectaría a los clientes de otras compañías de teléfono.

Tips on AMDRO use

- AUSTIN -- Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown offers several tips on the application of the fire ant pesticide AMDRO. He warns that all pesticide users should use extreme caution when dealing with any type of pesticides.
1. Read label carefully before using.
 2. Use only when air and soil temperature is greater than 60 degrees F.
 3. Do not apply if rain is expected within three hours.
 4. Use only when grass and soil are DRY. Do not apply when grass is wet from morning dew.
 5. Broadcast material around the mound WITHOUT DISTURBING THE MOUND.
 6. Apply a maximum of 5 tablespoons per mound or 1 to 1.5 pounds per acre treated.
 7. Keep AMDRO stored in a dry, cool place away from direct sunlight and in original container.
 8. After using, seal bag as tightly as possible.
 9. One package is opened, the entire contents should be used within three months.

Grain stocks up 31 percent

AUSTIN -- A slowdown in export and cattle feeding has led to a 31 percent increase in Texas stocks of wheat, corn, sorghum, and other grains. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown has reported.

The April report of stored grain issued by the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service indicates that grain sorghum stocks were up 53 percent over last year. The supply of sorghum was estimated at 70.4 million hundredweight (cwt.). Brown said that Texas corn stocks were 10 percent above the first quarter of 1981 with 106.7 million bushels in commercial warehouses and on-farm storage facilities. Wheat stocks remain high at 95.1 million bushels, a 14 percent increase over the 1981 first-quarter total. The forecast for this year's wheat crop before farmers began signing up for the Federal acreage reduction program was 205 million bushels, a record for Texas.

MONEY SUPPLY WASHINGTON -- The chances for any relief soon from high interest rates faded recently as the government reported another increase in the money supply and Republican leaders in Congress said even a new budget compromise restricting the size of the deficit won't help bring rates down.

WORD FROM WASHINGTON

Government Action on Trade Can Increase Jobs and Help the Economy

By David M. Roderick

America can improve our economy and employment picture if we improve our balance of trade. Here, an expert on international trade and our steel industry offers some suggestions.

America's trade deficit problem is serious and steel imports are an outstanding example of that problem.

In 1961, foreign-produced steel amounted to 4.7 percent of the U.S. Market. Imports for the first quarter of 1982 were 22.8 percent.

The fact is, American steel producers are losing in the competition of the world marketplace -- and most significantly in our own domestic marketplace -- because we are forced to trade in what amounts to a rigged game. The world marketplace is not really open and the competition is not really fair.

Let me cite a few examples of this so-called free and fair trade that's supposedly being conducted in the international arena. Brazil has a novel import policy: anything that is made in Brazil cannot be imported. Japan has restrictions on specific products including marine and forestry products.

Foreign governments have not merely permitted the problem to develop, they have encouraged it. Through direct and indirect subsidies they have used their steel industries to solve social problems by exporting unemployment and keeping their employment levels artificially high even if there was no market demand.

But our workforce bears the ultimate burden of their mixed social and economic policies. The distress is transferred to the American steelworker, his family and his community. Trade abuses do not merely affect corporations, they have a negative impact on employees. There is a human injustice to unfair trade that America cannot afford to ignore.

I've said it before -- let me repeat it here -- we can compete with foreign companies, but we can't compete with foreign governments.

And this is why our government must develop a trade policy that deals with trade problems as they exist -- not based on altruistic and hypothetical models. In this world economy with international competition, there must be some agreed-upon global rules if commerce is to have some semblance of order and stability.

What's often needed to bring an older home up to date is a little cosmetic surgery supplemented by implants of insulation to conserve energy. Three-dimensional asphalt shingles, solid vinyl siding and sufficient mineral fiber insulation could be the right prescription for restoring this home's appeal.

Some Discretion Could Be The Better Part of Value

Sometimes an older home needs a facelift to restore its former glory. If you're one of them and you're a skilled handyman, consider doing some of the work yourself. It's a good way to save some money.

Remember that some home improvement projects lend themselves to a do-it-yourself approach while others do not. Three major outside areas -- roofing, siding and insulation -- are examples.

Though reroofing can be difficult and hazardous, growing numbers of homeowners are handling the job themselves. In the case of asphalt shingles, the most popular is both new construction and reroofing, roofs with slopes of four to five inches per horizontal foot are safest and easiest for the do-it-yourself reroofer.

Safety First Avoid steep slope and high roofs or those with many angles, gables or dormers. Do not reroof yourself unless you can do the job as well as a professional, are willing to devote the time and effort necessary to getting the job done and feel comfortable working at heights. Be sure to follow the manufacturer's instructions for shingle application and heed common safety precautions when working on the roof.

In the case of siding, industry sources such as the Vinyl Siding Institute say it's a job best left to professionals because it's both time consuming and requires specialized application skills.

Re-siding, however, can give an older home a completely new appearance. With solid vinyl siding, for instance, the color goes all the way through so it never needs painting. It assures low maintenance because it doesn't peel, rot, rust or corrode. An occasional rinse with a garden hose is all that's needed to keep it looking for years. Vinyl siding is available in a variety of styles and textures to suit most architectural styles.

Add Insulation Re-siding is also a good time to discuss with a contractor ways to upgrade home insulation. Adding insulation to walls is a job usually left to contractors who use pneumatic equipment to blow the insulation into place, because walls are normally inaccessible to do it yourself. Adding insulation to attic floors, which is the easiest way to improve the thermal performance of a home, can be handled by a do it yourselfer.

One of the most popular types of insulation is mineral fiber, either rock wool or fiber glass. For do-it-yourself application in attics, it is available as batts, blankets and loose wool.

Insulation is measured in R-values, which are expressed as numbers. The higher the numerical R-value, the greater the insulating power. In general, R-38 or R-39 is recommended for ceilings in most parts of the country. R-13 or R-11 in walls, and R-19 or R-11 in floors above cold spaces.

Your local utility is a good source of information on the most energy-efficient R-values to install and on what the potential savings in fuel and electricity might be.

Price of fire ant pesticide drops

AUSTIN -- An increase in demand for the fire ant bait Amdro has resulted in a decrease in the price of the pesticide. Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown announced recently, "Because of the overwhelming demand for Amdro from the many southern states plagued by the fire ant, American Cyanamid, processor of the fire ant bait, has agreed to drop the price from $3.75 to $3.01 for the one pound bag and from $2.99 to $2.65 for the 25 pound bag. This reduction in price coupled with the emergency funding from Governor William P. Clements, will help us substantially increase our supply of the pesticide and provide more relief to imported fire ant infested areas," Brown said.

American Cyanamid agreed to lower the price of the bait when it was realized how widespread the imported fire ant problem had become. The numerous orders for the pesticide made it economically feasible to offer it at a lower price. The company will also allow credit to those states who have already purchased and received shipments of Amdro.
