Society at the north seems to be organized pretty much on a sensational basis. The manis for the startling appears to be insainable and manifests itself everywhere and is all the relations of life, and in all the arts and lized being. It is the bread of the daily pabulum served up to the greedy public by the press and at the places of public amusement. Even the pulpit is possessed of the mania, as is shown by the following pulpit topics discussed upon in the New York churches last Sunday, all of which were suggested by the recent international walking match, to which these discourses were advertised as a series of side shows. "Running in the Race" was the Rev. Mr. Miln's theme:

"Yes sir. Well, I hadn't got to the corner when the baker came running up. Said he, I're got un'idea. I thought he was going to say he had baked some more pies; but he only wanted to make a deposition. He said there was millions in it—that plan of his. I should travel and give free eatin exhibitions. He would furnish the pies if I would perform, and weld divide the profits. I agreed, and we drew up articles of partnership."

"Well?" we suggested, intensely interested, as he hesitsted with a rueful cast of counternance.

"Yea, sir, I'm 'shamed to jell it, but I lost 'om. "Twaren's fair, however—'twaren's by Init meant. First time I had to knock under was up in Vigo County. My competitor ware a feller who had no fine pints of honor about him, an' him an' his backers set it up on mis."

"How so!
"Why, the darned raseal bribed the contractor who furnished the pies. They were to be dried apple pies. Well, sir, d'ye believe it, the apples in his pies had been nooked and swelled afore they were baked. Some way or 'nother they succeeded in puttin' my apples into the crout just as they ours out of the bag. You kin guess the rest."

"Woo exactly," we urged.
