Cushmers—The gentleman is mistaken. I shall certainly not undertake to play a guie at which any member can beat me. [Laughter on democratic side.]

Frye, of Malme, next obtained the floor and made a speech of considerable length in defense of the republican party, and charging the democracy of the south with nurdoring citizens. A Bloody right.

A couble of "frolicome oystem" who had imbibed too freely of 70-yard tangle-foot, yesterday, became 'bad' and wanted blood, and nothing short of that would appeare their desperate appetites. The very alt was blue with profanity, in consequence of which the sun was scarcely visible to the naked eye the whole day. Buffalo Bill and Texas Jack ware newberg in comparison and for to be called on to read the riot act and dis-perse the pair of war-like, would-be com-batants. But neither, however, could screw his courage up to the sticking point, when a mutual friend arrived upon the battle-ground and inquired if they really were desirous of amputating each other and furnishing the corpse for a first-olass funeral. Upon re-ceiving an affirmative reply, the said friend procured a hack and invited Heenan and Sayors to go with him a short distance out of town to lover's lane. Arrived at

That lone secluded spot Where the "peeler" council not, the battle-scared veterans, whose courage had by this time considerably cooled and oosed out, were leath to come up to the scrutch. But the said mutual friend inasted that if they did not tackle each other like nen he would thrash them both until for the area ne would thresh men look until for in next two weeks they would prefer to take their meals in a standing position. Thus spurred on to noble deeds of valor, the knights accepted the inevitable, and the bloody conflict began.

The ground was plowed up and the bushes gnawed for yards around when at last the battle terminated by both crying enough at the same time. They were then brought to town and put away in their little bods, thus cheating the recorder but not the reporter.

In the debate Muldrow, of Mississippic, expressed his astonishmout at the means employed by the gentiaman form. Ohio, Gargield, a few days ago to make party ceptiled out of the pending question. That gentleman, standing on his record, had attempted to make the people believe the democratic party was now seeking to carry out-legible tion by different methods than those heretotic fore adopted by the republican party which had set many such precedents. His party was not in favor of revolution. They proposed to resort to peaceful methods and constitutional methods. Then if the precident desired to stop the supplies of the government, the responsibility would be on the president and not ca. Congress. He concluded if the attempt to break the chains of the oppressed from the people was revolution, it was a revolution which the people would a pained, and he hoped to core congress. Sheriff Jenkins coinmanded them to draw the spikes from the door, which they not only refused to do but replied to the command with curses and denunciations of the bitterest character, John Winn threatening to kill the first man who entered the door. Sheriff Jenkins finding an entrance could not be effected without breaking down the door, ordered Deputy Redding to cut off their rations of food and water until they should come to terms. Nothing daunted, they still determined to out do the officers, but after five days fasting—from Saturday noon to Thursday morning—they threw up the sponge, drew out the spikes, and asked that the door be opened. Three of them appeared completely tamed, silently permitting themselves to be iroued, but John Winn was as sullen and impudent as ever, declaring he had not "cooled off," and yielded only on account of his fellow-prisoners; that this was not his day, the officers were king now; that his time in the penitentiary would not last always, nor did he expect to the there, and when he got out he expected to be king awhile himself.

please accept my thanks. In regard to the espot concessing my viniting California this spring for the purpose of purchasing wood, I would say that such a project halbeen outstrained by me, but as I have succeeded in convincing my friends that Texas wood can be used better advantage. I prefer nother than entering new fields to continue the very pleasant relations which have hithered to existed between myself and Texas growers, and I shall again be in your market and greet my old friends.

I regret exceedingly to hear of your illness, and hepe soon to have the pleasure of personnly enquiring after your health.

With my best regards to your family and yourself.
