Washington, May 8.—In the house the bill to enforce the eight hour law was taken up as the basiness of the morning hour.

Mr. Eelly of Pennsylvania, argued that we long as that law was unrepealed every workingman in the government employment who was forced to work 10 hours for day wages was defineded of his label lights, but the condition of things since the passage of that law had changed greatly. Now capital could not find safe and profitable employment in productive industries and labor was starving. The condition of the world in that respect was pitiable. If the theory that this was due to overproduction were true, which he dented, "then in God's name let overproduction be stopped."

After a next desired hour law was laid upon the table by a vote of 100 to 52.

The motion to reconsider the rate rejecting the sight hour bill was hid on the table by a vote of 127 to 87, thus effectually killing the bill.

He felt that God had deserted him as he did Christ on the cross, and said he did not expect to be hung; he would have done the same thing to his wife or his other child. He protested hung: he would have done the same thing to his wife or his other child. He protested that he was not insane; if he must die, he would die cheerfully. On arriving at Barnstable, he was taken quietly to jail. The body of the murdered child was taken to Mrs. Freeman's mother's house—Mrs. Swift. The child was very bright, had dark complexion, and was quite attractive.

The funeral of the child will be held on Senday from the residence of Mr. Alden P. Davis.

The International railway of Texas, now completed to Austin, is just so much accomplished in the realization of the great scheme indicated by the Exporter and Importer, and the gentlemen mentioned below can do nothing better than to unite whatever of sapital and better than to unite whatever of sapital and influence they command in the extension of that road to Ban Antonio and beyond at an early day. The reasons are clear. Being the judge of the election and qualification of its own members, and having the power to reverse its action at any time on any and all subjects, the senate cameo be bound by any former vote upon questions within its exclusive jurisdiction. Being a continuing body, it has the right at any time to inquire into the right of a member to his seat, even up to the last as of his term, and if it be shown that such member has no title, it is not only a right but becomes an imperative duty to cust him, in justice alike to the body itself and to the state thus wrongfully represented. It is to be hoped that, while nothing savoring of undue haste or injustice will be done, the seate will not allow the fraud Kellogg to consume any unreasonable amount of time. Kick him out, and thus end the career of the last of the curpet-baggers.

Cox, the slayer of Alston, goes to the penitantication and hard labor for life. This verdict of the Georgia jury was doubtless read yesterday morning with a manimous feeling of approval over the whole country. No hominida for many variet has certified so much and will have. William McMasters, deputy; and W. C. Robards, clerk.
The following resolutions were then presented to the court by Judge Waelder, of the San Antonio bar:
At the opening of this, the first term of the district court of the United States for the western district of Texas in the city of San Antonio, the members of the local bar, de siring to express their due appreciation of the location of a term of said court at their home, and as a welcome to the Judge, who is to preside over said term, have, at a meeting held for that purpose, unamously passed the following resolutions: SECURE, May 2nd, 1879.

the following resolutions:

Resolved, that the members of the bar of Bexar county hereby express their appreciation of the act of congress which locates a branch of the district and circuit courts of the United States at the city of San Antonio. Such location is not only gratifying to them as lawyers, but they also believe that the true inwardness of his nature reached. Deceit and self-interest cloud a multitude of infquities in the affairs of man, and public interest, social peace and welfare, individual happiness and prosperity, justice, equity, right, religious duties, are often submarged by the connivings of individuals who have nothing to obtain but their own emolument. Our courts of justice are often influenced by private motiver, and personal interest has frequently defeated the purposes of the wisest laws. Indeed, the philosophy of human existence, and its sustaining agencies, is a matter in the hands of man. To institute lews for the progressive government of nations, has been the endeavor of all true and leading men wherever a spark of civilization has showed itself. Man's duty to himself and his fullowmen is to encourage the astablishment and enforcement of such laws as will redound to an advancement of proper moral and civil rules, oustoms and institutions. "Do as you wish to be done by," is laid down as a golden rule, and who would bring upon his neighbor a calamity which he himself would shrink from or seek to avert by every power at his command?

shocked by a most isendish outrage. A young man, high in society, high in the estimation of his fellowmen, of fine mind, pure morals and most commendable energy, was waylaid at the holy hour of midnight by an assassin, and his brains beaten out. The outrage was of such a nature as to call for a common damnation of the fisend who perpetrated it. No one dared to say a word to allay the indignation. Every man's hand, if words were any indication, was raised to take life for life. Exum Hollamon was murdered, to find who did the deed was next, and then was to come the punishment. Referring to the above outrage, and what has happened in commention therewith, a correspondent from Seguin writes:

There is one man in particular we would remind of some obligations he owes to this people, and that man is no other than the Hon. John Ireland.

When the judge came to this country about a quarter of a century ago, a pennilsus boy, and signified that he intended making this his home, these people sustained him in every laudable enterprise, prompted by his youthful ambition. No office has he asked, J which was not cheerfully given, no public trust, that was not freely gratified. No principles has he promulgated that we have failed to defend. No calumpy has been heaped upon him that we have not aided in lightening, and when, in our admiration, we failed to defend. No calumpy has been heaped upon him that highest offices within the gift of our people, and his enemies denominated him "laud grabber," and his opponent named him "Ireland the poor and pitful," and when there was a feeling of contempt throughout this state because of his lack of courseys to resent these families, the people of Gaudalupe threw the mantle of charity around him, and made every it apology a generous people could. Nor can he name the period in the history of his life when we have failed to stand true to him. We ask, where does he stand to day?
