THE Late Cruise to Labrador and Who Went With Him. Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE Late Cruise to Labrador and Who Went With Him. Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer. Niagara Falls, August 15.—After supper last night I sat on the balcony of the hotel, listening to the music of the band and the roar of the falls. The night was very dark, not a star was in sight, a fact upon which I congratulated myself. About nine o'clock I walked down to Prospect park with a friend, and having deposited half a dollar at the gate, we walked down the path, and in a few minutes we were in the camp. The electric light shows with blinding glare, making the contrast between brightness and gloom as marked as possible. The crowds were all moving in one direction, the prospect at the very brink of the American falls, and when I arrived there I saw a sight that will live in my memory—the light was playing on the face of the fall, converting it into a mass of moving snow whose dazzling whiteness rolled on with aerial and majestic grandeur. The mist that arose from the whirlpools below looked weird and ghastly and assumed grotesque and fantastic forms. At a moment I felt as though I was one of the crew of the Jeannette, near the north pole, and had discovered a nameless and unexplored land.
