SAN ANYONO, August 30, 1879, Editors Sas Antonio Express:

In the case of violation of the Sunday law asse what an absolute disregard prevaile in our community concerning the duties of the citizen when called upon to ack at large, what a farce it is to attempt to enforce a law, so long as the present condition of the Sunday law. The following were the principal prizes in the semimouthly drawing of the Kentucky state lettery, which took place at Covington to-day: Number 17,661 drew $15,000; 47,774, $8000; 99,668, $5000$2 30,807 and 91,179 each $2,000.

you will give a true verdict and render according to the law and evidence; so help you God." Now this Zilian case comes up before Justice Shiekle, evidence adduced, direct and positive, of an verquestionable violation of the Sunday law; in fact, there was no defense to make that had any showing of tangibility, but irrespective of this mean palpable violation of the statute, the jury retired, but after deliberating together for several hours falled to agree and were discharged.

If the citizen shall utterly fall to do his duty as juryman, not only in escent violated Sunday law, but in every case of violated statute, and shut his eyes to pronounced crime while sitting on a jury under the solemnity of an oath, is it not worse than a "farcial farce" to arraign violators before our courts? Is there any remedy for this?

meeting of the Immigrants Aid society to morrow evening. An excellent commencement has been made, and if our business men will turn out and swell the numbers of those who have taken the initiative, and render proper aid and encouragement, we may soon look for the most gratifying results. The society has already accomplished considerable, but there is much more to be done. The members are practical business men, working for a common object, and that object is the general welfare of the people and progress and development of the country through the pofulating of our uncultivated lands with honest and industrious immigrants. The first thing to be done is to provide for those immigrants already here

The first thing to be done is to provide for those immigrants already here and unprovided for, and then to take measures to secure the coming of others and to be able to give them a proper reception and walcome when they arrive. A few words or welcome, a little attention and pains to impart information and advice go so long way towards giving immigrants a good first impression of the people and country; but if the people are cold, distant, hard to approach and show no disposition to be obliging, the immigrants, no matter if the country, itself far exceeds what it has been represented, will become disheartened, and go away if he can, or write letters advising there to remain away. We consider the first important step to be to provide for the proper reception of the people and country; but if the people are cold, distant, hard to approach and show no disposition to be obliging, the immigrants, no matter if the country, itself far exceeds what it has been represented, will become disheartened, and go away if he can, or write letters advising that the senate disagree to the above amendments to the bill and amendments back, recommending that the senate disagree to the above amendments to the bill and amendments back, recommending that the senate disagree to the above amendment back proper reception of immigrants—at least a shelter for them for a few days after their arrival, and for assisting them to find good places for autilement. A Dinner and a Kiss.

Pittsburg Commercial 'I have brought your dinner, father.
The blacksmith's daughter said
As she took from her arms a kettle
And lifted the shining Hd.
'There's not any pic or pudding,
Sof will give you this.'
And upon his toil-warn forehead

The blackemith-took off his apron And dired in happy mood, Wondering much at the savor Hot in his humble food, While all about him were visions Full of prophetic bilss; But he had hever thought of the magi-in his little daughter's kiss. While she with her kettle swinging,

If always our frugal dinners Were seasoned with a kiss.

Little by Little. istle by little the time goes by— short if you sing through it, long if you eigh, Julie by little—an hear a day, sone with the years that have vanished away; Attle by little the race is run. Frouble and waiting and toil are done. Little by little the skies grow clear; little by little the aun comes near; little by little the days smile our tiladder and brighter on pain and doubt; little by little the seed we sow nio a beautiful yield will grow,

Little by little the world grows strong, lighting the battle of Right and Wrong; Little by little the Wrong given way, Little by little the Right has away; Little by little all lengthg soils struggle up near the shining goals.

Little by little the good in men Bloosoms to beauty for human ken; Little by kilde the angels see Prefricted better of good to be; Little by little the Good of all Lifts the world meave the plending call.

Idns the world nearer the pleading call.

They walked, out of the theatre arm in arm. She was as dainty as a princess and prettier than an opening flower. The long, soft white feather kung gracefully to her shoulder, and her long, delicate, slender hand held a sumptuous fan. He looked pretty spooney himself, but he felt good. "How did you like the opera, pet?" he faintly inquired, and the delicious little angel looked up into his face, and while the gasheams lighted up the bit of court plaster on her chin, replied: "Its the boas!"

Transport the prevaling fashions for jewelry there is a strong fancy for quaintness. Lizard, owh, banjoes and the Christian name in silver are favorite designs for bouquet brooches. Helbein jewelry is the regret in Train, reproduced from old models in that artist's pictures. The curious square and oblong forms associated with Holbein's name are justly celebrated for the exquisite coloring of the enamel which decerated them. Cat's—eyes, diamonds and pearls are the gems which find most favor. Pearls are blended with pink coral and lapsis lardil, di.m. ouds with pearls, sapphires and cunermonds are portable," and for this reason nothing long successfully disputes the paint with diamonds. They are now mounted clear and as lightly as possible. Pendants copied from Queen Anne models are preferred, oval in form, surmounted by a bow of diamonds. These gems are closely clustered together on pendsints and braceiets, and as show to greater perfection. As a rule, broad and massive bracelets have disappeared in favor of the bangle shape, even in diamonds, where they take the form of single half-hoops rost sof three half-hoops. ceased its existence just at a time when that existence was growing more vital to the success of the business interests of all its members. He wanted to see a reorganization, with some man at the head who could unite all their interests and show to each that the cause espoused was not for any special but for a common benefit. All organizations which were instituted for a common interest were to an extent identical in their purpose, and a board of trade, an implication association, or a manufacturing company, whose objects were to advance the manufacturing interests of the city, could each encourage the other, A board of trade would, if properly officered and conducted, infuse new life into all channels of trade and traffic, and achieve much general good.

A MICHEL WAS NEXT VICTIMIZED

A. MICHEL WAS NEXT VIOLIMIZED by the reporter, and was decidedly in favor of such an institution as a board of trade, and San Antonio was plenty large enough, and her business men had an abundance of interests to be guarded for the cetablishment of a board of trade. He had belonged to the old organization, and attended punctually and regularly, but so many of the principal merchants held themselves aloof from the meetings that it just naturally ceased to breathe. A board of trade should exist here if for nothing else but to interchange opinions cocasionally. The business conditions of certain firms frequently needed attention, and things could be found out at meetings of the merchants which would benefit many to know. Affairs could be regulated and uniform rates and terms fixed, thus doing away to no inconsiderable extent with much uncertainty and doubt that irregular dealing and ill-founded constoms have entailed. There were hundreds of things which could be looked after by a board of igade—malters too numerous to mention—but which came up from time to time in the course of business dealing:

o'clock yesterday morning. In Texas where he was so loved and honored, this announce ment will carry sadness to many hearts, and cance tears to fail from many eyes. In the war of secession, upon his appointment of brigadier general he was placed, at the request of the Texas delegation in the confederate composed principally of Texans, which so often and eminently distinguished itself, that the highest ambition of any other was fully satisfied to be ranked as second to it. Their faith in him was boundless, and they loyed him as the "tenth legion" loved Cassar, and were ever ready to follow him where he led like darkness in the track of lightening. On duty he was decisive, and in his manner stern, rigidly requiring from every one the performance of his duty; his manner at other times was pleasant and mild, almost to gentleness, the true reflex of a gentle heart. There was no bitterness in his nature.

The writer of this brief and imperfect tribute was with him at Atlanta when news was brought to him that General McPherson who had been his classmate and friend at West Point, was killed at Decatur. He bent his bead for a moment, raised it, and said, ently of it. The reporter continued his task of interviewing, and finally found

A MAN OFFORD TO A BOARD OF TRADS, and that man wasmone other than one of our wholesals grocers, Mr. Ban C. Bennett. He was opposed to anything of the kind in Ban Antonio simply because there was so little harmony that the more would never result in any good. The elements here, he had observed, were in perfect conflict, and he deemed it impossible to consolidate them. Some would undermine others to secure custom in spite of all that could be done. By uniting, however, Mr. Bennett finally admitted he believed the business men could do much to help one another; and the general public would also receive benefits. A board of trade was a good thing, and in saying that he was opposed to such institution, he simply meant that he was opposed to trying to do what was not possible.

Louisville & Great Southern R. R. From all points in Southern and Southwestern Texas, it is over one hundred and fifty miles shorter, and many hours quicker, to Louisville than by way of St. Louis.

It is also shorter and quicker, and has the most felicitous arrangement of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars that can be offered, to Cincinnati and all points beyond. It is the only route by which we can take in the Great Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. The seemery is lovely, the equipment unsurpassed, the speed unrivailed.
