The Sunset route can no more afford to lose that diverted freight than can our merchants afford to lose the trade its will succeed, but he feels that he has at least space are faden with emanators our merchants afford to lose the trade its transportation west from this point would give them. Frontier merchants go to those points from which government freights are shipped to purchase their goods. They do this to secure better roads and better protection for their goods in transit, as well as for more favorable opportunities to secure transportation. The incoming government freighting wagons furnish the frontier people—cheap transportation for their produce, and this great source of trade will be lost to our town and railroad wherever a government freighting lius is restablished to another point, and the railroad will not only lose the freight from the cast and intended for those points, but also the return freight for ahipment to the east. When such vast interests are involved, it neems strange that a suggestion for early and united action should be necessary.

THE PROPOSED FLORES ATREET

An election is soon to be held to vote on a proposition to borrow $12,000 to be devoted of the produce. The first produce of the surface of the s measure was strictly in order and might have been to some purpose. The News concluder.

It may be that the proposed amendment has been carried. If so, it has not been carried by a majority of the rotting population of the state, and perhaps it has not received the vote of a majority of the farmers. It will be a minority amendment of the constitution in a country where political supremaces, a supposed to reside absolutely with the majority. As regards taxalion, the change can be of little practical consequence. As a measure of relief to the agricultural community it will be inherently abortive.

The Washington Sentinel makes a severe quence. As a measure of relief to the agricultural community it will be inherently abortive. The burden of the "smoke-house tax" is utterly insignificant compared to other inudens and vexations which should have aroused a large spirit of constitutional reform that was at no line manifest in the 16th legislature.

If the professional politicians of the community is a measure of the community of the professional politicians of the community is a measure of relief to the agriculture of the community is with a micro red almost every state in this 'land of the free Ir the professional politicians of the country really desire to do something on a merely control the various state legislature grand scale for the benefit of the country, but also our congress. San Autonio, September 4, 1879.

Editors San Antonio, Expusses:

In the Expusses of yesterday I notice an article headed "Muench's Hobby," telling your readers that I must be greatly interested in the condition of Houston street, as I had made a half dozen or more feeble thrusts towards improving its condition.

When the roadbed was first built, the ties were laid level, or nearly so, with the street. From time to time repairs have been made by the street railway company to make Houston street passible. The street is at present in a very bad and dangerous condition, and for that reason attention was called to the same by the committee on streets and bridges, of which committee I have the slooner to be chairman. The contrast with the city and said railway company is sach that the company is required to keep their roadbed in good condition, so that it does not interfere with the public travel. What I consider our duty in the premises is sneered at. How much damage has already been sustained by our citizens, on account of the bad condition of said roadbed, no one knows better than those residing in the vicinity of the same. If there is a "hobby" I think your informant must ride it, and as far as the "feeble thrusby" go I mast acknow' as the reader. The Beauregard, Wilson as the "feeble thrusby" go I mast acknow' as the reader. The same as the "feeble thrusby" go I mast acknow' as the reader as the content in the promise is fard, Twas, L. T. Sam Maverick, as Mr. Wurtzburg, greatly pleased the targe sudience, though the char-acter was rather a dry one.

Doctor Keppeleranck, Mr. L. W. Madaraz, also did exceedingly well, acting the profes-sional man in the play as though the position were a perfectly natural oue.

Mrs. Agnes Jean, as Mrs. Wurtzburg, Miss Florence Harrison as Helen, and C. M. Barnes, as Frederick, also played their parts.

well
On the whole, the acting was good, and the farce, as remarked, being a very amusing one, the critical audience was not simply pleased, but actually delighted.
During the interval between the two acts of the play, Col. McLeary was introduced to the audience by the president of the association, Dr. M. K. Taylor, and made a few reworks upon the purposes of the Alamo literary tion, Dr. M. K. Taylor, and made a few remarks upon the purposes of the Alamo literary society. The two associations had joined hands to pull together, the principal object in view being the establishment of a public library. Already about two thousand volumes were in the book-cases of the organization, and the library had been opened to the public. But this was only a commencement. It was purposed in a few days to start a subscription list about among the people to obtain funds to purchase additional books. If the people of San Antonio were desirous of having a good public library, they scription paper was passed around. A good library would do much toward keeping the organization intact and making it useful, and Mr. McLeary hoped the people of the city would lend to the present effort all the encouragement in their power.
