On the northern shores of the Black sea lies the beautiful city of Odeans, calebrated as the chief grain exporting city of the Russian compire. It is told by the Paris Sinds seem 6 be incredible. It is told by the Paris Siecle, and is unquestionably true: A young Russian sibilist, Mr. Somoff, had been for nearly a year's time incarcerated in that Odesan prison. The cell sifotted to him was so filled with fith of every description that he was daily near suffocation. When he could not stand the fithy smell any longer he petitioned the authorities in the case to be petitioned the authorities in the case to have him placed before the proper judges in the matter and duly tried. The petition maddened his jailer into downright Russian fremzy, and his next order was, "Take that scoundrel, tie him to the lashing-poet, and give him twenty-five knowl-artikes."

The article of the contraction of the c scoundrel, tie him to the lashing-poet, and give him twenty-five knowt-strikes.

The subordinates, as in duty bound, obeyed the mandate. They took Somes, tied him to the terrible triangle, and went to notify the jailer that his prisoner was ready for execution. Somos, finding himself alone, and seeing a petroleum lampburning above him just within his reachthe tragedy occurred in the evening—tried to grab it. Impossible! And then what did this young Nihilist do to save himself from disgraceful punishment, unjustly inflicted upon him? He raised his face to the lamp chimsey, caught it within his mouth, tore it down and let the burning petroleum run down, his body. Nor did he utter a Sound while his clothes caught the flames and his body began to singe. It was not till the naucesting smell of the burning flosh began to penetrate the jail-rooms, that the fact of Sought sucked was discovered. He still fingered twenty-four hours, but, amidst the most horrible pains did not utter a cry. His only complaint was, that, being perfectly ready to stand trial and suffer the law's penalty, he had been subjected to an unlawful and disgraceful punishment.

The position of "eicisbee" to a devout and fashionable lady—and all the ladies were devout and almost all of them fashionable—was, it will be observed by no means a sinecure. The laws of Milanese society, however, absolutely required that every gentleman who had any pretension of belonging to it phould be the faithful and devoted servant of some lady—any lady save his own wife. And it would have been equally ridiculous in a man to be without any such mistress as for a woman to be unfurnished with a "cicisbee." Much has been said about the degrees of imnocence which are compatible with the existence of these ties and the degree of guittiness which they must be held to have involved. Judge Pendegrast, of Gorstona, is strou ly in favor of the whipping post. EXPRESS LINES. At the Corseans jail they flog all new prisoners. The grand jury also condemn the bedding given the prisoners. It is filthy and full of lice.

Mrs. Haisel, of Dallas, is not the kind of a lady that screams and faints at the sight of a make. She was in her tomato patch the other day, and seeing a rattler ready to strike her, got in the first blow with her hoe, and killed the reptile before it could do any damage. It measured over five feet in length and had eleven rattles.

Washington county has three justices of the peace, who rejoice in surgestive soubriquets. One is called "Old Perfumery," by the hops, because he has sent in up so often, another, "Old Costs," because he never remits a cent of his fees, another, "Old Nocessity," because he knows no law.
