MORRIBLE CONFESSION OF A MAN

Portland, Me., November 29.—James M.
Lowe, arrested for the murder of his brother Joseph A. A. Lowe on the 27th of September, was arraigned this afternoon and plead guilty. He was remanded to await action of the grand jury in Jamasry, and his wife was held as a witness and committed in default of $1,000 bail. Lowe to-night confessed that about 3 o'cleck on the morning of the murder he left the New England house, Portland, to go his brother's house, West, Cumberland, hiding behind some bushes until his brother returned from a dance. He then hid behind the barn door and when his brother went in he struck him with an axe, felling him to the ground. The blow, however, did not extinguish his brother's lantern, and by its light he struck the second blow nearly severing his head from his body.
He then put out the light and walked back to Portland, reaching there at 4:30. The trooble between the brothers was occasioned by alleged unjust discrimination by the father in regard to property.

The president's annual message delivered to congress on Monday is too voluminous to publish in the Expusse in full. In our last mortou for governor. There seems to be a publish in the extrace if the principal points presented. There is nothing about the measure to characterize it as a remarkable state paper—it is a plain statement of facts, views we do not want a sectional governor, and if paper—it is a plain statement or text, and recommendations, with only a few features calculated to arcest and retain general attention. After congratulating the commendation attention of the congratulating the commendation of north, south, east or west Texas? To argue that the success attending reasurption and the reduction of our interest account, the president recommends that the secretary of the growroor is to argue that this section in the treasury be authorized to suspend the coinage of silver dollars under the present legal ratio, and gives what we consider very good and substantial reasons therefor. The market value of the silver dollar being uniformly and largely less than the market value of the gold dollar, it is obviously improved to the reduction in the market value of the silver dollar being uniformly and largely less than the market value of the gold dollar, it is obviously improved to have been made by him at the M. where the commercial telegrams from the great husiness centres of the world will be the common property of all the members. When the special advantages now enjoyed by the wealthy few will be enjoyed by rich and poor alike. Where sates of the leading lines of staples and produce can be made, and all given an equal chance in business. Such an exchange we believe would be the centre of attraction for both members and strangers visiting out offy and would lead to
