Portsmouth, N. H., August 27.—The cause of the recent breaking out of fever on the U. S. steamer Portsmouth, which ressel is at the navy yard here, has been discovered to have proceeded from a defective pipe, whereby waste matter, instead of passing through the proper channel, was carried between decks and there lodging for months. It is alleged that it was removed immediately on discovery; that a considerable portion of the planking was taken off, and yesterday one of the steam fire engines belonging to the yard was employed to wash out and otherwise purify between decks.

**Rpanish Cantenns Order.** Milwaukee, August 23.—A Madison special says the house of Martin Winrick, on the line between Dane and Columbia counties, was discovered in flames Sunday night, and the neighbors, on forcing an entrance, found the body of Mrs. Winrick, riddled with shot, laying in a pool of blood. The body of her husband was found on the bed, bleeding from two ghastly wounds. The bedies were taken out of the burning house, though somewhat scorohed. Winrick and his wife lived unhappily on account of the children of each by former marriages, and it is supposed the old man shot her with a abot-gun, set fire to the house, then shot himself

A Story About Tom Ochiltree.

Everybody who has been in Washington often since the reconstruction of the south knows You York. A good soldier, I believe, on the confederate side, he became a republican at the close of the war and a favorite of averaged to the confederate side, he became a republican the close of the war and a favorite of averaged to the confederate side. f president Grant, who appointed him inited States marshal for Texas, when that of president Grant, who appointed him United States marshal for Texas when that office was worth a good deal more money than it is now. The Major's father was one of the most eminent jurists in Texas, before the war, and had a good deal of trouble with his soe, who, though not bad, was full of mischief.

At length when Tom appreached young manhood the old Judge-determined to sober him down by study, and so book him into his own law office, where he kept him presty closely at his books for about three years. Tom was a good scholar, made satisfactory progrese, and was finally admitted to the bar and taken into partnership by his father. A few months after this the Judge, as he wa starking for Dallas one morning to attendas long session of the court, looked up at the old weather-beaten sign which had been above his office door for a quarter of a century, and told Tom he thought it was about time to have a new one. "And, Tom," he sald, "suppose you attend to it; get a good sign and have the name of the firm painted upon it."

good sign and have the name of the firm painted upon it."

The old gentleman went to Dallas and was gone several days. Returning, when he came in sight of the little frame office, he thought it looked strange, and, riding nearer he found stretched clear across the building an immense sign-board, on which was paint-ed in hure letters:

T. P. CORILTREE AND PATREE, Counselors and Attorneys at Law. Tom was at his deak deeply absorbed in working up a case, and never could under-stand why the old man should have caused that sign to be taken down.

Chicago, August 23,—The bodies of Simon Zimmerman and his wife were found at 6:30 this evening at their residence, No. 210 Clayboro avenue, with bullet holes in their heads, which had evidently been made by the husband. This appeared by the statement of neighbors. Early in the morning the two children, aged, three years and one year, remained in the room all day with the bodies in the kitchen, and were first discovered to night by the brother, who lives in the house, but who works of nights and sleeps all day. He had been unable to arouse them when he returned from his work in the monthing, and so retired, believing them asleep. No cause for the set is known, their marital life having been ordinarily happy. Zimmerman was a workman in the Chicago electrical works. Chicago, August 23, -The bodies of Simo Gineinnati, August 26.—The body of an unknown woman, horribly beaten and fruised, was found yesterday in a secluded ravire, two miles north of Sidney, Onto. It could not be identified. The place of the murder showed signs of fierce struggles, the woman's alothing being torn and scatter. A man whose appearance does not warrant a long description, went into an Arkansas newspaper office the other day. He didn't say 'are you the editor,' and drew a revolver, but remarked, as he stood a green hickory club against the table:

'Things have come to a focus.'

'Your may call it politically, but I don't. Your course, sir,' all along has been full of knots and bumpe, but I have excused all but one outrage. Some time age you said that my son Jim, the notorious whisky drinker, had returned from Texas. That was all right. Again, you said that the chances were that my daughter would run away with a hairpin peddler. Smiled over that. Later you said that my wife sent a lot of butter to town, and that, when she took the lid off the bucket in a magistrate's office it stopped a lawauit and made the justlee throw up. Franklin, Ind., August 23.—Mrs. Mary E. Hurt, a widew, who keeps the toll house near Greenwood, in this county, was tied and robbed by a manked burgiar about one o'clock this morning. While she and her three small children were asleep the side door was broken open by a fence rail, and before they were aware of what was wrong, the villain had Mrs. Hurt by the throat. He then compelled her to get out of bed and tied her hands behind her with a strong it cord. He then ordered one of the children to bring him the revolver which was in the house, after which he demanded and obtained the money, about $118$. At this time a buggy passed by, and the burgiar went out of the house, but threatened to return in a few minutes and kill Mrs. Hurt if she made an outery. A few minutes later she hoard a wagon coming, and screamed at the lop of her voice, when the parties went to her assistance, and found her tied and fast. They made a diligent search for the miscreant, but he had made his secape.

Notes and Queries.

Ludovick Cortusins, an eminent lawyer, who died at Padua on the 15th of July, 1518, when upon his deathbed forbade his relatives to shed tears at his funeral, and even put his heir under a heavy penalty if he neglected to perform his orders. On the other hand, he ordered musicians, singers, fiddlers, of all kinds, to supply the place of mourners and directed that 50 of them should walk before the corpse with the elergymen, playing upon their several instruments. For this service he ordered each of them half a ducat. He likewise appointed twelve maids in green habits to carry his corpse to the church of St. Sophis, where he was buried, and that they too, as they went along, should sing aloud, having, such of them, as a recompense, a handsome sum of money allotted for a marriage portion. All the clergy of Padua marched before in long procession, together with all the menks of the convent, except those wearing black habits, whom he expressly excluded by his will, lest the blackness of their hoods should throw a gloom upon the cheerfulness of the procession.

Dig four feet in the ground on a slope of three degrees. Stone this up on all sides, and erect a frame over this of 12116 feet, making it 8 feet high from dome to plate. Add a shingle roof. Board this frame up on the inside and outside, leaving a space of a bout three inches between the boardings. As far as this goes, it is good; but Prof. Aroud suggests that were the inside of the walls covered with ceiling paper, and that ceiled over with nanow matched boards, it would be much coaler. Never water a horse directly after feeding hims, especially if he is fed on corn. Thirst should be shally of before the feed is given, and if any water is allowed after it should be only a mouthful, until the lapse of two or three hours' time has been had for gastrie digestion. Many valuable animals have been lost by allowing them to drink freely directly after eating.
