Joint Discussion Between Brady and Mil's on Political Matters.

Special Disputes to the Daily Expusse apstead, October 6.—Messre, Brady and Mills spoke here this afternoon. The audience was very large. Brady opened the debate with a speech devoted to an exposition of the evils of democratic misrule Kansas City, known as the "Lone Cotton and the good to result from the success of wood," was shot and killed by a werthless the greanback party. He is a strong man. the greanback party. He is a strong man, presented his views in a striking manner, The hard blows he hit the democracy, his pointed anecdotes and sallies of wit, were well received. Mills replied in a foreible speech, discussing all the financial questions, and closed with an eloquent appeal to staby the party. Both made friends here.

GRANT RISES TO EXPLAIN

Chicago, October 6.-The Inter-Ocean ablishes an interview with Gen. Grant re cting the interview published yesterday ming, in which Grant says: "Though i a way not intended, and used some language > the statement of Dr. Fowler incorrect?" hard things about me."

> Grant said it is inaccurate in many respects.
> The interview makes me say: "Down to 1864 he seemed to me like a man ambitious an ambitious and have been crary to be not be a controlled. 1864 he seemed to me like a man ambitions to do his duty as an officer, but in 1864, when McGlellan was nominated Hancock received one vote, and that greatly excited and changed him. He was so delighted that he was to miled all over; it erazed him. Before that we got on well. After that he would hardly speak to me. I was working to enforce the laws of congress, and he was working for the presidency. Perhaps he thought I did did not praise him enough." I said substantially that up to 1864 I did not suppose Hancock had thought of the presidency, but at the democratic convention of that but at the democratic convention of that year he got a vote, not one vote as Dr. Fowler has it, which makes me imply that he got the support of but one delegate; and that from that time he had the presidential bee in his bonnet. When I met him afterwards his smile was so-broad that you could almost see it when his book was turned. I do not mean that I said he thought I did not praise him enough, though that may possibly be the fact. Hancock is a man who likes to hear himself praised, and sometimes complained that he was not complimented highly enouge.

do not mean that I said he thought I did not praise him enough, thought that may possibly be the fact. Hancock is a man who likes to hear himself praised, and sometimes complained that he was not complimented highly enouge.

Grant also said Dr. Fowler does not get hold of the points about order No. 40 correcely. By the various reconstruction acts, congress, for consistency's eake I suppose, stripped me of all authority over district commanders in the several duties except in the matter of appointment and removal of civil officers in reconstructed states; as I was senior my authority was superior to others. Dr. Fowler quotes me as saying that the Louisiana legisture passed a law authorizing leves bonds. This I may have said, but, if I did it was a mistake, the amount being four millions.

In regard to the statement also that the Louisiana commissioners agreed to pay Reverdy Johnson and other lawyers $750,000, I stated what I understood and not a fact within my own personal knowledge.

The next paragraph of the report is wide off the mark. I am made to say "He and Reverdy Johnson and other lawyers $250.

OO, I stated what I understood and not a fact within my own personal knowledge.

The sext paragraph of the report is wide off the mark. I am made to say "He sand president Johnson calided Hancock to Washington to instruct him to Jefest the laws of congress." I of course do not know why Johnson calied Hancock. I could only surmiss. I know Hancock came. A missake also occurs in the following. "He, Hancock, went south and removed the governor and commissioners that Gen. Sheridan had appointed. I instantly telegraphed to him not to appoint to office any man who had been removed and to give his reasons by mail for removing the men."

When Hancock went south I published an order prohibiting him from appointing any body to office who had been removed by his predocessor. This I suppose he did not like, but my object was to prevent the positility of men being put in place who had arranged for the negotiation of those bonds was from one hour. I had intended to tall Hancock about it, as I did Johnson, but was not disposed to listen to my salvice to the was not disposed to listen to my sa Jerome Park Races.

He again replied by telegraph, but gave nothing new, eaying, simply, that his usefulness would be destroyed if he was not left free to set, and that unless he was left free, he would ask to be relieved. I ordered him to revoke his order making removals, and to make no more. He then saked to be relieved, and I relieved him. I always regarded his more declaration of congress. The most important of these subjects is the proposition in order No. 40, that the military should be subordinate to the civil power, as something that everybody expected and mobody disputed. As officers, we were sworn to obay our superiors. Congress was our maperior, and had made laws and these laws made the military subordinate. We were acting under them; but this order made law subordinate to his own.

It is probable that the Louisiana signed for hearing the first day of the term, will not be heard at present on account of a will not be heard at present on account of a technical informality in the proceedings. The U. S. Court has twice held that suits involving application for a mandamus against an officer of the United States cannot be sustained after that officer has gone out of office and ceased to perform the duties of the position which he had at the time proceedings were originally instituted. A mandamus must issue against an individual, not his office, and since postmanter general Key is an individual, he has no power to obey the mandamus relating to the management of the postoffice department. Even should one be granted, the proceedings in their present chape will probably have to be abandoned and new suits begun in a lower court against expostmanter general Key's successor.

His practice in the District and Supreme Courts. The state of the s October Atlantic.

President Tyler, who was fifty-one years of age when he took possession of the enceutive mansion, was somewhat above the medium height, and stender figure, with long limbs and great activity of movement. His thin auburn hart turned white during his term of office, his nose was large and preminent, his eyes were of a bluish-gray, his lips were thin and his obseks were cunhen. His manners were those of the old sol ool of Virginia gentlemer, and he away invited visitors with whom he was acquainted to accompany him to the sideboard in his dining room and take a glass of wins, or something size stronger. The ceremonious etiquette established at the White house by Van fluren vanished, and the president itved precisely as he had on his plantation, attended by his old family slaves. When Han'ey, the artist, was invited to reside at the White house white he was copying Stuart's portrait of Washington for Lovin Philippe of France, he was forelly strack with the absence of all ceremony. The first day of the artist's mjourn, he accompaned the family to the drawing-room, after dinner, and then said with a profound how: DAY KIDNEY PAD CO. STAPLE & FANCY Croceries.  - Fatal Case of Yellow Fever-The
 - Special Telegram to the Galveston News.

 New Orleans, October 5.—Frederick Singer, a native of our city, aged nineteen, died here last night of yellow fever, and was buried early this morning. The attending physician was Dr. T. J. D. Watkins, who called Dr. J. P. Davidson in consultation. Both physicians agreed as to the nature of the disease, and a next mortem exing physician was Dr. T. J. D. Walkins, who called Dr. J. P. Davidson in consultation. Both physicians agreed as to the nature of the disease, and a post mortem examination afterward made, confirmed the currectness of their opinion. Mr. Singer had just returned from a visit to McComb City, and died at his late residence, 400 South Liberty street. The case, which was utdoubtedly sporadic, occurred in a locality eight squares from the place where the first case occurred in 1878, about a mile and a half from the Morgan ferry and nearly a mile from the Morgan ferry and nearly a mile from the St. Charles hotel. No apprehensions are felt in the community, as under the present cool weather it is generally conceded that it is not likely to spread. The premises where it took piace have been thoroughly disinfected, as a matter of precaution, and is isolated as far as practicable. Eighteen hundred and thirty names, representing six towns in Texas, have been handed into the committee in charge of the Texas exqursion for invitation.

 - Jacksonville, Fla., October 5.—A heartrending accident occurred in Lavilla, a suburb of this city, about two o'clock to-day.
 Mrs. Wm. Clark had just finished the family meal, and two of her children had taken a cent at the table, while a third stood by her, user a gasoline reservoir, which she was about to fill. From some unexplained cause, the vessel of gasoline became ignited, and a fearful explosion occurred, filling the room instantly with a volume of intense flame.
 Mrs. Clark and her three children were burned in a most terrible manner. The children died, and there is but little hope of the recovery of the mother. Mr. Clark is one of the leading business men of that piace, and Mrs. Clark was greatly beloved by a large circle of friend. The sad calamity has cast a gloom over the entire community.
