It bears the congressional jostinark, "Washingtob, D. C., January 28, 1869." This is easily seen by a microscopioni examination of the original used in the photographic copy, but it does not come up plainly in the stereotype. It was certainly mailed on the date of the letter from Washington. The superscription, signature and body of the letter are clearly in Genciarded's handwriting. There can be no question as to its geomineness, as 1t has passed through a microscopic examination, and has been submitted to experienced experts and to a great number of perminent men who are familiar with Gen. Garfield's handwriting and, it may be added, on the authority of Congressman Hewitt in case it is disputed, another similar letter is ready for publication of the same tenor, written to another party. The general opinion is that this is only one of a number addressed to the various employers and corporate acceleties at the time Garfield was "double backing." A regulations rally took place on the Medina. precinct 19, at the Carmel church, Sunday evening, which was well attended by Mevtenns and others reading in the precinct. Messrs, Groos, Wufung, Biesenbach, Rosembelmer, Serna, Sanchez and ethers were present, and several of them made speeches in behalf of the republican nominees. The democrats had no one present to answer the speakers such the republicans therefore had it all their own way.

About so 'clock during the evening, a 'jacal' belonging to Vivian Huron, with three thousand bundles of fodder, was burned. Huron at the time was in the city making preparations for a grand democratic raily and bail that will take place at the same locality where the republican meeting was held, next Saturday. In a conversation with Huron, venterday, the property was told that the fire was certainly the work of an incondiary, as-there was no member of his family at the house at the time. From what Huron and his friends say, the toreh was applied out of spite by some one of his political enomies. The matter will be thoroughty investigated.
