In it the Party or the Man?

BULVEEDA, October 26, 1860 ditors San Antonio Expuss

Editors San Autonic Expusses:

I cannot, for the life of me, see why, democrate should be discouraged by the news from Indiana, and talk about defeat in November, Neither Hancock nor Garificid were being voted for there. Has it come to pass in this country that one man is as good as another, whether he is a convicted perjurer and bribe-taker, or eminent for his virtues? Is the man who is known to be above reproach, by all parties, no better than the man who have made himself infamous by taking bribes? Are party ties so strong that voters are not allowed to discriminate between currupt and honorable men? Must party control everything, even to the thoughts and will of the voters at the polis? Mast American citizens was for fively in the polisy of the property of the party nominees in face of the fact that their cand dates are self-confused pripares and convicted bribe-takers, and foremost in the great fraud of 1850° I trust not. She is independent in opinion, knows semething about politics from an Ohio standpoint. She deals frankly with the gentlemen of her acquaintance, is shy about making friends of strangers, and dances divinely. The girl who is laughing and talking rapidly with the gentleman who is prominading with her is from Columbus, O. She wears a great many abowy dresses, knows everybody, is good-bearted, easy to become acquainted with at this sort of place, talks a great deal about her school-life and her corquests, and does not like the Civerland girl. The Buffalo girl is pretty and interesting, and has ideas. She does not know how to dress well, because she admires obstreperous colors. She dances well, first as though she enjoyed it hugely, and marries as man with a greet deal of money—if she can. The Indianapolis grl is jolly, affable, and kind-hearted. She is moderate in her ambitions, likes antegraph a bums, and wears nice, tasteful dresses. The Louisville (Ky.) girl is full of Jash and vim, dresses nobbily, and has many mirvelous suits, She has a pretty southern accept, and is a general favorite. One of the best types of Ohio womanhood is the Warren girl. She is modest, shy, extremely pretty, quiet but taylish in dress, exquisite in figure, obserming in face and conversation, and mows down the other sex without apparent effort or desire. She is good and womanly, and "knows heaps."
