then were estertained. All efforts were marked to keep the Six block from estertion, and in this the fire being confined to the two above mentioned stores. The wind was blowing high and fears were estertained that the Texas & Pacific depot would be consumed. One car of exposed color caught fire four different times, but was promptly extinguished before galaxing headway. Mervitin, we believe, was fully insured in the Hartford inserance company. The only reason aspired for the fire, so lar, is that rais in some way ignited some of the matches, which formed a part of the stock. It is certain the fire had obtsined great headway before it was discorrect.

The Deutsches Montageblatt is publishing a series of hilberte unprinched letters of Heinrich Heine, the last of which is not unlikely to reopen an old controversy. It was written from Farrs on the 13th of February, 1833, when the poet was exceedingly ill and had no hope of his recovery. It was addressed to his friend, Dr. Kolb-as, indeed, are all of his newly-discovered series—and at the close of it Heine observes: 'I am cursedly long in dylag, nevertheless, I feel the daily advance of the grave toward me. My suffering, my physical pains, are terrible, and moral over are not wanting. When I think upon my condition, a genuine horror (Kin wahres (Frauen) falls over ne, and I am compelled to find the hands in devotion to God (Gottergebea) because nothing eine is left for me. 'There has been much controversy whether or not the great German poet threw of his scepticism is his last days and died a Christian. The above words, which have the more important as they close his letter, would seem to confirm the contine of these letters, who makes a curious attempt to explain them away, as if they were dishonoring to the poet. The utmost he can say, however, amounts to this—that, after all, "Heine's conversion was not quite orthodox," He draws a parallel between him and Voltaire, and cites a number of expressions that the back recovers taked the poet used at another, time.

THE PEDERAL COURT.

May it please the Court:

It has been made my duty to announce to this hottorable court the sad intelligence of the sadden death at Omaha, Nobraska, sout the first of October, of Hon Thomas H Duval, U. S. district judge of the western district of Texas.

On the recept of the sad intelligence as San Antonio, a meeting of the members of the bar of San Antonio was held, at which the following resclutions were manimously adopted, and which I now begleave to present for the consideration of this honorable court:

[The resolutions were printed in The Express after their adoption by the local bar, and will be remembered.]

after their adoption by the local bar, and will be remembered. The private, public, and official character of Jodge Duval requires no eulog; from me. He was well and personally kn. ws to this honorable court, and to almost every citizes of Texas, but more especially of western Texas, and was known to be a gentleman of high and honorable standing, a man of learning and ability, a lawyer of superior attainments, and a just, impartial, and able judge, and in his death the profession has lost an affable and whee counselor, the country as able, and just judge. If have the honor, sir, to move that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of this court, and this honorable court do now adjourn out of respect for the memory of the deceased. RERAMES BY FEDGE JACOB WARLORS.

and did not, for that reason, participate in the passage of the resolutions of the members of the bar of San Antonio, just presented by Judge Ogdes.

Having known Judge Duvai personally for a quarter of a century, I desire now to express my fail concurrence in all that is said in the resolutions in commendation of the high character of the control of the circuit and district courts of the United States, hid in the city of San Antonio, we are contronted with the fact that the judge of the state has been called from his earthly home; that the been, which he has dorned for many years, will know him no more—it is meet, and but an act of justice to departed worth, that those who have been intimately connected with him as officers of his country, should give expression to their feedings of sorrow which his unbooked-for death has caused. It may be truly said, that the life of Thomas H. Durai was one of more than ordinary merhiness and distinction of the country of Florida—removed to that territory. After was appointed governor of the then territory of Florida—removed to that territory. After having received a liberal education ard raving entered the legal profession, he removed to the state of Texas, not long after amexation. Here, in his adopted state, he soon rose to honor and distinction. Under the administration of ex-Gov. Bell, he was several of state; was afterwards elected judge of the district court of his district in the state, and when the Western Polistrict of Erass has less an nonest, upright.
