We are now satisfied that Maxey has had much to do with the frequent maxey has had much to do with the frequent stage sobberies (they are star route robberies, toe,) in western Texas, but are not yet fally convinced that he is the man who has been stealing copies of THE EXPASSS from the door steps of our subscribers before faylight in the morning. Can the Post enlighten us on this point?

Wholly extraordinary that, on the appearance of any tendency calculated to influence the market adversely, there is a class who think it may prove to be the occasion of an important reaction. This continual waiting for a partial reaction.

"It was reported in St. Lonis yesterday that Mr. C. P. Huntingdon, president of the Chesa peake and Ohio, and largely interested in the Southern Pacific and other railroads, has accured the controlling interest in the Houston and Texas Central road. The gentleman who gave the information to the Republican representative says he obtained it from a most anative says he obtained in the rate of interest on the capital, not only in the rate of interest on the capital, not only in this country, but also in Europe

The really weak point in the future of the market lies in the crop prospects. It is generally conceded that our wheat harvest can not equal that our wheat harvest can not equal that our wheat harvest can indicate that J. Gould and C. P. ### THAT HANDANUS MATTER lesterday afternoon there was a meeting the efty council held, at which was prest a majority of the board. The object of is meeting was to consider the course the uncil should pursue in relation to the intents of the city in the Mexican Gulf railsel for the city, was present, and expressed his views. The opinion of Gov. Davis was asked, and freely given, on the points at issue. His views were plain and sensible. He advised the council not to meet the judgment against the city, saying that in his opinion the money could never be collected unless a city counsel consented to its payment. Referring to the offer of the city, some time ago, to compromise for 25 cents on the dollar claimed, Gov. Davis said he thought it was a liberal offer, and if he had been of the counsel on the other side he would have recommended acceptance. After a general sel for the city, was present, and expressed his views. The opinion of Gov. Davis was

- subsidies to railroads, and the city of San Antonio and county of Bexar about this time voted $50,000 each to secure the Mexlean Gulf railway. But before the bonds were issued the road was forfeited. A certain time was given within which to commence constructing the road, and all the effort made was to send a plow out to Powder House hill, a mile east of the city, and run a couple of furrouphs. These furroughs were supposed to point in the direction of Indianola, or theresbouts, but they actually pointed towards New Orleans. direction of Indianola, or thereabouta, but they actually pointed towards New Orleans. Whether the superstitious will accept this as a favorable omen for the Crescent City, or not, remains to be seen. At any rate, the couple of furroughs was considered grounds enough to merit the term of commencement of the road.

  After all this, the parties who were at the head of this "great and oreditable enterprise" went to the legislature and through mysterious influences obtained the passage of a bill under which the then Mayor of San Antonio, Charles King, issued the bonds, and nothing effective was done to stop him from doing so. The town was to to have $50,000. Stock for the bonds, but no certificates of stock were ever issued, as the records show. Some time after this, Encoh Jones and Judge Devine, of this city, went to New York to sell the bonds, but could get nothing for them and brought them back as as much worthless paper. Another man, W. J. Clark, thereast ter undertook a similar mission on the strength of fair promises. This was in 1858. Clark left on a stage, but before proceeding many miles from this city discovered that his trunk had been cut from the stage. Walking back, he found it, opened, and all his valuables, including even his rasor, were missing. The bonds that he had to convey to New York to sell the trunk fair or a story to the stage had been station, and is among the trunked process.
