UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

Nothing in American life is quite so easy to criticize as the administration of unemployment relief.

Here is a job which, even if it should be done perfectly, would still be a bad job. Relief is bad for those who receive it and, ultimately, almost ruinous for the nation which has to pay for it. And since its administration needs a wisdom seldom found on this imperfect earth, it is bound to accumulate a series of abuses as time goes along.

We read, currently, that all federal doles are to end by November 1, by which date people on relief will either be back at work or supported by the states and cities; that President Roosevelt, doubting that this can be done, has summoned his advisers to prepare estimates on the cost of relief for next year; that people on relief are getting so used to receiving something for nothing that they often refuse to take jobs that are offered; and that relief systematically undermines the morale of its recipients, building up a permanent pauper class which doesn't care much if it never gets back to work.

The publication of all these stories within a few days of each other simply testifies to the extreme difficulties that any relief program must carry with it. And yet, while we admit that the problems of relief are very great and pressing, it ought to be pointed out that the relief question is only a symptom and not a disease.

The real trouble is not relief but the unemployment which makes relief necessary.

This truth is so obvious that it would be silly to state it, if it were not for the fact that the relief problem has been dragging on for so long that it actually has obscured the underlying cause.

The evils of relief may be ten times as bad as the most pessimistic people say they are; but the remedy for them is not to discontinue the relief program, but to stimulate employment so that a relief program is no longer necessary.

That, in the last analysis, is the only solution. It does no good at all to sit back and moan about the evils of the dole. As long as widespread unemployment exists, the dole must be continued, no matter how expensive it is, or how ruinous to its recipients' morale.—Amarillo News.

ALL SHOULD PAY

In a recent newspaper article, Walter Lippman, the distinguished publicist, pointed out that any sound national taxing system must see to it that every citizen, no matter how large or small his income, pays something in direct taxes.

Under present conditions, only a minority of citizens pay any direct taxes whatsoever. And that has given rise to the highly erroneous belief that the majority of citizens are free from taxation—that the services of government come to them for nothing, being paid for by the tax-paying minority.

That attitude has been responsible for the amazing indifference of the average citizen toward wasteful, extravagant and over-extended government. He feels that governmental spending means nothing to him, so far as paying his share of the bill is concerned; that deficits are the worry of others, and that increasing appropriations cannot damage his pocketbook—and may benefit it.

As a matter of fact, the majority of citizens, who pay no direct taxes, pay the great bulk of government costs—indirectly. They pay them in higher costs for commodities of all kinds—shoes, electricity, amusement, transportation, everything they use. They pay more rent, more for insurance, more for medical and hospital care—because the taxes levied against businesses and corporations must be passed on to the consumer. It is folly to talk of industry "absorbing" taxes—the user of a product or a service always foots the bill in the long run.

If, as Mr. Lippman suggests, every income were subjected to some direct taxation—even if it amounted to only a dollar a year, every citizen would get an inkling of the real meaning of government spending. And when his small tax doubled or trebled he would know what it meant. He would realize his responsibility, and his personal interest in every public appropriation that is made. And that would mark the beginning of an aggressive, nationally-backed movement to force government to be efficient, conservative, economical.

DOING YOUR OWN THINKING

A good many people who jumped right on the Roosevelt band wagon three years ago and applauded Roosevelt the loudest were the first to start chinking him when they felt he might be slipping. We have with us always folks that are careful to have an opinion on the popular side of the question. They rarely have the intelligence to think for themselves, but wait until the other fellow does it for them and wait further on the reaction of this second-hand thinking to see if it meets with the popular approval.

In the coming campaign, it is a question of how conservative the intelligent citizenship is as to whether they will favor the new deal. While they may not like the past three years of the new deal, they may think less of the four years of noble experiment under Hoover.

The United States News, delving into history, comes out with this count: Public acts passed by congress since 1789—24,016. Acts or parts of acts declared unconstitutional by the supreme court during that period—59. These facts put a crimp in the argument, says the News, that the supreme court is a menace and that its powers ought to be curbed. At any rate the republicans are going out in 1936 campaign trying to save the constitution.

There are five other states besides New Mexico which have only one representative in Congress. There are disadvantages to this, but one thing in its favor is that the state's vote is always unanimous.—Albuquerque Journal.

Frank Crabtree tells us of over-hearing the following conversation between two roustabouts recently: "So your brother is a painter, eh?" asked one.

"Yep."
"Paints houses, I presume?"
"Nope, paints men and women."
"Oh, I see, he is an artist."

This Scotch golf tourney, underway at the local golf course, isn't a misnomer in case golf fans look at it that way. For some real Scotchmen are playing in the event. Take Mark Corbin and Ballard Spencer, for instance, who played a match with C. J. Dexter and Earl Bigler. Dexter complained because he could find no tees. Investigation revealed that Corbin and Spencer had gone over the course at 5:00 a. m. in the morning and had picked up every tee. Dexter, of course, claimed that it cost him the match.

According to current rumors, they have put on a hat checker at the Christian church, after a prominent church official lost his hat. Ed Conner, who persists in sleeping in his pew, has been made official checker by the preacher, who has been trying for over six months to break Ed from sleeping while the services are underway.

A story is told of a female member of a nudist colony who was hailed into police court on charge of indecent exposure. The judge asked her if she was wearing anything and she told him yes, a coat on her tongue.

Here's a story we swiped from a little bulletin called "O'Bannon's Between Calls." There is so much truth in it Lawrence Goodell has insisted that we reproduce it, and here it is:

The stork comes to oil field camps, just as it comes to other places where people dwell, and John Bish, of Haynesville, Louisiana, tells an incident of the bird's first trip to the home of a young pumper. The doctor had called in a neighbor woman to help, but they were having more trouble with the young man than they were with his wife. Every time they turned, he was under their feet, and he appeared to be on the verge of nervous hysteria. Knowing that his nearest source of water supply was a neighbor's, some 300 yards away, the doctor called his assistant to one side and said: "Give him a bucket. Tell him to go for a bucket of water. When he gets back, meet him at the door with another empty bucket. Don't

1936 Congress May Be Brief

WASHINGTON—A quiet tip that congress will be kept in session only three months next year is being passed along by some democratic leaders. They hope it will encourage members growing daily more anxious to get back home to fishing grounds or political fences. A high majority leader in the house, speaking privately, acknowledged that the three-month word was winging along.

The short session predictions, of course, are made with next year's election campaign in mind. With this year's long-drawn-out session still going strong, precious little time has been left for members to keep the home political fire burning.

"There won't be any major legislation next year," the democratic wheel-horse said. "Nothing to speak of but the appropriation bills."

let him get back in the house until we are through here." For the next three hours, the young man madly dashed back and forth. Each time he was met at the door with an empty bucket and a demand for more water.

A few months later, learning that the stork was due at the home of one of the gang pushers, he said: "Let me know when you are ready, Frank, and I'll come and help you carry water. It's a hell of a job."

The plight of motorists on the Arizona desert was described by a filling station attendant near Phoenix who said a sedan drove up to his station with the curtains drawn.

"I went right up and poked my head in," said the attendant. "You should have heard the yells, there were four young ladies in that car, and not a single one of them had a stitch of clothing, and they had cakes of ice in both seats trying to keep cool."

Most everybody that reads a newspaper knows about Hitler, the German dictator, and most everybody that reads the newspaper has seen Hitler's picture and remembers his moustache. His whiskers are the most striking thing about him, yet some of our home people wear moustaches and the fact is not observed by the neighbors. A hot argument occurred the other day over Arba Green's whiskers; one said he wore a moustache and the other bet he didn't. The former won the bet.

And by the way, had you heard that two of the city fathers, Arba Green and C. O. Brown were the life of the firemen's picnic party held west of town about three weeks ago. They both wanted to lead the singing of "Sweet Aedine."

Students May Obtain Assistance In The College Student Aid Program

Number of PWA Projects Underway Over New Mexico

The following information relative to students making application for assistance under the college student aid program of the national youth administration has been sent us from the office of Senator Dennis Chavez and may be of interest to many of our local readers:

Students who are eligible to participate: (1) The student must be able to do high-grade college work and must be financially unable to go to college without this assistance.

Institutions eligible to provide part-time jobs: (1) All institutions of collegiate grade, both public and private, are eligible to participate in the program provided they are non-profit making in character. (2) If you are not sure that the institution you wish to attend comes under this classification, consult your state youth director.

Type of aid available: (1) The aid provided students is in the form of part-time jobs, which enable students to earn on an average of $15 per month while attending school. (2) There are no scholarships or loans to college students provided by the youth administration, as congress has never authorized such an expenditure of funds.

How to make application: (1) Make your application direct to the president of the institution you wish to attend, asking specifically for an assignment of one of the part-time jobs being provided by the national youth administration. In order to secure one of these jobs it is not essential that you attend a college in the state in which you reside. (2) In the event that the college of your first choice is unable to assign you a job, because this quota is filled, you should consult your state youth director as he may be able to suggest other colleges which have not yet filled their quota.

The Western Lamb Crop Is Described As Poor To Fair

Lamb crops for Colorado, Wyoming, Montana and New Mexico ranged from poor to about steady this year, said a report for thirteen western sheep states issued Monday by the department of agriculture at Denver, Colorado.

In Colorado the crop was generally poor in the eastern section and fair to good elsewhere averaging less than in 1934. Losses during the winter were quite high in the eastern part of the state. Ranges were reported as in excellent shape except in the south-east district and lambs were developing very satisfactorily.

New Mexico's lamb crop was said to be about the same as last year. Ranges were very good in the west-central and northwest sections, but dry with short feed in the eastern districts. Winter and spring losses of ewes were a little above average.

The lamb crop for the thirteen western states was reported about 2,000,000 lambs under last year's making it the smallest since 1927.

BEN LASKA SENTENCED

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oklahoma—Ben B. Laska, the jumpy little Denver attorney who drew nationwide notice for his defense of kidnapers, was sentenced Monday to a ten-year prison term by Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught for having a part in the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping.

The sentence came suddenly after Judge Vaught overruled Laska's motion for a new trial. Laska reiterated that he was innocent, heard the sentence and immediately gave notice of appeal to the United States circuit court at Denver.

As ever, Laska was a dramatic figure as he heard the judge pronounce his fate. Tears filled his eyes and rolled down his cheeks as he sobbed audibly and stood, arms outstretched, pleading with quivering lips for the judge to "be reasonable."

ANOTHER GOOD REASON FOR MODERNIZING YOUR REFRIGERATION

Airplane Is Used In Looking After Ranch Properties

Modern methods of transportation have been increasing at an unbelievable rate in the past ten years. Ten years ago it would have taken fully an hour and a half to have traveled to the Old Mule Shoe ranch, about forty miles west of here. Monday an airplane made the distance from Midland, Texas, to the ranch in one hour and twenty-six minutes.

The Mule Shoe ranch, purchased by the Scharbauer Cattle Co., several years ago, has been changed to the Figure 5 ranch with L. E. Beyers as ranch foreman. The Scharbauer Cattle Co., has adopted the latest method of travel in looking after ranching interests and when Clarence Scharbauer, general manager of the Scharbauer interests at Midland, Texas (and nephew of Uncle John Scharbauer) inspects ranch properties he does it quick and in the modern way.

Monday Mr. Scharbauer, with Elliott Cowden, pilot, by Little Jimmie McIntyre, started out on an inspection tour. They flew from Midland to the Figure 5 ranch, located Mr. Beyers with a tanking crew and dropped a note, directing Mr. Beyers to come to the ranch house. At the ranch house they held a conference with Mr. Beyers and shortly after noon were en route home. They planned to inspect two more Scharbauer ranching properties on the plains before returning home and expected to fly into Midland before sundown.

SINCLAIR SELLS HOME

LOST DUTCHMAN MINE

NO SERIES concerning golden phantoms would be complete without a story about the famous Lost Dutchman mine. In fact, a book might be written about it, because in the century that has elapsed since its discovery legends have sprung up about it that would furnish a volume of interesting—and often exciting, even blood curdling—reading.

The very location of the mine is unusual. It lies somewhere in Superstition mountain, that great, picturesque labyrinth which stands out of the desert forty miles from Phoenix, Ariz.

Yet, somewhere among these hiding-places where anything beautiful, gruesome, or strange might be concealed, at least one person lives. Who it is, how he manages to exist, what he knows of the secrets of Superstition are questions which he alone can answer. But there he is, self-constituted guardian of the mountain. He is armed, and those who venture near his place of concealment realize that fact very soon, though all of them have not lived to warn others.

1843 is nearly a century ago. It was in 1843 that a young Mexican, Carlos, the illegitimate son of Don Miguel Peralto, fled from his father's wrath up into the winding ways of Superstition. He was followed by two Indians who had orders to bring him back, but at last, after many weeks had passed, only one returned.

This Indian had much to tell. Carlos had discovered ore of incredible richness, and had started for home with the news, hoping to soften his father's heart. One of the sudden mountain floods which sometimes catch wayfarers had swept him away, however, before he had come far, and with him had gone the other Indian and the horses. Carlos had lived only long enough to tell the survivor his story, and to point out the location of the mine.

The Indian was able to show Don Miguel the place, and the old man worked the mine for five years, becoming rich from its proceeds. Then the United States became the owner of all that territory, and Don Miguel decided to send in one last enormous expedition, to take out all the gold possible, and then to retire gracefully. Four hundred men, accordingly, and a thousand mules, were sent to the mine.

There were Apaches in the region in those days, as soldiers of the latter generation could relate. The Mexicans were unable to stand against them. Only two boys crawled away and managed to keep out of sight. All the rest perished.

Carlos gave the mine its first bloody baptism; the four hundred miners wrote the second chapter with their gore. But that was only the start of the story.

Several years later a German prospector named Jacob Walz lost his way among the twisted canyons of the eerie mountain. Wandering about without any idea where he was going, he finally stumbled onto a camp where three Mexicans received him with native hospitality and gave him food and water. Two of the men were the boys who had escaped from the Apache raid; the other was a compadre who was to share their labor and their riches. They were working a wonderful mine, they told Walz.

The German pretended to be remarkably ignorant of such things as mines. He acted indifferent, but he looked and listened avidly, and watched for a chance to do something that should make the mine his—alone. The chance came; he caught up his rifle and fired three times. The third sanguine chapter was written.

And now, having gained sole possession of the golden secret, the "Dutchman" did a characteristic thing; he gathered up a load of nuggets, took them to Phoenix, grew garrulously drunk, and told all.

Naturally, every one wanted to know where—when—how. This he would not tell. The mystery pleased him. The flattery exalted him. But when anyone tried to follow, he became a stubborn old fellow who would not lead.

Even murder did not keep back the increasing number who tried to trail Walz to the mine. He began to feel worried; what if some one should find it? The only safe thing was to hide the place so thoroughly that no one would know where it was. He covered the opening with logs and concealed them with rocks.

So he went to Phoenix, and there he grew ill and died.

As he felt himself going, the old man tried to tell a friend about the mine. He gave him a box full of nuggets, and tried to describe where they came from, but who can describe one place in that mysterious mountain and be understood? The friend spent the rest of his life hunting the place. His son is carrying on the search—and so are hundreds of others. But the mine remains hidden.

HERE is a wonderful way to make these delicious berries, that you can buy in the markets these days, go twice as far. Make them into a tapioca pudding. And it's so quick and easy. I'm teaching my boys to cook, and this pudding is one of their specialties. John, he's the twelve-year-old, served it to his Scout Troop for his Cooking Merit Badge; and was he proud! Oscar of the Waldorf couldn't have touched him with a ten foot pole!

Fresh Berry Tapioca
2 cups water; 1/3 cup quick-cooking tapioca; 1/2 cup sugar; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1 1/2 to 2 cups crushed, sweetened berries; 1 tablespoon lemon juice.

Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Combine dry ingredients; add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool—mixture clears and thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, fold in berries and lemon juice. Chill. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with whipped cream and a few whole berries. Serves 6.

Carlos had lived only long enough to tell the survivor his story, and to point out the location of the mine.

The Indian was able to show Don Miguel the place, and the old don worked the mine for five years, becoming rich from its proceeds. Then the United States became the owner of all that territory, and Don Miguel decided to send in one last enormous expedition, to take out all the gold possible, and then to retire gracefully. Four hundred men, accordingly, and a thousand mules, were sent to the mine.

There were Apaches in the region in those days, as soldiers of a later generation could relate. The Mexicans were unable to stand against them. Only two boys crawled away and managed to keep out of sight. All the rest perished.

Several years later a German prospector named Jacob Walz lost his way among the twisted canyons of the eerie mountain. Wandering about without any idea where he was going, he finally stumbled onto a camp where three Mexicans received him with native hospitality and gave him food and water. Two of the men were the boys who had escaped from the Apache raid; the other was a compadre who was to share their labor and their riches. They were working a wonderful mine, they told Walz.

The German pretended to be remarkably ignorant of such things as mines. He acted indifferent, but he looked and listened avidly, and watched for a chance to do something that should make the mine his—alone. The chance came; he caught up his rifle and fired three times. The third sanguine chapter was written.

And now, having gained sole possession of the golden secret, the "Dutchman" did a characteristic thing: he gathered up a load of nuggets, took them to Phoenix, grew garrulously drunk, and told all.

Naturally, every one wanted to know where—when—how. This he would not tell. The mystery pleased him. The flattery exalted him. But when anyone tried to follow, he became a stubborn old fellow who would not lead.

Even murder did not keep back the increasing number who tried to trail Walz to the mine. He began to feel worried; what if some one should find it? The only safe thing was to hide the place so thoroughly that no one would know where it was. He covered the opening with logs and concealed them with rocks. So he went to Phoenix, and there he grew ill and died.

As he felt himself going, the old man tried to tell a friend about the mine. He gave him a box full of nuggets, and tried to describe where they came from, but who can describe one place in that mysterious mountain and be understood? The friend spent the rest of his life hunting the place. His son is carrying on the search—and so are hundreds of others. But the mine remains hiddeu.

HERE is a wonderful way to make these delicious berries, that you can buy in the markets these days, go twice as far. Make them into a tapioca pudding. And it's so quick and easy. I'm teaching my boys to cook, and this pudding is one of their specialties. John, he's the twelve-year-old, served it to his Scout Troop for his Cooking Merit Badge; and was he proud! Oscar of the Waldorf couldn't have touched him with a ten foot pole!

Fresh Berry Tapioca

2 cups water; 1/3 cup quick-cooking tapioca; 1/2 cup sugar; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1 1/2 to 2 cups crushed, sweetened berries; 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Place water in top of double boiler and bring to a boil over direct heat. Combine dry ingredients; add gradually to water and bring to a brisk boil, stirring constantly. Place immediately over rapidly boiling water and cook 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool—mixture clears and thickens as it cools. When slightly cool, fold in berries and lemon juice. Chill. Serve in sherbet glasses. Garnish with whipped cream and a few whole berries. Serves 6.

Dairy Outlook Continues OK

The dairy situation over the country appears to be very similar to that of a month ago, according to E. E. Anderson of the New Mexico State College. Conditions continue favorable for production in most of the larger dairy areas and in this respect, offer a striking contrast to the drought conditions of a year ago.

The total milk production at the beginning of June was estimated as exceeding that of a year earlier whereas, in early May it was estimated as still being below last year. The report of creamery butter production reveals that May was the first month of 1935 that did not show a decrease under the corresponding month of last year.

Perhaps the most discouraging note is in regard to the decrease in butter consumption and the corresponding increase in the consumption of butter substitutes during the first four months of 1935. Oleomargarine consumption for the first four months of 1935 amounted to 148,828,471 pounds in comparison to corresponding period in 1934 of 76,439,576 pounds. As will readily be seen the consumption in 1935 is almost double that of 1934.

The fact that the government has entered the butter market in making purchases for relief purposes may be of material benefit in increasing the consumption. Whether it will purchase more than the five million pounds now contracted remains to be seen.

Apparently, the dairy situation in most of the communities in eastern New Mexico is much more favorable than it was a year ago at this time. While the price is about the same, pasture conditions in most of the countries are much improved and prospects for feed crops are far ahead of those of a year ago.

Number of PWA Projects Under Construction Now

Secretary Ickes announced Monday at Washington that nearly $1,800,000,000 of PWA projects are under construction and "will furnish employment in the interim before the $4,000,000,000 work relief program reaches its peak."

These projects are being carried on with funds appropriated prior to the $4,000,000,000 with which the administration says it plans to put 3,500,000 persons to work. The men employed on them will not be counted toward the 3,500,000 total officials said.

There are other public work funds in the $4,000,000,000 and Ickes urged states and communities to rush their applications for them.

In addition to the 4,514 projects now under construction, 13,238 involving expenditure of $685,421,693 have been completed in the two years of PWA, Ickes said. Construction has not been begun on 1,426 others which are to cost $321,026,255.

Reporting a "sharp acceleration" in the number of applications for PWA allotments, Ickes said 2,130, totaling $501,114,249 had been received at state PWA headquarters. Of these, 269 totaling $58,262,762, have been approved and forwarded to Washington for approval by the work allotment committee and the president.

He said summer schools will be set up for 1,200 needy teachers who will conduct classes for grownups during the coming year.

Family Typhoid
What are the chances when one member of a family gets typhoid fever that the disease will spread to other members of the same family? This question is particularly pertinent in New Mexico where typhoid fever is too common and where it is most common among children from five to nine years of age.

Epidemiologists are specialists in the study of epidemics. They have a yardstick with which to measure the spread of any contagious disease within the home. They call it the secondary attack rate. Using this yardstick Ramsey finds, in New York state, that if there is a case of typhoid fever in the home the other members of the family each have a seven per cent chance of catching the disease. That is if they have never had typhoid and have never been given typhoid vaccine. The risk to other members of the family is reduced to one third of the above chance if the patient is removed to a hospital. The risk runs in homes that have privies or cesspools and use well water is three times as great as the risk runs in homes that have a public water supply and are connected with a sewer.

Members of the family who have received three doses of vaccine after the first case of typhoid appears in the home run only one quarter the risk that they would have run if they had not been given the vaccine.

All of the above influences on family risk can be measured with mathematical accuracy. There are other ways of reducing the risk whose effect it is not so easy to measure: the care taken by members of the family to wash their hands before eating and before preparing food; the care taken to sterilize soiled linen; and the steps taken to prevent carriage of the infection by flies. Such precautions no doubt reduce the risks of family typhoid very greatly even though we cannot say exactly how much.

Frances Lee Barton says: WE get some hot days in June when a cool and delicate dessert is just perfect—and Snow Pudding. Not only by name, but by nature, is a dessert which is most grateful to the palate on a sultry June day. Try it on the family some evening when it's so warm that the very air seems heavy with its burden of heat. And here's a thought—let the family take its plates of pudding, with its glasses of cool drinks to the porch (or the coolest part of the house) and finish out there. That makes a party of it!

Coconut Snow Pudding
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin; 1/4 cup cold water; 1 cup boiling water; 1 cup sugar; 1/4 teaspoon salt; 1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla; 1/4 cup shredded coconut; 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Soak gelatin in cold water 5 minutes, add boiling water, and stir until dissolved. Add sugar, salt, and vanilla. Chill until cold and syrupy. Place in bowl of cracked ice or ice water and whip with rotary egg beater until fluffy and thick like whipped cream. Fold in coconut and egg whites. Turn into shallow pan, 8x8 inches. Chill until firm. Cut in 1-inch cubes. Pile cubes in sherbet glasses. Serve with lemon sauce. Serves 10.

Dam Hearing Is Nearing End At National Capitol

Settlement of Texas and New Mexico differences over construction of the Alamogordo dam on the Pecos river apparently depends upon the average monthly flow of the stream during the past twenty years, it was learned at Washington Tuesday.

Richard F. Burgess of El Paso, representing Texas and the Red Bluff irrigation district, told New Mexico representatives Tuesday his state was ready to withdraw objections to construction of the dam if Texas were assured a flow in the Pecos equal to the monthly average of the past twenty years. His position was set forth at a conference in the office of Dr. Elwood Mead, reclamation commissioner, of Texas and New Mexico representatives.

SPECIAL DOE SEASON IN MAGDALENA MTS

SANTA FE—A special doe season, after the regular big game season is to be recommended for the Magdalena mountains area State Game Warden Elliott Barker said Saturday. An inspection there revealed an over-population of deer, he said. Barker said he plans to recommend 100 special permits. Barker said no special season was necessary in Catron and western Socorro county this year, as prior open seasons have thinned out the herds.

With so much federal relief, Barker said, there is no need for poor people killing antelope for meat, and the game department is going to "clamp down" on them. Typewriters for rent—The Advocate.

ENGRAVING—THE ADVOCATE

GOP Campaign Is Launched Monday

WASHINGTON—Signs of republican activity looking to 1936 multiplied this week as one prominent party member declared there can be "no compromise" with the New Deal and another accused it of seeking to "prevent or subvert the constitution."
Calling on republicans to nominate an "upstanding conservative" from the middle west for president, Senator Hastings (R-Delaware) declared:
"There can be no compromise with the new deal. The only way the republican party can save itself as a party is to stick to well-known American principles."
Henry P. Fletcher, national chairman of the party, was the man who raised the constitutional issue. In a radio speech Monday night, he invited citizens of all political faiths to "help meet this challenge" and said the presidential race would "transcend mere party lines."
"The constitutional barriers to 'planned economy' are to be removed," said Fletcher. "Why? Because they stand in the way of a centralized, socialistic state, governed without restraint or limit, by a president and a subservient congress."
Recalling that President Roosevelt described the constitution a year ago as "resilient," Fletcher said: "Now that it is shown that it cannot be stretched to cover the socialistic policies of the New Deal, the issue becomes clear. Either the constitution must give way to the New Deal, or the New Deal must give way to the constitution."
Hastings said:
"There is a prejudice against the east. The best thing the east can do is to take a man from the west who is not prejudiced against the east."
Asked what he thought of the chances of republican victory in next year's presidential election, Hastings said:
"If the chances aren't good, it will be too bad for the country."

Summer Meals
The same old essentials go unchallenged. Oh, a little less meat perhaps, and for the overweight child a little less bread and butter, bacon, and potato.
All children can do very well without candies, pastries, and, especially, soda pop or so-called "tonic." By the way, don't let that name "tonic" mislead you. It's far from being anything of the sort. Instead, try a drink of pure cold water or cool milk. There's real refreshment.
Pass up your old beliefs about summer diets. Most of them were only superstitions without a grain of scientific backing. The needs of the body don't change so very much with the seasons. Heat isn't necessary as it is in the winter, therefore the suggestions to reduce sugars and starches. But the energy and health requirements don't change.
The same quart of milk is needed, although good ice cream may account for a part. Green vegetables, fresh fruit, tomatoes, a little meat or fish, some egg, some bread and butter, and there you are, winter or summer.

Prizes For 1st and 2nd Teams In the Soft Ball League

Because of the unusual display of enthusiasm in soft ball this summer, three local fans have contributed the following prizes to the championship team and to the team winning second place in the league.
To the championship team E. T. Jernigan's Jewelry store has offered a smart loving cup, fully engraved and will have the winner's name placed on it. The Oasis Cafe is offering to the winners a $5.50 meal ticket which means a swell feed for the ten players in the top team.
In addition to the two above awards, the Ocotillo Theater is offering a complimentary ticket to each player on the team winning second place in the league.
Last Friday a soft ball team, composed of merchants, successfully defeated a hard congregation of Oilers here on the local diamond. Score: Merchants 9, Oilers 8.
Monday of this week Brown's team was slated to meet the Christians, but not enough of the Christians reported, so the game was postponed until later.
The softballers are playing on a new field just west of the city jail. A new backstop has been erected, the lumber and wire being contributed by Big Jo Lumber Co., and the Kemp Lumber Co. These games are free to the public. There is plenty of parking space and you'll enjoy the game. If you are too young to play, come out to see it.
Games are played on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons after working hours, 5:30 p. m.
Tentative plans are being made for fifteen of our local softball players to enter a softball tournament at Roswell the latter part of August. This team will represent Artesia and the players will be picked from the six local teams.

To Investigate the Water Supply In The Felix Basin

The state engineer's office is to make a thorough investigation of the existing artesian water supply in the Dexter-Hagerman basin area in an attempt to ascertain the exact amount of water feasible to be drained from it for irrigation purposes in the future, it was announced Monday night at Roswell.

It was stated that because of the drop apparent in the basin water level in that area under that of previous years, for the same period, it was deemed advisable to make this proposed investigation.

According to the records for the past year's development of new water from the basin in that area, there were 56 approved artesian wells for tapping the basin with all but probably 15 of those drilled at this time. A temporary suspension has been called on applications and drilling in that area until the final announcement of the surveying party.

Of the lands under these newly developed wells to be irrigated by the new supply, totaling 8,354 acres, 6,654 acres are entirely of new developed status, having had no former irrigation, and 1,060 acres have water rights under the Hagerman irrigation canal. The artesian water to be developed will supplement the canal supply. Six hundred and forty acres, it was stated, held artesian water rights, all being in the Townships 13 and 14 south, Range 25 and 26 east.

The majority of these properties are situated along the Felix river, it was added.

It was further stated that it was the belief of the department that at the conclusion of the final well being brought in under the approved list, the capacity of the basin in that area would have been reached.

A. B. Fite, the new extension horticulturist, will meet with the Atoka Woman's club on Tuesday, August 6th, and will discuss fall gardens and fall flowers. Others interested in problems dealing with horticulture should notify the extension agent.

Peaches are now on the market and many requests for methods of canning have been received. The extension agent wishes to submit the following recipe, which has been used with excellent results:

The fruit should be sorted and placed in a wire basket or cheese cloth and placed in hot water from one to two minutes, then in a cold pack for one minute, and remove the skins; leave whole, cut in halves, or in slices and pack in hot jars or cans, fill to within 1 1/2 inches of the top with syrup; if jars are used test rubbers and then screw the cap down tight. If the hot water bath is used process 20 minutes; if in oven—68 minutes at 250 degrees; or in pressure cooker 10 to 15 minutes at 5 pounds of pressure. The syrup is made by using two parts of water to one part of sugar. Bring this to a boil before putting into the jars.

Five hundred and forty-nine Bankhead applications have been completed and sent in for Eddy county; 253 from the Artesia community and 296 from Carlsbad. All of these applications have been checked and passed, and an allotment should be ready immediately after the first of the month, according to Frederick A. Coffey, executive secretary. Thirty-one applications for Bankhead certificates were received where there were no contracts.

All of the measuring of the cotton acreage in the county will be completed by the first of the month and compliance certificates completed by the committeemen and supervisors. It is noted that the producers in Eddy county are complying with all regulations and to date only four misuses of rented acreage have been reported. It is expected that these compliance forms should be in the Washington office in order to receive the second checks within a short time. No payments will be made until compliance forms are signed and certified to by the county committee.

GAS TAX DIVERSION BLAMED FOR RISING TRAFFIC DEATH TOLL

WASHINGTON—Diversion of gasoline taxes for purposes other than highway construction and maintenance was blamed in part by the American Road Builders association Sunday for a mounting traffic toll of lives and injuries.

William F. McDonald, president of the association, said employment of these taxes for other purposes was an "outright confiscation of the money needed to expand and safeguard the American highway system."

He urged the "25,000,000 automobile and truck owners" in America to wage a "relentless campaign to end the diversion of funds that properly should be used for highways and streets."

CATTLE HIDES HELD IN N. M. WILL NOT BE TANNED BY THE ERA

SANTA FE—Works Progress Administrator Lea Rowland announced Tuesday that 8,000 cattle hides, obtained in the relief administration's drought aid campaign, would be given over to the Federal Surplus Commodity Relief Administration and not be tanned by the New Mexico ERA. Some use will be found for the wool from 200,000 sheep pelts, he said.

The action was taken on the recommendation of Dr. J. J. Hayes of Chicago, inspector, and Gordon Herkenhoff of the WPA, both of whom inspected the accumulation of hides at Albuquerque Monday.

ARTESIA OILERS DEFEATED

The Artesia Oilers were defeated Sunday at Carlsbad by the Potash Miners by a score of 5 to 1. The Oilers secured a four-run lead in the first inning, which the Oilers could not overcome. Sunday the Oilers will meet the Miners in a return game at the Brainard park.

SANTA FE—An order of the Bureau of Revenue, demanding payment of delinquent income taxes, has been revoked, State Revenue Commissioner John B. Bingham Monday informed the office of Governor Clyde Tingley.

With about 900 delinquents involved, Bingham said, letters will be mailed this week informing them that payments will not be sought until friendly test suits have been taken through the courts to determine the intent of the law.
