NIGHT FATALITIES

"Of 36,000 motor fatalities last year, 20,000 occurred at night," writes Governor Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, in an article in Liberty entitled "Death After Dark."

"The total economic waste of night-time automobile accidents is estimated at nearly one and a half billion dollars . . .

"Sixty-nine per cent of those killed are pedestrians . . .

"As a nation, we have failed to grasp the fact that as the sun goes down, so must our speed. We are simply driving too fast for our eyes."

THIS "BUY AT HOME" TALK

We realize, of course, that advocating a policy of "Buy At Home" often falls on deaf ears. The lure of distant markets has always exerted a magic that many people cannot resist.

But, whenever you find a good town, a lively, progressive community where stores are bright and attractive, where fine churches and schools are numerous, where there is pride taken in the attractiveness of homes and lawns, you will find that the people of that town are mostly "buy-at-homers." This applies as much to the business men and his family as it does to the day laborer; oftentimes it is the former who is the biggest offender against the "buy-at-home" program.

The person who buys merchandise away from home is no better than the local employer of labor who hires outsiders. Both are contributing their mite toward crippling their own community, and helping some other town.—Pioneer-Tribune, Manistique, Michigan.

1936 POLITICS A YEAR AHEAD

Those not familiar with the ways of politics might draw the erroneous conclusion that the presidential election is only a few weeks off instead of practically a year. For several months now we have heard the New Deal cussed and discussed and we wonder if the average citizen isn't growing a bit tired of hearing a lot of politics months ahead of time and we wonder too if the late Will Rogers wasn't more than two-thirds right when he said the republicans were limbering up their heavy artillery too far in advance.

Close political observers realize that a political picture may be changed overnight and often commitments made in haste leaves one to repent at leisure. How many times in local politics have you committed yourself to a certain candidate to see possibly your best friend enter the same race a few weeks later and what an embarrassing position we sometimes find ourselves in.

Aside from saving the constitution, in which personal liberty is involved, the average voter sorter likes to know something of the proposals that affects his welfare for he realizes that personal liberty means little if his opportunity is hampered.

So the intelligent voter may pause to ask the pertinent question of what will the party in power do for me besides same my personal liberty? Shall congress set aside the AAA and all the New Deal policies and if so what is proposed to replace them?

Members of both parties for instance have come to the realization that they must include the farmer and the stockmen, if we are to give the eastern industrialists a tariff and the shipping interests a subsidy for carrying on shipping and for carrying the mails, etc., and that to have a well-balanced nation we cannot have one class impoverished at the expense of the other.

THE AFTERMATH OF SUDDEN DEATH

(After the sensation created by—"And Sudden Death," The Reader's Digest was bombarded by proffered "follow-ups." But they thought enough had been said. Then, from A. J. Bracken, an embalmer in the village of Chappel, Nebraska, came the following—poignant in its emotional sincerity, impressive in its photographic directness. As in the case of the previous article, we caution the sensitive reader not to read too much of it).

Just Passing

Two o'clock in the morning. Is that the phone? There it goes again. I grope my way sleepily to it. Hello . . . yes, I understand . . . a wreck on the highway two miles east . . . We'll be right out . . .

What a sight! One car, a new one, now a tangled heap of scrap off on one side of the road, shattered glass everywhere. The crowd has gathered and they have dug one body out and it lies a bloody, grotesque, twisted thing under the pale light of the moon. Another lies groaning and mumbling, "My back is broken I think." We lift him as gently as possible to the ambulance cot and hurry to the hospital. He dies two hours later calling for "Edith."

How did it happen? The report is they were trying to pass a car again a too close oncoming car. What does it matter! We go back for the dead body and in the operating room under the strong light we find that we have a job on hand trying to embalm this poor thing, to put it back together as best we can in an attempt to relieve the terrible heartache of those loved ones who will hasten to see him. What a mess! Ragged bones sticking out through torn coat sleeves, head crushed to a pulp. Can we make it look like a human being and resemble the fine strong young man that it was only an hour ago? It is just our job and we're getting used to it.

Does it make us gun-shy of this fast driving? Well, we wish all the speedsters could spend a night with us, occasionally, in the operating rooms of the mortuary.—Santa Fe New Mexican.

Saint Louis is said to have placed a taboo on radio-equipped cars on the theory that a driver can't make a good job of operating a car and listening to the radio at the same time. Personally we believe the non-radio autos are a blessing in disguise to be used in getting away from the radio.

He Must Have Been Dead
From an Oklahoma paper in the Santa Fe New Mexican:

"I see in the paper that a man named John Sipes was attacked and et up by a bare, whose cubs he was trying to get when the she bare come up and stopped him and et him up in the mountains near your town. What I want to know is did it kill him or was he only partly et up and is he from this place and all about the bare. I don't know but what he is a distant husband of mine. My first husband was by that name and I suppose he was killed in the war. But the name of that man the bare et being the same I thought it might be him after all. I ought to know if he was killed by the bare or in the war for I have been married twice since then and there ought to be a divorce got out by him or me if the bare did not et him up. If it is him you will know him by him having six toes on the left foot. He also sings base and has a spread eagle tattoo on his right arm which you will know him by if the bare did not et up these signs of knowing him. If alive don't tell him I am married to Joe White cause he never liked Joe. Maybe you better let on as if I was dead but find out all you can without him knowing anything about what it is for, that is, if the bare did not et him up.—P. S.—Was the man killed. Also was he married again and did he leave any property with me laying claims to."

A tall, lazy-looking negro stood watching some brick masons building a wall. Just then a brick slipped from the hand of the workman on top of the wall and the crowd gasped, as they saw it strike the negro smack on top of his head; then they saw him raise his eyes and glare up at the worker above—"Careful, Big Boy, careful," said the injured one, "Look what you doin wid dem bricks. You done made me bite my tongue."

A good many folks have not really gotten over Thanksgiving yet, as there is still some uneaten turkey hash. The week after Thanksgiving runs about as follows: Thanksgiving day: Hot turkey with all the trimmings; second day, dressing running low, gravy eaten up; third day, cold turkey, running gear visible, no more dressing; fourth day, turkey scraps, cranberry sauce gone; fifth day, turkey hash; sixth day, turkey hash (hash getting weaker); seventh day, dad makes a mighty effort to tuck the rest of the hash away and out of sight.

The person who tries to do something and fails is infinitely better off than the one who tries to do nothing and succeeds.

Dairy Outlook Is Brighter For 1936

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, no marked change in the number of milk cows is in prospect for the next two years. By January 1, 1936, the number will probably be decreased by about 600,000 head below the number on hand January 1, 1935. The decreases in number 1934 and 1935 bring the number of cows per capita down to about the average for the last ten years. Total milk production in 1935 will probably be slightly higher than the low production in 1934, and with average weather and feed production during the coming year, milk production in 1936 may be expected to be about four to five percent greater than in 1935. Stocks of dairy products are larger than a year ago, and with prospects for higher production during the late winter than a year previous, total supplies of dairy products during the winter of 1935-36 will be larger than in the winter of 1934-35.

Farm prices of butterfat are higher in relation to feed grains than a year ago and during 1936 will probably average considerably higher in relation to feeds than in 1935. Foreign prices of butter are now decidedly higher than in 1934, and imports of butter during 1936 will probably be very small.

Receipts of milk and cream indicate that the decline in city consumption of fresh milk and cream is probably past, and with further improvement in business and in consumer incomes, city consumption will probably show an increase over the low level reached during the depression. With further business improvement, butter prices will probably rise in relation to other commodities.

FLORES DIES

Juan Flores, aged 40, Carlsbad resident, shot in an altercation at Carlsbad on November 24th, died in a Carlsbad hospital on November 27th. Flores underwent an operation in an effort to save his life and two bullets were removed from his stomach and one from his hand. A coroner's jury summoned on the 27th, rendered a verdict that Flores had met his death as result of a gunshot wound at the hands of Manuel Salgado.

An IES Lamp will be appreciated by every member of the family. The fact that proper lighting enables us to see better should be ample reason for having it. But there is a further reason than that: proper illumination actually enables us to look better—Those eye wrinkles that come from continued squinting and eye-strain don't have much chance to form when the light is glareless and abundant.

- Measure your light by these important elements:
- 1—Enough light to see by.
 - 2—Shaded light, which softens and lends attractive tone.
 - 3—General light, plus extra local light for close eye work.

PALEONTOLOGIST STUDIES THE GEOLOGIC FORMATIONS OF AREA

Valley Once Inundated By Inland Sea; Many Interesting Things Found.

(Exclusive to The Advocate by Ray E. Colton, science writer and paleontologist)

EDITOR'S NOTE: This special article has been written especially and exclusively for The Advocate by Ray E. Colton, vertebrate paleontologist and science writer, who is now engaged in a study of fossil vertebrate remains in the Artesia area. In the following caused numerous upheavals here in the dim past, with the result that today paleontologists and geologists are finding that approximately fifty million years ago, a sub-tropical condition existed here. In the field of paleo-botanical research it has been found that fossil fern prints found in the land masses of Eddy county in the area adjacent to the Guadalupe mountains tell the ago-old story of the one-time presence here of the tropical climatic condition. Some of these fossil vegetation remains are found as close as eight feet to the surface where digging is necessary, while at other points outcroppings of rock of Cretaceous, Mesozoic article, Mr. Colton tells of what has been discovered after a search here, and divulges scientific findings which deal with the prehistoric past of what is now southeastern New Mexico.

Fifty Million Years Ago In Eddy County

As the present resident of Eddy county travels around the area which is composed of the land masses which form this area, little does he realize that millions of years ago this same section of southeastern New Mexico presented an entirely different appearance than it does today. To the south of Artesia the mountain range which rears itself above the Pecos valley, exemplifies the ancient beach line which gives the story to geologists of the one-time presence here of the great inland sea. A study of this area, with special reference to that portion of it lying adjacent to the Guadalupe and other mountain ranges, reveals that numerous deposits of sea sedimentation appear in the strata which form the land masses of the mountains. Sea shells, portions of sea coral, remains of petrified sea turtle and other ancient marine fossil remains are to be found in a search along the foothills of these mountain ranges. Nature, in her divine wisdom, and other formations reveal exposed prints which are unmistakably of tropical origin.

Bones of the great dinosaurs have been found in the past few years in the vicinity of Carlsbad in the area now occupied by the Guadalupe range. In addition to these fossil remains of the great reptiles of the dim past, footprints have been found which are known as dinosaur prints. These prints usually found embedded in rock have recently been found in cave formations in Iowa and Kentucky. The finds made are similar to those which show in rock formations in southeastern Eddy county.

At the present time the writer is engaged in a search for fossil vertebrate remains, such as those of the giant dinosaurs which inhabited what is now the state of New Mexico during the period of the earth known to geologists as the Mesozoic age. This period is estimated at being approximately fifty millions years ago.

The dinosaurs, a picture of which appears with this article, became totally extinct at the close of the Cretaceous period of the Mesozoic era. They were cold-blooded, air-breathing creatures ranging in size from two feet up to the huge Brachiosaurus which measured eighty feet when alive.

The photograph which accompanies this article is that of Triceratops, meaning "three horns on the face." He was the fore-runner of the present day African Rhinoceros. The remains of this great reptile of the Mesozoic age is now the object of a search in this county in the area covered by the Guadalupe mountains.

Triceratops was a vegetable eater and was contemporaneous with Tyrannosaurus Rex and other great dinosaurs who inhabited this part of the United States in the past.

The remains of these great reptiles have been found at various points in New Mexico especially in the area northwest of Santa Fe.

It is hoped that several parts of bones and possibly an entire skeleton will be found in the region now covered by Eddy county.

Eddy county in the past contained land masses which do not exist here today. A study of the area reveals many changes which have occurred over a period of millions of years. Evidence of earthquakes and other earth convulsions appear at several points in the southwestern part of the county near Queen and White City.

U. S. Weather Maps Tell Whole Story

New weather maps give a much broader foundation for daily forecasts than the old. Recent advances in meteorology and availability of modern rapid communication systems, mainly airway radio and teletype, have made the new maps possible, says the Weather Bureau. Besides observations taken at the earth's surface—all that formerly appeared—upper-air observations are now charted.

To tell the country what sort of weather is in store, the official forecaster at each of the six district and ten airway forecast centers of the Weather Bureau studies a map that pictures conditions at a given instant over a certain area. He then deduces what may be expected to happen next. These maps are charted early every morning, except Sundays and holidays, from observations flashed to the map rooms by telephone, telegraph, radio, and teletype, from about 400 field airway stations of the Weather Bureau, from about 300 cooperating agencies, from foreign meteorological services, and from ships at sea. Until October 1935 they consisted essentially of isobars (lines of equal pressure, reduced to sea level), isotherms (lines of equal atmospheric temperature near the earth's surface), and symbols for cloudiness, wind direction, wind velocity, and other pertinent weather facts.

Forecasters realized that, although some weather changes are "home made" by local cooling or heating—most of the changes are caused chiefly by the replacement, at a given locality, of air in one condition by air in another condition and by the interaction of these different masses. Weather Bureau officials felt that maps showing the state and location of air masses from day to day would be valuable, but they hesitated to change a reasonably successful system until existing methods of air mass analysis had been perfected.

From observations taken by airplanes sent up to 17,000 feet each day at twenty-five stations, supplemented by the rest of the data available to them, a small group of specially trained meteorologists track air masses as they move—sometimes fast; sometimes slow—over the earth. Past and present performance of air masses is a valuable clue to their future performance, which, in turn, determines largely what the weather will be in the next twelve, twenty-four or thirty-six hours.

AAA Taken Into Court By Mfrs.

WASHINGTON—Charges that the Agricultural Adjustment Act is unconstitutional, nullifies the division of power between state and nation, and extends almost unlimited federal power over local affairs were contained in a brief filed Tuesday in the supreme court by the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers.

The association acted as a friend of the court, filing its analysis of the AAA with the supreme court in the Hoosac Mills case, in which the circuit court at Boston had ruled the processing taxes invalid.

Summarizing, the brief asked: "Is it too much to say that the issue in this case involves the fundamental rights of the states to control their internal affairs, and the question whether or not the constitution gives congress power virtually to destroy this authority?"

Annual Xmas Seal Sale Has Started

The annual Christmas Seal sale started here on Thanksgiving day and will end at Christmas. That part of the funds sent to the state organization will be used to control and prevent tuberculosis.

Continuing a custom that is now almost traditional in American life, Christmas Seals appeared again throughout the nation on Thanksgiving day.

Although progress has been made in the fight, tuberculosis is still the greatest cause of death in this country between the ages of 15 and 45.

The annual toll is approximately 70,000 men, women and children—more than twice as many persons as are killed in auto accidents.

It causes an annual economic loss to the nation of nearly one billion dollars.

The work financed by Christmas Seal funds is varied, but it is all directed toward the discovery of unknown cases of tuberculosis, securing treatment for them, and educating the public in basic facts about the disease so they will know how to protect themselves from it.

COL. W. B. PISTOLE DONATES TO LIBRARY

The following letter from Col. W. B. Pistole, a former resident of Artesia, is self-explanatory:

Boston, Mass., November 14, 1935. Artesia Public Library, Artesia, New Mexico. My Dear Friends: I was asked recently to deliver an address on the Philippines before one of the Women's clubs in Arlington, Mass. I consented to do so, and this afternoon I made my appearance. They offered me a small stipend which I declined, but told them that if they wanted to do so they might make a check to the library. Well here it is. I am giving it to you on two conditions. The first one is that you go out and relieve the manhood of Artesia of a like amount. The other one is that the whole amount then be used in the purchase of non-fiction publications. I suggest that Admiral Byrd's new book "Discovery" would be of interest and value. One of the two recent biographies of Will Rogers should also appeal to the young people. You ought not have much difficulty in finding a lot of good ones with the aid of the Times Book Review.

I anticipate that this will not be the last opportunity of this kind that I will have and I expect to send it all to Artesia. With best wishes for a good year ahead, I am, Sincerely yours, WILLIAM B. PISTOLE.

To start the ladies of the board out, the editor donated $1.00 toward this cause. Who will give the other $9.00?

SPANISH VETS ENTERTAINED Seven members of the Clay Green Camp, Spanish-American War Veterans, were entertained Monday evening at the American Legion hut by members of Clarence Kepple Post, American Legion. The guests were: M. Y. Monical of Hagerman; Mr. McNeil of Dexter; Joe Shuff; George Frisch, Jack Hastie, J. W. Kennedy and L. E. Neely, all of Artesia.

After serving a barbecue the Legion members, with several members of the American Legion Auxiliary and Spanish-American war vets were entertained with several musical numbers including a tap dance an encore by the Misses Patsie Jean and Elsie Alyiffe Runyan, accompanied at the piano by their mother, Mrs. John Runyan; two vocal solos by J. W. Kennedy; a reading by Geo. Frisch, and a whistling solo and a solo on a hand saw by a Spanish entertainer.

Of interest also at this time was the financial report of the Clarence Kepple post of the American Legion for the past year. The report showed between $30.00 and $40.00 per month has been distributed to needy people in this community for the year.

OPENS UP NEW PLUMBING SHOP Gail Woodside has opened the A. and A. Plumbing Co., shop at the rear of the Hardwick hotel. Mr. Woodside, a former employe of the L. P. Evans shop, has served the plumbing trade here for a number of years and is known to practically all of the Artesia people. See his announcement in this issue.

LOSE FINAL GAME

The Artesia Bulldogs lost the final grid game of the season Thanksgiving day to the Carlsbad Cavemen by a score of 34 to 0 here, after holding the Cavemen scoreless during the first quarter. The Bulldogs have been handicapped throughout the season by lack of sufficient practice, because the practice session was so late, however, this situation will be remedied another year to permit an earlier practice session, school officials said yesterday.

SHIPS SHEEP Jim Bledsoe, sheep buyer, shipped two cars of lambs to Abert, Texas, Saturday. The lambs were purchased from Elzie Swift and R. M. Middleton.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? HISTORY, ROMANCE, GEOGRAPHY AND FUN

Know the Origins of Foods
The next time you douse your corned beef hash with ketchup, pause and say to your dinner partner: "Ahem, Archie, did you know that ketchup comes from the Japanese word Kitjap?" Or dwell over your dessert and coyly announce that dessert comes from the French "desservir" which means to clean the table. By this time you should have your audience completely awed and can settle down to agasthing them with such nuggets and pearls as these:
Mulligatawny Soup is a corruption of the Tamil Mula-gu-tamur which means pepper water (and no wonder!). Johnny cake is really Journey Cake because they used to take it on journeys. Bubble and Squeak is called that because of the noises it makes while cooking (maybe they should call whipped cream "goosh"). Sally Lunn's are named for the girl who made them—for her boy friend, who was Prince Regent of the time! And there are innumerable delights named for the men who liked them—Madison Cake, Washington Cake, Louis Phillippe Pudding, and a hundred others. But let's have some recipes before we all get hungry! Here are some of the best:

Lord Baltimore Cake
(Thank the Lord!)
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup milk
8 egg yolks
1 1/2 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup mazola
1/4 teaspoon vanilla
Break eggs into mixing bowl and beat until very light (about three minutes). Add sugar slowly, beating constantly. Add milk and vanilla, (or other flavoring) same way. Sift in all dry ingredients except 1/4 cup of flour and baking powder; add mazola and stir vigorously until smooth (three to five minutes) sift in rest of flour and baking powder, stir in well. Pour into three layer cake tins and bake in moderate oven (350° F.) about forty minutes.

Lord Baltimore Filling
(similar to Lady's)
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup water
2 tablespoons white karo
1/4 cup pasteurized dates, chopped
1/4 cup chopped nuts
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon flavoring
1/2 cup seeded raisins
1/2 cup figs
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Boil sugar, water and karo until it spins a thread (240° F.) Pour over stiffly beaten egg whites, add flavoring and set bowl in hot water and beat until thick enough to spread. Add rest of ingredients and spread at once.

Louis Phillippe Pudding
(The original contained brandy)
1 1/4 cups sugar
1/4 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
6 apples
1 or 2 bananas
8 marshmallows
Make a syrup by boiling sugar and water together three minutes. Core apples wide enough to hold banana slices, Cortland variety is excellent for this purpose—and pare tops. Fill cavities with thinly sliced bananas and arrange in baking pan. Pour syrup over them; bake about half an hour, until tender, in moderately hot oven (375° F.) When done, dot each apple with a little butter and baste well with remaining syrup; place marshmallow on each and put back in oven to brown. Cinnamon and brandy were used to flavor the original version.

Hopping John
(It's served at the White House)
1 cup cooked rice
2 tablespoons butter
1/4 lb. seasoning meat or pork
2 cups dried peas (soaked overnight)
Salt and pepper
Cook peas, being careful to keep them whole in the cooking, using piece of meat to season. When done, have only small quantity of liquor left in them. Mix rice and peas together, season with salt, pepper and butter, and serve with bread and butter. Six servings.

Waldorf Salad
(Oscar of the Waldorf!)
2 large McIntosh apples
1/2 cup nutmeats
1/2 cup celery
12 pasteurized dates
2 tablespoons French dressing
Lettuce
Cut apples into quarters, remove the cores, then cut into 1/2 inch dice; the tender, red skin of the McIntosh should be left on in making this salad. Cover with French dressing to prevent discoloration. Add broken nut meats, celery, diced, and dates, quartered. If necessary use additional dressing to moisten. Pile in mounds on lettuce, garnish with mayonnaise.

George Washington Gingerbread
(His Mother made it)
Mary Washington made gingerbread for her own George and served it to Marquis de Lafayette besides. You can have it too, just by using the gingerbread mix made from Mary Washington's own 200-year old recipe. Just add water and let the oven do its work!

THE MOUNTAIN OF GOLD

PERHAPS a mountain of gold appears like one of those marvels which could never exist outside of fairy stories, but two men actually found such a place.

The Flisk expedition to the West came from Minnesota in the early '90's. Leading the wagon train were Captain J. L. Flisk and Dr. W. D. Dibb. Near Fort Rice, on a branch of the Yellowstone river, the train made camp. They were approaching dangerous country, and it was felt that a reconnoitre would be wise. So, while the wagons waited, Captain Flisk and Doctor Dibb rode out alone to see what lay ahead.

They went to the southwest. After some time on the way, they came to a deep and gloomy canyon, and in the rocks around them could be seen traces of gold. This was interesting, so they kept on. The farther they rode, the more gold appeared. At last the horses became tired, and since a small cave was near at hand they put the animals in this shelter to rest, out of sight of Indians who might be about.

After they had walked two miles, they saw so much gold in the rocks that they could hardly believe their eyes. To get a better idea of this golden country they climbed some 500 feet up a mountain side, and here the sunlight caught the gold until the whole place seemed bathed in an auriferous light. The pure metal could be pulled out of the rocks with their fingers!

Realizing that this was the ideal end for any journey, no matter where it might be headed, they staked claims—for relatives and friends, and claims for every man in the wagon train—as fast as they could. Dark came while they were still staking off the glorious golden mountainside. Why go back now, only to return at daybreak? They decided to stay where they were, and to enjoy the unique experience of sleeping—if they could sleep—on almost solid gold.

But during the night an experience of another kind caused them to change their minds. Indians had seen them—Indians who perhaps felt a prior claim to the mountains' gold, and who did not propose to have that claim lumped.

CURES INCURABLE DISEASE

Oil Field,
November 29, 1935.
Artesia Advocate,
Artesia, N. M.
Gentlemen:

We felt the public might be interested in knowing how faith and persistence has been rewarded in one instance and where a so-called incurable disease was cured. Our little granddaughter, Lora Claudette Matthews of the Oil Field suffered for several months with Noma of the mouth and gangrene of the nerves. While in the hospital at Carlsbad, she was examined by several physicians, including three from El Paso, Texas, who pronounced the disease incurable.

Despite the pronouncements of other physicians, we feel credit should be given Dr. C. L. Womack of Artesia and Mrs. John Hnulik of Carlsbad, who through their faithfulness effected a cure of the dreaded disease.

Yours respectfully,
MR. AND MRS. J. W. KENNEDY.

FOREST FIRES

A total of forty-two fires, burning over twenty-eight acres, is the record for the Lincoln forest the past year. These fires are divided into three classes, by the service, according to the extent of ground burned over. There were thirty-three fires in class A, which includes all fires of a quarter acre or less; eight in class B, from a quarter acre to ten acres; one in class C, which includes all over ten acres. The one in the latter class burned fourteen acres, or just fifty percent of the total. This was because the fire occurred out of season, when the fire lookout forces were not on duty and during a bad dust storm. Its location was Patos mountain near White Oaks, Lincoln county.

Of the total number of fires, fifteen were man-caused, by smokers, campers and others, and twenty-seven due to lightning. The lightning fires were mostly during the fire season when the lookout men were on guard. None were allowed to reach over an acre in size.—Alamogordo News.

Fortunately for the white men there were not many in the attack party, but they realized that they must retreat immediately sliding and stumbling, unable to see their footing, never knowing when death would reach them, the two men managed to reach the cave where the horses were.

It was too dangerous for them to remain in the canyon, for daylight would come shortly. Somehow they made their way out of the place, running and fighting desperately aware that their lives hung on very slender threads indeed. But by some marvelous providence, they escaped and rode to the wagon encampment—only to find it, too, besieged, and by a large band of Indians.

One can imagine Captain Flisk's depression. He had left the party for which he was responsible, and here he was, returning, perhaps, too late. He and Doctor Dibb entered the fight, and managed to rejoin the party, but most of the gold with which they had filled their pockets was lost.

For two weeks the unfortunate wagon train stood off the Indians. Each day the white men grew more apprehensive and their attackers bolder. At last one man, feeling that he would as soon die outside as inside the camp, fled for help, and got to Fort Rice in safety. Soldiers immediately rode to the rescue, and the bedraggled "expedition" returned to Fort Rice with them.

And now came the greatest disappointment of all. Orders had been given that the train should proceed no farther. The Indians were rising, and to venture deeper into their territory would be foolhardy. Captain Flisk had all a soldier's respect for orders, and he knew that he must obey. But before they started back for "the states," he tried to find out something about the mountain of gold. There was little to tell. Other men had ventured part of the way into those gloomy mountains, but some had been killed, and all efforts to see what lay in the canyons had been abandoned.

Perhaps it was this same wonderful mountain that Father Jean Pierre de Smet saw. Just where this was, the good old man would never say, for he feared that white miners filled with the peculiar madness engendered by the chase of the golden phantom would drive off or kill the Indians of the region—and Father De Smet loved humanity more than gold. However, we need not doubt that he saw it, for the priest himself told it in St. Louis. "I know," he said, "where gold exists in the Rocky mountains in such abundance that, if made known, it would astonish the world." But he would tell no more, except that he himself had seen the location, had told his Indian guides of its value and that if white men heard of it they would pour into the country and deface it. While Father De Smet often described the beauties of the land he loved so well, he never revealed anything that might yield a clue to gold.

Plans To Stop Collection of the AAA Tax Out

WASHINGTON — High official quarters disclosed Tuesday that a proposal to suspend all collection of processing taxes for at least a month had been made by the farm administration and rejected by the treasury.

These sources said the suspension move was given "careful and serious consideration" as a gesture toward friendly processors and those unable to finance suits to enjoin collection.

Taxes paid by seventy percent of the nation's processors, it was said, were shown in a recent study to be tied up in court depositories pending a final decision on AAA's validity by the supreme court expected in January.

One reason for abandonment of the move to suspend all collections until the court rules, out of deference to the paying thirty percent, was reported to have been a feeling that the public might have misinterpreted it as an AAA retreat in anticipation of an adverse decision.

Call For Bids On Alamogordo Dam

Bids will be received until December 14th for the construction of Alamogordo dam and reservoir near Fort Sumner, on the Pecos river, according to word received Friday by the Carlsbad Irrigation district office.

The contract is expected to be let soon after this, and work will be started within thirty days after the letting of the contract. Seven hundred days will be allowed for the completion of the structure.

The dam, which will impound waters for the Carlsbad Irrigation district, will hold 115,000 acre-feet of water when full. It will be 135 feet high at its highest point, above bed rock, and will be 2,800 feet long. It will be 800 feet wide at the bottom and 31 feet wide at the top. The high-water mark will be thirteen feet below the top of the dam.

One million dollars has been allotted for the first year's work on the dam, which is expected to cost about $2,500,000 when completed. Some of this money will be used in lining canals of the irrigation system with cement to prevent leakage.

No Tears In Early Onions According To The Expert Gardeners

Onions bring tears to the eyes because of the powerful volatile oil they contain—but their "strength" depends somewhat upon when and where they are grown.

"Onions grown during the winter, spring, and early summer have a milder odor than those of the same variety grown later in the summer," says W. R. Beattie, of the Bureau of Plant Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. "Hot growing temperatures enable the onion to produce more of the tear-producing oil than cooler temperatures."

Discovery that tears from onions are caused by a volatile oil is accredited to a German chemist. He distilled more than a ton of onions to obtain less than one-tenth of a pint of pure oil. A drop of this oil is said to be enough to make the odor of onions noticeable throughout several large buildings.

One variety of Italian red onion is almost odorless when grown in its native Italy, but decidedly stronger when grown in this country. The most pungent varieties grown in the United States are the Red Creole, White Portugal, Australian Brown, and Ebenezzer, and in the mildest group are the Italian Red and sweet Spanish types.

"God the Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the lesson-sermon which will be read in all Churches and Societies of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, December 8th.
The golden text is: "The Lord reigneth, He is clothed with majesty; the Lord is clothed with strength, wherewith He hath girded himself; the world also is established, that it cannot be moved." (Ps. 93:1)
Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible:
"Fear not, O land; be glad and rejoice; for the Lord will do great things." (Joel 2:21)
The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science text book:
"Infinite mind creates and governs all, from the mental molecule to infinity. This divine principle of all expresses science and art throughout His creation, and the immortality of man and the universe. Creation is ever appearing, and must ever continue to appear from the nature of its inexhaustible source."

No More Direct Federal Relief

Federal relief passed out of the New Mexico unemployment picture Saturday night as word came from the state works progress administration that all employables would be absorbed by the various federal employment agencies by Monday.

Of an estimated total of 20,000 employable cases in the state, the latest tabulation, November 16th, showed a total of 17,723 at work but since that time WPA has absorbed approximately 3,000 more. On November 16, the workers were divided as follows: works progress administration, 7,405; emergency conservation, 7,139; other federal agencies (war department, forest service, highway), 3,179.

Including its additions since November 16, the WPA now employs 10,500 persons, only a few more to be put to work Monday. That is determined by the WPA's putting to work approximately 3,000 additional persons since mid-month, and is predicted in part on the supposition that employment among the war department, forest service and highway program has been unabated.

Officials said the 4,500 unemployable case load figure represents a total of about 15,000 persons to be cared for by the state.

Gas And Shrapnel Strike From The Sky

Europeans Arm Against Weapons of Modern Warfare

ON June 14, 1917, a hot summer sun baked London. Looking toward the white-capped Channel Londoners saw strange quicksilver specks in the sky. The specks grew larger became almost like birds moving in a natural mathematical order, and suddenly took on a horrible realistic form. A squadron of German Gothas sped across the London sky. Fifteen minutes later the Gothas were gone; but frightened Londoners came out of hiding to discover ninety-seven dead and 437 wounded.

This first encounter with modern warfare has returned to haunt Europe, reports The Literary Digest, as nations look with apprehension upon Mussolini's venture in Ethiopia.

Europeans during the past few months have become conscious once more of a danger which can strike without warning dropping shrapnel or gas. Already Italians have been looking up prices of ambulance service for gas. Germans are ardently studying the nature and effects of new gases. Londoners are reading booklets of home remedies for victims from deadly chemicals. Parisians can buy the official booklet on news-stands of how to act during air-raids and inspect oxidized shelters.

Paris has built dug-outs in Government Ministries and reinforced the catacombs (ancient quarries) to shelter 600,000 people. A French firm, so brisk was competition in the manufacture of gas masks, has produced individual models; and elsewhere manufacturers have stressed comfort and style trends.

The Case Against Gas

But Lt. John Edwin Hogg, United States Naval Reserve, writing in The Forum, derided wholesale gas attacks from the air as a myth in defiance of the laws of physics. From figures of the United States Chemical Warfare Service he found it would take 300 pounds of phosgene (carbonyl chloride) evenly distributed to gas effectively an area of 100 square yards. And 14,000 planes, with gas-spreading equip-

Health Column

Conducted by Dr. J. R. Earp, Director, New Mexico Bureau of Public Health.

Praise Pinto

Dear little Buttercup was called little Buttercup though she could never tell why. Just so the New Mexico frijoles are called pinto beans. Pinto is said to mean "spotted" and there is no doubt that the pinto bean has a few friendly freckles in its complexion. Then, too, one must admit that the pinto is in a manner of speaking a war baby. Though the bean was probably introduced many years before by a good Spanish missionary, it was the Spanish-American war which gave it its real start in life. An army marches on its stomach, so it is important that an army's stomach be well lined. Phaseolus vulgaris as it is commonly called (by the botanists) or bean (as you might say) is a very satisfying and nutritious food. The army discovered the food value of pinto beans but the people of the southwest were quick to learn the lesson. Next to corn and flour, beans are the most important article of diet among the Spanish-American people. And that may have something to do with the fact that malnutrition was not very common even during the health survey made in the Year of Depression 1934. During that survey Dr. Alexander made the observation that malnutrition occurred most often in those villages that had the largest pile of empty tin cans.

Besides proteins beans contain vitamin B. But though all beans contain some of this vitamin pinto beans contain far more than other beans. This is the important discovery just made at State College by Mary L. Greenwood. Their bulletin No. 232 tells us how with scientific precision the great importance of the pinto bean as a source of vitamin B has been established. Bulletin No. 231 you will find even more interesting for it tells just how the bean should be cooked so that it tastes its best and literally melts in your mouth. When they know how to serve them many people who now eat brewers' yeast will probably prefer to get their vitamin B from pinto beans instead.

The Rev. W. A. Henry of Barnesville, Ohio, formerly of Artesia, serving as pastor of the Church of the Nazarene here about five years ago, was here Saturday. He is pastor of the Church of Christ of Barnesville and preached at the local Church of Christ Saturday evening. He is on a leave of absence from his church and brought Mrs. Henry to Roswell where he placed her in the Pearson's Rest Home. Mrs. Henry, who has been ill for the past seven years, is quite ill and little hope is held for her recovery.

School of Instruction Held by Factory Representatives of Buick, Olds, Pontiac

Three factory representatives, J. W. Day, factory representative; L. T. Harris, factory school instructor, and H. H. Payne, sales promotional manager, all of El Paso, Texas, held a school of instruction for Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac dealers of the Pecos valley here yesterday. The all-day session was held at the Artesia hotel with a noon luncheon at the coffee shop.

Twenty representatives of dealers from Roswell, Carlsbad and here, attended the school, which consisted of lectures, slide films and movie tones of the new products offered by these companies. J. W. Day instructed the dealers present in the modern merchandising methods employed in used car sales.

In discussing the business outlook for 1936, H. H. Payne said: "The increase in sales since the introduction of the new model Buick, Olds and Pontiac is very gratifying. Factories are now as much as sixty days behind schedule in filling orders for new cars. The present production is almost double the corresponding period of a year ago."

He said further: "These companies are now certain that business will be from twenty-five to thirty-three and a third percent better in 1936."

In commenting on the local outlook and sales record made here, Mr. Day said: "The Guy Chevrolet Co., our local dealer, has made an outstanding record during 1935 and we are even more optimistic as to what this dealer will do in 1936."
