MOSQUITO SURVEY

Dr. O. E. Puckett, district health officer has promised to bring into this community soon a man "who knows his mosquitoes". The purpose of their visit here will be to make a survey of the mosquito breeding places with a view to recommending effective control measures. Adequate control measures can not be inaugurated too soon for the comfort and health of both man and beast of this section. Too long have the pests proved a nuisance to the health and well being of the community.

And the need for such a control measure has not lessened, in fact it has grown. There is simply no sense in permitting a menace of this kind to exist, if there is any possibility of its control and a survey should reveal the possibility if there is one.

We are of the opinion that a control measure will not only prove its merit from a health standpoint, but should provide an additional means of conserving the water supply of the valley, if not locally, then to the farmers under the Carlsbad irrigation project. An untold amount of water has been lost in the river bogs because of an obstructed river channel. Except to prove a resting place for an occasional water fowl, the water in the bogs has been wasted.

The fact that they are of no commercial value, but have served as a breeding ground for the mosquito means that they should be eliminated. And the farmers living in the territory of the bogs can be influential in the removal of the menace, if they will join hands and put forth a little effort in the form of an organized protest.

FIGHTING A RACKET

James L. Carter, notorious claim fraud operator known as the "India Rubber Man," has bounced back into prison, trapped by a little white card. Two months after he had been paroled in New Jersey, the gates of the Maryland State Penitentiary closed for five years on the man who, by his own confession, has faked 200 accidents and collected $30,000 in fraudulent claims. Carter's career was abruptly halted by the vigilant work of the Index Bureau System of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters.

Carter possesses the unique faculty of being able to dislocate every joint in his body, police say, and has successfully pretended paralysis. He has some forty known aliases and the trail of his frauds reaches to every corner of the country. Time and again he has deceived doctors into treating his false injuries and has enjoyed the comforts of many hospitals at public expense. One Philadelphia doctor was so impressed by his neck dislocation trick that he recently wrote a paper on it for the American Journal of Surgery.

Carter's story is spectacular, but its significance goes deeper. He may be unique in the versatility of his claim faking talents, but his brand of dishonesty activity is common. The country is infested with great numbers of these claim fraud racketeers. They levy an annual tribute of millions of dollars on honest business and honest individuals. As with every other racket, the buying public ultimately pays for it.

PLAYING THE STOCK MARKET

There is an increasing amount of gambling on the stock markets; the volume of speculation is said to approach the boom days of early 1929. The misinformed investor is back again and in many cases he is pursuing the same course that he pursued before the 1929 collapse. Most of us remember the solemn promises of reform made after the crash, but the recent action of the stock trading illustrates the shortness of human memory.

Locally of course there is little or no trading on the market, but the activity of the market affects us all indirectly, whether we play it or not. For when the stock market is good, general business is good and we are all inclined to speculate and in many cases take undue risks. Most of the speculators are like getting religion or joining the church. The average man plans to embrace the Christian religion some time before he passes on, similarly the stock speculator plans to get out of the market just as quick as he can and make a clean up, but in trying to make the clean up is where he gets caught.

This condition exists despite the fact that about all the safeguards possible either by law or rules and regulation of the stock market are in effect, but as has been pointed out, "You can't make a wise investor out of a gambling fool."

"Ours is a country of unbelievable inconsistencies. For five years our big problem has been the unemployed. Now we are face to face with a recovery that is being retarded by a reported shortage of skilled labor. . . . What were the young people about during the depression? Evidently they were not being trained for places in industry. . . . The 400,000 new young people seeking employment each year will have to learn to respect manual tasks as much as white-collar jobs. . . ."—Henry Goddard Leach, Editor, The Forum.

The removal of Dr. J. R. Earp as state health director has been classed as pure politics. Dr. Earp appears to have incurred the animosity of some doctors over the state as well as some members of the state legislature, in an effort to extend the benefits of his office to people too poor to afford proper medical care.

Officers of a CCC camp near Roswell have tried the experiment of paying the enrollees off with silver dollars to show the value of the camp to Roswell merchants.

A BIRD OF A STORY

The wife of a driller in Texas has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robin, her second Sparrow and the present one's name is Quayle. There are now two Robins, one Sparrow and three little Quayles in the family. One grandfather was a Swan and another was a Jay, but he's dead now and a bird of paradise. They live on Hawk Avenue, Eagleville, Canary County, and the bird who wrote this is a Lyre.

Little David—"Oh, mother, here's a little green snake."
Mother—"Well, stay right away from it. It may be just as dangerous as a ripe one."

Eye behaved herself, you know, while she scanned the fruit denied her;
Never did she make a show 'Till the apple was in cider!

The county superintendent, visiting a school, decided to test the pupils' learning.

"Can you tell me what this means?" he asked, putting "LXXX" on the board.
"Yes, sir," spoke up one of the little girls. "It means 'Love and kisses'."

The teacher was explaining the five senses to her children. Finally she asked: "Mary, what can you tell us about the senses?"

"We see with our eye organs," said Mary, "we hear with our ear organs, we smell with our nose organs, we eat with our mouth organs and feel with our hand organs."

The stew walked into a grocery store and parked himself in the one chair in the place.

"Haircut an' shave," he ordered.
"Just a minute," cried the astounded proprietor. "This is a grocery store—not a barber shop."

The drunk stood up without a word and walked unsteadily from the store. But, thirty minutes later, he was back again. And once again he parked himself in the chair.

"Haircut an' shave," he ordered.
"Look here," said the patient storekeeper. "I told you once before that this is a grocery store. We sell fruits, potatoes, canned goods, flour."
The stew staggered toward the door again.
"Okay," he hiccupped. "But if you should change your mind, just let me know!"

SEVERANCE TAX RETROACTIVE

SANTA FE.—Attorney General Frank H. Patton told the bureau of revenue Friday the severance tax the 1937 legislature placed on oil and gas production is retroactive to March 1, 1937 "beyond any question of doubt."

In determining the retroactive effect of statutes, he said, the doubt must be in favor of the taxpayer. "I do not believe there is any doubt that it was the intention of the legislature to make this severance tax effective March 1, 1937," he wrote.

Although the bill was not approved by Gov. Tingley until March 15, it contained a clause levying the tax for 1937 "commencing with March 1."

GREEN TALKS ON COMMUNITY

Arba Green, manager of the Artesia Chamber of Commerce was the principal speaker at the Artesia Rotary club luncheon program and discussed the "Artesia community, what it needs." Ed West of Artesia was the five minute speaker, demonstrating the various ways of tying knots, used by the Boy Scouts.

Security Board OK's State Plan

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — The Social Security board Saturday approved New Mexico's new plans for public assistance to the needy aged, the blind and dependent children, it was announced by Oscar M. Powell, regional director of the board. The new plans, which coordinate public assistance activities under the recently created state department of public welfare, supplement those already in operation under the New Mexico Relief and Security Authority.

"New Mexico is the second state in region ten—which also includes Texas and Louisiana—to establish a state department to coordinate administration of public assistance provisions of the Social Security Act," Powell said. "Louisiana began to function under a department of public welfare after approval by the social Security board of that state's new plans early in March."

Under the plan approved lately both the state and federal government will participate in financing public assistance. For aid to the needy aged and the needy blind, the federal government will contribute approximately one-half of the state's total expenditures, for aid to dependent children, one-third.

The new state agency during the month of April may assist approximately 6,160 individuals, it was estimated by Powell. Of this number, about 3300 will be recipients of old-age assistance, some 2700 will be dependent children in 930 families, and the remainder will be blind persons.

Average assistance grants in New Mexico during January to the needy aged were $16.76; to dependent children, $11.19 per child and $32.29 per family; to the blind, $17.88. Total obligations incurred for payments to both groups during January amounted to $76,708, including federal-state funds, Powell said.

THE GHOST OF H. B. 41

Of all the baby bills born between January and the idea of March, only a few have grown up to be acts. In the cemetery of lost hopes there is a family vault, presided over by the Secretary of State, and here they have been more or less reverently laid.

H. B. 41 was born, so most people believed, prematurely and the legislative midwives shook their hoary heads. But the infant showed surprising vigor. The prospect of having their blood tested before they married did not appal young legislators, as had been predicted. Though H. B. 41 had already been laid in the hearse when these young men and women awoke to its charm, they unscrewed the coffin lid, gave the child a strong dose of oratory and packed it off to the Senate. Half way through the session it was still alive and well.

Its fate in the senate resembled closely that of another unappreciated child of whom it has been written: There was a small baby of yore And no one knew what it was for So being afraid Let it might get mislaid They put it away in a drawer. And there the Secretary of State found it in the table drawer of a Senate committee when the time came for the last roundup of defeated bills.

Today there are signs that the ghost of this little bill is walking abroad. Five states and the province of British Columbia have sent urgent requests for its photograph. And not only are the legislative halls of other states haunted by the idea of a premarital blood test. The ghost has been seen in New Mexico. The State laboratory reports today that never in its history has it received so many specimens of blood to be tested.

SUNDAY MONDAY

The Artesia Community Its Assets and Liabilities

The following address on "Artesia, its assets and liabilities," was delivered before the Rotary club at the luncheon program Tuesday by Arba Green, manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

"As you all know Artesia is getting to be quite an attractive little city and the improvements are still going on. This street paving is a wonderful asset both in appearance and comfort and is well worth the price it will cost the home owners.

The city council has an ordinance in the making to zone the city, each zone to have certain building regulations. While this ordinance is not completed, I feel sure something satisfactory will soon be worked out.

The new school buildings and hospital will not only add to the attractions but are conveniences which will materially aid in the growth and welfare of this community.

Paved streets and beautiful buildings alone do not make an attractive city. The grounds must be clean and well kept. Therefore I urge a real clean up of the entire city, each property owner or tenant to clean the lot or lots on which they live and put the trash in shape for the garbage man to haul it off to the dump ground.

Perhaps the best asset to any city is the business district with progressive merchants and business men. Artesia is indeed fortunate in this respect. We have splendid, courteous, wide awake men who are always ready to help with any proposition for the betterment of our city.

I would also like to see a row of shade trees on both sides of Main street, in front of the business houses. These trees to be twenty five feet apart. If we would plant trees as mentioned in five or six years we would have one of the most attractive business districts in the state.

The residents of the Flying H Ranch and Felix community and others were entertained Friday evening with a delightful program given by the children of the Felix school under the direction of Miss Evangeline Carman.

We Buy and Sell Typewriters, Adding Machines, and All Kinds of Office Equipment—The Advocate.

away. Nothing in this life worth having is attained without some effort and I believe the beauty, comforts and benefits derived from these shade trees would exceed the trouble and expense.

Our little city cannot grow and prosper without outside interests and these interests are close at hand. The oil fields, refineries and potash fields are great assets and have helped to build our city to its present proportions and also have brought many desirable people to our community.

Through the splendid co-operation of the officials of the WPA we are now seeing some of our most cherished road building plans fulfilled. I feel we owe these officials a most sincere vote of thanks for their untiring efforts in our behalf.

The building of highways has made it possible for the farmers and ranchers to visit our city often and has been the means of many business transactions both in marketing crops and buying the necessities for the surrounding country.

We are all interested in the farmers and the crops and cotton has proven to be one of the most profitable in this section of the country. However it has brought on a difficult problem which Artesia has had to cope with for the last few years, and that is the undesirable class of transient cotton pickers.

Scientific investigations have brought to light other crops which are as profitable as cotton and can be handled without this undesirable class of people. The raising of soy beans has become quite an industry in other localities and is just as good a soil builder as alfalfa, clover and other crops.

The tools of a Rotary Club are alert, active and ambitious men with minds tuned to make the best of things. It is the business of the Rotary club to put those tools to work toward the upbuilding of the community.

After the program a box supper was held for the benefit of the school, the proceeds of which greatly exceeded the expectations of those in charge.

Boy Burned to Death at Eunice

Five year old Buddy Crazen was burned to death and five other people were injured Sunday in a fire which destroyed a hotel and a laundry at Eunice in Lea county.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Crazen, parents of the boy, Fay Maples, a blind musician, and Mr. and Mrs. "Blacky" Aldridge suffered minor injuries in jumping from second story windows after the flames trapped them.

The blaze, its cause undetermined, started about 3:30 p. m. in the kitchen of the Wilson Hotel and spread quickly to the adjoining Rexroad laundry building.

A quickly formed bucket brigade worked strenuously to prevent the fire from spreading to a row of residences south of the hotel. An automobile across the street burst into flames from the heat but was extinguished without major damage.

The loss was estimated at $6,000.

Output of Buick Continues Gain

FLINT, Mich.—Domestic retail deliveries of Buick motor cars during the second ten days of March totaled 6,856 units compared with 1,518 a month ago and 4,632 in the corresponding period of March, 1936, it was announced recently by W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager.

This was a gain of 5,338 units or 351 per cent over the preceding month and 2,224 units or 48 per cent over last year.

Mr. Hufstader said the factory will enter April with approximately 35,500 unfilled wholesale orders, a slight reduction from the previous month, reflecting heavy shipments of cars during March.

The 100,000th 1937 Buick has rolled off the assembly line, he said, more than ten days ahead of the corresponding volume last year. Buick output of 1937 models through March 23rd totaled 105,107 units as compared with 99,503 of the 1936 models on that date.

Miss June George of Hagerman was her attendant and she wore a tan monkey skin dress with green accessories. Her flowers were pastel shaded sweet peas and were arranged in a shoulder corsage.

Mrs. M. Murphy, her other attendant was attired in white. Her flowers were orchid sweet peas and pink rosebuds.

Shirley Bartlett added variety to the program with a very popular arrangement of familiar tunes from the opera "Faust" by Gounod arranged for the violin. Shirley's poise and accuracy won her listeners completely. Mrs. I. L. Spratt was at the piano.

"LET it rain, let it pour"—but nothing worries the housewife who has light, spring dishes in her refrigerator.

Showers, as characteristic of April as the 4th is of July, may fall intermittently for days, but with fresh, sunshiny foods to serve family and guests every home can be bright and cheerful throughout the bleakest days. April Luncheon Salad is just the thing for brightening up the noon meal of dull, rainy spring days.

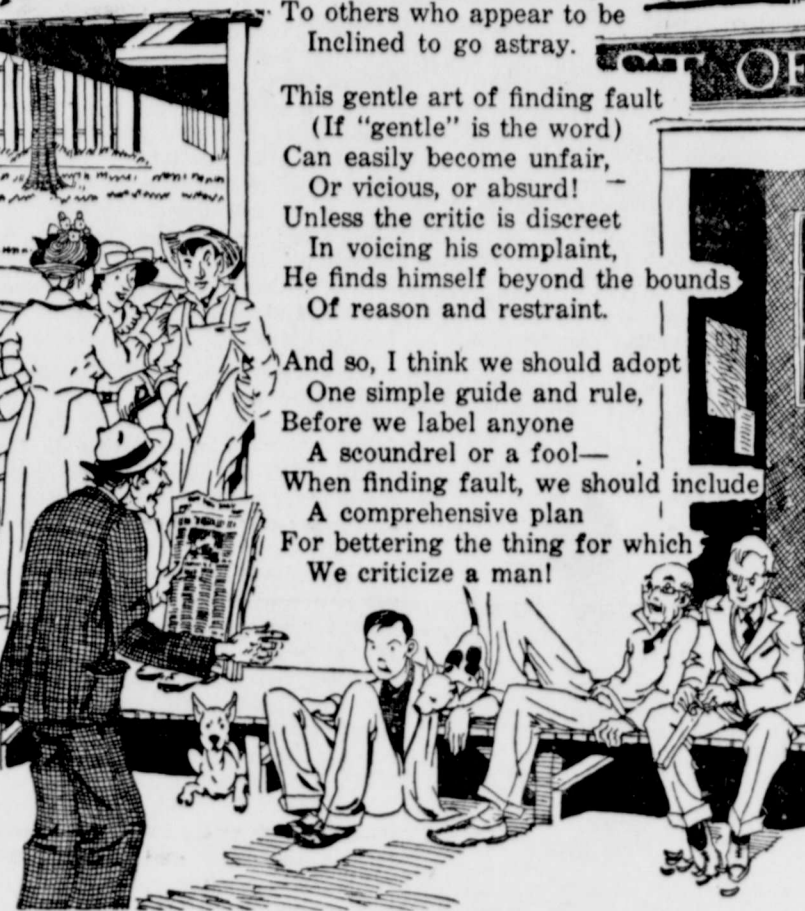

April Luncheon Salad
1 package lemon-flavored gelatin; 1 pint hot water; 1 tablespoon vinegar; 1/2 teaspoon salt; dash of cayenne; 1 pimiento, cut in strips; 2 hard-cooked eggs, coarsely cut; 1 cup chopped celery; 1/2 cup chopped olives; 1 1/2 teaspoons chopped chives, or 1 teaspoon scraped onion.
Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, and cayenne. Chill until slightly thickened. Arrange pimiento strips in individual molds. Season eggs and celery with 1/2 teaspoon salt; add remaining ingredients. Fold into slightly thickened gelatin. Turn into individual molds and chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. When Finding Fault

by LAWRENCE HAWTHORNE

Americans have always felt Quite free to criticize Whatever they believe is not Decorous, just or wise; And I, for one, have done my share Of pointing out the way To others who appear to be Inclined to go astray.

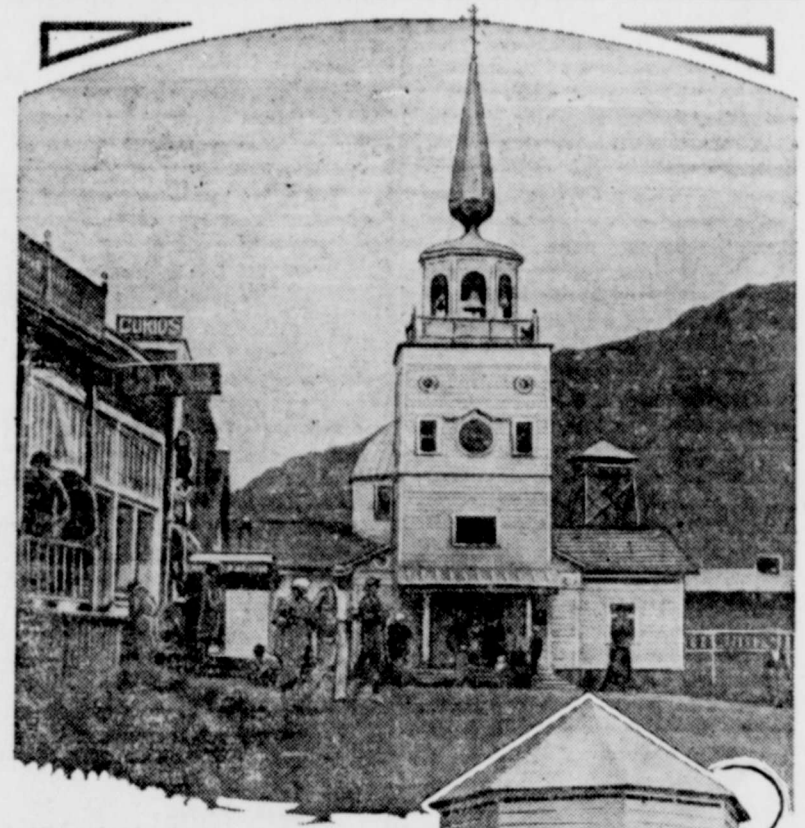

This gentle art of finding fault (If "gentle" is the word) Can easily become unfair, Or vicious, or absurd! Unless the critic is discreet In voicing his complaint, He finds himself beyond the bounds Of reason and restraint.

And so, I think we should adopt One simple guide and rule, Before we label anyone A scoundrel or a fool— When finding fault, we should include A comprehensive plan For bettering the thing for which We criticize a man!

OLD RUSSIA IN ALASKA

Photograph, Canadian National Steamships. ALASKA is a country that has been under three flags. First owned by Great Britain, it was ceded to Russia in 1825 and that country sold it to the United States for $7,200,000 in gold in 1867. "Seward's folly," the deal was called at the time. Although seventy years have passed since then, visible traces of the influence of Old Russia are still to be seen in Alaska. The Russian church in Sitka, pictured above, is of interest to the thousands of tourists who visit Alaska annually and the old block house, also at Sitka, is another favorite spot with visitors.

THE LAST FORTRESS

When they reached a mesa top which gave a view of the camp, the three looked back. To their horror, they saw their little settlement in flames, and even as they watched Indians killed the remaining men.
It would mean death to return; besides, their friends were beyond help. Frightened, the three men hurried on, missing their way, and in their wanderings one of them died.
The sole survivor of the party was a man named Adams. He told the story, and added that $1,000 a day could be washed out with a gold pan at the place where his comrades had died. In spite of the horror of his experiences he longed to return to where the golden phantom beckoned.
But it was not to be. Adams tried many times to make his way back to the three mountains, but somehow he could never find them again. Others, too, have hunted for the lost diggings in that fiercely beautiful country, but the secret remains unknown.

The Advocate's Tested Recipe

By Frances Lee Barton

LIVES there a man who doesn't give three cheers for the inventor of beefsteak and kidney pie? What a dish to set before a cold, hungry man! This is a meat pie which will give you all the rich savor of the gravy—the delicate smoothness of perfect gravy! For it's thickened with a small quantity of quick-cooking tapoca, which does its duty efficiently without masking the flavor.

Beefsteak and Kidney Pie

4 lamb kidneys; 1 pound round steak, cut in pieces; 1/4 cup sliced onions; 2 tablespoons butter or other shortening; 3/4 cups boiling water; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/2 teaspoon pepper; 3 allspice berries; 2 cups mushrooms, cut in pieces; 1 1/2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapoca; 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. 1 cup sifted flour; 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder; 3/4 teaspoon salt; 3 tablespoons butter or other shortening; 6 tablespoons milk (about).
Soak kidneys in salted water 1 hour. Brown steak and onions in 1 tablespoon butter; add water, salt, and pepper. Tie thyme, bay leaf, and allspice in small cloth; add to meat; cover and simmer about 1 hour, or until nearly done. Remove bag of spices. Slice kidneys and sauté with mushrooms in remaining tablespoon butter. Add to meat mixture; then add quick-cooking tapoca and Worcestershire sauce and bring to boil, stirring constantly. Turn into greased casserole.
Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually, stirring until soft dough is formed. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds, or enough to shape. Roll dough 1/4 inch thick; with sharp knife make slits to permit escape of steam. Fit over meat mixture in casserole. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 30 minutes. Serves 6 to 8.

Fascinating Tales of Lost Mines

THE ADAMS' DIGGIN'S

THE Gila river, which seems so much a part of Arizona, has its headwaters in New Mexico. There are three forks which meet before the state line is reached, and the country thereabouts is known only to forest rangers and cowboys, who ride the reaches of the Heart Bars, the Slashes, the Gos, and other lonely ranches.
It was in 1860 that a party of fifteen men set out from California to prospect in the mountains to the east. A prisoner of the Yuma Indians managed to catch their attention, and this man told them that he knew where there were wonderful gold fields, and could guide them to the place. As a consequence, the party bought him from his captors, and set out after him across the state of Arizona and up into the headwaters of the Gila.

Three peaks rose from a valley, and between two of them a stream flowed eastward. At the base of the central mountain the placer gold sparkled, and here the party camped and went to work.
Presently their supplies ran low. Half of the party started out for Yuma, not realizing that there were towns across the mountains to the south, to get food and other supplies. A month went by, and no one returned. The provisions were alarmingly low by this time, so three more men started after the first party.

When they reached a mesa top which gave a view of the camp, the three looked back. To their horror, they saw their little settlement in flames, and even as they watched Indians killed the remaining men.
It would mean death to return; besides, their friends were beyond help. Frightened, the three men hurried on, missing their way, and in their wanderings one of them died.

The sole survivor of the party was a man named Adams. He told the story, and added that $1,000 a day could be washed out with a gold pan at the place where his comrades had died. In spite of the horror of his experiences he longed to return to where the golden phantom beckoned.

But it was not to be. Adams tried many times to make his way back to the three mountains, but somehow he could never find them again. Others, too, have hunted for the lost diggings in that fiercely beautiful country, but the secret remains unknown.

WHY FRET ABOUT OIL?

ON TOUR OR IN TRAFFIC BE MERRY WITH YOUR ENGINE OIL-PLATED

You can laugh off your old doubts about warm-weather engine oiling, because Oil-Plating is so terribly hard to rub off, scrape off or burn off. Here's one form of lubrication which is not a mere shifting temporary oil-film. For in addition to the normal moving type of film, vastly strengthened, Conoco Germ Processed oil forms a stationary Oil-Plating.
The explanation is that patented Germ Processing makes this oil really plant itself on bearings, shafts, and upright surfaces too, such as cylinder walls. Not even the good old Law of Gravity can make Oil-Plating drain down. It's always up there all the while your car is parked, or showing its heels in the open. None of that much-mentioned starting risk for you... No anxious eye on the heat indicator... Lots longer between drinks of oil, in your old or new car, with its engine lastingly Oil-Plated by Conoco Germ Processed Oil. Continental Oil Company

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Societies and Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, April 11th.

The Golden Text is: "The Lord hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he." (Jer. 31:11).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a sound mind." (II Tim. 1:7).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook: "The admission to one's self that man is God's own likeness sets man free to master the infinite idea. This conviction shuts the door on death, and opens it wide towards immortality."

THE WHITE CEMENT

AN OLD man, exhausted and ill, started a stampede that was once the talk of the Southwest.

It was in July of 1908 that the prospector, who was named White, staggered into Horse Head gulch camp, near Amarillo, Texas. He had some peculiar-looking stuff with him that resembled nothing so much as white clay or cement, and this strange "ore" was speckled with flecks of gold.

In fact, assay showed that the stuff would run a thousand ounces of gold to the ton. White's gold find could not be kept secret. The news flashed from man to man, and everyone who heard it was eager to know where the location was, so that he could get some of this wealth for himself.

White tried to keep quiet; he had no desire to tell, when he knew that every man who heard it would dash out and stake claims. But his wish for secrecy was not respected. When he refused to answer questions, the men of the camp gathered about him and threatened to kill him if he would not show them where he found his gold.

After such threats, White could do nothing but promise to lead them to the place right away.

The journey was not a pleasant one. Many of White's party were suspicious of him, and when time went on and no gold appeared they threatened again to kill him if they found that he had been misleading them.

At last, one night the party reached a blind canyon and made camp. One more day, White announced, would see them at his find, which was thirty-five miles to the northwest. Tired out, their suspicions lulled by White's words, the men slept soundly—all but White himself. He said that he was nervous, since he was so close to the mine. He could not sleep for thinking of it. And since he was awake, he would stand guard while the others slept.

Morning came, and with its first light the men awoke, eager to press on. But what was this? White was nowhere to be seen, and his horse also had disappeared! He had slipped away in the night, leaving them ignorant of the location of the gold as they had been at first.

Three years after this clever ruse, White was seen in Salt Lake City, where he spent money liberally. He loaned a man in Provo $50,000 in gold dust, so apparently his "cement" mine was still producing. Then he disappeared. He never returned to claim his money. No one heard of him or saw him again.

Practices such as "contour listing," "planting of cover crops," and "maintaining of crop residue" have been recommended by the New Mexico state committee to be adopted in this state.

The Washington office has promised to give these recommendations immediate consideration, as this information is vitally important to the farmers in the wind erosion areas. Erosion Areas Are Set Aside

Special practices in connection with the wind erosion control program are being recommended as additions to the 1937 agricultural conservation program, to apply to the active wind erosion areas in various counties in New Mexico, County Agent Fred Barham said recently.

Such acreage will be referred to as wind erosion acreage, and the county committee will determine for each farm in the wind erosion area the acres upon which the operator may perform wind erosion control practices in 1937. These acres will be the acres of cropland, excluding the maximum acreage which might be diverted for payment on such farms.

Farmers signing such worksheets in connection with the 1937 program would be permitted to earn payments on the 85 percent of their cropland acres by following these wind erosion practices.

Outlook Justifies State Participation In New York Fair

Whalen Voices Opinion in Inviting Governor and People to the 1939 Exposition

NEW YORK, (Special).—In a letter of invitation to the governors of 47 states, Grover Whalen, President of the New York World's Fair 1939 Corporation, points out that the commercial consequences of the international exposition under construction in New York City are so great and important that they alone would justify the active participation of every state in the nation.

"Fifty million persons from every walk in life, from every state in the United States, from every country in the world, are expected to attend the Fair," writes Mr. Whalen. "The great American market with its tremendous consumer purchasing power will be represented by these visitors. They will comprise a true cross-section of America."

The World's Fair, according to Mr. Whalen, will be a magnificent spectacle, entertaining and instructive. It will attempt to answer the questions: "What kind of a world have we built? What kind of a world are we building? What kind of a world can we build?" With collateral improvements, it will represent a total investment of more than $125,000,000 by the Fair Corporation and the governmental, industrial and other participants. The Fair site park is a tract of 1216 1/2 acres, almost at the geographical and population center of New York City.

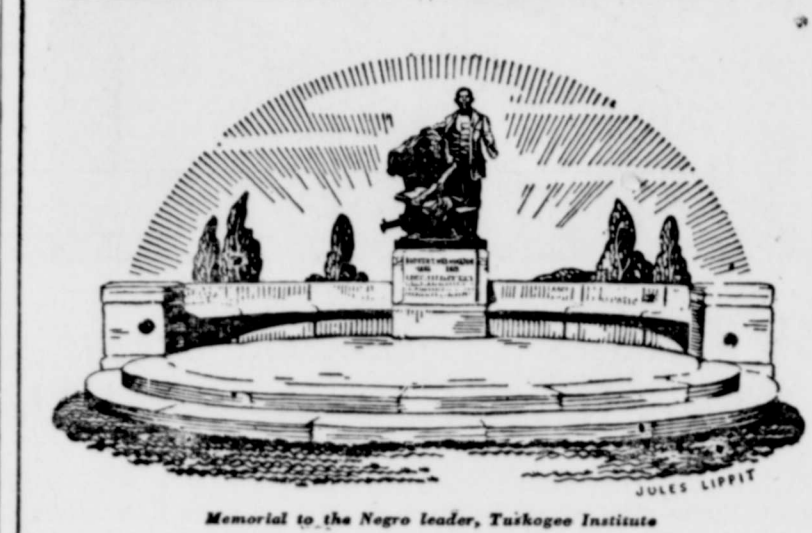

Construction of buildings and roads, grading, dredging, planting and landscaping are already under way, based upon a schedule which calls for completion of all construction operations before January 1, 1939, to allow four months for final decorations and installation of exhibits preparatory to the opening of the Fair on April 30.

The opening date commemorates the inauguration, on April 30, 1789, of George Washington as the first President of the United States.

In the government area, and near an imposing federal hall to be erected by the United States Government, the Fair will provide a "Hall of States" in which the significant contributions of each state in laying the foundations for the better World of Tomorrow can be proudly displayed, says Mr. Whalen.

His letter supplement, an invitation to participate in the Fair extended to the governors on November 30 by Governor Herbert H. Lehman of the host state of New York. Governor Lehman pointed out that the State of New York was already appropriated, to date, $2,130,000 for commencement of construction of boulevards, service roads, bridges, and certain other basic improvements the State will make at the exposition site or its approaches. The New York legislature, further, during 1936 passed an act creating the New York World's Fair Commission of 18 members and providing funds in aid of this body's preparation of plans for a state building and exhibit and for active state participation in the Fair.

Milestones of American Genius

Memorial to the Negro leader, Tuskegee Institute

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON

THE greatest name in the history of the American Negro belonged to a man born in slavery, who never knew who his father was, nor even the exact date of his birth. His mother named him Booker T. Washington when he was born, in 1855 or 1859. He himself later added Washington as a surname.

As Booker T. Washington he became the leading force in the rehabilitation and education of his race. Tuskegee Institute, famed throughout the country for its pioneer work in Negro education, is a monument to his life's labors. It is fitting that Tuskegee should also be the site of the imposing memorial shown above, symbolical of his services in drawing off the cloak of ignorance from his race. It was erected in 1922 and was subscribed entirely by Negroes.

The Emancipation Act, which freed Booker T. Washington at the age of four or five, did little to make his life easy. There were no schools for Negroes in the little Virginia town where he lived, and at a tender age he was put to work in the mines. Somehow he learned to spell out a few words and this glimpse into the world of knowledge fired his appetite for education.

Having heard of Hampton Normal School, he turned up there one day, when he was 13, having walked several hundred miles to get there. By serving as janitor and waiter he earned his tuition. His fine scholarship eventually won him a place on the teaching staff, which he kept until he was invited to take charge of Tuskegee Institute, then almost unknown.

Arriving at the Institute, in Alabama, he found that the school had little more than a name. It was poor and the Negro community was prejudiced against Washington's idea of combining manual and academic education. Finally he succeeded in opening the school in a shanty, with a handful of students. Later he bought an abandoned plantation and gradually there arose on its broad acres the modern buildings and equipment which are the pride of its students.

By 1915, when Booker T. Washington died, the Institute had 1,800 pupils. He was widely recognized as a benefactor of his own race and therefore of the nation as a whole. He was a familiar figure on the lecture platforms of the country, pleading for greater opportunities for his people. The memorial to him is a permanent reminder of those qualities of daring, perseverance and devotion to an ideal which marked his career. All races unite in recognition of his contributions to education.
