Country Caravan Will Visit Muleshoe In June For Evening Concert

Take all the best ingredients that country music has to offer and mix it well with tremendous vocal talent, dress it in colorful costumes, and add a dash of topflight musicianship and precision dancing.

This is the entertaining recipe for the 13th season of Country Caravan scheduled for a performance June 15 in Muleshoe.

Sponsored by Chamber of Commerce, the 90-minute revue of hand-clapping and toe-tapping country music hits begins at 8:30 p.m. in the New City Park. Admission is free.

Featuring a cast of 16 talented vocalists and musicians, Country Caravan dishes a musical menu that will satisfy the most discriminating county music palate. Produced annually by South Plains College in Levelland, Texas, this musical program features more than 30 country music hits that run the gamut of contemporary country and golden classics.

"Our goal for Caravan goes beyond mere entertainment," says John Hartin, the general director for the show. "Like any good cook, we look for those magical ingredients in country music that enable us to touch a person's soul."

To achieve just that Hartin and crew rely heavily on the lyrical qualities of country music, performing powerful country tunes which have deep roots in the music industry and which in many instances have withstood the test of time. The result, Hartin says, is an inspiring show which simply makes its audiences feel good.

"We know our customers. They're regulars with us," says Joe Carr, the show's musical director and master of ceremonies. "We know how to cook up a meal they will like." After 13 seasons, that intuitive knowledge of what keeps audiences flocking to see performances of Country Caravan each summer helps to mold the show's musical menu.

More than anything else, Caravan serves up a smattering of many different country music entrees as it tells its story in song and dance. So the program of songs includes contemporary char-busters like Barbara Mandrell's I Wish I Could Fall in Love which emulates the traditional country style of the 50s and 60s, and George Strait's If you Ain't Lovin' which revives Texas western swing. Vocal harmonies sing in Highway 101's Cry, Cry, Cry, and in the female duet Since I Found You by the Sweethearts of the Rodeo. The vocal qualities of the entire cast create a smash with Alabama's Forty Hour Week.

But the show would be missing a key element to the country music story if it didn't touch on the country classics. So take a walk down memory lane with songs made famous by country music greats Patti Paige, Loretta Lynn and Hank Williams. The styles of Loretta Wynette, Johnny Cash, Lynn Anderson and the Everly Brothers are represented in tunes like Divorce, I Walk the Line, Rocky Top and Bye, Bye Love. Who could forget the immortal Patsy Cline's Crazy or the rock-a-billy style of Jerry Lee Lewis' Whole Lot of Shakin' Goin' On.

Authentic Appalachian-style clogging takes a western swing twist in two instrumental numbers, while hot saxophone licks sing in Tequila. Some great country fiddling, a medley of inspiring country gospels, headlined by A Light at the End of the Darkness, and the patriotism of Lee Greenwood's God Bless the U.S.A. round out the show.

For the past 12 years, Caravan audiences have come to expect the vocal and instrumental talent in the show to shine. Both Hartin and Carr agree that the show's musical talent exhibits a high degree of experience and enthusiasm. The cast consists of 13 multi-talented students from South Plains College's Creative Arts Department and country and bluegrass music program and three faculty members.

Backing up the vocalists is the Caravan Band which is featured on several solo acts. Student members of the band include two veterans from previous seasons. Toby McWilliams and Jacky Howard, both from Levelland, return for another season. McWilliams plays guitar and pedal steel, while Howard is featured on saxophone.

Newcomers include Becky Ellis of Plains, Texas, who plays the fiddle and Paul Goad of Fort Worth, Texas, who brings to the show expertise on the keyboards and is a featured vocalist. Kendall Mesneak of Pampa, Texas, is the band's percussionist.

Faculty members in the band include Hartin, who plays the electric guitar with a passion and sings the classic county style. Carr, bluegrass music specialist at SPC, serves as the show's host and picks the mandolin, guitar, and fiddle. Lance Martin, commercial music instructor, makes his debut as bass guitarist.

The vocal talent for this season's edition has been perfectly matched to the show's material. At the head of the list are three young ladies who thrilled audiences last season. Paula Horton of Perrin, Texas, enters her third season with the show, and her yodeling abilities are featured in Lovesick Blues. Latrell Houk of Littlefield, Texas, who wooed audiences with her wide vocal range and classic country female style, is back for performances of Cry Me a River. Amy Price of Lubbock, Texas, brings a more modern country style to the show.

Newcomers include brothers Jeff and Mike McCreight of Lubbock, Texas, whose singing styles were developed in southern churches. Their strong suit is close country harmonies. Carol Grantham of Granbury, Texas, is also a student of the classic country style as seen in Loretta Lynn's Release Me. Lesley Sawyer of Earth, Texas, rounds out the vocal talent and is featured on Funny How Time Slips Away.

"This season's show features strength and depth in our vocal talent that has enables us to make greater use of harmony," says Carr. "We have some truly great singers and musicians."

In addition to Hartin and Carr, five other individuals provide technical support for the show. Jennifer McCasland, director of student activities at SPC, coordinates the costuming for the show, while choreography for the clogging numbers was designed by Valerie Moss. Stuart Moody, a sophomore sound technology major, supervises the sound reinforcement for the show. Dr. Marvin Baker, president of South Plains College, serves as lighting technician, while his wife, Mildred Baker, serves as a costuming assistant.

South Plains Quality Work Force Studied

The South Plains Quality Work Force has just completed the list of targeted occupations for the 15 county area making up the High Plains. The counties affected are Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, King, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Terry, and Yoakum.

The goal for this planning committee is the establishment of a more effective and integrated system for education, training, and retraining workers. South Plains College is the fiscal agent, South Plains Community Action is the planning facilitator and funding is provided through Carl Perkins Funds and the Job Training Partnership Act. The three sponsoring agencies are the Texas Department of Commerce, the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board, and the Texas Education Agency.

Carol Barnette, Program Director, along with Nancy Tidwell hosted a teleconference last November and initiated a 40 member council to the task that lay ahead. The members of this committee are non-paid citizens representative of private industry, educational institutions, and state human service entities. Rob Robitaille from Texas Instruments is the committee chairperson. Council members are Tim Pierce, Vice-Chairperson; Education and Training Resources: Dr. James Finical, Chairperson; David Cobb, Marilyn Stone, Jerry Hogue, Ryan Provenzano, Douglas Allen, Dr. Michael Moses, Lazaro, Perez.; Economic Development: Richard Osborn, Chairperson, T.J. Taylor, Tim Pierce, Lucretia Campbell, Whitey Barnett, Robert Guajardo, Eliseo Solis, Richard Lopez, Jim Louder, Yolanda Jimenez; Public Information and Communication: Gina Starr, Chairperson; Eric Strong, Dale Read, Pat Read, Roy Kitten, Mitchell Day, Dr. Jerry Perrin, Larry King; Information Processing and Forecasting: James Latimer, Chairperson; Michael Martinez, John Quinby, Paul Benos, Dario Rendon, Esther Sepeda, David Garza, Dr. Jackie Smith; Program Review: Dr. Ronnie Glasscock, Chairperson; Kirk Williams, Laurin Prather, Paul Dunn, William Shiver and Bill Johnson.

With the information that has been collected over the last six months, those counties affected by the data will be provided with a detailed educational matrix now being developed. This matrix will show those occupations most in demand within the High Plains area and the educational opportunities available in regard to proper training for those occupations. "It will provide a controlled selection for the person who is trying to make career decisions. It can give guidance instead of just randomly choosing a career based on no information or misinformation," said Gina Starr, Public Information Chairperson. This information will also allow educational and training institutions to plan for curriculum that will most effectively prepare workers for the challenges our area has to offer.

AAUW Met For Final

Meeting Of Year

The Muleshoe chapter of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) met for their final 1989-90 meeting Monday, May 7, at the Depot.

It was a special night to honor the AAUW girls of the month and their mothers for their outstanding performances this year.

A salad supper hosted by Virginia Bowers, Margaret Gleason and Carolyn Ward was enjoyed before each girl was introduced by Jean Allison. Lucy Faye Smith awarded them with certificates of merit and then the girls paid tribute to their parents each thanking them for the support and love they had received throughout their high school career.

The mothers had their turns to tell a little about their daughters and to let them know how proud of them they were.

The Girl of the Month is chosen out of a group of young women presented to AAUW monthly by a committee of high school teachers. Their accomplishments, achievements, awards and activities are all reviewed and the top students are honored.

This year's honorees were: Kimberly Harris, Kelly Conklin, Amber Green, Wendy Green, Stacy McElroy, Amy Montgomery, Tessa Akins, Ronnie Gail Barrett, Stephanie Cox and Shonda Strahan.

The mothers attending were: Becky Conklin, Donna Green, Lisa McElroy, Sharon Montgomery, Sheila Stevenson, Sherry Barrett and Marilyn Cox.

There was a short business meeting following the supper. Margaret Gleason was elected treasurer and Julie Cage, second vice president for the 1990-91 and 91-92 school years. Officers continuing for one more year are Pam Hancock, president; Nancy Benham, first vice president and Nan Johnson, secretary.

A symposium addressing the problems facing the smaller AAUW chapters will be held in Dallas and representatives were selected.

Members attending were: Ethel Allison, Jean Allison,

Nancy Benham, Virginia Bowers, Julie Cage, Joyeline Costen, Margaret Gleason, Pam Hancock, Maurine Hooten, Nan Johnson, Beulah Mimms, Mary B. Obenhaus, Lucy Faye Smith and Carolyn Ward.

All said their goodbyes until next year.

School Dismissal Signals Beginning Of Summer Traffic

Major V. J. Cawthon, Regional Commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety reminds us that Memorial Day signals the beginning of summer vacation.

He states, "During this holiday period there will be more vehicles on the roadways of Texas, because of school being out and many families are starting their summer vacations. With the increase of traffic, the danger of more accidents, more injuries, and more deaths naturally increase.

"This holiday period, all available Department of Public Safety Troopers will be on the road and will be especially watchful for individuals committing hazardous violations, especially those speeding, passing in no passing zones, and the people who have been drinking and refuse to stop driving," stated Major Cawthon.

Recreational areas are always flooded with traffic and other activities and he urged the Texas motorist to be especially careful and to exercise caution around these areas during this holiday and throughout the summer.

"Remember to take that two seconds that it takes to reach for the seat belt and to buckle up and to use that same two seconds to think about what you have in this life, and how easily it can end," Cawthon concluded.

Women Land Owners Can Attend Seminar

Women landowners interested in improving their skills in managing farms and ranches may profit this spring from workshops designed for them by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The seminars aim to help women who, largely through inheritance, find themselves thrust into land-owning situations for which they have little training or background, said Dr. Wayne Hayenga, Extension Service economist.

Three-day workshops will be at these locations: San Antonio: May 28-30; Holiday Inn, 77 N.E. Loop 410; Tyler: Juner 26-28; Sheraton Inn, 2843 West N.W. Loop 323; Lubbock: July 10-12; Holiday Inn Civic Center, 801 Ave. Q.

Each workshop will help participants explore income-generating and tax-saving opportunities for their farms and ranches.

The first day of the seminar will focus on the outlook for agricultural land investments and how they compare to other investments. A special session on farm and ranch leases will discuss items to include in a lease, a method to develop a "Fair" and "Stress-free" lease, and guidelines and standards for evaluating potential tenants.

The rest of the workshop will concern these points:

- Keys to successfully running a business
- Advantages of corporations and partnerships, and
- Estate planning, including how to save on estate taxes and good estate administration.

Workshop leader will be Hayenga, an economist and attorney with extensive experience in tax planning as an adviser to farmers, ranchers and agribusiness firms.

The registration fee of $80 per person includes all seminar materials and lunches for all three days.

MRS. JACK KOGUT
(nee Lisa Redwine)

Lisa Redwine, Kogut Wed In Afternoon Ceremony

In an afternoon ceremony on Saturday, May 12, Lisa Redwine, daughter of D. L. and Helen Redwine became the bride of Jack Kogut, son of Stanley and Genevieve Kogut of Homercity, PA.

She was given in marriage by her father. Rev. Charles Foster Johnson united the couple in marriage in a 3 p.m. ceremony in the Second Baptist Church in Lubbock.

Vows were exchanged at the altar before two basket arrangements with white gladioli, carnations and rubrum lillies. At the side, a brass stand held 15 candelabra with hurricane lamp candle, berry colored with greenery.

The bride chose a formal gown of ivory satin and re-embroidered lace. Leg-O-Mutton sleeves and a sweetheart neckline leads to a fitted bodice adorned with patterns of strung pearls, re-embroidered lace, and iridescent sequins.

A full ballroom skirt follows a basque waistline. Designs of re-embroidered flowers with seed pearls and iridescents adorn the skirt and full cathedral train. Scalloped edging finishes off the look of the formal skirt and train.

To complement her gown, the bride wore a cap of elegant ivory satin flowers, tiny pearls, beads, and iridescent jewels. A spray of strung beads adorned the left side of the cap. A pouff and waltz length illusion veil were added to complete the look.

She carried a cascading bouquet with white cymbidium orchid, bridal white roses, stephanotis, atstermeria with baby's breath intertwined with seed pearls.

In keeping with tradition, the bride's gown was "Something New;" for "Something Old" and "Something Borrowed" she wore her maternal great-great-grandmother's wedding band; and "Something Blue" was her garter.

Maid of honor was Cindy Bowker of Fort Worth and bridesmaids were Susan Stroup and Jeanne Wardrop, a sister of the groom.

The bridesmaids carried nose-gays of baby's breath, stephanotis, atstermeria, tied with berry-colored ribbons.

The bride's attendants were dressed in dusty rose taffeta. Puffed sleeves followed an elegant, scooped neckline. The fitted bodice and basque waistline led to a full, tea-length skirt with high-low hem. Roses were attached to each shoulder and connected with strings of white pearls.

Serving the groom were Mike Hurst, best man from Madison, Ala.; groomsmen were Jeff Sasara and Dan Wardrop, brother-in-law of the groom.

The groom and his attendants were attired in charcoal grey tuxedos with vest and jacket.

Ring bearer was Nevin Wardrop, nephew of the groom and flower girl was Megan Wardrop a niece of the groom.

Mike Mitchell played appropriate selections on the organ, and accompanied soloist Terry Hawkins who sang "Charity" and "My Prayer To You."

The organist also played the processional, "Trumpet Voluntary."

A reception followed the wedding in Green Oaks Tea Room.

Servers were Shelly Stone and Angie Teaff.

Candlelighter was Jarrod Redwine, of Muleshoe, nephew of the bride.

Jerry Redwine, brother of the bride; and Jason Redwine, nephew of the groom, from Muleshoe, were ushers.

Served from the bride's table was a three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with fresh baby's breath and flowers.

Registering guests was Donna Redwine, sister-in-law of the bride.

Served buffet style from the groom's table were finger sandwiches, a vegetable tray with dips, cheese and crackers, nuts and mints.

Taylor Sneed, Keri Boatman and Angela Gayle handed out rice bags to the guests.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will be at home in Houston.

On Friday, May 11, a rehearsal dinner was held at the 50-Yard Line Restaurant in Lubbock, hosted by the groom's parents.

Out-of-town guests were from Alabama, Dallas, Midland, Los Angeles, CA, Houston, Bloomfield, N.M., Corpus Christi, Pennsylvania, Fort Worth, Littlefield and Muleshoe.

Deputy Grand Master Visits Local IOOF Lodge

By: Leslie Lambert

On Thursday night, May 17, Brother Rufus (Hank) Henry, Deputy Grand Master for the State of Texas, of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, made an official visit to Muleshoe IOOF #58, located at 308 West Second Street.

To start the activities going, the Rebekahs served a delicious meal to Oddfellows from Plainview #12; Hereford #476; Friona #203 and Muleshoe #58. All the Rebekahs joined in the meal.

After the meal, the Rebekahs retired to the kitchen, while the Oddfellows opened lodge. The Noble Grand then directed the warden and conductor to present the Flag of our country. After the presentation, the warden, Ralph Reed, lead the lodge in the pledge of allegiance to the flag. After the pledge, Chaplain Arnold Gross led the lodge in the opening prayer. The Noble Grand then instructed his right supporter to declare the lodge opened for business.

The roll call of officers was made and then the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Recording secretary Leslie Lambert asked for the floor temporarily. He then asked the warden and conductor to bring Brother E. E. Bishop to the center of the lodge room. At this time, Les Lambert, as outgoing District Deputy Grand Master, read the incoming District Deputy Grand Master's Commission to E. E. Bishop for the 1990-1991 Grand Lodge session. The warden, Ralph Reed, then lead the lodge in presenting the Honors of the Order to Brother Bishop.

Noble Grand Gene Zachary then directed the warden and conductor to escort out Grand Lodge visitor, Brother Hank Henry to the center of the floor where, led by Ralph Reed, he also was accorded the Honors of the Order.

A short recess was then declared, to turn the lodge over to Deputy Grand Master Hank Henry for whatever facts he had to put before the lodge. His first act was to invite all the Rebekahs in, for his speech. He gave a very informative and interesting speech of the Rebekahs and Oddfellows working together to build a better lodge and community. He stressed many facts of Oddfellowship, that are not generally known by most of the community.

Not only do the Rebekahs and Oddfellows do much good in the community, but at the present time, the Rebekahs have made arrangements to send two Muleshoe girls on the United Nation tour, but the Oddfellows and Rebekahs are the only Fraternal organization allowed to lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The Texas Rebekahs and Oddfellows support a home for children, on Grand Lodge property in Corsicana. Here, they go to Corsicana schools until they graduate and if they choose to, can stay another two years and attend Navarro Junior College, and there are scholarships for the children to attend other schools.

We also support a home for the aged in Ennis. Oddfellows and Rebekahs have first call on these beds, but when there is a surplus, other people are accommodated. This is also true, at the new nursing home on the same grounds as the home for the aged at Ennis. Here, all the facilities of a modern hospital are available to the people needing this type of care.

There is also two modern and beautiful apartment high rise homes. One in Dallas and one in Corsicana. These apartments are operated under the Government Hud 202 program that makes good homes for people on a limited income.

There are other areas, that the Order of Oddfellows and Rebekahs are involved in. All Texas lodges are asked to contribute to Texas Visual Assistance Program with 75 percent of the money staying in Texas, to be used for Texans. The other 25 percent goes to the World Eye Bank through the Sovereign Grand Lodge. The money staying in Texas is to be used for people who have vision problems.

There is another worthy cause the Order helps support and that is the Arthritis Research Foundation. Most all people can benefit from this research at some time in their lives.

There is one other very important facet of our Order that has helped many children get a start in life. That is the IOOF Education Foundation that provides students who qualify up to $6,000 to complete their education.

for next winter, on an excellent crop.

"Vegetablewise," said the county agent, "we anticipate a normal type potato acreage. But, there are very few onions planted in this area this year."

"It's too early to determine other vegetables, such as carrots, cucumbers, peppers, cabbage, pumpkins and others. Watermelons were being planted last week."

Tanksley said potato growth is excellent at this stage for this year, with potato vines expected to 'lap the middles' by the first of June.

He said his observation of livestock points to a bit of change in Bailey County. More producers have more livestock, and this can be especially noted in western Bailey County while driving down FM 1760.

According to the county agent, livestock producers are probably in the strongest market to produce that they have been in during the past three years. Hog and cattle prices are high, added the agent, and it looks like they will continue to be high for the foreseeable future.

"As we do more agricultural statistical analysis," said Tanksley, "in this county, livestock and crops are very equal. It is very important for people to realize how much cattle is impacting this county. The stocker cattle, dairy cattle and full feed yards are really showing the growth of the livestock industry in this county."

"Overall, we believe this year's crop will generate more agriculture dollars for the county, but they are still hinging on the lack of moisture and other conditions that the farmer cannot control that are limiting him."

The Bailey County Extension Agent was cautiously optimistic about the agriculture outlook for 1990 at this point.

They cited their full support of the project, but decided several points needed to be clarified.

A committee, composed of Mayor Darrell Turner, Councilman Paul Wilbanks and City Manager Dave Marr will meet with Almeria Inc. officers to clarify several points.

Mayor Turner pointed out, "We have no problem with the request for a change of site, but there are questions to be answered as to city commitment."

City Manager Marr reported that construction has been completed on bathrooms at the airport and that pay phones will be installed at the airport in the next two-three weeks.

SPS Surveys Record Cattle In Feed Lots

Feedlots within the area served by Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) during 1989 fed the highest number of cattle on record, according to SPS's annual Fed Cattle Survey.

Feedlots in the SPS service area fed 5,468,350 head of cattle, a 2.5 percent increase over the 1988 total of 5,335,603. The previous record was set in 1987 with 5,406,975 cattle fed.

The survey also showed that the one-time total capacity of area feedlots in 1989 was 2,785,475 head, up from the one-time total capacity in 1988 of 2,758,662 head.

"The 1989 study shows how important cattle feeding is to the area's economy," said Dave Krupnick, SPS manager of agricultural and wholesale marketing. "Although prices for feeder cattle remain up, 1989 was still a record year for this area."

SPS annually prepares a Fed Cattle Survey covering feedlots in its service area. The electric utility serves a 52,000-square-mile area comprising the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles, the Texas South Plains, eastern and southeastern New Mexico, and southwestern Kansas.

Additionally, the survey found that 4,694,852 cattle were slaughtered last year at 13 beef-packing plants in the SPS service area, Krupnick said. The facilities have an annual slaughter capacity of 4,818,320 head.

"Each year feedlots and packing plants are very cooperative in supplying information for this survey, and we really appreciate that," Krupnick said. "We continue to receive requests from across the United States for this survey, and it helps highlight this area's agriculture and food-processing industries."

The report also shows that the total number of feedlots in the area has grown to 117, and the one-time capacity of these lots is still on the increase. The report also includes a chart on the 10-year history of fed cattle and the one-time capacity of surveyed feed lots, as well as information on the number of feedlots with 5,000 head capacity or above and a county breakdown of lot capacity and numbers fed.

Copies of the report and survey are available at SPS offices across the company's service area or may be obtained by contacting Dave Krupnick (806-378-2175) or Greg Boggs (806-378-2178) at the SPS headquarters building, Tyler at Sixth Street, Amarillo, Texas, 79170.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

I am a senior in high school and I go with a boy who is a freshman in college. I would like to invite this boy to our Junior-Senior banquet and dance but the committee says I can't do this as no one outside of the school can be invited. Don't you think this is the silliest rule you ever heard? Would it be okay if I went on and invited him anyway?

Senior--Ken.

Answer:

No, it would be a foolish thing to do. You should abide by the rules whether you approve of them or not. Furthermore you would get in bad with your classmates and would probably cause embarrassment to your escort and to yourself. Louisa

Texas
Senate Week
In Review

Facing a June 1 court takeover of public school funding in Texas, Senate and House negotiators will attempt this week to break a stalemate with Governor Bill Clements over education finance reform.

A compromise $555 million education reform bill is expected to emerge this week from a Senate/House conference committee amid renewed threats from Clements to veto the plan.

The bill, similar to one passed by Legislature last session, won approval last week in both houses, but went to conference committee to resolve differences in the Senate and House versions.

If Clements vetoes Senate Bill 1, as he did earlier this month with a half-cent sales tax hike that would have funded a similar education reform plan, a newly-appointed court master will present his funding plan to State District Judge Scott McCown on June 20.

Last week, McCown named former State Supreme Court Justice William Kilgarlin as master to devise an equitable plan for distributing state funds to public schools. Under the terms of the court order, Kilgarlin may draw his own plan or he may select the compromise plan now being negotiated in the Legislature if Clements and lawmakers fail to reach an accord.

Lawmakers have been in continuous special sessions since February 27 attempting to design a funding plan that would more evenly distribute state money among 1,068 public school districts in Texas. Last year, the State Supreme Court ruled the current fund distribution plan unconstitutional because it favors property-rich districts over poorer ones. The court gave lawmakers a May 1 deadline which McCown extended last week to June 1.

Although Senate Bill 1, with its $555 million first-year price tag, passed both legislative houses last week, Clements' negotiators continue to argue in favor of a $250 million first-year funding plan.

Funding for the Clements-backed plan would have come from fee increases and budget transfers, while Senate Bill 1 would likely require a combination of those tactics plus a sales tax hike.

A sales tax bill has not yet been brought forward in the Legislature this session. Clements' veto of a sales tax increase killed the entire education package last session.

Lawmakers are once again discussing the possibility of attempting to override the threatened veto, a move that would require a two-thirds vote in both houses.

If Clements is successful in killing the education reform package, the court will then implement the plan of its choice to be funded from available revenue.

That eventuality would result in a redistribution of school funding with money taken from richer school districts and given to poorer ones.

Such a move, some lawmakers argue, would force an increase in local property taxes in wealthier districts to compensate for the loss in state aid.

The Senate and House were to reconvene Monday (May 14). The joint conference committee on Senate Bill 1 was to resume negotiations on that date.

EPA Gives Approval For Wellhead Protection

The Texas Water Commission announced today that Texas is one of only four states in the nation to receive approval from the Environmental Protection Agency for its Wellhead Protection Program.

"We are proud to be among a very select group of states with exemplary wellhead protection programs," said Allen Beinke, Executive Director of the Texas Water Commission. "This is a voluntary, locally based program, and we urge every community that relies on ground water to inquire about it and institute a wellhead protection program of their own."

The Texas Water Commission and the Texas Department of Health jointly administer the Wellhead Protection Program, which started up in 1987. A wellhead protection area is the surface and subsurface areas surrounding a public water well or well field through which contaminants could possibly pass and eventually reach the ground-water supply.

The federal Safe Drinking Water Act required that states submit for federal approval a description of their Wellhead Protection Program by June 19, 1989. EPA received each program and either approved or rejected the plans by March 19, 1990. Texas, Louisiana, Rhode Island, and Connecticut were the four states approved by the nine-month deadline.

"Texas has taken a major step forward in further protecting its ground water resources by developing a comprehensive wellhead protection program that adds an additional level of protection for the State's public water wells," said Robert E. Layton, Jr., Regional Administrator for the EPA. "We commend the Texas Water Commission and the Texas Department of Health on the hard work that has gone into developing your State's program."

Texas' Wellhead Protection Program is designed to allow every community to take an active role in maintaining its ground water quality. The concept is to minimize restrictions on land use while maximizing ground water protection. To do this, the Texas Water Commission delineates a site-specific wellhead protection area in a community to prevent ground water contamination, while the Texas Department of Health develops contingency plans for alternate water supplies. The community's local government provides an inventory of all potential sources of contaminants within its wellhead protection area and then actually implements the program.

Cities, towns, and water supply corporations that would like more information on establishing a Wellhead Protection Program in their areas should contact the Ground Water Conservation section of the Texas Water Commission, (512) 371-6319.

Weed-Free Lawns Can Be Provided By Care

Four simple but important steps will do more to provide homeowners an attractive, weed-free lawn than an arsenal of weed killing poisons, says an agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. And now is the time to begin those four steps, he adds.

"When weeds invade lawns, many homeowners seek quick solutions through the use of herbicides," said Dr. Brent Bean, the agronomist. Herbicides are only one tool and have only temporary effect on weed control unless other management practices are used, he said.

"The best weed control practice is maintaining a dense, actively growing lawn," Bean said. A well maintained lawn minimizes weed competition and helps prevent establishment of new weeds.

"Turfgrass vigor is generally effected most by four cultural practices: selecting a good grass variety, mowing, nutrition and irrigation," the Extension Service specialist said.

When choosing a turfgrass variety, select those with a history of doing well in this area, he said. "Use mixtures blends, rather than a single species," he recommended.

"This helps the turfgrass compete under a wide range of conditions and lowers the chances of weeds invading the lawn."

Proper mowing is often overlooked for maintaining a healthy lawn, he said. Mowing height and frequency should be adjusted depending on the type of grass and time of year.

Cool season grasses, such as Kentucky bluegrass and fine fescue, should be mowed at one-and-a-half to two inches in the spring and fall, and at two-and-a-half to three inches in summer. "Higher cutting height in the summer helps insulate the grass crown from high temperatures," Bean explained.

In general, bermudagrass performs best at mowing heights of an inch or less, the agronomist said.

"Regardless of the type of grass, it is best to not remove more than a third of the leaf area with any mowing," he said.

A properly fertilized lawn may not be weed-free, but it will be better able to compete with weeds than an undernourished lawn, Bean said. The most effective way to determine a lawn's fertility needs is to take a soil sample and have it analyzed, he said. Your county extension agent can tell you how to take the sample and suggest where to send it for inexpensive testing, he noted.

Kentucky bluegrass and fescue lawns should receive the bulk of their fertilizer in April/May and September. A total of five pounds of nitrogen for 1,000 square feet should be sufficient for most cool season lawns, with a third to a half of the nitrogen applied in the spring and the rest in the fall.

"For best results, use a combination of fast and slow-release sources of nitrogen, with not more than half being fastrelief," Bean suggested. Adding iron will help give the grass a darker green color, and other nutrients should be added if the soil test indicates a need, he said.

Bermudagrass should receive between four and six pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn each year. "A split application in May and September is generally best. Bermudagrass should receive between four and six pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn each year. "A split application in May and September is generally best.

Bermudagrass should receive between four and six pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn each year. "A split application in May and September is generally best. As with cool season lawns, a mixture of fast and slow release nitrogen is best," Bean said.

Watering is the final cultural practice that will help a lawn compete with weeds. Irrigating deeply and infrequently is preferred over light, frequent waterings which lead to shallow root systems, the agronomist said.

Bluegrass and fescue require significantly more water than bermudagrass during the heat of summer, Bean said. "In some cases, up to two inches a week may be needed to maintain a cool season lawn through the summer," he said.

By watering early in the morning, less water is lost to evaporation. Watering at night should be avoided, Bean said, since it tends to make the grass more susceptible to disease.

Governments Converting To Computer

COLLEGE STATION—A new law being implemented over the next five years is expected to transform local government record keeping from bound books of paper and ink to computer disks and microfilm.

Michael Heskett of Austin, representing the local records division of the Texas State Library and Archives Commission said the Texas Local Government Records Act is designed to protect permanently valuable records of all local offices and to allow disposition of records of a more temporary nature.

"The act also supports efficient, cost-effective record keeping in local government offices through a standardized management system," Heskett said. "Often this involves use of microfilm, electronic record keeping and other forms of automation."

He said full implementation of the act can save the state millions of dollars and can free office space now occupied with records. "I envision an annual savings of about $23 million across the state as county government offices begin to clear out old records and adopt the new automated technology for greater office efficiency," Heskett said.

He said people needing certified copies of permanent records and deeds also should be able to obtain these documents more quickly by using the new systems.

Heskett said counties are in different stages of implementing the act. About 100 of the state's 254 counties have converted their records to microfilm, he said. The act requires that all record inventories be completed by local government officials by January 1995.

"Costs of this program to individual counties that during the five-year (implementation) period will vary, Heskett said. "Many will train and use citizen volunteers, so some costs should be minimal."

"The Local Government Records Act modernizes current statutes and removes restrictions that require records to be kept in 'well-bound' books, allowing officials to use more modern systems."

He said the act, HB 1285, also provides for establishment of a permanent committee of local government officials to review and approve retention periods for local records and set rules for use of electronic record storage.

Heskett spoke to 570 clerks at the recent 18th Annual County and District Clerks Seminar here. The training was offered by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, as part of the ongoing efforts of the V.G. Young Institute of County Government, in cooperation with the County and District Clerk's Association of Texas.

Avoid Miracle Cures

The sudden appearance and disappearance of arthritis symptoms make the disease a ready target for so-called miracle cures and quack products. During National Arthritis Month in May, Texas Medical Association urges arthritis sufferers to avoid these unproven methods and consult their physician for treatment.

"Because the common forms of arthritis represent diseases of antiquity, we should not be surprised that they're surrounded by myths and misconceptions," said TMA member Jerry C. Daniels, M.D., Ph.D., professor and director of the Division of Rheumatology with the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

Americans spend an estimated $10 billion each year in search of relief. The most common remedies sought are special diets and nutritional supplements. Advertisements also promote relief through use of dimethyl sulfoxide, magnetic bandages, vibrators, or other gadgets.

Despite glowing testimonials, the relief may be only a result of the sudden disappearance of symptoms. People who suffer from arthritis pain and stiffness should be wary of these treatments, which are unproven and may be unsafe.

Instead, arthritis sufferers should consult a physician for ways to relieve pain and stop joint damage. Although no cures have yet been found, promising research is underway, says TMA.

Arthritis, often incorrectly called "rheumatism," actually refers to more than 100 different conditions involving inflammation of the joints. In adults the most common forms are osteoarthritis and rheumatoid arthritis.

Osteoarthritis often is a painful condition that develops in the hips, knees and spine. Many people also have osteoarthritis in their fingers, which may give the hands a gnarled appearance.

A more descriptive term for osteoarthritis is degenerative joint disease because wear and tear on the inside surface of the joint frequently is a cause. Heredity and excessive weight are other contributing factors.

Rheumatoid arthritis is a more serious condition usually affecting the smaller joints -- knuckles, toe joints, wrists, knees, ankles and neck. Sometimes it is associated with inflammation of other body systems, including the heart and lungs.

In this disorder, the thin membrane surrounding the joint becomes inflamed and swollen. In severe cases, deformed joints collapse and become disorted. If the neck is involved, paralysis or even death may result, although this is rare.

In both common forms of arthritis, high-dose aspirin frequently is an effective initial medication, although a physician may prescribe a newer anti-inflammatory pain medication, or occasionally a steroid injection. Physical therapy, heat treatments, a balance of exercise and rest and swimming in a heated pool also may be helpful.

Surgery sometimes is necessary to remove an inflamed joint membrane or replace a severely damaged joint with an artificial one. No matter how severe your symptoms, TMA urges you to consult your physician for proper treatment.

The Texas Medical Association is a professional organization of more than 29,000 physician and medical student members. It is based in Austin and has 117 component county medical societies around the state.

GTE Asks Permission For Video Services

GTE announced today that it is urging Congress to amend the Cable Act of 1984 to allow telephone company entry into the video services business.

Because of widespread consumer concern with cable rates and service, Congress is looking at changing the rules under which cable companies operate in this country. Proposals on Capitol Hill include allowing competition from telephone companies in the video services business, as well as reregulating the cable industry.

"While cable re-regulation is a quick fix that might bring about improved service and help to stabilize rates, a disturbing shortcoming of this approach from the consumer's perspective is that it wouldn't stimulate advances in video programming and services," said Brownfield District Manager, O.D. Hearn.

"To really help the consumer, you need more than simple re-regulation of the cable industry, you need the competitive stimulation provided by phone companies," he added.

Hearn noted that current rules inhibit telephone companies from making the full capabilities of their network available to the public. The Cable Act of 1984 generally prohibits telephone companies from providing video programming services to consumers within their telephone serving areas. Although this law may have been appropriate when enacted, it now runs contrary to the needs of consumers.

"It's important to emphasize that GTE does not seek to replace cable companies with a telephone monopoly," said Hearn. "Our goal is to be allowed to install a competitive video network that can be used by cable operators and others offering new, innovative video services to homes and businesses."

GTE believes that telephone company competition would positively affect cable service, rates, and programming. Three principal benefits in allowing telephone companies to enter the video services business are that it would: (1) provide consumer benefits; (2) stimulate telephone network evolution; and (3) enhance U.S. global competitiveness.

GTE maintains that the greatest benefit to consumers would be a much wider choice of telecommunications and video services. Telephone companies and other video programmers would provide innovative services that go far beyond today's televised sports and entertainment programs. Late last year, GTE researchers invent the technology, a video switch to revolutionize the delivery of video services. A video switch permits consumers to control the delivery of a variety of video programs and services to their homes. This would allow consumers to watch what they want and when they want it. This also would allow such services as video phone calls to friends and relatives, as well as interactive shopping and banking by phone.

"To foster the development of these new and exciting consumer services, phone companies must be allowed into the video services business," said Hearn. "That's the best way to encourage the marriage of the telephone and television," he added.

GTE is currently installing a fiber optic network with virtually unlimited capacity to handle voice, data and video transmissions. Coupled with GTE's video switch, the universal delivery of advanced video services to the home is on the horizon.

These developments can keep the U.S. competitive with Japan, Europe and the rest of the world. But GTE believes the U.S. must continue to upgrade its telecommunications network. Allowing telephone companies into the video services business will accelerate the development of this future network. "Failure to do so will mean a tremendous competitive disadvantage for American companies," said Hearn.

In your community, tell your federal lawmakers that telephone companies deserve a chance to compete in the video services business," said Hearn.

Wheat Producers Field Day Set At Bushland

Training which will provide certified pesticide applicators credits necessary to renew their licenses will be a part of the annual Panhandle Wheat Field Day at Amarillo and Bushland on May 24.

This year's event will begin here at 8:30 a.m. at the Texas A&M University agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West. Participants completing the training given here by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service can receive three continuing education units toward their pesticide applicator certification, said Dr. Brent Bean, Extension Service agronomist.

Beginning at 1 p.m., tours of wheat research plots will be held at the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service laboratory three-quarters-mile west of Bushland on Interstate 40.

Research conducted there by scientists of USDA-ARS and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station will be explained, said Dr. B.A. Stewart, USDA research director at the facility. Stops will include the irrigated wheat variety nursery, research plots for integrated insect and disease management, weed control, tillage, and grazing pull off.

The field day is sponsored by the Extension Service, Experiment Station, USDA-ARS and Texas Wheat Producers.
