Local Youth Will Star In Lubbock Opera

Ten year old Kevin Edwards, son of Richard and Jo Beth Edwards of Muleshoe will star in musical fairy tales in Lubbock this summer. Casting auditions were held in April for young talent. Thirty-five Lubbock youngsters between the ages of four and 10 tried out for the roles of dwarfs. The following were chosen to play the dwarfs: Kevin Edwards, Jenni Jones, Lara McKay, Tawny Mertes, Leah Smith, Diana Vugrin and Joshua White.

Other members of the cast are students at Texas Tech. Reserved tickets are priced at $10.00 for adults and $5.00 for children 12 years and younger. The productions are directed by John Gillas.

Second Muleshoe Trade Day Set Saturday

The Muleshoe Activities Trade N Save Day will be held Saturday, June 8, starting at 9 a.m. and continuing until closing time. "This promises to be a big sales and bargain day in Muleshoe as well as a great help to many of the clubs of the county and surrounding areas," said John Stevens.

Each merchant will have specials designed to give the public a day of their own without going out of Muleshoe, which will help to promote Muleshoe. This event will help the merchants continue to be able to support the taxing entities, and keep Muleshoe a town you will be proud of, Stevens continued.

The Jennyslippers, who are helping to raise money for the fireworks, will be stationed at Higginbotham Bartlet Co. selling lemonade, as well as other souvenirs.

The Muleshoe Trade Center will be having a Baseball Card trade and sale, and are asking that anyone wishing to bring their baseball cards down, to do so.

Muleshoe Lions Club Gives Numerous Trophies

Bright and shiny cars, all polished to perfection filled the Bailey County Coliseum almost to capacity, at the Lions Club's First Annual Car Show. Taped music by the "Moon Man" filled the air with a sound of gaiety and hula hoops circled the waistes of youths as the show got underway at 10 a.m. Saturday.

Cars came from different points in Texas and New Mexico. Filling the coliseum were cars ranging from a 1929 Packard owned by Orle Davis of Farwell to a 1990 Thunderbird owned by Duane L. Garner of Farwell.

W.T. Millen also had his un-restored Model-T Ford in the car show.

The event got underway Friday night with a Poker Run. Winner of the Poker Run was Moon Man, with a full house. When it came time for the trophies to be given, Moon Man stated, that since several youths were with him on the run including Blanca Ruyol of Madrid, Spain, he wanted Blanca to take the trophy back to Spain with her.

Darrell Turner, Muleshoe Mayor, acted as Master of Ceremonies. In welcoming the owners of the cars and visitors, Turner stated "I took off my Lions jacket and now I will put on my Mayors hat." "I would like to welcome each of you to the first annual car show, we hope to have an even bigger and better one next year." "I would also like to thank members of the local Lions Club for all their hard work in getting this show together." Turner with the help of Lions Club Sweetheart Amy Turner and Blanca Ruyol presented trophies and plaques to the winners.

Letter To The Editor

May 30, 1991

Dear GUNS OF PARADISE fan,

CBS recently announced its new fall schedule, minus GUNS OF PARADISE. If you are disappointed by this action and would like to have your voice heard by CBS, you are invited to participate in a campaign with Viewers Voice urging CBS to bring GUNS OF PARADISE back next season.

Viewers Voice is a new organization dedicated to helping viewers keep their favorite programming on the air. Unlike most viewer organizations, it is not a censorship group. If you would like to become a member or would like more information, fill out and return the enclosed form. However, you do not have to be a member of Viewers Voice to participate in this effort.

There will be three main activities for this campaign: 1) writing letters to CBS (See enclosed flyer for addresses.) This should be done as individuals, with no mention of an organized campaign; 2) distributing flyers so that others can write to CBS also; 3) a petition drive. Enclosed is a petition form. If you wish, make copies of the form before you collect any signatures, so that you can collect more than twenty. Have each petitioner sign their name, and write their full address including zip code. Also, have them write the date after their address. Children may sign the petition also, if they can write their own name and address. Have entire families sign if they wish. At the bottom of each petition you circulate, include your signature and address as circulator of the petition. You can also sign your name above as a petitioner, but only on one petition form. Only one signature, please.

Regrettably, we are very short on time if we are to be effective. Please mail all petition forms (even those with less than twenty signatures) to Viewers Voice, P.O. Box 27758, West Allis, WI 53227 by June 25th. We hope to deliver 10,000 plus signatures at once to CBS. If you have any questions, write Viewers Voice, or call me at (414) 367-3835.

Try neighbors, friends, family, and co-workers. County fairs, rodeos, and other events are possible sources, also.

Good luck, and THANK YOU!
Deborah Schroeder
Vice President, Viewers Voice

EDITOR'S NOTE: Petitions have been placed around Muleshoe or mail your views to Jeff Sagansky, President, CBS Entertainment Division, 7800 Beverly Boulevard, Los Angeles, CA 90036 and Howard Stringer, President, CBS Broadcast Group, 51 West 52nd Street, New York, NY 10019.

You may call CBS Programming Department (212) 975-3247 and Howard Stringer (212) 975-5762 or Jeff Sagansky (213) 852-2828.

Dear Editor,

Recently I learned that WISCONSIN is launching a campaign to keep "Guns of Paradise" on the air! Today I received some material and petition forms so that we can take part in their effort to get 10,000 signatures.

We are pleased that this wonderful family show with a strong moral content is enjoyed by so many people and especially the folks of Wisconsin. I am sure that Muleshoe will be happy to support this effort.

Recently Lee Horsley appeared on the "TONIGHT" show, "COUNTRY MUSIC AWARDS", CBS "THIS MORNING" and "ENTERTAINMENT TONIGHT" 4/15-5/2. He always has something good to say about Muleshoe. Jay Leno asked Lee if there really is a "Muleshoe". And of course, Lee was in there, plugging for Muleshoe.

A couple of weeks ago, a Channel 13 newscaster said, "Stay tuned for 'Guns of Paradise', starring Muleshoe's own Lee Horsley. I'm very proud that Muleshoe can claim a fine family man like Lee.

The April publication of radio KWKA of Clovis carried a request for "Guns of Paradise" fans to write to CBS-TV and urge them to "keep Lee right where we want him in our living room every week!!"

A few months back I met a man from California who had met several celebrities out there. He said that Lee and Tom Selleck were very much alike...friendly, genuine and sincere. He said that most stars were not that way and that Muleshoe had every reason to feel pride in Lee.

My father-in-law lives in Littlefield and recently asked a family who were filling their car with gas if they were spending the night there in Littlefield. They said, "No, we are staying in Muleshoe, that's Lee Horsley's home town!"

That good publicity pays off in many ways that we do not realize.

Although CBS has cancelled "Guns of Paradise", Viewers Voice, Inc. of Wisconsin and many others feel that a united effort can convince them to put it back on the air next fall.

Muleshoe always rises to a challenge and this is no exception. Let's sign a petition which are located in numerous businesses around town and get these signatures back to Wisconsin. Let's let them hear from us-loud and clear. Thank you, They need it back June 25-Let's hurry!

Workshops For Women Landowners

Women landowners who are interested in learning about writing leases and saving taxes.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service will hold three, 2-day workshops at the following locations:

Corpus Christi
June 13-14, 1991
Holiday Inn Airport

Wichita Falls
June 24-25, 1991
Sheraton

Amarillo
June 27-28, 1991
Fifth Season, East

"Many Texas women find themselves thrust into land-owning situations for which they have very little training or background," says Wayne A. Hayenga, Economist and Attorney with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Frequently a woman is 'in charge' of property upon the death of her husband or after inheriting land." The entire 2-day workshop will be an opportunity for women to explore income generating and tax saving opportunities for their farms and ranches.

The first day of the seminar will be concerned with minerals under the land. Suggestions on wording in new leases will be given as well as some tax savings hints. Also, since most women who inherit land don't want to operate it themselves, a special session on farm and ranch leases will be held. Items to include in a lease, both of an economic and legal nature will be addressed. Many owners are concerned about the "fairness" of a lease. A method to develop a "fair" and "stress-free" lease will be explored, as well as suggested guidelines and standards for women landowners to use to evaluate tenants.

Dragging his 25 months old mistress Maomi Catharine Jobe across the street from in front of an onrushing automobile, "Baucie," a registered Belgian police dog belonging to F.H. Jobe, saved the life and limb of the little girl from serious if not fatal injuries Sunday morning.

The incident occurred in front of 415 Avenue H from which place Mr. and Mrs. Jobe Sunday were moving to the Morningside addition. Aside from a badly skinned face and hips, Maomi Catharine was not seriously hurt by the enforced trips.

On Tuesday May 15 the seniors were entertained with a party sponsored by a number of the class mothers. The guests were requested to dress as they did for their first day of school, with the result that pinafores, sunbonnets and superfluous freckles predominated among the girls, while the boys were equally glamorous in knee pants, big bow ties and beanies.

Upon arriving, a gold star attached to the class colors (said colors portrayed as green and greener) was pinned on each senior. Next they were required to fill out a registration card containing valuable information as to mental age, loquacity, veracity and other items equally essential.

Then Mrs. Cox rang the old school bell and called her reading class to "inattention." An interesting recitation followed especially so because Mrs. Cox actually taught many of these same pupils their first reading lesson in the days gone by.

SCAC News

By Jean Allison

So many people I meet throughout the community ask the question, "Is it really as bad as we hear at high school?" Let me reassure you of the community that it is not that bad because a big majority of the students at Muleshoe High school are responsible, super people. A small group of troublemakers can cause us to forget that we do have this majority of good "kids". As a teacher and a sponsor of SCAC (Student Community Action Club), I can verify the fact that if you give students worthwhile things to accomplish, and give them encouragement, that they will perform musical feats.

I cannot keep from feeling very proud of the SCAC students as they are always eager to do anything to improve school-community relationships and to make the Muleshoe area a better place to live. Each month this group of students takes time to honor someone in the community or school for outstanding acts of citizenship in the community by naming and honoring them as "Citizens of the Month."

The SCAC group also works closely with the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation to preserve some of the area's history through financial contributions as well as hard work at the Heritage Center. This group is called upon by community leaders to help in worthwhile areas and members can almost always help by giving their time and talents. Members of SCAC are proud to be productive, contributing members of the community. Yes, we have great students at MHS.

On Friday, May 24 the Student-Community Action Club met at the home of Tiffany Angeley, in the Pleasant Valley Community, for its annual end-of-school new member picnic. Prospective members of SCAC are honored at this picnic meeting and are told of the club's goals and past contributions to the community. The meeting was called to order by the president, Brian Bush, and the opening prayer was given by Courtney Graves, chaplain. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Tiffany Angeley in the absence of the secretary and Galin Latham gave the treasurer's report.

Brian then read the club by-laws to new members and reported on Muleshoe Heritage Foundation news, noting that he has spent time helping clean up the Heritage Center.

Election of officers for the 1991-92 school year was held and the following were elected: President-Galin Latham, Vice-President-Tiffany Angeley, Secretary-Courtney Graves, Treasurer-Lashelle Scoggins, Reporter-Stacie Harris, Chaplain-Jill Noble, Historian-Shea Wilbanks, Parliamentarian-Mark Hicks.

The president welcomed new members asking each to stand, introduce themselves and tell one thing that they "did good." New and old members then enjoyed the warm hospitality of the Angeleys by enjoying delicious hamburgers and hot dogs, as well as many activities. Over fifty students enjoyed this evening of food, games and business. New members of SCAC are: April Watkins, Shea Wilbanks, Aida Martinez, Jody Thomas, Kristin Chitwood, Mark Hicks, David Ramirez, Gilrobert Rennels, John Verner, Jody Field, Audree Anzaldua, Amanda Ashford, Stacey Langfitt, Stacie Harris, Veronica Gonzales, Amelia Flores, Kristi Chapman, Mandy Shipman, Courtney Williams, Chase Garlington, Yvette Hernandez, Dustin Wilhite, Shane Glover, John Watkins, Gonzalo Lozano, Dora Barrera, Sonya Cisneros, Brian Wilhite, and Matt Bohler.

A formal installation of officers meeting will be held in August. SCAC members will be actively participating in 4th of July activities, and members voted to contribute $500 to the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation before closing out the evening.

Baby Hotline

Women in Texas can now dial free 1-800-4-BABY-LOVE to find out about the state's many health programs for them and their children.

The toll-free number connects callers with the latest information about the state's various health programs for women and children, provided through the Texas Department of Health (TDH) and the Texas department of Human Services.

Bilingual operators answer the line in English and Spanish from 8 a.m.-5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at the TDH headquarters in Austin. They refer callers to the nearest location where services are available. Some programs are for low-income families and others are available to all.

"The information and referral line opens access to a variety of wonderful programs created to improve the health of all Texans," explained Dr. Beverly Koops, TDH Associate Commissioner for Family Health Services. "If these programs are to be effective, people must know what is available and how they can get the services they need close to home", she said.

BABY LOVE operators have information on child health clinic services, pregnancy testing, immunizations, family planning, maternity clinic services, health counseling, parenting classes and programs created to serve children with special needs.

Operators also will refer potential participants to the Special Supplemental Food Program for Women, Infants and Children; Chronically Ill and Disabled Children Services; Early Childhood Intervention Program; Children's Hearing Aid Loan Program; and the Texas Genetic Network.

In addition, information will be provided about Food Stamps, Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The "800" number is funded by the Maternal and Infant Care Access grant, under the direction of the TDH Bureau of Maternal and Child Health.

MICROWAVE TIPS

It's easy to microwave fish steaks.

Brush the steaks, about half to two-thirds of an inch thick, with a mixture of lemon and butter (or margarine).

Cover pyrex dish with wax paper, turning one corner back to vent. Microwave one third recommended time, turn steaks over, recover and complete microwaving.

Parenting Skills A Plus

With the children at home more and school out, parents have the opportunity to sharpen their parenting skills. A recent workshop at Dillman Elementary gave parents tips on how to do this better. Some of the clues given included ways to improve discipline at home; 1) be positive, 2) be consistent, 3) be clear, 4) be reasonable, and 5) be a good example.

Say "do this" more than "don't do that." Look for ways to praise good behavior. Say what you mean and mean what you say. Your kids know the difference.

A child should never be confused about what the rules are. Once you've made a rule, ask your child to explain the rule to you in his own words.

Take time to explain the why behind your rules. When you're wrong, don't hesitate to say so. Remember that all children are different. What works with one child may not work with another. That's what makes being a parent such a challenge and such a joy.

Children learn more from watching what you do than from hearing what you say. You can't tell your kids honesty is important if you brag about cheating on your taxes.

The following activities are suggested for parents and their children: 1) Ask questions which cannot be answered by a simple "yes" or "no" answer. Require complete sentence answers; 2) Assign two jobs at one time. Require the child to repeat the assignment in the same order given and perform the jobs in that order; 3) Motif activity assignments may be given in a specific order and require that first the assignment be repeated and then performed in that order; 4) Do as I say and not as I do game. Parent stands up, but tells them to sit down, parent raises the left hand, but asks them to raise the left leg, parent may touch the left ear and ask them to touch the nose; 5) Identify sounds in the home, examples: someone putting ice in the glass, the whistling of the tea kettle, cutting with scissors, the sound of the mixer or blender or vacuum operating. You may just sit with eyes closed and listen to the sound of cars passing, children playing, etc. and identify them; 6) Hide a loud ticking clock in some part of the room and have the child point in the direction he believes it to be. If his location is not correct, have him search for the clock with the ticking sound as the only clue; 7) Tap a rhythm on the table or cabinet. Have the child repeat it exactly as you performed it. Start with a small number of beats separated by blank spaces and gradually increase the number, example: "tap, tap, blank, tap"; 8) Make up a sentence, have the child repeat exactly as you said it. Increase the length of the sentence, or alternate with nonsense sentences.

Other suggested activities for parents and children are: 1) Name three animals in order, then make the sounds each animal makes in that order, increase the number of animals and sounds; 2) When watching a TV commercial, allow a few minutes to pass, and ask the child what the commercial was about. Frequently ask the child to tell the story he has just watched on TV; 3) Have the child say in correct order the days of the week, months of the year, the alphabet, their address and phone number; 4) Teach the child the name of the place where parents are employed, and the name of their doctor; 5) Give the child a series of three numbers, have them repeat, gradually increase the number of digits to be repeated. When they are able to do this with some efficiency, alternate by having them say them backwards, example: 256, 652; 6) Have the child look at the canned goods on a shelf at home, then without looking, name as many as possible; 7) Teach the child someone else's phone number. Check frequently to see if they can retain this number.

Gayla Gear, teacher at Dillman Elementary, reports that the recent parenting seminar was a success. "It's been so successful that we plan to start it up again in the fall. Outcomes have been positive for those who attended and we feel sure that more parents will attend in September. We will use the same format and the meetings will be held on the first Wednesday of each month at 9:30 at Dillman Elementary."

Sleep Tips Offered

Sleep experts estimate that night woes--caused by everything from sleep disorders to mattresses that are past their prime--plague about a third of all Americans. If bad nights are ruining your days, help is on the way during May for Better Sleep Month.

Among the resources available to consumers is a month-long toll-free sleep hotline, sponsored by the Better Sleep Council. By dialing 1-800-82-SLEEP, callers can hear pre-recorded sleep advice from popular psychologist Dr. Joyce Brothers.

The Better Sleep Council also offers their 20-page "Sleep Better, Live Better Guide," which is full of ideas for improving sleep. Those who request the Guide during May will receive a bonus insert, "101 Ways to Put Yourself to Sleep." Write to the better Sleep Council at P.O. Box 13, Washington D.C. 20044.

Ten Golden Rules for Golden Slumber

"Sleep Better, Live Better" is the motto of the Better Sleep Council. The Council developed these ten guidelines to help you get the most out of your nights:

1. Keep regular hours--try to go to bed at the same time each night and wake up at the same time each morning, even on weekends.

2. Exercise regularly--20 to 30 minutes of exercise at least 3 days a week is ideal, but be sure not to exercise too close to bedtime.

3. Cut down on stimulants--consuming stimulants such as caffeine, found in coffee or chocolate, in the evening makes it harder to fall asleep. Stimulants also prevent deep sleep and increase nighttime awakenings.

4. Sleep on a quality mattress and foundation--it's difficult to get deep, restful sleep on a bed that's too small, too soft, too hard or too old. The Better Sleep Council recommends replacing your sleep set every 8-10 years.

5. Don't smoke--smokers take longer to fall asleep, awaken more often and spend less time in deep sleep.

6. Drink only in moderation--drinking alcohol before bed makes it difficult to fall asleep, interrupts the sleep stages and causes awakenings in the early-morning hours.

Outdoor Shrub Pest Bagworms Major

Bagworms are one of the major pests of junipers and other trees and shrubs in Texas. Spring hatch began in early May on the South Plains this year. Hatching is usually completed in about three weeks. Insecticide control is most effective in early June when the bagworms are small, says County Extension Agent Kandy K. McWhorter.

In spring, bagworm larvae emerge from hatching eggs inside last year's bags and begin feeding on leaves. They soon begin to construct their own protective bag of silk, twigs and leaves, making them camouflaged and hard to see. As the larvae and their bags continue to grow, control becomes more difficult.

Bagworms feed throughout the summer months, building their bags until the bags are about one twelfth of an inch long, McWhorter adds. In the fall, the bagworms become adults, mate and the females lay eggs inside their bags. They then overwinter as eggs in these bags in trees and shrubs. Each overwintering female bag on a tree contains from 500 to 1500 eggs.

"Since the bagworm only completes one generation a year and spreads very slowly from plant to plant, picking the bags off infested plants in the winter will help a lot toward controlling this pest," says McWhorter. "But if bagworms were present on the plant last year and control measures were not applied, chances are very good that an insecticide will be needed this spring."

Insecticides which can be used to control bagworms include sevin, dursban, diazinon, malathion and orthene. The biological insecticide Bacillus thuringiensis can also be used. To obtain effective control, through coverage of the foliage is important. The addition of a small amount of liquid soap or surfactant to the spray solution will improve control because it helps adhere the insecticide to the treated trees and shrubs. Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.

What Is An Emergency

"The definition of a medical emergency is anytime there's a severe, sudden or unexplained change in how someone feels or how someone is able to function, said EMS Director, Jackey Burris. "And anytime this happens, call Emergency Medical Services, EMS. In Muleshoe the number is 272-4200.

"Never hesitate to call EMS when you think there's an emergency," Burris continued. "Getting help fast is one of the most important parts of saving lives. In some cases, your help doing CPR, performing the Heimlich Maneuver for choking, or applying pressure to spurting bleeding is absolutely crucial to an emergency situation.

"In these cases, stay with the patient and get another person to call EMS. Emergency Medical Services brings trained people and special equipment to an emergency. And this means the victim or patient gets stabilizing treatment immediately.

"One of the most important factors in saving lives is recognizing the symptoms of a potential emergency," Burris continued.

The following are symptoms to look for:

Heart Attack: causes severe pain, pressure or squeezing in the center of the chest. The pain may spread to the shoulder, neck, arms, jaw or back. The victim may also have shortness of breath, nausea, sweating or feeling of weakness or restlessness.

Choking: is an emergency when the person is unable to speak, breathe or swallow. The person may turn blue in the face, and/or collapse. Other respiratory difficulties cause similar symptoms-gasping, a different rate of breathing, foaming from the mouth and a blue tinge to the skin, tongue, lips and nails

Fractures or Broken Bones: may be present when there is pain, tenderness, disfiguration, swelling or bruising. Bone ends may be exposed or broke parts of the body, such as arms or legs may be twisted in a strange manner. The patient may not be able to move anything or feel anything in the area of the break. In an accident, if the patient, is complaining of neck or back pain remember never to move the patient, unless the scene is dangerous to the patients health, excessive movement may cause more damage to the patient.

Poisoning: causes a variety of symptoms, depending on what the cause is. They include nausea, vomiting and cramping; unexplained collapse, shortness of breath or change in the rate of breathing; irritation, inflammation or swelling of the skin. You should look for and keep suspected poison in its container so emergency care personnel will know how to treat the patient. Important: Never induce vomiting when the poison is of an acid base.

"Call for an ambulance when you think it's an emergency. When someone is badly injured, unconscious or having trouble breathing, there should be no doubt," cautioned Burris.

"Remember, it is important not to move someone who has been injured because in a car wreck or fall you may cause further injury. And people who have heart related problems should always be treated as critical. So call an ambulance in these cases; help can be given the moment the EMS ambulance arrives.

"Texas has 39,000 certified EMS technicians according to the Texas Department of Health EMS Registry, and those who serve your community are ready to respond to an emergency."

Lyme Disease Clinic and Support Group Draws Patients

EDITOR'S NOTE: Five Muleshoe residents have been diagnosed with Lyme Disease and are currently being followed by physicians at Doctors Hospital in Dallas. One case involves three patients from the same family—a mother, 12-year-old son and a nine-year-old daughter.

Every Tuesday, Dr. Audrey Stein Goldings' Lyme Borreliosis Clinic is filled with patients from throughout Texas who have come to Doctors Hospital in Dallas to see one of the region's foremost authorities in Lyme Disease. Patients, who like 39-year-old Lisa Methvin, have gone from doctor to doctor in search of a concrete diagnosis for the myriad of unexplained symptoms they've been experiencing.

"First I was told that I might have a brain tumor, then another doctor thought I had multiple sclerosis or rheumatoid arthritis," Methvin recalls. "Lyme disease wasn't even a consideration. I was told that we didn't have Lyme disease in Texas."

Although it may not be one of the more widely recognized diagnoses, cases of Lyme disease are showing up in increasing numbers in Texas and surrounding states. And patients, their family members and loved-ones are quickly becoming acquainted with this debilitating disease.

"It's important for people to know the seriousness of this disease and to recognize how it is spread so that precautions may be taken to avoid acquiring the infection," says Dr. Stein Goldings, a neurologist who annually treats more than 100 Lyme disease patients. "We believe that for most patients, early treatment prevents later complications."

Unlike other diseases that strike without warning, Lyme disease and its onset can be directly linked to a tick bite. Methvin was formerly an avid horseback rider. When she first noticed the bite on her leg, she thought it was a strange-looking spider bite. "I'm a registered nurse," she says. "And in all my years in medicine, I'd never seen anything that looked like that before. I wasn't too worried about it until about a month later, when I couldn't shake what I thought was the flu."

A flat, circular rash and a flu-like syndrome are usually the first symptoms to appear. As the disease progresses, it can have devastating effects on the joints, nervous system and heart. Patients frequently experience debilitating fatigue, severe muscle and joint pain, and even memory loss.

"I had no idea of what I faced when I was first diagnosed with Lyme disease 18 months ago," says Methvin, a mother and restaurant owner. "I thought a couple of weeks of antibiotics would clear it up. Little did I know that it would turn my life upside-down. I am literally handicapped."

Little is known about the progression of Lyme disease. "I have good days and I have bad days," Methvin explains. "But on the bad days, I simply can't function. My body is bed-ridden—even when my mind wants to get up and go."

There is no standardized treatment for Lyme Disease. In fact, treatment options are controversial and physicians are still looking for more effective treatment options for their patients who don't respond to current therapies. "Given the difficulty associated with treating this disease, an ounce of prevention is most definitely worth a pound of cure," says Dr. Stein Goldings.

Campers, hikers and others who spend a lot of time outdoors—particularly in heavily wooded areas—are most susceptible to risk. Dr. Stein Goldings recommends wearing light colored clothing with tightly closed openings as a first line of defense. Tick checks should be done at the end of an outdoor day and even more often, if possible. Clothes can be sprayed with the insecticide Permethrin (Permanone), and products containing DEET can be applied to the skin to repel ticks.

But what about those already afflicted with Lyme disease? Methvin and several other patients are currently working with the national Lyme Borreliosis Foundation to begin a support group in this area. The Texas Network of the Lyme Borreliosis Foundation Support Group has been meeting at Doctors Hospital for the past five months, and as many as 45 people have been attending.

"We're seeing people from as far away as Austin and Lubbock," says Methvin, who also volunteers in Dr. Stein Goldings' clinic each Tuesday. "There's a real need for information and, more importantly, a support network for those with the disease."

"Lyme disease has changed my life," she continues. "I want to help others who are struggling with it to realize that they can learn how to deal with a chronic disease and continue to go forward with their lives. If one person comes to our support group and leaves with a little hope and the ability to live

Hill Country Peaches Ripe For Bumper Year

By Steve Byrns

Crank up the ice cream freezers, Hill Country peaches are ready to go.

"We're pickin' like mad," said Dr. John Lipe, horticulturist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service based in Gillespie County.

"Right now we have a trementremely good crop," he said. "So far it's every bit as good as earlier predictions. This could stack up to be the best season since 1981, which was a real bumper crop year."

"This is a very unusual year—every variety in every orchard has fruit hanging on the trees."

Lipe estimated that peach yields statewide will be up 50 to 60 percent from last year's generally good harvest. Gillespie County in the heart of the Hill Country, for example, has 1,200 to 1,500 acres in peaches, about a tenth of the state's acreage and more than any other county. Yields should range to 130,000 bushels this year, he said.

The country produced 200,000 bushels in 1981's banner year but had more acres in production then.

"A few good years back to back like this should encourage increased plantings, and production will go back up again."

Lipe said early-season Hill Country peaches started coming off a week ago with the first ones just now hitting the market. These, he said, are all cling peaches, primarily of the Springgold and Bicentennial varieties.

"Prices are running pretty strong," Lipe said. "We're seeing $15-$19 paid wholesale for a half bushel on down to lows of $10 for No. 1's. Roadside sales generally are running $3 to $4 higher. This is pretty average for early-season peaches, which start strong and generally taper off as the season progresses."

Most of the peaches now are small and going to wholesale markets, he said. The bigger markets, he said. Lipe said the definition of a No. 1 peach will change with the season as well.

"A No. 1 now is a good quality peach measuring two to two-and-a-quarter inches. Later on it will be two-and-a-quarter on up. Early peaches are smaller because they develop so rapidly from bloom to maturity. It's the amount of time the fruit hangs on the tree that determines the size for the most part."

The horticulturist said the Hill Country crop will consist mostly of cling fruits until around June 10 when the freestone varieties ripen.

"Our peach quality looks about normal so far, and the crop as a whole hasn't seen many problems," Lipe said. "We've been very fortunate in missing hail in the Hill Country, which this year is a pretty good accomplishment. It's been at our doorstep a time or two, but so far it's not hit us."

Other areas in Texas haven't been quite so lucky. Yoakum, for instance, now trying to complete a harvest has had a scattering of hail. "It wasn't much," said Dr. Calvin Lyons, Extension Service horticulturist at Texas A&M University, "but it's always a lot when it's your orchard."

The Rio Grande Valley, Texas' newest peach production area has been picking since April 10. Lyons said because their peaches hit the market early, prices have been high.

"Prices are up to $20-plus a half-bushel," said Lyons. "This fluctuates from day to day depending on what else is hitting the market. As soon as more northern peaches arrive, the price always drops."

Valley growers expect to ship as many as 38,000 bushels this year.

Report From State Senator Teel Bivins

The approval of a two year extension of the so-called "Fast Track" authority by Congress may mean more market opportunities for Texas farmers and ranchers, the president of Texas' largest farm organization said Friday.

S.M. True, a grain, cotton, and cattle producer from Plainview said "Fast Track" means only that critical negotiations in the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and a North American Free Trade Agreement will continue.

"No agreements exist at this point," True said. "With Fast Track, we can keep talking and discuss the trade issues that are so important to all of agriculture."

True said the Texas Farm Bureau will reserve the right to oppose any agreement not in the best interests of agriculture.

"We will actively work for the defeat of any agreement that is not good for farmers and ranchers."

"We also intend to be involved in the negotiation process," he said.

The House voted down a resolution to halt Fast Track Thursday by a 231 to 192 vote, and the Senate followed suit Friday, defeating the resolution to derail Fast Track 59 to 32.

The current round of GATT negotiations collapsed last year over the role of farm subsidies. The approval of Fast Track allows the U.S. to participate in renewed negotiations.

Texas Food Market Watch For June

Texas consumers will find a larger supply of produce available in June, sending market prices lower for many fruits and vegetables.

"Produce hitting supermarket shelves in greater supply this month will be Texas-grown peaches, blueberries, and blackberries," said Dr. Dick Edwards, a food marketing expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Supplies of cantaloupes, honeydew melons and watermelons also will leap forward in June, after several weeks of limited offerings," he said. "This will lower prices on these items."

Edwards said the Texas peach crop should be excellent and much larger than last year.

"The crop has not been seriously damaged by hail or a late freeze this season, and it should be one of the best on record, barring late hail damage," Edwards said.

Marty Baker of Overton, Extension Service horticulturist serving East Texas, said many new peach orchards have been added in about a dozen counties, and many will be coming into full production this season, greatly adding to peach supplies.

"We should have one of the best peach yields in history, with different varieties maturing for consumers throughout the late spring and summer months," Baker said. "Consumers generally want a large peach with good color, free from insect and disease damage and with a tree-ripe flavor. Our peaches fill that bill."

In the Hill Country, the peach crop is expected to be 50 to 60 percent greater than production last year, which was considered a good year. Dr. John Lipe, Extension Service horticulturist in Fredericksburg, said the 1991 crop could top those of the past 10 years.

Besides peaches, the blueberry and blackberry crops produced in Texas should be above average this season, Extension Service horticulturists report, adding to the good news for consumers.

Other produce items in greater supply in June, Edwards said, will be apricots, nectarines, plums, raspberries and cherries.

Also increasing in supply and dropping in price near the end of the month will be sweet corn, yellow squash, tomatoes, green beans and peas, cucumbers, mangos and okra.

Phasing out in the next few weeks, however, will be rhubarb, artichokes, asparagus, greens and strawberries. A few of these items will be on sale during the first week of June, he said.

Warmer days mean more interest in outdoor grilling, and meat prices trend upward as consumers buy more of the expensive cuts for cookouts.

"This upward pull, plus the apparent low supply of beef for the summer months, could cause prices to increase even more than normal," Edwards said. "There will be specials, but your favorite cuts may not be discounted as often or as low as you would like."

Beef specials, Edwards said, will include round, sirloin, rib eye and T-bone steaks, with the best prices on family packs.

"Special supply situations may occur if beef is too high and consumers switch to other cuts," Edwards noted. "Should this happen, discounts of 25 percent to 35 percent may be seen. But expect this only in the first half of June; meat packers will stockpile cuts late in the month for the July holidays."

June specials on pork will include chops, ribs, pork shoulders for barbecue and stuffed sausage.

"Whether fresh or smoked, stuffed sausage is becoming popular for grilling and is usually cheaper than other pork products," Edwards said.

He predicted that poultry consumption will increase this summer, a change from its general decrease during warmer weather.

"This is because of the price difference between chicken and red meat," he said. "Poultry is not as easy to prepare as its red meat competition, but boneless cuts have helped cause this shift."

The leg-thigh cuts at 39 cents remain an excellent buy. Also discounted in June will be bone-in breast cuts, as well as boneless versions."

Supermarkets also will feature special June promotions around Father's Day and end-of-school activities.

For the day honoring dads, specials will focus on men's toiletries, decorated cakes and floral departments that feature boutonnières.

Product promotions for kids, who will spend more hours at home as schools close, will range from snack items to milk, lunch meats, cold cereal, ice cream products and drinks—both carbonated and non-carbonated.

"Store brands and regional drink brands will be on sale, usually selling from 15 percent to 25 percent lower than national brands," Edwards said.

Report From State Senator Teel Bivins

At post time, 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the tote board at Pimlico showed 7 to 1 odds on Hansel to win the Preakness Stakes. While the rest of Texas was watching the race on TV, members of the Senate were making odds on another bet. The conventional wisdom at that time was 9 to 5 that Senator John Leedom's filibuster against the horse racing bill would not last more than eight hours.

Leedom was exercising his right as a senator to engage in "Extended debate" against a bill that would reduce the State's take in bets wagered on horse racing in Texas. Many argue that the right to filibuster is the most significant difference between being a member of the Senate and a member of the House. A senator who feels strongly enough about any particular bill can talk it to death if he is able.

The rules of the Senate require that when a member speaks at his desk, he must do so while standing. The member is technically not supposed to touch the desk while speaking. The Senate rules also require that members are not to eat or drink on the Senate floor. If a member engaged in a filibuster breaks any of these rules, the Chair will warn the senator that he is in danger of losing the floor. A breach of the rules after the third warning will cause a senator to lose the floor.

The important point here is that while the senator has the floor and is talking no one may be recognized on a motion to adopt the bill or amendment, as the case may be. Typically a senator who is opposed to a bill and exercised his right to filibuster will do so after the bill has been brought up but before a vote occurs on final passage of the bill. If the filibustering senator loses the floor, then the Chair may recognize another senator or, more importantly, the bill's author for a motion to finally pass the bill.

The only time a filibuster can be used to effectively kill a bill is in the final days or hours of a legislative session. If, for example, a bill is brought up in the Senate with only eight hours left in the legislative session, a member who wants to kill the bill may get the floor and talk for the full eight hours, thus allowing the session to end before a vote occurs on final passage of the bill. While twenty-four hours is considered to be within the filibuster range the record filibuster in the Texas Senate lasted for 42 hours, 32 minutes.

While members sometimes engage in filibusters during early parts of a session to make a particular point, the real power of a filibuster is in the last week of a session. As I said, the classic filibuster used to kill a bill generally occurs within the last twenty-four hours. However, threatened filibusters are often times an equally effective tool. As we get toward the end of any legislative session there are always bills that "simply must be passed." An eight or twelve hour filibuster that occurs in the last week of the session can take up so much time that the leadership becomes fearful that there will not be enough time left to pass those important pieces of legislation. The bill's sponsor in such a situation is under considerable pressure to work out an agreement with his opponent in order to avoid the disruption and loss of valuable time that a filibuster could cause.

Disruption, discord, inconvenience and acrimony are what filibusters are all about. The process is very easy to criticize. But when you stop and think the filibuster is just one more of the vital checks and balances that exists in our system of representative democracy. It is an important right that must be preserved. In the overall scope of things, almost no bill is so important that it must absolutely be passed NOW. The filibuster is a vehicle to force members of the Senate to think long and hard about what they are about to do. Thinking long and hard is our duty.

Flood Insurance Now Available

Spring historically is the season for the country's most frequent and widespread flooding. Severe spring storms, ice floes, and rapid snow melt separately or in combination can cause inundation of areas never considered to be flood-prone. In 1990, spring floods resulted in more than 25 federal disaster declarations involving more than 418 counties.

Since homeowner's insurance policies specifically exclude flood damage from the coverage they provide, residents of one to four-family properties may wish to consider a recently introduced flood insurance policy made available by the federal government's National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

Homeowners can now purchase flood insurance for as little as $75 per year and have a total of $25,000 in coverage for their dwelling and its contents.

This new coverage is called a preferred risk policy. It is particularly suitable for those who feel they have only minimal risk of flooding but prefer to be protected against the unexpected.

The NFIP is administered by the Federal Insurance Administration(FIA), part of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Virtually all flood insurance in the country is written through the NFIP or one of several private insurance companies that have arrangements with the government to sell and service this coverage under their own names. The companies' coverage is underwritten by the government.

The new preferred risk policy is available only for those residences outside any special flood hazard area. However, FIA Administrator C.M. "Bud" Schauerte notes that, historically, about one-third of all flood insurance claims have been for damage that occurred in non-flood hazard areas.

There are three levels of preferred risk coverage. In addition to the $25,000 ($20,000 building, $5,000 contents) coverage for the $75 premium, the NFIP offers $30,000 building and $8,000 contents coverage for $100 and $50,000 building, $12,000 contents coverage for $100, and $50,000 building, $12,000 contents coverage for $125. Premiums for buildings with basements are $25 more to reflect the added risk. As with policies written on buildings located in flood hazard areas, there is usually a five-day waiting period before a new preferred risk policy becomes effective.

Move things no longer needed into MONEY!

YOU CAN H.E.L.P

Environmental Action at Home

There's new story almost every day—the environment in peril, another blow to the health of our small watery planet. You might ask "What can I do?" Actually, quite a lot, and right in your house too. A key place to start is the kitchen and laundry room. The following tips from product development experts who make KitchenAid appliances can help you save energy, help the environment—and save money too.

A trash compactor can be a valuable tool in reducing the volume of both your recyclable and non-recyclable waste. A compactor doesn't take up a lot of space, yet offers many quality features. For example, an 18-inch wide model from KitchenAid offers:

- Litter Bin® door that allows small items to be loaded even when the compactor is operating;
- Tilt-away trash basket and basket release handle for easy trash removal;
- Activated charcoal air filter and odor control fan with on/off switch;
- One-half HP motor that provides 3,000 pounds of ram force, to reduce trash to about one-fourth its original volume.

Besides helping eliminate ugly, smelly wastebaskets, compactors also fit smoothly into any kitchen decor.

Some consumers are even investing in multiple compactors to help separate and compact recyclable materials. As mandatory recycling becomes more common, trash compactors are more than just a nicety—it's right to use one.
