Local Man Earns Star For Gallantry

around Muleshoe

Bailey County Commissioners Court will meet in special session in the Bailey County Courthouse Friday, July 26.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. and will continue until all business is concluded, with the following items on the agenda:

1. Discuss and consider authorizing the purchase of a new ambulance.
2. Mike Easley and Jo Ann Head to discuss Department of Health building.
3. Decide on redistricting services.
4. Appoint alternate election judge to replace resigning judge for Voting Precinct No. 4.
5. Approve purchase of new tires for Senior Citizens Van.
6. Read letter from SPAG concerning HB 69.
7. Conduct budget workshop.

Jennifer Green, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Green of Muleshoe, was the recipient of the Education Department Scholarship from Abilene Christian University.

Miss Green, a senior elementary education major, is a 1988, graduate of Muleshoe High School.

The criteria for the scholarship included dedication to teaching as a career, scholarship, Christian commitment, need and character.

Annual Jamaica Draws

Large Crowd Sunday

One of the largest crowds ever, approximately 3-4,000 people gathered on the lawn of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Church Sunday afternoon for their annual Jamaica. It was reported that people came from all around and a few from as far away as California.

Music from four bands filled the air setting the mood for the gala affair. There was something for everyone, from the very young to the not so young.

When the Journal talked to Father Pat Maher Monday afternoon, he stated that there were 15 or 16 booths all filled with good food, most of it

Being Offered

Two popular computer short-courses will again be offered at the Texas A&M University System Computer Training and Education Center at Halfway. Persons wanting to improve their computer skills with spreadsheets or learn an easy to use, cash record keeping system should sign up now, as space in the course is limited.

A computer spreadsheet is a versatile tool for basic record keeping, financial planning and budgeting, and is something no producer using computers should be without, say Dr. Jackie Smith, Extension Service economist and management specialist at Lubbock. An introductory course will be held Aug. 13 and 14 at the Computer Training Center to give producers an opportunity to learn to use the Lotus 1-2-3 spreadsheet to enhance their managerial skills. ## Desert Storm Pilot Receives High Honor

A local man earned the Air Force Silver Star for gallantry in battle during the Persian Gulf War recently.

The Silver Star is the third highest combat award available to U.S. Air Force members. Captain John F. Daughtry of Muleshoe received his medal from General John A. Shaud, chief of staff, Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe. Captain Daughtry is a weapon systems officer flying the F-111F fighter/bomber with the 8th Tactical Fighter Wing, RAF Lakenheath, England.

Captain Daughtry earned his silver star as the lead aircraft of a 28-ship package attacking the Tuwaitha Nuclear Research Facility on the outskirts of Baghdad, February 4. The U.S. Defense Intelligence Agency called the target "the most heavily defended facility in the Middle East," with 19 surface-to-air missile systems and more than 200 anti-aircraft artillery pieces which could be brought to bear on attacking aircraft.

As Captain Daughtry and Lt. Col. James F. Slaton, pilot, approached the target their aircraft was engulfed by anti-aircraft artillery and so many missile launches by the Iraqis, the F-Gs flying with them fired all their Homing Anti-Radiation Missiles within the first few moments of the attack. The fire was so intense, only three of 18 F-111F fighter/bombers reached their targets, including Captain Daughtry's.

Colonel Slaton led the remaining three F-111s below the cloud cover into the heart of the AAA where they destroyed three critical nuclear component buildings, despite having a weapons system problem forcing Captain Daughtry to an extremely difficult manual backup delivery mode.

The Tuwaitha Facility, the focal point of Iraq's nuclear research program, was originally bombed by the Israeli Air Force in 1981. The site was also attacked earlier in the Gulf War by F-117A Stealth fighters and F-16s with no significant damage. One F-16 and its pilot were lost to target area defenses. "The clouds were too thick for our equipment, so we had to fly lower to get a good look," Colonel Slaton said. "The problem was this put us within the heart of their defenses."

To add to the excitement, their PAVE TACK pod went down. "Luckily after going through three or four backup modes, it came back up just in time for weapons release," Captain Daughtry said. PAVE TACK allows the F-111F weapons system officer to laser designate the target for pinpoint accuracy on delivery of precision guided munitions.

Board Accepts Resignations

Hires Teachers

The resignation of Tom Alvis and Geneva Alvis, Tom Duncan, Jr. High Coach, DeAyn Martin, first grade teacher, and Gene McCain, assistant high school principal, were accepted at the Monday night school board meeting. Two new teachers were added to the M.I.S.D. staff, Chris Mardis, Computer Science teacher at high school and Loretta Haseloff, will be teaching Language Arts at Watson Junior High.

During the regular meeting of the board, Cindy Purdy presided. The board heard a report on the Budget Hearing and the County Education System.

A report was also heard on the third party insurance program.

The site of the Alternative Education Program was also discussed. It will be located in a downtown building.

The board received the final report of the Management Assistance Program done by Region XLVII Educational Service Center.

Student insurance was also discussed. The American Youth Student Insurance is available to all students.

Local Girls Audition For America's Funniest People

No one can say Jana Foster and Dacia Stewart of Muleshoe won't do just about anything to get on television. Particularly national TV. They will even put their feet over their heads for a shot.

Jana and Dacia were one of over 100 acts which auditioned for the national TV show, "America's Funniest People." Auditions were held recently at the North Plains Mall in Clovis.

Jana Foster, along with her friend, Dacia, did what they call a contortion (moving body parts in ways that real people can't do). Dacia was placed underneath a pillow with her legs extended out, while Jana sat on a pillow.

Thirteen year old Jana, said she heard about the show coming to the area when it was announced on the show, "America's Funniest People" a few weeks ago. Due to Jana being out of town they didn't start working on the audition until the night before the auditions.

"Me and Dacia just thought and thought last night (Thursday), we spent about three hours trying to come up with a funny act," Jana said.

"I was very nervous, but it was fun and the people were real nice," Jana said.

"The crew wasn't able to tell us if we will be on the show or not but I hope we at least get to do the commercial, we taped a commercial," Jana Said.

Dacia is the daughter of Danny and Tawna Ward of Muleshoe and granddaughter of Carol Stewart of Portales, N.M. and Mr. and Mrs. Cleo Ward of Muleshoe.

Alzheimer's Disease Increases As Population Ages

A rapid increase in the number of elderly persons means more Alzheimer's disease cases than ever before.

In the year 2000, about two million Texans will be age 65 and older. Of these, more than 200,000 are expected to suffer from Alzheimer's disease.

Though more than 180,000 Texans now have this illness, many people don't know much about Alzheimer's disease. "It is a dementing disease, a thief of minds, a destroyer of personalities, wrecker of family finances, filler of nursing homes," said Morris H. Craig, director of TDH's Alzheimer's Disease Program. "It also is a leading cause of death, after heart disease, cancer and stroke, causing 150,000 deaths each year nationwide. At this time, there are no known cures for this disease, and even the causes of it are not clear, though research continues."

Alzheimer's disease begins almost imperceptibly as perhaps an inability to find the word—especially nouns, the need to write many reminder notes or wearing the same clothes day after day. Personalities change to reflect less spontaneity, ambition and interest. At some point, the sufferer may become unable to write or speak coherently, to understand most spoken or written language, or to recognize anyone, including himself in a mirror. The patient becomes unable to feed himself and is unable to survive without total care.

An Alzheimer's patient is usually cared for at home in the beginning. As the patient's mental powers slip away, the caregiving family agonizes over and usually concludes that nursing home care is the best choice for a patient who must be cared for around the clock.

Choosing a nursing home can be bewildering since there are many different kinds of nursing homes including religiously affiliated, usually not-for-profit homes and homes run for a profit. There are homes in which range of disabilities are represented and home with designated Alzheimer's units. Some homes are run on a pay-as-you-go basis and others are life care facilities which require an up-front payment (sometimes the patient's life savings) and may then provide care for life even after the patient's funds are exhausted.

In selecting a nursing home, families of Alzheimer's disease victims are advised to visit several to give some basis for comparison. "Visit when you can spend enough time to thoroughly check the facilities for everything from licensing to availability of snacks," advised Craig. "Visit at different times of the day and on different days before making a decision. Keep in mind that often there are waiting lists, so it's necessary to begin the selection process before placement becomes necessary."

Craig also warns family members to keep in mind that nursing home care is expensive, currently averaging more than $2,000 a month. Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance, Veterans Administration System and Social Security Disability are areas of possible financial support for Alzheimer's victims.

However, Alzheimer's caregivers, TDH runs a toll-free hotline, 1-800-242-3399, as part of its Alzheimer's Disease Program. TDH staff provide specialized information, resources, research information and information regarding support groups.

"The good news is that Alzheimer's disease does not affect some 91 percent of those over age 65," said Craig. "And research is continuing so that in time, we may be able to prevent and even cure Alzheimer's."

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

We are writing you in regard to Senate Bill I which is the appropriations bill for the July 1991 Special Session in Austin. If passed it will have devastating cuts for the Texas A&M University Services. This Means if passed the county agent and extension agent in Home Economics office in Bailey County would be eliminated. We feel that this would definitely be a blow to our youth in Texas as many get their start in life thru the 4-H Programs and might never get that opportunity otherwise. We would appreciate everyone writing letters to Senators John Montford and Teel Bivins and to Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock letting them know that we do not want these offices closed. We feel that these offices are very important to Bailey County and to the State of Texas.

Sincerely

Loney Ballard Funeral Services Held Monday

Funeral Services for Loney M. Ballard, 91, were held at 2:00 p.m. Monday, July 22 in the First Assembly of God Church with the Rev. Dean Reid, pastor, officiating.

Burial was in the Muleshoe Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home of Muleshoe. Ballard died at 10:05 p.m. Friday in the Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center.

Born September 3, 1899 in Oklahoma, she had been a resident of Muleshoe since 1985, moving here from Corona, California. She was a homemaker and a member of the Free Will Baptist Church in Stigler, Oklahoma.

Survivors include one son, Maurl Ballard, of Aurora, Colorado and two daughters, Jewel Smith of Eldorado, Arkansas and Gladys Myers of Muleshoe, Texas. Survivors also include 15 grandchildren.

SPC To Offer Course For Medication Aides

South Plains College will offer a continuing education course July 27 for nursing home medication aides.

The course will meet 8 a.m.-4 p.m. in the Technical Arts Building, Room 101. Cost is $10 per person and instructor is Martha Haynes, R.N.

The course is designed for medication aides who are currently employed in nursing homes and need to complete the required seven hours of continuing education.

Registration will be at the class meeting. Persons who plan to enroll should bring their permit number, the number assigned to them by the state when they receive licensure as medication aides, noted Don Yarbrough, dean of continuing education.

For more details phone the Continuing Education Office at 894-9611, ext. 341.

Sophomore Student and Advisor Visit Washington

Attending the National FHA Meeting in Washington, D. C., July 7-11, were Missy Kuyendall, sophomore student at Sudan High School, and Sudan FHA Advisor Mrs. Lanette Whitley. Missy serves as Region I Corresponding Secretary for the Texas Association of Future Homemakers of America and served as a voting delegate at the national meeting. The voting delegation interviewed candidates for national FHA offices, made recommendations to their state delegations, then cast their vote for the most qualified national officers for '91-'92.

Both Missy and Mrs. Whitley attended general sessions and break-out sessions hearing guest speakers on topics such as personal growth and implementing national FHA programs on the local level.

One afternoon of the meeting was spent on Capitol Hill. Students and advisors visited their representatives; Missy and Mrs. Whitley visited with Representative Larry Combust and registered at the office of Senator Phil Gramm.

Time for sightseeing enabled the delegates to visit the Smithsonian Institute, Ford Theatre, the Lincoln Memorial, the Vietnam Memorial, Constitution Hall, the White House, and Arlington Cemetery. The Texas delegation laid a memorial wreath at the sight of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

Following the close of the national meeting, a chartered bus tour through Pennsylvania enabled members of the Texas delegation to see the Gettysburg Battleground, the Amish Country, the historic area of Philadelphia (Independence Hall, the Liberty Bell, Franklin Court, and Betsy Ross' home), and Valley Forge.

Attending the National FHA Meeting and seeing these sights so rich in history were valuable experiences for Missy and Mrs. Whitley; they look forward to sharing their experiences with their local FHA members and other high school students.

Skin Cancer Facts Given By ACS

The fisherman, the farmer and the bathing beauty have something in common--the danger of skin cancer from prolonged over-exposure to the sun.

"It's that time of year when we must remind people to use sense in the sun to avoid over-exposure which can cause skin cancer. Cancer of the skin is diagnosed in over 400,000 Americans each year," said Janelle Turner of the Bailey County American Cancer Society. "And Texans need to be particularly cautious because there is proportionately more skin cancer in southern and southwestern states than elsewhere in the country."

She explained, "Most skin cancer is caused by excessive exposure to the sun. People whose occupation places their work outdoors--for example a lifeguard or construction worker--should be very careful. So should fair-skinned, fair-haired people. Senior citizens form another group advised to take care in the sun."

Since skin cancer occurs more frequently than any other type of cancer, it is important to know its early warning signals: a sore that does not heal; change in size or color of a wart or mole. "If a symptom appears, the person should not try to wish it away or 'doctor' it himself," Janelle stated. "See your physician as soon as possible. Skin cancer is highly curable if detected and treated in time."

"That's why it is so tragic that about 7,100 people are expected to die of skin cancer this year," Janelle added, "They will be victims of a disease that is largely preventable and highly curable."

The American Cancer Society has available at no charge skin cancer educational materials and a film entitled, "Sense in the Sun." For further information contact the ACS by calling the Rev. Richard Edwards at the First United Methodist Church.

Janelle Turner said, "At this time of year the ACS advises people in Muleshoe to:

- *Take sunshine in small doses;
- *Avoid the sun between 10:00

Know The Weather

Do high radio and television towers have a tendency to draw lightning and thereby lessen the danger to lower structures and nearby trees?

Yes, high metal towers will often draw electrical discharges from clouds passing low overhead. So will especially tall buildings. Since the electrical charges of clouds are attracted by the nearness of high grounds, like transmission towers, these towers often pull the lightning that would otherwise discharge later, elsewhere.

ERIN KELLEY

Erin Kelley Wins Cheerleading Honor

Erin Kelley, daughter of Danny and Ricki Kelley, and varsity cheerleader at Muleshoe High School, recently competed in the all star cheerleader competition held during cheerleading camp at Hardin Simmons University in Abilene, Texas. While the entire Muleshoe Varsity Cheerleading squad received superior ratings, Erin was doubly honored to be nominated by her squad to enter the competition. She had to perform a complete dance routine, power tumbling skills, jumps, cheers and chants before a panel of judges consisting of collegiate cheerleaders representing the Universal Cheerleaders Association. Winning the competition is a first for any Muleshoe High School cheerleader. It also enables Erin to represent her school and community in the Lord Mayor of Westminster's New Year's Parade in London, England.

Erin is a senior at Muleshoe High School this year and participates in varsity basketball, track and plans to run cross-country. She is listed in the 90-91 United States Achievement Academy and Who's Who Among American High School Students. Her hobbies include writing, gymnastics and dance. She also enjoys water and snow skiing.

This is her sixth year as a Muleshoe cheerleader. She is also a full time lifeguard at the Muleshoe Country Club and teaches gymnastics.

Shelby Murphy Attends Camp

Shelby E. Murphy, 14, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murphy, of Muleshoe, recently attended the Texas Lions Camp in Kerrville, Texas. Sponsored by the Muleshoe Lions Club, the camper rode horses, went swimming and even camped out under the stars while enjoying fun and fellowship with other children.

Located on 500 acres of beautiful hill country, the camp serves children who are visually or hearing impaired or have physical disabilities, ages 7 through 16. Camp programs are adapted, if necessary, so that everyone may participate. A well-trained staff supervises each camp activity at a ratio of one counselor to two campers.

The Texas Lions Camp is a nonprofit organization funded by generous individuals interested in providing challenging programs for handicapped youth. This service is provided free of charge to eligible children.

For more information, or if you know of someone who can benefit from these programs, call you local Lions Club or write: Texas Lions Camp, P.O. Box 247, Kerrville, Texas 78029-0247 (512-896-8500).

MICROWAVE TIPS

In microwave cooking, the hardest thing to learn is that foods continue cooking after being removed from the microwave oven.

An example is the baking potato. A small potato is heated enough after 5 minutes. If cut at that time, however, the center will be raw.

If allowed to stand another five minutes, the center will be done. That's because the heat is in the potato in microwave cooking. The potato will, incidentally, hold its heat for 45 minutes after cooking when wrapped in foil.

POPOVER PAN MUFFINS

- 3 eggs
- ¼ cup almond oil
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 2 cups flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
- ¼ teaspoon baking powder
- ¼ teaspoon soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup grated zucchini
- ½ cup chopped toasted almonds

Beat eggs and blend with oil and vanilla; set aside. Combine flour, sugar, pumpkin pie spice, baking powder, soda and salt; mix well. Add liquid ingredients to dry ingredients with zucchini, almonds and raisins. Stir until just mixed. Spoon batter into 6 greased popover pans. Bake in center of oven at 375 degrees F. 25 minutes. Makes 6 popover muffins. To make standard size muffins, divide batter between 18 (2½-inch) muffin cups. Bake at 375 degrees F. 20 minutes. Makes 18 muffins.

The Medicare Handbook provides guidelines on eligibility. To qualify, an individual must be entitled to Medicare Part A. They must have an annual income level near the national poverty guidelines. Poverty guidelines for 1991 are set at $6,620 for one person and $8,880 for a family of two.

Bank accounts, or stocks and bonds must not exceed more than $4,000 for an individual or $6,000 for a couple.

Part B. Medical premiums for individuals who qualify for the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefit, has been paid by the state for a number of years. SSI is a federal assistance program for the aged, blind and disabled.

Under QMB, in addition to paying Part A and Part B premiums for those who qualify, the State would also pay Medicare deductibles and coinsurance. The Part A deductible is $628 in 1991, while the Part B deductible is $100.

Those who attain age 65 and are not already on SSA or SSI must enroll with SSA for Medicare Part A and Part B benefits during their initial enrollment period (IEP). The IEP lasts for seven months, beginning three months before the birthday month and ending the third month after the birthday month. Those who missed the first opportunity to enroll may do so during the general enrollment period (GEP) which occurs in January, February and March of each year.

Texas Rice Should Benefit From Open Trade

Rice producers in Texas and other states should benefit from major world trade liberalization, although they also could face a shakout if prices don't rise enough, agricultural economists at Texas A&M University say.

Moreover, because rice is perhaps the most politicized agricultural commodity, it also provides a good illustration of how more open trade could impact many U.S. agricultural producers, they say.

Dr. Gary Williams, director of the Texas Agricultural Market Research Center, said producers of other major U.S. commodities like wheat, corn, soybeans and beef are also likely to benefit.

The center, located at Texas A&M University, serves the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

For many U.S. commodities, world trade liberalization should increase profitability and "pull the whole scale of farmers up," Williams said.

"The shakeout may be among those who might see prices declining versus prices increasing," he said. "Dairy, sugar, fruit and vegetable producers are all looking at prices dropping.

"We might have more wheat, corn and soybean producers and a lot fewer sugar and dairy producers."

The real question, he said, is not necessarily how high rice or other commodity prices will rise, but what production costs of major producing countries are relative to each other.

"You have to look at us relative to the rest of the world, and that's difficult to do. We don't have any real good models of that," he said.

That's why the future of rice markets is unclear.

"There are a lot of things that could happen," said Dr. Warren Grant, A&M adjunct professor of agricultural economics who has helped produce reports on rice trade for the market research center. "Nearly every country in the world has some sort of subsidization, tariff or other restriction."

Grant added, "I think the most likely possibility would be some sort of bilateral trade agreement, such as between the United States and Japan."

A bilateral agreement could lead to an opening of Japanese markets to American imports, but it may require a reduction or elimination of deficiency payments to United States producers, Grant said.

In the short term, more open markets would mean increased trade from the United States and higher rice prices. Grant said a Japanese-U.S. agreement would most benefit California, because it grows primarily the japonica variety preferred by Japanese consumers.

However, that would also increase demand and prices for indica rice grown in the southern United States that's because industries buying rice for soups, baby food, brewing and other uses would then turn toward indica as a more economical substitute.

The grains of cooked indica rice retain their individual nature better than cooked japonica, which has softer, stickier grains. Indica grows better in tropical or semi-tropical climates, while japonica grows better in cooler climates.

There also could be a shift toward more japonica production, particularly in cooler portions of the South, Grant said.

Over the long term, the loss of deficiency payments to American rice farmers means the least efficient farmers might be driven out of the business, Grant said.

Deficiency payments are paid by governments to producers if market prices don't reach a certain guaranteed level. Farmers set yearly production levels based on the government's guaranteed price, which often results in overproduction.

"If the United States has to give those up, the world price would have to rise enough to offset that loss. The point to which it would rise is just difficult to estimate, because we don't have the data," Grant said.

"But there is some debate as to whether it will rise enough. If it doesn't, we're going to lose some production, and there's going to be some adjustment within the industry. There will be more consolidation to the most efficient producers."

Rice production costs are higher in America than in Thailand, the United States' major competitor. The United States grows only 1.5 percent of the world's rice.

However, low per-capita consumption in the United States means that much of the American crop is exported, giving the United States some 20 percent of the world's rice trade--behind only Thailand, which has more than 30 percent.

Japan has severely restricted rice imports since the 1960's, when it formulated a policy of food self-sufficiency.

However, rice is costly to produce in Japan because land is expensive, farms are small and more labor-intensive, and crops depend on petroleum-based chemicals. Japan's rice policy heavily subsidizes producers through government deficiency payment programs and high retail prices--up to three times higher than American retail prices for milled white rice in bulk, Grant said.

One of the reasons an agreement with Japan is quite possible is that rice has become a U.S. focal point for trade issues, Grant said, adding, "I would look for some relaxation of rice restrictions by the Japanese government."

He said he thinks changes will be modest at first.

Another possibility, trade liberalization in Europe, would benefit producers in Texas and other southern states, Grant said. That's because indica, preferred in Europe, is the primary rice variety in the South.

If the European Community drops trade barriers to rice, greater U.S. exports of indica would drive its price higher--subsequently causing secondary increases in U.S. japonica prices.

About 75 percent of U.S. production is indica rice, while approximately another 20 percent is japonica and about 5 percent are various aromatic or glutinous varieties, Grant said.

Texas was the fourth largest rice producer in the United States in 1989, turning out some 876,000 metric tons, or about 13 percent of the U.S. crop.

Loss of subsidies could hurt Texas more because water costs make rice production relatively more expensive than other major rice-growing areas, including Arkansas, the Mississippi Delta and California, Grant said.

However, he added, production west of Houston tends to be more efficient than that east of Houston, meaning those areas might not be affected as strongly.

Texas would have some transportation advantages, especially for European markets, because of the rice industry's proximity to major ports.

second division to Fort Hood, returning it to full use as a two-division base."

"The massive gain derived from shifting the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division to Fort Hood, coupled with job gains at all four bases in San Antonio, Laughlin AFB in Del Rio, NAS Kingsville, Dyess AFB in Abilene and Sheppard AFB in Wichita Falls, still adds up to more than 4,000 new jobs at Texas bases," he said.

"The commission's final decision reconfirms the inherent value of Texas bases to our nation's defense," Gramm said.

"The setbacks in Austin, Beeville, and Fort Worth are disappointing, but the victories in San Angelo, Kingsville and Corpus Christi are valuable lessons in how to proceed in the future. Overall, Texas bases have proven their worth and our state stands to emerge from this difficult process as a clear winner."

Goodfellow AFB serves as an intelligence training facility for the Air Force and other military services while NAS Kingsville is one of the Navy's top-rated strike pilot training bases.

Naval Station Ingleside, the new homeport across the bay from Corpus Christi, was originally built as a home for the battleship USS Wisconsin. That mission has been replaced with one in which the homeport will host a fleet of 25 smaller vessels

Senator Phil Gramm Reports

Texas is expected to gain more than 4,000 military and civilian jobs from bases closed elsewhere in the nation, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm notes.

The Base Closure Commission voted to shut down Bergstrom and Carswell Air Force bases in Austin and Fort Worth, as well as the Chase Field Naval Air Station at Beeville, but it also shifted thousands of new positions into Texas from elsewhere.

"At the same time, we were successful in beating back proposals to close Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, the Navy's new homeport at Corpus Christi and the Kingsville Naval Air Station," Gramm said.

Earlier this year, the Pentagon had recommended the closure of 31 major military bases nationwide, including three of Texas' 21 bases.

Under the original list, Carswell, Bergstrom and Chase Field were slated for closure.

Even with the proposed closure of three Texas bases, however, the Defense Department's April plan left the state a new winner, gaining 4,100 jobs by shifting units into Texas from other states.

"The largest single change proposed by the Pentagon was the shift of 12,672 soldiers and 868 civilians from Fort Polk, La., to Fort Hood," Gramm noted. "After an 11th-hour debate, the commission wisely endorsed the plan to transfer a

Texas Department Of Agriculture

Rick Perry

A number of initiatives important to Texas agriculture were approved during the hustle and bustle of the regular session of the 72nd Legislature. The flurry of activities of the 1991 session resulted in the passage of six pieces of legislation that will have a positive impact on the future of our most basic industries. Each of these bills has been enacted as law in the Lone Star State. Here's a look at these measures.

While Texas leads the nation in the value and number of cattle produced, we rank second in the number of cattle slaughtered and fourth in the production of beef. We can and should be number one in both instances. I believe we can accomplish this goal through a concerted effort to make our production facilities more competitive and to increase in-state commodities processing.

Quite notably, the passage of House Bill 2553 pursues this challenge. By providing reductions in intrastate transportation costs for cattle moved to and from feedlots, marketing facilities and slaughter houses, this initiative will enhance the competitive edge of the Texas livestock industry. What's more it will support our efforts at the department to bolster agricultural production and increase in-state commodities processing.

Another opportunity for growth in the Texas economy is the development of the state's fledgling aquaculture industry. Aquaculture is the growing, harvesting and marketing of seafood and marine plant life in a controlled environment. Currently, we import 99 percent of all catfish eaten in our state. It's time to make room at our table for Texas producers in the fish farming industry. The passage of Senate Bill 977 will promote and enhance the fish farming industry by giving added authority to the already existing Aquaculture Executive Committee. It takes a significant step toward moving aquaculture into mainstream agriculture. In fact, the bill specifically states that aquaculture is agriculture.

House Bill 1184 is another important piece of legislation signed into law by Governor Richards. This bill provides emergency funding for the Africanized honey bee program at Texas A&M University. Passage of this bill will help minimize the substantial economic threat posed by Africanized honey bees. The Texas Africanized Honey Bee Management Plan estimates national economic losses in the millions due to lost honey production, lower crop yields from reduced pollination, threats to confined livestock and domesticated animals and a drop in tourism. These bees are everyone's problem, and we must cooperatively manage and control them using all available resources. Given that Texas honey production approaches $7.6 million and hundreds of millions of dollars in Texas crops need pollinating, this legislative initiative is a wise investment.

Another far-reaching program was created in House Bill 1826. This bill approves the establishment of a young farmer endowment program, offering interest-free loans to eligible Texans who want to enter farming and ranching. In recent years, operating credit has become more difficult to obtain. It has been tough for a young person without a credit history and substantial assets to secure an agricultural loan at an interest rate that allows profitability. Our farming and ranching communities often dwindle because bright and knowledgeable young people relocate to urban areas to make a profitable living. By providing young aspiring Texas farmers and ranchers with new financing opportunities, House Bill 1826 establishes a program to help us promote agriculture as a viable business opportunity.

In an effort to protect livestock and other animals or animal facilities from predation or human interference, Senate Bill 17 and Senate Bill 114 were passed by the Legislature. Senate Bill 17 provides a legal defense to prosecution for killing a stray animal on a person's property if that animal is determined to have killed or injured that person's livestock. Additionally, Senate Bill 114 creates an offense if a person interferes with animals or vandalizes or tampers with an animal facility.

The greatest disappointment agriculture suffered during the legislative session was the veto of House Bill 1979. This measure would have initiated a statewide plan to eradicate boll weevils--those destructive pests that ruin more than $20 million in Texas cotton every year.

Such an eradication program--modeled after successful initiatives in other cotton states--would have bolstered our own cotton-producing capacity. What's more, it would have eventually eliminated the need for boll weevil insecticides as the pest is wiped out.

Under House Bill 1979, the eradication plan would have been funded by cotton producers, as well as by federal funds. In fact, up to 30 percent of the plan's cost would have come from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

We are hopeful that Governor Richards will place this issue on the agenda of the special legislative session in July. A comprehensive boll weevil eradication plan is much too critical to our state to be allowed to die. After all, Texans last year harvested five million bales of cotton valued at more than $1.5 billion, making Texas the leading producer of the crop nationally.

Despite this one blot on an otherwise productive session, these new initiatives will enable Texas to improve the quality of services rendered to the agricultural community and the general public. The members of the Texas Legislature have our appreciation for sending forth a message that is loud and clear--the success of Texas agriculture is vitally important to us here at home and to people worldwide.
