WETTING PENCIL A BAD HABIT.

What do you suppose makes a person wet his pencil point in his mouth when he stops writing to think? It is a most unnecessary habit and even embarrassing at times. We once stood in a city telegraph office where messages are received. A pencil hung by a string where the recipient signed his name. Within 5 minutes people had appeared for messages. First a hair-lipped fellow who drove a dray. He wet the pencil in his capacious mouth, then wrote his name. Next came a fussy old lady, who adjusted her glasses, dipped the pencil upon her tongue, and passed it on. Next was an Indian who stopped to clear his mouth of fine cut tobacco then put the pencil in his mouth to soak while he searched in his pockets for a paper. He soon gave way to a very nervous young lady who was expecting a telegram and of course excited. She took the still wet pencil, wrote a little, then rubbed out, holding the pencil in her lips with the point on her tongue. At this most social way, nothing will spoil a pencil sooner than touching it to the tongue.—Ex.

"The women who are most loved are not by any means the most beautiful; but they have that indescribable something, that for the lack of a better term, we call personal charm. Their natural and gracious manner, the thoughtfulness for others, the blended good sense and wit of their conversation and above all, their mysterious power of sympathy, draw the hearts of friends to them as the moon attracts the waters. It is strange how you are often thoroughly disillusioned the moment a woman opens her mouth. You think yourself as you notice the classic contour of face, what a charming personality she is! But the lines about her mouth as she begins to speak, her choice of word, her hard and rasping tone, lead to an instant revision of the opinion. Again, have you not often found that a rather plain and unattractive face has been lit up in conversation with an inner light, that the liquid tones of a well-modulated voice have stolen into your heart, and that delicacy of insight has captured your imagination? Beauty of spirit has more than made up for the lack of physical attractiveness. And there are no accomplishments of music, art or languages that are quite so winsome as sanity, efficiency and sympathy."—N or man Transcript.

We are authorized to announce in this week's Enterprise the candidacy of T. P. Craig for the office of county clerk, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

Mr. Craig has been a resident of Briscoe county for the past 18 years, has never asked for an office before in the county.

His reputation as a citizen is well known to the voters of the county and especially to the pioneers of the county. He feels that he is qualified to discharge the duties of the office and asks for consideration of the voters on election day on his merits as a citizen and his qualification to fill the office for which he asks.

In the presence of a goodly number of relatives and friends Mr. Arthur Burson and Miss Nannie Bowman were joined together in the bonds of matrimony. Rev. J. R. Dale pronounced the ceremony which legalized the marriage contract.

The contracting parties have lived here in and near Silverton for several years, and the Enterprise joins their host of friends in wishing them all of the real pleasure and true happiness that wedded bliss affords. They will make their future home in Silverton.

Geo. Rossen of Ellis county spent a while in Silverton last week, the guest of R. Sedgwick. Mr. Rossen is delighted with our country and thinks he will perhaps return and invest some money in Briscoe county lands. He says it is the best part of the Plains that he has seen. Our fruit crop as well as the healthy, thrifty trees that produced it was the occasion of much surprise to Mr. Rossen as it is to many others who think the Plains are little more than a barren waste.

PAPER COFFINS IN USE

Chicago undertaker whose customers are poor people are using coffins made of paper. The coffins are made in all styles of pressed paper pulp, the same as the common paper buckets. When they are varnished and stained they resemble polished wood, and in point of duration it is claimed they are much better than wooden ones.

Put on three inch binding around brim of canary colored silk from your great-grandmother's party dress. Rip 19 yards of box ruching off your shirt waist box, and wind about crown. REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL.

Poker and love are both games of bluff.

A man has so many more temptations than a woman—because he knows where to go and find them.

A man will sit on the edge of the bed, holding one shoe in his hand and gazing into space for half an hour, and then send the cook into hysterics and the waitress into nervous prostration because he has only ten minutes left in which to eat his breakfast.

A baby's kisses taste of stale milk, a boy's of jam, a young man's of cigarettes and a husband's of cocktails.

Two people pack each other's trunks genially shake hands farewell, wish each other luck and then go off to Europe while the lawyers fight it out.

Most bridal couples pile enough honey into the first month of matrimony to last a whole lifetime if thinned out and spread on economically.

Some marriages of convenience turn out to be about the most inconvenient things that could possibly have happened.

The best brand of love is not always the kind that father used to make.

When perfect frankness comes in at the door love flies out of the window.

Every man knows he is not the heroic, fascinating creature his sweetheart pretends to think him; but he had rather be lied to to his dying day than to be told the brutal truth.

Of course, people can't carry their party manners into marriage; but if they could, marriage would be more like a party and less like a prize fight.

A man forgets all about how to make love after ten years of matrimony; but it's wonderful how quickly he can get into practice again after his wife dies.

Might as well hail a Broadway car on the wrong side of the street as to hail a man on the wrong side of his vanity.

Don't flatter yourself because he calls every Sunday evening, that it is a sign that he's getting serious. It may only be a sign that everything else is closed.

No doubt when a man puts his cheek against a girl's he always imagines that it feels as smooth as hers does—Helen Rowland in Times Democrat.

On account of the rain last Saturday afternoon the people did not have the meeting to decide on having a holiday in last weeks paper. We suppose a meeting will be called later to decide this matter.

Briscoe county was visited by fine rains last Saturday and Saturday night. It fell gently and practically all of it went into the ground. The farmers are wearing a broad smile this week while they are doing business with their crops. The wheat and oat crops are now assured if no calamity befalls them to destroy them. All crops are in a flourishing condition.

"I have often wondered," said the chronic grumbler, "why the railroads do not adopt a system of having the names of the next stop printed, and hung up in the coaches, so the passengers could read it for themselves instead of trying to understand the unintelligible noises made by the brakemen."

"That would be a good scheme for but one thing," said his friend. "What good would those placards do to the passengers who could not read?" "Oh, fudge," growled the chronic grumbler. "You are one of those fellows who are always knocking on everything you don't think up yourselves."—The Commoner.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASES.

"Now, I want to know how long it will be before I get an answer to this letter?" a young lady demanded, with a tell-tale blush, as she handed the postoffice clerk a communication addressed to her lover.

"That depends," said the representative, reflectively. "If he's in jail they only let them write once a week, and in some places only once a month—on Sundays. If he's broke, he'll have to wait until he earns the price of a stamp, and I have no data on which to base an opinion of his earning capacities. If he's ill in bed, he may feel delicate about dictating his real sentiments to a cool, disinterested third person; and if small they won't let him write at all. Then again, if a new girl—"

She didn't wait for the clerk to complete his catalogue of contingencies.—Ex.
