Fire Burning Rules, Regulation Outlined

The traditional burning season is here and the Muleshoe Volunteer Fire Department deemed it appropriate to inform the general public Marine Pfc. Jason D. Redwine, son of Jerry D. and Donna J. Redwine of Muleshoe recently reported for duty with 3rd Landing Support Battalion, 3rd Force Service Support Group, Okinawa, Japan.

Redwine joined the Marine Corps in July of 1992.

Wayland Baptist University's Lifelong Learning Center will offer a defensive driving course on Saturday, June 5, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Museum of the Llano Estacado, located at West 8th and Raleigh.

The course is limited to 50 participants, who must pre-register at the Lifelong Learning Center offices at 708 Yonkers.

Registration will not be accepted in the classroom. Cost of the course, including tuition and text, is $26. The course is approved by the Texas Education Agency, the National Safety Council, and the Texas Safety Association License No. 605. Course credit may be on the rules and regulations that govern these activities.

This article outlines the general prohibition of outdoor burning and gives the exceptions to the rule.

General rule prohibiting outdoor burning; No person may cause, suffer, allow, or permit any outdoor burning within the State of Texas.

Exception to prohibition of outdoor burning; A. The Executive Director of the Texas Air Control Board can grant a written exception if there is no practical alternative and if the burning will not cause or contribute to a violation of any federal primary or secondary ambient air quality standard. The Executive Director may specify methods or procedures to be followed in conducting the outdoor burning. B. Outdoor burning shall also be authorized in each of the following circumstances;

1. Training of fire fighting personnel when permission is requested in certified mail and when authorization is received in writing from a local air pollution agency or the local health unit.
2. Domestic waste burning at a property designed for and used as a private residence when collection of domestic waste is not provided or authorized by local governmental entity having jurisdiction.
3. Campfires and fires used solely for recreational or ceremonial preparation of food or supplying warmth during cold weather.
4. Diseased animal burning when such burning is the most effective means or controlling the spread of disease.

5. On-site burning of trees, brush, grass, and other dry plant growth in rural areas when no practical alternative to burning exists for right-of-way maintenance and land clearing operations.

All land on which burning is to be conducted shall be registered with the appropriate Regional Office of the TACB and its location identified on a US Geological Survey map or equivalent. The person who owns or controls the land must also submit a legal description of the land boundaries and identify significant points such as roads, canals, lakes and streams and the method by which access is made to the site.

Prior to any burning, approval must be obtained from the appropriate Regional Office. Notification of the burning may be verbal or written and must identify the specific area and block to be burned, estimated acreage, start and end time of the burn, and a person who can be contacted during the burn period.

American Legion, VFW Pay Tribute To Veterans

Saturday morning Troy Page, Alfredo Anzaldua, Robert Clark, Joe T. Gonzales, Jack Riles, Ancel Ashford and Bill Kael, all members of the local American Legion and VFW (Veterans of Foreign Wars) put a new wreath at the Veterans Memorial Monument, on the Court House lawn, before beginning their all day task of visiting all area cemeteries, paying tribute to all the veterans.

On Monday morning, Memorial Day, a day to honor all veterans, members of Muleshoe VFW Post No 8570 were up early replacing a flag that person(s) unknown stole from the VFW. While replacing the flag the VFW Commander, Bob Clark, and workers ask themselves, What kind of person would steal a flag?

VFW members who worked in replacing the flag included: Bob Clark, Joe Ambriz, Randy Anderson, Joe Villarreal, D.T. Garth, Buddy Blackman, Lonnie Wood, Mrs. Bob Clark and granddaughter, Natasha McIntosh, Mrs. Lonnie Wood and Mrs. D.T. Garth.

"A very special thank you goes to Frank and Barbara Mc Camish who came out with the Bailey County Electric truck to help us raise our new flag," said D.T. Garth. "Also to Larry Hall who was kind enough to help us to bring this event to the attention of the public."

Irrigated Crops Up: Dry Land Needs Rain

"Everything got off to a slow start," Curtis Preston, Bailey County Extension Agent, said in speaking of the area crops. The irrigated crops are planted and up, while the dry land crops are planted, waiting on a good rain.

"A small strip around Coyote Lake received a half inch of rain on May 16," said Preston. "Joe Wheeler received an inch."

Preston explained that this was enough to get the cotton up if they could get some more showers to keep it going.

"What the whole area needs is a good rain. We'll just have to keep hoping for a rain." Memories of last year's devastating spring weather, coupled with sparse rainfall and cooler than usual days this spring, gave way to full-speed planting in the 25 counties surrounding Lubbock, according to Joe Bryant, Extension Communication Specialist of Lubbock. Cuts in the federal Acreage Reduction Program have area crop watchers predicting that close to 3.24 million acres of cotton will be planted on the High Plains this season.

That's about 90,000 acres more than was anticipated in the area last year, before erratic weather throughout the growing season wiped out about two-thirds of the crop.

About 60-65 percent of the planting has been done, said Kater Hake, cotton agronomist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Lubbock said.

"The greatest delays are in the western part of the South Plains," he said.

Although subsoil moisture was generally good across the region this spring, surface moisture was lacking in most of the dryland area which makes up about 55 percent of the cotton acreage. Growers which irrigate began planting in late April but cool weather has delayed emergence.

A few dryland growers "planted dry", hoping for rainfall to germinate the seed and get it to a stand.

The week of May 15-20, wide ranging rainstorms swept the area. Of 28 official weather reporting stations across the High Plains cotton area, only six reported no rainfall in that period. Stations at Crosbyton, Lubbock and Post reported an inch or more.

"But many dryland fields in Cochran, Bailey and Hockley counties are still too dry to plant," Hake said. The southernmost part of Dawson County also is dry, he said.

Because of the cool weather, "many fields are taking 10 to 14 days for emergence," Hake said. He said this is evident by the small size of the cotyledons, the first leaves which emerge from the sprouted seed. Hake noted that Dr. Dan Krieg, agronomist at Texas

Fall Vote Expected On Boll Weevil Eradication Zones

Texas cotton farmers should expect to vote on the boll weevil eradication plan in the fall, according to Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry. The boll weevil eradication law, which provides for setting up eradication zones and the rules for dealing with the cotton pest, went on the books June 1. Farmers will vote by zone on whether to adopt the eradication plan. Prior to these elections, several legal steps must be taken in order to get the program running at full speed.

"We're very excited to have this law, and we want to make sure everything is in place to move as quickly as possible," Perry said. "We're working on the initial rules. Several steps must take place to get the program running, and we're doing what we can to expedite each step."

The first steps began with the creation of the Boll Weevil Advisory Committee. TDA named three cotton producers and three entomologists to the 12-member advisory committee.

The advisory committee's role is to advise the department on the rules designed to protect individuals, livestock, bees and wildlife in the eradication zones. It will also offer advice on the criteria the boll weevil eradication foundation must follow in developing rules and methods of treatment.

On June 1, organizations representing cotton growers could petition the commissioner to be the single group certified as the boll weevil eradication foundation (BWEF). This group will implement, the eradication law, conduct referenda to establish eradication zones, and conduct the elections to establish the BWEF board. Cotton growers in each zone will vote by mail or in the county extension office on whether or not to participate in the program at this time.

After TDA receives petitions requesting certification, a public hearing will be held to allow for input on certifying a group to form the BWEF.

After a petitioning organization is certified, it will conduct the referenda to establish eradication zones and a statewide board with each zone represented. Rules for conducting the elections will be adopted by TDA. Educational meetings will be held in each before the elections. A legal notice must appear in newspapers within the zone at least 45 days before the elections.

If a zone votes to be part of the eradication effort, when the board will set up rules regarding how the eradication plan will be conducted and what assessment cotton producers will pay to support the program. Public hearings and elections will be held on these matters.

Wheat Hardness Testing Device Draws Crowd At Area Ag Day

A concern for Texas and Oklahoma growers, said Dr. David Worrall, Experiment Station wheat breeder here, is how varieties popularly grown in this area, and all of Texas, will fare with the new device.

"In this area, for example, Chisholm has been for many years, one of our favorite varieties," Worrall said. He said it is excellent for grazing, has high grain yield and early maturity, although lacking a little in disease resistance. But with the new hardness testing device, Chisholm "too often classes as a soft red winter wheat, rather than as a hard red winter wheat," Worrall said. This will bring growers a lower price, he noted.

But Pudden says that, in the long run, the more accurate classification can help growers keep and expand their overseas markets. "If we're going to keep our foreign market, we're going to have to be at least as good as all our competitors," he said. He noted that overseas buyers are "quite concerned about hardness."

Worrall said the classification problem has evolved from changes in wheat varieties and intermixing of different wheat classes in shipments. "Our old classification system was based, more or less, on the shape of a wheat kernel. As you mixed different classes together, the kernel no longer resembled exactly the market class it came from," he explained.

The breeder said the release of a large number of new varieties every year for the past decade created too many different things for the old system to properly classify. So Congress mandated a task force to develop a new testing device. The Federal Grain Inspection Service, with the cooperation of several state agricultural experiment stations, devised the system shown at Texoma Ag Day here.

"The one I brought is a pilot model, one of six being evaluated this year," Pudden said. It's development was under the leadership of Dr. Charles Martin, agricultural engineer, and the staff of the USDA Grain Marketing Research Center at Manhattan, Kan.

Once the evaluation is complete and the device accepted, it will go into commercial production.

Wheat growers from the Texas Rolling Plains and southwestern Oklahoma got their first look here at a new device which in the next few years may have a dramatic effect on which wheat varieties are planted in their states.

Most of the nearly 300 visitors at the Texoma Ag Day here (May 20) watched intently at the display where Robert Pudden, Extension specialist in milling and baking quality assurance at Kansas State University, Manhattan Kan., demonstrated a prototype of a new wheat hardness tester. The Ag Day program was hosted by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station at its research facility here.

The new machine is expected to be in general use at grain elevators in the next two or three years. It measures and records the hardness, protein content and moisture of individual wheat kernels. "It tests each kernel and can check roughly 300 kernels within 10 minutes," Pudden said.

Older, Divorced Women Financially Vulnerable In Retirement

A news briefing to discuss the effect of divorce and the role of pensions on the economic security of older women was held Thursday, May 20, 1993 at 8:45 a.m. in B 352 Rayburn House Office building.

Half of all older women living alone have incomes below 150% of the poverty level and three-fourths of all the elderly poor are older women. Divorce is one of the ways in which older women are thrown into poverty.

Today's older women grew up during a time in which many women were lifelong homemakers with no pension of their own and relied on their husband's pension. Divorce, however, jeopardizes women's opportunity for a secure retirement. The divorce rate for women over 50 rose 32 percent over the last twenty years. For marriages for more than 30 years' duration, the rate nearly doubled.

Two new publications to be released by AARP document the devastating financial impact of divorce on older women and discuss some of the obstacles older women face in trying to obtain a fair share of the pension benefits they helped to earn during the marriage.

Letter to the Editor

May 21, 1993

Dear Editor:

The most positive view toward resolving the continuing turmoil in our public schools is to see the threatened termination of school funding as an excellent opportunity to restructure public education as a friend of Texas families.

Local options for more centralized control of our schools may be better than no options but the proposed legislation will inevitably result in the further reduction of support for government run schools. Genuine family involvement in the learning enterprise will do wonders for the public's attitude toward our schools and their cost.

As an alternative to further regimentation of government schools, the following financially focused outline to restructure our schools is offered:

1. Legislatively affirm that in Texas a child's parent(s) continue(s) to be the primary educator(s).

2. By phases, limit taxation of local property to criteria acceptable to the Supreme Court of Texas.

3. Empower parents to appropriate up to 65% of their student(s)' State-sourced funds for core education actually delivered to such student(s), without discrimination against the source of such education.

4. Based on a formula generated from an annual report card(s) confidentially filed by parent(s) with the Texas Education Agency, require local school districts to refund to the State a weighted percentage of funds allocated for the benefit of such student(s).

5. Integrate advance placement and individualized curriculums in consultation with parents or an appropriate surrogate.

Texans will almost certainly support the funding of quality education which is not antagonistic to our ethic and values. Subject to genuine parental empowerment, replenishment sources of funding can be proposed which the Governor and Legislature seemingly have not considered to date.

As the Legislature works through these important issues, citizens are encouraged to communicate their informed opinions on repairing our public schools with their State Representative, State Senator, Governor Richards and members of their local school board. Also, it is suggested that such communication include support for the temporary suspension of public school operations during the summer while a family-friendly consensus beneficial to students, parents, teachers and taxpayers is negotiated in a Special Session of the Legislature totally devoted to public education.

Yours very truly,

Rembrandts are great. But all you can do is look at them! At last, someone's come up with a collection of fine art that's fun, too.

IT'S TEXAS TREASURES FROM THE TEXAS LOTTERY!!!!!!

Scratch the Mona Lisa and what do you get? A stiff fine? Maybe a jail sentence? Or worse!!!!

And just look at the craftsmanship poured into these pieces. Brown mountains! Blue skies! Green grass! That kind of attention to detail usually costs thousands of dollars!! But if you act

Six Good Reasons To Vote For Kay Bailey Hutchison For U.S. Senate

1. Her budget as State Treasurer is down by 8%, yet she still earned more for the taxpayers than ever in the state's history.
2. As a small business owner, she will fight taxes and push for more spending cuts.
3. Her #1 priority is reducing the federal deficit by cutting spending, not by raising taxes.
4. She's for across-the-board cuts in the $300 billion the Federal government spends for overhead and has a plan to save $1 trillion by limiting the growth of spending.
5. Kay is a strong supporter of term limits and reform of Congress.
6. She wants to stop frivolous lawsuits that clog our courts and drive up health care costs.

Abused Children Experience Anxiety Disorder

Some children living through abuse and neglect suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), commonly associated with combat veterans.

PTSD, an anxiety disorder resulting from a stressful or traumatic event, can also affect burn, earthquake and flood victims as well as victims of rape and other violence.

Not all abused children will develop it, said Dr. Bruce Perry, a psychiatrist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"The child's age and the frequency and type of abuse make a difference," Perry said. "But, when the abuse involves life-threatening terror and physical violence, PTSD is common."

The children's bodies often operate at a low-level fear stage, Perry said. They have higher heart and breathing rates, disturbed sleep, high blood pressure and increased muscle tone.

"Their brains have adapted to survive in an unpredictable, violent world; however, that makes it hard to cope in healthy environments," he said.

Yeltsin claims "massive support" from voters.

The Don And Sybil Harrington Cancer Center Schedules Mobile Mammography

On Monday, July 26, 1993, from 10:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital Mobil Mammography Unit will be in Muleshoe at South Plains Health Care Providers, Inc., 119 East Ave. C. Exams are done by appointment only. For more information or to schedule an appointment call 1-800-377-HOPE (4673) or (806) 359-4673.

The total cost of the screening is $70.00 This includes the x-ray, physical breast exam, and the radiology fee for reading the mammogram. Funding has been provided by the Texas Department of Health to allow for free breast screenings for women who qualify.

The major goal of the clinic is the early detection of breast cancer. The clinic provides low cost screening which includes a breast exam by a Registered Nurse trained in breast cancer detection, teaching of breast self-examination, and a mammogram. Currently, the most effective method known to win the battle against breast cancer is early detection. Early detection is best done by following the guidelines recommended by the American Cancer Society for breast cancer screening for women who have no signs or symptoms of breast cancer. The guidelines are:

1. Learn and perform breast self-examination every month.
2. Have a physical examination every year.
3. Have a mammogram according to recommendations by age:

AGE

40-49: A mammogram every 1 to 2 years

50 & over: Yearly mammograms

Diet Especially Important To Teen Athletes

Diet is an important factor in teenage athletes' performance, but many teens have poor and irregular eating habits.

To keep energy reserves "topped up", a well-balanced diet should be divided into three meals and at least two between-meal snacks, said Dr. Marta Fiorotto of the USDA's Children's Nutrition Research Center at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

She recommends against eating candy for quick energy, preferring granola, peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, bananas, low-fat milk or dried fruits.

All young athletes should drink plenty of water to replace fluids lost through perspiration. Fiorotto suggests a cup of cold water every 20 minutes while working out to prevent dehydration, heat cramps, and heat exhaustion.

Surgical Procedure Could Help Asthmatics

A simple surgical procedure may help asthmatics who suffer from sinobronchial syndrome.

Sinobronchial syndrome occurs when patients are treated for an asthma attack but not for the clogged sinuses that triggered the attack, causing the asthma to repeatedly return.

Endoscopic surgery can clear the sinus drainage canals, said Dr. Gene Alford, an otorhinolaryngologist at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

A tube with a tiny cutting device attached at the end is inserted through the nose. Through a "telescope", the surgeon opens the sinus' bony channels and removes excess mucosa, the moist tissue lining the sinus cavity. In asthmatic or people with allergies, the tissue swells, causing the channels to close.

Endoscopic surgery is easier on patients than is standard sinus surgery which leaves large incisions, bruising and swelling, Alford said.

Duke TIP Program Sponsors Recognition Ceremony For Local Gifted Students

TIP, the Duke University Talent Identification Program, is sponsoring a recognition ceremony to honor some of Texas' most talented seventh-graders. The ceremony will be held at 2:00 p.m. on June 10 at University of North Texas' Music Concert Hall in Denton.

Dustin Weir, son of Doyle and Debbie Weir, who attends Lazbuddie Jr. High will be one of 627 students recognized for their academic achievement.

Exceptional academic talent is a precious national resource that is often undervalued or ignored in our society," said TIP's executive director Dr. David Goldstein. "For many outstanding young people, recognition from TIP is an important source of support and encouragement for their efforts."

All students attending the ceremony scored as well or better than the average college-bound high school senior on either the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Testing Assessment (ACT). These tests are administered as part of an annual Talent Search. In 1992-93, the program identified almost 62,000 seventh-graders, nearly a six-fold increase from the original Talent Search in 1980.

TIP's Talent Search identifies seventh-graders in sixteen states in the Southeast, Midwest and Southwest who have scored in the top three percent on a national achievement test. Students participate by taking either the SAT or ACT. TIP provides all Talent Search participants with information about their abilities and about educational options open to them. TIP conducts recognition ceremonies in each of its sixteen states. These ceremonies are the largest of their kind in the nation with nearly 32,000 parents, students, and teachers attending in 1992.

Danger; Sun Shine!

Sunny Texas is a wonderful place to be in the summer-if one is careful about the sun.

Dermatologists at the University of Texas-Southwestern Medical Center at Dallas, warn that even the winter sun can cause skin cancer if one gets too much exposure. Summer sun can be devastating, even to people with dark skin.

Dr. Amit Pamdya, assistant professor of dermatology there, says fair skinned people are at most risk to sun damage. He adds, however, that hispanics and others with dark skin also are susceptible to skin cancer if they fail to use sun screen and get too much exposure to the sun's rays.

He says cancer isn't the only danger. The sun also can cause the appearance of premature aging. This results from a lifetime of prolonged exposure rather than a few bad sunburns, he says.

Experts: high doses of vitamin E may lower risk of heart disease.

Talent Search participants receive a variety of educational materials and publications. A results summary and counseling guide help students interpret their scores and provide suggestions for using their ability more effectively. TIP's publications help students find out more about academic opportunities and about the needs and interests of people like themselves. These publications include a guide to educational opportunities, a newsletter, and a magazine on college choices mailed to TIP students in the tenth grade.

TIP is a nonprofit, educational organization designed to identify and develop academic talent. Over the past decade, TIP has established itself as the largest program of its kind in the nation. Since 1980, over one-half million students from all parts of the world have taken part in a TIP program. The program receives support from student fees and donations from individuals, corporations, and foundations.

Parents and students interested in TIP's Talent Search should contact the Duke University TIP office for more information, telephone (919) 684-3847.

Host Families Sought For International High School Students

American host families are being sought for high school students from Western and Eastern Europe, Asia, South America, and Australia for the 1993-94 school year in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

These exceptional students, ages 15 through 18, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school and return to their home countries in June of 1994. The students, all fluent in English, have been carefully screened by the local representatives in their home countries, and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

Host families participating in this program may deduct $50 per month for income tax purposes.

African-Americans At Risk For Kidney Damage

Practical lifestyle changes could reduce risks of kidney damage among diabetic and hypertensive blacks.

Diabetes and hypertension are the leading causes of kidney failure, particularly in African-Americans, said Dr. Wesson of Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

Wesson recommends these lifestyle changes:

- * Cutting back on salt
- * Limiting alcohol consumption
- * Eliminating tobacco use
- * Controlling weight
- * Eating more potassium-rich foods such as fresh fruits and vegetables and avoiding canned foods
- * Exercising

Recent studies suggest that diabetic and hypertensive African-Americans are four to five times more susceptible to developing kidney disease than are whites with the disorders.

Au Revoir, Texas

A century ago, hundreds of residents of other states posted a "GIT" sign (meaning "Gone to Texas") and headed here to seek their fortune. Many found the pot of gold at the foot of the Texas rainbow.

Now many professors at the state's public colleges and universities are looking north, east and west--and with good reason.

Average salaries for faculty here are 11.5 percent less than in the 10 other most populous states.

The average professor in Texas will earn $44,636 teaching this year, according to the Texas High Education Coordinating Board.

On the Issues

A Four-part Series

On the Issues, a provocative four-part series hosted by NBC News veteran John Chancellor, goes beyond the headlines to probe the bottom-line pressures and ethical dilemmas that are driving corporate America and the nation's economy.

Each one-hour program brings together a cast of individuals from U.S. senators to corporate CEOs, and from consumer advocates to media celebrities, to consider a hypothetical scenario that provokes candid, engaging, and at times startling discussion.

The series premieres with "Washington Under the Influence." Some claim that power and influence can be bought. Others feel that business is often the target of unjust reprimand. The panel follows the trail of lobbyists, press leaks, and PAC money as a corporation faces Senate hearings following allegations that the company's popular product causes injury.

In "Sexual Politics at Work," the second program, a panel engages in a discussion of sexual harassment and the role of business as arbitrator between the sexes.

"Battles in the Boardroom" and "Products on Trial," programs three and four respectively, give viewers insight into decisions that are usually made behind closed doors—decisions that affect stock values, consumer prices, unemployment, and product safety.

On the Issues will air Fridays at 9:00 p.m. beginning June 11th on KENW-TV.

George Marshall and the American Century

George Marshall, who led the Allied victory in World War II and created the Marshall Plan to rebuild Europe after the war, has remained an almost forgotten hero of the 20th century. He is the subject of a 90-minute documentary, George Marshall and the American Century.

The documentary traces the remarkable drama of the world's only soldier to receive the Nobel Peace Prize—a powerful yet modest patriot who served as Chief of Staff of the U.S. Army, Secretary of State, Secretary of Defense, and as President of the American Red Cross.

Ironically, Marshall had considered quitting his military career when after 16 years of service he had risen only to the rank of first lieutenant. Then came America's involvement in World War I, when Marshall was promoted to captain. As Chief of Operations under Gen. John J. Pershing, Commander of the American forces in Europe, Marshall helped plan the great American offensive, including the unprecedented logistical feat of moving 220,000 French troops, 600,000 Americans, 3,000 big guns, and 900,000 tons of supplies—all in secrecy. FDR elevated Marshall to the position of army Chief of Staff.

George Marshall and the American Century will be broadcast Tuesday, June 8th at 10:30 p.m.

No Aggie Joke Either

Thanks to researchers at Texas A&M University, the flush-less toilet may be in America's future.

A team of Aggie scientists are working to develop a toilet that will break down human waste into usable gases. Its first use will be for astronauts to use on long space missions where disposing of human waste is a problem.

The space age toilet will use solar energy to electrolyze waste into hydrogen, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide. The carbon dioxide can be used by plants to produce oxygen; hydrogen in a fuel cell to generate electricity and water and the nitrogen can be released harmlessly into the cabin of the space ship.

If the experiment proves successful, A&M scientists say the technology could be used to treat any kind of waste in space or on Earth.

"In a half century, it could replace sewage systems completely," said Ramesh C. Bhardwaj, a chemist and one of the principal investigators.

It probably would be used at first in vans, ships, airplanes and portable toilets, and later could become standard plumbing in homes. The estimated cost of the units: $150.

"At this time, the emerged crop is highly vulnerable to adverse weather," Hake cautioned. "If the last days of May are hot, with temperatures near 95 degrees Fahrenheit, many plants with seedling disease will dry out and die. If the weather stays cool and wet, more plants will become infected and existing infections will become severe."

Vietnam: Looking Back

The Vietnam War was a chaotic and misguided affair, most Americans now agree. President Lyndon Johnson led us into the quagmire with false information about an alleged attack on the U.S. Navy.

President Richard Nixon sought to extract U.S. forces, and did; at the time of this ill-fated agreement with Hanoi, U.S. armed forces had prevailed over the North Vietnamese. But Congress unwisely gave North Vietnam a major boost when it voted to bar any further action in South Vietnam. (The South Vietnamese regime was already corrupt and might not have survived, but this vote was a certain death sentence.)

President Clinton now seeks to normalize relations with Vietnam, but a recent reliable revelation that North Vietnam held 614 U.S. prisoners of war never accounted for has slowed that process, properly so.

Until some explanation of the fate of the 614 Americans secretly held is forthcoming, closer ties with North Vietnam would be an insult to the surviving families of those Americans who gave their lives, probably under brutal circumstances, for democracy and their country. Denials from Hanoi about the 614 Americans are unconvincing.

Misery seeks not man, but misery. —Frances Burney.

Veterans

a veteran could be anyone. Whoever they were, wherever, whenever and however they served, they are America's veterans: They are the men and women who were either drafted or volunteered, who served in the Guard and the Reserves prior to federal duty, and those who chose military service to their country as a career.

Among the benefits service to their country earned them is the honor of burial in one of the 114 National Cemeteries administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs. Nationwide, more than two million Americans rest in National Cemeteries, Soldiers Lots, Confederate Cemeteries and Monuments. Overseas in 24 American Battle Monuments cemeteries, 125,000 American casualties are interred. More than one million have died in service to their country.

National Cemeteries at El Paso, Houston, Kerrville, and San Antonio conducted 5,558 burials in Fiscal Year 1992.

Throughout the national cemetery system, famous men, and the unknown rest side by side in the national cemeteries.

Women veterans, spouses and certain dependents are buried in national cemeteries.

Special headstones featuring gold lettering mark the gravesites of the 305 recipients of the Medal of Honor buried in VA National Cemeteries.

About 1,200,000 lost their lives in battle, and, since World War I, 34,400 have died while a prisoner of war. Many have died of service-connected problems and those who have died the more natural deaths, having served their country, are no less America's heroes.

Memorial Day reminds us that this Nation deeply appreciates its defenders of freedom.

Common Sense, Not Emotionalism Needed In Irradiation Debate

In Miami shoppers had to cross picket lines when irradiated strawberries were offered for sale. In Maine and New York opposition groups have successfully lobbied for an irradiated food ban, and in Washington, D.C., opponents slipped a skull and crossbones drawing into an irradiated chicken display.

Clearly, irradiation—a food preservation method in use for the past several decades—has generated a flood of emotions and opposition. This opposition is occurring even though virtually the entire international scientific community, the World Health Organization and 37 nations, including the United States, have accepted irradiation as a harmless and beneficial way to kill illness-causing bacteria and to keep food from spoiling.

Why are we in the United States shying away from this preservation method that might have prevented the recent food-borne illness outbreak on the Pacific Coast? I say it's because we've allowed emotionalism to take the place of science, common sense and logic.

Because all of our food comes from natural sources—animals or crops grown in soil—bacteria, molds, and insects are inherent components of the food chain. Irradiation won't completely sterilize our food or eliminate the need for careful food handling and cooking, but it will reduce food-borne illness.

For instance, we all must realize that no matter how many additional measures the U.S. Department of Agriculture takes to upgrade our meat inspection system—the world's safest already—illness causing bacteria such as E. Coli cannot be visually identified from a physical inspection. That's why irradiation is needed for red meat processing.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has already approved of certain conditional uses of irradiation on poultry, pork, spices, fruits, vegetables, and grains. And the federal government is welcoming research that re-examines irradiation's use on beef and other red meat following the Pacific Coast tragedy. But consumer suspicion roused by opposition groups is holding many in the food industry back from taking advantage of this approved method that offers numerous benefits.

Despite its name, irradiation does not make food radioactive or leave a radioactive residue. Irradiation uses rays from a radiation source to kill health-threatening insects, molds, and bacteria. Another benefit, particularly for fresh fruits and vegetables, is extended shelf life for products.

Irradiation opponents argue that the treated food is robbed of nutrition and may contain harmful by-products. Some negligible nutritional loss may occur as with any food preservation method, such as extended cold storage. But insignificant nutritional losses do not keep us from refrigerating fruits and vegetables, and it shouldn't deter us from irradiation either. In addition, numerous studies conducted during the last 30 years have found irradiation by-products to be similar to and as safe as natural food components.

Confusion over irradiation's safety is understandable with so many interest groups using scare tactics to keep irradiated products out of your supermarket. And obviously having your food tinkered with can raise questions, even if it is a significant improvement over common preservation methods. After all, people did not immediately embrace pasteurized milk or canned and microwaved foods. But we need to recognize that irradiation offers great benefits for our food supply system. To turn away from this method now would be a great shame. Emotionalism is not needed in this debate. Science, mixed with a big dose of common sense, is.

State Capital

HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams and Ed Sterling
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The Senate, trying again to end the state's school finance crisis, last week approved a compromise funding plan that would give high-wealth school districts several options to share their property taxes.

Senators approved the legislation 25-6. A House vote was expected at least two days before the session ends May 31, and Gov. Ann Richards has indicated that she will sign the measure when it reaches her desk.

The Senate action came five days before the June 1 deadline set by the Texas Supreme Court for revamping the $15 billion-a-year school finance system.

The share-the-wealth proposal would shift $400 million to $600 million a year in property tax revenues from 109 high-wealth districts.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock predicted the plan — which originated in the House — would meet with the court's approval.

"We have adopted the House plan, which I believe will meet the court order that threatened to close our schools," Bullock said.

Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, chairman of the Senate education committee, also was optimistic. "I absolutely believe this comes as close as humanly possible to meet the test (of the court)," he said.

Bill Provides Five Choices
These are the five choices that high-wealth districts would have under the equalization plan:

- Send property tax revenues to the state to pay for educating students in low-wealth districts.
- Contract with specific low-wealth districts to help fund their educational programs.
- Set up a new taxing district that includes the property of the high-wealth and one or more low-wealth districts.
- Consolidate voluntarily with one or more districts with less property wealth.
- Transfer some business and commercial property to the tax rolls of low-wealth districts.

The first three options require approval of voters in the districts. If, by October 1993, a district did not select one of the options or voters reject one of the options, the district would be forced to take the last choice, giving up some business and commercial property.

Tough Penal Code
Anti-crime legislation designed to keep violent offenders in prison longer and curb stealing and drug use was approved last week by the Senate. The House is expected to approve the measure.

Services Held For Elmer Johnston

Service for Elmer Johnston, 78, of Portales, NM were held Wednesday, June 2, 1993 at 10:30 at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Portales, with Rev. Jim Green of Lubbock, officiating.

Burial was in Sudan Cemetery, under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home, Sudan.

Mr. Johnston died May 31, 1993 at his residence in El Paso, Hospice Care.

He was born October 20, 1914 in Sudan, TX, and married Laura Inez Nixon, February 9, 1936 in Spade, TX.

He had been a resident of Portales, NM since 1943. He was a farmer and a member of Emmanuel Baptist Church in Portales.

He was preceded in death by a brother, Clifford in 1952.

Survivors include his wife, Laura Inez Johnston of Portales; one son, Curtis Leon Johnston of Denton; one daughter, Lois LaNell Linder of El Paso; three brothers, Elvin Johnston of Amarillo, Kenneth Johnston of Kingston, OK and A.M. Johnston of Huron, SD; four sisters, Ruby Shannon of Sudan, Laura West of Littlefield, Arlene Sanders of Sacramento, CA, and Elva Mae Hollingsworth of Kreman, CA; four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

line and toughen punishments in Texas' criminal laws. The legislation also calls for construction of 20,000 cells in a new system of state jails for nonviolent convicts.

Under the bill, the penal code will mandate that the most violent lawbreakers — people convicted of murder, aggravated robberies, rapes, kidnapping and assaults with weapons — must serve at least half of their sentence. They now must serve only a fourth of their sentence.

"Hard work and perseverance have paid off," Lt. Gov. Bullock said after the package passed. "This legislation will do more than anything that has been done at anytime in the last 20 years to make Texas a safer place to live."

Texas Lottery Success
The Texas Lottery marked its first anniversary May 29, and state officials say it's been a year in which sales topped all projections.

State Comptroller John Sharp, whose office oversees the game, initially opposed the state-sanctioned gambling. "If we're going to have one, I'm certainly proud it's been a success," Sharp said.

The games were expected to bring the state $461 million during the two-year budget cycle ending Aug. 31. State proceeds hit $580 million in mid-May, and the profit now is projected at $731 million, 58 percent higher than originally estimated, Sharp said.

'Harmless Tax' Bill Passed

The Senate has approved a bill that would end the state's practice of paying its employees' share of their Social Security taxes. The bill, by Sen. Teel Bivins, R-Amarillo, would save the state $29 million over the next two years.

Bivins said employees "would be held harmless" because their pay would be increased to offset the Social Security taxes. However, new employees would not receive the same benefit.

The state began paying employees' share of the taxes in 1983 as a way of giving them a benefit that, officials assumed, would not be taxed, Bivins said. But it turned out that federal income taxes did apply, he said.

Other Highlights

■ The Senate sent a bill to Gov. Richards last week that would allow Texas, Maine and Vermont to dump radioactive waste at a site in Hudspeth County, about 90 miles east of El Paso. An aide said the governor likely would sign the bill. Maine and Vermont each would be charged $25 million.

■ Attorney General Dan Morales has been appointed by President Clinton to the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars. The 27-member commission will select 141 graduating high school seniors from around the country to be Presidential Scholars.

■ Only days before the June 5 special U.S. Senate election, a poll by The Dallas Morning News shows Republican Kay Bailey Hutchison leading interim Sen. Bob Krueger 54 percent to 35 percent.

Hutchison's Health Care Plan: Health Care For The Young, The Rich And The Healthy

U.S. Senator Bob Krueger said today Kay Bailey Hutchison's health care plan will eliminate employer-based health care and force Texans to fend for themselves when it comes to finding and paying for their health care coverage.

"By eliminating the tax incentive for businesses to provide insurance, Hutchison is effectively eliminating employer-based health care programs that at least 142 million Americans depend on," Krueger said.

Krueger said employer-based plans average the cost of providing health care by off-setting the higher costs of serving some with the lower costs of serving others. As a result, more people have access to health care. The Hutchison proposal would end these plans, leaving millions of Texans to fend for themselves.

"Only people who are young, healthy and rich would be able to purchase the best health care plans available. The rest of us will be forced to pay high prices for low quality care. Insurance companies would be free to raise costs at the current rate, drop sick Texans and refuse people with pre-existing conditions.

"The big winner under Hutchison's 'every man for yourself' plan is big business, because they would no longer offer employee insurance plans."

Krueger said many Texans couldn't take advantage of Hutchison's proposed tax credits because they don't take itemized deductions on their income tax forms. Currently, 1.17 million Texans use the 1040 EZ short tax form.

"Even if you qualify for the Hutchison plan, you better be prepared to fill out the IRS's long form to get her tax deduction.

Krueger said the average health plan costs approximately $3,000. "So far, Kay hasn't said just how much she would be willing to spend on tax credits, so we have no way of knowing how much her plan will add to the deficit or how much Texas families will have to pay after their tax credits."

Krueger said he favors an immediate freeze on prescription drug prices and insurance premiums. Doctor and hospital costs would be subject to a voluntary price cap; if that doesn't work those costs, too, would be frozen by law.

Krueger said he would never accept the two-tier plan Hutchison proposed "because it would give space age care to the wealthy and stone-age care to everybody else."

"The only difference between Hutchison's plan and the status quo is that thousands of Texans stand to lose the health insurance their employers now provide and those Texans that do qualify could very well pay more for their health insurance," Krueger added.

News From Congressman Larry Combest

Congressional allies of President Clinton's tax plan denied taxpayers the possibility of killing the $70 billion Clinton Energy Tax—even before a vote was allowed in the U.S. House of Representatives. Congressman Larry Combest (R-Texas) noted that the move preventing amendments to kill the Btu tax could be explained in terms of the TV game show, "Let's Make a Deal."

"A taxpayer's Congressman was only allowed to choose Door Number One, with the largest tax increase in history and runaway spending fueled by the Clinton Energy Tax," said Combest. "I am highly dissatisfied with the conduct of those who wheeled and dealt away the public's option for a vote on killing the $70 billion energy tax."

Combest explained that the eight Democrat members of the agenda-setting Rules Committee out-voted the three Republican members, blocking the possibility of any amendment against the tax. The three Rules Committee Republicans had asked that the 435-member House be allowed to debate and then vote on removing the Btu tax from the Clinton plan. During general debate, most of the 257 House Democrats sided with the Rules Committee's decision to allow a separate vote on whether to remove the Btu tax.

"Keeping the bad Btu tax in with the Clinton budget makes an even stronger case against his whole tax-and-spend plan," said Combest.

Have A Whale Of A Time In St. Louis!

This 32-foot-long sperm whale is one of five life-size robotic sea mammals featured in a special exhibit at the St. Louis Science Center.

(NAPS)—One of the most extraordinary sights on the face of the earth is five spectacular whales that have surfaced in St. Louis. Five life-size robotic whales allow visitors to discover the mysteries and facts surrounding these amazing mammals in the exhibit, "Whales: Giants of the Deep," at the St. Louis Science Center June 12—September 6, 1993. The exhibit re-creates a gray whale, humpback whale, narwhal, killer whale and 32-foot-long sperm whale. Visitors can see how they move, hear their special sounds, and even try on a "whale suit" to get an inside feel for these colossal sea animals. Developed by the Pacific Science Center and sponsored in St. Louis by Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. and its Sea World parks, the exhibit builds appreciation for whales through firsthand experience. A live remote enables visitors to walk periodically with Sea World trainers in Orlando. Videos feature whales in their natural environment. Visitors can enjoy other learning opportunities, including the comparison of whale and human anatomy, how whales use sonar and spout through blowholes.

Youngsters will want to visit the special Children's Discovery Area featuring marine mammal activities. A gift shop features a wide variety of whale-related items. Exhibit admission: Adults, $2; children, ages 12 and under, and senior adults, $1. Groups of 20 or more receive a 50-cent discount per ticket. Free times: Tuesdays, 9:30 a.m.-noon; Saturdays, 5-9 p.m. Hours: Sunday-Tuesday, 9:30 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Wednesday-Saturday, 9:30 a.m.-9 p.m. For more information, call or write: St. Louis Science Center, 5050 Oakland Ave., St. Louis, MO 63110; 1/800-456-7572 or 314/289-4444.
