

MISD Board approves 1995-96 budget, tax rate

By Linda McGonagill

The MISD Board of Trustees held a meeting Monday, Aug. 28 at 7 p.m. to discuss and take action on several important items.

A hearing on the 1995-96 budget was held and was unanimously adopted by the board members. The total budget is $8,896,562. Aside from salaries, etc., this amount includes repairs, roofing, new construction and insurance.

The new tax rate was unanimously approved to be 1.2704 per $100, up slightly ($.0133) from the last increase in 1993.

There was discussion of the self-funded insurance plan. The district is in very good shape with this plan, and premiums have not gone up in five years. The board voted to renew unanimously.

Capital improvement projects in the near future include roofing and repair to roofing for all campuses, within approximately two years, construction of a new free-standing building for a weight room and construction of new tennis courts.

Future projects are being considered, such as renovation of the band hall and relocation of the bus barn to alleviate the heavy traffic congestion and allow more room for future expansion.

Assistant Superintendent Adrian Meador reported an increase in enrollment to just under 1,600 students. Due to the increased enrollment, additional text books have been ordered and a new bus has been added.

Meador also said the T-star satellite system is now available for MISD. It is used by teachers, administrators and students for training.

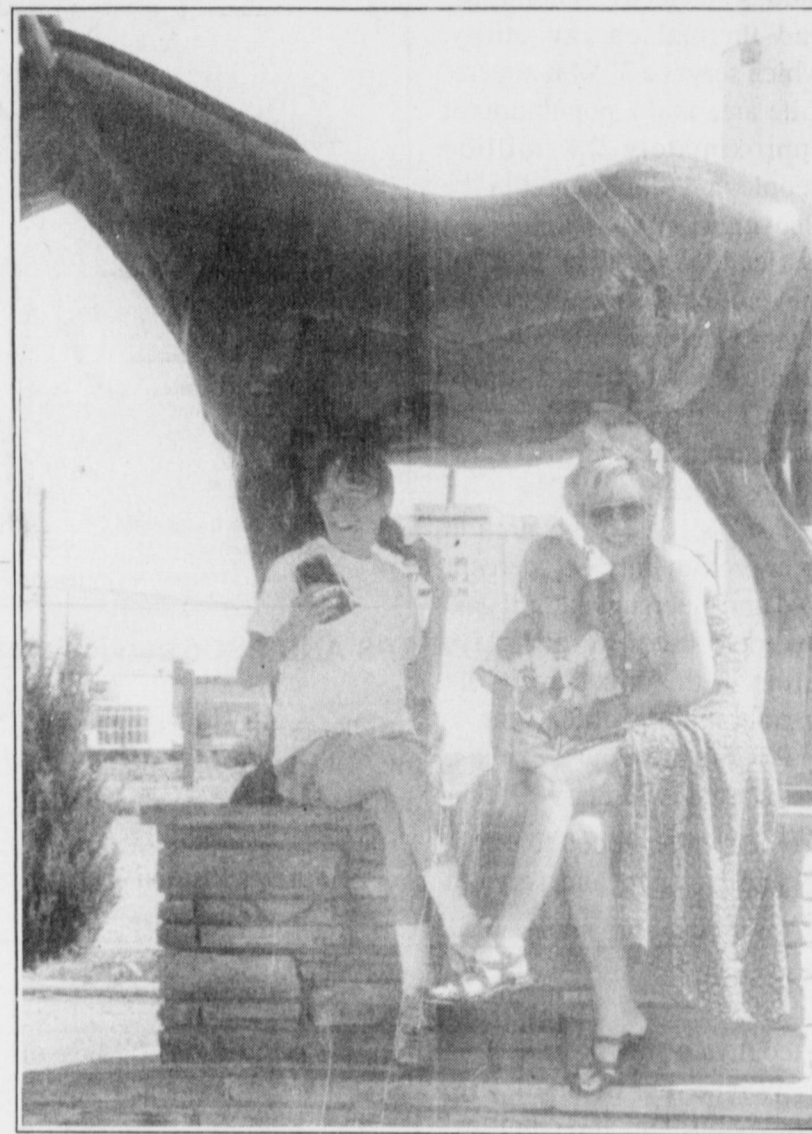

Meador told the board members that Coca-Cola

(Clovis) and Muleshoe State Bank have donated funds for a new scoreboard for the football stadium. The scoreboard will be put up as soon as it gets in.

The board expressed appreciation for such timely help, since the old scoreboard had been repaired so often, it was barely working.

Jo Mayhugh, the business manager for MISD, gave her report on taxes, bank and fund balances. She stated that all funds were solvent, and that 94.45 percent of the taxes owed to the school had been collected.

Meador reminded the board members that regarding the low performance rating for Muleshoe schools, the district will conduct a public hearing concerning the rating on Sept. 25, at the high school. At that time, all campuses will have action plans to present to the board.

Sitting pretty

These ladies are sitting pretty underneath the statue of "Old Pete," who has stood in his present location since July 3, 1965. The famous animal celebrated his 30th birthday quietly during Fourth of July festivities in Muleshoe. He will, no doubt, be honored during Muledays '95 this weekend.

Mules host Portales Friday in 1995 opener

The Muleshoe Mules will open the 1995 football season at home Friday when they host the Portales Rams at 8 p.m. in Benny Douglas Stadium.

The Rams have a week's experience on the Mules, having opened their season last week in Clovis. Portales took it on the chin 43-0 against the Wildcats, who are the defending New Mexico AAAA state champions and ranked No. 1 in the current New Mexico Associated Press poll.

Portales has a score to settle with Muleshoe, which last year rallied from a 19-7 deficit to beat the Rams 25-19 in Portales. The Rams suffered 16 penalties for 121 yards and the Mules forced four turnovers. It was one of two MHS victories last season.

The Rams have a new head coach in Bobby Crane, although he is no stranger to the Portales sidelines. Crane was defensive coordinator for two Portales AAA state title teams and the head coach for another in the mid-1980's.

Portales is led offensively by quarterback Raul Anaya, who had 105 yards against the Mules last season. Joining Anaya is tailback Kris Summers, who had 130 yards against MHS.

SPS & PSCo merger awaits stockholder approval

DENVER, CO and AMARILLO — The proposed definitive merger of Public Service Co. of Colorado, and Southwestern Public Service Company Public Service Co., based in Amarillo, awaits the approval of stockholders and various regulatory authorities.

The "merger of equals" unanimously approved by the boards of both companies would form a new energy-services holding company.

Bill D. Helton, SPS chairman and chief executive officer, and Del Hock, PSCo chairman and chief executive officer, said the anticipated $770 million savings during a 10-year period will allow the operating companies to provide "very competitive" electricity rates in both service areas for many years to come.

They said specific rate plans would be filed with appropriate state public utilities commissions and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission in the near future.

According to Helton, PSCo adds a faster-growing service-area economy, natural gas utility operations, and innovative approaches to information technology and energy services.

SPS brings strong generation and engineering, diversity of power plants and fuels, and success with wholesale markets and non-regulated generation products.

Hock noted that customers also would benefit from the adoption of the "best practices" of each company, the sharing of generating capacity and increased leverage in purchasing.

"We will have lower fuel costs for generation; we can defer additional generating capacity; and we can reduce total inventories," Hock said.

The new company will be a registered public utility holding company, which will be the parent company for both Public Service Co. of Colorado and Southwestern Public Service Company.

The corporate offices of the holding company will be in Denver, with significant operating functions based in Amarillo.

Patterson gets SPC award

Patterson worked with SPC vocational nursing students during their clinical training at the medical facility and was selected by the students for outstanding assistance. The students selected one person from each medical facility affiliated with the program for an award.

Vocational nursing pins were presented by Jennifer Ponto, R.N. and instructor in vocational nursing at SPC. White Bibles were presented by Mrs. Prentiss Rhyne, Gideon representative.

Guest speakers were Dr. Myrna Armstrong, professor of education at Texas Tech University, and Dr. Adolf Orina, a physician at South Park Hospital.

Cooperating hospitals and medical facilities which provide clinical training for SPC's vocational nursing students are Methodist Hospital-Levelland, Muleshoe Area Medical Center, South Park Hospital, Levelland Nursing Home, Brownfield Regional Medical Center and University Medical Center in Lubbock.

SPS & PSCo define functions, territories

DENVER, CO, and AMARILLO—SPS, based in Amarillo, is a regional electric utility that primarily provides service to a population of about one million people.

Its 52,000-square-mile service area is comprised of eastern and southeastern New Mexico, the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, the Oklahoma Panhandle the southwestern Kansas.

The company also made wholesale power sales to other electric systems in 15 states last year.

SPS's generating capacity is 52 percent coal-fueled and 48 percent from other fuels, primarily natural gas. The company has 12 power plants throughout its system.

SPS subsidiary Utility Engineering Corporation provides engineering, design and construction management services to a variety of industries.

Another subsidiary, Quixx

Corporation, is involved in a number of non-utility power generation projects, both nationally and internationally.

Public Service Co. of Colorado is an electric, natural gas and thermal energy utility, which serves a 32,000-square-mile area and a population of approximately 2.8 million people in Colorado and in the Cheyenne, WY, area.

Headquartered in Denver, the company operates eight steam-electric plants, nine hydroelectric facilities, a downtown Denver thermal energy service and an extensive natural gas system.

PSCo's fuel for generation is approximately 99 percent coal and 1 percent natural gas. Hydroelectric power also plays a role in this mix during the warmer months of the year.

PSCo's subsidiary, eprime, was started in January 1995 to provide value-added, energy-related products and services

SPS

SPS and PSCo will maintain their company headquarters in Amarillo and Denver, respectively. The board of the new holding company will consist of eight current directors from PSCo and six current directors from SPS.

Upon the completion of the merger in early 1997, Hock, who is 60 years old and PSCo chairman and chief executive officer, will retire.

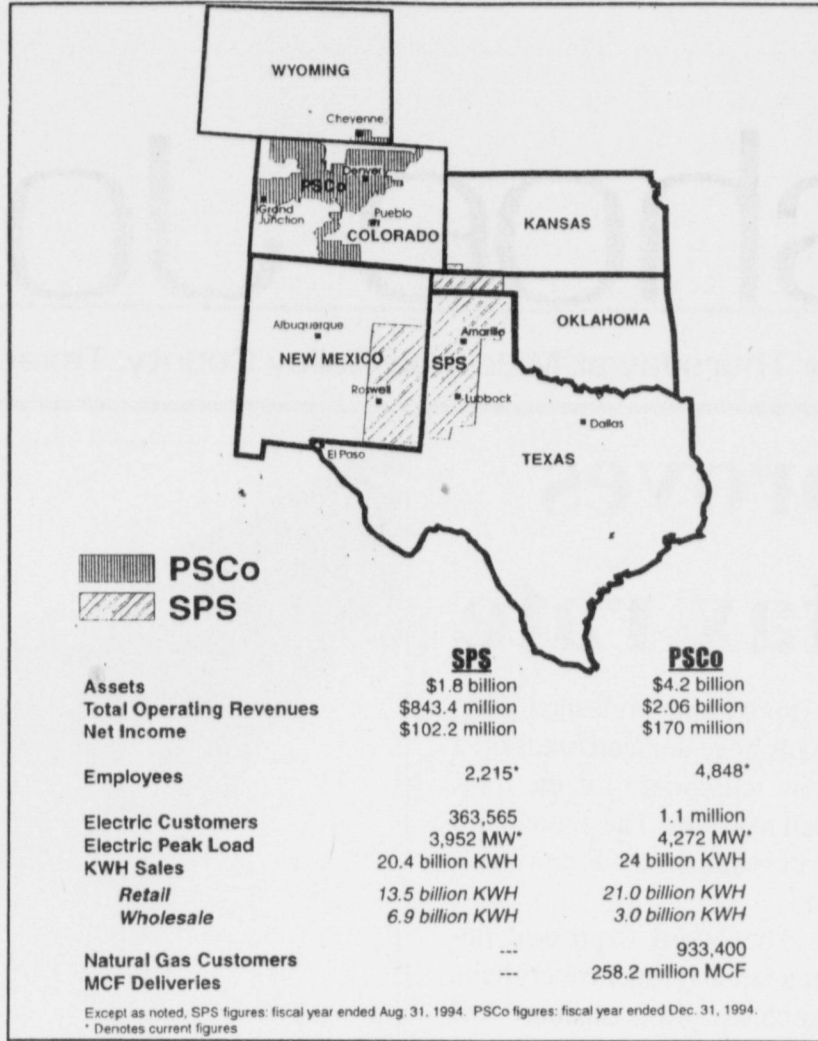

Helton, 56, will become the company's chairman and chief executive officer.

Wayne H. Brunetti, 52, PSCo president and chief operating officer, will become vice chairman, president and chief operating officer of the new company.

On June 30, 1999 (or two and a half years after the merger is completed, whichever comes later), Brunetti will assume the responsibilities of CEO and Helton will remain chairman.

On May 31, 2001, Helton will retire and Brunetti will as-to energy-using customers and to selected segments of the utility industry in the United States.

Another subsidiary, Natural Fuels Corp., is building an infrastructure for natural gas vehicles, and it sells compressed natural gas as a transportation fuel.

sume the responsibilities of chairman of the board.

The merger is subject to approval by the shareholders of both companies. It is also subject to the approval or regulatory review by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Justice, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and state regulators in Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Brunetti said the merger agreement has the key element to succeed. "I have long believed that if you can satisfy customers, you will be successful. This merger is unquestionably a step that enhances our ability to give our customers what they want and what they want most of all—low price," Brunetti said.

Cool temperatures affect the rate of growth in cotton

LUBBOCK — Most of us don't mind the cool temperatures in the spring and the fall, but for local farmers it can mean the difference between a bumper cotton crop and one that's not.

Dr. Norman Hopper, an associate professor of agronomy at Texas Tech University and a cotton research scientist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station here, is studying cold tolerance of cotton under grants funded by Cotton Incorporated and the Texas State Support committee. In addition, he is looking at a seed coating which may improve seedling emergence under cool conditions.

The high elevation in this area of over 3,000 feet above sea level means that this area may experience very cool temperatures during the spring and fall of the year.

"One of the problems we face in this area is that we have a short growing season. It is not particularly short in terms of the number of days from last frost in spring to first frost in the fall. We have an adequate number of days in terms of our growing season," Hopper said.

"When we talk of a short growing season, we are talking about it in terms of total heat units that are available to mature the crop. Because we often have these low spring and fall temperature conditions, this narrows us in on the number of heat units available," he explained.

In order to use as much of the heat units as possible to grow and mature the crop, we have to plant early. When planting early, we often run into cool spring temperatures, especially at night, Hopper said.

Cotton is basically a crop of tropical origin, and it likes warm temperatures.

When cotton is planted under cool conditions, it slows germination, emergence, establishment, and growth.

Hopper and his research team are trying to improve the emergence of cotton under cool conditions.

"There are several ways to approach this, and one is through genetics. We try to select lines that have what we call cold tolerance. That means they can germinate and emerge under cooler temperatures than, say, other lines and we can use those in a breeding program," Hopper said.

"We try to incorporate genes for cold tolerance into lines and varieties that will eventually have the genetic capacity to germinate and grow under cool conditions," he explained.

The second way is to look at some kind of physical method that will enhance germination and emergence.

"One of the things we are looking at is trying to identify why these early season cool temperatures tend to hurt germination and emergence. We know that as a dry seed imbibes (absorbs) cold water, cellular damage occurs, primarily to the membranes," Hopper said.

When seed membranes are damaged, one of two things will happen. If enough damage occurs, the seed will never germinate. The second, is that the seed will receive a certain amount of chilling injury.

It may or may not germinate and emerge. It will depend on how much injury there is. If the seed is injured, it is going to emerge slower than if no injury occurred.

"So one of the things we believe is happening is that as dry seeds imbibe cold water too fast, the membranes in the cell are cold and not very elastic. Since the membranes are cold and not very stretchable (brittle), they may rupture," Hopper said.

One of the things Hopper is looking at is polymer film coating. Polymer films form a coating on the seeds, slowing the water uptake and letting the cells stretch slowly instead of quickly under the cold conditions.

"Now we don't want to slow the imbibition a whole lot because this would also slow emergence. Slowing emergence would have the same effect as delaying planting and thus not utilizing the entire growing season," Hopper warned.

Some secondary things can happen too, the scientist noted.

When cells rupture they are dead. If enough of the cells rupture, then the seed dies or doesn't have the capacity to germinate. Anytime a seed is damaged but not killed, the vigor is reduced.

"The amount of vigor loss will determine whether the seed will survive and live. Anytime

He said he expected employee reductions would be approximately 8 percent of the consolidated work forces of both companies. That figure equals 550 to 600 positions out of the combined work forces of approximately 7,000 employees.

"We pledge to keep employees, customers, shareholders and regulators informed throughout this transition period," Brunetti said.

After the merger, a new transmission line will be built that connects SPS with PSCo through a high-voltage, direct-current interconnection.

Helton said the interconnection will enhance competition in the region's wholesale power markets and will make the generation and fuel savings possible.

Upon completion of the merger, the new company will serve approximately 1.5 million electric customers in Colorado, Texas, New Mexico, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Kansas. The company also will provide natural gas service to 933,000 customers in Colorado and Wyoming.

we've ruptured those cells like that, it may not be enough to keep it from coming up; meaning it can still go ahead and emerge," Hopper said.

Anytime a cell is ruptured, the contents of the cell actually spill out into the seed environment and—because the contents are very rich in amino acids and sugars—the contents become the perfect media for pathogenic organisms (such as fungus and bacteria) to grow and invade that seed and cause it to die.

"So what we are hoping to do with the polymer coating is to slow imbibition, thus, causing less damage to the seed—what we call imbibitional chilling injury. In addition, we won't have those cellular contents in the soil acting as a media for pathogenic organisms, both of which should give us a higher emergence," Hopper said.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Wilson

Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Wilson, of Muleshoe, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary, Sunday, Sept. 3, at the Muleshoe Heritage Center Depot, from 2-4 p.m. Wilson and the former Eloise Lindley were married September 16, 1945, in Earth. They have three sons, Lindell of Austin, Darrell of Lubbock and Preston of San Antonio. They also have four grandchildren. The Wilsons operate the Wilson Independent Insurance Agency in Muleshoe. All friends and neighbors are urged to come out and help them celebrate.

Senior Citizens meet Monday for luncheon

The Bailey County Senior Citizens met at the Depot for our regular covered dish luncheon, August 28.

The invocation was given by Clara Coffman. The salute to the flag was led by Buster Kittrel.

Twenty four were present, including three visitors, Fredda Schooler, Bill Moore and Martha Frost.

After a very good meal, Margaret Collins introduced Fredda Schooler. She is from the Pep School and gave a talk about the history of the school.

It was a vision Fredda had, how many would have a chance to start over, so they can finish and get jobs. One hundred six have finished. It is so good for those who want to go forward.

Buster read a poem from Ann Landers about people getting older. Two members had birthdays, Velma Howell and Margaret Collins.

It was voted to give $10 to the Cancer Fund in memory of Lester Howard. Katie Roubinek gave the benediction.

State Sculptor of Texas has been named

Garland A. Weeks of Mason, TX, has been designated the 1995 official State Sculptor of Texas by the 74th Legislature of the State of Texas in House Concurrent Resolution 190.

Garland A. Weeks was chosen on the basis of exhibiting exceptional ability in portraying the beauty of this state, facets of its history, and the proud spirit of its people through his bronze sculpture and life-size monuments.

State Representative Layton Black (D-Goldthwaite) Chairman of the Texas State Artist Nomination Committee states, "In recent years, the State of Texas has chosen to recognize outstanding artists by bestowing upon them titles of honor to serve as an encouragement to other talented artists. A work of art can immortalized for all time the spirit of the age and the cultural heritage by which it was inspired."

Weeks is a sixth-generation Texan whose great, great, grandfather, E.M. Weeks, served as state representative in the 23rd legislature of 1893 under Governor James E. Hogg.

Weeks says, "As the 2nd most populated state, we Texans need to show off our artistic heritage and attributes. As the Sculptor of Texas for 1995, I will spread the Texas word throughout the National Art Academies and Societies to which I belong".

Week's sculptures have been accepted and acclaimed across the nation. He has been invited to show his works in prestigious shows throughout the country.

The most recent invitation was extended by the National Sculpture Society's show "Westward Ho! American Sculpture", which was held January through May 1995 in New York City in the Americas Tower.

This presentation was an effort to bring the best of the West back to the attention of the Eastern Art Establishment.

Weeks is a member of National Sculpture Society, National Academy of Western Art, American Medallion Sculpture Association, British Art Medal Society, Texas Cowboy Artists Association, Texas Society of Sculptors, Southwest Sculpture Society, Society of Artists and Anatomists, Allied Artists of America (Associate), Professional Rodeo Cowboys Artist Association and Artist Member-Mountain Oyster Club of Tucson.

"I am a traditional, representational sculptor trying to capture the character and characters of the West, both past and present. The West, with its unique brand of people and places is what I know and love most" says Weeks.

"With my own style of design and sculptural application, I am bringing a fresher look to the western and non-western figurative genre of sculpture so eagerly sought after in today's aesthetically attuned society" says Weeks.

Upcoming events in Weeks' professional sculpting schedule include the completion of a life-size bronze sculpture for a public library in the Hill Country of Texas.

Along with a commission for a major registered cattle operation in the Midwest, Weeks will be presenting his sculpted creations at the "Governor's Invitational Art Show" in Cheyenne, WY, "Legacy of the West Art Show" in Jackson Hole, WY, "Sculpture in the Park" in Loveland, CO, as well as showing at the Haley Memorial Library in Midland, TX, and at the Museum of the Cherokee Strip in Enid, OK.

The selection of Garland A. Weeks to represent Texas as the 1995 Official Sculptor of Texas will bring much pride to the state through his timeless art, his rich sense of humor, gregarious nature and strong intellect, all of which represent the very best qualities of our state.

Weeks, a graduate of Texas Tech University and former resident of San Angelo, TX, is a native of Wichita Falls, TX, where his parents Glynn and Madeline Weeks still reside.

1995 Property Tax Rates in Lazbuddie ISD

This notice concerns 1995 property tax rates for Lazbuddie school district. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the school district used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the school district can set before it must hold a rollback election. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes and state funds by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Six birthdays celebrated at Muleshoe Area Healthcare Center

Rose Sneed (left), Arnold Beckett, Burley Locke, Bootie Tiller, Kathrine Rogers and Nell Parkinson (not pictured) celebrated August birthdays Thursday, Aug. 24, with a party in the day room for guests and other nursing home residents. Residents enjoyed festive decorations, balloons and gifts, along with music provided by Pat Watson and Yaunda Martin.

During the torrid days of summer, ones' energy can go to the dogs. According to folklore, even the mockingbird refuses to sing during these lethargic periods. For some of us though, dog days can last year around.

Our thanks to Jane Reeder for baking us a big batch of tea cakes.

Thursday afternoon Grace Scarbrough, Wennie Berry and Tennie McCormick came to play games with the residents. Grace brought home made rice Krispie treats for refreshments.

Friday afternoon Melvin Griffin and Chikie Hinderlight took Bootie Tiller and Jackie Davenport to the local library to view the doll show.

Sunday afternoon the New Covenant Church came for church services and visitation.

Tuesday afternoon Susan Anderson, Claudine Embry, Lanell Stancell, Mary Jo Archer and the activity department shampooed and set the ladies' hair and gave nail care.

Wednesday morning, Buster and Wanda Kittrell hosted coffee—spudnut time. The Kittrells served fresh cantaloupe that they had grown.

Following coffee time Joe and Clara Harbin demonstrated the "Dos and Hows" of kraut making.

After the interesting and informative program, Ruben sandwiches were made and served to all attending—made with the Harbins' special home-made kraut. Special guests for the occasion were Grace Scarbrough, Tennie McCormick, Jim Claunch and Mrs. Quesenberry's daughter, Anna B., her son-in-law and great-granddaughter.

Wednesday afternoon Glenda Jennings and Jonessa Brockman came for a sing-along and puppet show. Benny and Jean O'Brien and Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Shanks came to sing with us. A late comer was Holly Millsap.

We wish to thank the Cornelison family for the beautiful bouquets of fresh flowers.

New designed treble hooks promise to prevent fish loss. That's what the folks from Mustad hooks are saying about the new "triple grip" hook.

Any bass fisherman who has thrown a lure that has treble hooks has been frustrated over the amount of fish lost due to fish throwing the lure. There has been a problem, until now.

Unlike normal treble hooks where the hook point and shank are parallel, the triple grip hook point turns in towards the hook shank at a radical angle. This angle is what Mustad claims keeps the fish from throwing the lure.

Upon first glance, most fisherman question the ability of the hook to catch a fish at all. It appears that the bend in the hook is at such an angle that the fish can't get caught.

But touring bass tournament pros are finding great success with the triple grip. "Until now, you could expect to lose a high percentage of fish on treble hooked baits, but not anymore as long as you change your hooks to Mustad's triple grip," said tournament pro Denny Brauer.

"The Fred Arbogast Company will be installing the new triple grip hooks on many of our crankbaits in 1996," said Dan Rushing (Arbogast's Natl. Sales Mgr.). Fisherman will find the triple grip hooks on Arbogast's new Fat Fred and Falt Fred crank baits.

Everyone I've talked to that has tried the "triple grip" hook has been so impressed that most of them are changing out all the old style hooks on their lures. Personally, I haven't used the product but if what I'm hearing is half true, I'll be changing my hooks, too.

You can contact The Fred Arbogast Company at (214) 424-5585.

Taking Medicare into the 21st Century

Like many other well intentioned government programs, Medicare is costing much more than Congress ever anticipated.

Congress initiated Medicare in 1965 and since then it has served millions of Americans, helping the elderly and disabled pay their medical bills.

But by 1990, Medicare was costing seven times as much as was originally projected. Next year it will begin spending its surpluses, and at its current rate of growth, Medicare will be bankrupt within seven years.

So Congress faces the daunting task of devising a way to save Medicare while revamping the program to take it securely into the next century.

Earlier this year, the Clinton administration outlined the problem: the survival of Medicare requires either an immediate 44 percent increase (this is not a misprint) in payroll taxes, or an immediate decrease of Medicare spending of 30 percent.

To me, such a solution is akin to curing the disease with a medicine that is fatal to the patient. Nor do I believe we should raise taxes to prolong the current antiquated program.

Medicare's benefit structure is as unsound as its finances are. The benefits it offers compare unfavorably to most of those offered by the private sector. No private-sector health plan is sold in Medicare's artificially divided — Part A, Part B — fashion.

Congress' 1996 budget resolution would address Medicare's short-term funding dilemma by limiting its rate of growth to 6.4 percent annually. Note, please, that expenditures in this program would continue to grow by more than 6 percent a year. But in the long run, there will have to be substantive structural changes made in Medicare to guarantee its survival.

Our first and principle concern is ensuring that Medicare beneficiaries continue to have access to quality health care. A number of remedies have been suggested, the guiding principle of which is that reform must come through the creation of incentives, not by tightening controls, curtailing choice or increasing government rules.

To start with, beneficiaries must be given incentives to help eliminate waste and fraud. We must simplify the program, eliminating the reams of paperwork and red tape that are driving up costs. We need to get rid of the bureaucracy-driven, rigid structure of today's Medicare, and create instead a flexible program that can be tailored to individuals' needs.

Medicare must be converted from an open-ended program to one that instead makes a financial contribution toward the health-care costs of beneficiaries and allows them to choose among several plans — including the standard Medicare benefit package with which they're already familiar. Medicare beneficiaries should have the same range of options offered to people in the private and public sectors.

We cannot bury our heads in the sand and avoid the necessity of Medicare reform. We have to face up to this challenge in order to preserve a system upon which so many of us depend.

Minding Your Business

By Don Taylor

Success is a Result

I've never met a person who had absolutely no desire to succeed. However, I've met an awful lot of folks who have not yet achieved any great measure of success. The actual reasons for this are as varied as the many definitions of success itself.

Some folks define success as raising a family and securing their children's education. Some measure success by the size of their home, car or bank account. Others define it as "being out of debt." Still others consider their life a successful venture if they have helped others. While I will not attempt to define success for you, I would like to help you get started in the pursuit of it.

In observing the lives of those I consider successful, I've found some common factors. When these factors are in evidence, success is the result.

Study the lives of those you feel have achieved a measure of success. Compare their efforts to the six prerequisite factors of success listed below. I believe you'll agree there is a distinctive correlation. Our actions always bring results. Whether the results are what we want is up to us.

Reaping results

* Success is the result of thinking. Careful consideration of conditions, facts and opinions is the root source of success. Thinking opens the door of discovery to let in the light of reason. You can solve problems, discover opportunities and chart a course toward your goals with clear thinking.

You can add power to your thinking by focusing on the positive. Zero in on what you can do, rather than dwelling on what you cannot.

* Success is the result of planning. Planning is the process of determining where we are now, deciding where we want to go and then filling in the steps to get from here to there. Proverbs 21:5 says, "The plans of the diligent lead surely to abundance."

Planning sets your thought in concrete. Your plan then becomes the foundation you build upon.

* Success is the result of beginning. Thinking and planning are factors in your success, but only when you begin. To begin any journey, you must take the first step. You can only draw nearer your goals by starting toward them.

Success is achieved by those who begin. Beginning allows you to implement your plans. Many fail at this stage because they think, dream and create a plan, but never begin.

* Success is the result of perseverance. Many folks think and plan. A smaller group of people actually begin. Fewer still persevere to the end.

Success is the result of trying, trying and trying again. Many are content to stop short of their best effort. Their results may be acceptable, but never successful.

* Success is the result of managing time and priorities. This success step is where you reap the seeds of good planning. Careful planning establishes an order of importance for all we do. Managing time requires that we do the most important work first.

Since priorities change daily, planning must go on continually. Every day our first task should be to determine the highest priorities. Then we can focus our time on getting the most important work done.

* Success is the result of productivity, not activity. We do not achieve success by being busy. We achieve it by accomplishing meaningful results. Webster's dictionary defines results as "the consequence or outcome of action."

When we direct our efforts with good planning, prioritize our tasks in order of importance and persevere until we achieve the desired outcome, we have achieved success. Success is not the end of the journey, but rather the marking of the mile posts as we travel toward our long-term goals.

Educational role of County Agents is vital

AMARILLO—County Extension Agents have a vital role to play as their counties face complex issues which often divide communities and create confrontations, agents were reminded by speakers at the annual professional development meeting of the Texas County Agricultural Agents Association.

Controversial issues polarize citizens, with opposing sides presenting exerts to support whatever side of the road they take, said Dr. B.L. Flinchbaugh, state Extension Service leader for agricultural economics at Kansas State University.

The extension agent doesn't take sides, Flinchbaugh cautioned. "But the educator doesn't take a middle-of-the-road position. The educator covers the whole road," he said. By using educational techniques which present all sides of an issue, he said, the county agent gives citizens a chance to analyze facts and make sound decisions.

The public's perception of agriculture differs from the perception held by those involved in agriculture, said Dr. Rob Terry, assistant professor of agriculture at A&M. He said it is up to those in agriculture to change the views of those who see the food and fiber supply system as a small, inefficient, poor, harmful and unimportant industry.

People need to be told more than production, processing and marketing when agricultural educators address them, Terry said. He told the agents to stress the economic impact, social significance, nutritional values, environmental significance and opportunities of agriculture.

CCCS names top ten solutions for debt

PLAINVIEW — Living paycheck to paycheck has become a way of life for many families, meaning many are not saving to repay debt. Consumer Credit Counseling Service has compiled a list of ten steps to help consumers develop spending and savings plans and regain control of their financial future.

Saving money is the key to being prepared for future financial obligations, according to Marianne Gray, executive director, Consumer Credit Counsel Service of Great Fort Worth.

"Many people we counsel are getting by just living form paycheck to paycheck," she said.

"Consumers should have a repayment plan to handle current debt as well as a savings plan for future expenses including college education for children, retirement, emergency expenses and possible medical expenses."

Consumers should start by asking a few questions: How would I handle a large, unexpected expense? How long could I stay afloat if I lost my job or had my hours cut back? Will I be able to retire comfortably or educate my kids? How much do I have in savings or investments.

If you don't like your answers, consider the following as a means of controlling your financial future:

- * Carefully track your current expenses and trim where possible. List your monthly expenses. Try cutting back on things such as entertainment, dining out and nonessential clothing.

- * Set financial goals. Prepare for future investments including college educations, retirement plans, mortgages and related expenses.

- * Prepare a written spending plan. Most consumers find it easy to create a budget but hard to stick to it. Writing a detailed plan and keeping it readily available will help to keep it in mind more frequently.

- * Plan for periodic or unexpected expenses. When creating a budget, keep in mind expenses that could occur such as a job layoff, medical emergencies, and maintenance on cars or major appliances.

- * Begin a savings plan. Make it a priority to contribute to a savings account or investments. Take advantage of employer-sponsored plans. Even the smallest deposit can add up to a sizable amount if done consistently.

- * Develop an effective bill paying system. Keep track how your money will be distributed, budgeting for fixed and variable expenses. And when you use credit to pay for an item, write down the amount and subtract it from your funds to ensure you can pay the amount at the end of the month.

- * Monitor debt load and reduce where possible. Keep strict records on your debt repayment system and pay more than the minimum amount due when possible.

- * Obtain credit reports and correct or explain if necessary.

Several credit reporting agencies offer free credit reports. Study and understand your report. Call and explain if there is a problem or an inaccuracy on the report.

- * Use helpful resources for problem solving. Consumer Credit Counseling Service can offer the necessary resources to help individuals and families develop a workable budget and spending plan. A non-profit organization, CCCS provides professional counseling and financial guidance to consumers through one-on-one budget counseling sessions, educational workshops and debt repayment plans.

To schedule an appointment for counseling, consumers can call toll-free throughout Texas, (800) 374-2227.

Early Misgivings:

A Film on Child Abuse

Statistics reveal that a million cases of abused children occur each year in the United States, resulting in 2,000 deaths. Early Misgivings: A Film on Child Abuse presents a multi-faceted view of the problem of child abuse, which crosses all racial, religious, and socio-economic boundaries and affects our entire society.

Early Misgivings tries to clarify that point at which parental discipline becomes "child abuse," crossing that line between loving correction and lasting physical damage to the child. The program includes graphic medical slides depicting abuse of children, and addresses some of the ways parents can more effectively deal with conflicts.

The film suggests a relation between child abuse and subsequent anti-social behavior, including juvenile delinquency and crime. It also counters several of the most prevalent myths about child abuse — for instance, that only those who are psychologically deranged or physically brutal commit child abuse.

It includes interviews with parents, doctors, counselors, and other professionals, as well as former victims of child abuse. It stresses the need for an interdisciplinary approach to a problem that should be of concern not just to those personally involved, but also to society at large.

Early Misgivings: A Film on Child Abuse airs Sunday, September 3rd at 1:00 p.m. It repeats Wednesday, September 6th at 8:00 p.m.

Once Can Hurt a Lifetime

Marilyn Van Derbur, a former Miss America (1958), is also an incest survivor. She hosts Once Can Hurt a Lifetime, a powerful and emotional discussion confronting sexual violence, exploitation, and abuse of some of America's young people.

Once Can Hurt a Lifetime includes first-hand testimonials describing the fear and pain that childhood sexual coercion brought into the lives of the participants. Denial, terror, self-blame, and shame are revealed by surviving adults who were exploited or assaulted as children.

This award-winning program aims toward educating families, and attempts to motivate people to seek help, rather than live in fear or continue the pattern of abuse towards other children.

Marilyn Van Derbur, national lecturer and motivational speaker, is also co-founder of One Voice, the national center for redress of incest and sexual abuse. The organization is dedicated to educating the public, medical community, and media in an effort to break the destructive cycle of the sexual abuse of children.

A video tape of this program is available for $24.50 by writing or calling One Voice, P. O. Box 27958, Washington, DC 20038. (202) 667-1160 Proceeds go to One Voice.

Once Can Hurt a Lifetime airs Friday, September 1st at 11:30 p.m. The program repeats Monday, September 4th at 3:00 p.m. and Wednesday, September 6th at 8:30 p.m.

Better Business Bureau Report

By Nan Campbell

Mortgage rates are still low, and many homeowners are considering refinancing their home mortgage. Not everyone saves by refinancing, however. Homeowners should weigh the total cost of refinancing before making such a decision.

When you refinance your mortgage, you pay off your original mortgage and sign a new loan. With a new loan, you can incur many of the same costs you paid to get your original mortgage.

These can include settlement costs, discount points and other fees. Keep an eye on the interest rates to make sure they have dropped to a level that makes refinancing worthwhile before you go to any expense.

If you decide to refinance, shop around by calling several lending institutions to ask what interest and fees they charge.

Check the reliability of the lending institution with your BBB by calling 763-0459 or (800) 687-7890.

Remember, you do not have to refinance your mortgage with the same lender that provided your original mortgage.

Despite all of our warnings and alerts, consumers continue to lose money by getting in-involved with questionable work-at-home opportunities.

Consumers call the BBB daily who are interested or have answered an advertisement they can make $1000 weekly by stuffing envelopes or as they have seen in the newspaper or other tabloid that says assembling products.

The ads are nothing but lures to hook people into sending $25 or more to order information on how to place their ads just like the ones they are responding to.

It is a vicious never-ending circle and consumers will not make $1000 a week sitting at home stuffing envelopes, because they don't get the actual work to be done they are only paying for information.

When you see an ad that offers easy money, no training, never offering a regular salary and promising hefty profit plus requiring money for instructions or merchandise you should be cautious. If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is!

Don't go to college without it! Subscribe Today 272-4536
