

School board undergoes first change in years

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

The resignation of longtime trustee Sam Harlan Monday marked the first change in the Muleshoe Independent School District Board in six years.

Local businessman Nick Bamert was appointed to replace Harlan on the seven-member board during its bi-monthly meeting.

Harlan, who served on the school board for 11 years, is moving to Lubbock, where he will work as an engineer.

"You're an inspiration to me because you've found a job at your age," joked fellow board member Max King as Harlan said his good-byes.

"It's unusual that (the board) has been together so long," said school board vice-president Curtis Shelburne. "When you've spent as much time together as we have, you become like family. You learn to respect each other's talents. For all you've done and all that you are, we love you and we're going to miss you."

Bamert will serve the final two years of the Office 5 term.

"I felt it was a good opportunity to help out the community," said Bamert, president of Bamert Seed in Muleshoe.

Bamert and his wife, Ryniel, have two young sons.

Harlan's good-bye was not the only one Monday.

The school board also officially accepted the resignations of high school principal Al Bishop and band director Rob Lovett.

Bishop attended the meeting and thanked the school board for its support.

After six years at Muleshoe, Bishop accepted a job at Elgin High School, a Class 3A school near Austin.

Bishop said he took the job because the Austin area is where he wants to retire.

Lovett resigned to take a similar position at Shallowater.

Debra Lovett said her husband is leaving Muleshoe in order to be closer to immediate family.

"He really had a hard time with the decision because there are such good kids at Muleshoe," Lovett's wife said. "Mostly (the decision) was for family considerations."

Lovett directed the school's band program for three years, leading the Mighty 'M' Band to numerous sweepstakes honors and back to the level it was accustomed to," said MISD Superintendent Bill Moore.

Also resigning during the meeting were Kerry Finney, a high school biology teacher.

The board approved the hiring of four teachers; Debbie Connor, a high school math teacher, Kathlene Grissom, a junior high physical education teacher and coach, Dana Wright, who will teach at DeShazo, and John Jones, a high school science teacher.

Moore said the school has three positions left to fill.

FARMERS DOING RAIN DANCE

■ Average rainfall nearly double for normal spring

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

To the delight of farmers, irrigation pivots have sat idle while Mother Nature has been dumping generous portions of rain across the South Plains.

Most of the Muleshoe area received more than two inches of rain since early Sunday morning, bringing the yearly total to nearly double the average amount.

Muleshoe has received 11.63 inches of rain through Tuesday. The average rainfall through early June in Muleshoe is 6.85 inches according to the National Weather Service.

"It was a great rain," said Bailey County Commissioner Benny Claunch about the 1.8 inches of rain that fell in the Bula area early Sunday morning.

The pre-dawn, house-rattling thunderstorm dumped from 1 1/2 to two inches of heavy rain in most of northern Bailey County.

Portions of southern Bailey County received less. The Maple Coop Gin reported .8 inches of rain since last weekend.

The wet spring has been a welcome sight for farmers, who were still in the grips of a three-year drought at this time last year.

Last year, Muleshoe had received less than an inch of rain as of June 6. The first substantial rain didn't come until a few weeks later.

With cotton sprouting past seedling stage and corn reaching knee height, all that's needed is some good old West Texas sunshine, farmers said. Bailey County Extension Agent Curtis Preston said that spring-planted crops are slightly behind in their develop stage because of the cool nights — especially cotton.

"The moisture is there to make a good crop," Preston said. "We just need some heat. We're so far behind in the heat units. But we can catch up if we get a two to three week stretch of dry, sunny days."

The heavy rains have caused minor flooding, but few traffic problems, according local law enforcement officials. One County Commissioner did report minor damage to a few dirt roads in his district during Sunday's deluge.

A spokesman for the Weather Service in Lubbock said mid and high level Pacific moisture was responsible for the latest series of storms.

The extended forecast calls for sunny, warm weather for the next few days, then turning partly cloudy with a chance of afternoon thundershowers this weekend.

Did You Know?

Although the size of an average farm in the United States has increased, and the number of farms has decreased, the total acres farmed has remain constant since 1930 at about 990 million acres.

According to a USA Today story, in 1930, before federal programs, there were 6.3 million farms in the country. They averaged 157 acres with an annual gross income of $1,527.

Today, there are 1.9 million farms averaging about 500 acres with an annual gross income of $95,000.

Restoration effort continues at County cemetery

By LESLI RADFORD
Journal staff writer

It has been a year since the Bailey County Cemetery was vandalized.

The senseless destruction of 90 tombstones last June shocked the community and launched an effort to renovate the historic cemetery that had suffered from years of neglect.

One of the first steps in the restoration effort was re-establishing the Bailey County Cemetery Association, which had disbanded several years earlier, leaving the 26-acre cemetery in absentee ownership.

Led mostly by the efforts of Dr. David Wyer, the cemetry association was re-established in October.

Plans are to install a fence along the west end to prevent wind erosion and workers started drilling a well last week.

"It's been moving along, but not as fast as we'd like it to," said Wyer, who was elected president of the association. He also said every marker or headstones that was disturbed in the vandalism spree has been repair or replaced.

"Community awareness of the situation was raised through the vandalism," Wyer said. "Folks have been very responsive."

The reorganization of the Dallas-based natural gas company will result in the elimination of about 240 jobs in a six-state area.

The company plans will contract with local businesses to serve as walk-in payment centers.

Mata named top performer

Muleshoe High School senior saxophonist Melissa Mata was selected as an outstanding performer at the 1997 Texas State Solo-Ensemble Contest.

It is the first time in school history a Muleshoe student was selected for the honor according to Muleshoe Independent School District Superintendent Bill Moore.

Only 203 of the 18,000 musicians who performed at the state contest in Austin earned the honor.

"Awards of this nature do not come easily and reflect the efforts of many individuals," wrote Richard Floyd, state director of music, in a letter to Mata. "Your parents, school, and teachers are to be commended for their contribution to your success."

Mata was also an honor graduate, an ATSSB honor band and received a level four award of academic excellence.

The Yellowstone Buffalo War

BLACK
ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

"Continued pointless killing (of buffalo) by the state of Montana is threatening the future of this magnificent symbol of our nation's commitment to conservation." Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt.

"Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player that struts and frets his hour upon the stage, and then is heard no more; it is a tale told by an idiot, full of sound and fury, signifying nothing," Shakespeare.

Maybe it's time for Jesse Jackson or Geraldo to add their two bits.

The mainstream press has invested a lot of ink in the motional aspects of Yellowstone Park's buffalo travesty.

The Rocky Mountain News, Denver, reported Park Ranger Ryder comparing the bison problem to Schindler's List, the film about a German businessman who saved his Jewish workers during the Holocaust.

People Magazine quoted Park Superintendent Finley as saying the shooting has "virtually decimated the northern bison herd in Yellowstone."

Reuters News has assured its readers "There has been no confirmed transmissions of the disease from buffalo to cattle in the wild."

Although it's been transmitted in the laboratory, remember it's Creutzfeldt-Jakob and Mad Cow disease that has never had confirmed transmission under any conditions.

I can imagine the uninformed masses asking themselves, "Well, why in the world are they shooting those buffalo that stray from the park?"

Nowhere, outside of the ag publications, have I seen the the words undulant fever.

It is a disease in man marked by remittent, recurring fever, malise, headache, weakness and anemia caused by the bacteria Brucella.

Before the Brucellosis Eradication Program in cattle began in 1934, raw milk was the most common source of rucellosis in humans. Today it is a disease of veterinarians, cow calf raisers and abattoir employees who come in contact with Brucella infected cows at and around calving time.

In the fifty plus year of the eradication program's exisistence countless billions of dollars worth of cows and businesses and ranches were lost by livestock producers. The restrictions of the program discouraged the developments of an efective vaccine.

Now we are down to less than 30 cow herds in the entire U.S., that are not "Brucellosis free." The Brucellosis infected buffalo in Yellowstone pose a very real threat.

The buffalo battle is actually between the U.S.D.A. Eradicatin Program agenda v.s. the Department of Interior who thinks buffalo should not be burdened with the same rangeland reform restraint required of cattle.

Do you think a rancher who spends his life caring for animals gets any satisfaction in the slaughter of hundreds of buffalo who's only fault is self preservation?

If any rancher managed his range so poorly that hundreds of his cows died of starvation and hundreds more were forced on to the neighbor's land because of overgrazing, he would be drawn and quartered.

And if the situation were reversed and this sorry cattleman's cows strayed into the park to be shot by park rangers would we hear Bruce Babbitt saying "continued pointless killing (of cattle) by the National Park Service is threatening the future of this magnificent symbol of our nation's commitment to self-preservation."

Of course not. Shakespeare said it best. "Sound and fury, signifying nothing."

Cemetery

tions havebeen raised, according to association secretary Donna Kirk. Lights were also donated by Bailey County Electric.

Future plans include planting trees around the cemetery.

Wyer said the wet spring has brought back the natural Buffalo grass that had been dormant for years, and also weeds can be seen sprouting throughout the cemetery.

Plans for a workday in July or August are in the works, he said.

Four Muleshoe youths were arrested in connection with the vandalism of the cemetery that was established in 1919.

A week later, sisters Julie and JoBeth Gilleland led a cleanup effort that included more than 100 volunteers, who reset headstones that had been knocked over or damaged and cleared tree limbs and dead scrub brush.

The sisters said they were just trying to show the community that there were plenty of good kids in Muleshoe.

also being offered, he said.

Cox, who has worked for Energas for 36 years, is leaning toward accepting the retirement package.

"For me, I'm excited because it's a good retirement package," Cox said. "But it's sad for some of the other employees who aren't eligible for retirement and are being displaced."

The Muleshoe office services 3,800 customers and made $6.4 million in sales last year.

A Energas spokesperson is scheduled to speak at Thursday's Muleshoe City Council meeting.

Cattlemen push for improved labeling

WACO — Many Texas livestock producers want "truth in labeling" to apply to their product.

The Texas Farm Bureau and the National Cattlemen's Beef Association support legislation in Congress that would mandate the labeling of meat and meat products as to "country-of-origin."

Texas Farm Bureau President Bob Stallman wrote a letter recently to members of the Texas Congressional delegation, asking them to support bills in both the Senate and the House that would require country-of-origin labeling.

"U.S. producers must comply with inspection standards that are superior to those employed in other meat producing nations," stallman wrote. "Consumers should be aware of the higher standards of protection that U.S. meat producers provide."

Stallman said Texas' beef

producers effort coincide with increasing consumer concerns about the quality of food products served. "Producers are making every effort to meet market needs," he said.

The legislation requires labeling under the following conditions:

Meat and meat products imported into the U.S., unless the product is already labeled. If the product originates from an animal that was imported into the U.S. less than 10 days prior to slaughter.

The proposal applies to any meat food product prepared in the U.S. using any carcass or meat imported into the U.S.

The House Bill was introduced by Rep. Helen Chenoweth (R-Idaho) and Earl Pomeroy (D-North Dakota) and has 22 co-sponsors. The senate version was introduced by Sen. Tim Johnson (D-South Dakota).

Some estimates put the percentage of imports in the U.S. meat market is as high as 15 per cent.

Combest summons Dept. of Agriculture officials to CRP subcommittee hearing

WASHINGTON, D.C.— U.S. Rep. Larry Combest (R-Texas) has told U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman that 3 million more acres should be included in the Conservation Reserve Program.

The Chairman of the House Agriculture Subcommittee on Resource Conservation, Combest has summoned USDA officials to his subcommittee hearing June 11 to account for not accepting the full number of new CRP acres directed by Congress, shifting more CRP acres to other regions, and to answer complaints over confusion during CRP sign-up.

Combest's letter to Glickman states that the small number of acres, at cheaper-than-expected rental rates, point to the conclusion that environmental qualities were not accurately or fully evaluated to qualify fragile lands for CRP.

"Unfortunately, the results of the fifteenth sign-up announced on May 22 do not reflect full use of this important environmental program," Combest wrote. "Despite the fact that the president's budget provided for the acceptance of 19 million acres under the last sign-up, assuming an average rental rate of $50 per acres, your announcement provides for the enrollment of only 16.1 million acres at an average rental rate of $39."

Combest's letter predicts that in many states, more than half the sensitive lands that were covered in protective grasses to prevent soil erosion would be plowed and planted despite the fact that the vast majority of these acres matched criteria to be included in CRP. Combest said USDA's plans for another sign-up in late Fall would come too late for farmers who cannot afford to wait if their land must be prepared for planting.

"In short, landowners cannot afford to lease both CRP contract income and income from production opportunities," said Combest. "From both a conservation and budget perspective, it would be unwise to risk the substantial gains CRP has made, as well as the significant taxpayer investment, particularly when USDA has the means and the money to enroll more CRP lands."

In particular, Combest called USDA Secretary Glickman's attention to his earlier assurances that there would not be "major regional shifts" in the location of CRP acres. To the contrary, the Combest letter concludes as much as a 60 percent reduction in some state's enrollment of CRP acres, constituting a major shift away from lands previously protected.

As a whole, Texas as the largest CRP state, lost just over 1 million CRP acres in the announcement, while CRP gains went largely to the Dakotas and dispersed throughout the New England states.

Red meat, dead meat?

According to a recent issue of the Futurist magazine, the future doesn't look bright for red meat. In fact these naysayers are predicting that the death knell for beef is expected to ring in the year 2030.

The reason for the doomsday prediction? Well according to The Futurist, our own children — believe it or not — will be to blame. It seems more and more young people are opting for a meat-free life-style. The children of today will be the moms and dads of tomorrow who, in turn, will play a big part in what their own children will and won't be allowed to eat. So according to this one magazine, by the year 2030, two generations will be meatless.

I guess my question is: who is telling our children that eating meat is bad in the first place? Whether it's their peers, their favorite recording artist or TV personality, children emulate — but it's up to each one of us as parents to educate. Meat — along with vegetables, fruits, dairy products, breads and cereals — all have a place in a well-balanced diet.

Young people absorb so much information. As parents, we have an obligation to provide our children with a well-balanced life. So shouldn't we teach the benefits of a well-balanced meal?
