A QUICK READ OF THE NEWS

One hail of a storm

A storm front that spawned at least three tornadoes on the South Plains Sunday afternoon pelted Bailey County with strong winds, pea-sized hail and heavy rain.

Weather observers in the area reported about three inches of hail and heavy rains as a cold front moved in about 3 p.m.

Bailey County Sheriff's deputy Benny Clifton said he didn't see any wall clouds or other indications of tornadic activity: "Just lots of dark clouds."

A tornado destroyed six buildings in a rural area about two miles north of Hale Center and tornadoes were also spotted five miles east of Hart in Castro County and near Ralls in Crosby County.

No injuries from the tornadoes were reported but a Hale Center man was struck and killed by lightning while working on an irrigation sprinkler when the first round of thunderstorms rolled through the area early Sunday afternoon.

Bailey County Extension agent Curtis Preston said several area farmers reported hail damage to their wheat crop. He said it's still too early to determine how much damage was done.

Preston said the cool weather also set back cotton planting.

"A lot of cotton farmers were anxious to start planting, but I think Mother Nature told us it's not quite time yet," Preston said.

Muleshoe received about 6/10 of an inch of rain Sunday, according to the National Weather Service in Lubbock.

MHS' Whitt tied for 7th

ODESSA — Muleshoe senior Keisha Whitt is tied for seventh after the first round of the Region I-3A girls golf tournament at Ratliff Ranch Golf Links.

Whitt is tied with two other golfers after shooting an 85.

Defending champion Sarah Valdez of River Road has an eight-stroke lead after firing a two-under-par 70.

Abilene Wylie holds a huge lead in the team competition.

In the boys tournament, Muleshoe freshman Ryan Hodge struggled to a 90 in his first regional appearance.

Abilene Wylie holds a one-stroke lead over Monahans in team play. Perryton is fourth and Tulia fifth.

The second and final round was played Tuesday.

Madrid advances to state

Senior Steven Madrid will be representing Muleshoe High School next week at the state UIL literary competition in Austin.

Madrid qualified for the state level by placing second in the regional tournament held last Friday in Odessa.

Madrid will be competing in the Lincoln Douglas debate.

The state academic meet is scheduled for May 8-9 at the University of Texas in Austin.

Big turnout expected for Saturday's local elections

Based on early voting figures, school and city officials expect a strong turnout for Saturday's local election.

Two positions are up for grabs on both the Muleshoe Independent School District Board of Trustees and the Muleshoe City Council.

Polls are open Saturday from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Polling places are the Muleshoe High School cafeteria for the school board election and Muleshoe City Hall for the City Council election.

The school board reported 417 ballots during the early voting as of Tuesday morning. Early voting ran from April 15 through Tuesday.

MISD Superintendent Bill Moore said more people voted during the early voting period than in most school board elections.

"I think it indicates that the community feels the position of a school board trustee is an important position," Moore said. "And even though we're losing two good board members, we're fortunate that we have so many good candidates."

Five candidates are running for two at large positions currently held by Max King and

WJHS students study affects of soil erosion

By TERESA STONE
Journal staff writer

Four Muleshoe eighth-graders are on a mission to make local farmers aware of soil conservation techniques.

Watson Junior High School students Mylissa Thompson, Carmen Flores, Kyle Atwood, and Zac Yanis have spent four months researching ways to combat soil erosion caused by wind and rain. Now the team is actively trying to inform local farmers how the soil can be saved.

"Knowledge is power," Thompson said. "By giving presentations around town to different organizations, we hope to reach a lot of farmers. Wind erosion is a big problem in West Texas and if we don't do something about it, we will all be affected."

Muleshoe farmers and landowners are not the only ones that will be hearing the students' presentation on preventing soil erosion. The four students will be heading to

Muleshoe adding computer class next school year

By TERESA STONE
Journal staff writer

Starting next year, Muleshoe High School students will have even more opportunities to be competitive in the job market after graduation.

During Monday evening's school board meeting, MHS computer teachers April Smith and Chris Mardis described the current computer and accounting classes at MHS and the future plans for their department.

Mardis explained to the board the importance of offering up-to-date computer and business classes in order to better prepare Muleshoe students for the job market. He emphasized his point by pointing out that in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, almost 25 percent of the professional jobs listed require a computer science or accounting degree.

Superintendent Bill Moore said that he has seen statistics showing even a greater need for computer-trained individuals across the country.

Moore proposed increasing the technology offered at MHS by adding a new vocational program. The program, to be called the Cisco Academy, would partner Muleshoe ISD with Cisco Systems in order to provide students with one of the most marketable job skills of the 21st Century — computer networking.

Cisco Systems is one of the nation's leading manufacturers of networking materials. Because they maintain over 95 percent of the networking market in the U.S., the company is actively trying to train more people in the principles of building and maintaining networking systems.

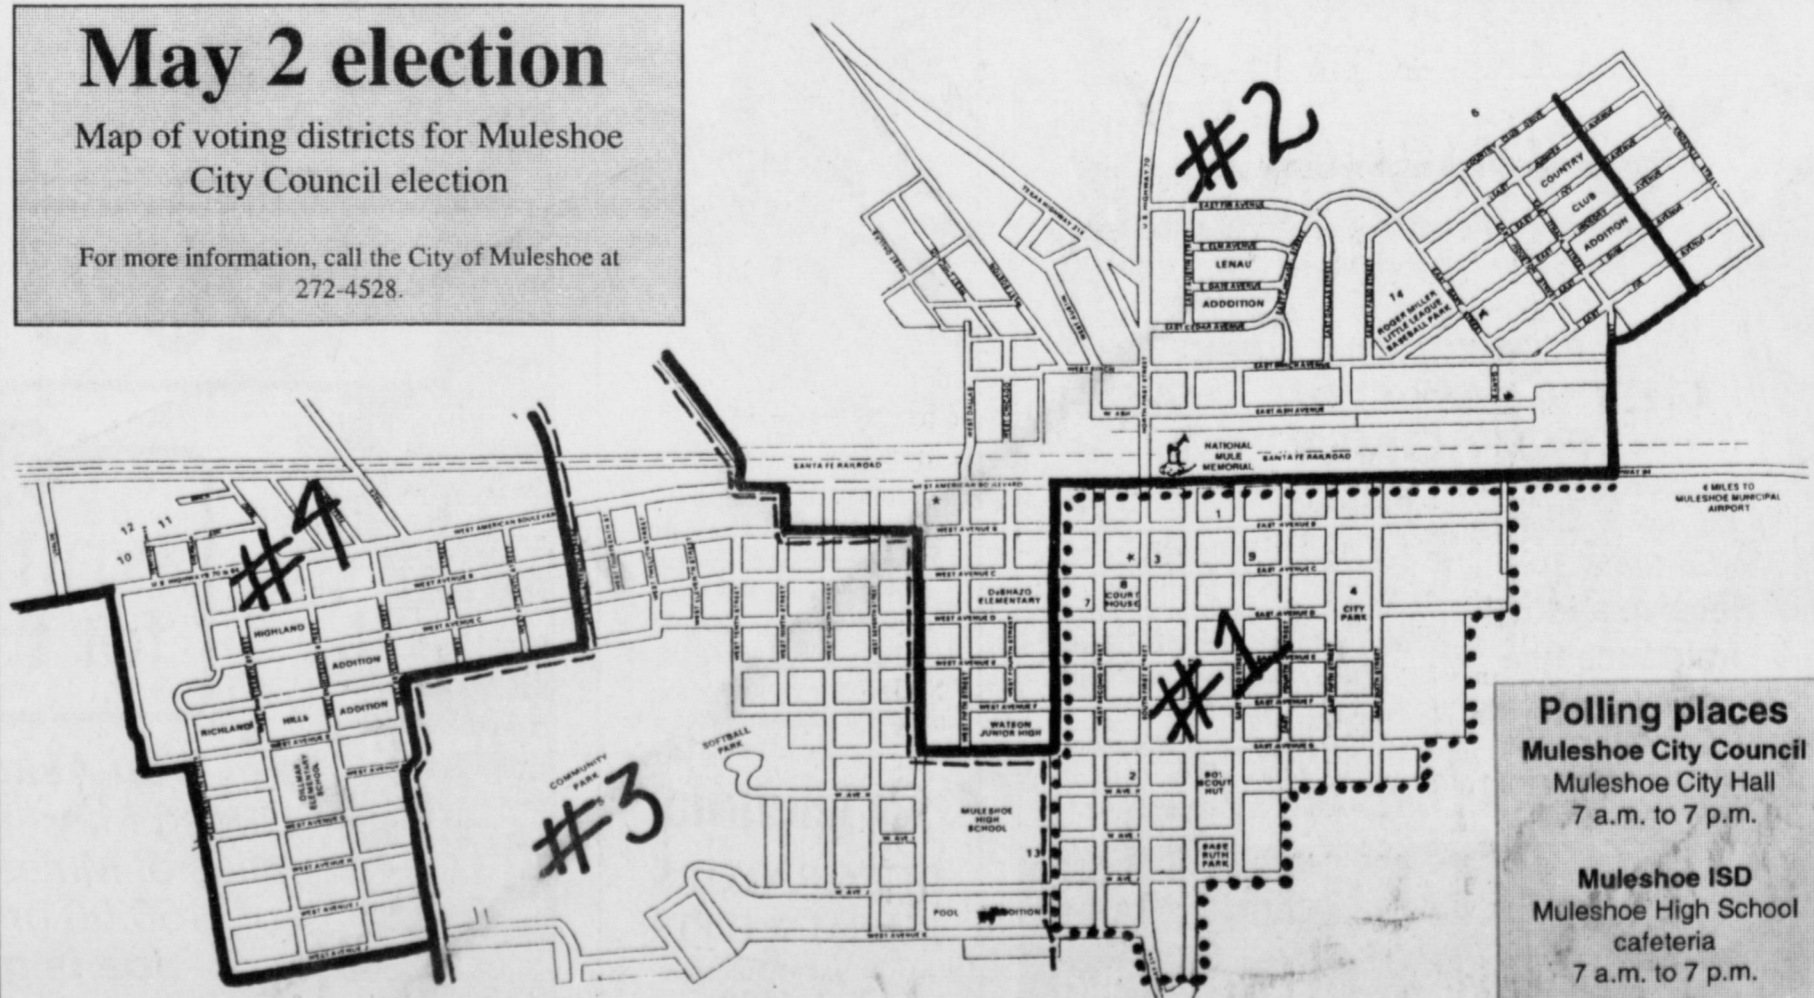

"This is an excellent partnership between business and schools," Moore said. "Cisco Systems provides the curriculum, the assessments, training for the teachers, and the technical support. The school provides the instructor, the facility, and the Internet access. We both benefit because Cisco and other businesses will have Concord, N.H. this weekend to present their findings and solutions at the Fifth Annual Symposium for Environment and Education.

The symposium is sponsored by Wheelabrator Coal Services Company, which supplies coal to the Tolk Station outside of Muleshoe.

Last fall, Muleshoe ISD was invited to participate in the symposium designed for seventh and eighth-graders to become more aware and active in environmental and social problems. The Muleshoe team members were selected by school officials and began working together in January.

The first item of business for the classmates was to decide on which local environmental problem to tackle.

"We decided on soil erosion caused by rain and wind because it is one of the most serious problems we face here in Muleshoe," said Yanis.

"This is an issue that truly affects everyone in Muleshoe," said Flores. "Just about everyone you talk to is involved in farming or works for a company that relies on the farming industry. When you stop to think about it, you realize how important the soil is in keeping Muleshoe's economy strong."

Atwood added, "It's also important that every farmer be involved. If we don't take care of the soil now, we might not be affected today or even within the next few years, but eventually the soil will go bad. Eventually we would lose so much topsoil that you couldn't farm around here anymore."

The students' passion and enthusiasm for their cause is apparent as they discuss ways farmers can save their land. During their presentation, they describe Muleshoe's history, modern Muleshoe, local industries, the weather, and ways to prevent soil erosion.

Showing behind the students during the presentation is a video they made which showcases the area, local farms utilizing conservation methods, farms where the topsoil hasn't survived, and the wind storms.

"This was a great project for the kids," said project coordinator and WJHS teacher Tom Boutell. "They learned everything from soil conservation, to the history of Muleshoe, to using different equipment for filming and editing the video. They were lucky enough to actually see a stripped field and the affect that wind has made. But at the same time, they were able to learn that this serious problem has a solution."

The students have made their presentation at a junior high staff meeting and at a school board meeting. After returning from their trip, the eighth-graders will be speaking to the local Rotary Club, Muleshoe City Council, and Muleshoe's Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture.

The students are hoping to reach as many farmers as possible and will gladly speak to any other groups in order to get the word out that there is a solution to soil erosion.

Plan ahead for summer vacations

COLLEGE STATION — For most families with children in school, the very mention of summer brings thoughts of a family vacation to mind. But organizing a vacation takes dogged effort and sharp planning skills.

The planning in itself is a daunting task, but Nancy Granovsky, Texas Agricultural Extension Service family economics specialist, says starting early is the key to getting the best bargains.

"The key things to a vacation are planning, recognizing that families are going to be spending some money for vacations, and then plugging that into a financial plan so that the costs of those things don't come as a surprise," she said. "To do all of that, you really must start early."

Because family vacations tend to be expensive, Granovsky suggests opening a separate vacation bank account.

"It's a good idea to have a separate account for special financial goals because if we put that money in our regular accounts, we would probably regret that," she said. "Normally, I would recommend putting those savings in something other than a checking account because they sometimes have service charges and you can get your hands on the money too easily."

Traveler's checks, credit cards, ATM cards, debit cards and cash should all be considered carefully when planning how to pay for a vacation. "If you are traveling internationally, you may get a better exchange rate using a credit card," she said. "Check on the country and find out what some of the prevailing rates are."

Because cash can be easily lost and is irreplaceable, many people use traveler's checks. Granovsky warns that while traveler's checks are safe, they are only safe if people keep track of the numbers.

"Always carry the numbers with you in a separate place from the checks so if the checks are stolen, it will be easier to get the money back," she said.

Granovsky said another part of planning is deciding if a package deal is right for the family. If the package contains elements that the family is not interested in, it's probably not a good investment. She added that if the price seems too good to be true, it probably is.

"There can also be some problems if you're not going through a travel agency that really stands behind their offers or if you are responding to an advertisement," she said. "I'd be very, very wary."

As for staying in a place with a kitchen, Granovsky says it depends on the family.

"Some people see a vacation as a vacation away from cooking," she said. "But for families with children, especially small ones, it can save a lot of time and money."

Transportation is another area where it pays to plan early. With thousands of variations in ticket costs each day, the airline industry can be very creative in coming up with bargain fares and travel incentives to fill seats.

Oregon woman's lawsuit could break piggybank

EUGENE, Ore. — Terri Lewellen has filed a lawsuit in Lane County Circuit Court seeking $58,000 from the owner of a pig, Julia Adler.

"I was weed-eating down at the pond," Lewellen said. "I was along the edge and backing up and I just fell, and there she was."

"She" is Rosie, the pig. The lawsuit seeks $8,000 for ongoing medical expenses and $50,000 for "pain, suffering, humiliation and impairment of her day-to-day activities."

Lewellen's husband, Marcus, says his wife has nine screws holding her ankle together as a result of the injury.

well trained future employees and our students will receive state-of-the-art vocational training. Plus, it's a course that will serve students well whether they plan to enter college or the workforce after high school."

Moore suggested that the new course be located in the site formerly used for auto mechanics. After some renovations, the site will also serve as the district's technology office.

In other business, the board approved basic campus budgets for the 1998-1999 school year. Muleshoe High School will receive $109,086. Watson Junior High will receive $46,656. DeShazo Elementary will receive $42,271. Dillman Elementary will receive $39,744. Special education will receive $11,515. The athletic department will receive $112,745.

The funds are intended for instructional supplies. A few trustees questioned why the athletic department's budget was so high. MISD business manager Jo Mayhugh explained that the major expense is insurance for the players; but also, the budget had to cover things such as travel expenses for all of the teams, referees, and equipment.

During the meeting, the board also approved replacing the Watson Junior High gym floor which was ruined when a pipe burst in the dressing room.

The old floor will be replaced with a higher quality shock absorbent system which will make the floor more "athlete friendly."

The flooring will cost the district approximately $15,000. The insurance company will be picking up the additional cost of about $82,000.

If all goes according to schedule, the floor will be finished by the time school starts in the fall.

ELECTIONS

Ed Cox. Both longtime board members decided not to seek re-election.

School board candidates are Bruce Barrett, Alberto Daniel, Jay Messenger, Thurman Myers and David Tipps.

All registered voters in the school district are eligible to vote in the election.

The city, which is holding elections in District 1 and District 2, reported 95 early votes

Tuesday morning.

"We hope this means we're going to have a strong turnout," said Muleshoe City Manager James Fisher. "It's nice to see the citizens come out and exercise their freedom to vote; not just in this election, but in any election."

In District 1, Sam Burke is challenging incumbent Juan Chavez. In District 2, Lupe Olivarez is challenging incumbent Cliff Black.

MHS senior Ricko Aguirre refines his shot put technique

Aguirre hoping for another clutch effort at regional meet

His coach thinks it will take a career-best effort in either the shot put or discus for Ricko Aguirre to advance out of regionals.

Not the best of odds.

But don't bet against the burly Muleshoe High School senior.

Two years in a row, Aguirre won the District 1-3A shot put title on his last throw, including a school-record 55-foot, 4 1/4 inch effort two weeks ago.

Aguirre also won the district title and will compete in both events Friday and Saturday at the Region I-3A track meet at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa.

"He's going to have to perform well," said Muleshoe weight coach Ron Welch. "He's shown the ability to come through Field events start at 11 a.m. Friday, including the girls high jump at 12:30 p.m. and the boys discus at 1 p.m. Running preliminaries start at 2:30 p.m.

Field events start Saturday at 10 a.m., including the boys shot put at 12:30 p.m. Running finals start at 12:15 p.m., including the girls 800 at 12:35 p.m. and the girls 1600 at 2:45 p.m.

Super soph Stacy Locker hunting state berths in 800, 1600 at Region I-3A meet

Sophomore Stacy Locker is a year older, a year wiser, and a year stronger, all of which should make returning to the Class 3A state track meet easier.

Right?

The Muleshoe High School track standout isn't sure easier is the right word.

"Last year, all I did was run," said Locker, looking to defend her 800 meters title this weekend at the Region I-3A track meet. She will also compete in the 1600. "I didn't know any better. This year, I'm worried about what kind of times I've got to run to make it to state."

"I've been nervous since before district," Locker said Monday after finishing a light workout. "But I don't think being nervous really affects me."

Locker will be joined by fellow sophomore Lindsey Field, who qualified in the high jump, at the regional meet Friday and Saturday at Ratliff Stadium in Odessa.

The top two individuals and relay teams in each event at the Region I-3A meet advance to the state track meet in Austin in two weeks.

Rarely pushed in the 800 until the District 1-3A meet two weeks ago, Locker responded with a season-best time of 2:23.66.

"That helped my confidence," said Locker, who figures she needs to drop below 2:23 to make state. "I feel good about the way I ran at district."

River Road rocks Mules, 16-3

Muleshoe's pitching staff picked a bad day to have its worst outing of the season.

River Road raked three Muleshoe hurlers for 23 hits, including six doubles and two home runs Saturday, hammering Muleshoe 16-3 in a District 1-3A contest at the new city park.

A win would have pulled MHS within a game of then co-leaders River Road and Perryton. Instead, the Mules (12-8 overall) fell into a tie for third with Friona at 6-4, two games out of the district's second playoff spot with four games remaining.

Friona surprised Perryton Saturday, 12-7, dropping the Rangers (12-9, 8-2) into second place.

Adam King was 4 for 5 with two doubles and a home run for the Wildcats and starting pitcher Jerod Fikac was 3 for 4 with a double and his area-leading 10th home run.

Fikac and King combined to limit Muleshoe to six hits.

Pitcher Rodney Alanis slaps the tag on a River Road runner Down 6-0 in the fourth inning, Muleshoe cut the deficit in half in a hurry on back-to-back home runs by Rodney Alanis and Matt McClanahan.

Alanis' blast down the right field line, his first HR of the season, scored Layne Kemp, who was hit by a pitch. McClanahan followed with his ninth home run to right center.

King relieved Fikac and held Muleshoe to three hits the rest of the way.

sophomore shaved more than three seconds off her previous best time in the 800, finishing in 2:23.62.

Locker breezed to the 1600 crown at district, finishing in a relatively slow time of 5:43.89, well off her season best of 5:33. She'll probably have to go before 5:30 to have a chance to qualify for the state meet.

Field shook off a nagging leg injury that kept her from practicing for nearly a month to win the district title. She finished second in 1997.

"I'm feeling better," said Field, who recently cleared 5-2 in practice. "I was a little bit worried about making regionals when I got injured."

It will probably take a career-best effort of 5-4 for Fields to make it out of regionals.

"But I know I can jump 5-4," Field said.

when he has to. He's just got to do it."

Aguirre won the regional title last year on a wet and sloppy day with a throw of 52-10 1/2 and finished sixth at the state meet.

"I'm excited about getting another chance of going to state," Aguirre said. "I don't know, we'll just have to see what happens."

The regional meet features a pair of 57-foot-plus throwers, a distance Aguirre has thrown a half-dozen times in practice.

Still, Welch thinks Aguirre's best chance of advancing to state might be in the discus. The West Texas A&M football signee threw 155-8 to win district and has season-best throw is 162-5.

"He's got what it takes to do it in both," Welch said.

Smart money says don't bet against him.

Texas continues steady economic growth

Texas continues its steady economic growth according to State Comptroller John Sharp.

"There is no end in sight for the Texas economy's strong and steady growth," Sharp said, as he released the latest Index of Leading Texas Economic Indicators.

"Fueled by solid investor and consumer confidence and plentiful jobs, the Index is at 132.9, an increase of 3.1 percent compared to one year ago," Sharp said.

For the eleventh consecutive month, the Texas Stock Index is the strongest of the leading economic indicators. The overall stock value of Texas-based companies rose 20.5 percent in February, and was up 112.8 percent compared to the same period last year. Investors are extremely confident about Texas economy and business climate.

Consumer confidence is also at historic high levels. Texas consumer confidence is up 18.3 percent compared to one year ago. Retail sales are up 4.2 percent compared to one year ago, as job growth and an expanding economy give many Texas more disposable income. A low inflation rate is also encouraging consumer spending.

Claims for unemployment benefits are down 14.7 percent compared to one year ago. The Texas unemployment rate is down 0.7 percent to 4.8 percent.

The Texas Help Wanted Index, a measurement of job listings in Texas newspapers, is up 9.4 percent compared to one year ago, and up 2.1 percent compared to one month ago. During the last year, Texas has added about 345,000 new jobs, an increase of 4.1 percent. The number of service sector jobs grew by 4.2 percent; construction employment is up by 5.2 percent; and manufacturing jobs increased by 2.5 percent. New business incorporations are up 3.9 percent.

Unseasonably warm weather in February caused a boom in housing starts nationwide, and Texas was no exception. Construction permits were issued for nearly 11,000 new homes in Texas, up 4.3 percent compared to one year ago. Single family home starts increased 4.3 percent, while multifamily starts jumped 12.6 percent. Continued low interest rates and high employment are pushing many families into the home-buying and home-building markets. The U.S. Index of Leading Economic Indicators is currently 105.0, up 1.6 percent compared to one year ago. The U.S. economy shows few signs of weakness, and that is good economic news for Texas.

Loose in the barn

BAXTER BLACK
ON THE EDGE OF COMMON SENSE

They weren't in the habit of raisin' wild cattle in that part of Michigan, so the fences aren't that high. But when the heifer cruised into the sale ring like a shark in the kiddie pool, everybody knew they might not be high enough.

As the bidding began she never slowed, but circled the ring scatterin' cowboys, plastic whips, rubber boots and cups of coffee. One of the cowboys ducked behind the wooden screen just as the heifer planted one big paw on its top and vaulted over rails into the crowd.

The Marion sale barn was packed that day. Jim was one of the buyers who worked for the facility. He watched from the walkway at the top, back behind the bleacher seats as the heifer climbed the stairs six at a time headin' his way.

The crowd was plenty excited. Folks were yellin' and clearin' a path. The bidding had stopped at seventy-five cents.

The heifer weighed less than 500 lbs and was a Limousin mountain goat cross. When she leveled out on the walkway at the summit of the sale barn, all those gathered in the back were lookin for a hole! She raced back and forth between the solid walls of concrete on one side and the solid wall of farmers on the other, occasionally smearing a dab of green about waist high.

Jim was mashed in the crowd watching when suddenly he recalled..."Wait a minute? I work for the company!"

"Let's get her, Larry, before somebody gets hurt!"

"How?" asked Larry, who was sort of enjoying the diversion.

"I don't know!" hollered Jim, who then dove on the heifer as she made her next pass. They went down and skidded in a pile. Larry, who was almost as big as the heifer, fell on Jim. It knocked the breath outta all three of them.

A regular, who'd enjoyed the show, whipped off his dress belt and made a collar around the calf's neck. Jim and Larry wallered her around awhile by the collar and tail till someone brought'em a good chunk of rope. As they started out the door with the heifer, the original owner shouted, "Hold on! She's not sold yet!"

Jim hollered back through the door, "Seventy-six!"

The gavel came down.

Two days later they ran the heifer through the sale ring again still wearin' the rope. She brought sixty cents.

Jim was in the ring and asked the buyer, "Can I have my rope back?"

"Sorry, son," the buyer said, "that's the only reason I bought the heifer!"

A special thanks to the Masonic Lodge, First Baptist Church of Muleshoe, D.T. and Jeanie Garth, Ellis Funeral Home, employs of Muleshoe State Bank and all others who gave so generously to make this loss easier for us.

Long-billed curlew at wildlife refuge

The long-billed curlew is one of several migratory birds that can be seen in the area this time of year in the vicinity of the Muleshoe Wildlife Refuge.

A long-billed curlew is a large, shore bird with a long, slender body and a long curved bill can be seen flying in flocks or feeding in grassy areas, according to Refuge manager Don Clapp.

The birds are a buff color with traces of cinnamon color on their wings. Their call is a loud, whistling sound.

The migratory birds were historically found throughout Central America.

Since much of their natural habitat consisting of vast open prairies has been destroyed, they are now only seen in the western United States.

They winter in the southern parts of the Southwestern United States as well as Mexico, and nests as far north as British Columbia.

They normally lay four "olive buff" color eggs. The nest is normally found in damp, grassy areas or near water, and consists of a shallow, earthen depression lined with grass.

Their diet is varied and includes various insects, spiders and berries.

The young long-billed curlew mature and become adept at avoiding predators.

Extension service honors Combest

U.S. Rep. Larry Combest of Lubbock was honored by the state Extension Service professionals' honor society, Epsilon Sigma Phi, during ceremonies April 16 at the Texas A & M Agricultural Research and Extension center here.

Combest received the organization's highest public service recognition, "State Friend of Extension Award."

Dr. Bob Robinson, Extension Service agriculture program director of Amarillo credits Combest for successfully securing much needed funding to continue national programs-directives in research and extension education programs during recent hearings on the Farm Bill.

The congressman is vice chairman of the House Agriculture Committee and in his sixth term in the U.S. House of Representatives.

"He led efforts to gain additional acres under the Conservation Reserve Program for Texas down substantially from 10 years ago. This has been a godsend to our producers," said Robinson.

Combest is a 1969 graduate of West Texas A & M University at Canyon and a native of Memphis. He is a fourth generation West Texas farmer, educator and small business owner. He holds an honorary doctorate of strategic intelligence from the Joint Military Intelligence College. He is married to the former Sharon McCurry and has two grown children.

"Larry's years of practical experience serve him well in Congress," said Robinson, who cited Combest's leadership in environmental policy, "as both environmentally sensitive and economically sound."

Donna Brauchi, Extension director for family and consumer sciences, said the congressman has given high priority to supporting programs that enrich families and community development.

"As public service education professionals, we are fortunate that Rep. Combest fully understands and works with the Extension Service in his home state," said Brauchi.

Officials try to curb drinking at high school proms

Prom night — it's become an American right of passage — one that often times is marked by the carefree use of alcoholic beverages. Under-age Texans wanting to celebrate their upcoming senior proms and graduation nights with alcohol may find themselves in the company of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission (TABC). In conjunction with the Texas Hotel & Motel Association and the Texas Medical Association, the TABC will soon be launching a new enforcement initiative targeting high school prom and graduation night celebrations. "Operation Safe Prom/Safe Graduation 1998 is a much needed enforcement initiative that will help minimize injury and potential loss of lives among our youth due to underage drinking during high school prom and graduation celebrations," says TABC Chief of Enforcement Greg Hamilton.

He adds that the campaign coincides with the recent declaration of the month of April as "Youth Alcohol Awareness Month" in Texas. As part of the operation, TABC agents will be visiting high schools, hotels and motels during the coming weeks and inspecting licensed premises surrounding the location of all high school prom and graduation ceremonies. Random undercover sting operations will also be conducted to target the illegal sale and/or provision of alcoholic beverages to minors. "By working with members of the Texas Hotel & Motel Association, the Texas Medical Association, the alcoholic beverage industry, other law enforcement agencies, MADD and other concerned groups, we hope to forge a partnership that will bring a heightened awareness of the dangers associated with underage drinking," notes Hamilton.

"The basic purpose of this operation is to ensure that this milestone achievement in a young person's life is a safe and sober occasion that they can always treasure for a long time," adds Administrator Doyno Bale. The advent of "zero tolerance" laws in our state, coupled with enhanced penalties for age law violations, signal a new era in our state for targeting illegal underage drinking. Experience has shown that too many young innocent lives have already been lost or severely impaired in Texas due to illegal underage drinking and drinking and driving. Created in 1935, the TABC is the state agency responsible for inspecting, supervising and regulating every phase of the business of manufacturing, importing, exporting, transporting, storing, selling, advertising, labeling and distributing alcoholic beverages. Members of the Commission include Allan Shivers Jr., Chairman, Austin; Martha Dickie, Austin and John Steen, San Antonio. For more information on "Operation Safe Prom/Safe Graduation 1998" and other TABC programs targeting illegal underage drinking, call toll free 1-888-The TABC.

Using yard waste boosts crop production, saves landfill space

The yard trimmings many Texas consider garbage and throw out with their household trash could hold the key to opening up landfill space and improving water quality throughout the state.

A recently completed demonstration project funded by the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board (TSSWCB) showed that compost and wood clippings from yard trimmings could be used to significantly benefit two problem areas affecting urban and agricultural sectors in Texas water contamination from eroding farmland and the growing scarcity of landfill space.

Part of the project's objective was to determine the effectiveness of using compost to increase the water infiltration of erodible soils, making them less likely to be blown or washed away.

When water carries away topsoil as runoff (particularly from erodible land), it can carry soil and agricultural chemicals into drinking water supplies. This is known as nonpoint source pollution.

Increasing the amount of water entering the soil, infiltration, will reduce the likelihood of it being eroded. Tests at a demonstration site in Big Spring indicated the addition of wood chips and compost can significantly enhance a soil's infiltration, said Scott McCoy, program specialist/compost recycling section, Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC).

Water infiltration, the amount of water entering the soil, improved from 10.7 percent on uncomposted soils to 11.3 percent when compost was applied at 10 tons per acre, 12.1 percent with 20 tons of compost per acre, 15.1 percent with 10 tons of wood chip per acre, and 21 percent with 20 tons of wood chips per acre, according to TNRCC figures.

Ken Awtrey, Piney Woods RC&D coordinator, Nacogdoches, orchestrated the use of yard trimmings compost collected at the Lufkin city landfill for use on plots at a nearby vegetable farm. The test area contained typical, sandy, east Texas soil, and showed a marked improvement in structure after the addition of compost, Awtrey said.

Many people are beginning to realize the benefits of compost, particularly when used to aid soils supporting crops like cotton, which doesn't add much organic material to the land.

Even with rates of application as low as five tons per acre, soil benefits would accrue over a period of years, Awtrey said.

The project's second goal was to measure how diverting yard wastes into compost might lessen the burden on landfills. Last year, approximately 11 million tons of compostable materials were put into state landfills, according to the TNRCC.

Composting sites in Pampa, Big Spring and Lufkin were set up to process yard clippings and brush and document amounts of compostable materials diverted from the landfill.

In Pampa (population 20,000) yard trimmings diverted from disposal in the city landfill amounted to 2,909 tons during 1994, 3,649 tons in 1995, and 3,525 tons in 1996.

Close to 20 local residents come to the Pampa landfill each week for the free compost.

In Lufkin, (population 31,000) approximate amounts of brush and yard trimmings composted during the project were, 3,900 tons in 1995, 4,500 tons in 1996, and 6,556 tons in 1997. City officials predict 1998 amounts to double.

Between 20-25 cubic yards of compost are sold weekly to commercial and private users for $5 a cubic foot. Loading is done by the city at no charge.

In addition to increasing the water-infiltration of erodible soils and saving landfill space, compost applications also boosted production of crops grown at demonstration sites.

Cotton yields at a project site in Big Spring improved from 110.4 pounds of lint per acre with no compost added to, 152 pounds of lint per acre with 20 tons of wood chips added per acre, and 163.3 pounds of lint per acre with 40 tons of compost added per acre, according to TNRCC figures.

At a demonstration site in Pampa, grain yields increased from 24 bushels per acre with no compost added, to 37 bushels per acre with 30 tons of compost added per acre.
