Ways to pamper Mom

(ARA) — This Mother's Day break free from convention and give Mom something she's bound to remember. Here's a tip: steer clear of gifts that remind her of daily responsibilities — no cooking utensils or cleaning appliances allowed!

Think pampering, instead. Here are some ideas:

■ Schedule a massage. Whether it's a 15-minute neck-and-shoulder rub, or a one-hour full-body massage, most massage therapists offer a variety of services to suit a wide clientele. Look in your local yellow pages under massage.

■ How about a makeover? From her hair to her make-up to her nails, give Mom a once-over at your favorite salon. Just for fun, take before and after pics!

■ Give her a day all her own. Pick a day when you can release Mom from all her responsibilities and turn her loose to do whatever she wants with no time constraints — morning to midnight.

■ Pack a picnic. Select her favorite gourmet foods and a book by her favorite author, and drive Mom to a nearby park where she can pass a leisurely afternoon. If the weather won't cooperate, opt for her favorite coffee shop instead.

■ Plan a night at the theater. When was the last time your Mother went to a play, or even a movie? Give her an excuse to dress up for a night on the town and enjoy some great entertainment.

Whatever you choose, today's busy Moms deserve some relaxation, freedom and fun! A little pampering is a great way to say "We love you!"

A resting place for Mom

On May 10, what do mothers really want? We offer this epitaph from a Penobscot, Maine, gravestone to give you a hint:

"Here lies a poor woman, Who always was tired; She lived in a house, Where help was not hired; Her last words on earth were, 'Dear friends, I am going; Where washing ain't done, Nor sweeping or sewing; But everything there is exact to my wishes, For where they don't eat, There's no washing dishes; I'll be where loud anthems will always be singing, But having no voice, I'll be clear of the singing; Don't mourn for me now, don't mourn for me never, I'm going to do nothing forever and ever.'"

Locker earns return trip to 3A state meet

By RICK WHITE
Managing Editor

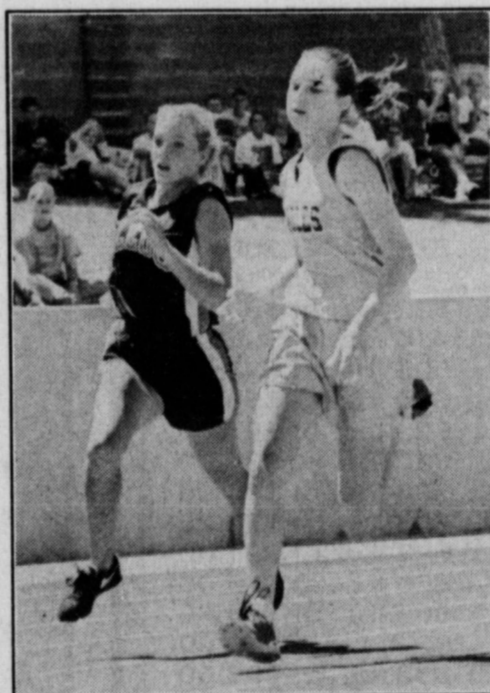

ODESSA — The way Stacy Locker won was more impressive than her time.

Running a smart, tactical race, the Muleshoe High School sophomore standout successfully defended her 800 meters title Saturday at the Region I-3A girls track meet and earned another trip the state meet May 15-16 in Austin.

Carefully pacing herself throughout the two-lap race, Locker ditched Jessica Buchanan of Aledo in the final 200 meters and finished with a personal-best time of 2:23.47 at Ratliff Stadium.

"I'd been nervous all week, but I calmed down after preliminaries," said Locker, who won her heat despite being boxed in early. "I've learned a lot since last year."

Locker took fourth in the 1600 meters later in the day as Muleshoe finished 13th with 15 points. Lady Mule sophomore Lindsey Field finished sixth

Myers, Tipps voted to MISD school board

City Council incumbents ward off challengers

By TERESA STONE
Journal staff writer

Two longtime Muleshoe residents were elected to at-large positions on the Muleshoe Independent School District Board of Trustees during Saturday's local election.

Thurman Myers and David Tipps will replace retiring MISD trustees Max King and Ed Cox.

Myers was the runaway winner, garnering 559 votes. Tipps earned the other position with 434 votes.

Also running in the election was Bruce Barrett who received 387 votes, Jay Messenger who received 241 votes, and Alberto Daniel who received 61 votes.

Approximately 25 percent of registered voters in the Muleshoe Independent School District participated in 'the school board elections.

The election drew some of the heaviest voting in recent memory according to MISD school officials.

Myers, co-owner of Muleshoe Livestock Auction Barn and a Muleshoe High School graduate himself, said "I'm really pleased with the voter turnout. This time around the voters had some good candidates to choose from and I definitely appreciate everyone's support. The turnout shows that people care about our kids, which is important because they are the future of our community.

"I decided to run because of the kids. Now that I'm on the board, I want to help them get a good education."

Tipps is the owner and operator of Hereford Feed Ingredients Inc. in Muleshoe.

He was also pleased with the voter turnout.

"I'm very happy that so many people cared enough to come out and vote," said Tipps.

"I'm very proud to be elected and I'm going to do the best I can. I have to come up to speed with everything the board is doing, which I'm sure is more than most of us realize. I have a few ideas and would like to know where the district stands, but for right now it's my job to listen and learn."

In the City of Muleshoe election, incumbent Councilmen Juan Chavez and Cliff Black won handily.

Chavez earned a third term in District 1 after defeating challenger Sam Burke 54-27 and while Black will serve a second term in District 2 after beating challenger Lupe Olivarez 84-13.

Black said he wanted to serve another term because he wanted to see several projects through to completion.

He said he'd like to see the downtown area revitalize with the help of the state-back Main Street program and would also like the city to complete a backup water system and install a new emergency warning system.

"I'd like to be part of ensuring the safety of the future of the community," Black said.

In the Three Way School Board election, incumbents Marvin McCaul and Murray Davis held off challenger Cliff Heinrich and were reelected.

Elections for the Muleshoe Area Hospital District and the Lazbuddie Independent School District were called off earlier this spring because candidates were running unopposed.

Muleshoe TAAS scores above state average

By TERESA STONE
Journal staff writer

Muleshoe High School students are on the right track, with 79 percent of sophomores passing all three sections of the exit TAAS test.

Overall, Muleshoe scored seven percent higher than the state average of 72 on the Texas standardized skills test.

Scores across the state increased for the second consecutive year from 64 last year, and 52 percent in 1994. The Muleshoe 10th-grade scores followed the trend, jumping ten points from last year's passing rate of 69 percent.

Adrian Meador, Muleshoe ISD assistant superintendent, said "the kids and teachers are working real hard and taking the test very seriously. Their hard work shows in their achievement and the results. Each year we are seeing increases in the scores."

State law requires public school students to pass the exit-level test in order to receive a high school diploma. Students take the test for the first time in the tenth grade. If a student does not successfully pass it, they are given more opportunities over the next few years, to try and pass it before graduation.

Although 11 percent more sophomores passed the test this year compared to last, Meador said that the two classes shouldn't be compared to each other, but more to

Clinton says fast-track vote unlikely

President Clinton last week said it is highly unlikely he will pursue fast-track negotiating authority this year.

He said with mid-term elections coming in November, the timing of bringing up the controversial trade legislation is not right.

Clinton is the first president since Richard Nixon to not enjoy fast-track negotiating authority, which would allow him to negotiate trade pacts with other nations without congressional interference.

The House last year failed to vote on the measure after it appeared Clinton lacked the votes for passage.

The American Farm Bureau Federation is a strong proponent of fast-track authority.

Abilene Wylie captured its fourth-straight team title, slipping past Childress in the meet's final event. Abilene Wylie finished with 82 points, six points in front of Childress.

District 1-3A champion Sanford-Fritch finished sixth with 25 points.

Locker said her only disappointment was failing to break the school, record of 2:23.09 set by Rebecca Green in 1993.

"I've run 2:23 three times now, I was really hoping to get the record," Locker said.

Locker simply ran scared as a freshman. But this year, she's become patient and disciplined, acutely aware of her time splits and pacing herself to finish strong.

Drawing lane 3, Locker sprinted to the front before settling behind early leader Lindsy Griffith of Breckenridge.

Fearing she would get box in like in the preliminaries, Locker pushed her way into the lead after the first lap with Aledo's Buchanan in tow.

Looking relaxed and strong despite the stifling 95-degree heat, Locker built her lead to 10 meters heading into the third turn.

Starting her kick with about 180 meters to go, Locker left Buchanan in her wake. The Aledo runner finished a distance second in 2:26.02.

"I was afraid my first lap I was going to be too fast," Locker said. "I was afraid I wasn't go to have anything left. But then I felt myself getting boxed in. I needed to try and get back out again. That's when I picked it up."

Locker smiled later when she was asked if she had anything left at the end.

"A little," she sheepishly admitted.

But Locker didn't have energy enough left to challenge the leaders in the 1600, held in the searing mid-afternoon sun.

Wendy Sullivan of Colorado City won a relatively slow race in 5:27.81. Becky Perez of Clint was second in 5:35.28. Locker came home in 5:41.45. She ran a 5:33 earlier this year.

In the high jump, Field said she felt good after finally recovering from nagging hip and leg injuries.

"I jumped pretty well," Field. "I could tell the difference in being able to practice for the last two weeks."

She nearly cleared 5-4 on one of three jumps in the finals, but caught the bar with her calf.

Nicole Hummer of Perryton and Whitney Ellis of Friona were the only other District 1-3A athletes to qualify for the state meet.

Hummer won the discus and finished second in the shot put and Ellis finished second in the 110-meter hurdles.

their own achievement.

This year's tenth graders were last tested in eighth grade. Since then, the students showed an overall improvement with an increase from 76 percent in junior high to this year's 79 percent passing of all three sections, math, reading and writing.

The students' scores dropped slightly in math from 85 to 82 percent passing and on the writing portion from 92 to 90 percent passing, compared to their eighth grade tests.

But the tenth graders have made major strides on the reading portion of the test, improving 11 percent and rising to 92 percent passing this year.

One area of concern not only in Muleshoe, but statewide, is the low percentage of Hispanic students passing the exit TAAS. In Muleshoe, 71 percent of the Hispanic population passed, compared to 85 percent of the white students.

"We are trying to concentrate hard on this area," said Meador. "The test is difficult for a student who may not have seen much, if any, English-based literature before coming to school. Our teachers are continually attending staff development workshops designed to identify what exactly is working to help students on the TAAS. Teachers then take these proven methods back their campuses and classroom to help all of our students be successful."

Xeriscaping conserves water

Water usage can triple during the summer as we take more showers, wash the car more often and water the lawn and plants more. But if you plan ahead, you can plant flowers, trees and grass that make better use of their water.

A concept called xeriscaping can help curb the demand for water. According to Extension horticulturist Dr. Doug Welsh, xeriscaping does not center around planting cactus; however it is quality landscaping that conserves water and protects the environment.

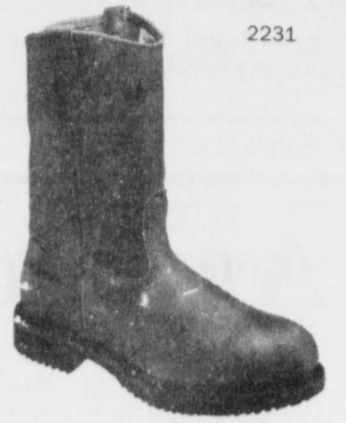

"We're trying to choose those plants that are adapted to the environment we live in," Welsh said. "If we do that in Texas particularly, if the plants can take the heat, take the drought condition, take the soil conditions in many cases and take sometimes our very hard water, than we want to use them."

There are seven principals involved in xeriscaping, Welsh said. These are planning and design, soil analysis, appropriate plant selection, practical turf areas, looking at what the function of the turf is in the landscape, the use of mulches, efficient irrigation and appropriate maintenance such as lawn mowing and the management of insects and disease.

The horticulturist recommends grouping plants depending on their water requirements and setting irrigation systems accordingly instead of watering the entire landscape every time.

"You can design your irrigation system so that you're watering turf grass separately from the perennials, on different schedules. That way we become more efficient when it comes to landscape irrigation," he said. "Turf grass may be watered every other day during the middle of the summer, but perennial flowers may need watering only every three to four weeks."

Aguirre finishes fourth in shot

ODESSA — Ricko Aguirre failed in his bid to return to the state track meet.

The Muleshoe High senior finished a distant fourth in the shot put Saturday at the Region I-3A meet at Ratliff Stadium. Aguirre failed to reach the finals in the discus on Friday.

Sidnei Gaines of Vernon captured the shot with a throw of 58 feet, nine inches. Clint Malius of Monahans was second with a throw of 56-0 1/4 and Charlie Sanders of Dimmitt was third at 55-9.

Struggling to keep his balance using the spin technique, Aguirre's best throw was 52-0 1/4.

The top two individuals and relay teams in each event qualified for the state meet May 15-16 in Austin.

Aguirre was the defending regional champion in the shot and the school record holder in both the shot and discus. He finished sixth in the shot at the state meet last year.

Six-run sixth lifts LHS past Mules

A break from district play offered little reprieve from a losing skid that has seen Muleshoe lose four of its last five games.

Lovington, N.M. pushed across six error-aided runs in the sixth inning Saturday, beating Muleshoe 12-6 in a non-district game at the city park.

"We swung the bats well," Muleshoe coach Brad Hill said. "We wanted to get the win, but most of all, we wanted to get some players some innings to get ready for the rest of district play."

Muleshoe (12-10 overall) is tied for third in the District 1-3A standings with Friona at 6-4, two games back of second-place Perryton with four league games remaining.

The Mules were scheduled to play at Dimmitt Tuesday.

The top two teams advance to the playoffs.

Aaron Purdy and Rodney Alanis paced Muleshoe's 11-hit attack with a double and two hits each.

The game was tied at 6-6 when Lovington scored a six-

Nix relieved Alanis, and after two walks, got the third out.

"Rodney (Alanis) made some good pitches, but we just didn't field the ball very well," Hill said. "That was the difference."

Muleshoe scored five times in the fourth inning to knot the game at 6-6. Purdy's double chased home the Mules' first two runs. A two-run throwing error scored two more.

Lovington bunched its hits together against Muleshoe starter Layne Kemp, sandwiching a pair of singles around Richard Jones' triple while producing two runs in the third that gave Lovington a 3-1 lead.

Back-to-back doubles by Lonnie Murphy and Jaime Marquez triggered Lovington's three-run fourth that stretch its lead to 6-1.

Kemp allowed nine hits and six runs in five innings of work.

Winnie Berry was born January 17, 1905 in Madison County, Arkansas which is in the beautiful Ozark Mountains. She lived in Madison County until she was 5 years old. Winnie, her parents and her siblings moved to Scranton, Ark. and then to Paris, Ark. where Winnie attended high school.

Winnie is one of twelve children. Three sisters and one brother are still living. Mrs. Berry was born "somewhere in the middle of the bunch." Winnie once read in the bible that a child saves a person's soul. She smiles when she says this because "she's sure her mother is in heaven!"

Winnie married Murphy Berry in 1927. Mr. and Mrs. Berry moved to Odessa, TX where he worked as an apprentice in a machine shop and Winnie worked in a photo studio retouching and painting photographs. Mrs. Berry later managed a mobile home park for her husband while he continued to work at the shop.

Winnie and Murphy stayed in Odessa until their retirement. They settled in Farwell until Mr. Berry was placed in the nursing home in Muleshoe in 1977.

Mr. Berry passed away in 1988. The couple did not have any children.

Mrs. Berry enjoys many hobbies. A picture of Eve's tomb painted by herself hangs on the wall in her living room. The actual tomb is a tourist site which was featured in a 1903 magazine that Winnie found. She also enjoys gardening, sewing, crocheting and reading.

Mrs. Berry is a member of the Muleshoe Church of Christ. She participates in their "55 and Alive" program. They visit, have luncheons and play cards.

Winnie says that the staff of M.A.H.H.A. is very nice. They are polite people who care a great deal. She adds that "they sure know what they're doing!"

Battle plans drawn to defeat the boll weevil

In the absence of a diapause program and a succession of mild winters, Southern High Plains cotton producers are gearing up this season to battle possible heavy infestations of boll weevils.

Predictions by both Extension personnel and cotton consultants are that boll weevils will likely be a problem this summer. They advised producers to have battle plans ready.

"No matter what happens it (the boll weevil) will increase per unit production costs," Dr. James Supak, associate department head of Soil and Crop Sciences at Texas A&M University, told a standing room only crowd. "We don't need that problem right now. But we're going to have to deal with it."

Although a number of Extension personnel discussed weevil control in very specific terms, four South Plains cotton consultants shared their overall strategies for dealing with the pest this summer.

John Hunter said the reason weevils are such a formidable adversary is that they emerge over a long period of time.

"If they emerge over a three-month period, they lay eggs over a three month period," Hunter said. "A female weevil can live 30 days and lay 100 eggs during that period. If you have females out there constantly laying three or four eggs per day, then you have to spray about every five days. And it's going to take two or three or four applications to break that cycle."

Because timing is critical, Hunter advised producers to have some kind of backup that will allow them to spray on schedule.

Getting into specifics, Hunter said he will use boll weevil traps to track emergence.

"After looking at this one weevil per trap this past year, and then noting the weevils I had at the end of the year, my conclusion is that if I find a footprint in a weevil trap, I'm going to go ahead and spray," he said.

Hunter said because of its milder effect on beneficial insects, he would probably use Vydate for weevil control. He said he will likely spray at least twice—probably around June 20 when the crop is close to 1/3-grown square, and then 10 days later.

"If you start trying to protect bolls much later than the one that's bloomed the 25th of August, it's pretty likely you're not going to make money," the crop consultant said. "And to protect it, it's probably going to take four sprayings and those sprayings are probably going to cost $7 to $8 per spray."

Weevil-free egg period

"I think it's absolutely important and critical that you maintain a weevil-free egg period early season," said Donald Kitten, crop consultant. "I think the strategy should be not to water too late, plant on time, and just shoot for earliness," Kitten summed up. "Get in and get out."

Although there are problems to be worked out, Palmer said he likes ultra-narrow row cotton because it is quick. He thinks he can maintain production on irrigation and possibly minimize expense.

"You can still plant May 15 and get out of this mess again," he said. "Once weevils get imbedded in that field, little colonies develop. By mid-August, you've got a disaster. You can't just increase the rate and fix it, like you do on bollworms. You just have to back off and say, 'I've got to quit spending money.' Timing is critical."

Nix coffee shop talk

Bob Glodt was different from his fellow consultants in that fields he checks have yet to have weevil problems.

One concern is that after harvest last year, weevils blew up from the south and fed off regrowth in fields.

"Every field we went into, there were boll weevils in all of it," he said. "I think this is a significant departure from what's happened in the past. And I think you better be prepared to possibly deal with boll weevil problems."

His biggest concern, however, is coffee shop talk. There, he said, is a lot of advice—most of it bad.

"I'm going to encourage all of you people. You learn this insect. You learn the life cycle. You learn the biology. You learn the population dynamics. Don't listen to people at the coffee shop," he advised.

The largest mammoth fossil ever found was unearthed in Nebraska in 1922. It stands 13 feet, 4 1/2 inches high.

Tips for parents, overweight children

Overweight children need to "get out of the house" and exercise.

"In most cases, obesity is not solely defined by the amount of calories you consume or food you eat," said Becky Gorham, a registered dietitian and research nutritionist. "But instead by inactivity."

Computers and video games mean more children stay inside when they could be outside burning off calories.

"When children sit in front of a computer or TV screen they tend to eat more which might cause them to gain weight," said Gorham. She recommends parents:

- Encourage kids to walk to and from school if it is safe.
- Basketball, volley ball, swimming, and biking are all good forms of exercise.
- Keep exercise equipment in the house, not in the garage.

- Encourage kids to play during recess.
- Look for churches or other organizations that offer activities for children.

Parents should stress exercise and not diets, which are not healthy for growing children. The best programs for overweight children are those that incorporate lifetime habits of healthy eating and consistent exercise.
