Contract Signed For Additional Housing

Area Farmers Advised To Apply For '82 Loans

Many local and area farmers who have received letters from the Farmer's Home Administration stating that "unless certain money amounts are repaid, FmHA will not be able to consider operating loans for 1982" are being urged to go ahead and make applications for 1982 loans.

been mailed out to farmers in the West Texas and Panhandle area. "Four hundred of these letters alone were in Congressman Hance's district," he added.

According to Richards, calls have been received from individuals and organizations to the Lubbock and Washington office, urging some type of relief or deferral on the farm loan problem.

Sam White, administrative assistant to Hance in the Washington office told the Journal Friday that any moratorium or roll-back was highly unlikely since that would automatically involve the same thing with all farm loans, not just the ones who are in financial trouble. He stated that Hance was working towards a possible deferment with Secretary of Agriculture John Block, who ultimately would have to be the one to make such a decision.

White stated that the National Administrator of FmHA, Charles Shuman, in Washington, had been met with by Hance and had, in turn, advised FmHA directors on the state and local levels to deal with these cases in a "one one one" situation; even, those who have been told "no financing available." He (Hance) is making every possible effort to alleviate some of the troubles that are facing the family farms now."

Clinton Kennedy, director of the local FHA office told the Journal in a recent interview that the office in Bailey County would try to work with each farmer and review cases on a one to one basis. Farmers who have their loan applications disapproved or are not satisfied with them have the right to appeal the ruling of the County Committee. The first appeal would be to a state committee and the second to a national level. Officials stress however, if no loan is submitted, there is not a basis for rejection or acceptance.

The need to keep as many farmers in business as possible is a real one that is realized by Cong. Cont. Page 6, Col. 2

HOUSING BOARD-All members of the Senior Citizens Housing Board met with representatives from FmHA Wednesday to be on hand for the signing of contract for additional senior citizen housing units.

Construction Begins In Mid-January

Harmon Elliott, Chairman of the Senior Citizens Housing Board, Dorothy Scott representing FmHA who is handling the loans, and representatives of Todd Construction of Brownfield met Wednesday afternoon January 6 to sign the contract for the construction of sixteen additional units for the housing of senior citizens in the Muleshoe area.

Dignitaries present for the signing were other members of the Housing Board, being Jim Cox, Jesse Leal, Myron Pool and Tim Campbell. Also present were Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Adams.

Construction on these additional units will begin in mid-January. They will be located south of the present units and will be built according to the same plans and decor. All of the additional units will be one bedroom apartments, equipped for handicapped the same as the ones now in use.

Elliott said, "This is actually Phase 2 of Phase 1, wherein, we (the Board) had planned to build these additional units when the funds became available. The many donations that have been received for the Community Room have come from individuals, clubs and civic groups. Mrs. Jeannie McVicker has taken care of the furnishing of the family room, and has done a terrific job. We are very grateful to her."

When the original building plan was conceived, plans were made to build a total of fifty units; however, funds are limited so as to keep the total at this time of 36. The new units will be landscaped just as the first ones were, and funds have already been set aside for that purpose.

"We already have a waiting list for the additional units scheduled for construction," Harmon said. Completion of the additional buildings is targeted for mid-October, with occupancy to become available as soon after completion as possible.

Each building contains approximately 2700 square feet and consists of four units or apartments.

Exhibitors must declare steer breed at the scales and a classifier will be on hand to classify the steers into the breed divisions. Heifer and feeder steers division are open to purebred and crossbreds.

Animals must be carrying milk teeth the day of the show with no permanent teeth in view. Heifers may have one set of permanent teeth and shall not have calved. Steers must weigh 725 pounds and over. They will be weighed and divided into equal classes. Re-weighs will be left to the discretion of the weigher. No steer will be re-weighed if they have left the weighing area.

Steers weighing less than 725 pounds will be grouped into one class and paid the same premium scale applied to hogs and sheep. First prize will not compete for Grand Champion.

Classes of steers will be divided on the following head basis: 0-8 equals one class; each eight additional animals constitute a new class. Odd number steers

Petro-engineering enrollment increasing

COLLEGE STATION — Petroleum engineering, the highest paying occupation for new college graduates, may also be the hottest field of study on college campuses today, says an expert in the field.

Enrollment in the Texas A&M University petroleum engineering department, the largest in the country, this fall stands at 1,456 students, a 10-fold increase since the Arab oil embargo of 1973. "The primary reason for the increase seems to be because the starting salaries in petroleum engineering — where nine out of 10 graduates go right to work for an oil company — are higher than most areas of study, said Dr. Douglas Von Gonten, head of the department. The average starting salary last May for a Texas A&M graduate with a bachelor's degree was $27,524. Von Gonten predicts the figure will increase to about $32,000 by May of 1982.

AUSTIN—BUYING A CONDOMINIUM. In these days of increasing land costs and unpredictable interest rates, many people are turning to condominium ownership as a substitute for buying a single family home. This, coupled with the ever increasing arrival of newcomers to Houston, has led to a boom in the condominium building and condominium conversion market.

Most condominium sellers are reputable businessmen, but if you are going to spend $40,000.00 to $200,000.00 on a place to live, there are some precautions you should take.

First, ask questions, and try to get the answers in writing, signed by the sales agent. In this way you will be more sure of what you are buying.

Your questions should center around several areas of inquiry:

- Maintenance fees:
 1. How much will my maintenance fee be?
 2. Is it subject to being raised in the future?

3. How does the builder arrange for maintenance fees to be paid on unsold units?

4. Am I assured of not being stuck with maintenance fees for unsold units?

5. Are there any other costs besides mortgage payments and maintenance fees?

—Maintenance:

1. Who does it?
2. For what areas are they responsible?

3. What are the common areas? Lawns? Pool? Attics?

—Condominium Conversion:

1. How much work was done in converting these apartments to condominiums?
2. Is the electrical wiring new and up to local building standards?

4. Are there any structural problems with these condominiums?

5. Is the plumbing in good condition?
6. How old is this building?
7. Are there termites?
8. Is there a pest control management for the complex?

—Appliances:

1. In what condition are the appliances?
2. Are they under warranty?

—Warranties:

1. If something goes wrong with the construction of this condominium, does the builder warrant that he will make necessary repairs?
2. For example: If, through no fault of mine, a water pipe breaks in one of the walls and my apartment is flooded, will the seller make the repairs?

What if the pipe broke due to faulty construction?

3. What if the roof leaks? Who pays for repairs?

—Sales:

1. Does the builder plan to rent any of these units or are they all for sale?
2. If he decides to rent, this

HEALTHY ADVICE

by Fred Lucas, M.D.

Backache Can Be Avoided

Even in today's advanced society, we haven't made much progress in avoiding the common backache. In fact, more things cause backache today than ever before.

Some shoes, tension, ignoring simple safety rules, lack of exercise and bad posture are major causes of back pain, according to a study by the Texas Medical Association.

High-heeled shoes can be a hazard because they change the way the foot strikes the ground and can cause pain from the legs up. The possibility of twisted ankles and assorted tendon, ligament and muscle injuries adds to the danger of wearing these shoes.

Tension is often the cause of such physical problems as headaches and backaches.

Not following simple safety rules when lifting something also can cause backache. People who are not used to picking up heavy loads often make a mistake by lifting while leaning over with their backs bent. Bending from the knees and then lifting with the back straight can help to avoid back pain.

Lack of exercise also causes muscles that are out of shape to hurt just from carrying the body around. And usually when people are out of shape, they are overweight, which adds to the problem.

Remembering to stand up straight pays off in an attractive appearance while helping to avoid pain. Overly soft beds and chairs discourage good posture. Any chair in which someone spends a lot of time should be firm to provide support and be the right height to avoid putting the body at odd angles.

Once back pain strikes, simple remedies should help. Resting, taking non-prescription pain relievers and applying heat will ease most back pains. If the pain is severe or does not go away after a few days, see your physician. He can recommend treatment that might include prescription drugs, special exercise or other remedies.

"This money is used to help buy needed things for the elementary schools that the school funds themselves do not buy."

In the past years, hospital beds, ceiling fans, basketball goals, an information board, and various other things have been bought. "We want and need suggestions from parents and teachers this year as to what to buy," said Debra Noble, third grade vice president and chairman of the Ways and Means.

You may give your suggestions by calling Debra Noble at 925-6755 or mailing them to Route Two, Muleshoe. Any ideas also may be placed in the suggestion boxes at the meetings or in the teacher's lounge during school hours. Deadline for this project is January 13.

Suggestions so far have been for more ceiling fans and playground equipment. "These are your schools and the PTA is your organization for these schools," said Mrs. Noble.

The next PTA meeting will be held January 18 at 7 p.m. in the Mary DeShazo gymnasium where following a short business meeting, Toni Eagle and her fifth grade classes will present a program of aerobics in physical education.

A small child was explaining to her younger brother that it was wrong to work on Sunday.

Effective recruitment of volunteers includes planning and organization. Volunteers must know about the program, understand and value it, and see a place for themselves in it, says a 4-H and youth specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System. Vital to volunteer recruitment are a clear definition of the roles of the volunteer, an understanding of why volunteers are needed, and a job description that clarifies assignments but does not stifle individual initiative.

The Creative Woman

Centuries have come and gone, but the art of bread baking continues to exist. Through the years energetic homemakers have learned many ways to create delightful and fancy masterpieces using yeast dough. Many women think making English Muffins is much harder than it actually is, and Joy Best, Extension Home Economist for Roosevelt County, Portales, will be a guest on "The Creative Woman" show on January 12 and the 16th and will demonstrate the art of making English Muffins. Mrs. Best will also talk about different methods of bread making and will talk about remedies for the not-quite-perfect-loaf.

Another guest on the show will be Susan Wright, Extension Clothing Specialist for New Mexico State University Cooperative Extension Service in Las Cruces. Ms. Wright will discuss the "Capsule Concept of Wardrobe Planning" based on a book by the same name. This concept is based on a wardrobe of 10 to 12 garments which are interchangeable in order to create a working woman's wardrobe of forty-eight garments. Ms. Wright will use a beige, camel and grey combination of garments to show how this concept works.

Using new appliances and "gadgets" in the kitchen can make cooking much easier and a lot more fun. This will be the topic to be covered by Mary Ellen Payne. Extension Home Economist in Lincoln County in Carrizozo. Mrs. Payne will demonstrate a number of new items that are available from a battery powered flour sifter to a package of pie crust weights.

One booklet entitled "Basics of Yeast Bread" will be offered to viewers.

The Creative Woman is seen on Channel 3 at 12:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and at 2 p.m. on Saturdays. The show is produced and hosted by Sheryl Borden. Viewers outside Portales can request copies of printed materials by calling on KENW-TV's toll free telephone numbers. These are New Mexico: 1-800-432-2361 and Texas: 1-800-545-2359. Portales and Roosevelt County viewers are asked to call 562-2112. All callers should call during the week between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

By Bill Wooley

Some things can't be said too often. One thing which needs to be said as often as possible is feeding people world-wide is very big business in the United States. Today, production from one out of every three and one-half acres planted in the United States moves into export channels. As an example, in recent years, the U.S. share of world export markets has amounted to 80 percent in soybeans, almost 70 percent of coarse grains and almost 45 percent of wheat. And, these figures just barely scratch the surface of US export commodities. The farmer, in his role, has tremendous impact on other areas such as fuel, fertilizer, farm equipment, etc. The volume of U.S. agricultural trade has doubled, and its value quadrupled in just the last decade. How many other businesses can make that statement?

Nine Students Receive GED Certificates

Nine students who were enrolled in the fall session of the Muleshoe Adult Basic Education classes earned their GED certificates after passing the General Educational Development Tests which were given in mid-December.

These classes have resumed since the Christmas holidays and will continue through April. Classes meet on Tuesdays and Thursday evenings from 7:00-9:00 p.m. in the Muleshoe Junior High Building.

Adults are eligible to attend classes if they want to learn English, qualify for a job promotion, increase skills in math, reading, science and social studies, or earn a certificate of high school equivalency.

Even though you have not enrolled in these classes, it is not too late to register on Tuesday or Thursday evenings.

The teachers, Wilma Smith, Ruby Lambert, Sue Foley and Janie Balderas, congratulate the students who received their high school equivalency certificates and encourage anyone who is interested in continuing their education to attend these night classes.

College English Class Offered

Plans are in the making to offer English 132 from South Plains College for Muleshoe area residents. The pre-requisite for enrolling in English 132 is that English 131 has been completed. The tuition is 61 dollars plus the cost of books, and the class will be offered on Monday evenings beginning January 18, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. in the Muleshoe Junior High building.

In order to have the class, there must be a minimum of 15 enrollees. The teacher will be an instructor from South Plains College.

The computer math class will not be offered in Muleshoe because a teacher cannot be secured.

If you are interested in this English class, please contact Mrs. Elizabeth Watson at the Junior High or call 272-3325 before January 12.

Preventative Care Is Effective Medical Weapon

AUSTIN, Texas, December 30, 1981 -- An Austin physician who helps administer the Texas Medicaid Program believes that something can be done to slow the increase in the cost of health care.

Fred Lucas, M.D., says that preventive care can be one of the most effective weapons in the battle against soaring medical expenditures.

Lucas is medical director of National Heritage Insurance Co. of Austin. National Heritage, a subsidiary of Electronic Data Systems Corp. of Dallas, underwrites and administers the Texas Medicaid Program. Lucas has appeared on several Texas radio and television shows to discuss preventive care. He also writes "Healthy Advice," a weekly newspaper column which offers hints for good health.

"One important method used to promote preventive health care is the Early Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment program, which is state administered, using funds allocated for Medicaid," Lucas said.

Through the Texas Department of Human Resources, the agency responsible for the state Medicaid program, all Texas families eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children are notified in person or by letter of the date and location of special health-screening clinics.

At those clinics, counseling and instruction are given to either the child or a responsible adult, depending upon the child's age.

"The instruction is a preventive measure which is designed to help the family develop self-care habits. At the same time, doctors and other health care providers doing the checkups also can discover previously hidden medical problems," Lucas explained.

Lucas reported that out of 250,000 Texas children eligible to participate in the EPSDT program, approximately 60,000 were screened at clinics in 1980. One-third, or some 20,000 children, were referred for further treatment. All of those over the age of three were referred to dentists for treatment.

Irrigation Conference Scheduled January 12

AMARILLO---Growers, engineers and irrigation specialists will put heads together here January 12 during the annual High Plains Irrigation Conference for more efficient, cost-saving ways to irrigate crops.

The daylong conference at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West, will begin at 9:40 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m.

Fuel costs for operating irrigation systems will be one of the major topics at this year's conference, said Leon New, agricultural engineer and irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Revised electric rates for irrigation will go into effect, probably in the 1983 season, New said. Discussing these changing rates and their effect upon High Plains farmers will be James Hull of the Deaf Smith Electric Cooperative.

An economic comparison of costs for the various fuels available for irrigating will be provided by Dr. Ray Sammons, Extension agricultural economist farm management.

Reducing pumping costs by repairing and maintaining pumping plants will be another key topic. New will Lucas related the story of how the program helped a Dallas mother discover a serious problem in her infant daughter.

"The mother, who was head of a single-parent household, realized that her child had a serious problem when the baby continually experienced difficulty sleeping. The child's weight dropped and breathing became difficult. Then, she became disoriented and developed a low-grade fever.

"After a referral from a state case worker, the mother took the baby to a participating physician. At that time, the doctor diagnosed that the child had an acute case of bronchiolitis and otitis in her right ear. After the infant received further treatment, the disease was cured.

"Both the mother and her daughter were fortunate," Lucas explained. "While otitis is a fairly common ear ailment, particularly in children, it could have developed into a complicated condition that might have resulted in permanent deafness.

"Bronchiolitis, when it strikes a very young child, can easily lead to pneumonia. The baby had no way of telling her mother just how bad she felt or where she was hurting. Only a doctor could determine the problem." Lucas pointed out that the story is only one example of what has been accomplished in the EPSDT program.

Early diagnosis and treatment established care practices in childhood. According to Lucas, that may lessen the demand on health care resources in later years.

Stacey Campbell Writes Letter From Norway

Stacey Campbell, a Muleshoe High School senior, is attending school in Oslo, Norway, during the 1981-82 school year as a Rotary Exchange Student. Her Norwegian "Parents" are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Arnet. She has one "sister," Tiril, and two "brothers," Hans Petter and Harald. Stacey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Campbell of Muleshoe, she has one brother, Scott and a sister, Kristi.

Stacey wrote a letter to share some of her experiences with her fellow students and friends in Muleshoe. The first part of the letter was published in The Mule's Tale on December 13, and this is a continuation of Stacey's letter.

Well, time passes fast. I have been in Norway nearly four months now, and before long it will be time for me to leave this wonderful country. It seems like only yesterday that I was telling all my friends "good-bye."

My father, "Far," is a director in a large company which produces feed for livestock and fertilizer for crops. He works approximately eight hours a day, five days a week. His job often takes him to other countries, such as Sweden and England. Far is very active in Rotary and various ski associations. He is in good shape for a 50-year old man, because he often goes running, biking and skiing. In addition, he is very knowledgeable on history and politics. He's always making the family laugh with his jokes and funny faces.

My mother, "Mor," is also a lot of fun. She loves "Far" to death. She is always pinching his cheek and kissing him. She is full of energy. She trains children for skiing, works in a voluntary Red Cross Association, knits, weaves, and carries on regular motherly tasks.

My sister, Tiril, is the same age as I, and attends Valler School, which is also my school. Her interests are art, jazz ballet and skiing. She was an exchange student in Ohio last year; so if I ever have any problems, I can usually go to her. She is very outgoing and down-to-earth.

My oldest brother, Hans Petter, is twenty-seven and married to a sweet woman, Wenche. They will have a child this February, and the whole family has bought and knitted many little baby clothes already. Hans Petter works under Far in the feed company. He is a very athletic guy doing everything from windsurfing and skindiving to cross-country and slalom skiing. He also trains children for skiing. Hans Petter is a lot like Far-outgoing and fun to be around.

Harald, my other brother is twenty years old and in the military. (All Norwegian guys are required to serve at least one year in the armed service.) He plans to attend an American college next fall, so much of his time at home is spent filling out college applications and taking college-entry examinations. He's applied to over twenty colleges. I don't know Harald that well, because he is very shy to speak English and he speaks Norwegian too fast for me to understand. He is a fantastic skier; his shelves in his room contain many trophies to prove it.

I'm fitting in more and more as a family member. I help with the chores, join in on family talks, and participate in regular family activities. I even get chewed out once in a while for things like forgetting a dentist appointment or not opening my window at night. I do miss one thing, though, and that is being able to fight with my brother and sister. Here, things build up inside of me and I have no one to blow up at!

So much for my family. Now I'll discuss some of the interesting aspects of my school. I attend Valler Videregående Skole, which is similar to both a college and a high school. Young people in Norway choose whether they want to attend this school or not, but they must go if they plan to attend college.

A school day is consisted of seven periods which are forty-five minutes long. We have a different schedule for each day of the week, sometimes having a subject for two periods in a row. We have ten-minute break between classes. When the tardy bells ring here, though, it means it's time to go to class, so you actually have about a fifteen minute break. Most kids have lots of free classes in their weekly schedule; I have six.

Another interesting factor is that the classroom belongs to the students instead of the teachers. The students can decorate their room however they wish. Instead of the students switching classes, the teachers do. We go to different rooms when we have our elective subjects, though. Each grade has four required subjects, then a student may choose from three to six others. A students must have at least thirty periods a week.

Students here belong to the same class for each of their three years at the school. In addition, a student must follow a certain line of study, which they choose after their first year. These lines include social studies, languages, and math/science studies. I follow the social studies line in order to obtain my world history credit.

Norwegian schools have no organizations such as FFA, FTA, FCA, FHA, etc. The only extra-curricular activities in our school are sports, but they are very insignificant in comparison to American schools. Most of the sport competing in done outside of school. Norwegian schools also stick more to the basic subjects. We have a very limited choice of electives.

One thing that the Muleshoe kids would like about the Norwegian schools is the lax rules. We have no dress codes and no grade penalties for unexcused absences or tardies. In addition, students can eat, drink and chew gum in class. There are no rules controlling romantic behavior, either. The classroom atmosphere is very relaxed, with equal respect between both the teachers and the students. We often have open discussions on controversial subjects. Other fun activities are singing in class and going on field trips. Some of the field trips I've taken have been to the American and English schools here, and also to a shipowner organization's meeting. The freedom and activities I've mentioned reminds one of a college atmosphere. It is probably this way since this school is not compulsory, and the student body is made up of people who want a higher education.

An additional factor reminding one of college is the purchasing of textbooks by the students. They don't have the privilege of borrowing them from the school. Money is saved by buying used books, though. At the first of the year, everyone went to the shopping center and spread their used books on the sidewalks. Here, they bargained with other students who were looking for some cheap materials.

The grade system is also different. Instead of a percentage score, we receive numbers from one to six, with six being the best. A two average is required to pass.

We have no cafeteria here. We have a lunchroom with a small snack bar which sells orange juice, yogurt, and sweet rolls. Everyone brings their lunch, which consists of two or three slices of bread with cheese, sausage or a spread. Norwegians never eat closed sandwiches with a slice of bread on top of the spread. The lunchroom is only used in the winter, in warm weather the students eat out on the lawn.

The major goal of the students is not to make good grades, but to prepare themselves for a major test at the end of the year. This test determines whether they will pass or graduate. Of course they need a reasonable grade average, too. But just imagine the pressure on these students when they take the tests!

The last thing I will discuss about my new school is the "Russ" year. When a student has reached the last year of school, he is considered a "Russ". Throughout the year, kids get together and have meetings and parties. Some groups even join together and buy an old van and fix it up with paint, curtains, carpet, stereo, etc. They finance it with advertisements painted on the outside. This and many other things are done to prepare for a big event of the year, which is the "russetid." This two-week period, right after the year examination, is spent doing nothing but celebrating. Kids from all over the country get together to travel and party. They have parades and special outfits. One special part of these outfits is a hat with a long cord. For each sunrise one sees (after staying up all night), a knot is tied in the cord. This is a major competition, and some kids stay up as much as four nights in a row. That's a little easier in Norway, though, when one considers that a summer night lasts from one to five hours.

Burton Named Correspondent

Mary Burton, 17, has been named CO-ED Correspondent for the 1981-82 school year, according to an announcement by Kathy Gogick, Editorial Director of CO-ED/Forecast Magazines. CO-ED, published nationally by Scholastic Inc., for home economics students, contains features on personal development, careers and consumer awareness as well as the latest trends in fashion, food, beauty, and home furnishings.

Mary Burton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Burton, is a senior at Muleshoe High School. She was elected Correspondent by HECE class members.

Selected for her qualities of leadership and enthusiasm for home economics, Mary will serve as junior advisor to CO-ED editors. Like the other CO-ED Correspondents throughout the United States and Canada, she will keep the editors informed of activities at her school.

First Semester Ends Wednesday

The upcoming week will be a busy one for students and teachers alike. This week will end the semester, and Tuesday and Wednesday, students will be taking semester tests. Each day classes will last two hours. Periods 1,3, and 5 tests will be taken Tuesday. Tests in periods 2,4, and 6 will be taken Wednesday.

Muleshoe High School faculty members will have a work day Thursday, January 14 and a holiday Friday the 15th. Students will be out of school on Thursday and Friday.

Knoxville expects 11 million for 1982 World's Fair.

School was boring for me at first, because I couldn't understand a word in my classes. I spent day after day studying Norwegian and writing letters. Now I'm participating more, though so it's a bit more interesting. After Christmas, I will try to do all my assignments, so I can possibly get some high school or college credits. It's going to be a challenge; I hope I can do it.

This wraps it up on my new family and school. Maybe later I can write on some of my crazy experiences I've had, trying to adjust to a new culture. But as for now, I hope each of you are doing well and my thoughts and prayers are with each of you.

Muletrain On Sale Wednesday

FHA Plans Activities

Future Homemakers of Muleshoe High School are making plans for the remainder of the year. A meeting was held January 7, at 3:30 p.m. in the Homemaking Department. President Donna Horn presided at their business meeting, at which time, the finances, as well as immediate and future projects and programs were discussed.

Donna also talked to the group about the Area I FHA meeting to be held in Amarillo in February. Plans are being made to operate the basketball concession stand Monday, January 11.

Members are individually working on personal growth goals that they have set up.

Naturally Teen-agers act so silly right after you cease to be one of them. -Telegraph, Dubuque, Ia.

Tuesday, January 19, is to be a very special day for the students and faculty of MHS. That day has been declared Free Enterprise/Career Day which is being arranged by the Civics and Distributive Education Departments.

All senior students will spend the morning in the high school auditorium in a free enterprise workshop. The workshop includes outstanding speakers Dan Law, president of Fields and Company of Amarillo and Lubbock; Dr. C. L. Kay, Executive Director of the Center for Business and Economic Education at Lubbock Christian College in Lubbock; and Dick Laird Executive Director of Students in Free Enterprise and political science instructor at LCC. The career portion of this day involves the rest of the student body all day with the seniors joining them in the afternoon.

Twenty guest speakers, each representing a different career area, will be making presentations in classrooms to those students who showed a particular interest in that field in a survey taken in the fall.

Among the career areas represented are fashion merchandising, lawyer, the military, secretarial studies, carpenter and machinist, barber/beautician, reporter, nurse, social worker, artist, architect, photographer, teacher, accountant, interior designer, farmer, dental hygienist, veterinarian, and banker. Guest speakers are from local businesses as well as from Lubbock, Clovis, and Hereford.

Everyone is getting excited about the Free Enterprise/Career Day, and any parent or interested person is encouraged to join us on Tuesday, January 19.

Student Council Attends Conventions

Several members of the 1981-82 Muleshoe High School Council attended the S.C. District 5 convention Wednesday, January 6, at the South Plains College in Levelland.

The first general session was called to order at 9:30 by District 5 president, Ginger Nances from Plains High School. The invocation was given by Mark McCanlies from Littlefield, followed by the pledge of allegiance led by Patsy Davis from Abernathy.

Jane B. Lybrand was the speaker who entertained the group by explaining her career. She spoke of body language and how people express their emotions by their actions. She persuaded all students to become strong individuals, to believe in themselves and to have enough confidence in themselves to make others believe in them also.

After lunch the group enjoyed the entertainment given by students from Abernathy High School. Several songs were sung by the Abernathy band. A report on safety was given by Ginger Nance from Plains followed by Ken Bell's presentation of the SMILE alcoholism project that was successful at Denver City.

A political rally took place at 2:00 p.m. The 1982-83 District officers were elected by voting delegates from each district city.

Everyone seemed to really enjoy the convention and appeared to meet other council members with good project plans for the upcoming year. Polly Harrison, Kristi Campbell, Jan Whitt, Tamara Bean, Shelly Sain, Darin Bratcher, Susie Pierce, Francis Saldana, Janet Shain, Robert Nowlin, Jimmie Lee, Margie Carmona, Monty Hysinger, Rosa Alarcon and Zeke Contreras were the S.C. members who attended the District 5 convention with their sponsors, Mrs. Lola Pylant and Mr. Keith Taylor.

Reports

WE HAVE TO MEAN BUSINESS

AUSTIN - In the past ten years, the population of Texas has increased about 27 percent. That's a lot. In the same period of time, the crime rate in Texas has increased about 90 percent. That's too much. We must stop this increase.

Last week we talked about how we need more discipline in our criminal justice system to show young people and older criminals we mean business. Here are a few examples of what we should do.

For one thing, we must allow our schoolteachers and administrators to administer quick and fair punishment. "Spare the rod and spoil the child" is as true today as it was in Biblical times.

Of course, not all children will respond to this treatment. Some will end up in the custody of the Texas Youth Council, the state agency in charge of juvenile delinquents. Here again, TYC needs more power to discipline these youngsters.

We heard testimony at our meeting of the Committee on the Criminal Justice System of Texas from a well-known criminal defense lawyer. He said he was fed up with seeing young men come into his office after committing a crime such as burglary or car theft, only to see them get probation.

He said these young people commit crimes against people's property, and then know they will get probation two or three times before they go to jail. "This is wrong. What we need to do is put them in jail - maybe not for forty years, but for 60 or 90 days. We need to create a situation where they know they will be punished, even if the punishment is not too severe," he said.

Remember, this call for punishment came from a man who makes his living keeping people out of jail.

We think the lawyer really was saying two things. First, there is no certainty of punishment today. Second, it would be more effective to make sure every criminal is punished, lightly perhaps, than to gamble with the system we have now.

The system we have now is a gamble. Stealing a car can get a criminal 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine, but it probably won't. More likely, the accused will be arrested and released. From arrest to the end of the appeal process will take about four years. Then the criminal might go to jail, or he might get probation.

Anyone who has ever had a child or a puppy knows four years is not the way. We must send a clear signal to children, juveniles and adults - if you break the rules, you will be punished. We don't need to spend $10,000 a year to house a first offender for 10 years in prison, but we need to bust them fast and sure. We need to show them we mean business.

We know you mean business about crime - we all do. But we want to hear from you about how to stop it. Write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711.

Texas Gets Fair Share Of Tax Dollars

COLLEGE STATION - A Texas A&M University political scientist says the state gets its share of return on the tax dollars Texans send to Washington.

"Texas is among the top states to receive revenue from the government," said Dr. Harvey Tucker, "and while we don't reap good returns from some federal programs, we fare well in a good many others that more than make up the difference."

Recent reports have indicated Texans only get back a dollar for every $1.40 they pay into federal government programs falling under grants-in-aid such as Medicaid, highway construction, general revenue sharing, welfare maintenance assistance, employment training and assistance, and wastewater treatment.

Tucker pointed out that the amount of money Texas receives from grants-in-aid programs is but one source of revenue, representing a direct transaction from the federal government to the state. Other forms include payments to state and local governments for military property holdings and research and development grants made directly to individuals, he said pointing out that by law corporations are considered individuals.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhill Philosopher on his Johnson's grass farm on Sandy Creek this week discusses the effect of television on kids' reading, or maybe it's the other way around.

Dear editor:
At the suggestion from a school teacher who claims too much TV watching makes poor readers out of kids, 50 families shut their sets off for a month to see what would happen. If I were connected with a school system that's failing to teach kids to read, I'd blame it on television or anything else I could get my hands on.

The 50 families survived all right but have now gone back to watching TV. Some of the families read more than usual during the experiment but it wasn't reported what they read. And as for reading for reading's sake, unless you're a book seller, what difference does it make whether you're reading a murder mystery or seeing one on TV? Time passes about the same and it takes as much electricity for a reading lamp as it does for a TV set.

Every once in a while, especially during commercials if they were repeats, I have pondered the effect of TV on kids' reading. In some cases, TV helps. A kid has to learn to read to find out from the newspaper's TV schedule what's coming up. Some kids can remember what's on tonight, but they probably know how to read already.

Arguing that more reading would be done if there were no television is like arguing the world would be safer if there were no nuclear bombs. It's true but pointless, as television and nuclear bombs are here to stay. At least till some nut starts firing the latter, in which case very few TV sets will be working.

Back to the subject. Television does interfere with some activities. For example, it's true kids can't read and crack walnuts at the same time, but on the other hand they can't watch TV and listen to records turned up loud at the same time. This is equalized by the fact they can eat potato chips and drink soda water while doing either or both.

It's my guess you can teach a kid to read but you can't force him to keep on, and there are kids you can't stop from reading, even way past bedtime. This was going on long before television.

Come to think of it, television and nuclear bombs probably were invented by people who read alot. On the other hand, cars and light bulbs were invented by people who read scarcely at all. Yours faithfully,

J.A.

We would like to take this opportunity to say how much we have enjoyed living here the past five years. Soon we will be moving to another refuge and we will miss the friends we have come to know and love here. Thanks so much for helping us to be part of this community. May God bless each one.

The Texas Consumer Association Education Fund's Report from Austin

By Rebecca Lightsey, Legislative Director

CWIP. It may sound like a joke, but it's a highly-charged issue to folks concerned about higher utility costs.

Construction work in progress, or CWIP, refers to an arcane aspect of electric utility regulation; it's a way of fancy accounting to let utilities earn a profit on expensive power plants — like nuclear power plants — while they're still under construction.

Utility regulatory agencies allow electric utilities to charge their customers enough to cover operating expenses and to get a reasonable return on investment. When a utility wants to build a new plant, it raises money by selling more stocks or bonds, not by raising charges to customers — which is the way all other companies operate. When a plant is finished and is producing energy, then it becomes part of the investment on which rates are set; customers are charged for it and the utility gets a profit on it.

Now the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission, searching for new ways to help out electric companies, proposes to let utilities in "severe financial difficulty" charge customers for the cost of building new plants even before they're completed and power is generated — and to make a profit while they're under construction. This practice is called CWIP.

The Commission itself only controls a small part of electric rates, but it sets the pace for state commissions. In Texas, our Public Utility Commission has already been allowing CWIP, but there's a serious question as to the legality of this. If the fed changes its CWIP rules, it'll be setting a precedent for the states to follow with impunity.

The FERC says the change is necessary to improve investor confidence in utility companies — which has plummeted because of utilities' cost-overruns on nuclear power plants, utility mismanagement and the drop in electricity demand. By making customers pay for construction (and profits) that investors used to finance, the utilities will get the bail-out they need.

The utilities agree, the industry is unanimously behind the Commission's CWIP proposal.

Others aren't. It may help utilities, but it sure is going to hurt utility consumers, opponents say. The government's own study shows CWIP adds about 15% to a typical electric bill. Right here in our own home state, CWIP cost Houston Lighting and Power customers nearly $75 million last year alone.

CWIP gives the utilities free rein to build, build, build without answering to the rigorous scrutiny of investors. It even rewards utilities for mismanagement — the worse the past planning, the more likely they're going to get relief under the Commission's plan, opponents say.

Essentially, consumers become the investors for utility expansion, but we don't get any return on the "money" we invest, nor do we have any influence over how the companies use our money. And we can't stop "investing" if we don't like what the utility company is doing.

What's your opinion? Should the feds give utilities the OK to charge customers now for electricity they won't see for years? Let the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission know, write to the Office of the Secretary, FERC, 825 N. Capitol St., N.E., Washington, D.C. 20426.

A&M president says Aggies aren't taking 'soft' courses COLLEGE STATION — Texas A&M University President Frank E. Vandiver has taken exception to Commissioner of Higher Education Kenneth Ashworth's recent comment that students are turning "soft" in their courses selections — at least on the basis of what most Aggies are studying.

Texas A&M enrolls more engineering students than any other college or university in the nation, Vandiver pointed out, and it also leads the country in enrollment in agriculture and veterinary medicine.

"Well over two-thirds of our 35,000 students are pursuing degrees in scientific or technical fields, and these disciplines are hardly what I would describe as soft or easy," Vandiver said.

ATTEND THE CHURCH OF YOUR CHOICE

Cures All

To a child a band-aid is the quickest cure, and will heal and protect any wound. This is a wonderful trust . . . how wonderful it would be if we would place the same trust in the Lord. "Ye that fear the Lord, trust in the Lord: he is their help and their stronghold." Confidence and faith grows greater with practice. Attend church regularly, study God's word and . . . "they that know thy name will put their trust in thee: for thou, Lord, hast not forsaken them that seek thee."

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

SAMPLE CUSTOMER NOTIFICATION HIGH FLUORIDE

Dear Customer: The Ranch House Motel has been notified by the Texas Department of Health that the water being supplied by our system exceeds the maximum constituent level for Fluoride established by the Department's "Drinking Water Standards" which were promulgated as required by the "Safe Drinking Water Act", Public Law 93-523 (U.S.)

The limit for this area has been set a 1.6 milligrams of Fluoride per liter of water. The samples of water from our system contained 2.1 milligrams of Fluoride per liter. There is no immediate health hazard for drinking water containing Fluoride at this level.

The excessive Fluoride content of the water may cause mottling of the teeth in children under 14 years of age.

All dentists in this area are aware of the Fluoride level.

The Ranch House Motel has applied to the Texas Department of Health for either a variance or exemption from the Fluoride requirement while we search for alternate sources of supply and investigate available treatment techniques to lower the Fluoride to allowable levels.
