A story "Shower By U. S. Mail Honors Charles Lenau in Missouri" appeared in the Sunday Bailey County Journal. A line missing in the next to the last paragraph caused the story to read in such a manner as to state that the honoree parent's and Mrs. Charles Lenau, Colum. Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lancaster, Mo. and Mr. and Mrs. Julian Lenau were hostesses for the unique shower. However, instead of being listed among the hostesses, they should have been listed as participants of the honored couple, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Lancaster, Mo. and Mr. and Mrs. Julian Lenau. Al Cassidy, long-time Muleshoe area farmer, has been dismissed from Clovis Memorial Hospital and is recuperating at home.

God Came To Call

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following was written by Mrs. Wilma Callahan in memory of her son, Gordon Cary Lindley, who was killed as a result of a gun accident at the home of his grandparents in Littlefield on December 23.)

GORDON CARY LINDLEY: IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY SON AND OUR BROTHER, WHO LIKE A LITTLE BIRD FLEW AWAY ONE MONTH AGO TODAY.

"GOD CAME TO CALL" I'll lend you for a little while, a child of me," He said, "For you to love the while he lives

And mourn for when he is dead." It may be six or eleven years, or twenty-two or three: He'll bring his charms to gladden you.

And should his stay be brief? You'll have his lovely memories As selsce for your grief.

I can not promise he will stay Since all from earth, return But there are lessons taught down there,

I want this child to learn. I've looked the world over In my search for teachers true.

And from the throngs that crown Life's love, I have selected you. Now will you give him all your love,

Nor think the labor vain, Nor hate me when I come to call And take him back again. I fancied that I heard them say DEAR LORD, THY WILL BE DONE.

For all the joy Thy Child will bring The risk of grief we'll run. We'll shelter him with tenderness, We'll love him while we may.

For all the happiness we have known Forever grateful stay. But shall the angels call him Much sooner than we've planned.

We'll brace the bitter grief That comes, and try to understand. Mother, Stephen, Celia, and Trent

Our deepest heartfelt Thanks to Gordon's Honorary Bearers, Boy Scout Troop 634. Bearers, Bud Brasher, J. H. Parkman, Leon Richardson all of Littlefield, Jim Beller, Melvin Griffin and Bob Copeland of Muleshoe. To friends for your kind expression of sympathy. To Gordon's teacher, Mrs. Hollie Frances for her love shown. To the Patrol Boys and Mr. Benefield of Richland Hills School, for the lovely Memorial they are preparing to Gordon's Memory.

Her exceptional presentation of figures, and pictures of her recent trip to Japan was well received as the highlight of the meeting.

Two Projects Successfully Completed By Richland PT-A

Two successfully completed projects of Richland Hills Parents and Teacher Association were cited at Monday afternoon's meeting of the organization.

In cooperation with Milton Oyler, school principal, and school officials, the P-TA contributed $265 toward the installation of sidewalks from the west entrance of both wings of the building to the northern sidewalks and bus leading stations. Approximately $200 was supplied from the school candy machine fund. The sidewalks were laid during the Christmas vacation, Oyler reported, and leveling is being completed now.

Jerry Bruns Named Delegate For European Goodwill Tour

Jerry Bruns has been informed that he was chosen as a member of a State-wide Future Farmers United States Goodwill Delegation taking part in a 1964 People-to-People Mission to Eastern and Western Europe.

The tour group will be the official and honored guests of outstanding Agricultural youth groups and European Foreign Government officials as well as United States Embassy officials.

Jerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Bruns, was informed of the honor by Wilbert H. Meischen, FFA Chapter Advisor-Instructor, Raymondville, who was selected to sponsor the Texas group under the auspices of the People to People Program.

In a letter to Jerry, Meischen said: "It is a pleasure to work with, and be associated with, people of your caliber who appreciate America and Democracy to the extent that you will give of your time and money to promote understanding and goodwill between people. Little by little, through personal contact with people both in Eastern and Western Europe, Goodwill People-to-People Delegations have been able to plant seeds of goodwill for American which have done much to dispel the doubts and fears of the people in the European countries especially those under Communist domination."

Nine Future Farmers from Texas made this trip last year and found it to be an experience that happens once in a lifetime. The Texas delegation will consist of 30 to 50 Future Farmers, active and associate members from all parts of the state.

Selections of delegates are based on personal status among the agricultural youths of the state.

The delegation is scheduled to leave New York International Airport Friday, June 12, and return Thursday, July 2. The time

State Of Culture In America

By EDWARD H. SIMS
Part II

To look at another form of cultural attainment, let us look at opera. Firstly, Americans will never patronize opera like Europeans do, and this is understandable — and even admirable.

That last claim may strike the European opera lover as strange but the blunt truth is that the average American cannot be satisfied with the old silent-film ham acting and eye-brow-raising of European opera, coupled with music and singing are wonderful. This was appropriate in its time, and is still good, but the simple stories and operatryals are no longer sophisticated enough for the average American.

American opera lovers, lamenting over the refusal of Americans to patronize operas, are wasting perspiration and tears. Americans will never take the old-style European opera to their hearts like Europeans.

We must remember that the European is historically wrapped up in these tales and suspicions and mysteries and has been taught from childhood to love the opera. It is almost like a church in his mental outlook, and has a sentimental value. In addition, most of them understand the languages and know the words and stories of the operas.

The American (especially men) finds it difficult to sit through several hours of singing, the word of which he cannot understand. Even if he spoke the language, words of which he cannot understand, even if he spoke the language, he could not decipher the words of the ladies anyhow. The whole production is highly repetitive, a practice dating back hundreds of years. The American operagoer today hears a duet with the lines something like:

He: Give Me The Sword!
She: Oh, no.
He: Give me the sword.
She: No, no, no.
He: Give me the swo-ode;
She: No-ow!

Etc. By this time, the typical reaction of an American is an exasperated; "For Heaven's Sake give him the darn sword!"

We must squarely face the fact that Americans will never take to traditional opera like the European. We must do what we can to give him something in aesthetic form as a substitute. It could be good concerts. But even better, it could be modern opera, a form of music and story (apart from commercial television fare) that is palatable to the American of 1964.

The author does not claim to know all the answers, or any of them. But the need for something different is obvious and we should concentrate on the need for a new form, rather than wring our hands over the number of Americans who do not attend European-style opera.

That brings us to the field of painting, which will be discussed next week. Even though the author claims absolutely no qualifications in this field (in spite of a recent sober effort with the Metropolitan Seminars in Art, and treks through the greatest art galleries in London, Paris, Washington and other cities) any ordinary citizen can observe certain basic truths, which are self-evident.

AID BILL PASSED
The House passed a $3-billion foreign aid bill as its last piece of legislation before the holidays. The bill gives the President authority to approve credit guarantees on wheat and other sales to the Soviet bloc.
It was the first big legislative victory for President Johnson, although he did not get as much as he asked for.

Farm Mechanization Increases Profit

The farmer who mechanizes his operation will probably improve his margin of profit. That's the opinion of Fred E. Justus Jr., associate professor of agricultural economics at the University of Missouri. As a matter of fact, says Justus, the prospect of increased profits is the real reason most farmers turn to mechanization in the first place. Along the way to a better profit picture, says Justus, there are six advantages to be gained by using modern farm equipment:

1. Saves time.
2. Saves energy, takes the drudgery out of work.
3. Increases the size of business.
4. Improves timeliness of operation.
5. Permits change of land use.
6. Reduces field losses and feed wastage.

Merely investing in farm machinery is no guarantee of business success, however, Justus points out. Before launching into mechanization, the farmer should understand what he is trying to accomplish and carefully analyze the costs and returns involved. When a farmer is thinking of buying equipment, he ought to keep two types of costs in mind - fixed costs and operating costs.

Fixed costs include interest on machinery, investment, depreciation, taxes, insurance and housing. These costs remain the same regardless of how much the equipment is used.

According to Justus, some farmers do not use machinery enough to spread these fixed ownership costs adequately. The more he uses his equipment, the smaller will be his costs per job.

An example of this kind of economizing is provided by the farmer who feeds 200 cattle, instead of 100, with a self-unloading wagon. In this case, he has cut his fixed costs per animal in half.

Operating costs consist of payments for fuel, oil, lubricants, repairs and labor. These remain about the same per unit of work performed.

Quoted in the New Holland Grassland News, Justus advises farmers to do some pencil pushing - budgeting - before buying major pieces of equipment. One thing the farmer must consider is how his new machinery will fit into his complete mechanized system. To really make mechanization profitable, concludes Justus, the farmer must organize his work habits and entire work load. This will make it a lot easier to take advantage of new equipment and buildings.

Now Is The Time For Inventory Of Farm's Soil

The soil is a good place to start farm income improvement for 1964. A soil inventory, points out County Agent J. K. Adams, should include a close study of the acres to be farmed or grazed since soils may vary in their productive capacity and adaptability to crops.

A logical first step, he says, is a soil testing program. The determinations from the soil testing laboratory will give needed information for the farmer to plan the crop or pasture with the nutrients for top production. The fertilizer recommendations for a particular field will be based upon the analysis made of the soil sample submitted to the testing laboratory.

The county agent emphasized the importance of submitting soil samples which are representative of the field or pasture. The results of the laboratory analysis, he explained, will be no more true than the soil sample submitted.

Producers are invited to contact Adams for detailed information on how to take soil samples and also for report forms and soil sample containers. He also reminded gardeners that soil testing would help them solve fertility problems connected with their activities.

Phosphate content of Bailey county soils are highly variable and the test for this element is very accurate. Forms and containers are free and the soil test cost is very reasonable concludes, J. K. Adams, County Agent.

FOREIGN AID RUMOR
Any attempt for the Johnson Administration to shift some foreign aid items to the Defense Department's budget will be met by strong opposition in the House Appropriations Committee. Rumors that such a move would be made by the Administration have been current for weeks in congressional circles.

Lazbuddie Group Sees Skit Presented

By CHARLOTTE SEATON

The Lasting Rose Chapter of Lazbuddie held its regular F. H. A. meeting. First on the program was a skit, "The Backward Glance" presented by several of the girls.
