

Glaze On Roads Hampers Travel

By JIM BUSBY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Freezing rain coated streets and highways over a vast section of the state this morning, touching off a rash of traffic accidents and making travel extremely hazardous.

About 30 auto accidents — several of them on overpasses and Loop 289, but none apparently serious — were reported to Lubbock police during a 3 1/2-hour period this morning, as light rain pelted the area in freezing weather.

The Department of Public Safety also reported numerous accidents on South Plains highways but said none of them resulted in serious injuries.

And although precipitation stopped by midmorning, forecasters reported a possibility for more rain this afternoon and tonight, and travelers advisories will continue to be in effect.

Local forecasts call for readings in the middle 30s today, dropping to the low 20s tonight, when the precipitation is expected to stop. The National Weather Service today abandoned earlier predictions of up to two inches of snow in the Lubbock area.

The current cold surge swept across the South Plains during the weekend, establishing itself as the season's harshest weather with the coldest Jan. 10 reading in 47 years — 9 degrees.

Clouds covered most of the state today, and severe weather prompted the posting of travelers advisories in Northern and Central Texas, as well as the South Plains and Panhandle.

Temperatures in the teens continued in the Dallas area for the second night in a row and caused the curtailment of natural gas delivery to some industries in that area.

A Lone Star Gas spokesman said Dallas consumption topped previous records with a 2.4 billion cubic foot rate during two days.

Most companies affected by the gas curtailment reportedly were able to continue operation by switching to alternate forms of fuel, but schools at Clarendon and Paducah were shut down by the gas shortages.

Freezing rain and sleet were reported from the Pecos River Valley to the Red River Valley and in North Central Texas as well as the Hill Country of Central Texas.

But temperatures across the state varied dramatically, from 15 at Amarillo to 66 at Brownsville.

Forecasts generally called for the freezing rain and sleet to end this afternoon, but snow was expected to continue in some areas.

Thunderstorms, some possibly severe, were included in South and Southeast Texas forecasts for this afternoon.

Reports indicated a possible warming trend during the remainder of the week, with Thursday's high in the 40s.

Today's bitter temperatures on the South Plains apparently were milder than Tuesday's area readings which generally fell below the 15-degree low in Lubbock this morning.

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation issued hazardous driving warnings this morning for the following areas, in addition to most of the Panhandle and South Plains: San Angelo, scattered ice on roadways; Fort Worth, ice on bridges and overpasses; Tyler, ice on bridges; Foard, King and Knox counties, highways iced over; also Hamilton and Hill counties, scattered ice on highways; Wichita Falls, completely iced over; Brownwood, "slush" cover throughout area; Dallas, ice cover on bridges as well as roadways in Denton and Collins counties; Paris, ice cover throughout area; Austin, ice on bridges and overpasses.

The bad weather caused postponement of a North Texas-Texas Tech women's basketball game scheduled here tonight until 6 p.m. Thursday.

HARD KNOCKS — A two-car mishap in the 3400-block of Loop 289 this morning was only one of many such incidents reported. Lubbock rush-hour drivers were forced to contend with ice-coated streets and skidding vehicles in all areas of the city. The only casualty in this mishap was a vapor-light pole, at left. Area Trains Halted By Farm Protesters

By MONA HARVEY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Protesting South Plains farmers, launching a new strategy to dramatize their complaints about low farm prices, halted at least four Santa Fe Railroad trains today.

Trains were stopped near Hale Center at 5:45 a.m., at Posey at 9:15 a.m. and near Littlefield and in the Bovina-Farmerton area about 10:45 a.m.

In only one of the instances, the Bovina-Farmerton one, was the railroad track actually blockaded, a Santa Fe spokesman said.

The usual manner of stopping trains was to light flares, the spokesman said. "The crews have to honor it (the flare) as a definite legal stop," he said.

In the Bovina-Farmerton incident, after the train crew initially stopped and determined there was nothing blocking the track, they proceeded, the Santa Fe man said. A few miles away, farmers placed a pickup truck on the track which again delayed that train, he continued.

The "blockades," apparently organized through the Hale Center American Agriculture Strike office, detained a train en route from Lubbock to Amarillo for about an hour near Hale Center this morning.

Hale County deputies met briefly with the farmers, but made no arrests.

A Slaton-to-Clovis, N.M., train was delayed about 30 minutes at Posey, the Santa Fe official said.

The striking farmers reportedly did not make any demands of the train crews. And the trains were not singled out due to their cargo, said farmer Tommy Applewhite of Cotton Center.

"We're just trying to get news coverage and inform the American public" of the farmers' plight due to low farm prices," he said, reached at the Hale Center strike office.

He said about 60 agriculturists participated in the Hale Center halting. "A few tractors were there, but we kept them off the right-of-way," he said.

"The crew wouldn't let us come aboard, but we talked to them anyway. When the crew got information from Amarillo (headquarters), they were told to run the picket," Applewhite said.

Tractors and pickup trucks were reported parked along, but not on, the track near Littlefield about 10:30 a.m. Engineers and freightmen disembarked and shared coffee and doughnuts with the picketing farmers beside a roaring fire in today's sub-freezing weather.

An American Agriculture spokesman said farmers planned to stop trains in Ropesville, Shallowater, Levelland and near Canyon.

Applewhite said, "We're trying to get hold of railroad officials in Amarillo, Hale Center, Plainview and Lubbock" for a meeting.

The Santa Fe spokesman said the railroad offices in Amarillo had not been contacted as of midday today.

Applewhite said of the train blockades, "We're just stalling for time now. Washington is the main target."

About 1,000 South Plains agriculturists are expected to attend a "National Paritycade" in Washington, D.C., next week.

Organizational meetings were held in Earth and Olton Tuesday night. Strike offices there have not planned activities. See AREA TRAINS Page 14

Cost Of Energy Stirs Dispute

(EDITOR'S NOTE — This first part of a two-part series examines why it is tough for Congress to decide if President Carter is right when he says the petroleum industry's attempt to avoid price controls is a "ripoff.")

WASHINGTON (AP) — The petroleum industry's drive to escape from price controls, said President Carter, could become "the biggest ripoff in history." Consumer advocates claim the "ripoff" already is in high gear at today's prices. The industry's supporters say just the opposite, that price controls cost consumers more than removing them.

At stake in this argument, which resumes in the second session of the 95th Congress that begins this week, may be hundreds of billions of the public's dollars.

Estimates of the pocketbook impact range anywhere from a $379 billion overcharge to a $431 billion bargain — either a ripoff or a bonanza of nearly $2,000 for every American.

The estimates are only guesswork, depending on what you think is a "fair" price in the first place. That's one reason the energy debate has been so confusing, so bitter and so prolonged.

Consumer groups generally think a "fair" price for oil and gas is the cost of production plus a 15 percent return on investment. The companies' production costs and profits are fully known only to themselves.

Last summer, the Department of Energy estimated the cost, including 15 percent returns, of producing the nation's remaining oil and gas — based on estimates by the industry's own experts.

The Associated Press compared the total cost of oil and gas reserves, using those estimates with the total cost under present prices, the Carter plan and the industry-backed Senate bill that would end natural gas price controls.

These comparisons, like all such estimates, involve some educated guessing. But they provide for the first time some idea of the full stakes in the energy debate.

If, for example, that government cost estimate is anywhere near accurate, then today's much higher prices may already be "windfall profits" or "additional incentives" for the industry — the choice of phrases depends on which side of the dispute you're on. But the industry feels the government's estimates are far too low.

Current world oil prices are clearly not cost-based. They were fixed arbitrarily by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the foreign producers' cartel. And U.S. oil producers now charge government ceiling prices based on the cartel prices, while regulated natural gas rates have crept up behind them.

That's why Jim Flug, director of the Energy Action consumer group, says current petroleum profits are unjustified.

Asked recently if he meant a "ripoff" was already under way, Flug said: "If you want to put it that way — sure."

President Carter, accepting the oil prices as they are, has proposed extending natural gas regulation into now-unregulated state markets and increasing the ceiling price of newly discovered gas some 20 percent, to match fully the cartel-related price of U.S. oil.

Anything more, Carter has said, "would just be an enormous windfall in profits" for the industry.

The House of Representatives adopted Carter's view. But a divided Senate decided the natural gas industry may need even higher prices and voted to end federal price regulation of new gas.

Applying these different cost or price policies to all of the nation's known and probable oil and gas, gives you a rough idea how much each approach may cost Americans over the next 20 years or so:

—Under that government cost estimate, adding a guessed-at $30 billion for federal leases, the nation's remaining oil and gas may cost a basic $518 billion, or about $2,400 for every U.S. consumer.

—Today's prices, if continued, would mean consumers would pay some $543 billion. See FIGURES ON ENERGY Page 14

John Tower Runs Again

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, formally announced for re-election today saying his record on Congress will bring him victory in November.

"Issuewise, I think I reflect the majority view in Texas," Tower said at the start of a three-day announcement campaign trip throughout Texas.

Tower told a news conference following the announcement rally that he doubted President Carter would be effective in determining the outcome of the Senate race in Texas — "either consciously or wittingly."

Tower flew from Austin to Arlington, then on to Houston, Tyler and Wichita Falls. Thursday he planned to visit Amarillo, Lubbock, Midland-Odessa, and El Paso. Friday he completes the campaign trip with visits to San Antonio, Corpus Christi, and Harlingen.

U.S. Job Figures Indicate Upturn

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped sharply in December to its lowest level in more than three years, the government announced today, and President Carter promptly hailed the improvement as "good news for the country."

The jobless rate declined to 6.4 percent from November's 6.9 percent, the Labor Department reported. This enabled the Carter administration to precisely meet its goal of reducing unemployment to an average rate of 6.6 percent for the October-December quarter.

At a hastily arranged White House meeting with reporters present, Carter asked Charles Schultz, his chief economic adviser, whether administration plans for major tax cuts later this year still would be important.

"That's right," said Schultz. "... The point was always that this was a tax cut that wasn't to rescue an economy that was on the verge of recession or stagnation, but a rather sober way to keep it going in the future."

Carter expressed the view that federal jobs programs have yet to take full effect and spoke hopefully of further gains in the months ahead.

The sharp decline broke an eight-month pattern that had seen the unemployment rate bounce between 6.9 percent and 7.1 percent since last April.

Some 480,000 Americans were removed from the jobless rolls last month, leaving 6.3 million unemployed, the lowest total since the recession in late 1974.

Total employment last month rose by 410,000 to 92.6 million, continuing a steady expansion.

Broncos Get Protection

DENVER (UPI) — The American Humane Association has issued a light-hearted warning to the Dallas Cowboys about inflicting any cruel or unusual punishment on the Denver Broncos in Super Bowl XII next Sunday.

Reports are that the Dallas Cowboys intend to "round them up and move 'em out," Milton Searle, American Humane executive director, said.

"If this is done, it will have to be achieved with kindness and consideration," said Searle.

The association said Bronco coach Red Miller "should be aware our staff will be on the field at all times, at least in spirit."

Henry Seeks New Post On Council

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The burgeoning race for city offices took a new turn today when City Councilman Alan Henry announced his candidacy not for the mayorship but for mayor pro tempore.

Although he affirmed that he had seriously considered making a bid for the mayorship — confirming widespread rumors that he would join Councilman Dirk West to become the second candidate in the race — Henry said he believes that the office of mayor pro tem "offers the best opportunity for service at this time."

With his wife, Sandy, at his side, Henry further explained that the office he seeks "carries with it more responsibility than my present position, yet does not require the time of the mayor."

The 36-year-old insurance agent declared his political plans to a group of about 50 city staffers and citizens who braved icy weather to hear his intentions. The crowd applauded at the end of Henry's announcement, and a throng of well-wishers gathered to chat with him.

The seat of mayor pro tem will be vacated by Councilman West.

Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 closed $3.90 to $6.00 a bale higher Tuesday.

Futures prices closed higher in moderate trading. Monday's Agriculture Department crop estimate of 14.5 million bales prompted some buying of futures contracts. The estimate was lower than some traders had expected.

The average price for strict low midling 11-16 inch spot cotton advanced 35 points to 49.62 cents a pound Monday for the 10 leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

We've Only Just Begun

ANGLO-FRENCH relations are in an interesting condition these days—they're improving. Again. Prime Minister Callaghan and President Giscard d'Estaing got together last month at Callaghan's country hideaway, Chequers, for a personal entente they happily reported was very cordial.

THEY ARE setting up an industrial cooperation committee and considering linking their national electric power grids with a cable beneath the English Channel, perhaps a symbolic substitute for the much-discussed but never built tunnel.

It's all very tentative, however, i.e., a case of present intentions with future concrete results yet to be seen. What makes it subject to extended comment is the thoughts it prompts on the nature of human relations, particularly between humans in that collective sense known as nations.

THE LEGACY of centuries of often bloody competition is part of each national psyche. The British don't understand the French—and, as a rule, don't really want to.

There is, of course, nothing really new in a thaw in Anglo-French hostility. It's happened before and, as the French say, the more things change the more they are the same.

WITH THE departure of de Gaulle, leaders in both Britain and France have effected an improvement in relations—efforts which led to the Chequers meeting, third in a series of bilateral summits the two are committed to holding twice annually.

There's something to think about there for peoples other than the British and French—such as Arabs and Jews, taking just one random example.

James J. Kilpatrick:

No Ebbing Of Court Floodtide

WASHINGTON—Five years have passed since a blue-ribbon commission recommended a new National Court of Appeals.

Nothing much has happened since then—nothing much beyond a further increase in the flood of litigation that washes over our federal courts. It is time to take a fresh look at the situation.

AMERICANS SUE ONE another with reckless abandon, and they cherish a naive belief that federal judges were meant to solve all the social, racial, educational and economic issues of our time.

None of these root causes is subject to easy remedy. The incoming Congress will resume its struggle over new judgeships, but it is doubtful that even 150 new judges at the district and circuit levels will resolve the troubling situation up top.

THE PROBLEMS cited by the commission five years ago have not gone away; they have merely grown larger.

One such serious problem arises from continuing conflicts among the 11 judicial circuits on issues of federal law. These are not abstract issues, interesting only to judges and law professors.

CONFLICTS TOUCH UPON the admissibility of evidence in criminal trials, on the disposition of cases involving libel and obscenity, on statutory

ONE MAN'S OPINION

A Maze, Ingrates

A PSYCHOLOGIST says President Carter is "maze dull," which he defines as an inability to avoid or get out of trouble.

His first clue that Carter suffers from this condition was when Carter ran for President.

An all-white jury in Boston denied the Mashpee Indians are not a tribe, thus denying the Indians' claim to $30 million worth of Cape Cod land. The verdict was without reservation.

President Carter is back in the White House after a tour that saw him misinterpreted in Poland, tape-recorded making an embarrassing comment in India and unflatteringly evaluated by the press everywhere he went.

He should have taken lessons from President Nixon, who did all that without ever leaving the Oval Office.

I RENEWED an old complaint here a couple of days ago about the death-trap overpass on U.S. 84 at the southeast edge of Post.

"It's already under contract," George Wall, district engineer for the Department of Highways and Public Transportation, tells me. "We're widening it to four lanes."

That's good news. The highway approach is four lanes and the sudden narrowing, necessitating a curve to the left while climbing a hill just before turning right, is especially dangerous.

The bad news is that the highway is not being re-routed around Post. It goes through the heart of town and the bottleneck is an imposition on the traveling public.

"Nowadays," Wall says, though, "unless the people of a town are willing, it's almost impossible to bypass it because of all the public involvement in the decision."

TODAY'S MAY BOUQUET: To Western Motors, at the northwest corner of 19th St. and Ave. Q, for maintaining what has been described as "the best-looking used-car lot in Texas."

It proves that low-profile signs and well-maintained property attract attention.

Councilman Dirk West, incidentally, assures me that if he is elected mayor he will oppose any attempts to relax the sign and billboard ordinance. West objected to the ordinance originally, but says it would be wrong to change it after so many businesses already have complied, most of them gladly.

Fortune Magazine's latest edition has a picture of ex-President Ford and Lubbock dentist Clifford Fisher. Taken at the Hilton Inn here. Originally as a possible publicity shot for the Shrine football game.

PERSPECTIVE: On a service station wall along I-20 east of Abilene, Jim Granberry reports, is a sign to this effect:

"Gasoline is cheap. One gallon of gasoline is 64 cents, including washing windshield, checking oil, washing windows, checking tires and getting a smile.

"Soda pop is $1.58 per gallon. Milk $1.80 per gallon. Coffee $6.40 per gallon. And you have to carry these out."

Handpainted sign on crumpled fender of car headed down Avenue Q: "My son did it."

AFTER YEARS of gross neglect, Lubbock school grounds have become an insult to the taxpayers who own them.

The campuses of the Wheelock school at 40th St. and Flint Ave. and of the Bean school at 29th St. and Ave. L, to name just a couple, are practically down to the bare dirt already.

Besides being terrible in appearance, they sandblast the students when the wind blows.

Our schools ought to be teaching, by example, a little pride in property upkeep. The way to do that is to pour enough water and fertilizer on the school grounds to keep the grass healthy.

This region was carved out of bleakness by people who wanted to, and did, turn it into something better. Why the school trustees want to let the administration get away with gross neglect of properties that once were attractive is beyond me.

The entire citizenry, and especially those who live near schools, has a right to expect that the campus grass be rejuvenated this spring and summer.

Holmes Alexander:

An Ex Should Exit Quietly...

WASHINGTON—It was more than 20 years ago, that day on a tall building's crowded elevator which must have made a dozen stops to the lobby, that this villainous stranger kept glaring at me.

We'd almost reached bottom when he asked me my name and if I hadn't written that boss-pistol column on Adlai Stevenson.

Surprised as I was that anybody should read much less remember any definite piece of mine, I admitted to it and melted to safety in the crowd.

I'd forgotten the incident until former President Ford showed up here recently and waggishly renominated himself for President.

I went home and searched vainly for the exact words of Mark Twain's character Puddinghead Wilson who half in jest told his townfolk that he'd like to own just enough of a certain obnoxious dog—whose barking disturbed the courthouse—to amputate the bark.

I'D WRITTEN AS I had about Stevenson because my hero H.L. Mencken had previously done so, by inference, about William Jennings Bryan, Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson.

They all shared with Adlai the hankering for a third time presidential nomination.

Giving Mencken full credit for the idea of a mercy killing of perennial candidates, I did propose the modus vivendi.

The way a cavalryman, artilleryman or sportsman destroyed a crippled horse in those days was to offer the poor animal an apple and shoot him between the eyes when he extended his muzzle.

Mark Twain's method would be more fitting in the Cartrean Era of Human Rights, but it's plain that something must be done to extinguish the species represented by Gov. Jerry Brown, Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, Sen. Bob Doyle, Howard Baker and other yearners.

I DID FIND AMONG Mark Twain's aphorism the speculation that in America "there is no distinctive native criminal class except Congress."

By extension that does no violence to the essential truth it could be said the only incorrigible class of criminals is the rejected presidential aspirant who won't go home in dignity like Alf Landon.

This indictment of Presidents as top outlaws is getting more support than unlettered Americans may suspect.

Writing in the January "Harpers," California's new Republican Sen. S.I. Hayakawa comes close to finding the entire political community to be a gangland.

They hijack the earnings of productive citizens and corporations, tossing the lunks to the swinish non-producers, thereby continuing the system.

As things are today, we are living a colossal life by pity-preaching to the pampered "poor," who the senator points out are well-off by world standards.

Isn't this a good place to stop and ask why Hayakawa was not making his voice heard in the hubbub of 1976 when nearly 20 identical candidates of both parties were lying their heads off about America? Even better, isn't it the right time to cull the flock of these black sheep before they lead the country still farther astray?

Maybe it would be wrong to perform Mencken's mercy killings—although Bryan, Teddy Roosevelt and Wilson would have been better off in the Happy Land than vainly seeking election.

Or perhaps Mark Twain had a notion that silencing the howling dog might be translated into sterilizing the presidential ambitions of failed candidates.

I would not pull the voting lever against either solution.

Counseling Can Make Good Economic Cents

(Seventh Of Nine Columns)
A 48-YEAR-OLD advertising executive with two children and a gross income well in excess of $35,000 has debts totaling $12,900 and a mortgage three months past due.

A widowed private practical nurse, supporting herself and a 12-year-old daughter on an income of $9,312 plus $10.71 a month from Social Security, had already begun to pay many of her routine bills, such as rent and utilities, by taking regular cash advances on her five credit cards.

She owed a total of $2,900, while spending an additional average of $290 a month more than her income.

A 24-year-old ambulance driver, earning $14,000 a year in combination with his wife, was supporting a newborn baby and running into the red by $155 a month for the last nine months.

He owed $8,200 to eight creditors and admitted to having considered suicide.

A 50-YEAR-OLD utility company employe and his wife, together earning $29,976, and raising three teen-age children, found their marriage at the breaking point after they discovered they had accumulated debts of over $27,000 to 25 creditors.

These four real-life American families have two things in common beyond the fact that they all were over their heads in debt.

All four went for help to one of the more than 400 branch offices of the 200 non-profit, community-sponsored Consumer Credit Counseling agencies now operating in the U.S. and in Canada.

And as of this mid-January 1978, they are finally all debt-free.

UNDER THE AUSPICES of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit in Washington, D.C., these credit counseling services have been created to assist consumers in all economic categories and age brackets with free budget and financial counseling.

Actual debt-management assistance is offered at a modest fee.

The CCC of Greater New York, for instance, handled about 2,600 cases in '77 alone, has helped more than 8,000 families get out of debt during the past four years.

CCC's offer you, the consumer:

- (1) A CHANCE TO review your budget and spending habits confidentially and thoroughly under the professional guidance of an impartial, trained counselor—and to decide what changes you wish to make in your life-style.
(2) Free analysis of your financial situation, including practical suggestions for budget changes and other potential income sources (federal, state, local subsidies you may not know you are eligible for).
(3) DEBT REPAYMENT help for a nominal weekly service charge, waived in hardship cases.
The schedule developed is acceptable to your creditors and easier for you to manage.
If you join the program, you are asked to return all your credit cards until you're back in sound shape. The choice of repaying your creditors remains yours.
(4) A CCC counselor acts as your representative to your creditors and once payments begin, remains your intermediary should problems arise.
You sign a not-legally-binding agreement in which you agree not to incur further debt and to send a specific dollar total to your local CCC on a regular basis which the agency in turn distributes to your creditors.
A CCC operates essentially as a voluntary, self-help program—and it works.
Those who succeeded in completing a debt management program face a 95 percent or better chance they'll remain out of desperate debt trouble indefinitely.
MORE AND MORE, the agencies are encouraging consumers to consult them while they are still in the clear financially, so they can be given guidance on sound financial planning for the future.
But their main goal is to get you out of debt and back on your feet financially so you will never again need a credit counselor.
Tomorrow: How to get out of and stay out of debt.

Psychiatrist Uses Sign Language In Treatment Of Deaf Patients

By C.G. McDANIEL
 CHICAGO (AP) — Psychiatrist Fred Levin treats some of his patients without uttering a sound. But he gets results.
 Dr. Levin is one of the few psychiatrists in the country who uses sign language to treat the deaf.
 Deaf persons have had few opportunities to use psychiatric therapy, said Levin, a faculty member of the Northwestern University school of medicine.

He reported on his experience in treating deaf patients over the past four years at the recent annual meeting of the American Psychoanalytic Association.
 He has treated about 15 deaf patients and says he approaches them in the same way he approaches hearing patients.
 "The similarities are a lot greater than the differences," he said in an interview. "If you start to work with the deaf, you ask, 'What's going on in this unique person?"

 That is the same question psychiatrists ask about all their patients.
 "It is easy when you haven't worked with these people to spin off fantasies about them," said Levin.
 He started working with the deaf at Michael Reese Hospital here where he completed a psychiatric residency. The hospital has had a program for deaf children for a long time, but none for adults until Levin became interested in working with them, he said.

 Deaf patients usually reach a point in their treatment where they say, "You cannot understand me because you are not deaf."
 But patients who can hear normally express the same sentiment to their psychiatrists although citing different reasons, he noted.

 Also like the hearing, when a particularly painful memory becomes conscious in a deaf patient there often is "resistance," an effort to deny the problem or not to deal with it, said Levin.

The deaf sometimes do this, he added, by using abbreviated signs which the doctor cannot understand.
 There are not enough psychiatrists to take care of everybody and few are interested in the deaf, Levin said.

Doing More Main Goal Of School

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hanna Holborn Gray, who never aspired to be president of anything, plans to run the prestigious University of Chicago on the thrifty principle of "doing more with less."

Mrs. Gray, the acting president of Yale University, was named Dec. 9 to be the next president of the university. She will formally succeed John T. Wilson in the post July 1.

As such, she becomes the first woman to head one of the nation's top private universities and one of only a handful of women in collegiate presidential posts. The 47-year-old doctor of history faced the role with aplomb in her first Chicago news conference this week.

She will not take over the job with raising money and balancing the books as her prime objective, she said.

"The principal obligation is preserving the academic quality of the institution," she said. "Balancing the books is secondary to that."

Mrs. Gray said she will seek to guide Chicago in playing "a leadership role in this country, to maintain its excellence and uniqueness, its independence, its accountability as a private institution ... to do more with less."

"To do as well or even better with less in the way of resources is a challenge facing all universities." The institution that succeeds, she said, will be the one "with something really to offer."

At one point in her rapid rise through university administrative ranks, Mrs. Gray was quoted as saying "I don't want to be president of anything." She said the quote was "quite correct" and she changed her mind only when the University of Chicago asked her to do so.

"I guess I still don't regard myself as a presidential type," she said. "I (came to think) there is no such actual thing as a presidential type. It was when I was asked — that was the first time it ever occurred to me the answer would be yes."

On a day when Chicago's midday temperature was a flat zero, Mrs. Gray came snugly dressed to Ida Noyes Hall on the university campus. Her leather-booted legs were kept tucked under the ornate chair assigned her.

Mrs. Gray is the Heidelberg-born daughter of an historian who fled Germany in 1934 with the rise of Nazism. She obtained her doctorate in history from Radcliffe and taught at Harvard and Chicago before becoming the first woman dean of Northwestern University's College of Arts and Sciences.

In 1974, she was named provost of Yale University. When Kingman Brewster resigned the presidency there to become ambassador to England, she automatically rose to acting president. A search committee selected her for the Chicago job from more than 200 prospects.

Mrs. Gray, the wife of a historian, appeared unfazed about her new stature as one of the top women in U.S. higher education. For one thing, she said, she does not favor admission quotas favoring women or anyone else because "quotas are immoral and illegal."

"There are relatively few women in positions of this kind," she said. "Of course, I'm getting pretty old (but) there is a new generation of women coming to academic ranks, with greater opportunities and expectations."

Gang In Hong Kong Formed By Aliens

HONG KONG (AP) — Police sources say illegal immigrants from China who received military training there have formed a criminal organization, the Tai Huen Chai, that is driving local gangsters out of some profitable rackets in Hong Kong.

They said local gang leaders have advised their members to avoid fights with the immigrants because of their combat training and ability to handle firearms.

Nuclear Exchange Sees Rise In Uranium Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — The price of processed uranium in the United States rose $2.20 a pound in 1977 to $43.20.

A little over four years ago it could have been bought for $8 a pound, but that was before the Arab oil embargo.

Nevertheless, says Nuclear Exchange Corp., of Menlo Park, Calif., the pace of the current price rise lags a little behind the inflation of money.

Looking ahead, however, Nuclear Exchange sees the price of uranium yellowcake between $59.89 and $74.87 a pound five years from now. It pegged the difference in the prospective prices to the cost of money in terms of the prime interest rate.

Nuclear Exchange said the price would go up despite rapid expansion of production in South Africa and neighboring Namibia.

Meanwhile, Galen Ross, chairman of Classic Mining Corp., said uranium exploration is becoming feverish again in the west and is being marked by a lot of claim jumping and by thefts of freshly mined uranium ore. Classic is a small Salt Lake City oil firm that owns 80,000 acres of uranium claims, concentrated mainly in Wyoming's Gas Hills area.

Classic recently engaged the noted geologist, Dr. Rex N. Peterson, to explore for uranium from a high altitude, using infrared photography and a U-2 spy plane.

"This kind of exploration can save a lot of time," said Ross. His company has sold a small amount of its uranium ore in the ground to a supplier for electric utilities at $8 a pound with the utilities paying all the mining and processing costs.

Classic is looking for financial help in developing its remaining tracts. It recently conducted a meeting for financial analysts in New York at which Karl Meyers, who has been mining uranium since the U.S. industry started in 1947, said the price of yellowcake probably would reach $75 in today's dollars by 1985.

Meyers said uranium producers would have to raise $1.3 billion annually in exploration, development and other costs to supply a market which he said might reach $6 billion a year by 1985.

But he also told the analysts costs are so high and expansion of the nuclear power industry so low there is not much hope of a substantial profit before 1982. For some years after that — until development of the fast breeder reactor causes demand and prices to level off — things in the uranium industry should be very good, Meyers said.

Ross said the claim jumping going on in uranium exploration is reminiscent of the claim jumping that went on in the heyday of gold and silver mining in the west. Companies stake claims on top of other companies' claims, he said, in the hope the first claimant will fail to satisfy all the legal and financial requirements so the claim jumper can grab the tract.

Much of this type of claim jumping, he said, is done by major oil and mining companies. As for the thefts of freshly mined uranium ore, he said a couple of unscrupulous chaps with a pickup truck can make themselves a fast $2,000 that way on a dark night.

Mediums Direct Church Services In Florida Town

By DOUGLAS MONROE
CASSADAGA, Fla. (UPI) — Sometimes a tourist will leave the stream of cars bustling between Daytona Beach and Orlando on Interstate 4 and take a short ride over piney hills to a village nestled among moss-draped oaks.
Perhaps the tourist wants to see the quaint frame homes, with a hint of Victorian architecture, or the aging green hotel in the center of town.
Or perhaps he wants to communicate with the dead.
That is usually what brings people to Cassadaga, a town of 350 that is dominated by a 35-acre spiritualist camp — a religious colony founded by a man named George Colby who came to Florida in 1875 and said he was led here by spiritual guides.

Down Stevens Street from the Cassadaga Hotel stands a tan three-story building where the First Spiritualist Church of Cassadaga holds services directed by mediums — those who claim to receive messages from the dead.
On a recent night, the Rev. D. Mona Berry, who retired here after 30 years as a pastor of a spiritualist church in Buffalo, N.Y., conducted a service for about 20 persons who sat on wooden seats anxiously awaiting advice or messages from dead friends or relatives.
Mrs. Berry gave mostly reassuring answers to questions that were submitted to her privately on small pieces of paper. She answered the questions before reading them.

Mrs. Berry said Cassadaga is a "very, very quiet community where everyone is interested in the same religion and they are, in a sense, of one mind. They are all spiritualists here."
There are more than a dozen practicing mediums in the camp, which is made up of about 75 old but neatly kept frame homes. Driving into Cassadaga, the second sign one encounters reads "Rev. Wilbur Hull" with an arrow pointing to a nearby house.
Inside, in a dark, heavily curtained room jammed with books, Hull lies on a double bed, a chair near its foot for people who want a "reading" or seance.
"Spiritualism is a science, philosophy and a religion of continuous life based upon the demonstrated fact of communication by means of mediumship with those in the next dimension," he says.

Hull's favorite story is about the time a few years ago he felt an overpowering sense of suffocation when a stranger came into his room.
"I started choking and coughing and I told the man, 'Somebody came with you. I have no idea who you are, but the first name of the man is Gus. He wants to give his love to you and Kay. Apparently he choked to death on smoke fumes."

Hull said the visitor said "Kay and I and Gus had a carpool together at the Cape," and then identified "Gus" as Gus Grissom — one of the Apollo astronauts who earlier had died in a Cape Canaveral launch pad fire.

Survey States Pessimistic View Dropped Consumer Confidence

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Pessimism about the future of personal finances and general business conditions pushed consumer confidence down during the final months of 1977, a University of Michigan survey concludes.

The biggest drop in confidence was among families with incomes of less than $15,000, according to the University's quarterly Survey of Consumer Attitudes released today.

"The continued divergence among attitudes and expectations serves to buoy the near-term spending outlook, but dims prospects beyond mid-1978," said Richard Curtin and George Katona of the Survey Research Center.

"Continued improvement in real incomes will act to bolster consumer demand in the near-term, but restoring confidence in government economic policy is essential to prevent further erosion and to renew an optimistic outlook among consumers," they added. The survey is based on interviews with 1,280 Americans across the country last fall.

Those surveyed lost confidence over the government's inflation policy and on unemployment, the researchers said.

"The increased confidence in government economic policy which was evident in early 1977 as President Carter entered office has now been entirely reversed," the report notes.

Curtin and Katona said consumers moderated their spending recently but they remain generally optimistic about their personal finances, with attitudes better now than a year ago.

The surveys, which have been conducted since 1951, now use the consumer attitudes of February 1966 to equal 100 on the Index of Consumer Sentiment. The level of consumer sentiment is 83.1, a decline of 4.5 points from the previous survey. Curtin and Katona noted a pattern of consumer attitude declines about every four years, with depressions in the last quarters of 1966, 1974 and 1974.

About half of those people surveyed for the latest report said they had heard of unfavorable business developments in December 1977. About one of every three people queried three months earlier said they had heard of business troubles. Eleven percent of the respondents said the government was doing a "good job," down from 19 percent in the previous survey. About 24 percent said the government was doing a poor job, up from 15 percent three months earlier.

Attitudes toward buying appliances and other large household items went down slightly by the year's end compared to peaks last summer. Opinions toward cars and houses were unchanged from September and were higher than year-ago conditions, the survey said.

While people feel their personal finances are in good shape, they are not optimistic about further improvement.

But more consumers felt they were in a financial position to make a major purchase in December.

New Breed Of Doctor Only Treats 'Well' Patients

DR. JOHN TRAVIS

By ANGELA NOEL
MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Dr. John Travis doesn't offer his services to sick people. He just deals with the well ones.

The lanky son of "a country doc" is one of a new breed of health professionals who insist traditional medicine is just "illness medicine." He argues for more emphasis on "wellness," a state of physical and mental well-being going beyond the absence of disease.

Travis' philosophy has been called "holistic medicine." It promotes good health in its broadest sense — advocating everything from peace of mind to an awareness of environmental pollutants.

Travis, a graduate of Tufts Medical School, said he wants "to help people become aware of their own bodies and minds and take full responsibility for health."

For the last two years, the 35-year-old maverick has headed the Wellness Resource Center here — a plush office, replete with cushy pillows and background strains of classical music, tucked away among tall trees in this upper-income suburb north of San Francisco.

Travis prefers to call himself a "wellness educator" rather than a doctor. Those wealthy folks who come to his office are called "clients," not patients.

"In traditional medical practice, the responsibility is put on the doctor or the system to patch things up when things go wrong," he said. "What we do is teach people how to take charge. It's educational. There's no treatment of any kind."

"I think the realm of holistic medicine has a lot of potential," said Dr. William Fowkes, assistant professor of clinical medicine at Stanford Medical School.

"Half our patients don't fit into the disease-infection model. Our approaches are not all that good."

But Fowkes added, "Holistic medicine has a better chance if it remains separate from traditional medicine." He said physicians schooled in the old methodology would be slow to change.

The main thrust is teaching people to relax, Travis said. The center uses a variety of methods, including biofeedback and meditation. Dramatic physical changes can result, he said, including elimination of migraine headaches and high blood pressure.

So-called wellness training is costly. Travis conceded. For the four to eight months it takes to "unlearn" old habits, his clients may drop $1,000 in frequent sessions that cost $30 an hour.

Travis is the only one on the staff with traditional medical training. Others are "self-trained" in the center's counseling techniques. Some have college training in education and psychology. One staffer has a Ph.D. in music.

When a "client" first comes to the center, he or she fills out a battery of questionnaires, including traditional medical records, which attempt to reveal the current state of their health in detail.

Califano Launches Campaign Against Smoking

By CHRIS CONNELL
 WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling cigarette smoking "public health enemy No. 1," HEW Secretary Joseph A. Califano Jr. today launched what he called the most sweeping government effort ever to help the nation's 54 million smokers quit the habit.

Califano also announced the creation of a new Office on Smoking and Health within HEW to oversee the program. The campaign will be backed by a $23 million budget in 1979, more than double the current spending for federal anti-smoking programs and research.

Two leaders of anti-smoking efforts criticized Califano's program for failing to take immediate steps to prohibit or discourage smoking.

John Banzhaf, director of the Action on Smoking and Health organization, said Califano "has labored mightily and brought forth a mouse."

He said HEW should use its fiscal powers to require schools and other institutions that receive HEW funds to show they have anti-smoking programs.

Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of the Ralph Nader-affiliated Health Research Group, said HEW should ban cigarette sales in hospitals that receive federal funds.

Califano, a heavy smoker until he kicked the habit in 1975, announced details of the program on the 14th anniversary of the now-famous surgeon general's report on smoking and health.

He outlined the program in a speech to the National Interagency Council on Smoking and Health, a federally backed group that has declared this National Education Week on Smoking.

Dr. Luther Terry, the surgeon general in 1964, said his report has dissuaded 20 million or more Americans from smoking. Thirty million Americans have stopped smoking since 1964, but if earlier trends had continued, 75 million Americans would be smoking today instead of 54 million, he said.

Terry, calling Califano "a man with guts," rejected arguments that the government should not interfere with the personal privilege of smoking. One person's personal privilege "ends where another person's personal privilege begins," he said.

The Terry report and nine updates have shown that cigarettes are responsible for 325,000 premature deaths each year, including at least 90 percent of the 90,000 deaths from lung cancer. Health officials say smoking can cause coronary heart disease, emphysema and chronic bronchitis.

Califano said his four-pronged program will include:

- Education campaigns. He is calling for increased broadcasts of anti-smoking announcements, comprehensive anti-smoking programs in local schools and intensive programs targeted toward young people and high-risk groups, such as pregnant women. Toward that end, he revealed that the Food and Drug Administration is requiring birth control pills to carry labels warning that smoking increases the risk of heart and blood vessel problems.

- Increased anti-smoking regulations. He said that as of today, HEW buildings will limit smoking to designated areas and separate smokers from non-smokers where practical. Similar policies are being proposed to the nation's 500 largest corporations and for the federal government's 10,000 other buildings.
- Anti-smoking incentives. He said a task force will be formed with the Treasury Department to consider increasing the federal excise tax on cigarettes and a graduated tax according to nicotine, tar and carbon monoxide content. He also urged health, fire, life and other types of insurers to offer special premium discounts to non-smokers.
- Expanded research on the links between smoking and health. Toward that end, he asked the surgeon general to prepare a comprehensive report for publication next year.

On Tuesday, the Tobacco Institute held a news conference to attack the government's new campaign without waiting to find out what it involved.

William F. Dwyer, an institute vice president, charged Califano has "a prohibitionist mentality" and was using his public power "in pursuit of a private hobby."

An estimated 54 million Americans aged 13 or older smoke, but they are a dwindling minority. The number of adult smokers has fallen from 42 percent in 1964 to 34 percent today. Among men, it has fallen from 52 percent to 39 percent, and among women, from 32 to 29 percent.

But with the population growing, annual consumption of cigarettes has climbed from 511 billion in 1964 to a record 616 billion in 1976, or more than 1 1/2 packs a day per smoker. Those cigarettes cost more than $14 billion — about $260 per smoker each year.

The tobacco industry, barred from advertising on television and radio since January 1971, spent more than $400 million on print advertising and other promotion efforts in 1976, also a record sum.

Surveys have found that nine out of 10 smokers would like to quit, and most have tried at least once or say they would if there were an easy way to stop, according to Daniel Horn, director of the National Clearinghouse for Smoking and Health in Atlanta.

Horn and federal cancer fighters say the evidence linking smoking to cancer and other ills is irrefutable. They say the Tobacco Institute cannot make such an admission because it might make the cigarette industry liable to lawsuits by victims of smoking.

Thomas Trial Opens In U.S. Court Here

By FRANK PATRICK
 Avalanche-Journal Staff

Attorneys today fired the first broadsides in what is expected to be the marathon criminal trial of John H. Thomas, accused of duping the government out of lucrative cotton price support payments in 1972 and 1973.

"Mr. Thomas created and controlled this thing from beginning to end," Asst. U.S. Atty. Bob Slough asserted to jurors in an opening statement.

"Here are large amounts of money the government paid out. The question is whether they (individuals receiving payments) were entitled to it."

In his 30-minute opening remarks, Slough said he believes evidence will show Thomas, 44, was the brains behind an alleged scheme whereby persons received support payments to which they were not entitled.

Washington, D.C., lawyer Michael E. Tigar, in a slam-bang counterattack, portrayed Thomas as enterprising businessman with a farm background, who had only relied upon advice from government agencies.

Thomas, formerly a prominent Brownfield businessman who now is headquartered in Houston, is standing trial in U.S. District Court here on accusations of converting Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) funds for his own use and of supplying false information to the government agency.

The government charges the entrepreneur with making or causing false statements to be made in order to obtain supports under the 1972 and 1973 Upland Cotton Program.

The jury trial may last from three to five weeks.

Slough centered his remarks on the first 19 counts of a 92-count indictment, which alleged Thomas engineered price supports from the CCC in 1973.

He said that individuals in 19 instances were authorized payments of approximately $53,650 each to which they were not entitled.

The prosecutor explained that, under terms of the subsidy program at that time, support payments could not exceed $55,000.

"The ultimate decision in this case will be whether the individuals were qualified," Slough stated.

Slough then ticked off a brief description of persons receiving the supports, noting that many of them were Thomas company employees, and that several of them resided out of state.

He indicated that, in the government's view, the individuals did not have a substantive interest in the farmland which they allegedly leased at Thomas' instigation.

Slough said all the land was leased from Jon-T Farms, Inc., a Thomas company. He indicated Thomas thereby hoped to get more in price supports than the $55,000 to which he was entitled as an individual.

Most of the individuals involved in the joint venture, Slough asserted, considered it an investment plan and had little real knowledge of what the plan entailed.

He said each individual ultimately received from $3,000 to $5,000.

Tigar said the case hinges on the "definition of an individual."

He told jurors Congress, before setting the $55,000 ceiling, had made provisions authorizing persons with land to form joint ventures, sell allotments and take other steps to hedge operations.

"You could have as many people as you wanted in a joint venture," Tigar, representing Thomas, along with local attorney Travis Shelton, said.

When the ceiling was set, Tigar said, Thomas could take such action as he did, or give the Gaines County land in question "back to the jackrabbits."

He said the joint venture plan had the backing of the Department of Agriculture and stated Thomas had received advice from both government agriculture officials and from attorneys before embarking on any joint venture.

"In short, advice was given upon which a reasonable person could rely," the attorney stated.

Tigar also said evidence will show individuals receiving payments took an active interest in the farm land.

Witness testimony was expected to begin later today.

"THIS IS THE WAY WE GO TO SCHOOL" — This busload of young students got a charge out of their early morning ride to school today when the vehicle stalled in the 3400-block of Loop 289. To the youngsters' dismay, however, the problem quickly was resolved and the bus made its way to Wolforth. (Staff Photo)

Aggravated Robbery Reported

Police today were investigating the reported aggravated robbery of a 56-year-old Lubbock man who said three bandits robbed him of about $50 cash and a $200 turquoise necklace early today.

The victim said he was eating at a South Lubbock restaurant about 3:30 a. m. when three men struck up a conversation. After the man left and was walking home, the strangers reportedly stopped and asked if he wanted a ride.

According to the complainant, he accepted, and when he got in the front seat, was grabbed from behind and beaten on the head by one of the men who was in the back. The robber, who said he had a knife, succeeded in taking the cash and the necklace, and the trio then drove to a nearby vacant field and let their victim out of the car.

Police today, however, were investigating several alleged discrepancies between the victim's story and the account of a witness.

Elsewhere in the city, a 73-year-old East Lubbock resident learned a lesson Tuesday when he allowed a stranger inside his home to use the telephone.

According to reports, a man knocked on the front door of the E. 17th Street house and asked the occupant if he could use the phone. After the elderly man consented and allowed the stranger inside, the occupant reportedly then went inside his garage to do some work.

When he returned a few minutes later, the stranger — and a television set — were gone.

There's little doubt that burglars who broke into a storage area at a local hospital late Sunday or early Monday will have the last laugh.

John Sielert, assistant administrator at West Texas Hospital, 1401 9th St., said someone broke into an enclosed area and hauled away a 180-pound cylinder of nitrous oxide — or laughing gas.

The blue cylinder, valued at $200 according to Sielert, was a reserve tank and was removed with the aid of bolt cutters. Hospital officials said another set of tanks — linked together by rubber hose — would not have been taken so easily. They reportedly are wired to a pressure alarm system.

Police still are investigating the theft. Meanwhile, a two-way radio worth about $1,000 was stolen from Rick Haley's pickup while it was parked in the 5200-block of 34th St. over the weekend.

J. T. Bogard said vandals caused nearly $100 damage to his car's window Monday or Tuesday.

Thieves also stole an electric saw and nailer, valued at $575, from James Webster of 4604 Detroit Ave. Webster said the theft occurred Dec. 31.

A spare tire and cover worth about $125 reportedly was taken last weekend from a van belonging to Gene Ammons of 5603 Fordham St.

Magdalena Gutierrez of 1806 E. Amherst St. said thieves took a 40-foot tarpaulin, valued at nearly $390, from a vehicle parked at his house Tuesday.

After breaking through a door window last Dec. 28, thieves apparently made off with a television and clock radio, together worth $230, from Lorenzo Bocanegra Jr.'s Route 8 residence.

Charles Tracy of 2213 46th St. said musically-inclined burglars pilfered his tape box and 20 tapes from his van sometime Tuesday. Tracy estimated the value of the stolen goods at $300.

State Supreme Court Upholds Local Decision

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court today upheld lower court decisions to award three Howard County cotton farmers more than $200,000 plus interest, in their contract dispute with the Plains Cotton Cooperative Association.

Without written comment, the Supreme Court let stand the Lubbock jury decision, and a subsequent opinion from the Amarillo Court of Civil Appeals that PCCA had not lived up to the terms of an oral agreement and a written contract to purchase the cotton from the three farmers.

The farmers, and the judgment they will receive, are Jack Wolf, $67,190; James Barr, $100,742; and David Barr, $50,959. PCCA also was ordered to pay $50 per cent interest during the time the payments were withheld.

The American Cotton Shippers Association had filed a "friend of the court" brief with the Texas Supreme Court in the case, urging a ruling on behalf of the PCCA. In its brief the national association cited four points of error it alleged in trial court proceedings, including failure to enforce an oral contract and improper instructions to the jury.

The dispute arose between the time the three farmers entered into oral contract with PCCA, through the Vincent Gin Co., and the signing of a written agreement, after cotton prices had shown a sizable increase.

Local Appeal Dismissed

A-J Austin Bureau
 AUSTIN — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Wednesday ruled it has no authority to hear the appeal of Mattie Perkins Caraway, convicted in Lubbock County of theft over $20.

Mrs. Caraway was assessed a three-day jail term and a $100 fine on June 7, 1977. On the following day, she was sentenced and requested a new trial.

On June 28, 1977, the lower court overruled her motion for another hearing.

The high court ruled that records in the case show Mrs. Caraway's sentence was pronounced in an "untimely manner," and that there is no indication she waived the 10-day period between the setting of the sentence and the request for a new trial.

However, when the sentence is pronounced in an "untimely manner," the high court said, the appeal must be dismissed.

Obituaries

Mrs. Bredemeyer

SWEETWATER (Special) — Mrs. Irma Magard Bredemeyer, 63, of Sweetwater died here at 2 a. m. today after an extended illness.

Funeral services will be at 2 p. m. Thursday in Faith Lutheran Church in Sweetwater. Burial will be in Sweetwater Cemetery under the direction of Cate-Spencer Funeral Home here.

The Roscoe native had lived in Sweetwater since 1938. She had lived in the Loraine area before moving to Sweetwater.

Survivors include a son, Laurence of Rotan; three daughters, Mrs. Wayne Hagood of Sweetwater, Mrs. Cecil (LaVern) Stolle of Slaton, and Mrs. Dennis McClellan of Phoenixville, Pa.; her mother, Mrs. Annie Coldevey of Sweetwater; three brothers, Leonard Coldevey of Loraine, Harry Coldevey of Brooksmith, and Hindenburg Coldevey of Green Valley, Ariz.; and 10 grandchildren.

Larry Strickland

LEVELLAND (Special)—Services for Larry Gene Strickland, 30, of Levelland will be at 3 p. m. Thursday in the Smith Memorial Chapel here.

Burial will follow in City of Levelland Cemetery.

Strickland died Tuesday at 1 p. m. in Cook Memorial Hospital from injuries sustained in an accident about 12:20 p. m. Tuesday, seven miles southeast of Sundown.

According to Hockley County deputies, Strickland had been lying under a truck working on its brakes. Apparently the driver didn't notice Strickland and drove off, running over the man.

Strickland was born June 10, 1947, in Granite, Okla. He had lived in Levelland for the past 23 years and was employed by Robco Well Service. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Survivors include his wife, Paula; two sons, Larry Gene II and Allen John, both of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. B.E. Strickland of Levelland; two sisters, Mrs. Gerald (Irma) Garst of Duncan, Okla. and Mrs. Tom (Darlene) Hollednack of Levelland; two brothers, Bennie Ray and Bill, both of Levelland; and his grandmother, Mrs. Jessie Wootton of Willow, Okla.

Mrs. Stephens

LITTLEFIELD (Special)—Services for Mrs. Mayme Alice Stephens, 90, of Muleshoe will be at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the Hammons Funeral Home Chapel with the Rev. Wayne Perry of Lubbock officiating and the Rev. Charles Broadhurst, pastor of First Baptist Church here, assisting.

Burial will be in Littlefield Memorial Park.

Mrs. Stephens died at 9 a. m. Tuesday in a Muleshoe nursing home.

The Proctor native had lived in Muleshoe for seven years and had formerly lived in Amherst. She moved to Lamb County in 1947 from Lynn County.

Survivors include three sons, Roy of Tahoka, Burt of Lubbock and Bill of Riverside, Calif.; five daughters, Mrs. Travis Lambert of Muleshoe, Mrs. Roy Hicks of Littlefield, Mrs. J.W. Weathers of Lubbock, Mrs. Clint Doolen of Saratoga, Calif. and Mrs. S.J. Clevenger of Anton; 13 grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Timidity about telling things as they are tomorrow will be your principal failing. Because you won't level with others, complications could result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sales resistance is at a low ebb for you. Tomorrow, if you're not careful you may look back with disbelieving eyes at some expensive follies.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Control lies in your hands, but tomorrow you may render it very ineffectual. You could do this by surrendering or dividing authority needlessly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Where normally you are a realist, you will be very much out of your element tomorrow. The aspects have cast you into the role of a dreamer and a wishful thinker.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be careful in passing on remarks made by friends that you don't say something that can be misinterpreted. Others may give it a damaging definition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An interesting situation may develop tomorrow where you and a cohort are both trying to outsmart each other, but each of you is aware of the other's duplicity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't let your emotions run rampant over your practical instincts tomorrow. What you do from the heart should be tested by your head.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Marshal all your smarts and be sure you have your wits fully about you when doing business tomorrow, as you could do something foolish and costly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Associates could find you disturbing tomorrow because you jump from one side of the fence to the other. For the sake of all, take some stable position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) "Never do today what I can put off until tomorrow" is likely to be your credo tomorrow. Unfortunately, the results will be as successful as the reasoning is sound.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) You will be extravagant and imprudent with your resources tomorrow, but what adds insult to injury is that you have equal disdain for the possessions of others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) As a door-opener, you will do well tomorrow. It's best to bring along a good closer, too. You're not equally adept at putting on the finishing touches.

Jan. 12, 1978

Considerable travel is in the offing for you this coming year. The trips will not be long or distant, but you should see many places and enjoy great variety.

Public, Media Differ On News Interests

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans differ sharply with the journalistic community on what type of news the public is interested in, according to a Harris Poll. In a survey released Monday, the Harris organization said a recent poll indicated that 60 percent of the public was very interested in national news, while 34 percent of the journalists interviewed thought the public had a strong interest in that topic.

Thirty-five percent of the public expressed a strong interest in sports news, but 75 percent of the journalists thought the public had a strong interest in sports, according to the poll.

The pollsters said the journalists and their audience were also far apart on the interest in such topics as state news, government and political news and science news.

The Harris organization said it recently interviewed a representative sample of 1,533 adults, as well as 86 top editors and news directors and 76 major reporters and writers.

While 41 percent of the public expressed deep interest in world affairs, only 5 percent of the media members felt the public had such an interest, according to the poll.

The pollsters said 88 percent of the media representatives thought the public had a great interest in local news coverage, while actually the figure was 74 percent.

Only 29 percent of the public expressed a strong interest in entertainment, arts and cultural news, in contrast to 45 percent of the media representatives polled.

Bob Schmidt To Run For City Council

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The race for a city council position other than the mayorship gained its first official candidate late Tuesday afternoon when Bob Schmidt of 5405 16th Place filed.

The 48-year-old horticulturist, who is co-owner and president of Caprock Growers Inc., will try to replace Alan Henry, whose term expires this spring.

Schmidt, who has not yet designated a campaign treasurer, said he plans a low-keyed campaign. He did not single out any specific issues he will address as a candidate, saying instead he is "vitaly interested in the future of Lubbock, encompassing economic growth and orderly development of all segments of Lubbock."

And, Schmidt said, he is "interested in the fairness of legislation to all races and all neighborhoods."

He has no "axes to grind" or particular "bailiwicks" to further, he added, but he may direct himself to particular issues as the campaign develops.

A desire to serve the community was the key factor in his decision to run, Schmidt said.

"I feel you can't really be concerned about a government unless you are willing to give some time to it and make some sacrifices," he explained. "Unless responsible people take an interest in things, they can't gripe about what takes place."

And, he said, he believes different people serving on the council offer "more exposure in appointments and getting more people involved in government."

Schmidt explained that he moves in different social and business circles from other council members, and that he can "make some contributions there."

pure middle-class citizen" who is neither rich nor poor and who is part of a class that needs representation.

However, he said, he is not out to further the aims of a race, neighborhood or economic group. "In the position of rep-

Water District Names Manager

By JACK DOUGLAS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The High Plains Underground Water Conservation District Board of Directors Tuesday night approved the hiring of A. Wayne Wyatt, a consultant to the board, as district manager.

The manager's position has been vacant since August following the controversial resignation of Frank Rayner as head of the district.

Wyatt, a natural resources consultant in Austin and a former employee with the district, will start his new job Feb. 1 at an annual salary of $35,000.

However, board chairman A.W. Gober said the district will sign no contract with Wyatt.

"I pledge to do the best I can," the new district manager said after the board's four-hour closed session. "The challenges are very great to provide the people with what they need...I'm very pleased."

The five-member board interviewed 10 applicants during the past two weeks. Wyatt said he turned in his application last week and met with directors Tuesday about the job.

Gober said Wyatt, who was hired by the district in 1957 as an engineer technician, seemed to have more experience with what the district is doing. The board chairman said it was a hard choice, but added, "We feel Wayne is more knowledgeable than the other men."

Wyatt was hired as a consultant by the Judge Seeks Re-Election

Dist. Judge Robert C. Wright announced Tuesday that he will seek re-election to the state bench he has occupied for the past seven years.

Wright, who presides over 137th District Court, named former law partner Ralph Brock as his campaign treasurer, according to a document filed in the county clerk's office.

"It is a great honor to have the opportunity to serve the people of Lubbock County and to work with my fellow judges and the members of the bar to improve the judicial system of our county," Wright, 56, said in a prepared statement.

"We believe that justice and the courts should be everyone's business, and certainly the courts belong to the people. With the help of interested citizens and citizens advisory groups, and with the suggestions given to us by jurors and prospective jurors, we have substantially improved the judicial system of our county," Wright said.

Wright will run as a Democrat in the May primary.

He was appointed to the bench effective Jan. 1, 1971, and subsequently was elected to a full four-year term.

Known as a strong trial judge, Wright was considered one of the front-runners for a recent vacancy on the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo. He withdrew his name from consideration, however, saying he preferred work at the trial level.

Wright was a faculty member at the Texas College of the Judiciary in Austin in 1974 and a faculty adviser the next year for the National College of the State Judiciary at the University of Nevada at Reno.

The candidate is a past president of the Lubbock County Bar Association and

Few Schools Lower Taxes

AUSTIN (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton asked school districts last summer to cut property taxes, but only 153 out of 1,100 reduced their revenue.

He sent letters to all districts after the legislature voted in July to increase school expenditures by the state, sending most of the money to localities as aid in meeting expenses.

Clayton said 856 districts actually increased their tax collections, 57 held constant and only 153 reduced revenue from property taxes.

He acknowledged that new construction could increase a district's revenue without rises in either rates or assessed valuation of existing property.

But, he told reporters, "they really should have cut total revenue."

(The Lubbock Independent School District apparently was among the 153 districts cited by Clayton as having reduced local tax income.)

(Lubbock cut its school tax rate from $1.73 per $100 valuation to $1.58. Much of the cut was offset by re-evaluation of certain properties and additions to the tax roll. Nevertheless, the district's local tax intake fell from $17.2 million last year to an estimated $16.6 million this year.)

Clayton made his comments after addressing about 35 persons who turned out for the third annual delegates' convention of Texans for Equitable Taxation, an organization working for lower property taxes.

The legislature passed a school finance bill spending $945 million over a two-year period, with $600 million of that amount going to districts to help pay operating costs.

Clayton said educators seem to be happy with the new legislation, at least for the time being.

"I've heard a lot of them say, 'When you meet two years from now, if you just hold the status quo, man we're fine,'" Clayton said.

Clayton predicted to the tax organization that the 1979 legislature again would "have a sizeable surplus in the state treasury," despite the currently forecast surplus of $21 million.

"I believe if we are diligent in our duties to the citizens in this state, we can meet in 1979 and finance state government again without additional taxes," he said.

Clayton also said that if a federal judge See SCHOOL Page 8

MAMELUKE DESIGN RUG — This Mameluke design rug has been designated at the 50th anniversary commemorative rug by the Karastan company. With its fine geometric motifs, the rug gives the appearance of a mosaic tile with jewel-tone colors of turquoise and jade 'inset' on a warm antique red ground. A great addition to any living room.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old widower. My husband died three years ago leaving me with a 13-year-old son I'll call Mike. I loved my husband very much but he had an incurable illness and suffered terribly, so his death was a blessing. Mike took his father's death hard, as they had always been great pals. I made Mike "man of the house." He escorted me in place of his father, and I let him handle the money when we went marketing. He took over surprisingly well. About six months ago I met a 45-year-old widower, and we hit it off immediately. I never expected to fall in love again, but it happened. We are so right for each other! Now for my problem. He wants to marry me, but Mike doesn't want me to get married again — ever. My son comes first, but I don't want to spend the rest of my life alone, Abby. Yet how can I marry again knowing it will break my son's heart?

an airliner. The combination of nervousness and motion sickness invariably causes him to regurgitate. . . .

DEAR ABBY: My son recently married, and his wife insists on calling me "Grandma" which infuriates me to no end! (I am a grandmother, but not hers.) I do not wish to be called "Grandma" by a woman who could not possibly be my granddaughter. If she doesn't want to call me "Mother" or "Mom," as my other daughters-in-law do, she may call me by my first name or anything else she likes, but that "Grandma" stuff has got to go!

How do I get this simple message across to her?

Not Her Grandma

Dear Not: First tell your son. And if that doesn't work, tell her.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to Abby: Box 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Agonizing

Dear Agonizing: Although it seemed right at the time, it was mistake to cast your son in the role of a substitute husband.

Encourage Mike to make a social life of his own among his contemporaries. His possessiveness is understandably adolescent, but with maturity, he will be less hurt and more realistic. Marry the man.

DEAR ABBY: I load and unload freight and baggage for a major airline. We handle dogs and cats that are "kenneled" for transportation.

Most of these animals have never experienced anything like this before, and they are petrified from the noise of the screaming jets and from so much jostling around. Some animals try to chew through the kennels, and they end up with broken teeth and bleeding mouths. Some even get loose.

Please inform your readers that pills are available (from any vet) which, if given to the animal before the trip, will keep him calm and comfortable. I have seen so many frightened and hysterical animals in my work, it breaks my heart. If you love animals as I do, you'll print this.

sions. At the bridge table it is both easier and cheaper to produce such an effect.

We endorse South's choice of response. Two no trump is a more descriptive bid than two clubs, even though South has a five-card suit. North's raise was automatic, since South's response was forcing.

West led his fourth-best spade. Declarer won in hand and ran the seven of diamonds. Had East won with the jack, declarer could have made his contract either by simply continuing to play on diamonds or by shifting his attention to the club suit and guessing the position. However, East won the first diamond with the king—a falsecard which could not cost but which, as the play developed, proved to be deadly. He then exited with a spade.

Impressed with the "success" of his finesse for the jack of diamonds, declarer won the spade and returned to his hand with the king of clubs to repeat the diamond finesse. Suddenly things turned sour.

East won the jack of diamonds and shifted to the queen of clubs. Declarer's goose was cooked. He could not come to nine tricks without at least one extra trick from a minor suit. But no matter what he elected to do, he could not stop East from scoring two club tricks and three diamonds.

At the table, declarer elected to duck the queen of clubs and win the continuation of the jack. He led a diamond in the hope that West held the ace, but East won that trick and cashed the nine of clubs for a one-trick set.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

I've always loved the Peter Principle by Dr. Laurence J. Peter and Raymond Hull who observed that if anything can go wrong, it will.

I'd like to add some from my own experiences.

Anything that requires a skilled laborer and is vital to the running of your household will break down on Saturday night.

Any appliance covered by a warranty will last until the day after it runs out.

Any college that would take your son he should be too proud to go to.

Know that a happy dieter has other problems.

A man who checks out of the express lane with seven items is the same man who will wear Supp-Hose and park in the Reserved for Handicapped spaces.

Show me a child who has just been outfitted in 30 pounds of warm clothing, driven to an isolated hill at the edge of town and put on a pair of skis, and I'll show you a child who has to go to the bathroom.

An old car that has served you so well will continue to serve you until you have just put four new tires under it and then will fall apart.

A pregnancy will never occur when you have a low-paying job which you hate.

An ugly carpet will last forever.

A woman sees every acquaintance she has known en route to the beauty shop. When she comes out, the streets have turned into a ghost town.

A baby will speak his first full sentence at three months only if you are the only one in the room.

People who buy their yearly supply of greeting cards at one time may one day live to see February and March cancelled.

Most book clubs work under the assumption that your lust for "History of Paperclips" exceeds your desire to put an X in the NO BOOK box and mail it back before the 15th of the month.

Parent-teacher conferences only serve to reinforce your mother's suggestion that you should have raised Irish setters.

With the emphasis on the Miss America's pageant's scholarship and personality values, it is only a matter of time before we have a homely Miss America.

Ignore what all the coaches and philosophers say about "playing the game" — winning is better than losing.

The Slim Gourmet

With slow cooking in a savory sauce, beef shank (or shin) is one of the most delicious dishes there is. Since most of the fat is inside the marrow of the center bone, and around the outside, it easily melts out and can be skimmed... along with excess calories! (Each tablespoon of fat you discard saves you about 100 calories.)

In most supermarkets, beef shank is usually sold in thick slices with the single center bone left in. But sometimes it's sold boneless. If so, substitute about one pound boneless beef shank for the quantities given.

SAVORY BEEF SHIN

- 4 slices beef shank or shin (about 2 lb.)
 - 1/4 cup hot water
 - 1 cup tomato juice
 - 1 tsp. prepared mustard
 - 3 stalks celery, sliced
 - 1 clove garlic
 - 1 bay leaf
 - salt and pepper to taste
 - 3/4 cup cold water
 - 1 tsp. arrowroot or cornstarch
- Combine shinbone and water in a non-stick covered skillet or heavy Dutch oven. Cover and steam 10 minutes to melt fat. Uncover and continue to cook over moderate heat until liquid evaporates and beef browns in its own melted fat. Turn to prevent sticking. Use the tip of a knife to dislodge fat in the marrow of the bone. Pour off all melted fat from the pot.

Add remaining ingredients, except cold water and arrowroot, stirring well to scrape up flavorful brown residue. Cover and simmer over very low heat, one hour or more, until meat is tender. (Add a little hot water, if necessary.) At the last minute, combine cold water and arrowroot and stir smooth. Stir into the pot, until sauce thickens and clears. Makes four servings, under 300 calories each. (Serve with cooked brown rice, if desired, 90 calories per half-cup.)

BEEF OSSO BUCO

- This dish is usually made with veal shank, but it's just as delicious when made with the more widely available beef shinbone. Our version includes all the flavor, but little of the fat!
 - 4 slices beef shank or shin (about 2 lb.)
 - 1/2 cup dry white wine, divided
 - 16 oz. can tomatoes, broken up
 - 2 onions
 - 1 large carrot
 - 2 stalks celery
 - 1 clove garlic, minced (or 1/2 tsp. instant)
 - 1 bay leaf
 - 1 tsp. basil or mixed Italian seasonings
 - salt and pepper to taste
 - 1 tsp. grated lemon rind
- Combine shinbone with one-quarter cup white wine in a covered nonstick skillet or heavy Dutch oven. Cover and steam 10 minutes to melt fat. Uncover and continue to cook over moderate heat, until liquid evaporates and meat browns in its own melted fat. (Dislodge fat in the marrow bone with the tip of a pointed knife.) When meat is well-browned, drain and discard melted fat. Add remaining ingredients except parsley and lemon rind. Stir well to scrape up residue. Cover and simmer over very low heat until meat is tender, about 1 and one-half hours. Uncover and continue to simmer until sauce is very thick. Spoon sauce over meat and sprinkle with parsley and lemon rind. Makes four servings, under 300 calories each.

A DAILY MESSAGE FROM

The Newspaper Bible.

Rev. 18:7B-19, The Living Bible

She boasts, 'I am queen upon my throne. I am no helpless widow. I will not experience sorrow.'

8 Therefore the sorrows of death and mourning and famine shall overtake her in a single day, and she shall be utterly consumed by fire; for mighty is the Lord who judges her.'

9 And the world leaders, who took part in her immoral acts and enjoyed her favors, will mourn for her as they see the smoke rising from her charred remains.

10 They will stand far off, trembling with fear and crying out, 'Alas, Babylon, that mighty city! In one moment her judgment fell.'

11 The merchants of the earth will weep and mourn for her, for there is no one left to buy their goods.

12 She was their biggest customer for gold and silver, precious stones, pearls, finest linens, purple silks, and scarlet; and every kind of perfumed wood, and ivory goods and most expensive wooden carvings, and brass and iron and marble;

13 And spices and perfumes and incense, ointment and frankincense, wine, olive oil, and fine flour; wheat, cattle, sheep, horses,

14 'All the fancy things you loved so much are gone,' they cry. 'The dainty luxuries and splendor that you prized so much will never be yours again. They are gone forever.'

15 And so the merchants who have become wealthy by selling her these things shall stand at a distance, fearing danger to themselves, weeping and crying.

16 'Alas, that great city, so beautiful—like a woman clothed in finest purple and scarlet linens, decked out with gold and precious stones and pearls!

17 In one moment, all the wealth of the city is gone!' And all the shipowners and captains of the merchant ships and crews will stand a long way off,

18 Crying as they watch the smoke ascend, and saying, 'Where in all the world is there another city such as this?'

19 And they will throw dust on their heads in their sorrow and say, 'Alas, alas, for that great city! She made us all rich from her great wealth. And now in a single hour all is gone....'

Worldwide Holiday Chart Lists Unusual Observances

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — In Nicaragua they have the Day of National Dignity; in Taiwan the Festival of the Sweeping Tombs; in Tanzania, Saba Saba Day falls on July 7, and in Japan Sept. 15 is Respect for the Aged Day.

"There are few days in the year when there is no holiday somewhere in the world," says Anne Soukhanov, associate editor of Webster's Secretarial Handbook, which contains a comprehensive Worldwide Holiday Chart.

Though most Americans have probably never heard of the majority of the holidays, other countries take their special days just as seriously as the United States does, says Miss Soukhanov, who points out that "it's no fun to land in a place that has just closed down for 24 hours."

"Because many holidays based on the lunar calendar have variable dates from year to year, you should check with foreign embassies or consulates in the U.S. about exact dates if you're planning to travel in countries you're not too familiar with," cautions Miss Soukhanov.

For example, countries in which the Muslim religion is predominant, such as Saudi Arabia, Egypt and Indonesia, observe Muhammadan religious holidays that are based on the lunar calendar. In these countries, banks and other offices are usually closed on Fridays but are open on Saturdays and Sundays. Many Asian countries base their holidays on the Buddhist or other Eastern religious calendars.

Will you be in Mauritania on November 28? It's their Independence Day. How about Uruguay on Dec. 8? That's the Day of the Beaches. Going to Japan next April? The 29th is the Emperor's Birthday. And in Egypt Oct. 24 is Popular Resistance Day.

If you're heading for Turkey on Sept. 24, keep in mind that Sheker Bairam, or the Feast of Sugar, occur from that date through Sept. 27. How about Tunisia on Oct. 15? That's Evacuation of Bizerte Day. St. Paul's Shipwreck is marked on Malta on Feb. 10, and the birthday of Mahatma Gandhi is commemorated in India on Oct. 2.

Another popular holiday is Boxing Day, celebrated after Christmas in most of the British Commonwealth and in some other countries. It is marked by giving Christmas boxes to service workers such as postmen, and is celebrated in diverse countries such as Australia, Fiji, and Trinidad and Tobago, according to the Secretarial Handbook.

"Several hundred civil and religious holidays are celebrated each year in countries throughout the world, many of which are on different dates and at different times. The only holiday that is almost universally celebrated is Christmas Day, which is both a religious and civil holiday," Miss Soukhanov notes.

In addition to Christmas the Worldwide Holidays Chart shows two other holidays attracting almost universal interest: Independence Day and Labor Day. The chart lists 84 countries with an "Independence Day," for instance. In Equatorial Guinea, its Oct. 12; in Qatar, it's Sept. 4; in Iceland, June 17; and in Western Samoa, Jan. 1. As for our own date of July 4, nobody else seems to like it as an independence day, Miss Soukhanov reports, but in the Philippines, it's Philippine-American Friendship Day, and in Yugoslavia it's Fighters Day.

According to the handbook some 82 countries mark Labor Day, but mostly on May 1. If you plan to hit Togo, Burundi, Jordan, Somalia, Singapore, or the People's Republic of China on May 1, don't be surprised if all offices and businesses are closed.

Another popular holiday is All Saints Day, marked in 43 countries from Andorra to Venezuela on Nov. 1. And the birthdays of kings and queens are still big news in some countries.

Happy Birthday

Job Not Easy For Demo Leader

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democratic National Committee will be getting a new chairman this month, but John C. White is not likely to have an easier time in the job than did Kenneth Curtis.

In selecting White, who left Texas last year to take the second spot in the Agriculture Department, the Democrats may be trying to re-invent Robert Strauss, the Dallas lawyer-banker who raised the national party from the depths of the 1972 McGovern election disaster.

No way. Not even Strauss, with all the clout he gained rebuilding the party, could operate now as he did in 1972-76.

The reason is that the situation is entirely different. Strauss took over a debt-ridden, ideologically-fractured political party that had just absorbed a humiliating defeat.

Democrats continued to dominate Congress, but the politics and the process involved in electing senators and House members is so completely different that it has its own life, almost as a separate party.

Strauss had his problems getting Democrats to stop cutting each other's throats in public. He eventually convinced the warring factions that his goal was to resurrect the party, not promote political dogma. Strauss became the rallying point for a party that had no unchallenged leader to lead it back to power.

By tradition, when a political party captures the White House, the president becomes the leader of the party and the national committee chairman becomes his agent. This has worked in the past for the simple reason that the president usually gained national committee control or at least allegiance as part of the process of working toward nomination and election.

But none of the Democratic presidential hopefuls, least of all Jimmy Carter, had a lock on the national committee in 1976. Carter was smart enough to leave Strauss in the chairmanship during the campaign to continue the vital job of keeping the national committee in line. Carter tapped Curtis to succeed Strauss in 1977 and the choice seemed apt. Well known and liked, if not particularly respected for political skills, Curtis, as the tradition required, quickly demonstrated his willingness to defer to the White House in policy leadership.

But this national committee is different from the ones that were at the unquestioning command of John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson in the 1960s. Curtis' relaxed style irritated a number of national committee members who felt he was letting the young political hotspots from the White House dictate to party elders they should be giving the respect of consultation. Curtis was in a bad spot. He had no constituency of his own within the committee, and he was not a real Carter insider. With flak coming from both sides, he bailed out. White has the advantage of a year's acquaintance with the White House and strong previous national committee experience. But he still is going to have to be the president's man at the head of a national committee that is far more independent-minded than its predecessors.

Tut Sold Out In Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 661,000 advance tickets to see the Treasures of Tutankhamun at the County Museum of Art have been sold out. But museum officials say ticketless Tut fans still may get a chance to see the exhibit.

Morton Golden, deputy director of the museum, said this week that additional tickets may go on sale on a daily basis after the museum has a chance to "study the gallery capacity and estimate the number of no-shows" when the exhibit opens Feb. 15.

Golden said the advance tickets — $2 for general admission and $1 for senior citizens, students and children under 12 — went on sale Jan. 3 at 84 department store outlets and were sold out in four days.

Museum officials say the exhibit, scheduled to run through June 15, is expected to attract 1.3 million viewers.

The exhibit, now in New Orleans, is a collection of 55 objects on loan from the Cairo museum. It is the largest selection from the tomb of the Pharaoh Tutankhamun ever sent abroad.

Political Considerations Led To Carter's Replacing Of Burns

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

Political consideration, not a clash of economic philosophies, led President Carter to replace Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns with business executive G. William Miller.

In making the switch, which becomes effective when Burns' term as chairman expires Jan. 31, Carter chose not to risk another battle with Congressional leaders, who were adamantly opposed to Burns, rather than try to build confidence in the business community by keeping the man business leaders stumped for.

As we've pieced the story together from sources close to the decision-making process, the President personally was willing to give Burns another four-year term as chairman. He respects Burns' abilities, recognizes his standing in the financial world and admires his independence, although the two have clashed a number of times over Fed refusal to give whole-hearted support to administration economic plans.

Congressional leaders, however — especially Sen. William Proxmire and Rep. Henry Reuss, chairmen of the Senate and House Banking committees — demanded that Burns be replaced. The White House could have ignored the two Wisconsin Democrats, since under current law, Burns' re-appointment would not have required confirmation by the Senate. Carter decided, though, that such a move would further aggravate the shaky relationship between the White House and Capitol Hill and make it more difficult to get any cooperation during the upcoming election-year session.

The final decision on Burns, we're told, was made in November, although one source says it was clear as far back as mid-October that the President had made up his mind. After that, it was a matter of finding the proper replacement.

The next decision Carter made was that the new chairman would not be an economist. To counter the effect of Burns' departure, he wanted someone who would help build confidence in the business community.

The list of businessman-candidates that finally developed included Irving Shapiro, chairman of General Electric Co., a couple of bank officers and others. Shapiro, who is also chairman of the Business Roundtable, a group of top corporate executives that has gained great influence in Washington, has very close ties to Carter, but there was little expectation that he would accept the job, and he didn't.

Although Bill Miller's designation came as a shock to financial people around the world, it was not a surprise to some others. Miller, an early Carter supporter, has been chairman of Textron, Inc., a huge conglomerate corporation — its holdings range from consumer products to helicopters — whose conservative policies helped it escape the reversals that hit most conglomerates early in this decade. In speeches over the years, he has shown the social awareness that is a key part of the Carter outlook. He has a reputation for being tough and decisive and can be expected to move quickly to demonstrate the Fed's continuing independence, a key element in Burns' high standing in world monetary circles.

Miller also has worked a number of times with Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal — himself the former chairman of Bendix Corp. — who has frequently spoken of his high regard for Miller. One Blumenthal associate told us, "When I heard the announcement I wasn't surprised. Mike thought a lot of Miller even before he went to Washington."

Once the two decisions — not to retain Burns and to put Miller into the chairman's seat — were made, it was important to insure against any advance word getting out. The weakness of the dollar in world monetary markets surely would have been made worse by premature leaks. One source told us that even the routine FBI background check was held up to the last minute to prevent word leaking out.

Making the secrecy even more of a surprise, several people in the business community were asked their reactions to some of the possible nominees — Miller included — yet his name never appeared in any of the public speculation about a possible successor to Burns.

Despite the White House willingness to heed the congressional calls for Burns' ouster, the effort may not pay the dividends Carter hoped for. Rep. Reuss endorsed Miller's selection, but Sen. Proxmire was less than impressed. At one point, he said that, given Miller's lack of background in monetary policy, the administration might as well have kept Burns.

Proxmire conceded, though, that Miller should have no trouble being confirmed as the eleventh chairman in the Fed's 63-year history.

Judge's Opinion Draws Protest From Spectator

LONDON (AP) — Police dragged a spectator from a courtroom recently after he leaped to his feet and denounced a judge's opinion that it is legal to use the words "niggers, wogs and coons" in a public meeting.

Soon after the morning's session began at Old Bailey, London's chief criminal courthouse, a white man seated in the public gallery in Judge Neil McKinnon's courtroom sprang up shouting remarks at the judge.

"There is no justice for black people in this country," Paul Holborow yelled. "It makes Nazis respectable. It is outrageous and disgraceful."

Seven police officers and court attendants rushed in and dragged the struggling man outside the courtroom. Holborow, 29, secretary of a group called the Anti-Nazi League, then joined 30 friends picketing outside the building.

McKinnon had presided at the trial of a right-wing politician charged under Britain's Race Relations Act with inciting racial hatred because he referred to people as "niggers, wogs and coons" at a political meeting.

The judge instructed the jury last Friday that much of the evidence was "rubbish" and vague and that the words in themselves were not unlawful. The jury acquitted the defendant, John Kingsley Read, 41, former chairman of the rightist National Front Party and now chairman of the small Democratic Party.

The judge's statement has touched off a storm of protest. Placards carried by the demonstrators today read, "Sack McKinnon, Arrest Read," and "McKinnon's Law Gives Nazis Freedom."

Youth Gang Terrorizes Inhabitants Of Tenement

NEW YORK (AP) — A youth gang terrorized a Brooklyn tenement this week, beating a 73-year-old man, tearing out woodwork and robbing horrified residents in an effort to takeover the building as a clubhouse, police say.

When they left, the Ninth Street Bikers promised to return to the building at 174

S. Ninth St. within 15 hours and burn it to the ground if the inhabitants remained. But when they returned, the 11 teenagers were confronted by police and arrested, according to authorities.

Tenants said the gang apparently decided to take over the building because of a fight last week between a former resident of the building and a gang member.

When they first stormed the building, according to the superintendent, Jose Pantoja, "They wanted to get into every apartment. They were looking for that guy but he moved out."

He said the gang broke into at least four apartments in the 22-family building, vandalizing them and stealing clothes, money and whatever else they could find.

When the gang left, residents called police, who hid both inside and outside of the building, waiting for the youths to return.

Salk To Test Treatment For Multiple Sclerosis

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Federal drug officials have given Dr. Jonas E. Salk, the man who helped conquer polio, permission to test a new substance he developed for treatment of persons suffering multiple sclerosis.

Eli Lilly & Co., an Indianapolis-based pharmaceutical firm, is providing the test materials to the Salk Institute at La Jolla, Calif.

Dr. W. Ian Shedden, vice president of Lilly Research Laboratories, cautioned persons suffering from the paralyzing neurological disease against false hopes because of the testing.

Shedden said scientists probably will not know for several years whether the substance, initially developed by Salk in his California facilities, would be successful in treating humans. Salk also developed the first successful vaccine against polio.

Researchers say one in every 20,000 Americans suffers from MS. The disease usually is contracted by persons about 35 years old and progresses 20 to 25 years until the victim dies from an infection.

"Presently there is no effective treatment that offers any long time hope for cure or provides assurances the patient won't have a progressive deterioration," Shedden said.

Majority Of Grants Given To A&M, UT

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas AM University and the University of Texas at Austin got almost half of the $189.9 million in research grants awarded to Texas public colleges and universities in 1976-77, the College Coordinating Board said Tuesday.

The total is 12.3 percent higher than the figure for the previous year.

The federal government provided 58.4 percent of the research money, 24.3 percent came from the state and the remainder from private sources.

AM got $51.8 million, and UT-Austin got $40.9 million.

WEATHER FORECAST — Rain was forecast today from the Gulf to the Midwest where the precipitation was to change to snow extending into the northern Plains. Rain was also forecast for most of the Pacific coast. Temperatures were expected to be cold over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto Map)

SPAG Shows Favor For Grant Requests

The cities of Floydada and Crosbyton were given favorable comment for grants for low income housing projects by the South Plains Association of Governments at its monthly meeting Tuesday.

Each city applied for grants for two projects from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, yet only one project for each city is expected to be approved.

SPAG Executive Director Truett Mayes said that because HUD was so "picky" about how low income housing projects are located — sometimes in a clustered group and sometimes spread over the city — each of the cities submitted two applications to leave HUD a choice.

The projects will be for the elderly and handicapped as well as for the poor.

The association also voted not to renew membership in the Texas Municipal League because of the dues increase of 1000 percent.

SPAG maintained an associate membership status, paying annual dues of $50. Recently the dues for an associate member jumped to $500.

The association also voted for president Glenn W. Thompson, Cochran County judge, to appoint a committee to look for a new building to headquarter SPAG.

The lease on the present office at 1611 Ave. M expires on Sept. 30 and the lease stipulates a six-month notice should SPAG decide to move.

Mayes said the offices are cramped for space, and requested the association to look for new quarters.

The South Plains Office on Aging also received favorable comment for second-year funding during the meeting.

Other applications given favorable comment were water systems improvements for the cities of Sundown and Petersburg, and applications for a youth services officer and district court administrator for Hale County.

Judge Thompson also welcomed the newest member of the board of directors, Brownfield city councilman T.C. Williams Jr.

board in October and completed his study and submitted recommendations to the board in December. Some of those recommendations included stepping up a public education program on water conservation.

Wyatt had told the board in November that a tax hike from the present 3 cents per $100 property evaluation to 5 cents might be needed to implement his proposals. The board has not yet approved any of Wyatt's recommendations.

"There is a possibility we might be able to operate on 3 cents, we might have to go to 4 cents or possibly back to 5 cents," Wyatt said Tuesday night. The district last year lowered the taxes from 5 cents to 3 cents.

Wyatt said he was first asked if he was interested in becoming manager when he first began his study here. "I never had intended to come up here and become manager," he said.

Wyatt said "local encouragement" and the ability to communicate well with the board caused him to reconsider.

Wyatt left the district in 1967 to become chief hydrologist with the South Plains Underground Water Conservation District headquartered in Brownfield.

However, he left that district several months later when the State Supreme Court ruled the district was created illegally, and thus abolished. He then went to Austin to work for what is now the Texas Department of Water Resources, and began his own practice last February in Austin.

School Taxes

in Austin rules in a suit now pending that intangible property such as stocks, bonds and jewelry must be taxed, the state constitution probably will have to be amended to make such items non-taxable.

He explained such items are virtually impossible to locate and assess.

"If it were simple to do, we would have started by now," he said.

Analyzing financial problems of school districts, Clayton said a major one along the Rio Grande is the influx of children of illegal aliens.

He said the children were "using my and your tax dollars to educate themselves."

Administration Weighs Options Toward Italy

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, concerned about the future of the Italian government, is proclaiming a policy of noninterference in Western European politics — and scrambling for a way to help the ruling Christian Democrats.

The options are these:
— Do nothing, thereby avoiding even the appearance of meddling, while hoping the Communists' push for power will fail.
— Send Richard Gardner, the U.S. ambassador who is home for consultations, back to Rome with private assurances of support for the government.
— Publicly declare that support, with the goal of bolstering the Christian Democrats.
— Issue public warnings that if the Communists gain a major role in running Italy, the United States might reconsider its ties to its old ally.

Analysis

While weighing these and possibly other options, the administration is declaring a "hands-off" policy toward European communism, in France as well as Italy.

But at the same time, and beginning last week with President Carter in Paris, U.S. officials are cautioning against — as Carter put it — "the temptation of finding solutions in nondemocratic forces."

This represents a new emphasis on the perils of Communist inroads.

It still falls far short of the repeated and weighty warnings by then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in the Nixon and Ford administration that Communist electoral victories could imperil the NATO alliance.

But Carter's advisers, in a subtle shift, decided to have the president express concern while in Europe.

For that reason they included in his speech the remark that "it is precisely when democracy is up against difficult challenges that its leaders must show firmness."

Overall, though, U.S. policy remains as Carter stated it in an interview last May. "The first premise on which we function," he said, "is that European citizens are perfectly capable of making their own decisions about political matters through the free election process."

Second, he said, "we prefer that the governments involved continue to be democratic and that no totalitarian elements become either influential or dominant."

The State Department is reiterating this two-track policy both with regard to Italy and to France.

"Our hands are off," spokesman Hodding Carter said at Tuesday's daily press briefing. But he also noted that "our preference is well known. It is very clear we would prefer that they (the Communists) not participate."

While in Paris, the president warned the French Socialists against renewing their alliance with the Communists.

Subsequently, Socialist leader Francois Mitterand denied that Carter had expressed concern to him about ties with the Communists.

Administration officials do not want to debate the point publicly. But the reports of Carter's comments are believed here to be accurate.

Above all, they are concerned about developments in Italy and France.

When Carter moved into the White House, all the NATO countries were democratic for the first time in memory. Portugal and Greece had overturned totalitarian regimes.

The problem the administration is trying to grapple with now is that that period may be drawing to a close, with Italy and possibly France bolting leftward.

Tourism Director Quits

Lew Mullins, executive director of the Lubbock Convention and Tourism Bureau, will leave that position Feb. 23.

Miss Mullins, who has supervised the bureau since its inception in October, 1976, will move to Lyford, where she will be married Feb. 25.

In its first year of operation, the economic impact of the visitors drawn to the city by the bureau was estimated at $40 million.

More than 100 conventions are booked this year, Miss Mullins said, but because most conventions schedule about two years in advance the big target year has been 1979 for bookings in the Memorial Civic Center.

Miss Mullins said she hopes the bureau, jointly funded by the Chamber of Commerce and the city, will be able to increase its budget. The present budget is $125,000, about half the amount Amarillo's bureau receives and one-tenth that of the San Antonio agency.

Before serving as the convention bureau director, Miss Mullins was the sales director for South Park Inn.

Air Force To Give Bob Hope Award

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Comedian Bob Hope, who for years brought Christmas entertainment to U.S. troops at outposts throughout the world, will be honored Thursday for his contribution to maintaining the security of the United States.

Capt. William Whipple, Air Force Academy public information officer, said Hope would be presented with the Thomas D. White National Defense Award following an 11 a.m. parade by the Cadet Wing. The award is named after Gen. Thomas D. White, who served as Air Force chief of staff from 1957-61.

The award was to have been presented to Hope last May, but the entertainer was unable to attend because of scheduling conflicts. Whipple said the recipient of the 1978 award has not been selected.

TANKS EXPLODE — Fuel oil storage tanks like those shown here exploded Tuesday as firemen battled a waterfront blaze at the Winslow Oil Co. at Hertford, N.C. Several firemen were injured. The firefighters poured continuous streams of water on the remaining tanks to cool them and prevent further explosions. No fatalities were reported in the blaze, which erupted with an explosion. Welfare Director Seeks Hike In Emergency Aid

The Lubbock County Welfare Department director said Tuesday she will ask county commissioners this month to authorize a "significant" increase in the amount of emergency aid her staff can provide to needy families for shelter and utilities.

Willie Washington told a general meeting of the Lubbock League of Women Voters that request and other proposed changes in the county's general assistance program will be presented to the commissioners court Jan. 23.

"You can't find a place to live" at the level of assistance now set by the county, she said after the session.

Presently for those who qualify, a family of one or two members is eligible for just $50 a month toward housing, three or four members, $60, and five or more members, $65, Mrs. Washington said.

As with other aspects of the county's general assistance program, eligible families do not get those allowances in cash. Rather, the money is paid directly to the family's landlord.

And, Mrs. Washington said, if a landlord refuses to accept the county's offer of payment, the family must find supplemental assistance from another agency or find another apartment whose landlord will accept such a small payment.

County Judge Rod Shaw, the county welfare advisory board and other officials are supporting Mrs. Washington's request to increase the shelter allowances.

Mrs. Washington declined to say how big an increase she will seek until that and other proposals officially have been given to the commissioners court.

The county welfare department dispenses emergency aid, good for only about two months, for housing, utilities, food and burials.

To qualify, a family generally must have lost its regular income, through illness or a job layoff for example, and have depleted its savings. Also, eligible recipients must be residents of the state of Texas for at least 12 months and residents of Lubbock County for at least six months.

Mrs. Washington and her advisory board have been studying the possibility of lowering residency requirements and allowing families that still have an income but are facing unusually high expenses for medical care or some other need to qualify for temporary assistance.

Mrs. Washington would not say, however, whether those will be among the requests presented to commissioners later this month.

Also at Tuesday's meeting of the League of Women Voters, Mrs. Washington criticized President Carter's proposals on welfare reform.

Some of Carter's ideas "may be conflicting and hard to understand," she said. She said she doubts the President's proposals could cut local welfare costs by $2 billion a year, as Carter has estimated. And, Mrs. Washington said, the proposals overlook the needs of middle-aged "semi-disabled" workers.

Still, Carter's push to give the poor jobs instead of welfare checks is admirable, Mrs. Washington said. That's something the Lubbock County Welfare Department has long been doing, she added.

She noted that the county welfare department, while providing temporary aid to eligible applicants, also counsels clients on how to become self-sustaining and requires them to look for jobs.

Engineer Requests Light On Parkway

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Residents of the north Parkway Drive area were informed Tuesday they're one step closer to getting a traffic light at the intersection of Parkway Drive and Zenith Avenue.

The news came the day of a scheduled meeting to discuss tactics to draw attention to traffic problems at the intersection, including the possibility of a block-ade.

George Wall Jr., State Department of Highways and Public Transportation district engineer, decided Monday to recommend to the Austin office of the highway department that a full traffic-actuated light be approved for the intersection. A letter of recommendation was expected to be sent to Austin today.

Wall made the decision in light of seven accidents at the intersection since the highway department made modifications there in August, W.C. "Mickey" Powell, senior traffic engineer, said.

"We've been monitoring the accident situation since the modification — we hoped to slow things down," Powell said. But because accidents indicate the less restrictive type of control has had little effect on driving habits the highway department opted for the traffic light.

Highway department approval is necessary because Parkway Drive is a state-maintained highway (U.S. 82).

Various groups have attempted without success for nearly seven years to have a light installed at the intersection.

The latest effort has been led by the Rev. Roy Jones, a Baptist minister who lives on Parkway Drive. The meeting that was to have been held Tuesday night was defused by a mid-afternoon phone call to Jones from City Manager Larry Cunningham, who informed the minister of the highway department's decision.

Cunningham said the city learned about Wall's decision quite by accident. "The reason we contacted them (was because) we wanted to know who to contact to make an appeal of the highway department's refusal to recommend a light."

The city manager said "there was no animosity, but we disagreed with their conclusion — it was a friendly appeal. We wanted to be sure our position was known by some higher authority," he said.

Cunningham said he'd "like to take the credit" for the highway department's change of heart, but said the city "did nothing but continue to show interest and said they (the highway department) should continue to monitor the situation."

But the city manager wanted it made clear the city had "not shirked its responsibility and had made attempts to help the situation."

The Parkway and Zenith light is "very much needed," Cunningham said, adding that the design of the intersection is "awkward."

Those most affected by Tuesday's developments were pleased, but reserved judgment until the light is installed.

Jones said he was "glad we didn't have to resort to other measures," but indicated those other measures may come in handy if the Austin office of the highway department does not look favorably on the signal.

In fact, Jones said, residents might be more angry if it is rejected in Austin.

"We'll give them ample time to get results and to get an answer from Austin," Jones said.

"If there is not a followup on this particular project," he said, "we're going to resort back to the previous plan."

But obviously Jones was proud of the efforts thus far.

"If we accomplish this, there's a lot more to do," he said.

Schmidt

resentation, all people need to be considered," he said. "I don't think you can run for a position like this and be biased."

So far, Schmidt said, his only real concern as a candidate is lack of exposure in the public eye. As a native Lubbocker, he has gotten to know many people throughout the city, he said. But, he explained, he has never been involved in a controversial issue or "rattled the bars" in public.

"I think that will have to be overcome," he admitted. Schmidt said that although he knows Councilman Dirk West's seat also must be filled, he did not believe he should attempt to become mayor pro tempore on his first political office bid.

Schmidt, who has served as a Planning and Zoning Commission member for five years, is a graduate of Texas Tech University and of Colorado State University.

Other positions include past president of the Plains Nurserymen's Association and present director and treasurer of the International Bedding Plant Association. He is also scoutmaster of a Boy Scout troop and recipient of several scouting awards.

Schmidt and his wife, Juanita, have three children.

Council Eyes Changes In Alcohol Ordinances

By PAULA TILKER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock City Council at its meeting Thursday once again will consider ordinance amendments to tighten control over the sale of alcoholic beverages in restaurants.

The latest in a series of proposals drafted by the city legal department would allow the sale of alcoholic beverages as an incidental use by restaurants in certain zones.

Those zoning districts include local retail (C-2), restricted local retail (C-2A) and general retail (C-3).

Other businesses in those districts that want to sell alcoholic beverages would have to apply to the Zoning Board of Adjustment for permission. If the board ascertained certain restrictions were met, the businesses would be able to sell the drinks as a conditional use.

Conditions that would have to be met include an acceptable site plan, a 600-foot separation between businesses selling alcoholic beverages and a 200-foot separation from residential zones.

The most controversial feature of the newest amendment proposal may be the abolition of late-hour permits in restaurants. The permits allow a business to sell alcoholic beverages until 2 a.m. instead of the usual midnight.

City Atty. Fred Senter said he interprets the amendments to mean that already issued late hour permits could be cancelled upon adoption of the proposal.

Inclusion of the change would mean restaurants could not act as "mini-bars" by selling only alcoholic beverages after their kitchens close, the city legal staff says.

Another feature of the new proposals is that no quarterly audits would be routinely required. The audits, which supposedly show the business meets the 60-40 limit on alcoholic beverage sale profits, can be falsified easily, the staff says. Therefore, staffers say the audits are meaningless.

Instead, under the proposals, the zoning administrator could require a notarized affidavit from restaurants indicating gross revenues on incidental and primary uses. The administrator would use his own discretion in seeking the affidavits.

Apart from not requiring ZBA approval of alcoholic beverages, the latest proposal differs little from the one council members rejected last month. The council could not reach a consensus on the drafted suggestions and tabled the discussion after an hour of wrangling.

Council members seek the changes to prevent bars from operating as restaurants in zoning districts reserved for eateries. Also, zoning staffers say, they want to prevent restaurants from acting as "mini-bars" with late-hour permits.

During their work session, to begin at 9:30 a.m. in the emergency operation center, council members will discuss the timetable for the April 1 municipal elections. Filing deadlines and other details of the elections will be outlined by Asst. City Atty. Ken Jones.

Possible dates for seeking a bond rating on airport revenue bonds will be considered. The council proposes to sell the bonds and use capital improvement funds to finance a $2.4 million parking lot expansion at the airport.

Council members will review the status of capital improvement projects being delayed by court action. Primarily they will discuss water, fire and sewer improvements that have been held up by a suit filed by city hall critic Jimmy Marshall to have the May 21 bond election declared void.

Marshall already lost the first round in a district court here, but has carried his case to the 7th Court of Civil Appeals in Amarillo. No date has been set to hear that case.

Representatives of the Executive Limousine Service once again will appear before the council to seek permission to provide limousine service at the Lubbock International Airport.

The company's representatives have been turned down by the Airport Board and are appealing the board's decision. The board says it sees no need for the service.

The council also will consider amending a Community Development funding agreement with the federal government to give the local Urban Renewal Agency authority to approve 312 rehabilitation loans.

Council members are expected to formalize an agreement with Texas Tech whereby the university will pay the city $10,000 annually for the use of the Auditorium-Coliseum parking lot.

Mondale Discusses Tax, Water Policies

By TERENCE HUNT

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale says the Carter administration is developing tax proposals that will be popular with businessmen, a national water policy that won't usurp states' rights and an Indian policy that will not abrogate tribal treaties.

Setting out on the third day of a five-day "looking and listening" tour in the West, Mondale slated stops today in Colorado, Montana, Idaho and Washington for talks with public officials, businessmen, cattle ranchers and farmers.

In a whirlwind series of stops Tuesday in New Mexico, Utah and Colorado, the vice president invited groups he met with to tell him how the Carter administration can best serve the West.

A Rocky Mountain snowstorm forced Mondale to stay overnight in this Colorado community, abandoning plans to move north to Craig on Tuesday night. Then, bad flying conditions over the mountains led him to cancel his plan to take a helicopter today to Craig to visit a coal mine.

During Mondale's tour, a question asked repeatedly was whether the administration's new national water policy, scheduled to be unveiled in about six weeks, will allow a federal takeover of state water rights.

"We have never nor will we ever at the federal level pre-empt or interfere with state or local or private water rights in this country," Mondale said in Salt Lake City before a joint session of the Utah legislature.

At several meetings with businessmen, the vice president said the administration has tried to cut federal paperwork requirements and ease regulatory burdens on them.

"When you see signs of regulations that don't make sense, let us know about them," he urged a meeting of Hispanic businessmen in Albuquerque.

In Ogden, Utah, Mondale said business leaders had a major voice in the upcoming administration tax revision package.

"I believe you're going to like this tax package," he said. "It reflects what we've been told."

Everett Faunce, who hosted the businessmen's meeting at his sheet metal fabrication plant, asked if the proposal would include improved investment credit provisions and accelerated depreciation for equipment.

"You'll like it," Mondale told him. "In any equipment-intensive business I think you'll find liberalized treatment of investment tax credit."

Mondale said he was not at liberty to discuss the tax package in more detail.

In Albuquerque, Mondale was told by Southwestern Indian leaders that an anti-Indian backlash is developing because of jurisdictional disputes over Indian lands.

Sen. Peter Domenici, R-N.M., urged Mondale to resist efforts to resolve disputes through legislation that repeals existing treaties.

"That's not the way to solve the problem," the senator said. "If there are jurisdictional problems, people of good faith can work them out." Mondale nodded his agreement.

An aide said later that the administration favors resolution of the disputes through negotiation rather than legislation.

Colorado has the highest mean elevation of any state. Fifty-four of its peaks are over 14,000 feet high and more than 1,000 go beyond the 10,000-foot mark.

Local Jaycees To Present Annual Award

Lubbock Jaycees will present their Distinguished Service Award to the city's Outstanding Young Man at a banquet set for 7 p.m. Saturday in the Hilton Inn Ballroom.

Four finalists will be selected from nine contestants, before announcing the winner who will represent Lubbock in competition for five Outstanding Young Men of Texas.

Nominees for the title are:

— Bidal Aguerro, editor and publisher of El Editor newspaper and nominated by Mario G. Perez.

— John William Burdette, CPA with Main-Lafrantz & Co., nominated by the National Association of Accountants.

— Larry J. Cunningham, city manager, nominated by Lubbock Rotary Club.

— James A. Douglass, executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Lubbock, nominated by the Caprock American Business Club.

— Jerry D. Lane, vice president of First Federal Saving & Loan, nominated by Suzanne Murphy and Charlie Pope.

— David Alex Miller, president of AMCO Medical Service Inc., nominated by Southwest Rotary Club.

— Esmeraldo Garcia Nunez, principal at Matthews Junior High School, nominated by Matthews Junior High School faculty.

— Robert Lowell Thomas, teacher at Evans Junior High School, nominated by the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association.

The nominees will be judged by persons other than Jaycees.

Jail Review Continuing

Inspectors with the Texas Commission on Jail Standards continued their on-site review of the Lubbock County Jail today in accordance with U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward's order for periodic reports on conditions in the 47-year-old facility.

Three state inspectors, accompanied by commission executive director Guy Van Cleave, started the review Tuesday, Sheriff C.H. "Choc" Blanchard said.

The state officials declined to make any comments about their visit until they first report to Woodward, Blanchard said.

However, he feels the jail "overall has shown vast improvement" since the last inspection several months ago, and hopes the state commission concurs in that opinion.

The county jail, which county officials plan to replace with new facilities in two years, is under an order from Woodward to meet state jail standards. Since that order was issued last spring, commissioners have spent substantial sums of money fixing up the structure.

Alcohol Center Receives Okay

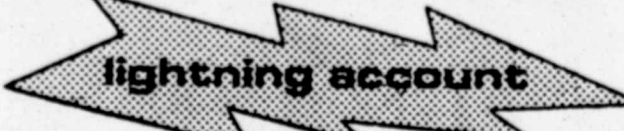

A proposal to establish a detoxification program for the treatment of alcoholics and persons arrested on alcohol-related charges here was formally endorsed Tuesday by the board of trustees of the Lubbock Regional Mental Health-Mental Retardation Center.

Lubbock County commissioners Monday agreed to be the vehicle for applying for federal-state criminal justice funds to start up the proposed detoxification center, which would be administered by the MHMR agency.

Tuesday's action by the MHMR board allows the agency's staff to proceed with such an application to the Governor's Criminal Justice Division.

The project would need an initial annual grant of about $136,000. Subsequent grants would be progressively smaller, with MHMR and local community contributions assuming fiscal responsibility for the detoxification center over a five-year period.

Handwriting Experts Scheduled To Testify In Hunt Estate Suit

SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Lawyers representing the estate of Dallas billionaire H.L. Hunt plan to call handwriting experts to challenge the authenticity of Florida records, which show the already-married oilman took ex-socialite Frania Tye Lee as his wife in 1925.

Mrs. Lee, now 73, is suing in federal court for a share of Hunt's estate. She is seeking half of what Hunt earned during their nine-year marriage and the money earned from that sum.

During the second day of testimony in federal court Tuesday, a Florida county official said a record of the marriage had been removed from files in Tampa, Fla.

Bruce Singleton, assistant director of archives for Hillsborough County, Fla., said the half-page record was ripped from a marriage book after lawyers for Mrs. Lee and the Hunt estate obtained certified copies of it.

Singleton confirmed earlier testimony by Mrs. Lee's son, Hue Hunt, that the record had "void" written over it twice, but the court official said he didn't know who wrote the words.

Donald L. Case, a Dallas attorney representing the Hunt estate, asked the court to retain the Hillsborough records and said he would call a handwriting expert later in the trial.

Hue Hunt, one of four children Mrs. Lee said she bore to Hunt, recalled growing up in Great Neck, N.Y., and Houston. He said the man he later learned was H.L. Hunt was his father.

Hue Hunt said he remembered visiting his father's other family in Dallas. The oilman had six children by Lyda Bunker Hunt whom he married in 1914.

"I would stay out at the house at White Rock (lake in Dallas)," Hue Hunt said.

"Once we played football together, all the boys. I also met Lamar (Hunt) when he was starting the American Football League."

Hunt's sons Lamar and Hebert and his daughter June, children by Lyda Bunker, sat through the first two days of testimony with the defendant in the case along with their halfbrother Ray Hunt who is executor of the will. Ray is the son of Ruth Ray Hunt, whom the billionaire married after the death of Lyda.

Hue said he remembered his father's visits and said the elder Hunt often played with him, his brothers and sisters and their friends.

"I remember playing badminton with everyone and looking for four-leaf clovers," Hue said. "He (H.L. Hunt) offered a quarter to everybody who found a four-leaf clover. I didn't win."

FTC Hits Interlocking Directorates

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission moved today to encourage competition between financial institutions by barring directors of savings and loans associations from also serving on bank boards.

The ruling came in a case involving the largest savings and loan association in the nation's capital. Seven of the 11 directors of Perpetual Savings and Loan Association served on the boards of Washington banks.

The commission ruled 4-1 that the interlocking directorates — a common practice among the nation's financial institutions — violated anti-trust laws.

"Interlocking directorates among competitors by their very nature create the potential for anti-competitive conduct," the opinion by FTC Chairman Michael Pertschuk said.

"To permit interlocking directorates among financial institutions who compete for the funds of the public and in the making of loans in our credit-dominated society would be to create potential conflicts of interest which could have seriously adverse effects on competition," he said.

The decision, which may be appealed through the federal courts, has serious implications for the future regulation of financial institutions.

It was the first FTC case challenging the practice of interlocking directorates at financial institutions, and both the U.S. League of Savings Associations and the National League of Savings Associations had filed briefs in support of Perpetual.

Duncan Whitaker, an attorney for Perpetual, called the FTC ruling "clearly contrary to court decisions and established legal principles." He said no decision has been made on whether to appeal.

The commission's action sustained an earlier decision by an FTC administrative law judge.

The FTC order forbids Perpetual from having common directors with any corporation that competes with it in providing financial services.

Commissioner Calvin J. Collier dissented, saying anti-competitive effects must be demonstrated before such conduct can be assumed.

Alleged Abuses Within FBI To Go Unprosecuted

WASHINGTON (AP) — What the Justice Department called "abuses of power and position" by FBI officials under J. Edgar Hoover's administration will go unprosecuted because the cases are too old, the department says.

"There definitely would have been prosecutions if the statute of limitations hadn't run," said Michael E. Shaheen Jr., head of the department's Office of Professional Responsibility.

In a report released Tuesday, the department described Hoover as a man who routinely accepted lavish gifts and extensive services from subordinates.

The report also described misuses of FBI funds by the former director and his top aides.

Attorney General Griffin B. Bell said the abuses, uncovered in the investigation begun more than two years ago, "have cast a shadow over a great institution and over those of its officials who engaged in no wrongdoing whatsoever."

And he warned that while it may be too late to prosecute any of the wrongdoers, such misconduct would not be tolerated again.

Hoover, who died in 1972 at age 77, was accused of accepting goods and services that ranged from a front portico and a fish pond at his home in Northwest Washington to repairs to his stereo equipment and free tax advice from an FBI accountant.

"FBI employees called upon to perform these services did not think them proper, but felt compelled to follow orders for fear of losing their jobs or of arbitrary transfers or promotion delays," the report said.

One FBI agent, who asked not to be identified, said the Justice Department report came as no surprise.

"We used to hear stories like that," he said. "I was not that shocked (although I'm not saying I would condone it)."

The only FBI official to be prosecuted in connection with the investigation was John P. Dunphy, a former FBI section chief who was fined $500 and placed on probation in 1976 after he admitted taking $100 worth of lumber from the FBI to build a bird house.

The allegations against Hoover and his subordinates are not new. But the report marks the first time the Justice Department has confirmed them and compiled them in one document.

The investigation was begun in 1975 by former Attorney General Edward H. Levi, who was dissatisfied with an earlier FBI probe into allegations first made by the House Select Committee on Intelligence.

The report said Hoover's "home appliances, air conditioners, stereo equipment, tape recorders, television sets and electric wiring were serviced and repaired" by FBI engineers.

The bureau's workers "serviced his lawn mower and snowblower, maintained his yard, replaced soil twice a year, installed artificial turf and planted and moved shrubbery."

"Clocks were reset, metal polished, wallpaper retouched, firewood provided and furniture rearranged. Employees were on call night and day for this work."

In addition, the staff built a new rear deck for his house, a redwood garden fence, a flagstone court and sidewalks.

The report also questioned the agency's relationship with the United States Recording Co., which began supplying electronic intelligence equipment to the government in 1943.

The Justice Department said the FBI paid mark-ups as high as 70 percent for the company's equipment, in one case spending $147,261 for a burglar alarm system that it could have bought for $81,357 from a New York company.

The report said Hoover's top deputies were poker-playing buddies of the company's owner, Joseph X. Tait. There was no evidence of kickbacks to the FBI officials, the department added.

The report named John P. Mohr and Nicholas P. Callahan, top aides to Hoover, and one-time chief procurement officer G. Speights McMichael as Tait's poker friends. It also said Mohr and Callahan received gifts and favors from FBI employees similar to those rendered to Hoover.

Mohr retired in 1972, and Callahan resigned in 1976 at Levi's request. McMichael is still with the bureau, but has been demoted, the report said.

Callahan said Tuesday he would not comment because he had not seen the report. "All I want to say is that I put 41-plus years of service in the FBI, of which I am very proud," he said.

Brian Gettings, Mohr's attorney, said that even if the five-year statute of limitations had not lapsed, the Justice Department "wouldn't have had a case to prosecute anyway."

Gettings also suggested that the investigation and report were "a bigger waste of taxpayer money" than anything Mohr was alleged to have done.

The report also said that top bureau officials spent $75,000 from a special confidential fund between 1956 and 1973 on electronic equipment without any vouchers to explain the purchases. Another $23,339 was spent to entertain law enforcement officials from 1961 to 1975.

The report also noted that Ivan W. Conrad, who retired as assistant director of the FBI laboratory in 1973, took the agency's electronic recording equipment home for his personal use. Conrad has returned the equipment and repaid the agency $1,500 for its use.

The current FBI director, Clarence M. Kelley, who retires next month, also was mentioned in the report for having had two window valances built at his Washington apartment by FBI employees and for receiving two television sets. Kelley returned the televisions and reimbursed the agency. No disciplinary action was taken against him.

Bell said the Justice Department has taken a number of steps to prevent any recurrence of the abuses.

Criticism Of Hoover Hits Peak

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dozen years ago, a newspaper described J. Edgar Hoover as "an authentic American folk hero." It was an image that was to survive his death.

There had been criticism of the man who was director of the FBI for 48 years until he died in 1972. But the most telling blows at abuses and one-man rule have come since then.

The climax came Tuesday, when the Justice Department, of which he had been more or less an independent part for so long, issued a report accusing him of accepting special favors and services from FBI employees and taking part with colleagues in a pattern of longstanding and widespread abuses.

For himself, Hoover insisted that the FBI had to maintain a reputation as spotless as Caesar's wife.

"The time has come to be blunt," he said in a 1964 interview with The Associated Press. "Public trust in the FBI is an important part of law enforcement and national security. If that trust is chipped away, our defense against crime, espionage, and subversion is weakened."

Hoover was a Presbyterian who attended church fairly regularly. He said in a 1971 interview that he grew up in a Christian home, and that his upbringing stayed with him all his life.

He told "Decision," a publication of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association:

"The FBI plays a critical role in American society. Our investigations affect the lives, reputations and status of many citizens.

"For that reason we must have special agents of unimpeachable personal integrity and honesty. Their investigations must be scrupulously fair and impartial, reporting the facts without prejudice or error.

"They must be above the temptations of bribery and dishonesty. We carefully investigate the backgrounds of applicants for FBI employment to determine their reputation, character and ability.

"The success of the FBI stems in large part from the high moral standards required of all our personnel."

Hoover added that one of the great tragedies of the free world "is a decline of moral values — honesty, integrity and fair play."

In another interview on the occasion of his completion of 30 years as head of the FBI, Hoover said it was his chief pride that the agency had made law enforcement an honorable profession.

"By observing civil rights, by eliminating the third degree and the evil practices that once existed, we have achieved a standing in the country of which I'm proud. And it's largely due to the character of our personnel."

Carter Policies Hit By Reagan

BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan charged President Carter Tuesday with fiscal irresponsibility and called his recent trip to the Midwest a media event.

Reagan, who narrowly missed receiving the 1976 Republican presidential nomination, criticized Carter's energy plan and Social Security tax increase proposal as well as his foreign policy.

"Our allies are alarmed with his foreign policy, his energy policy is a disaster, and his social security tax increase is a blatant case of avoiding responsibility," Reagan said.

With regard to Carter's Social Security tax increase, Reagan, who was in town for a speaking engagement, said it will likely be followed up by another large hike.

"It will be terribly inflationary and will go to more than 70 percent on $42,600 in earnings. This is fiscal irresponsibility."

Reagan said of Carter's Midwest trip, "There's an old saying. When a president's in a trouble, he should travel. It was just a media event."

SWC Recruiting Priorities

THE FEBRUARY 8 Southwest Conference signing date is less than a month away, and Texas Tech's coaches, like those at other SWC institutions, are on the road contacting prospects.

Each team has very definite needs, particularly at certain positions, and proper evaluation is more important now because of the rule limiting the total number of players on scholarship to 95.

The team-by-team rundown of recruiting priorities:

TEXAS TECH: The offensive and defensive backfields will receive the major share of attention. Losses in these areas include quarterback Rodney Allison, backs Billy Taylor, Mark Julian and Jimmy Williams, strong safeties Alan Emerson and Larry Dupre, free safety Greg Frazier and cornerbacks Eric Felton and Craig Harris. All but Williams and Harris were starters, and the former was occasionally in the starting lineup.

The Red Raiders lose quality performers at other positions from the 1977 squad, but there is enough in numbers and potential to keep these spots from being chief targets for Tech in this year's recruiting derby.

TEXAS: THE LONGHORNS lose just 13 seniors of consequence from their 1977 SWC championship club, but that group includes some very key players—back Earl Campbell, split end Alfred Jackson, offensive linemen Jim Yarbrough, David Studdard, George James and Rick Ingraham, defensive tackle Brad Shearer and linebacker Morgan Copeland. With four starters graduating from the offensive line, that should be one big target area in recruiting for UT.

ARKANSAS: The Razorbacks aren't suffering losses in the offensive backfield and secondary to the extent Tech is, but these are their biggest priorities, nevertheless.

The Hogs have a number of good players returning at these positions, despite the losses of fine defenders Howard Sampson and Patrick Martin, but the will be loaded with seniors next season. UA must recruit well now with an eye toward 1979.

TEXAS A&M: Linemen and runningbacks are said to be the Aggies' biggest priorities. Fullbacks George Woodard and Eddie Hardin and halfback Adger Armstrong will be seniors in 1978, and halfbacks Curtis Dickey and David Brothers will be juniors. An influx of youngsters is needed in order to avoid a youth brigade in the near future.

In the line, A&M has a number of juniors-to-be, so it's tough to understand the strong emphasis on linemen this year.

HOUSTON: THE COUGARS should be after runningbacks this time, since they lose Alois Blackwell and Dyral Thomas from their 1977 outfit. In the secondary, Anthony Francis and Alonzo Giles have completed their eligibility, and Frederick Snell and Harold Fields are seniors-to-be, so some additions in this area would be welcome.

BAYLOR: The quarterback situation is critical for the Bears. They must land some quality prospects at this position now or face an even longer 1978 offensively than they endured in 1977. Sammy Bickham, a good prospect, is transferring to SMU after an injury-filled sophomore season. Greg Wood is just average, and Scott Smith can't throw well. Bear insiders list the defensive line as another particular area of concern in recruiting.

SMU: Linemen needed here, particularly on defense. The down linemen in SMU's odd scheme—the two tackles and the noseguard—will receive particular attention. The Ponies are pretty well set at the skill positions, having gotten a good number last year and good speed, but need a tailback type because of the loss of Arthur Whittington.

The Mustangs, who have just over 60 players on scholarship, must build some depth. Lack of it cost them dearly in 1977.

TCU: WANTED—PLAYERS that can run fast. Repeat—run FAST. Lack of speed was the Horned Frogs' biggest weak point in 1977, as it has been for the past three or four seasons. The Frogs simply got outrun too much of the time, particularly on defense.

As far as positions go, TCU will concentrate most on linemen, ones with size AND speed.

RICE: Linemen will be an important target at Rice, also. Nearly half of the Owls' group could be linemen. Rice has some decent skill personnel—and most of them are young—and is at least decent in the secondary, but the Owls' offensive and defensive lines haven't done the job in Homer Rice's two seasons at the Owl helm.

FOUL ON THE PLAY—Caprock's Scott Sandel tries to go up for a layup but Lubbock's Stan Matthes lands on the Longhorn player and a foul was called. See Story, Page 6, Sec. D. (Staff photo by Gary Davis)

The jefe of a junta down in Costa Leche may have had more control over his troops than J.J. Wood had of his arsenal Tuesday night.

But it really didn't matter, as the Matadors helped their mentor reach a milestone of sorts with a 69-53 win over Lamesa in the EHS gym.

The win, the 18th this season for the Mats, topped Wood's coaching victory mark of 17, a plateau he reached back in 1974. The victory also tied Estacado's win output for a single year.

"Yeah, we didn't play our offense the way we should," Wood said, "but I felt our defense really held it own."

During the second period, particularly, the Mats, now proud owners of a 3-0 District 3-AAA mark, looked a bit in disarray, running up and down the court with no real purpose.

But even in the havoc, Estacado managed to hit 16 points—10 of them by Alvin Harris, who split high-point honors with Willie Powell by scoring 20 points—and held a comfortable 32-25 halftime lead.

Estacado used the fast break to its credit during the first half, hitting six easy layups.

While Estacado was running wild, so were the Tors. However, Lamesa, which matched the Matadors rebound for rebound during the opening half, was not in the same league with the Lubbock team when it came to playground basketball.

Lamesa did cut the Estacado lead down to 2 points when Arnold Martinez hit a 16-foot jumper with 4:03 remaining in the third period. However, Powell countered with a 14-footer of his own and Winston Gipson canned a layup as Estacado slipped back out to a 6-point margin.

Although Estacado had the victory in its grasp as early as 6:58 left in the game—following a 6-foot shot by Dewey Turner which upped its led to 11—Wood said he was never comfortable.

"You don't take anything for granted when you play Lamesa. I'm never comfortable against them," Wood said, no doubt remembering the stunning setback Lamesa handed the Matadors last season.

With time running out, Estacado poured on the steam and stretched its lead to 16 points after Gipson hit another layup at the buzzer.

During the first five minutes of the fourth period, Estacado outscored Lamesa 14-4.

"Looking at them (Estacado) play at the end of the game I could tell they thought they had control of the game," Wood explained.

Lamesa, which hit 20 of 50 shots from the field and 13 of 23 from the free throw line, was led by Eddy Kerr's 17 points. The 6-8 center hit the majority of his points from in close.

Also hitting in double figures for Estacado were Gipson with 10 points and Mike Chatham with 14 points. Powell held the hot hand for the Matadors hitting 10 field goals.

AIAW Debate Continues Today

ATLANTA (AP) — Efforts to restructure women's collegiate athletics was delayed Tuesday because of debate over a compromise proposal before members of the Association for Intercollegiate Athletics for Women (AIAW).

The debate was to continue today, the final day of the annual convention of the 5-year-old organization. Currently the AIAW is divided into "small" and "large" college divisions.

The AIAW Division Structuring Committee, under the chairmanship of Pamela Strathairn of Stanford, proposed a plan composed of three divisions for regional and national championships with each school selecting the division in which all of its teams would compete.

The top division would permit, but not require, awarding of financial aid for athletes in each sport, the second division would permit financial support not to exceed 50 percent of maximums now permitted, and the third division would permit no aid.

Another proposal, submitted by Donna

Lopiano, University of Texas, would establish two divisions to deal with financial aid but would permit member institutions to compete in divisions by sport so that a school could give scholarships in one sport, such as basketball, and participate in the "open" division and not give them in other sports, such as field hockey, and compete in a "limited scholarship" division.

Two other proposals by Laurie Mabry, Illinois State University, and Fran Koenig, See AIAW DEBATE Page 7

Ralston Claims He's Biggest Bronco Fan

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Deep down inside, John Ralston is a little torn, not sure whether to stay away or come on out and watch the Denver Broncos Sunday in what could be their finest hour.

It's easy to understand why he'd like to be on hand when they go up against the Dallas Cowboys in Super Bowl XII.

As the individual primarily responsible for assembling and molding the team, which will be trying to win its first professional football world championship, John Ralston wouldn't be human if he didn't wish to share that experience in some way with the Broncos even though he's no longer with them.

"I'm still stewing as to whether I want to go to the game," he says, laughing over the phone from Denver where he's working for Dale Carnegie's School of Self Improvement while still keeping his hand in football.

"Dick Kitchen, the Broncos' attorney, called and offered me a couple of Super Bowl tickets, but the team is doing so well without me in the stands, maybe I'd better stay away," says Ralston, general manager and head coach at Denver from 1972 through 1976, when he he was fired after some of his players got up a petition demanding his dismissal. Ralston came to the Broncos straight from Stanford where he coached nine years and employed many of the same coaching methods he did at Stanford.

One of the things he was big on was the power of positive thinking and when the Broncos began holding each other's hands in the huddle in 1973 people started wondering how far Ralston was going to go with all this college rah-rah business. They thought it was his idea, but it wasn't. Linebacker Ray May was the one responsible.

"The defense was struggling at the time," says Ralston. "It wasn't anywhere near as successful as the 'Orange Crush' is now and Ray May came up with the idea that the members of the defensive unit could gain strength from each other by joining hands in the huddle. It wasn't a phony thing; it was spontaneous and I didn't see anything at all wrong with it."

One year later, John Ralston left even though he had just finished guiding the Broncos to a 9-5 record for their best season in history until this past one.

He didn't leave by choice. He left partially because he was pushed and partially because some of those he had put his trust in did a bit of a tunnel job on him.

"I've never quit anything in my life," says Ralston. "I came to Denver with the idea of spending 10 years on the job and building the best organization in sports, but I came up short."

If Ralston feels any resentment over the circumstances surrounding his departure from the Broncos, it certainly doesn't show. He speaks glowingly about the Bronco players and about Red Miller, who replaced him as head coach.

"Next to the Bronco owners, Gerry and Allan Phipps, I'm the biggest Denver fan there is," he claims, and it doesn't sound like something he rehearsed.

"I had a vehicle without a driver," says Ralston, talking about the quarterback situation with the Broncos when he had them.

"Craig Morton fits in beautifully now. We didn't have anyone like him, but I still consider the time I spent with Denver a wonderful experience."

In 1973, his second year, Ralston was named AFC Coach of the Year after the Broncos posted a 7-5-2 record following a 5-9 log the season before. Since leaving the Broncos, he has never attended a single one of their games although he has seen every one they've played either on television or by looking at the game films.

Ralston has had several offers to coach again at the college level but has turned down all of them because he'd like another chance to coach in the pro ranks. During the season just completed, he did considerable scouting for a number of NFL teams.

Talking about Miller the other day, a Denver player called him "one in a million" and said "I'd go out and die for that man."

One Bronco said the same thing about John Ralston a couple of years ago. Would you believe it was the same player?

SIDELINE STUNNERS — Dallas Cowboy cheerleaders are shown in action at a recent game. Although the Denver Broncos — like other teams — have their own high-kicking corps of loveliness, it's the Cowboys Cheerleaders — in their white boots, low-cut halters and tight-fitting hot pants — who have attracted the most national attention. Some women athletes find the attention "Sexist." (AP Laserphoto)

Some Fems Label 'Poke Cheerleaders 'Sexist'

Special AP Correspondent

America's most famous lady auto race driver said she thought it was "depressing."

Two other prominent U.S. athletes called it "sexist," a pair of Olympians voiced unqualified approval while Billie Jean King, the nation's top champion of women's lib, urged equal privileges for the ladies.

The subject: Shapely, sparsely clad cheerleaders at football games, particularly the renowned Dallas Cowboys chorus line that will be in full focus in Sunday's Super Bowl XII in New Orleans.

"Why not make it co-ed?" quipped Mrs. King, the six-time Wimbledon tennis queen. "I wish they'd put some good-looking men out there, too — cowboy cheerleaders as well as cowgirl cheerleaders."

Billie Jean said she thought the Dallas cheerleaders were fantastic and she didn't resent them at all.

Although the Denver Broncos have their own high-kicking corps of loveliness, as do other pro and college teams, it's the Cowboys Cheerleaders, in white boots, low-cut halters and tight-fitting hot pants, who have created the most national attention.

In the art of throwing up distractions for the game itself — live and in living color on TV — they have won the sideline kick, twirl and twist Oscar for 12 years in a row.

How are you going to keep your eye on the ball or Roger Staubach after you've seen Vanessa, Angela, Monica, Tina and Cheri Jo?

Are these sideline stunners being exploited as sex objects? Is it a demeaning exercise for American womanhood? Should Billie Jean and her militant sports feminists grab placards and picket the Superdome this weekend?

"I don't think so at all," said pretty Donna de Varona, Olympic gold medalist in swimming. "The girls all look in such terrific shape. Whatever they do to turn people on, more power to them. I am all for them."

Kathy Rigby, the United States' best-known Olympic gymnast, agreed with Donna. "They are wonderful to watch — they are very athletic and beautifully choreographed," said Kathy. "As one who has lived almost my whole life in leotards, I can't be offended at their skimpy attire. I think they're great."

Miss De Varona and Miss Rigby were among the leading women sports personalities who gathered in New York this week to help Mrs. King, founder of the Women's Sports Foundation, kick off a national membership campaign.

Their motto: "Give Women a Sporting Chance."

In such a colony of feminists, it was only natural that someone would raise the question of exploitation of feminine virtues at a macho football game.

The reaction was much more moderate than expected. "It's true they are aimed at the men, who compose the larger part of a football audience," said Katherine Switzer, the first woman to compete in the Boston Marathon. "I think the girls are very good at what they do."

Paula Sperber, a statuesque blonde who once was national women's bowling champion, quipped: "I don't find it offensive. I wish they'd just give me a nice man's body — a muscled Mr. America — to look at, too."

Kathy Rush, coach of the Immaculata College women's basketball team, termed the cheerleaders "entertainment — something long associated with sports." "They have no relevance to the game itself," she added, "it's a show business — an advertising — gimmick. It doesn't bother me."

Diana Nyad, marathon swimmer who says she burns up 26,000 calories a day, snapped: "It's a media stunt. I can't imagine a bunch of men in short skirts running around doing silly things like that."

But Janet Guthrie, the first woman to drive a car in the Indianapolis 500, had a stronger reaction.

"It is a bit depressing," she said. "I hate to see women's talents put to such needless use. The girls are quite gifted. But they are sex objects. They have nothing to do with the game."

Denver Secondary Ready For Roger

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — You could almost see the instant replay unfolding behind Louis Wright's eyes — Roger Staubach pump-faking to Drew Pearson, suckering Bobby Bryant out of position, then hitting Golden Richards at the goal line for a 32-yard touchdown.

Wright, Denver's left cornerback, smiled at the thought of Bryant, the Minnesota defensive back, being faked out of his socks, of the Vikings' secondary stars getting burned so badly.

"They're a little slower. They're a little older. They're... well, we're not gonna get burned like that," Wright said. His comment encompassed the entire Denver secondary that will be trying to shut off Richards, Pearson, Butch Johnson and any other Dallas receivers who might wander into its territory on Super Bowl Sunday.

"I figure they're going to stick mostly with the short stuff. If they try and go long on us too much, we're probably gonna end up hurting them a lot more than they hurt us," Wright said.

In the last regular-season game, quarterback Roger Staubach neatly sliced up the Denver defense, hitting 15 of 20 passes including touchdowns covering 22 yards to Preston Pearson and 7 yards to Robert Newhouse in a 14-6 Dallas victory.

That didn't impress Broncos safety Bernard Jackson.

"That game, y'know we didn't have a whole lot to gain," he said. "I mean, we'd already won the division, we already were assured of the home field in any games we played. So maybe the intensity wasn't there the way it could have been."

"But it'll be there this time." Jackson also downplayed the Cowboys' complex multiple-formation offense. "When they snap the ball," he said, "there's only so many things a body can do. They might jump around a lot in the backfield, but I don't think that's going to distract us all that much."

Richards, however, disagreed with Jackson's assessment. "If they know that we can run half a dozen different plays off one set (formation) and we've got a whole bunch of different sets, then they're got to have a lot of things running through their minds. Y'know, like, 'If they were successful with that the last time, are they gonna run it again or are they gonna run a variation?'"

"I think maybe his (Jackson's) view is just a little bit too simplified."

And what of the Bronco's offense? "Their defense seems to be their offense," said Waters. "That is, the offense sort of sits back until the defense gives them the ball in good field position with a fumble recovery or an interception. Then they go in and score."

It almost sounded as if Waters was underdressing the Denver attack. Granted, it was 10th in the American Conference, but numbers like that can be deceiving, cautioned Jack Dolbin, the wide receiver who plays opposite the more highly publicized Haven Moses.

"People tend to discount our offense," said Dolbin. "But we get the job done. Like, there was the game in San Diego. We were down two minutes to go and had to go 80 yards to win — and we did. Or the Oakland game (for the AFC title) when we knew we needed two first downs in the last few minutes to win it — and we got 'em."

"Anybody who underestimates our offense may be sorry he did."

And Dolbin certainly isn't underestimating Dallas' deep defense. "Cliff-Harris and Charlie Waters have got to be about the two toughest safeties around," he said. "They're real good intimidators and real head-knockers. And it's not just them. (Benny) Barnes and (Aaron) Kyle are no slouches. There are four real good tacklers back there."

Tulane's Stadium Forgotten

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — After serving as the site for three previous Super Bowls, Tulane Stadium sits this one out — abandoned, rusting, impossible to maintain and too expensive to tear down.

This year's National Football League championship game will be played Sunday in the spiffy, plush Superdome in the heart of town, about four miles from the Tulane campus. Tulane and the NFL New Orleans Saints use the Superdome for home games now, leaving the venerable old stadium for intramural sports, an occasional high school game and for a practice field.

The Denver Broncos romped through a picture day at Tulane Stadium Tuesday before getting down to serious preparations for Sunday's meeting with the Dallas Cowboys.

One of those posing for pictures was Denver cornerback Steve Foley, star quarterback for Tulane in 1974, the last football season at the stadium.

"I can't really say what it felt like jogging onto the field this morning," Foley said Tuesday. "It sure brings back a lot of memories."

Foley was at quarterback the night Tulane whipped arch-rival Louisiana State University 14-0 in 1973 — the only Tulane victory over LSU since 1948. The largest football crowd ever to watch a Deep South game was on hand for that one, a standing-room-only 86,598.

The last major game played in the stadium was Super Bowl IX, Jan. 12, 1975.

Now, wide waves of orange rust stain the stands. Ramps to upper levels have been barricaded and the corrugated tin has been stripped from the antiquated press box to keep it from falling onto the mangers that butt against the stadium. The artificial playing field is ripped and gouged in places, exposing the concrete underlay.

Tulane University officials say the school can't afford to keep the stadium and can't afford to tear it down.

"We were originally offered $2.5 million for the steel in the stadium," said Tulane business manager Martin Macdiarmid. "But the bottom dropped out of the used steel market right when we were signing the contract to have it torn down."

"The latest word is that it will cost us $500,000 to take it down."

The university needs the land on which the stadium stands, and continuing deterioration poses an ever-growing threat to the elegant and expensive old homes in its shadow.

There's no chance that the stadium may ever again be fully used, since repairs and updated rest room facilities would cost even more than tearing the stadium down, a school spokesman said. Further, university-area residents exacted a promise that no more rock concerts would be held in the stadium after one concert crowd turned rowdy.

Unemotional Tag Upsets Cowboy Star

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys bristle at suggestions they are an unemotional team playing for a coach of stone.

"That's a bunch of bull and I knew we'd hear that here because of all the cheerleading Denver does on the sidelines," said Cowboy linebacker D.D. Lewis. "You don't get any false chatter out of us. What you get is for real."

Denver, the Cinderella opponent for the Cowboys in Super Bowl XII, has been described as a fiery, emotional team playing for an equally saucy and demonstrative rookie head Coach Red Miller.

"We have emotion and we'll show it Sunday," snapped strong safety Charlie Waters. "I prefer playing for a coach like Tom Landry who controls his emotions under fire. He does have emotion and he does show it. And he cracks jokes, too. You just have to be a person on the inside of the Cowboy organization to understand it."

Waters said, "Our business is winning. Usually Coach Landry's game plans are a work of art. I can only remember one time when there was a flaw and that's when he was worried about the Duane Thomas situation in 1971."

"You could tell he had something else on his mind. I like to know my coach is thinking about his job."

Lewis said, "I recall Denver cheering on the sidelines like that was supposed to be their job or something when we played them in the last game of the regular season in Texas Stadium. That didn't show me much. It was sort of like the Washington Redskins."

Lewis added, "I used to think I needed a lot of cheering and a coach who patted you on the back. I saw how John Ralston (former Denver coach) and George Allen hugged their players and all that. Then I realized a professional should be too busy for all that stuff going on."

"Heck, Coach Landry will give you praise. And when you get it you really know you deserve it."

Middle linebacker Bob Breunig said, "During a game Coach Landry is very composed. But that's the way you want your coach to be. He has emotions like everyone else but he doesn't let them get the best of him."

"He's a consistent man... a man you can believe. You know he has done his homework. In the three years I've been with the Cowboys, he has amazed me. I like the kind of security you have around a man like Coach Landry."

Waters chimed in, "You don't have to waste time getting on his good side like you do in some organizations. The bottom line in professionalism."

Giant Fans Expected Morton Miracles

NEW HAVEN (AP) — Few football fans are booing today at Denver Broncos quarterback Craig Morton.

Any uncomplimentary noises may well be traced to New York Giants fans who are upset with his sudden rise to acclaim.

How could a quarterback lead New York to a 3-11 won-lost record one year, then win the American Football Conference's Player of the Year award while leading Denver to a 12-2 mark the next?

Andy Robustelli of Stamford, Giants director of operations, said of New York fans in a recent telephone interview from New York. "I think people expected too much of Craig Morton. They expected miracles of him and he didn't give them miracles."

Red Miller, Denver's first-year coach, said of Morton, "He's a leader. He's courageous. He plays hurt and he gives his teammates everything he's got. What's more, we could get him heads up for Steve Ramsey, and I thought that was a pretty good deal."

Ramsey then was cut by the Giants before the season started.

But the Giants didn't trade Morton to the Broncos in a "heads up" deal. They also got a draft choice depending on how well Morton did with Denver.

"What we would naturally have preferred," Robustelli said, "is that Ramsey would have come in as a stabilizing influence, but we didn't feel he was any more of a stabilizing force than the rookies we had."

"We spent a lot of time with him but we quickly found out that Steve couldn't do the job."

So instead of having Ramsey, the Giants went with three rookies, Joe Pisarcik, Jerry Golsteyn and Randy Dean, and finished with a 5-9 record.

But what is the difference between the Craig Morton of the 1976 season in New York and the 1977 season in Denver?

"I don't think he's changed," Robustelli said. "He's with a 9-5 club (Denver's 1976 record) that's got a surge of enthusiasm and a new head coach. And he's in a better situation to do the things he does well in one-and-one passing situations."

"He still had a tendency to hold the ball too long," he continued. "He had a lot more sacks this year than he had with us. I think he had 32 with us (actually it was 39 in 1976) and 42 with Denver, something like that."

"He is throwing the ball quicker, though. One of our problems with Craig was to get him to hold the ball and not just put it up."

Morton, who has played 14 years in the National Football League as a quarterback, may not have changed that much, but the team he is playing with is vastly different than the Giants. "The line he's got now is probably more effective," Robustelli said, "and it's probably a better overall team in Denver."

Morton was booed in Dallas where he spent 10 years, went to New York in 1974, and boos followed him to Denver. But Denver welcomed him as he led the team to the AFC title and Sunday's Super Bowl game against the Dallas Cowboys in the New Orleans Super Dome.

Robustelli was adamant about Morton being the same player he was while in New York. "He's not doing things any better with Denver. It may sound like sour grapes — he's a great guy, I've got to tell you that — but the things he does well, quick square-outs, weren't what we needed. We couldn't complement him because we weren't that far along."

But Robustelli concedes there is pain. "I don't think you ever like to see a player leaving you and then making you look bad," he said.

Broncos Remember Wyoming Youth

TORRINGTON, Wyo. (AP) — The Super Bowl-bound Denver Broncos are riding high, but they haven't forgotten a 15-year-old Torrington youth for whom they played a benefit basketball game last spring.

Dean Bullock, a star athlete paralyzed in a swimming accident, was given a warm-up jacket by Bronco John Keyworth last spring after the benefit game, which raised $4,500 to help pay the youth's medical bills.

And last week, the Broncos sent him a real prize — a football autographed by the American Football Conference champions.

"So many people have looked at it, the names are beginning to smudge off," said Dean's father, Lowell Bullock.

Dean was a championship wrestler and football and baseball player until he was paralyzed from the neck down when he broke his neck while swimming in a creek. He had won the Wyoming AAU wrestling championship for three straight years before he was injured.

Van Lier Guns Down LA

By The Associated Press
Chicago Bulls Coach Ed Badger has been trying to get a point across to Norm Van Lier. But the way Van Lier talks, maybe the coach should let the rest of the team in on it.

Van Lier, a playmaking guard who has been averaging a little more than six points a game this season, scored 21 points besides dishing off 13 assists in Chicago's 110-106 National Basketball Association victory Tuesday over Los Angeles.

"We've been trying to get Norm to shoot more," Badger said after the LA victory, "because when other teams know a guy won't shoot, then they can double team somebody else."

Van Lier, who scored eight of his points in the fourth quarter when the Bulls rallied, agreed he took more shots than usual, "but it wasn't because anyone told me to."

"It's not my fault that when I start a play as the playmaker I never wind up with the ball," said Van Lier. "I don't think the other guys consciously keep me out of the offense, but the results are the same."

In other NBA games, Portland downed New York 126-113, Washington beat Kansas City 123-115, Philadelphia defeated Houston 95-80, Milwaukee whipped Indiana 125-103 and Denver edged New Orleans 115-110 in overtime. Golden State at Cleveland was postponed because of snow.

The Lakers led 104-100 with 2:56 left, but Mickey Johnson scored four points and Van Lier hit a 30-foot jumper to help put the game away and snap a five-game Bulls losing streak.

Jamaal Wilkes had 25 points for the Lakers, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar added 16.

"We had lots of turnovers in the final three minutes," said Lakers Coach Jerry West. "I guess you'd have to say it was a lot of bad judgment." Despite the loss, West said he felt it was the Lakers' best road game of the season.

Blazers 126, Knicks 113
Portland extended its homecourt winning streak to 40 games behind the 22 points of center Tom Owens, who did all his scoring while spelling Bill Walton. The Blazers' Lloyd Neal scored six points in a third-quarter surge that saw Portland run off 14 straight points and move to an 80-56 lead.

The Knicks, trailing 104-83 at one point, rallied behind rookies Toby Knight and Ray Williams as Portland Coach Jack Ramsay sat down most of his starters, but New York was unable to close the gap to less than nine points.

Walton scored 20 points and guard Lionel Hollins had 21 for the Blazers, who won their seventh in a row. Bob McAdoo and Williams each had 21 for New York.

Bullets 123, Kings 115
Elvin Hayes scored 27 points as Washington — missing starters Phil Chenier (hamstring) and Bob Dandridge (sprained toe) — dealt Kansas City its ninth straight defeat.

Seattle Pro Teams Seek Qualified Fems

SEATTLE (AP) — It's not such a far-fetched idea that some day, a girl — that's right, a girl — could play baseball for the Seattle Mariners, says a straight-faced Dick Vertlieb. "If I can find a lady that can help win the pennant, she can play on my team, absolutely," maintains Vertlieb, the American League team's executive director and general manager.

Vertlieb isn't alone here in his belief that qualified female athletes should be allowed to compete alongside males, regardless of the level of competition.

John Thompson, general manager of football's Seattle Seahawks, and Jack Daley, general manager of the Seattle Sounders soccer team, both express willingness to give women a chance.

None of the three have anyone in mind, and none would hire a woman for the novelty of it.

Their comments were prompted by an Ohio federal judge's decision this week that high school girls must be permitted to compete with boys in all sports. Some believe the decision of U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin eventually may have nationwide ramifications.

Rubin wrote, "Where is it written that girls may not, if suitably qualified, play football?"

"It may well be that there is a student today in an Ohio high school who lacks only the proper coaching and training to become the greatest quarterback in professional football history. Of course the odds are astronomical against her, but isn't she entitled to a fair chance to try?"

Rubin said there may be numerous reasons why girls would choose not to play contact sports or be on a boys team. But he took issue with the presumption that girls are physically weaker than boys.

"Although some women are physically unfit to participate with boys in contact sports," he said, "it does not necessarily and universally follow that all women suffer similar disabilities."

Vertlieb says he's always in the market for better pitching, hitting and defense. "If we had a pitcher out there who could win games for us, I'm sure we'd invite her to play. I think it would be dynamite," Vertlieb said.

"We'll see through evolution there will be some ladies out there who can compete, be physically competitive. We're seeing it in tennis and swimming now."

Daley agreed: "If a girl is qualified and can play this caliber of soccer, there is no reason we wouldn't want her on the team."

There is nothing in the North American Soccer League rules or constitution which would prohibit Daley from signing a female player.

"But the real crux of the problem," he said, "is the girl. Does she want to compete in that environment? In my view, there never was a lack of a right, but are they qualified, can they compete at that level?"

"I'd hate to see a bunch of pretty girls get a bunch of broken teeth. How many football and basketball players do you see with broken teeth? I'd hate to see that happen to a pretty girl, but if that's what they want..."

Thompson said he doesn't expect a girl to replace quarterback Jim Zorn or linebacker Terry Beeson right away.

"We will continue to draft the best athlete available," Thompson said with a laugh. "It's obviously far in the future. Stranger things I suppose have happened."

The ramifications of such a court decision, Thompson said, will be felt first among young athletes.

"I can't imagine any male or female at age 20, who has never played football before, to make a serious run at pro football," Thompson said. "The real impact will be at the younger levels, at the Little League and school levels."

draft choices, so they were concerned with Lebo's signability. Wahle said Tuesday he is convinced the Blue Jays will be able to sign him.

"Negotiations have started somewhat," said Lebo by telephone from his home in Middletown, Pa. "And I hope to sign as soon as possible and get it out of the way."

Then he can concentrate on the burden of making the major leagues for two people.

Carl Lebo's Dream Comes True

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lebo has one chance left to make major league baseball, and it's the opportunity he's nurtured for the last 19 years.

It's his son Mike.

"The day my wife was in the hospital having Mike, I went out and bought a catcher's glove, bat and ball for him," Carl said. "I wanted him to have the career I didn't."

Carl Lebo is a computer specialist for a naval depot in Mechanicsburg, Pa., although he really wanted to be a big league ballplayer.

An injury in his first year of minor league ball cheated him of his chance of making the big time, so the next best thing will be watching Mike play for the Toronto Blue Jays.

"Mike, 19, was the first pick Tuesday in baseball's 13th winter draft for amateur talent. Father and son had been waiting for this day for a long time."

"Since Day One, the only thing I've wanted to do is play ball," said Mike, a 6-foot-4, 215-pound catcher who was considered the outstanding prospect in this lean crop of amateur athletes. "This is something I've dreamed about all my life."

"This is one of the best days of my life," said Carl, a minor league catcher in the Brooklyn Dodgers' chain in the 1950s.

"I've wanted him to play baseball since that day in the hospital," Carl said. "He's wanted to play, too. But I guess you could say I've guided him a little."

Does Carl Lebo see Mike as the chance to vicariously attain a goal he couldn't reach?

"Oh, without a doubt," Carl said.

Carl was playing in the low minors for Union City, Tenn., when his arm was injured by a foul tip. "I couldn't pick up my arm, and when a catcher can't throw, a catcher can't play," he said.

Would he have made the major leagues if not for the injury?

"There's no doubt in my mind," Carl said.

That same confidence has been inherited by Mike, who dropped out of the University of South Carolina to be eligible for this draft.

"I can safely see myself in the big leagues in two years, said Mike, who spent several days practicing with the Blue Jays last September.

"From an ability standpoint, all of us were convinced he was the best player available," said Elliott Wahle, Toronto's administrator for player personnel.

"He's a good hitter with plus power. With professional tutoring, he can be an average defensive player."

The Blue Jays, a second-year club with the worst record in baseball last season, can't afford to throw away first-round

Pat Hodgson, receiver coach for the University of Georgia since 1972, has been named as quarterback and receiver coach at Texas Tech.

Hodgson, 33, is the seventh on-the-field coach head coach Rex Dockery has named to his staff, leaving one position to be filled.

Holdovers from Steve Sloan's staff are Al Tanara (offensive line), Jess Stiles (defensive ends), Bob Patterson (defensive line) and Taylor McNeel (recruiting coordinator.) Others hired so far are Sam Robertson (defensive coordinator, linebackers), Bud Casey (offensive coordinator) and Jim Bates (secondary).

The remaining vacant position is for an offensive line aide.

Hodgson, a three-year starter and all-Southeastern Conference performer for the Bulldogs, graduated from Georgia in 1965 and played one season with the Washington Redskins and with the Minnesota Vikings.

In 1968, he became freshman coach at Georgia and followed that with one season as receiver coach at Florida State in 1971.

SKIING
LES MOISSÉS, Switzerland — Hani Wenzel of Liechtenstein posted her way to the top of the World Cup standings when she won a women's giant slalom meet. Wenzel beat her opposition by more than one second in her two runs with a time of 2 minutes, 52.77 seconds in gaining the maximum 25 points. Monika Kaserer of Austria finished second, and Fabienne Serrat came in third.
CASTELROTTO, Italy — Italy's Giulio Capitanio staged a brilliant comeback in the final kilometers to win the 30-kilometer cross-country international race. Capitanio, who was third at the halfway point, clocked a total winning time of 1 hour, 29 minutes, 18.83 seconds to finish ahead of Czech Barzov of Bulgaria, who was second in 1:30:18.74.
TENNIS
NEW YORK — World Tennis Magazine has ranked Guillermo Vilas of Argentina the No. 1 men's player in the world for 1977. The magazine said its selection was based on Vilas' record of 21 tournament victories, including the French and U.S. championships. Bjorn Borg of Sweden was ranked second, followed by Jimmy Connors.
BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Roscoe Tanner, the No. 8 seed, defeated Buster Mottram of Britain in the second day of the week-long Birmingham international indoor tennis tournament. Tanner defeated Mottram 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 with authoritative service and a mixture of lobs and strong backhands. Top-seeded Bjorn Borg of Sweden, loser to Jimmy Connors in Suggs' Grand Prix Masters finale in New York, defeated Harold Solomon 6-2, 6-4. Third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis beat Mark Cox of Britain 6-2, 6-4.

Tech Women Host NTSU

Texas Tech's women's basketball team will host North Texas State, the state's fifth-ranked quintet, at 7 p.m. tonight at the Tech Women's Gym.
Tech, 13-2 for the season and rated sixth in the state, will start D'Lynn Brown, Karla Schuette, Marilyn Payton, Rosemary Scott and Cheryl Greer.
North Texas, 6-3 for the year, is led by former South Plains College player Lisa Risinger.

Longhorns Point To Arkansas

By The Associated Press
Ron Baxter, Texas' talented sophomore basketball star, puts it this way after the Longhorns' third Southwest Conference victory without a loss.
"We had (Texas) Tech for breakfast, Houston for lunch and Arkansas would make a nice dinner."
Texas, sparked by Jim Krivacs, Baxter and Tyrone Branan, defeated Houston, 100-89, Tuesday night to give the Longhorns a 3-0 conference mark and a 11-2 season record.
The Longhorns host undefeated and third-ranked Arkansas Saturday night at Austin.
Three conference games are scheduled Thursday, Arkansas at Rice, Texas Tech at Baylor and Houston at Texas A&M.
Krivacs scored 29 points, Baxter 23 and Branan 22 as the Longhorns snapped an 11-game home winning streak by Houston.
Mike Schultz led Houston with 19 points as the Cougars fell to 0-2 in league play and 10-4 for the season.
Texas Coach Abe Lemons has a ready response when asked if he felt his team had suddenly become a factor in the young SWC race.
"We're 3-0," he replied. "If that's not a factor, what is?"
"But Arkansas has those three great people and they are going to be tough to stop."
Houston Coach Guy Lewis termed the loss by the Cougars "a real good team effort of playing totally uninspired basketball."

Fourth Period Key As LCHS, Indians Split

SEMINOLE (Special) — The fourth quarter was the difference in each game here Tuesday, as Tim Perrin's antics in the final three minutes gave Lubbock Christian a 58-56 verdict over Seminole and Sally Hitch tallied 16 of her team's 23 fourth period points as the hosts took a 51-45 decision.
LCHS, No. 1 in area Class A circles, was up by two after three quarters and Perrin's spurt, which included four free shots and two field goals, enabled the Eagles to increase their pad to seven points with under two minutes left.
Shawn Williams was the only visitor to reach double figures and he finished with 10 LCHS is now 13-5 on the year. Danny Wren had 17, Steve Thomas 11 and Glen Stephenson 10 for the Indians.
LCHS's girls, now 3-13, were up by 10 points with six minutes left, but suffered five straight turnovers on the guard end and Seminole capitalized on each. Miss Hitch had five field goals and six free shots to account for 16 of her game-high 28 points in that stanza.
With 45 seconds left, Miss Hitch's field goal gave the hosts a three-point lead and put things out of reach.
Brenda Winsor added 13 for the victors. Michelle Baxter had 19, Kelly Myers 17 and Lyn Blackmon 10 for LCHS, which lost four girls via fouls in the final five minutes.

Longhorns Zap LHS By 72-61

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Unfortunately, the Caprock Longhorns must play half of their district basketball games on their home court.

The Longhorns seem to shoot better at other places for some strange reason. For example, Tuesday night in the Lubbock High gym, the Steers shot their highest field goal percentage of the season and beat the Westerners 72-61.

Caprock, 5-14 for the season, sank 27 of 48 field shots or 56 percent. That's quite a change from Caprock's recent home games.

"That's the first time we've been over 50 percent from the field all season," said first-year coach Phil Stines. "We don't shoot well on our home floor. We shot 22 and 25 percent in our two games there last week. We lost to Hereford by 6 (61-55) and Plainview by 1 (53-52). Think what we would be if we could shoot well at our place."

While Caprock hit a one-game high from the field, Lubbock also shot the ball accurately from outside but needed an inside game to add balance to its offense. The Westerners connected on 47 percent of their shots but received a big zero in points from their post men.

"We shot the ball well enough but we didn't have any inside game and we didn't play good enough defense," said LHS coach C.E. Carmichael, whose team began district play Friday with a 3-6 record. The Westerners host the Coronado Mustangs in the 4-AAAA opener at 7:30 p.m.

Without 6-3 post Craig Mitchell, the Westerners struggled for offensive continuity. Mitchell, who was suspended for a week at the start of the season, was dismissed permanently after the Caprock tournament. Though Scotty Garcia and James Williams gunned in shots from long range, the absence of the inside attack hurt too much in the fourth quarter.

Caprock's offense went straight to the hoop for layups throughout the final quarter. Leading only 51-47 after three periods, the Longhorns controlled the tip as guard Bruce Nipp grabbed it and raced in for a layup. Lubbock stayed within 4 points (59-55) with 5:32 to play before Caprock reeled off three straight unanswered buckets to gain a 65-55 edge.

Sherman Stewart's set shot from the right side increased Caprock's lead to 61-55. Then the Westerners failed to score on their next trip downcourt though they had three shots at the bucket. Ricky Johnson missed a shot from the right corner and Pete Del Busto and Sammy Phillips each missed a follow attempt. Two more layups by Nipp and Caprock owned a comfortable advantage with three minutes to play.

Garcia, Lubbock's 5-4 guard, led all scorers with 22 points followed by Charles Stuart with 18, Nipp with 14, Williams with 14 and Sherman Stewart with 13.

Plainsmen Nab 72-55 Victory

AMARILLO (Special)—David Davidson hit 22 points, all from the field, and Tony Hamby contributed 19 points and 10 rebounds in leading Monterey to a 72-55 waltz over host Palo Duro Tuesday night.

The win evened the Plainsmen's record at 11.

MHS jumped on its hosts early, leading 23-13 after a quarter and 41-21 at the half. With the big lead, coach Joe Michalka substituted freely, letting the reserves see action before the start of District 4-AAAA play against Plainview in Lubbock next Friday night.

The Plainsmen hit 49 percent of their shots, to Palo Duro's 31 percent. Monterey won the rebounding battle 44-33.

DHS Zaps Cubs In 3-3A Play

BROWNFIELD (Special)—Dunbar's Panthers wore down their depth-shy hosts Tuesday night and posted an 83-60 win in District 3-AAA.

The win left Dunbar 3-1 in district and only a game behind Estacado. For the year, the Panthers are 18-4. Brownfield fell to 3-19 and 0-3 in district.

The two teams played on even terms through the first eight minutes, but with DHS holding only a 15-14 cushion. But in the second period, the Panthers broke away for a 39-28 halftime advantage.

The Panthers pulled completely away in the final period with 25 points.

Dunbar shot 54 percent from the field, to Brownfield's 40 percent.

Billy Ray Hardaway canned 26 points for the Panthers, and Greg Whitfield added 19 more.

For the Cubs, Kerry Cranfield hit 24 points, 14 of them coming from the free-throw line. He missed only four tries from the line.

BROOKS TO COACH?

BALTIMORE (AP) — Famed third baseman Brooks Robinson may be heading south to take a post as head baseball coach at the University of Southwestern Louisiana. In today's editions, the Baltimore Sun quoted sources as saying Robinson, who retired as an active player last August from the Baltimore Orioles, flew to Lafayette, La. a few weeks ago to meet with the college's athletic director about the proposed coaching job.

CTK Keeps Loop Marks Spotless

AMARILLO (Special) — Christ The King remained undefeated in 4-AA (TCIL) action Tuesday night by whipping Amarillo Alamo Catholic twice.

The CTK boys, now 13-6, got 17 points from Jimmy Durham and 16 each from Eddie Connors and Matthew Washburn in posting a come-from-behind 62-52 verdict.

Carrie Mosser popped in 38 points, including 12 in each of the first and third stanzas, to ignite a 59-37 CTK romp.

Down 16-10 after one period, the Trojans got seven points each from Durham and Washburn in the second period and took a 31-30 halftime margin.

Miss Mosser's performance included a 12-of-14 showing at the foul line. CTK's girls are 16-6 and both units are 2-0 in district.

Alamo fell to 1-2 (girls) and 0-3 loop marks.

Dons Upset Irish 79-70

By The Associated Press
Call it revenge for San Francisco. Center Bill Cartwright did.
After the Dons had upset fifth-ranked Notre Dame 79-70 Tuesday night, Cartwright was willing to admit that, yes, there was a motive other than victory involved.
It goes back to last March 5, when the Dons were riding a 29-game winning streak and cruising atop the college basketball rankings. That Saturday at South Bend, Ind., the Fighting Irish upset San Francisco 93-82 for the only blemish on the Dons' regular season record before Nevada-Las Vegas beat them in the first round of the NCAA Far West regional.

"This game was a little bit revenge," said Cartwright, "and a little bit to prove we're among the top teams in the country."
San Francisco had been ranked 19th in this season's poll until last week, when they dropped from the ratings.
After seeing Notre Dame's record drop to 7-3, Fighting Irish Coach Digger Helps felt that might change.

"Personnel-wise," he said, "San Francisco is as good as any team we've faced this year. If they keep their heads and play like they did tonight, they can beat anybody in the country."
They beat Notre Dame with a strong rebounding effort, pulling down 39 to 25 by the Irish.
"Notre Dame is so big and strong, we had to have a great sustained effort by everybody on the boards," explained San Francisco Coach Bob Gaillard after the Dons raised their record to 10-4.

Cartwright and James Hardy hauled in nine rebounds each, and Doug Jemison and Winford Boynes had eight each.
Jemison also scored three baskets in the 10-point second-half spurt which capped a 16-2 run and carried San Francisco to victory. Cartwright led Dons scorers with 20 points while Don Williams had 17 for the Irish.

Coronado Nabs 49-47 Victory Over Rebels

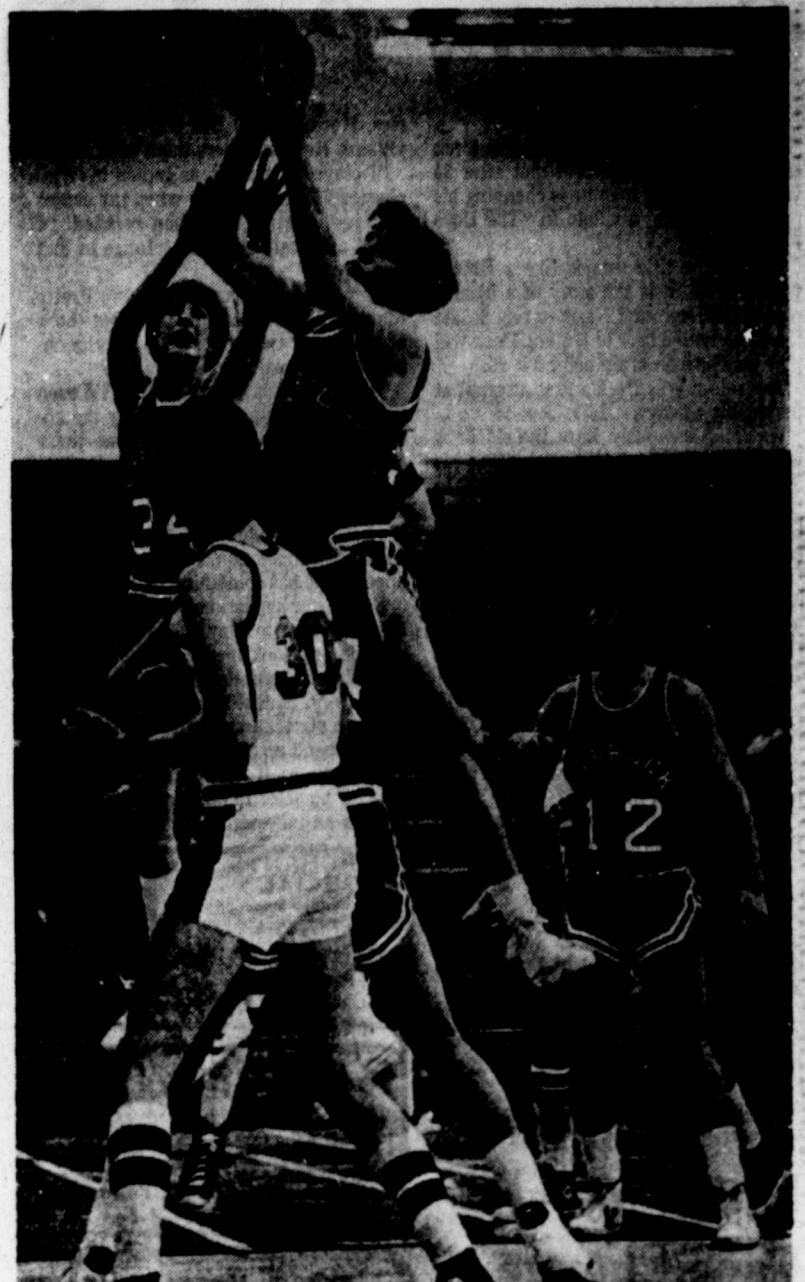

AMARILLO (Special)—Jay Norton hit the tying and go-ahead baskets in the last 1:05 Tuesday night, and Coronado grabbed its second straight win, a 49-47 verdict over Tascosa.

The lead changed hands six times in the final quarter, and Norton tied the game at 47 with a jumper at the 1:05 mark of period. Tascosa missed a shot with 42 seconds remaining, the Mustangs rebounded and stalled.

When the clock had wasted away to six seconds, Norton sank a turnaround jumper from the lane to give the visitors their winning advantage.

Norton led Coronado, 6-15, with 22 points. Mike Higgins and Steve Ahlenius had eight each. Ahlenius was the game's leading rebounder with 12 boards. Kevin Carter led Tascosa, 12-6, with 18 points, and Nolan Earle had 15. Earle led the Rebels in rebounding with nine boards.

Coronado hit 23 of 46 shots from the floor for 50 per cent, while Tascosa sank 43 per cent of their shots.

Monte Clark To Direct Lions

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Monte Clark, whose initial flight as a pro head coach was aborted by front office friction, attempts a second launching today as the fifth coach of the decade for the Detroit Lions.

The Lions called a 9:30 a.m. CST press conference in their offices to confirm officially the former National Football League linebaker as successor to Tommy Hudspeth, fired Monday along with his eight assistants.

UPI was told earlier Tuesday by a reliable source, "Clark has got the job," and it was known he huddled with owner William Clay Ford of the Lions at a motel to iron out their agreement.

Principles and power cost Clark his first NFL coaching job with San Francisco after he guided the 49ers to an 8-6 record in 1976. He was paid to sit out last season.

The principles were his own and the power belonged to Joe Thomas, who became general manager when Edward J. BeBartolo bought the club for his son, Ed Jr. Thomas is credited with building the Minnesota Vikings and Miami Dolphins as well as rebuilding the Baltimore Colts.

Clark refused to surrender control to Thomas over player trades and cuts written into his contract by the previous management when he was hired to succeed Dick Nolan. He was then fired.

Ford, however, has not seen a winning Lions' squad since another ex-linebacker, Joe Schmidt, resigned in a similar dispute over roster decisions after guiding Detroit to an 8-5-1 record in 1972.

Ford has gotten increasingly itchy for a winner and is willing to surrender some control of his team to that end. After years of finishing second to the Minnesota Vikings in the Central Division, the Lions this season slipped another notch to third behind the Chicago Bears as well.

The fans' enchantment over the weather-proof Silverdome is fading and increasingly hostile crowds have shown up to jeer the home team at the drop of a pass. At one game last season it even rained openly for the opposition (winless Tampa Bay).

ing of Central Michigan University, representing Region 5, would set up three divisions depending on the number of sports played and the number of women students at an institution and its budget.

In an effort to prevent all four proposals from being rejected, the four women got together and proposed a compromise which encompasses parts of all the restructuring plans — such as three divisions — but permits participation by sport so that a school could be Division 1 in basketball but Division 3 in all other sports.

Most of the debate was over the proposal that schools which want to participate in the top division be required to conduct a minimum number of sports in its program depending upon enrollment of undergraduate women.

For example, schools with 800 or less women students must have at least three sports in the program; 801 to 2,000 at least five; 2,001 to 5,000 at least six; and 5,001 or more at least eight.

There was a strong feeling that many of the schools want to participate in the top division but don't want to expand their programs to take in more sports because, they said, they had limited budgets.

It was pointed out that of the 126 schools with 5,000 or more women undergraduates, only 48 percent of them would be eligible for the top division membership because they sponsor eight sports in their program.

In other business, Lusia Harris Stewart of Delta State University basketball fame was awarded the first Broderick Cup, symbolizing the outstanding woman athlete of the year.

The 823 member institutions of the AIAW voted Mrs. Stewart the honor over 12 other candidates.

The AIAW assembly also rejected a proposal to declare athletes transferring from one school to another ineligible for one year, a rule now in operation in men's sports. Transfer students will be ineligible for financial aid during their first year at the new college.

The AIAW, in other actions this week at the convention, has approved free academic tutoring paid for by the athletic department and the "full-ride" scholarships, two rights and opportunities that have been available to their male counterparts.

While female athletes are currently permitted "full-ride" athletic scholarships — tuition, fees, room and board — last year's AIAW convention had voted to limit financial aid to tuition and fees only, effective next August.

The women also voted to permit colleges to pay for "talent assessment" trips to high school and junior colleges but refused to permit the coaches to talk to the prospective student-athlete during the visit.

Levelland Girls Win Over Dunbar

LEVELLAND (SPECIAL) — Levelland placed four in double figures whipping Dunbar's girls 64-32 here Tuesday night.

Gregory Peck Changes Image, Becomes Villain

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Gregory Peck served notice on the world that after 34 years as a leading man he is changing his image by playing a villain in "The Boys From Brazil."

Though the title sounds like a Broadway musical, it is the story of a bizarre plot by underground Nazis to repopulate the earth with a race of Hitlers. Peck will play the German brain behind it all.

The role marks Peck's first attempt at portraying a heavy. Watching enviously from the sidelines is Rock Hudson who is celebrating his 30th year in movies by playing the hero in "Wheels," a 10-hour NBC-TV mini-series based on Arthur Hailey's best-selling book on Detroit auto-making.

Hudson, like Peck, was born handsome. And until recently, screen heroes were performed good looking men — from Douglas Fairbanks right down to Robert Taylor and Tyrone Power.

It taxed audience credulity to see Clark Gable or Errol Flynn as bad guys. Bogart, Tracy and Cagney, who were not quite so pretty, could get away with playing an occasional menace.

But heavies generally were left to the Basil Rathbones, Edward G. Robinsons, Sidney Greenstreets and Peter Lorres.

These days the distinctions between leading men and villains are somewhat blurred. Such swarthies as Dustin Hoffman, Al Pacino and Robert De Niro can and do go either way.

Still, the conventionally attractive male — Paul Newman, Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds — plays good guys, even if the character is a brigand.

In all of his 59 movies, not to mention six years in television's "McMillan" series, Rock Hudson has played only two villains. He remembers them with relish.

"I played a murderous Indian in 'Winchester 73' back in 1950 when my career was just starting," Hudson recalled. "I killed and scalped John McIntire in that one."

"I played another heavy in 'Pretty Maids All In A Row' in 1969. But those are the only two times I've had the opportunity to really be a menace."

"I'd love to play more villains. I'd even welcome the opportunity to play the anti-hero roles that are being done these days."

"There must be a reason Peck and I haven't been offered villain parts. Maybe it's because no one thought we could play them with conviction. I imagine personal appearance has something to do with it."

"A sinister appearance gives an actor a better chance to play a heavy than one who doesn't look menacing. But sinister facial characteristics certainly aren't mandatory. Ernest Borgnine and Charlie Bronson started out as villains and eventually wound up playing good guys."

"Sometimes it's to everyone's advantage for an actor to play against his type. It adds an unexpected dimension to the story. "I've never refused a villainous role, but then I've only been asked twice in my career to play them."

"For 18 years I was under contract to Universal Studios. Naturally, a big studio wants to keep the leading man image for a contract player. They were afraid to take chances. "The sameness of playing 'McMillan' for six years drove me to the wall. Strangely enough, heroes are more difficult to play than heavies because they require greater restraint. But they aren't half as much fun."

"Playing straight leading men is boring, boring, boring. I'd dearly love to play some heavies just for the change. "Heroic parts are a little more interesting than in the old days when the good guy was a cardboard cut-out of down-the-line uprightness. Today the hero can play a scene for its value. He can swear or smack the leading lady without losing his status as a hero."

Hudson, after all these years, was finally called upon to belt a woman in a scene from "Wheels."

face with his open hand.

"Hitting an actress was a first for me," Hudson said. "We rehearsed the scene carefully. But when the cameras were rolling my hand seemed paralyzed. I couldn't force myself to hit Lee. "I ruined several takes. There were three shots of the scene — her close-up, my close-up and the master shot."

"Lee was pleading with me to slap her hard so she could give a good reaction. I couldn't manage it until her close-up, and then it wasn't very hard. But that's what we had to settle for."

"I think I can play villains convincingly and I don't think the public would have difficulty accepting me as a menace."

If movie-goers accept Greg Peck as a Nazi, there's no reason why they wouldn't go along with Rock Hudson as a killer too.

Maine Voters Face Change In Districts

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Unless the law is changed, voters in the small community of Otisfield, Maine will vote in one congressional district in June's primary election and in another district in November's general election.

Last summer, the 630 residents of Otisfield voted to change their county designation from Cumberland to Oxford County and in a Dec. 5 referendum the county of Oxford overwhelmingly granted their wish.

Cumberland County is in Maine's 1st Congressional District and Oxford County is part of the 2nd District.

Attorney General Joseph E. Brennan told legislative leaders Monday the transfer will allow Otisfield residents to vote for Cumberland County and 1st District candidates in the primary and for Oxford County and 2nd District candidates in November.

TV Show Depicts Disasters

By JOAN HANAUER
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Calamity fans now can watch the televised catastrophe of the week in a new syndicated series that capitalizes on the public appetite for disaster.
 "When Havoc Struck" is the title of the new series, hosted by Glenn Ford and scheduled to make its debut tonight at 6:30 p.m. CDT, with a hurricane show called "Camille Was No Lady."
 The shows are all documentaries on real life calamities. After the initial chapter on Hurricane Camille, the show will go on to "Great Airship Disasters," "Volcanoes," "The Dust Bowl" and "Life at the Limit," about auto racing. For 12 disaster-filled weeks it will depict flood, drought, bridge collapse, mining cave-in, fire, earthquake and calamity at sea.
 Herbert Schmetz, vice president of public affairs for Mobil Oil, says his company has strung together 50 television stations that will carry "Havoc" all on the same night and time. It will be followed with a second series, "Between the Wars" — World Wars, that is — hosted by Eric Sevareid.
 Mobil has had difficulty getting the kind of programming from the commercial networks that it wants for its corporate sponsorship — the image messages that never discuss what you put in your automobile — and for that reason has gone heavily into public broadcast underwriting and attempting to put together syndicated schedules.
 Judging by the initial episode on Hurricane Camille, the "Havoc" shows will be well worth watching. Schmetz insists they also are educational because they tell you what to do until the hurricane arrives.
 What to do about hurricanes? When they are of the magnitude of Camille, which may have been the most destructive storm ever to strike America's shores, the smart people evacuate.
 Camille destroyed 5,600 homes along the Gulf Coast of Mississippi and left 12,900 homes damaged.
 The "Havoc" show about the storm uses real footage of her awesome wind and waves, and real survivors to tell their incredible stories.

 That havoc is no respecter of persons was underscored at a news conference for the show. There was a group of victims of havoc incidents at a table, with Odalee Bohn recounting her childhood surviving the Dust Bowl in Oklahoma, when her family made jelly out of cactus and was prepared to eat rattlesnake if necessary.

Martin Spins Magic In Play

NEW YORK (AP) — Mary Martin and Anthony Quayle spin marvelous theatrical magic from familiar material in "Do You Turn Somersaults?"
 The play, which opened this week at Broadway's 46th Street Theater, is by Aleksei Arbuzov, a contemporary Russian author whose considerable output of family pieces attest that soap opera thrives too east of the Volga.
 Winsome Miss Martin, however, and her versatile co-star transform the story of a 60-ish couple who meet and get to know each other in a sanitarium, into an endearing experience for any but possibly the most stony-hearted.
 Under the deft direction of Edwin Sherin, who knows just how to use the emotive and behavior quirks of each to the utmost, the cast of two warily meet, bicker, reach out hesitantly and finally clasp a bond of mutual dependence.
 Quayle, grizzled and gruff, portrays a doctor sentimentally chained to the memory of his dead wife, and Miss Martin, who every so often reminds one of Peter Pan and Nellie Forbush, plays a spunky divorcee who has a bad case of hardening of the arteries.

 "Do You Turn Somersaults?" is unprofound and sugary, a beguiling and heart-warming diversion.

Two Sentenced To Death In Slaying Of Reporter

PHOENIX, Ariz. — On June 2, 1976, as Arizona Republic investigative reporter Don Bolles prepared to drive away from a hotel where he had been lured by a phony news tip, a signal from a model airplane radio control device exploded a bomb under his car, blasting him out the door.

Bolles died 11 days later, after amputation of both legs and one arm.

Tuesday, a judge sentenced James Robinson and Max Dunlap to death in the gas chamber for the murder.

Over protestations of innocence by both men, and with Dunlap's wife and children sobbing in the spectator section, Superior Court Judge Howard Thompson said he had found no mitigating conditions in the convictions of the two men, while aggravating circumstances were present.

"You are sentenced to death by lethal gas at the Arizona State Prison," the judge intoned.

Under Arizona law the sentences automatically will be appealed. Attorneys for the two men voiced confidence that not only the sentence, but the guilty verdicts, will be reversed on appeal and new trials granted.

They criticized the trial and the sentence as "a sham and a fraud" and "an exercise in judicial murder."

There are about 400 persons on death rows in several states but no one has been executed in the United States for 11 years, except for Gary Gilmore, shot to death by a Utah firing squad a year ago at his own insistence.

Dunlap, 48, a Phoenix contractor, and Robinson, 55, a plumber from suburban Chandler, were convicted primarily on the testimony of John Harvey Adamson, 34, who was allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder and sentenced to 20 years.

Adamson testified Dunlap hired him to kill Bolles and Robinson helped him. Adamson said he planted the bomb and Robinson sent the signal that exploded it.

Adamson testified Dunlap told him they were being hired to kill enemies of Kemper Marley, a wealthy liquor dealer. Authorities did not accuse Marley of any crime.

Adamson said the death list included state Attorney General Bruce Babbitt, Marley's former public relations man Al "King Alfonso" Lisanzet and Bolles, whose stories about Marley were believed to have caused Marley to resign from a state commission shortly after he was appointed.

Although no attempts were made to kill Babbitt and Lisanzet, the judge also sentenced Robinson and Dunlap to 29 to 30 years for conspiring to murder them.

Hot Debate Expected On Treaty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Panama Canal treaty debate may be the most bitterly contested issue facing the Senate this year, but it won't be the most important, predicts majority leader Robert Byrd.

Byrd, while uncommitted on the treaties, will play a key role in shaping the debate, and he called on Americans to learn the facts of the matter and "not to be carried away with emotional jingoism and catch phrases and catch words which have no relation to reality."

Addressing a forum of the Manufacturing Chemists Association, Byrd said "public opinion is very, very much against ratification."

"You can be sure there will be no political credit, no political mileage for any senator who votes for the treaties," he said, predicting the debate will be "long, bitter, volatile and volatile."

Although he called the ratification fight — expected to come in February and March — "one of the major issues confronting our Congress and our time," he said "it's not really, perhaps, as important as some of the other issues that face the country."

Energy, he said, is "far more important but not nearly so emotional nor does any one of the other more important issues carry with it the political liability to those senators who ultimately in their best judgment feel they have to vote for the treaties."

Other issues more important, he said, include tax cuts, welfare reform, criminal code reform and a new SALT treaty.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., a leading opponent of the canal treaties, said Tuesday he wrote President Carter to report that Panamanian Gen. Omar Torrijos appears willing to accept certain amendments to the treaties.

Dole met with Torrijos recently in Panama, and told Carter: "It was my impression from General Torrijos' response that Panama could look favorably upon certain treaty amendments, such as those relating to American defense and passage rights."

"The General advised me that he would not take a position of 'intransigence' should the Senate adopt amendments, but instead would feel it useful to 'keep talking' with the United States in that event."

King's Widow To Call For Employment

ATLANTA (AP) — In the city where Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. was born 49 years ago this Sunday, thousands are expected to gather for a Peace Prize luncheon, a candlelight pilgrimage to his crypt and a call from his widow for full employment.

"No issue today needs more attention than that of full employment," said Coretta Scott King.

"There never will be full equality of opportunity for everyone until our society considers it a moral obligation to take whatever steps are necessary to guarantee a decent job for everyone who wants a job," she said.

The theme of the celebration of King's birthday is "An Agenda for the Nation — the Quest for Human Rights in a Full Employment Economy."

Mrs. King said that as the more blatant discrimination barriers were knocked down in the 1950s and 1960s by the civil rights movement, her husband focused more attention "on the real problem which has deprived blacks of full equality — economic opportunity and security."

It was in support of a strike by sanitation workers that King went to Memphis, Tenn., where he was assassinated nearly 10 years ago.

Cochairmen for the five-day celebration beginning Thursday are U.N. Ambassador Andrew Young, a former aide to King, and J. Paul Austin, chairman of the board of Coca-Cola Inc.

Vernon Jordan, executive director of the National Urban League, will speak Thursday night at the kickoff rally at historic Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King once preached.

Lake Baikal in the Soviet Union lies near the center of Asia in a zone that records 2,000 earthquakes a year, although most of them are weak in magnitude.
