Paul VI's Body Sent To Rome

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The late Pope Paul VI went on his final journey from the papal summer palace to St. Peter's Basilica today in a simple motorcade cortège guarded and saluted by 5,000 policemen, honor guards and anti-terrorist agents.

An estimated 100,000 mourners lined the 15-mile route as well as a police helicopter followed the cortège as it moved toward Rome at 25 mph.

(Related Stories On Pope's Death On Page 5, Sec. B)

The pope's body left the Castel Gandolfo summer palace three days after he died there at the age of 80 following a heart attack Sunday night.

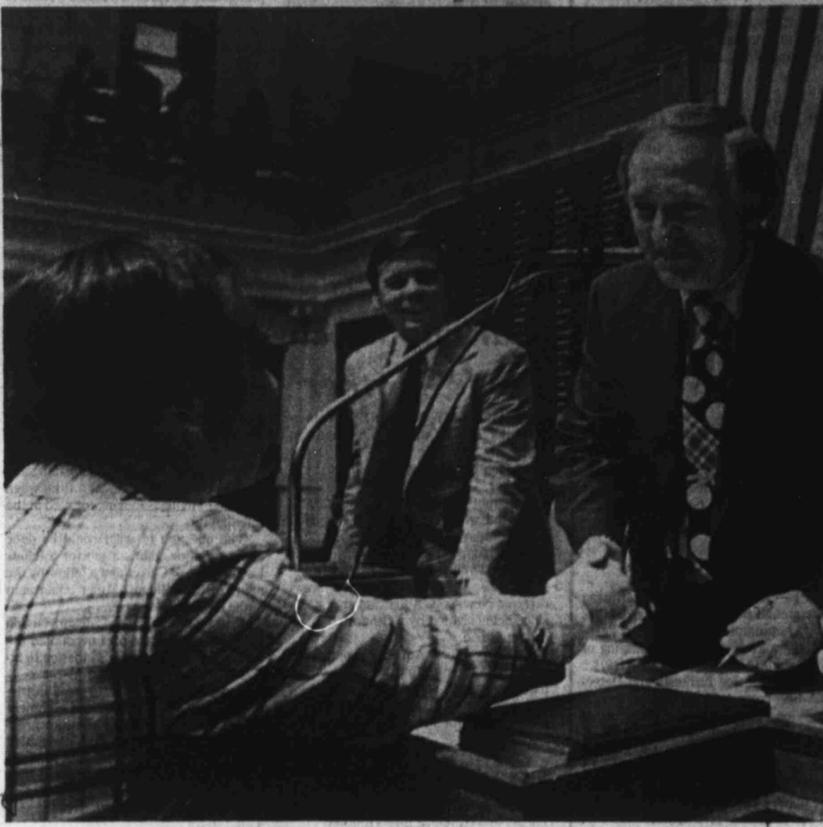

A crowd of about 5,000, many weeping and kneeling in prayer, crowded in front of the 17th century summer palace as its massive green portals opened at 6 p.m. (11 a.m. CDT) and the black and dark blue limousines and the hearse containing the pontiff's body came out.

The cortège was escorted by 23 motorcycle outriders and 14 police cars of security agents.

Seventy-five more police motorcycle outriders picked up the motorcade as it slowly descended from the hilltop summer palace and moved along the ancient Via Appia toward the 3rd century Aurelian Wall that surrounds Rome.

The trip was a brief and short one for a pope who travelled more than 80,000 miles to six continents during his 15-year pontificate.

Firefighters Leave Jobs In Wichita

A-J News Services
More than 300 firefighters walked off the job in Wichita, Kan., today and marched around city hall to protest the city's latest salary offer, but garbage collectors returned to work in Cleveland and a few hours later the Cleveland city mechanics settled their wildcat strike.

In Tennessee, municipal officials moved to head off labor problems with new contract offers to police in Memphis and firefighters in Chattanooga.

In Wichita, Fire Chief Floyd Hobbs said the city of 300,000 persons was left "inadequately protected" by the firefighters' walkout, which followed a breakdown in contract talks.

The action by the firefighters came on only hours after 28 police officers were suspended after calling in sick in a contract dispute.

About 300 of the city's 416 fire lieutenants and firefighters met at dawn outside Lawrence Stadium, split up and marched on city hall to start picketing it and several fire stations.

Hobbs said only 10 of Wichita's 16 fire stations were staffed by supervisory or other personnel exempt from union jurisdiction.

He said an emergency plan that would provide aid from the county and McConnell Air Force Base was in effect, but termed it inadequate.

One fire lieutenant with 11 years experience said the walkout — apparently illegal because state law prohibits public employee strikes — was partially in response to the city commission's stand Tuesday that their latest contract offer of wage increases of 6 percent and $40 a month was the maximum. Firemen had rejected that offer and were seeking 9 percent plus $40 a month.

"It had been building through the negotiations," said the fire lieutenant, who preferred to remain unidentified. "The city found some more money for other employees. If they can find $500,000 for us, which is half that."

The lieutenant, who said "97 percent" of all firefighters walked out even though the action was not sanctioned by the International Association of Firefighters, promised firemen would "respond to anything that critically involves life."

"Our grievance is not with the citizens, it's with the city administrators and the city commission," he said. "I think they (the citizens) are behind us."

Police Chief Richard LaMunyon suspended 28 officers who called in sick for the 11 p.m. shift Tuesday and said they would have to have a doctor's statement to be reinstated.

LaMunyon said nine of about 80 policemen scheduled to work today reported they were sick for the first shift that began at 7 a.m. and all were suspended, although the police chief added that he had reason to believe two of them were legitimately ill.

Cleveland garbage collection workers refused to cross picket lines set up Tuesday by the striking mechanics at garages where trucks are stored.

Approximately 50 of Cleveland's 450 garbage collectors worked Tuesday but all were back on the job today after their union leaders gave permission for them to cross the mechanics' picket lines.

In Memphis, police union leaders said they will present a new contract offer to their 1,100 members without making a recommendation on whether to accept it.

Israel, Egypt Maintaining Peace Stand

By BARRY SCHWEID

Associated Press Writer

President Carter is putting his personal prestige on the line by sponsoring a new Israeli-Egyptian summit meeting, but Egypt and Israel are both going to the peace table with their old demands that only the other must make the first concessions.

Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who flew to Israel and Egypt this week to deliver Carter's invitations to the Sept. 5 summit, told a news conference in Alexandria Tuesday the United States will be a "full partner" in the peace effort.

"We will feel free to make our suggestions" at the meeting at Camp David, in the Calocin Mountains 65 miles northwest of Washington. He said those suggestions would be in the "framework" of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242.

Since its passage in November 1967, the Arabs have viewed resolution 242 — calling for Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory captured in the June 1967 Mideast war — as a mandate for a total Israeli pull out. Israel sees the deliberately vague declaration as permitting it to retain Arab territory if it feels necessary for its security.

Asked whether the United States would present an American peace plan, Vance avoided a direct reply. He said it was up to Israel and Egypt to find agreement, but the United States will be at their sides "when it sees obstacles in the road."

Israel is strongly opposed to any American peace plan, considering it would be an attempt to dictate terms.

"If you impose a peace it is no peace at all," Prime Minister Menachem Begin told a news conference after the summit announcement. "As far as I know, there is no intention of the United States government to do what is called imposition of any conditions."

Both Begin and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat welcomed Carter's call to resume direct negotiations.

Sadat, appearing before reporters with Vance in Alexandria, said the summit "opens a new page" in the peace drive he began by flying to Jerusalem last November.

"Let us not look back," he said when asked why he agreed to meet Begin after refusing last week to renew direct negotiations until Israel committed itself to complete withdrawal from all territory occupied in the 1967 war.

Tax Cuts Rest With Voters

AUSTIN (AP) — Lame duck Gov. Dolph Briscoe's special legislative session on tax relief adjourned Tuesday night after voting almost $1 billion worth of tax cuts.

Briscoe pronounced its output "meaningful" — the code word that told lawmakers they could go home without worrying about a repeat session.

"I called the Legislature into special session to provide meaningful relief to the people of the state. The members of the Legislature have labored dutifully, and I congratulate them on their product," Briscoe said.

Results of the nasty-tempered 30-day session weren't the dramatic, immediate tax cuts Californians got from Proposition 13, which inspired Briscoe to call the session.

But they earmark the state treasury surplus of almost $1 billion for return to the taxpayers over the next three years, while leaving $2 billion in growth revenue for new state spending.

The session climaxed Tuesday with submission of a constitutional amendments package that backers said would cut property taxes for homeowners, farmers and ranchers.

Some also said it held promise for future property tax "reform" and slower growth in state government spending.

House members approved the package (HJR1), 107-33, hours after senators adopted it, 28-2. Some representatives who spoke angrily against the measure rushed to vote for it when Speaker Bill Clayton's vote clearly put it over the top.

The voters will make the final decision at the Nov. 7 general election on whether to put the amendments into the constitution.

Key provisions would:

— Exempt $5,000 of a homestead's market value from school property taxes. A future Legislature could provide another $10,000 exemption to a homeowner who is disabled or 65 and older. If an older person qualified for the extra exemption, his or her property taxes also would be frozen for life.

— Tax all farm and ranch land on its in-

Flood Crest Rolls Down State River

A-J News Services

The swollen Brazos River flood crest, biggest in 21 years, spilled over Possum Kingdom Dam and began moving through Palo Pinto County today, triggering some minor flooding.

Sheriff Ray Patterson said his men began preventive measures Sunday. "We told people in low-lying areas they'd better be prepared for it," Patterson said.

The crest was formed to the north, where floods left five dead after remnants of tropical storm Amelia dumped heavy rain on the area around Albany.

"We've had some buildings flooded and we've moved some trailer homes, but I believe it's holding at about the same level," Patterson said. "The people up there (at Possum Kingdom Dam) have done a real good job of filtering out this water. They've kept it at a decent level and it hasn't really spread out."

River forecasters at the National Weather Service said the crest would reach the gauge in Palo Pinto County sometime today.

An official with the Brazos River Authority said he expected that the water would be contained as it moved downstream. "We really think that we'll end up with full lakes at Possum Kingdom, and Granbury," he said. "Some of the low-lying areas around there could get wet, though."

Additional water storage was available farther downstream at Lake Whitney, and authorities kept their fingers crossed, hoping that Whitney would be able to contain the water without any overflow.

The crest was expected to reach Granbury by Friday.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe said today he will

Housing Code Heads Agenda

By ROBERT M. COCKRUM
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A revised housing code which could force landlords to bring their rental units up to minimum standards will be considered during Thursday's meeting of the Lubbock City Council.

The public hearing is set for 5 p.m., toward the end of a day that also will include an evaluation of Community Development programs and consideration of a $160,000 grant for more traffic law enforcement.

"The initial problem has to do with retaliation by landlords," Leon Bean, assistant city attorney, said of the code provisions aimed at occupied substandard housing. Inspectors already deal with cases of unoccupied dwellings, often declaring them below standard and ordering them demolished.

"This ordinance would prevent an eviction just because the tenant complained to us," said Bean. "As long as the tenant continues to pay his rent, the landlord cannot throw him out."

The proposal calls for the rent money to be placed in escrow with the city over a six-month period. The landlord could draw funds from the account to meet fixed expenses, such as mortgage payments and insurance premiums on the property, as well as repair costs.

At the end of the period, if the violations have been corrected, any unused amount in escrow would be returned to the landlord. If the housing is still substandard, the money would be divided between owner and tenant based on what inspectors determine fair market rental price.

Bean said a tenant could expect his rent to go up at the end of six months, depending on the improvements made or how angry the landlord is at having been reported, "but at least the tenant had, in effect, a six-month lease that provided a roof over his head."

Monthly inspections also serve as protection for the landlord, providing assessments of normal wear and tear or tenant vandalism.

Inspectors already have been hired by the zoning and environmental control de-

Austin's Memorial Stadium Goes 'Batty'

By SUSAN STOLER

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Longhorn football remains some weeks away but athletic officials already are worried about dirty freeloaders in Section 6 of Memorial Stadium.

Thousands of bats crawl into stadium cracks during the summer to raise their young in huge nursing colonies before migrating to Mexico for the winter.

"This past year was the worst," said Al Lundstedt of the athletic business office. "We had a heavy rain before the first home game and all their droppings washed into the stands" the day before the game.

It took a $2,000 scrubbing to clean up the "smelly situation," he said.

The unwanted stadium inhabitants which descend on Texas from May to the fall are Mexican freetail bats. The mossy-brown creatures have 3-inch long bodies and an average 10-inch wingspan.

Their summer range is from California across to Florida and into parts of Nevada, Colorado, Oklahoma and Kansas. Sometimes millions of the tiny gargoyle-faced mammals crowd into southwestern caves, such as the Carlsbad Caverns.

"Austin is chock-full of them," said researcher David Marsh of the University of Texas. "It's amazing with as many bats as there are in Austin, that few people have ever seen them."

Idle by day, the bats leave their roosts at nightfall for evening insect hunts. Bats frequently can be seen at dusk on the UT campus and at the state capitol.

"We see three or four a year when they get in the upper dome," said Vaughn Bigham of capitol police. "Everytime, we get one to 50 people coming in and telling us about it."

Downtown Austin warehouses rank high on bats' lists of hangouts, Marsh said. Strothers along the city's main street, Congress Avenue, even find bats clinging to storefronts.

Some Austin parks have unusually heavy bat infestation this year. In one neighborhood across from a park, parents joke that when most children are learning to say "cat" and "dog," their kids are learning "bat."

One errant bat almost broke up a recent spring concert in San Antonio when it swooped lower and lower over the orchestra. Ravel's "Bolero" ended, however, before the bat reached the stage.

Although many bats carry rabies, the animal's good points outweigh their bad ones, said Marsh.

"If we cut out bats in Texas, we'd be plagued by insects," he said. "They do no biological harm, although their guano is nasty."

Lundstedt might disagree that their harm is minor.

"We were controlling their numbers until the Environmental Protection Agency removed more and more chemicals," Lundstedt said.

Robertson Says Producers In Debt

GREENFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Actor Cliff Robertson says he won't do any more work as director of a film about erotic fantasies involving children until Xanadu Productions pays its debts. Kanadu officials say they are negotiating in Canada for new financing to complete the film, "Morning, Winter and Night," featuring Brooke Shields, the controversial child actress who portrayed a prostitute in the movie "Pretty Baby."

"It's a case of well-meaning but inexperienced producers who ran into budget problems but wouldn't be straightforward about it," Robertson said in an interview with the Greenfield Recorder from his summer home in East Hampton, N.Y. "But I don't intend to go back to work until every individual, not only actors, but everyone there in Greenfield, is paid."

U.S. Cardinal Ailing

BOSTON (AP) — Cardinal John J. Wright, the highest ranking American in the Vatican, must undergo further surgery in Boston and cannot go to Rome for the opening of the conclave to elect a new Roman Catholic pope.

WRIGHT

Wright is still recuperating from neurological surgery performed Aug. 1, according to a statement from Tufts New England Medical Center on Tuesday. The surgery was performed to repair a neuro-muscular disorder in his legs which forced his confinement to a wheelchair.

Hospital spokesmen said the 69-year-old cardinal must also undergo cataract surgery later this month.

There was no immediate indication when Wright would be able to leave the hospital for Rome, where he has been prefect of the Congregation of the Clergy, which is responsible for the spiritual and physical welfare of parish priests around the world.

Officials said it might not be possible for him to attend any of the conclave sessions. The conclave of 115 cardinals is to meet the week of Aug. 20 to elect a successor to Pope Paul VI who died after a heart attack Sunday. Wright, who was named a cardinal in 1969 by Pope Paul, is one of nine American cardinals who would be eligible to take part in the session.

Wallace Undergoes Tests

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George Wallace is entering University Hospital in Birmingham for what his office describes as routine tests in connection with his paralysis.

Press Secretary Billy Joe Camp said the 58-year-old Wallace has been undergoing such tests since 1973 when an assassination attempt in Laurel, Md., left him paralyzed in both legs.

Camp said the tests, which will take several days to administer, are not related to a urinary tract infection that caused Wallace to be hospitalized for several days last month.

Mrs. Wallace Hopes Name Helps

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The former first lady of Alabama agrees a rose by any other name would smell as sweet — and it might gain more votes, too.

She has asked the secretary of state to change the way her name will be listed on the Sept. 5 primary ballot from "Cornelia Wallace" to "Mrs. George C. Wallace."

One of 13 Democratic candidates in the governor's race, Mrs. Wallace was divorced in January from Gov. George Wallace, who is not running for office.

"Governor Wallace advised me to change the name on the ballot," Mrs. Wallace said in a statement released Tuesday. "We agreed it would increase my vote."

MRS. WALLACE

"This may be the last time George Wallace's name appears on the ballot in Alabama, and it is a fitting tribute to the man I was married to for seven years," she said.

Officials in the secretary of state's office, however, say it probably is too late to change the name because of printing deadlines for ballots.

From Out Of The Ashes

LEBANON, Tenn. (AP) — A bumper crop of marijuana plants plucked from the ground near four local car washes has prompted police to start keeping a keen eye on the dumping of cigarette butts from car ash trays.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

Officer Joe Eatherly and Detective Terry Ashe acted on a tip and found about 30 plants — one 9 feet tall. The illegal weed was growing in soil littered with cigarette butts.

"We believe they were growing where people had dumped ashtrays from the cars," Ashe said Tuesday. "I don't think they were planted."

No arrests have been made and authorities attributed the plants' healthy growth to a regular supply of seeds from the ashtrays.

"We'll continue to watch the car washes and try to keep the marijuana pulled up because now that the news is out people will be after it," Detective Gene Murray said.

Starving Whale Finds 'Mother'

SEA ISLE CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A starving baby Beluga whale who had been frantically searching the Atlantic Ocean for its mother to stay alive thinks it has found her.

The "mother" the 8-foot-long, 400-to-500-pound white-colored whale snuggled up to Tuesday night was a motorboat.

Like a puppy trailing after anything it thinks resembles its mother, the whale stayed close to the Oceanic Society vessel carrying New York Aquarium specialists since being sighted by a fisherman Tuesday afternoon.

The New York Aquarium personnel planned an attempt to capture the whale today, fearing it would die if left on its own because a calf whale usually feeds off its mother for a year after birth.

Officials think the mother died or became too ill to care for it.

The Beluga whale has been swimming aimlessly for several days, weak from hunger and searching for its mother.

It swam into Townsends Inlet Sunday and set off a flurry of activity among local fishermen.

The Oceanic Society said a rescue attempt failed Monday because approximately 65 powerboats crowded into the inlet to watch the action. The roaring motorboats confused the whale and it swam out to sea.

Labor Leader Meany Warns Of Depression

CHICAGO (AP) — AFL-CIO President George Meany warned the nation will plunge into a depression unless President Carter controls inflation soon, but he also repeated the refusal of organized labor to hold down wage demands until price increases slow.

At a news conference Tuesday, the 83-year-old labor leader also predicted that postal workers will reject a proposed contract because it does not provide enough wage protection from inflation.

"I think that if inflation keeps bouncing along, we are going into a depression in a short time," Meany said.

"I can see that the inflation rate (running above 10 percent a year) is going to continue to go up. It is not going to decelerate," Meany said at the end of a two-day AFL-CIO executive council meeting.

Meany blamed rising interest rates and prices — not wages — for the high inflation rate and said workers seek only to catch up with price increases. That is why labor cannot cooperate with administration calls for wage moderation.

Asked how organized labor can help Carter combat inflation, Meany said:

"I think we will do anything within reason, anything that the administration feels will be helpful. But we are not going to hold down our wages at a time when the cost of living is moving forward at the rate that it is..."

"The question of what could be done about inflation, that's a job for a fellow by the name of Carter and a fellow by the name of G. William Miller (chairman) of the Federal Reserve."

Meany also expressed dissatisfaction with the postal wage pact negotiated under pressure from Carter's inflation fighters.

"I don't think it was a good settlement," said Meany in a rare comment about a member union's contract negotiations. He predicted the agreement would be rejected by the nation's 500,000 postal workers, who are voting this month. Some local postal union leaders have said a contract rejection could spark a mail strike.

Local postal union leaders have complained that the wage boost of 19.5 percent over three years is inadequate, particularly when compared to recent coal and railroad industry settlements providing for 30 percent wage increases over three years.

Meany gave no reason for breaking his long-standing rule of withholding comment on union settlements before they are ratified.

But the AFL-CIO's chief spokesman, Al Zack, said Meany was concerned "that 19.5 percent over three years is not enough for these people to keep up with inflation."

Meany's comments were viewed by several leaders on the AFL-CIO council as a setback for efforts by the administration to gain labor's cooperation in battling inflation through wage restraint.

"I think he (Meany) was sending a message to the White House," said one council member, declining to be identified.

Bar Association Rejects ERA Deadline Extension Proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Bar Association, having rejected a proposed ERA vote extension and a pro-ERA boycott, focuses next on a series of topics just as controversial.

The ABA's policy-making House of Delegates, which speaks for some 200,000 lawyers, today was considering cameras in the courtroom, homosexual rights, abortion funding for women on welfare, lawyer advertising on television and the right to die.

Meeting at the association's national convention Tuesday, the House of Delegates voted against exerting lobbying efforts in favor of a time extension for passage of the Equal Rights Amendment.

Incoming ABA president S. Shepherd Tate of Memphis, Tenn., said he hoped the 153-135 rejection would not be used by anti-ERA forces but conceded that it probably would be.

Stressing that the association "is on record as supporting the ERA," Tate said Tuesday's vote reflected concern over the legality and appropriateness of extending the ERA deadline.

The seven-year time limit for ratification of the proposed constitutional amendment by the required 38 states expires next March. The ERA has been ratified by 35 state legislatures thus far. ai

Inflation Blamed For Blacks' Plight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Inflation has prevented blacks from making the same economic progress as whites, the president of the Bank of America has told the 68th annual Conference of the National Urban League.

"In the recent environment of slow, labored growth and high inflation, black family income has not grown in relative terms," A.W. Clausen told the 2,000 delegates at the conference Tuesday.

United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser told the delegates that the blame for inflation should be placed "on the doorstep of Congress."

though three of those have voted to rescind their approval. The Justice Department says Congress will have to decide on the legality of the rescissions.

A bill that would extend the deadline for more than three years is pending in Congress, the object of intense lobbying.

The House of Delegates refused to consider a National Association of Women Lawyers attempt to have the ABA join other groups in boycotting all meetings in states that have not yet passed the ERA, which would make sexual discrimination unconstitutional.

As the week-long convention which has attracted some 11,000 lawyers to New York worked toward conclusion today, these questions remained to be voted on by the 325-member House:

—Whether the ABA should relax its ban against the use of cameras and broadcast equipment in court during criminal proceedings.

Some states already are experimenting with such news coverage, and ABA endorsement of a limited use of cameras and broadcast equipment probably would lead to more states doing so.

—Whether the ABA should urge all state and local governments to ensure that homosexuals are not discriminated against in public employment.

—Whether the association endorses federal and state funding of abortions for women on welfare.

—Whether lawyers should be allowed, by altering the ABA's code of ethics, to advertise their services on television. After the Supreme Court last year struck down the association's longtime ban on lawyer advertising, the code was revamped to allow advertising in newspapers and magazines and on radio.

—Whether the association should oppose all state "right to die" or "living will" laws because "such legislation does not provide the means for a dignified and humane death."

Woman Manages 'World's Most Beautiful Models'

By RICHARD H. GROWALD
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A blonde hourglass, a young Mae West on a platform of high heels and in a tiny blouse and shorts to accept the 90-degree sunshine and advertise the curves, clogs onto Hollywood Boulevard.

The sidewalk pavement is embedded with tiled stars in which Hollywood enshrines the names of its darlings. Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Guy Lombardo, Judy Garland and Gracie Allen, of course.

And Cliff Arquette, Ruby Keeler, Eugene Pallette, Mack Sennett, and Ed "Archie" Gardner, too.

The hourglass, two fingers of her right hand holding out her purse like a handkerchief to be dropped, clogs over this horizontal Mount Rushmore. A blonde teen-ager, his hands in his Levis, prowls the curb and shows off the white letters on his black t-shirt.

Says the lettering: "I have abandoned the search for Truth and am looking for a good fantasy." He stares at passersby. None appear to offer fantasy. Or even their eyes.

Nine floors up, on wall-to-wall carpeting and in air conditioning, fantasy and eyes meet. "I have the most beautiful girls in America, in the world," says Nina Blanchard.

She owns and runs what advertisers, photographers and models generally call the most successful model agency west of New York. Magazine covers on one wall offer testimony.

Blanchard girls — high cheekbones, long necks, no bulgy upper eyebrows — smile out coolly, would-be Greta Garbos, from the photographic covers of Vogue, Harper's Bazaar, Cosmopolitan, Mademoiselle, Glamour, Teen and even Time, which did a cover story on Cheryl Tiegs who has found truth, fantasy and some wealth as star of the Blanchard models.

The agency has 100 girls. And 70 men, 40 of them movie stuntmen but others including upper bracket models such as Matt Collins and John McMurray. The success of Nina Blanchard could be comfortable.

She drives a Mercedes. She has a Hollywood home real estate agents bid for. At Musso & Frank, the Hollywood Boulevard grill where F. Scott Fitzgerald, Nathaniel West and other writers fed themselves to script screen fantasy, the waiters ask Nina Blanchard for no reservation call and the owner offers a bottle of wine free of charge.

But, behind her desk, she rubs the two rings — one is a tiger's head and the other is jeweled with two tiger eyes — on her right hand and says, "It's so terrible I'm becoming bezzared."

Her 13 staffers do not ring for the funny farm. In Hollywood, and elsewhere, where beauty is in one eye of the beholder and a cash estimate is in the other, inhabitants enjoy likening their world to insanity. A $100,000-a-year model talks of "this all being a loonie bin." All say all are nuts. Visitors are expected to smile and not argue.

Miss Blanchard's reference of the moment's particular infamy is aimed at young women and men seeking jobs as models. Her office receives 200 asking letters a week, some 150 telephone calls a day and, the faintest heavy scenes, the hourly drop-in would-be model.

"One girl — ears like Bambi — refused to leave. The security men escorted her out. She came back. Out she went again. She returned, staged a sit-down strike, vowing not to move unless I signed her. The security men came a third time and drove her out."

There was the male who pulled knife. Three male models subdued him.

"Turning them down is hard. I try to be honest. But some are so vulnerable I lie," she said.

She petted the tiger rings. "If they're attractive but won't do, I tell them maybe their eyes are too close together, the skin isn't right. One girl got very loud and demanded I be specific. Her mother was behind her and cheering her daughter on.

"So I was honest. I said, listen, honey, your nose is too big, your teeth are terrible, your eyes almost meet, one side of your jaw is larger than the other, your face is lopsided. The girl just barked that that was what I thought and mother and daughter marched out."

"In six months I see maybe three who have it. Three out of thousands."

What every Most Beautiful Girl In The World must have, according to Miss Blanchard are:

—Height between 5-foot-7 and 5-foot-9 1/2. In stocking feet.

—Measurements: bust 33 to 35 inches, waist 23 to 25 inches, hips 33 to 35 inches.

—A long neck. "Any Greta Garbo could play Anna Christie, but not every Anna Christie could be a Greta Garbo."

—A high school diploma. "The girl's got to do something at 27, when modeling is over. Few model for more than 10 years. Male models last longer. They're not so beautiful."

Miss Blanchard sat a desk opposite Dana Kimmel, a former Little Miss World out of Center, Texas, now a UCLA drama student with two past parts in the "Charlie's Angels" and "San Pedro Beach Bums" television serials and a role in an NBC film being made. The agency rejected Miss Kimmel, 19, in December. Too short. Her "classical face" brought her back.

Miss Blanchard: (leafing through Miss Kimmel's album of photographs) "These shots are perfectly awful."

Miss Kimmel: "I'll get new ones."

Miss Blanchard: "These high school graduation pictures?"

Miss Kimmel: "And my hair?"

Miss Blanchard: "Too long."

Miss Kimmel uses two fingers as make-believe scissors to show where the blonde hairs will be cut south of the shoulder.

Miss Blanchard: "You're a midget. Five-foot-four. I'm a 5-foot-4 midget, too. We'll sign you."

Miss Kimmel says she once wanted to be a doctor. But now wants film stardom. Her parents live in Fresno; Daddy quit Center, Texas. She drives an orange Vega: "I look like Miss Halloween in the car."

Miss Blanchard is pleased to hear Miss Kimmel has a steady boy friend. Miss Blanchard worries about men and models.

"Some of the older men who date me are just trying to get at the girls through me. Ugly, ugly." She touches her red hair.

She looks to the wall next to her office door and nods toward a framed male argyle stocking.

"Men," she says.

"I was in college and met him. I coached him. I drove for him. I knitted pair after pair of argyle socks for him. He'd take my argyle socks and then go chasing after a tootsie."

"I was not a tootsie when I left high school. I had odd blonde eyelashes and crazy freckles and red hair. I don't think I'd hire a me. Anyway, the boy who adored argyle socks and tootsies decided against me. I took the last pair of argyles and gave him one sock. I kept the other."

"He married a tootsie and became a psychiatrist. And 15 years later he mailed me this argyle. Framed. What does it mean? Ask a psychiatrist."

Born in Greenwich, Conn., Nina Blanchard was bought to California at age one. There was Hollywood High School and the 15-year-old girlfriend whose date turned out to be gangster Mickey Cohen.

"And the Girl Scouts: I was at Camp Osito near Big Bear, singing 'If there were witchcraft...' and the Pioneers didn't want me so they sent me over to the Chiehopan troop and they thought I was a malcontent and they were right and they fired me from the Girl Scouts and I was sent home."

Giving an oral recital of one's life is a Hollywood art form. Miss Blanchard knows the right gestures. The chin goes down. The eyes up.

"She loves her models," one model said. "She always wanted to be one herself."

Maybe. But she studied dramatics at a Los Angeles junior college and journalism at Columbia University, was fired by a Los Angeles weekly newspaper for allowing helpful colleagues on other papers to write one of her stories, was fired by an oil company for being a clerk who advised on policy, and she married a television director — back in the black and white and Philco Playhouse days — and found wealth and happiness for a decade as a makeup specialist.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Ragged Around Edges...

IF THE FIGURES are accurate—and we have no reason to doubt them—City Planning Director Jim Bertram has just delivered an important lecture on the evils of uncontrolled residential subdivisions on a city's fringes.

It'll cost a bundle to annex the Yellowhouse Canyon addition to Lubbock, Bertram said, and at least $112,000 annually after that to provide the area with City services. Yet, it'll yield only about $38,000 a year in tax revenues, he said.

Some residents of the addition have asked to be annexed to the city, however, because of recent water shortages. And the Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended the annexation both because of human considerations and a belief that problems will get worse the longer the City waits.

THE ADDITION, on Lubbock's southeast fringe, was started 15 or 20 years ago and ironically was given impetus by an urban renewal project to clear out slums and substandard housing conditions in East Lubbock.

Now, Bertram says, it will cost the City $70,000 to extend water mains to the neighborhood and serve the residents. Disposition of the private water system is a question mark.

Paving in addition is substandard, he adds, as are many of the 74 houses. It'll take $5,000 just to rid the area of junked cars, vacant burned-out structures, commercial uses interspersed among the residences, piles of rubbish and weed-choked lots, the City planning director also says.

THIS IS NOT the only fringe-area addition, nor even the one with the biggest problems, surrounding Lubbock.

Thousands of residents, in fact, have moved into houses "in the country," many of them to avoid city taxes, and some of them live in quite expensive homes. Texas is two decades overdue, however, in granting cities extra-territorial jurisdiction to make sure that land development, construction, street paving and utilities in rural subdivisions are "up to standard."

Until this control is granted, cities such as Lubbock and its taxpayers, as well as the people who build in the country, will be powerless to prevent the evolution of environmental problems which sooner or later will be expensive conditions to remedy.

City and County officials need to press for corrective legislation when the Legislature convenes in January.

Fundamental, My Dear Watson

WASHINGTON—Man's struggle for religious freedom, a struggle that must have begun before Zeus took up residence on Olympus, continued last week in Raleigh, N.C.

There the power of the state was pitted against the rights of the individual. Ultimately the U.S. Supreme Court may have to settle the issue.

The case that was tried in a Raleigh Superior Court involves the authority of the State Department of Education over 63 non-public Christian schools.

In some respects, the litigation tracks earlier cases in Wisconsin and Ohio, but the North Carolina lawsuit contains some slightly different elements.

This is the situation: Twenty-odd years ago, in a desperate effort to salvage racially segregated education in some fashion, North Carolina adopted a number of laws having to do with private schools.

MOST OF THESE laws were ruled unconstitutional, but some of them that were racially neutral remained on the books.

Among them was a statute giving the State Department of Education power to enforce certain minimum standards of instruction and teacher certification within the non-public schools.

The intent was sound enough. In conjunction with what was known as the Piersall Plan of tuition grants, the statute was designed to prevent public money from getting to fly-by-night "academies."

There was a broader rationale also. The state of North Carolina has an obligation, to quote its law, to supervise all forms of education "to the end that all children shall become citizens who possess certain basic competencies necessary to properly discharge the responsibilities of American citizenship."

THE REGULATORY ACT lay largely dormant on the books until about 1974. The various Christian schools voluntarily cooperated with provisions having to do with safety and sanitation.

Then the public school lobby came to life with new proposals having to do with the certification of teachers, and the battle was joined.

Early this year, the Christian schools flatly refused to file certain statistical reports. Their principal spokesman, The Rev. Kent Kelly of Southern Pines, publicly renounced the whole plan of state approval.

Last week the state took Mr. Kelly and his co-defendants to court.

The Christian schools contend that our nation's fundamental law protects their fundamental faith.

The First Amendment, as extended to the states, says there shall be "no law" respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. To the Christian pastors, their schools are an intrinsic, inseparable part of their church.

"Our church educational program is an establishment of religion," Mr. Kelly says. "On Sunday we have Sunday School in which we teach only the Bible.

"Through the week we have Day School in which we teach science, history, geography, reading, literature, social studies and every other subject as religious instruction with a firm foundation in the Word of God.

"OUR TEACHERS are exclusively the instruments of our religious instruction. To regulate

A Neglected Park

FRAUD WITHIN the Gov't's General Services Administration, combined with waste and negligence, is costing taxpayers close to $200 million a year, officials estimate.

This is the same Gov't that the Naderites insist should include a Consumer Protection Agency as a watchdog over private enterprise.

Talk of a recall election for members of the City Council, before that group waved its magic wand and produced a tax cut without cutting spending appreciably, didn't bother members of the Lubbock school board.

The trustees checked and satisfied themselves that the law makes no provision for recall of school board members.

Headline: "Poll Shows Democrats Now Minority Over U.S."

"Oh, my," says the Neighborhood Reactionary, "brace yourself for another constitutional amendment guaranteeing equal rights to Democrats."

Probably, too, we can expect Congress to pass laws guaranteeing a quota of Democrats in education, and jobs, not to mention a percentage of all government contracts.

IF YOU BUY groceries and don't watch the checker to make certain the correct prices are rung up—especially on specials—you're probably getting overcharged, says a Southwest Lubbock housewife.

Happens practically every time she checks out at the supermarket, she says.

Holmes Alexander:

Myopia Tarnishes Golden Age

WASHINGTON—Science is no longer king, and yet the need to fill the vacated throne is greater every year. At a luncheon meeting of Youth Science campers, I sat next to Douglas M. Costle, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

I left wondering whether we have the attention span—amid so much strife and strain of the international struggle—to force science to be what it should be, a matter of social utility.

Technology for its own sake is useless. Dr. Costle, Harvard '61, feels that Americans have become disillusioned. They have come to doubt whether ongoing research by government, industry and the universities is really worth the investment.

COSTLE AND I were among 100 top high school graduates, two from each state, being hosted in Washington by Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., a founder in 1963 of the Youth Science group, young men and women who will have the future in charge.

But despite the press for new energy sources, the population crunch and its accompanying food problem, the demand upon world mineral deposits and the predicted loss of great areas of arable land, the national commitment to research and development is not what it was.

There is decreasing support for education programs in government. Industry is spending $200 million less on research in real dollars than it spent in 1967.

"TECHNOLOGY HAS brought many benefits," said Costle, "but it also has brought many, many problems, and hasn't translated into a feeling on the part of the public that quality of life is improving.

"The space program, for example, has brought a tremendous increase in potential for global communications, saved uncounted lives through improved weather forecasting, and increasingly will be helpful for such things as pollution monitoring, land use studies, and tracking water.

"Yet people are no longer willing to pay the costs. Nuclear power was painted as the energy panacea, but its backers didn't give enough attention to the potential problems involved. Now we are reaping the consequences of such shortsightedness."

For all that, said EPA's chief, technology keeps grinding out benefits that could bring what he called a Golden Age of Scientific Advancement.

We have barely begun to capitalize on energy conversion from solid waste. But EPA recently awarded a contract for a portable pyrolysis plant which heats harvest throwaways to high tempera-

Even she grows careless at times, though. Bought five items the other day. Didn't check up on the checker until after she'd left the store.

A 33-cent item was on the tape at 39 cents. A 13-cent item she didn't buy was listed. Now a 19-cent error isn't a lot of money—but two mistakes in five items and adding 6 percent to her $3.12 bill is a big margin of error.

To show he wasn't angry about UN Ambassador Andy Young's recent statements in re political prisoners, President Carter has given Young a handsome gift, according to Austin's Cactus Pryor: A Pinto with Firestone radial tires.

In announcing early as a candidate for President in 1980, Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., recalled that an early start was what put Jimmy Carter on the road to the White House.

And everybody knows what a good deal that was for the country.

Ex-Lubbockite Glenda Phurrough, who now lives in Richardson, says it's a myth that Richardson has the best school system in Texas: "Lubbock's is better."

Congress may require solar water heating in all new military housing and in one-fourth of all other military construction, at an annual cost of "$100 million or more." It ought to work; the price alone is high enough to make taxpayers' blood boil.

Austin newsmen, recalling the "Dirty 30" dissidents who rebelled against a former Speaker, have a name for those House members who are challenging Speaker Bill Claytor: "Shifty 50" or "Filthy Fifty."

JUDGE BOB WRIGHT and I drove through Mackenzie State Park on our way back from lunch the other day.

The city-maintained park's appearance is a disgrace to Texas and an insult to Lubbock.

As one who can remember when Mackenzie was "the" public gathering place and spot of beauty on the South Plains, I found its gross deterioration a depressing sight.

People used to come from 100 miles around for family picnics, reunions and other get-togethers at Mackenzie, with its beautiful trees, placid lakes and well-kept grounds.

NOW, THERE ARE weeds taller than your head in some places, cups and other debris floating in the water, clubhouses and other buildings going to pot (in more ways than one) and a totally unkempt and uninviting view staring you in the face.

Nowadays, I guess, we have too many demands on our tax dollars for social services, too little regard for ourselves and others to be neat, too few people interested in a Sunday family outing for anybody to care whether Mackenzie State Park remains an eyesore.

But, in its way, the park may be a symptom of a crumbling society that's losing its sense of responsibility.

tures and produces natural gas, crude oil and charcoal.

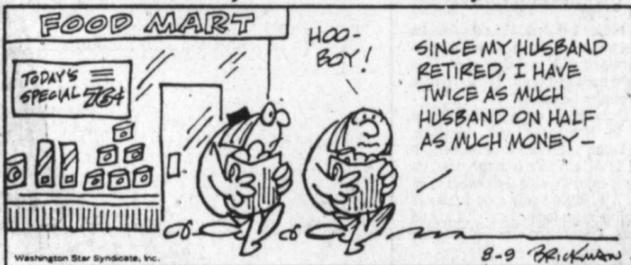

The plan is to mount this plant on trailers and follow the harvests north in the summer months, collecting as much as 100 tons of crop wastes in a single day, and turning them into the equivalent of 25-30 tons of coal.

Forest resources, as well as agricultural wastes, could be ground into energy that would meet three quarters of the total electricity needs of the South Atlantic, Rocky Mountain and Pacific Northwest areas.

In short, this is no time to lose faith and interest in what science can be made to do for us. It can be made to restore and save our fragile planet. Administrators like Costle do more for us than the politicians that we daily write about from habit alone.

Sylvia Porter:

Putting Off Repairs Exhausts Car Budget

TIP ONE: While most of you know you should not drive on tires with no tread or with cuts or bulges in the sidewalls, eight out of 10 of you are driving your cars on underinflated tires.

This is extremely hazardous because it increases your difficulty in handling your car. It also dramatically hikes your fuel consumption through raising the resistance of your tires to the road surface.

Service station air pumps are often inaccurate. Buy yourself an inexpensive tire gauge at an auto store and check your tires once a week.

If you're driving a standard American-built car, 28 to 30 pounds of air is the best combination of ride and economy.

But if you're driving a subcompact, the best combination is 24 pounds for the front tires and 28 for the rear.

TIP TWO: In the high temperatures of summer, your car requires engine oil that better retains its viscosity; a switch to 10W-20W-50 multi-grade oil is a smart move now.

Look for oil that exceeds API service standards SE and SD—it's marked on the can.

For a smaller car, the expert advice is multi-viscosity oils such as SAE 20W-40, which provides the easy starting characteristics of a 20W oil and the lubricating characteristics of a 40W oil at high temperatures.

Change the oil filter at the same time if you change your oil.

TIP THREE: Because automatic transmissions take additional abuse in the summer, check the fluid level with the engine running and the transmission in park.

Periodic changing of the fluid and replacement of the filter is a wise bit of preventive medicine that most of you overlook.

As we move toward the peak summer weeks, how you maintain and drive your car will become crucial in how much money you waste (or save) on gas, how well your car performs and how long it lasts.

(4) Check the ignition timing (and reset it if necessary) at every engine tune-up, as well your distributor points and valve adjustments.

(5) PAY EXTRA special attention to your spark plugs, points and condenser. Change your air filter and fuel filter now, if you have not already done so in the past several months.

(6) Also have the wheel alignment and balance checked when you bring in your car for its tune-up. A true-running tire not only creates less friction and drag but also economizes on fuel.

(7) Since summer driving puts a particularly heavy strain on the fan belt and accessory drive belts, make sure yours are tight, unfrayed and that the pulleys are properly aligned.

Belts pulled too tight eat up gas mileage, belts too loose will break or allow your battery to run down because of reduced alternator speed or over-heating.

(8) IF YOUR CAR has an electric cooling fan, it will be turned on automatically by a thermo switch when the engine temperature reaches a certain point—even if the ignition is not running.

Be careful when you place your hands on anything else near the cooling fan.

(9) While you probably believe that using 100 percent radiator coolant in the cooling system protects your car at higher temperatures, that's a mistake.

The best protection is achieved with a 50-50 ratio of coolant and water. Using more coolant than this not only costs more money but is also less effective.

Also an engine that's overheating is much more likely to fail, so 50-50 radiator coolant mix is vitally important.

Today's closed cooling systems with an expansion bottle to recycle overflow coolant should not need added coolant under normal driving conditions. Never open a cooling system when hot.

(10) IF YOU HAVE a dubious battery, replace it now. Batteries get overstressed in the hot summer just as much as in the coldest winter.

(11) While air conditioning is nice for you, it's tough on your engine and fuel economy. A typical air conditioner will cost three to five miles per gallon at highway speeds, when often a simple fresh air vent would keep you just as cool.

Try to be judicious in use of air conditioning and you'll substantially cut your gas costs during these hottest weeks of summer.

Indiana Crime Victims Win Voice In Cases

By B.J. GILLEY
INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Victims of serious crimes in Indiana have gained the right to voice their opinions on plea bargain agreements and sentences given to the suspects in their cases.

Judges and prosecutors don't believe the law, which was passed by the 1978 legislature and went into effect this summer, will result in any major changes in the way most criminal cases are handled.

Defense lawyers are less positive, with some saying the change may prolong negotiations or make a prosecutor unwilling for political reasons to accept a plea he otherwise would.

The law probably will have the largest effect in the larger counties, since the sheer volume of cases has forced prosecutors to save court time by getting a defendant to admit his guilt to part of the offense in exchange for a sentence less than what he might otherwise face. For example, about two-thirds of the felony cases at Indianapolis are now settled through plea bargains.

Prosecutors in smaller counties may agree to drop some of a series of charges, but don't regularly make recommendations for reduced sentences, according to an official of the state agency helping them.

The new law reads: "In making a recommendation on a felony charge, a prosecutor must (1) inform the victim that he has entered into discussions with defense counsel or the court concerning a recommendation; (2) inform the victim of the contents of the recommendation before it is filed; and (3) notify the victim so that he might be present when the court considers the recommendation."

It makes the judge hearing the case responsible for seeing the law is followed and provides, "A court may consider a recommendation on a felony charge only if the prosecutor as complied with this section."

Richard Good, executive director of the Indiana Prosecuting Attorneys Council, said he considers a provision added to the bill before passage concerning sentencing perhaps even more beneficial to victims of crimes.

"In all cases, whether involving guilty pleas or guilty findings, the pre-sentence investigator must contact the victim and get his opinion on the disposition of the case," said Good. "This gives the victim a say in the sentencing."

Good and David Rimstidt, chief deputy prosecutor for Marion County, said many counties were already in "substantial compliance" with the law before it went into effect, and it means only a little more paperwork.

Rimstidt said the change was being covered in an addendum to the sheet sent to victims giving instructions on being a witness.

"It also says he will be notified in the event an agreement is reached and given an opportunity to review the proposed agreement," he said. "We've always encouraged active participation of the victim in the plea bargaining procedure and I regard the right to be present and to be heard at the sentencing hearing as the biggest change, something that wasn't guaranteed before."

For the majority of cases, the only delay will be "perhaps a few minutes more in court at the time the judge accepts the bargain to allow the victim to give his opinion," several attorneys and court officials said.

"It is in the area of last-minute negotiations that there may be some delay, but even then the victim may already be on hand preparing for the court session," Good said. "However, an important thing to remember is that a prosecutor is not a private attorney for the victim and is really representing the interests of society collectively."

"Many things go into a decision on plea bargaining other than the wishes of the victim, including what the prosecutor thinks is a just settlement and what he thinks he can prove."

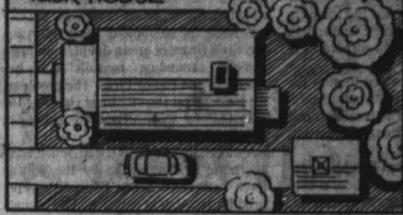

Marion County Criminal Court Judge John W. Tranberg, who estimated about 300 of 450 felony cases in his court each year are settled through plea bargaining, said he did not think the law would make it more difficult to reach agreement.

"There may be times when you may not accept the plea based on your opinion," he said. "But the court can still accept the plea agreement even though the victim doesn't think it's right."

Fellow Judge John Wilson said he considers one important aspect of the law is that it will "clean up" the public's image of plea bargaining.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although you'll be especially sharp in business matters tomorrow, you'll work harder for others, especially your family, than you will for yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll set an example tomorrow by telling things like they are and standing in back of your words. You'll win the respect of all those you encounter.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A perplexing issue can be resolved tomorrow because of your fine head for business and your practical approach. You'll solve the puzzle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though you dare to dream for a brighter tomorrow, you'll still view things realistically by anticipating any obstacles.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An inner resolve to achieve what others might consider an arduous goal may be your purpose tomorrow. You will have the strength to obtain it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is really nothing new that will rattle you tomorrow. You'll draw upon experience to gain a toehold and climb the ladder of success.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Use your fine leadership qualities tomorrow. You will see things clearly that another can't and easily sort out complex deadlines.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A difficult decision might be yours tomorrow. Because another person is involved you may be hesitant.

Don't be. Your judgement will be correct.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Expect payment in proportion to effort expended tomorrow. If you are industrious and purposeful, the returns will automatically be there.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Serious talks with people you know socially could lead to helping one another. Lay your cards on the table. Chances are, they'll do the same.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Nothing will be too tough for you to accomplish tomorrow once you set your mind to it. It will be a day when both your physical and mental assets will work in harmony.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't be afraid to take over and manage situations if others falter. You will have the ability tomorrow to carefully plan and direct activities.

Fish Consumption To Increase Here

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The growing popularity of fish sandwiches and similar fast-food items will push the average American's consumption of fresh and frozen fish to a record 8.2 pounds this year, a 33 percent increase over the last decade.

Seventy percent of the fish is imported, adding another $2.1 billion to the U.S. balance of payments deficit, according to the National Food Processors Association.

Domestic seafood processors are seeking U.S. government protection against what they term unfair competition from foreign factory ships operating inside the 200-mile offshore zone, says Charles J. Carey, NFPA president.

Workshop Attracts Blacksmiths From Across United States

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Sparks fly in showers, heat rolls up in merciless waves and the ringing of metal on metal assails the ears. But Dennis Proksa doesn't care, because blacksmithing is his life.

"I like the noise," he insists, "the ring of the anvil, I don't notice the heat."

Proksa, 29, of Pocahontas, Idaho, was among 18 blacksmiths attending a 10-day workshop at Southern Illinois University.

The university School of Art sponsored the workshop under a $12,700 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and matching money from the university.

"We are trying to establish Southern Illinois University as one of the blacksmith centers of the United States," explains Brent Kingston, a master blacksmith and professor at the School of Art.

SIU, where philosophers devour the ideas of Plato and Kant, scientists probe the atom and space and athletes compete for Missouri Valley Conference honors, also offers bachelor's and master's degrees in blacksmithing.

Master blacksmith Francis Whitaker, 71, of Aspen, Colo., says he is impressed with the school's curriculum. But he adds that the art can be taught best through practice.

"I started blacksmithing when I was 16," he recalls.

"My father knew that I should work with my hands, so he started me with a fine blacksmith in Philadelphia."

It was off to Germany a year later for three years as an apprentice.

Whitaker believes demonstration is a good teacher, and the university is a good teacher, and the university is a good teacher because of that.

He demonstrates the problems encountered from the design stage of a blacksmithing project to completion by hammering out a 9-foot-wide gate and railing that will be installed at North Fanner Hall.

It is possible today to be a blacksmith and never touch a horseshoe, workshop participants say.

Another workshop member, Frank Turley of Santa Fe, N.M., says he started

Showdown Nearing For Kucinich

FOR YOUR WANT ADS CALL 762-8821

By ROBERT SANGEORGE
CLEVELAND (UPI) — Like a gun-fighter hired to clean up a frontier town, maverick Dennis Kucinich rode into the mayor's office at Cleveland City Hall last November bringing with him a surge of reform-minded euphoria.

His goals were challenging: sweep the deadwood out of city government, improve basic services and give Cleveland a renewed sense of pride and purpose.

A 31-year-old who looks even younger, Kucinich's brash-young-kid image was complete. But dreams of Camelot-on-Cuyahoga quickly faded.

Just nine months after he took office, Kucinich, the youngest big-city mayor in the nation, is fighting for his political life as he faces this Sunday's recall election — the first recall election in Cleveland's history. Political observers rate his chances of staying in office a tossup.

Once affectionately known as "Dennis the Menace," the man who vowed to make people forget about Cleveland jokes now finds himself scorned by much of the city's power elite — the labor unions, the business community, the police force, the City Council and even his own political party.

He received another serious blow last week when both of the city's daily newspapers, the Cleveland Press and the Plain Dealer, endorsed the recall movement.

The drive to oust Kucinich gained initial impetus when he fired popular Police Chief Richard Hongisto March 24. Hongisto charges he was being pressured by Kucinich aides to back off on an investigation into bribe-taking by city officials. The mayor said Hongisto had failed to substantiate the allegations.

Yet the seeds of discontent with the young mayor were planted much earlier.

Kucinich has always prided himself on his maverick image—portraying himself as a man fighting alone for the interests of poor and middle-income Clevelanders against political bosses and corporate executives.

"Recall has been a device to stop the people-oriented nature of my administration," Kucinich said. "The recall is a test of the very spirit and strength of our city."

Some love his style, but it rubbed others the wrong way. "He practices a kind of confrontation politics at the outset, which means he then has no place to go for compromise," said recall leader Albert Ballew, a former city councilman.

Kucinich's style, his fight to stop tax abatements for companies planning large construction projects and his opposition to other business-oriented proposals pushed his relations with the City Council past the breaking point.

"As soon as you start talking against tax abatement they say you are anti-business. My administration is not anti-business. But it is under attack because we are fighting special interest groups," Kucinich argued.

But even the Cuyahoga County Democratic Party Convention voted overwhelmingly to support the recall drive. The effort entered the realm of religion two weeks ago, when some 50 black ministers came out for the mayor's ouster.

If Kucinich is recalled, the City Council would appoint an acting mayor, who would serve a few weeks until a special election is held.

With the recall campaign stepping in to high gear, its leaders don't deny they've been aided by the clear crisis atmosphere gripping the city.

The two New York municipal credit rating agencies, Standard & Poor's and Moody's, have declared Cleveland's bonds unmarketable. The agencies demanded a financial house-cleaning, which Kucinich has set in motion.

Pending the outcome of those reforms, the city's finances are in doubt, with predictions abounding payrolls will be missed by the end of 1978. "The problem we have is that the city must continue to operate," he said. "Standard & Poor's doesn't pick up the garbage."

A more tangible mess for Kucinich was a chaotic 19-hour strike by the police force last month. When 13 officers were fired for refusing to patrol public housing projects alone on foot, the police force walked out.

Kucinich maintained a tough posture, calling police who threw firecrackers and directed one-finger gestures at him "hoodlums," when he drove to police stations to urge them to back to work.

With polls and political observers predicting a close election, it's a tossup as to whether Clevelanders will treat Kucinich at the polls the way his police force did during their strike.

"I have learned to deal with adversity," Kucinich said.

You and the Law

Presented by the State Bar of Texas

Q: One of my four business partners is a lawyer. If we disagree over the legal effect of a contract we are considering between our partnership and another company, should I accept the legal advice of my lawyer partner?

A: The legal code of ethics, or Code of Professional Responsibility, says lawyers who are in the position of your partner should not give you legal advice in this situation. The Code of Professional Responsibility states that a lawyer must not accept employment where his legal advice may be affected by his own financial or business interest... unless the lawyer first provides the client with a full disclosure of the potential conflict of interest and then obtains the client's consent to proceed.

Q: A judge awarded my ex-wife 60 percent of my monthly retirement pension in a divorce decree. Now, she's remarried with substantial income. Would her remarriage affect my chances of having that divorce decree altered? And, why wasn't the retirement split evenly if it was community property?

A: A property division in a divorce decree is for the purpose of separating property at the time of the divorce. It cannot be changed at a later date on the basis of changed circumstances of either former partner. In dividing community property, a judge is free to award any portion of the property to either partner and is not required to divide the property evenly.

Q: My neighbor and I are not on the best of terms. I have a dog which I keep tied up most of the time. My neighbor has threatened to shoot the dog if he catches him on his property even though the dog has never caused any damage or harmed anyone. Is this legal?

A: A person commits a criminal offense if he kills, injures or poisons an animal belonging to another without legal authority or the owner's consent. You may bring an action for damages against a person who wrongfully kills or injures your dog. However, if your dog is found attacking domestic animals or fowl such as sheep, goats, calves and chickens, the dog may be killed by anyone present and witnessing the attack.

Q: My children prefer their stepfather to their natural father. At what age can they stop visiting their father without him alleging that I'm violating his visitation rights?

A: As long as a parent is allowed to visit his children as provided in a divorce decree, the judge who issued the decree has the authority to enforce it through his power to hold in contempt of court anyone who violates the decree. If the judge finds that the children no longer wish to see their father, and that this is a decision that they have reached by their own choice without encouragement from the mother or some other person, the law allows the judge to abide by the wishes of the children.

COIN LAW USED

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first case tried under a law to protect coin collectors from the sale of imitations, the Federal Trade Commission on Monday ordered a Syracuse, N.Y., firm to stop importing coins not marked "copy." The commission ruled unanimously that Gold Bullion International Ltd. imported into the United States privately minted gold imitations of foreign gold coins that were not marked "copy." The case came under the Hobby Protection Act of 1974, which was designed to keep imitation coins from coming into circulation among coin collectors.

FBI Chief Notes Change In Attitude Of Public

NEW YORK (UPI) — FBI Director William Webster said this week terrorist activity around the world is changing Americans' negative attitudes toward intelligence agencies.

"There is a change in public attitude, particularly I think as a result of an emerging concern for terrorism in this country," Webster ter told a breakfast gathering at the annual American Bar Association Convention.

He said there is a public "recognition that it is happening in Europe. It can happen in the United States."

"We already have our share..." he said citing FBI statistics that show there were 160 terrorismated bombings in 1976 and 1977.

Webster said Americans are wondering whether the United States is getting enough intelligence information to prevent terrorist acts.

Webster also said that he is seriously concerned about the flood of Freedom of Information Act requests the FBI gets for bureau files. "We're encountering some real problems in developing confidential informants and keeping confidential informants," he said.

"The law says when it is not serving the public interest," Webster said of the Freedom of Information Act.

Missourians Join Tax Revolt, Reject Gasoline Tax Increase

By The Associated Press
Missourians joined the nation's tax revolt by overwhelmingly rejecting a proposal to increase their gasoline taxes, while voters in primaries in Georgia, Michigan and Idaho picked candidates for governor and Congress.

Also highlighting Tuesday's primaries was a third place finish for Betty Talmadge, former wife of U.S. Sen. Herman Talmadge, in her try for a House nomination. In Michigan, U.S. Rep. Charles Diggs was renominated for his seat in Congress despite an indictment for fraud.

The proposal to raise Missouri gasoline taxes by 3 cents a gallon to 10 cents was defeated by a margin of more than 7-to-1. The increase had been proposed in a statewide initiative at a time when voters in other states were organizing petition drives to seek tax cuts. In June, California voters overwhelmingly approved Proposition 13, an amendment to the state constitution that slashed property taxes.

If Mrs. Shapard, front-runner in the primary, defeats Banks and then Gingrich, she would be Georgia's first female U.S. representative in three decades.

Incumbent Democratic Sen. Sam Nunn and Georgia Gov. George Busbee breezed to easy victories.

Busbee had nearly 70 percent of the vote in a Democratic primary against five opponents, including avowed white supremacist J.B. Stoner who won about 5 percent of the vote. Busbee will be running for a second consecutive four-year term, made possible by a constitutional amendment adopted by voters in 1976.

Nunn had nearly 80 percent of the vote over five Democratic opponents.

Both Nunn and Busbee will have Republican opposition in November, but both are expected to win re-election in heavily Democratic Georgia.

In northwest Georgia's 7th District, the Aug. 29 Democratic runoff will match Rep. Larry McDonald, a national leader of the John Birch Society, and political newcomer Smith Foster.

Georgia's other eight congressmen, all Democrats, won renominations easily, including three who were unopposed.

Diggs won renomination against three Democratic opponents in the 13th Congressional District in Detroit. He is accused of taking kickbacks from staffers after inflating their salaries and is scheduled to stand trial in September.

Republican Sen. Robert Griffin won renomination easily, and former Detroit City Councilman Carl Levin beat five other Democrats for the chance to challenge Griffin.

State Sen. William Fitzgerald surprised his three opponents by garnering 45 percent of the vote to win the nomination in a four-way battle to challenge Republican Gov. William Milliken in November. Milliken was not opposed for the renomination.

In Idaho, House Speaker Allan Larsen won out over six Republicans in a race for nomination to challenge Democratic Gov. John Evans. Evans, who was unopposed for renomination, stepped up from lieutenant governor 20 months ago when Cecil Andrus became secretary of the interior.

The unofficial vote count gave Larsen an insurmountable margin over former state GOP chairman Vernon Ravencroft, a 59-year-old businessman, followed by C.L. "Butch" Otter.

A property tax-cut initiative that will be on the November ballot was a key issue, with some who sponsored the initiative backing Otter, an early supporter of the plan.

Backers of the increase had hoped it would raise about $90 million to improve state roads. Opponents said it was an attempt by bankers and contractors to obtain more highway construction money.

Missouri's 10 incumbent congressmen easily won renomination, including four who had no opposition.

In Georgia, Mrs. Talmadge's two opponents, state Sens. Virginia Shapard and Peter Banks will face each other in a runoff for the Democratic nomination to the 6th District where Rep. John Flynt is retiring after 24 years in office.

The winner of that runoff will have to take on former college professor Newt Gingrich, who lost to Flynt twice, but won the GOP nomination handily Tuesday.

Widow Of 3M Head Disputes Will Pact

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The widow of William L. McKnight is seeking to overturn an agreement she signed three years ago limiting her inheritance to about $5 million of the former 3M Company president's estate estimated to be worth more than $235 million.

Mrs. McKnight, 63, filed suit in Dade County Probate Court for 30 percent of the estate of her husband, who died in Florida March 4 at age 90. In his will, McKnight left the bulk of his estate to his daughter, Virginia Binger of Wayzata, Minn. Harry Durant, one of Mrs. McKnight's lawyers, said McKnight did not make a "fair disclosure" of his worth when the agreement was signed in September 1975, a year after the couple was married.

Houston Schools Set New Budget

HOUSTON (AP) — A record $371 million budget that includes a minimum 4 percent salary increase for employees was approved Tuesday night by the Houston school board.

Action on a tax rate, however, was delayed in that a tax reform proposal now before the Houston city council could reduce the school district's anticipated revenues by $9 million. The district's property tax is collected by the city which also sets valuations.

William Barwell, president, said the school board does not intend to raise the $1.70 tax rate. He said a $9 million loss probably would be absorbed by adjusting budget provisions.

Nevada Tax Petition Qualifies For Ballot

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — A group trying to get a tax relief plan approved in Nevada turned in about 38,000 signatures to the secretary of state's office and qualified for the November ballot.

Deputy Secretary of State Dave Howard said Tuesday that the People's Advocates committee had to turn in at least 20,000 signatures and a partial count showed that 22,000 of the signatures were valid.

The proposal calls for a 50 percent property tax cut and would restrict the ability of the Legislature and local governments to boost any taxes.

City Man Reports Theft Of $100, Automobile

A Lubbock man told police he was beaten and robbed by two hitchhikers this morning in the 1700-block of East Broadway.

Jasper Floyd Earthman, 57, of 1008 Amarillo Rd. said he was stranded on E. 19th Street after his two riders beat him, robbed him of $100 and took his 1973 four-door Mercury.

Earthman, who suffered cuts and bruises on his face, described his attackers as two men in their mid-20s.

He said that after he was let out of his white-over-blue Marquis, he walked to a motel on U.S. 87 where he called police.

After being alerted this morning of an attempted holdup at Preston Milk Store, 1101 34th St., a Lubbock policeman arrested a 27-year-old man he had witnessed going into the store moments before.

Officer Dan Emerine said he watched the suspect enter the store while he was parked at 34th Street and Avenue J. When the store manager tripped the alarm, Emerine entered the store and confronted the suspect.

The officer said he arrested the man after finding a .22 caliber pistol in the suspect's coat pocket.

In other reported crimes, a man was taken into custody at 13th Street and Quirk Avenue about 3:35 p.m. Tuesday after police found a knife and a 12 gauge shotgun in the suspect's parked vehicle.

The seven-inch knife, according to police, had what appeared to be blood stains on it. Reports show the suspect appeared to be drunk, and had no type of identification. He was taken to Lubbock County Jail on suspicion of carrying an unlawful weapon.

Charles Clayton Ross of 908 E. Municipal Drive said his house was burglarized and two pistols taken between 3:45 p.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday. He said the loss will total about $415.

Mote Neven Jr. said he was swimming Tuesday at an indoor pool when someone apparently broke into his locker and stole his wallet containing $80 and several credit cards. He said the costly swim lasted only 45 minutes.

A money bag containing about $150 in cash and checks was the apparent target of a thief Tuesday at Barrett's Automotive, 206 N. University Ave. Shop manager Roy Martin told police the money bag had been placed under a counter about 7:30 a.m. and was discovered missing at 5:30 p.m. that day.

Daryl Neighbors of Rt. 1, Box 386, Lubbock, told police his car was parked at 505 E. 50th St. from 2:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday when someone apparently broke into it and took a .22 caliber pistol.

Michael D. Henderson said his loss was about $229 when his 1723 E. Dartmouth St. home was entered sometime Tuesday and a stereo and two bottles of liquor stolen.

Burglars continued their raids on city businesses and homes early this week, with one Lubbock contractor reporting the loss of 330 square yards of carpet.

Bruce E. Beaton, a superintendent with Wilson & Wilson, told officers that someone broke into a house under construction at 5502 Fordham and took the property, which he valued at $1,610.

G.A. Husky, owner of Western Equipment Supply at 1001 N. Ave. Q, said that whoever broke a panel on an overhead door at that firm made off with $2,369 worth of goods. He listed as missing an airless paint unit, a cutting torch and a magnetic drill press.

Burglars pried a piece of plywood from the kitchen door of a rental unit owned by the City of Lubbock Community Services and took a 30-gallon water heater, valued at $160, from a hall closet, according to reports.

Jack L. Wilson of Rt. 3, Box 290, Lubbock, said he returned home from work Monday to find that someone had broken out a living room window at his home. He said the burglars made off with a $400 television and a .99 22-caliber automatic rifle.

David W. Marcum told officers that someone took $458 worth of goods, including a .357 revolver and a slalom water ski, from his 5309 23rd St. home. Police reports indicate that investigating officers could find no sign of forced entry.

Safety Officials Mulling Decision On Firestone

WASHINGTON (UPI) — It will be several weeks before government safety officials decide whether Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. must recall 13 million allegedly defective Steel Belted Radial 500 tires.

The company in the meantime has repeated its belief the tires are safe, and has given the government renewed assurances that it wants to cooperate in soothing consumer worries brought about by bad publicity.

Company lawyers were expected to continue their negotiations with the government in an effort to reach some sort of settlement short of a recall of all the affected tires, an action that could have a price tag of at least $100 million.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration was left with a stack of testimony after two days of hearings into the tire's troubles, and a recommendation is not expected to be made to NHTSA Administrator Joan Claybrook for several weeks.

A spokesman said she was anxious to get a resolution in the case as soon as possible.

Firestone lawyer Patrick McCartan told the hearing Tuesday the company still has the "utmost confidence in this line of tire."

He added:

"We sincerely hope that as a result of this presentation today, the NHTSA will reassess the situation and reconsider its initial determination of July 7, 1978. I also want to assure the administrator that Firestone is acutely aware of the public interest and concern in this matter and is prepared to assist the agency as it endeavors to arrive at a fair and impartial judgment on this tire's integrity as an item of motor vehicle equipment."

McCartan also contended bad publicity and the fact NHTSA singled out the Firestone 500 by asking consumers to report problems, resulted in the agency getting more complaints than would have otherwise been the case.

Brazilian Names Create Problems

By GUY GUGLIOTTA
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI)—What's in a Brazilian name? Well, that depends. Take the late Juscelino Kubitschek de Oliveira, president of Brazil between 1956 and 1961. The form is standard Portuguese—first name, mother's name, father's name.

The uninitiated fool trying to splash across the Brazilian name swamp for the first time would get out his textbook and find out that he should use Oliveira in a second reference. But Oliveira called himself Kubitschek because he liked it better and that, apparently, was that.

Except that Brazilians at large prefer first names and Juscelino fit nicely into a euphonious series of presidents that began with Getulio (Vargas) and continued with Juscelino, Janio (Quadros) and Jango (Joao Goulart) before the military took over in 1964.

At home, then, Juscelino was and is Juscelino for all time. But don't be seduced by the first name gambit, which would solve all your problems if it worked all the time. It helps, but there are traps.

For instance race driver Emerson Fittipaldi is always Emerson in Brazil, but Emerson Leao, the goalkeeper for the national soccer team, is always Leao, perhaps because his last name means "Lion."

But if you're into cats, it's hard to top Dom Bosco club goalkeeper Maos de Onca, loosely translated as "Panther Paws." Nobody knows Maos de Onca's real name except Maos de Onca and he's not telling.

And now that you've gotten to nicknames you can read about how Ze de Radio, (radio repairman Radio Joe) was arrested for killing the nephew of Ze de Galadeira (air conditioning specialist Refrigerator Joe).

The cops have also grabbed alleged death squad hitman Carlinhos Bia Bia Bia (Charley Blah Blah Blah because he won't shut up) and recovered the body of Mandrake, a suspected purse snatcher and mugger.

If you need your car fixed you can talk to mechanic Ze de Paraiba (Joe from the Northeastern state of Paraiba) and, if he can't help, he will send you to see Ze de Pernambuco (another Northeastern state) who will do the body work.

The point is that Brazilians, a friendly lot, like the personal touch and prefer nicknames and first names as a means of establishing a quick smidgen of rapport and separating themselves from the rest of the uncounted mass of Santos, Dias, Silvas and, yes, Oliveiras, that populate their country.

And without a bit of inside information on names, you are finished. The man who lets his fingers do the walking through the yellow pages, and particularly the white pages, will get wanderers' cramp. Pernambuco isn't in the phone book and nobody knows his real name.

There are no rules that will enable you to pick the right name, you just have to know. It is likely that if you went walking down the streets of Sao Paulo asking where you might find favorite son Edson Arantes do Nascimento people would shake their heads in puzzlement. But say Pele and you'll get action.

And Pele is only one of many noted personalities that for all practical purposes never had another name. Presidential aspirant Sen. Magalhaes Pinto's first name is Jose, but it is a tough bit of information to find out. Read it Magalhaes Pinto in first, second and subsequent references.

The grande dame of Brazil's macumba voodoo religion is Mae Meninha which translates as "Mother Little Girl," a little something for all ages.

The art director of Beija Flor samba school, winner of three consecutive carnivals, is Joaozinho Trinta, or "Johnny 30," probably because he is only 130 centimeters tall.

GAO Reports Pay Too High

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some foreigners who work for the U.S. military abroad earn more than they would for comparable jobs in their own countries, investigators report.

The General Accounting Office, Congress' investigating arm, said Monday the U.S. military overpaid foreign civilian workers at least $36.7 million last year.

The GAO said Japanese employees made about $28.3 million more than they would have earned in comparable jobs. Auditors said employees in South Korea, Italy and the Philippines also did better than they would have in the local economy.

However, pay and benefits in West Germany were about equal to prevailing rates, the GAO said.

The report said the Pentagon could save money by hiring Americans such as spouses of soldiers. But foreign labor unions and political sensitivities prevent the practice, the investigators said.

At the World Cup Soccer Championships in Argentina this year non-Brazilian fans of the Brazilian team needed a little more than a conventional scorecard to identify the players.

The starting team had only three last names—Leao, Rivelino and Cerezo, with three first name diminutives (Gil, Edinho or "Little Eddie", and Toninho or "Little Tony"), one stripped down first name (Batista, short for Joao Batista or "John the Baptist"), two middle names (Reinaldo and Oscar), one Kubitschek-style mother's name (Amaral) and one nickname (Zico). Substitutes were a first name (Dirceu) and a nickname (Nelinho, or "Little Nellie").

Missing from the cup were some of your favorite pros who might merit special consideration in 1982 by a coach with poetic disposition. These included Santa Cruz club's Farnacha, because that's what he looks like, Flamengo's Radar (hearing specialist), Palmeiras' Beto Fuscao ("Bobby the Big Volkswagen" because of his shape), Casais, Jeronimo, Babia's Sapatao ("Big Shoes" because he needs them) and his teammate "Beijorao" ("The Big Kiss"). And of course Maos de Onca.

Firm Offers Advice On Marketing

By ED LION

NAPERVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Jane Heim keeps a notebook near her bed so if she awakes with an idea she can write it down before it's lost in the cobwebs of slumber.

The 31-year-old mother of two is in the idea business. She constantly searches for new ones with the aid of her attorney-husband and she helps others market theirs.

"I'm always coming up with something," she told UPI as she thumbed through a manila folder crammed with ideas. "But don't write them all down. I still want to follow through on them."

Among her projects are an 80,000-word gothic novel; a game about "Washington After Hours"; a novelty Christmas gift; a "Complainers Listening Service" and a business to arrange garage sales.

Mrs. Heim two years ago started Creative Company to advise people on marketing their flashes of genius.

"I think almost everyone is an inventor at heart," she said. "But getting a project done can be real complex and frustrating. There are so many details. People just don't seem to know where to start, once they have an idea. I used to get so mad because it seemed no one would help me."

Mrs. Heim gives clients advice on who to go to and what to do for everything from getting a patent to finding a company to make boxes for the product. She charges a flat $25 fee, but plans to raise it.

"It's really a lot of work," she said. "I'll learn about the product and then do some research at the library on where to go. I'll type up a sheet with suggestions on what to do."

Mrs. Heim signs a special form promising not to reveal the ideas to others. "I've seen some really good ones," she said, "but I can't talk about them."

One client is successfully marketing self-designed, all-purpose greeting cards in Wisconsin and plans to get a regular distributor, she said. But most clients "don't want to take the ball and run with it themselves. They don't follow through."

"It takes perseverance. You just have to keep hanging in there. Thomas Edison never gave up and he tried things sometimes 10,000 times before succeeding. He felt he learned 10,000 ways not to do something."

She said the first step to marketing a gadget is to make a prototype, then seek a company to market the product or do it yourself. But if you do make it yourself, she warns, take care not to wind up with a closet full of watcha-ma-call-em's because of poor sales.

As for her own ideas, Mrs. Heim keeps right on plugging.

No game company has accepted "Washington After Hours" but she vows to keep trying.

She is in the process of submitting her novel to publishers and is starting a 24-hour "Complainers Listening Service." For $50 a year complainers can call and gripe about anything "from inflation to taxes to the administration to their spouses," she said.

She also is mapping marketing plans for her Christmas novelty gift, the "Scrooge Sox" a felt stocking filled with a lump of coal meant, she said, as a gag gift for the person who has everything or "to keep someone in line."

Mrs. Heim hasn't exactly become rich through her ideas. Her two most profitable — the garage sale business and Creative Company — have netted her a few thousand dollars, enough for a downpayment on an inexpensive country house.

But, she said, fingering the stack of tattered papers in the folder, "It's a lot of fun. Maybe I'll be 80 and not have made it big, but when I die and they see my notebooks I'll be famous posthumously."

'Steamtrain' To Wear Hobo Crown For Another Year

BRITT, Iowa (UPI) — It appeared all "Steamtrain" Maury Graham had to do was raise his cane and grin to win the "King of the Hobos" crown again this year.

Graham, dressed in an old suit and hat with a jacket covered with multicolored railroad patches, competed with other 14 candidates for the honor during the 45th annual National Hobo Convention during the weekend.

There were three fewer hobos in competition than in 1977, but the crowd didn't care.

Graham, who said he is based in Toledo, Ohio, was elected to his third term as the hobo king. He did not give his age. However, officials estimated he was close to 60.

Viewers in the large crowd said Graham was well-known by other hobos for his visits to hospitals and children's homes and efforts to try to organize a retirement area in the South for elderly men with no place else to go.

So, although he had to give a short speech before the selection by audience applause, Graham was the crowd's favorite from the start.

Long Looker Mick of Rockwell City, was re-elected queen of the hobos, taking the honor from four other hopefuls. Long Looker, who said she has been attending the conventions for 10 years, and has been re-elected several times in the following years.

Stock Market Tests Faith, Hope Of Investors

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — For several years it has been popular to collect, the stock analyst observed. Stamps, coins, antiques, comic books, art objects. Why some are collecting beer cans and matchbooks, he said.
 It is easy to understand the psychology of it, he said. Off duty and speaking more freely than he might be inclined to if working from his downtown office, he proceeded to discourse:
 "In unsettled economic times people like to possess something tangible and durable, like gold or diamonds or art,

"Who, then?" the broker asked. "What is it?"
 "Lack of faith in the economic leadership of the country, of the world," replied his antagonist. "They're the ones who can cheapen paper and make people distrustful of investing."
 Relieved, and possibly informed, the broker remained silent only briefly before becoming again his aggressive, positive self.

"We're getting the mess under control," he said. "Carter's serious about inflation, and so's the Federal Reserve. We've seen the top of interest rates." He was building up enthusiasm.
 "Foreigners are buying," he said. "And so are corporate managements. Have you seen how they're buying up their own stocks ... and the shares of other companies? They know, stocks are cheap."

 He was winding to a conclusion. "You know," he said, "the time to buy is when things look the worst, when everyone's afraid, when people are talking about recession ..."
 Yes, it is in such times that faith and hope are tested. The question that remains is whether the market can meet the test.

Analysis

something that is relatively rare and that has acceptability and can hold its value.
 "They've already bid the price of gold beyond $200, although it might be just as accurate to say that it isn't so much that the price of gold has risen as it is that the buying power of the dollar has declined."
 "But it isn't unusual for art dealers to advertise a rare print for a certain price, sell it immediately, and then have other customers ask him a month later to submit a higher bid to the new owners."
 "That same motivation is to some extent behind the strong housing market. What's more basic than having a roof over you? And to believe that in an economic collapse Uncle Sam will see that you keep it?"
 "So people are collecting houses. Two-thirds of all Americans live in homes they own themselves, and a lot of them have gone out and bought second homes. Why not? They're appreciating at 12 percent a year."

He was not finished by any means but, unlike most stock brokers seeking to make a point or a sale, he did not seem to be coming to a conclusion. So he was asked: "What does all this lead up to?"
 "To a question," he responded. His audience, a few old friends, leaned forward in anticipation, never having heard him ask a question of any sort, least of all economic.
 "What I don't understand," he confessed, "is why people are running up the prices of all these things and they won't collect stocks. What's more basic, more tangible, than buying a piece of a factory?"

"Why the Dow Jones industrial average isn't even as high as it was way back in 1965," he said. "And we've had a lot of inflation since then. If you discount for inflation, it's really only half as high."
 One member of his audience interrupted. "But when you buy a share you get a piece of paper, not a smokstack," he snapped. "People want to possess objects, not something that substitutes for them."
 The new speaker would not be interrupted. "Don't you understand," he continued, "people are suspicious of paper ... Paper can be manipulated, cheapened." He paused. "You have to take paper on faith," he said.
 "So it's a lack of trust," the broker replied, embarrassed that he had backed into the very thesis he was putting forward. That people invest in what they trust. "A lack of trust," he repeated.
 "Not necessarily you," the broker was assured. "And certainly not the workers and operators of the factory."

Rape Analysis Tells Of Victims' Fears

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federally financed study says rape victims, rather than rapists, often are the ones who fear the criminal justice system.
 An analysis of 635 rape complaints in Seattle and Kansas City showed that criminal cases were prepared in 167 instances. But prosecutors only filed rape charges in 45 of the cases, with 32 going to court and 10 defendants convicted. Meanwhile, the report said, half the women who called police said they were forced to wait two hours or more at a medical facility, and many added they were interviewed in a non-private location, causing embarrassment. The research was done by the Battelle Law and Justice Study Center in Seattle.

PADDLING HOME — A couple of residents of Graham paddle through the flood waters to inspect homes that are still inundated. The flood waters were gradually receding, but it will be weeks before many of the houses can be lived in. The runoff from the flood moved down the Brazos River into Palo Pinto County today, causing many residents along the river to move to higher ground as a safety precaution. (AP Laserphoto) visit Albany, Graham and Haskell for a first-hand look at the flooded areas. Briscoe said he would meet with county and local officials in all three cities to ensure they are receiving all possible assistance.

Meanwhile, Austin officials Tuesday confirmed a cloud-seeding operation was underway near Albany just hours before a 20-foot wall of water crashed into the tiny West Texas farming town.

Albany was but one of the many flood-ravaged towns digging out from under tons of debris today. While in others like Graham, 50 miles to the northeast, some residents still had to paddle through their living rooms.

Officials said the water level in Graham, which had reached six feet in some spots, had dropped three feet Tuesday and should continue to go down. The town has reported no injuries.

That was not the case in Albany. Searchers report at least five are dead from the flash flooding in the town of 2-150.

The National Weather Service defined Albany's 24-inch rainfall as "tropical," but refused to say if the seeding operation over nearby Breckenridge was responsible.

"We don't have any way of knowing whether what one man has done to the atmosphere has changed it," said NWS meteorologist Bill Cook. "But rainfall from tropical origin is much more intense than other rains, and the rain that fell over West Texas and caused the floods were tropical."

John Carr, chief of the weather modification section of the Texas Department of Water Resources, said Tuesday he doubted the seeding worsened Albany's watery plight.

"Since it rained as much or more for a 200-mile area, I doubt seriously that the cloud seeding aggravated it," said Carr.

The 200-mile area Carr mentioned refers to the stricken Hill Country 200 miles south of Albany where at least 23 are known dead from wild flooding last week along the Guadalupe and Medina Rivers.

Red Cross workers and federal disaster administration staffers could be seen in the flood zones Tuesday helping the refugees. Red Cross spokesman Linda Daxon said the relief agency provided 19,582 meals to flood victims between Aug. 1 and Monday.

In South Central Texas, federal investigators were trying to determine why that area's death toll was so high.

A National Weather Service team is investigating the system used last week to warn of rapidly approaching floodwaters and county officials disagree about who was to blame should be placed for the flooding's high fatality count.

Water from the rain-swollen Brazos also receded from Graham, which was more than one-third underwater during the weekend.

The director of the National Weather Service, Dr. George P. Cressman, has assigned a federal team to investigate why the death toll was so high despite early warnings, and the team Tuesday spent its second day interviewing Hill Country survivors.

Cressman said evidence indicated early forecast and flood warnings were broadcast and local safety officials reacted promptly last Tuesday night and Wednesday morning when remnants of Amelia dumped up to 30 inches of rain on the headwaters of the Guadalupe and Medina rivers.

"But the death toll still remained high," Cressman said. "We need to find out the reason for those deaths and if there are any aspects of the warning system that need correcting, we need to correct them."

Rainstorms Strike Area

A-J News Services

A cold front reaching from the Great Lakes to the Panhandle and South Plains triggered rainstorms over a number of area cities Tuesday night.

Weathermen predict a 30-percent chance of more rain today and probabilities of 30 percent tonight and 20 percent Thursday.

The rainfall was heaviest at Springlake, where 2.10 inches were reported.

Other reports included .55 at Tulia, .03

at Crosbyton, .05 at Floydada, .17 at Friona, .04 at Hereford, .19 at Levelland, .43 at Littlefield and Morton, .33 at Mulleshoe, .25 at Olton, .02 at Plainview and Post and .40 at Silvertown.

Temperatures will be in the mid-80s today and Thursday and in the mid-60s tonight, weathermen predict.

The wind was expected to be southeasterly at five to 10 mph today and tonight.

Forecasts call for six hours of sunshine today and eight hours Thursday over the South Plains.

Thunderstorms occurred in large sections of the nation today without halting a heat wave along the West Coast.

Heavy rain flooded streets in El Paso and surged through homes near Coronado. An inch and a half of rain was measured near Fort Davis.

Heavy rains diminished in the North Carolina mountains and a flash flood watch was called off.

Thunderstorms were scattered along a cold front from the upper Great Lakes to Kansas, eastern Colorado, western Nebraska and the Texas Panhandle. Other thunderstorms occurred in Maine, the Gulf coast states, Arizona, California and Tennessee.

Temperatures above 100 gripped sections of California, southern Washington and northern Idaho Tuesday and no end was in sight.

Bakersfield, Calif., had 22 consecutive days above 100 with a 109 Tuesday. Fresno had 13 straight days over 100. It was 119 in Red Bluff Tuesday. Parts of the Southern California deserts had 115-degree readings.

High temperatures, low humidity and light winds hampered firefighting in the worst forest fire of the northern California summer. The fire, ignited by lightning Sunday, burned 19,500 acres in the Modoc National Forest.

"Sure it's hot," said a shopper in Fresno, "but, once it reaches 100 degrees, what's the difference how high it goes?"

County officials, meanwhile, disagreed over whether the NWS warnings were adequate but admitted some residents may have been lulled into a false sense of security since the heavy rains fell upstream and flash flood warnings are issued often in the area.

Kerr County Sheriff Paul Fields said residents in the Hill Country may have ignored the warnings much as residents of coastal areas often try to ride out hurricanes despite weather alerts.

Hurricane Advances

MIAMI (UPI) — Cora, the season's first Atlantic hurricane, churned slowly toward the West Indies today, packing 80 mph winds which forecasters said would not threaten land for at least the next two days.

At 5 a.m. CDT, Cora was estimated near latitude 13.9 north, longitude 47.7 west, or about 1,250 miles east-southeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, an advisory from the National Hurricane Center said.

Forecasters said winds near the center of the storm measured 80 mph and gale-force winds extended outward for 100 miles.

"Cora will gradually build to about 90 mph in the next 36 hours," said forecaster Joe Pelissier, "but it will still be too far away to hurt anyone immediately."

The hurricane was moving west at 15 to 20 mph, and Pelissier said it would continue to move in that direction and "may be a little northwest for the next three days."

Weather satellites have been tracking the hurricane, which is still out of range of the Air Force's "Hurricane Hunter" planes.

Pelissier said it was much too soon to predict Cora's path.

"It could just curve out to sea, as some storms do, and never hit land. About one-third of the hurricanes that form that far out at that latitude continue to west into the Caribbean Sea. The other two-thirds curve north. Some of them hit the U.S. mainland, some curve out to sea," Pelissier said.

Thunderstorms were scattered along a cold front from the upper Great Lakes to Kansas, eastern Colorado, western Nebraska and the Texas Panhandle. Other thunderstorms occurred in Maine, the Gulf coast states, Arizona, California and Tennessee.

Temperatures above 100 gripped sections of California, southern Washington and northern Idaho Tuesday and no end was in sight.

reign as spiritual leader of the world's Roman Catholics.

Among the security arrangements was the deployment of the special anti-terrorist security units that have been investigating the Red Brigades urban guerrilla gang that killed former Italian Premier Aldo Moro, the officials said.

The officials would not specify how many of the 5,000 were anti-terrorist agents but police sources said the number was small. Police officials said most of the force was made up of honor guards, traffic controllers and military orchestras to clear the way for the papal cortege and salute its passing.

The Red Brigades killed Moro, a personal friend of the late pope, May 9 after holding him hostage 55 days. At one point during his captivity Pope Paul issued an emotional plea "on bended knee" for the guerrilla gang to release the political leader.

As the security forces gathered, a bomb explosion damaged the door of the church of Our Lady of the Rosary in a suburb of the northern city of Turin early today in the second attack on Roman Catholic church property in Italy since the death of Pope Paul VI.

The Turin explosion, which also smashed windows in adjoining buildings, was not immediately claimed by any of the more than 200 terrorist groups of the right and left operating in Italy.

On Monday, two firebombs had caused minor damage to the door of a Franciscan monastery at Rimini.

An anonymous telephone caller who said he spoke for the "Young Organizer Proletarians" told a newspaper: "We did it to celebrate the death of... Paul VI."

Police sources said they did not think the Red Brigades would attempt any spectacular operations in connection with the pope's death but that discreet security precautions had been initiated for protection of the 113 Roman Catholic cardinals already in the city or arriving shortly to take part in choosing a new pontiff.

Only 113 cardinals are taking part in the conclave later this month because the two other church princes eligible to vote on a new pontiff are unable to travel for medical reasons.

Cardinal John J. Wright, former Pittsburgh archbishop who now heads the Vatican's Congregation of the Clergy, is in Boston for cataract surgery.

Cardinal Valerian Gracias, 78, archbishop of Bombay, India, is seriously ill at home and also will not be attending, Vatican sources said.

Part of the route of the papal cortege from Castel Gandolfo to St. Peter's is over the ancient Via Appia.

Once in the city of Rome, the cortege was to stop briefly at St. John Lateran Basilica, then wind around the towering ruins of the Colosseum and through the Roman Forum and then to the Vatican.

The cortege to the Vatican comes after the final day of lying in state at Castel Gandolfo during which about 5,000 faithful, some of whom were waiting since dawn, filed through the viewing hall.

A tier set before the main altar in the renaissance opulence of St. Peter's Basilica awaited the body of Pope Paul, who will be buried in the crypts reserved for

Inflation Hits Income Hike

WASHINGTON (AP) — The median family income in 1977 was $16,010, about 7 percent higher than the 1976 median of $14,960, a new government report shows. But inflation of 6.5 percent wiped out most of the gain.

The Census Bureau report, obtained by The Associated Press before its official release, shows also that there were 1.2 million fewer poor people in the United States in 1977 than in 1975.

New figures show there were 24.7 million persons below the poverty level in 1977, compared with 25.9 million in 1975. The poverty line for 1977 was $6,191 for a non-farm family of four.

The change from 1976 to 1977 was minimal.

The report coincided with a Census Bureau report released Tuesday showing that the number of poor people in the United States decreased 3.5 percent in 1976 from the previous year — dropping from 25.9 million to 25 million.

The decrease was in sharp contrast to two previous years when the number of poor people in America was on the rise. The number increased by 1.3 million in 1974 and 2.5 million in 1975.

A section on median income in the latest report shows that families in which the household head worked full time all year had a median income of $20,080 in 1977, an increase from $18,444 in 1976 — up 2 percent after adjusting for inflation.

Median income means that half the families earn more and half earn less.

Statistics show that white families had a median income of $16,740 in 1977, up from $15,537 the previous year — a 1 percent increase after taking inflation into account. The 1977 median income for black families was $9,560, and it was $11,420 for Latin American families in the United States. Neither was significantly different from their respective 1976 median incomes after adjusting for inflation.

Families in the Northeast enjoyed a slight recovery from 1976, the report says. The 1977 median income of families in the Northeast, $16,800, represented an increase of 2.5 percent over the 1976 median of $15,405, figures show.

It was the only region that did not experience an increase in adjusted median family income between 1975 and 1976, the report says.

After being adjusted for inflation, the 1977 median income of families in the North Central region was $16,850. In the West, it was $16,510. Neither changed significantly from 1976 to 1977, the report says.

The median income of families in the South was $14,570 — an increase from $13,419, the figures show.

The report shows that of the 57.2 million families in the United States in March 1978, about 12.8 million or 22.4 percent received incomes of $25,000 or more in 1977. There were 18.1 million families or 31.7 percent with incomes between $15,000 and $25,000; 10.6 million families or 18.4 percent with incomes between $10,000 and $15,000; 10.4 million or 18.1 percent with incomes between $5,000 and $10,000; and 5.3 million or 9.3 percent of families with incomes below $5,000.

The section on poverty shows that of almost 25 million poor people in the United States in 1977, 31 percent were black; 11 percent were Latin American; 13 percent were 65 or older; 41 percent were children under 18; and 37 percent were in families headed by a woman with no husband present.

Although 68 percent of all the nation's families lived in metropolitan areas in 1977, only 59 percent of poor families lived in these areas.

About 50 percent of low-income white families living in metropolitan areas were residents of the central city, compared with 80 percent of poor black families living in the inner city.

Texas Tax Issues Go To Voters

come-producing capacity, not its potential selling price.

— Abolish the seldom observed constitutional rule that intangible property, such as bank accounts and securities, be taxed. The Legislature, however, could impose property taxes on intangibles if it saw fit.

— Authorize the Legislature to exempt personal automobiles from property taxes.

— Exempt household goods and personal effects, except those held or used to make money, from taxation.

— Restrict state spending increases to the same percentage as the Texas economy's growth rate. The Legislature would decide how to measure this rate.

— Mandate "truth in taxing" for all political subdivisions. Notice and hearings would be required before tax revenues could rise, even those resulting from revaluation of property.

— Prohibit statewide real estate appraisals and require enforcement of uniform appraisal standards to "originate in the county where the tax is imposed."

— Rep. Wayne Peveo, D-Orange, had wanted constitutional language mandating property tax "reform" — countywide appraisals and statewide appraisal standards in place of the present crazy quilt taxing system.

But he disagreed with opponents such as Rep. Luther Jones, D-El Paso, who said the measure gutted property tax "reform" for the future.

"The opponents of tax reform are having a good laugh now because we have erected insurmountable barriers to that reform in the future," said Jones, who refused to switch from "no" to "aye" when it became clear the measure would carry.

"The provisions we have in here take the demagoguery out of this issue and pave the way for property tax reform in the next session," Peveo said.

He referred to the fears of rural landowners and real estate men that unified property appraisals, overseen by an Austin bureaucracy, would mean higher taxes.

Assuming a 1 percent tax rate and a 50 percent assessment ratio, the $5,000 homestead exemption would save a homeowner $25 a year on property taxes. If the Legislature later approved a $10,000 added exemption for the elderly and disabled, they would save another $50 per year.

No examples or estimates were available to show how much a farmer or rancher might save from the "agricultural use" exemption, which the Legislature still must implement.

Oil Explosion Kills Three

TEMPLE, Okla. (UPI) — An oil storage tank exploded today, killing three workmen and injuring two others.

Colton County Sheriff Paul McKown said the men were working in an empty slush pit and using an acetylene torch to weld a line leading from a well to the tank about 40 to 50 feet from the pit.

McKown identified the dead as Archie Milburn, about 58; Euall Ray Douglas, about 30; and Joe Lewis, 61. All were from Temple, employed as roustabouts by the Kawnee Oil Co. of Wichita Falls.

The two injured men were taken to a Lawton hospital, McKown said.

Council To Consider Housing Code Change

partment, and money has been budgeted for additional legal staff.

"The ordinance can still work without the rent escrow provision," said Carolyn Jordan, the council member who began looking into the problem several years ago. "What we're hoping is that the landlords will be working with the department on a cordial basis, anyway. Say there was something wrong with the plumbing, they would be given 60 to 90 days to get it repaired."

Bill Kilgore, president of the Lubbock Apartment Association, said his group questions the need for the ordinance, "although we agree with the concept."

"You're talking about a small portion of the market that this concerns," he said. Kilgore also questioned the need in terms of belt-tightening at city hall to reduce the tax burden.

But Bean considers it a "minimal code" listing things to be done to "keep people in housing. We anticipate a considerable amount of tenant complaints over things not severe enough for us to intervene," he said.

In another late afternoon hearing, the council is set to hear public comments evaluating the first four years of the Community Development Block Grant Program.

Since 1975 and for the 1978-79 activities now underway, almost $19,250,000 has been budgeted, with approximately $12.5 million of that having been spent. Most of the money has gone toward neighborhood rehabilitation, street paving, water and sewer improvements, urban renewal administration and community centers.

Council approval of the sale of a five-acre tract of Civic Center land may not be needed. The sale to Billy Ray Wilder of Henderson for $455,000 has been on shaky ground the last few days. Wilder reportedly is not sure whether he can obtain a Holiday Inn franchise for construction of a 150-room hotel at 9th Street and Avenue Q.

Council members will consider authorizing a contract with the state Office of Traffic Safety to implement a Selective Traffic Enforcement Program (STEP) in October. A grant of $160,000 would provide the salaries eight officers and one sergeant along with high accident rates.

The council also is expected to set a September date for public comment on the annexation of Yellowhouse Canyon Addition. The Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended annexation on the basis of water needs of the 296 residents. The problems a private company was having with one of the two wells serving the area have been solved in the meantime.

Juan Arguello Sr.

BIG SPRING (Special) — Services for Juan R. Arguello Sr., 88, of Stanton have been set for today and Thursday in St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Stanton with the Rev. Frank Chavez of Odessa officiating.

A rosary will be said for Arguello at 8 p.m. today in St. Joseph's Catholic Church and funeral services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Burial will follow in St. Joseph's Cemetery under the direction of Nalley-Pickler Funeral Home here.

Arguello died at 6:20 p.m. Tuesday in a Big Spring hospital after a lengthy illness.

Born in Mexico, he came to Texas in 1923, moving to Martin County in 1945. He was a retired farmer and a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

He is survived by his wife, Andrea; six sons, Cruz and Bonafacio, both of Stanton, Juan Jr. and J. G., both of Big Spring, Y. C. of Odessa and Paul of Lansing, Mich.; four daughters, Macaria Chavez of Big Spring, Mary Marquez and Frances Valles, both of Stanton, and Elisa Marquez of Odessa; 46 grandchildren and 32 great-grandchildren.

Garcia died at 8:40 a.m. Tuesday in High Plains hospital in Hale Center after a brief illness.

Garcia moved to Olton in 1950 from Colorado. He was employed by Olton Farm Supply for eight years and he farmed until his retirement in 1971.

Survivors include his wife, Vivina; six daughters, Amelia Begar of Phoenix, Ariz., Betty Hernandez of San Jose, Sandra DeLaRosa of Olton, Regina Flores of Lorenzo and Jane and Mamie, both of the home; a brother, Jose of Espanola, N.M.; and 15 grandchildren.

Rev. Vonnie Herron

MIDLAND (Special) — The Rev. Vonnie Thomas Herron, pastor of St. Luke A.M.E. Church here, died at 10:15 a.m. Tuesday in Lubbock's West Texas Hospital after apparently suffering a heart attack shortly before a scheduled public appearance.

He was scheduled to preach at the Northwest Conference of the Texas Area of the African Methodist Episcopal Church at Lubbock Tuesday morning.

Services for Herron are pending with Jackson Funeral Home here. Lubbock arrangements are by South Plains Funeral Home.

Norman A. Klink

BROWNFIELD (Special) — Services for Norman A. Klink, 67, of Brownfield, will be at 8 p.m. Thursday in Immanuel Baptist Church here, with the Rev. L. E. Lang, pastor, officiating.

Burial will be at 5 p.m. Thursday in Eldorado Cemetery at Eldorado under direction of Brownfield Funeral Home here.

Klink died Tuesday at 10:15 a.m. in Brownfield General Hospital after a brief illness.

Klink was a retired machinist for Tri-matic Irrigation here, and a member of Immanuel Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife; two sons, Norman Thomas of Houston and Darrell of Hannibal, Mo.; a daughter, Barbara Ingram of Clearwater, Fla.; a brother, Robert of Tulsa, Okla.; a sister, Worlie Kay Klink of Lameta, Calif.; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Clarence Lang

Services for Clarence Madison Lang, 75, of 3436 70th Drive were at 2:30 p.m. today in Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. Gregory D. Hagg, pastor of Grace Chapel, officiating.

Burial will be in City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

Lang apparently suffered a fatal heart attack about 9:45 p.m. Monday while driving north on University Avenue. His car went out of control and struck a garage at 2330 56th St., home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hill. The vehicle was moving slowly when it hit the garage.

Lang was pronounced dead at the scene. Justice of the Peace Charles Smith ruled the death due to natural causes.

Lang, a Lubbock resident the past 42 years, was in the freight business and owned and operated Lang Transit Co. from 1936 to 1969.

He was a member of Grace Chapel and the Yellowhouse Masonic Lodge.

Survivors include his wife, Bonnie; two sons, Don and C. W., both of Lubbock; two daughters, Billie West of Wolforth and Becky White of Lubbock; two brothers, William of Lubbock and John of El Paso; two sisters, Viola Hart of Lubbock and Callie Flanagan of Marietta, Okla.; 13 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren and two great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers were Arthur Stark, Charles Spears, Wilson Alpanalp, Clarence Ashcraft, Don Shinn and Charles Ewing.

Defense Spending Bill Wins House Approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today approved a $119.2 billion defense spending bill after voting to sharply curtail abortions in the military.

The measure was sent to the Senate on a 339-60 vote.

By a 226-163 vote, the House approved an amendment banning the use of defense funds to pay for abortions, except in cases where the life of the mother would be endangered by carrying the fetus to term.

Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., sponsor of the proposal, said, "28,000 abortions are performed by the military using defense dollars, and I'm sure the irony of the word 'defense' comes home to all of us." He said many people feel it would "place a curse" on the military to permit that many abortions among servicemen and dependents.

Arguing against the amendment, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., said the move would "discourage married men and women from entering our armed forces," thereby undermining national defense.

The bill, the largest appropriation ever, has survived five attempts over two days to make a total of $5.2 billion in across-the-board cuts, either throughout the measure or in broad spending areas.

Most of the controversy over the bill has focused on its $2.1 billion appropriation for a nuclear aircraft carrier which President Carter has criticized as a waste of money.

Administration sources said Carter is not threatening to veto the measure because of the ship, but may ask Congress later to rescind the carrier money.

The House voted Monday to keep the carrier money in the bill. The Senate has authorized the ship.

More attempts were made Tuesday to cut defense spending.

Rep. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, proposed a 2 percent cut — about $2.2 billion — as "an attempt to get control of the federal budget. No one can tell me there's not 2 percent waste and inefficiency in the military, just as there is in every other agency."

He noted the House already has imposed across-the-board cuts in several appropriation bills.

Harkin's amendment was rejected, 252-102. A proposal by Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., to cut 1 percent — a little more than $1 billion — was defeated, 223-136.

Rep. Harold Volkmer, D-Mo., proposed a $643.2 million cut "to keep faith with the taxpayers. I don't think it's too much to ask to have a 2 percent savings for the taxpayers."

Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., ranking Republican on the Appropriations Committee, criticized the cutbacks as "totally irresponsible." He has defended the bill as containing no padding.

Appropriations Committee Chairman George Mahon, D-Texas, opposed Volkmer's proposal on grounds it would deny servicemen "the tools they need to defend the country."

Bowdach Tells Senate Panel About Atlanta Prison Murders

By JAY PERKINS
WASHINGTON (AP) — A convicted loan shark told a Senate subcommittee today how inmates at the federal government's Atlanta Penitentiary killed six men and planned to kill a seventh.

The murder weapons, according to Gary Bowdach, ranged from hatchets and knives to a match thrown on a sleeping inmate who had been doused with cleaning fluid.

Some of the murders, Bowdach told the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations, were done under contract by inmates who were paid with outside funds. In at least one case, he said, funds for the killing were brought into the penitentiary by a guard who was unaware of what the money was to be used for.

Bowdach, in his fourth day of testimony before the subcommittee, said weapons in the Atlanta Penitentiary, where he was an inmate, "are about as easy to get as a toothbrush."

"Everybody is armed except the guards. You can get knives, hatchets, swords, guns — anything you want."

Bowdach, 35, supplied the names of the victims, the approximate date of the killings and the names of persons he was told committed the offenses during his testimony.

He did not place himself either as a participant in or a witness to any of the slayings he discussed, saying he got his information from other inmates.

In one case, he said, an inmate was killed by another for $500 after the victim had sold narcotics that "turned out to be basically sugar" to a third inmate.

"He (the killer) degouted him with a knife in the prison industry building," Bowdach said of that killing. In another case, he said, the victim was decapitated with a knife and in a third killing the victim was "hatcheted to death."

Bowdach also testified that one inmate, who had been the victim of an armed robbery over narcotics inside the prison, killed the robber by burning the man to death after locking him in his cell.

He said the victim was doused with paint thinner and set fire. A guard attempted to open the locked cell but "by the time he got back (from throwing the master switch to open the cell) he had just about melted."

Although Bowdach testified in detail about five murders and about one planned homicide, he was told not to say anything about a sixth slaying, that of Vincent Papa.

Papa, reputed mastermind of the theft of about 400 pounds of heroin from the New York City police property clerk's office in 1972 — heroin that was seized when the French Connection ring was broken — was stabbed to death in the Atlanta prison last July.

Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., vice chairman of the subcommittee, noted that the Justice Department was investigating that murder and said the department "feels that any public testimony now concerning the details of this killing could well impair the successful prosecution of the people involved."

Jason Wayne Turner, 4-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Turner of Alvin, remained in serious condition Wednesday in Methodist Hospital with injuries he sustained when struck by a car Friday afternoon in the 2400 block of 23rd Street. Police said the child apparently ran from behind a parked vehicle into the path of an eastbound auto.

News Briefs

Firemen were too late this morning to save a Monterey Center business which was heavily damaged by a fire apparently erupting between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

The fire, which caused an estimated $50,000 to $60,000 damage to Lubbock Beauty Supply, started at least by 9:25 p.m. when electrical power was shut off in the small business at the back of the 50th Street and Gary Avenue shopping center.

By the time about 20 firefighters arrived at the scene shortly before 8 a.m. today, there was nothing to put out, Lubbock Fire Department Capt. George Whitworth said.

The blaze, which destroyed all the contents of the building, including highly flammable hair spray, apparently stayed alive through the night without anyone noticing it, Whitworth said.

"It looks to me like someone in the parking lot would have smelled smoke," said Dean King, owner of the business.

King said he estimates a loss figure of $50,000 to $60,000 in the fire. It was not known this morning what caused the blaze which apparently started after King closed the 2,000-square-foot shop at 6 p.m.

Firemen were not notified until an employee of a business adjacent to King's store came to work this morning and smelled smoke.

The fire caused smoke damage to Fiesta Hair Stylists and Toddies clothes shop which are located east of the beauty supply shop. Two vacant shops east of King's shop also sustained smoke damage.

Whitworth said it appeared the fire began near a table in the middle of the store.

Lubbockite Sentenced By Jury

John T. Cameron was assessed a 15-year prison term by a jury here today as the result of a $1,600 holdup of a local food store earlier this year.

The punishment was meted out by the same 14th District Court jury which Tuesday had found Cameron guilty of aggravated robbery.

The nine-woman, three-man panel had deliberated approximately 3½ hours before returning to announce the 15-year punishment this morning.

Cameron, 29, of 1512 E. 1st St., was found guilty of the Jan. 16 holdup of the Serv-U Food Mart at 2017 4th St.

Store clerk Robert Edgar McDowell, 22, identified Cameron as the man who allegedly handed him a holdup note about 4:30 p.m. and displayed an apparent handgun before exiting the business with the approximate $1,600.

A second key state witness, police Officer John Strange, testified he apprehended Cameron following a high-speed chase only a few minutes after the holdup.

Strange indicated that $1,630 was found in Cameron's car, and said officers also seized a loaded pistol as a result of the arrest.

The state introduced evidence during the punishment phase of the trial indicating Cameron had twice before been convicted in connection with armed robbery charges.

Referring to Came on, Assistant District Attorney Cindy Miller urged jurors to "stop him in his tracks."

"Five years did not do the job, and six years did not do the job," she said, in reference to reported earlier sentences.

"Maybe five times six years will do it." The prosecutor argued that a lower range of punishment in the case was "out of the question."

The defense countered by producing several character witnesses, who lauded Cameron personally and as an employee.

Cameron has been employed at Texas Tech University under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA). Among witnesses speaking on the defendant's behalf was Charles Neil of the Tech College of Business Administration.

Another witness praising Cameron was a former supervisor at the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG), where Cameron was employed before working at Tech.

According to testimony, Cameron, who is married and has two children, has performed with exceptional ability since beginning employment at the local university in March.

Defense attorney John Montford referred to the case as a sad one.

"Evidence shows he has rehabilitated, but now we have to send him back to prison," the lawyer said.

He urged jurors to "punish" Cameron, but not to "destroy" him with their verdict.

Ramona Freeman

Services for Ramona Aurelia Freeman, 46, of 1623 69th St. have been set for 2 p.m. Thursday in Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. Bill Gibson, pastor at Temple Baptist Church, officiating, assisted by Helen Bass.

Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

Mrs. Freeman died at 9 p.m. Monday in St. Mary's Hospital after a six-month illness.

Mrs. Freeman was a native of Crosby County and a graduate of Crosbyton High School. She married John Edwin Freeman Oct. 23, 1948, at Crosbyton and moved to Lubbock in the same year. She was the bookkeeper for her husband at Rhodes Safety Center.

Mrs. Freeman was a member of Temple Baptist Church and a past president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Survivors include her husband; three sons, Mike of Midland, David and Scott, both of Lubbock; a sister, Shirley Sanders of Lubbock; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Horace Sandlin, C. B. Gilliland, Raymond Chance, Kenneth Lofland, A. C. Black and Tommy Wright.

Martin Mayer's Latest Book Brings American Builders To Life

By WILLIAM GILLEN
 NEW YORK (AP)—"The Builders," Martin Mayer's latest epic, takes on a Medusa-like subject: houses, people, neighborhoods, governments, money. Mayer, known for his treatment of complex American institutions in such books as "The Bankers," "The Lawyers" and "The Schools," upholds his reputation as a readable analyst of one of our basic industries.

Why "Builders"? "It's an important subject," Mayer, a prolific magazine writer, said in a recent interview. "It's a fascinating industry, the most fragmented industry in the country. "I'm not a crusader," Mayer continued. "I'm interested in what people do and why they think they do it. Then I ask myself 'Are they kidding themselves?'"

This curiosity leads to some prodigious research, the hallmark of Mayer's books. For "The Builders," he visited six European countries and 20 American states and interviewed about 1,000 experts.

He brings to life the builders of this country, ranging from Dave Fox, whose firm has built 35 percent of the new homes in Dallas, to Leon Strauss, the biggest redeveloper in St. Louis, to William Levitt, the father of the Levittown suburban developments that sprung up after World War II.

Chapters on the "new town" movement, urban renewal, neighborhoods and public housing explain, inform and entertain.

A quote from Gale Cincotta of Chicago, a leader of the national movement to revitalize the nation's neighborhoods, sums up, for example, the attributes required by urban activists.

"We won that junior high school 52 times before they actually agreed to build it," Mrs. Cincotta said of a crusade she and her neighbors waged against the city's bureaucracies and politicians. Mayer began work on "The Builders" in 1974 at the suggestion of the housing-oriented Lavanburg Foundation of New York. His next major work will be an opus, planned for release in 1980, on diplomacy.

"It's a very interesting field," he said, leaning back in a chair and lighting up a pipe at his publisher's office overlooking the New York Public Library at Fifth Avenue and 42nd Street. In the meantime, Mayer is also working on a mystery, "a thriller with an Asian background."

Unable To Cook, Elderly Rely On Meals Program

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Fourth in a Series

"They say the Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want.
"But I still want Meals on Wheels."

—An elderly man

They are old and unable to cook for themselves because of illness or lack of transportation to the grocery store.

Relatives and neighbors are busy living their own lives. The aged must care for themselves or learn where to go for help.

Meals on Wheels provides a hot, nutritionally balanced meal five days a week to the homebound.

Persons who deliver the lunches also provide social contact with the shut-ins who may see no one all week except the volunteer who knocks on the door at 11 each weekday morning and says, "It's lunchtime, Mrs. Jones."

For those senior citizens who are able to leave their homes, Lubbock has seven nutrition sites where hot lunches are provided in an atmosphere of shared companionship.

In either program, older citizens experience the same emotion. Someone cares.

On Saturday and Sunday no one knocked at her door. For two days she had fed herself powdered soup mix and crackers. Her arthritis-crippled hands made it impossible to open canned food. Vision failing and unsteady on her feet, it would have been hazardous to attempt the walk to the fast-food restaurant two blocks away. On warm summer days when her windows were open, the smell of fried chicken blew in through the screen. But today was Monday. A Meals on Wheels volunteer would knock on her door.

Lubbock Meals on Wheels delivers lunch Monday through Friday to those over 55 who are unable to prepare a balanced meal for themselves and who have no one in the home to cook for them.

Mary Williams, a registered nurse and director of the program since its inception in 1971, doesn't forget about her customers on weekends.

"We give them a list of foods and ask them to have friends or neighbors put these emergency supplies in the pantry," she said.

Those easy to prepare items include instant cereal, dried fruits, peanut butter, crackers and jelly, canned or dried soups, canned meat, powdered milk, powdered or canned juice, canned vegetables and instant coffee, tea or hot chocolate.

For the blind, alone on weekends, a trip to the pantry for a canned meal can be nutritional Russian roulette.

Mr. Smith (mythical as an individual, yet a factual composite of several blind persons in the program) has been a widower for the past 10 of his 85 years. Cataracts eventually left him sightless. He walks with the aid of a cane. The neighborhood children knock on his door for fun. He feels his way along the wall to stumble to his front door. The children laugh and run away.

Sunday morning when the neighborhood was quiet of weekday traffic noise, he opened his pantry door and reached for a can. He shook it. It sounded like a liquid. It wasn't very heavy. Maybe it's soup, he thought. His mouth watered in anticipation of tomato soup.

It was canned evaporated milk — his Sunday meal.

But today was Monday and a volunteer would knock on his door and bring a hot lunch.

It was much different when his wife was alive, his health was better and the children noisily scrambled for their favorite chairs at the dinner table.

All the children grew up and moved away. Only one son still lived in the city.

Last week the son disappeared. So did Mr. Smith's social security check.

It's not part of the Meals on Wheels program, but Mrs. Williams encourages See MEALS AID ESPECIALLY HELPFUL Page 16

Controversy On Ruling Continues

AUSTIN (AP) — It's up to the pro-liquor forces again to change Abilene's "dry as a bone" status following a state district judge's action.

Judge Charles Mathews on Tuesday threw out a tally by the Taylor County commissioners that showed wet forces won a June 17 local option liquor election in the West Texas town.

He let stand an earlier canvass that showed liquor failed, with one voting box being thrown out.

"We got what we asked for," said Buck Wood, attorney for two Abilene residents who sued the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission to prevent liquor permits being issued in their town.

Among options left to those favoring alcoholic beverage sales are an election. See LIQUOR VOTE Page 16

Jail Oversight Causes Overstay

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Harris County Sheriff's Department says an oversight by a jailer was responsible for a man being kept in jail for nine months although charges against him had been dismissed.

Robert Arceneaux, former manager of the Harris County courts, says a computer system in use at the time Otis Wayne Winfree's case was dismissed in August 1975, should have pinpointed the fact Winfree, 35, had not been released, but it was not capable of providing this information.

Winfree is seeking $300,000 in damages for his stay.

Storm Rate Up In Texas

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Texas has recorded 127 tornadoes, the most in the nation so far this year, the National Severe Storms Forecast Center reported Tuesday.

Preliminary figures show 700 tornadoes have been reported across the country from January through July as compared to an average of 523 for the seven-month period, the center said.

Texas, which normally has about 80 twisters during the period, was followed by Florida, which reported 75 tornadoes in 1978 compared to 23 for the average; North Dakota, which reported 47 compared with an average of 11, and Minnesota, which reported 39 compared to an average of 12.

Allen Pearson, head of the forecast center, said duplicate sightings or straight winds mistaken for twisters could reduce the total by about 10 percent.

Eleven of the 700 reported twisters were killers and claimed 29 lives, less than half of the normal rate for tornado fatalities. Sixteen of the victims drowned June 17 on Pomona Lake in Kansas when a small tornado capsized an excursion boat. Another death was recorded when a waterspout went ashore at Kill Devil Hills, N.C., the first waterspout death since 1967.

Pearson said several tornado prone areas of the country had light seasons, notably the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys, the southeastern states and New England.

California reported 12 tornadoes, all in the first three months of the year. Nebraska ranked fifth with 37 twisters reported, followed by Kansas 34, Arkansas 28, South Dakota 23 and Indiana and Iowa both reported 21.

Oklahoma ranked 11th with 20, Wyoming had 19, Alabama 18, Wisconsin 16, Louisiana 15, Illinois, Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio had 14 each and North Carolina had 13.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK
Do you know how you can tell you're getting older?

When everyone around you gets younger. Getting old is discovering your priest smells like bubble gum, your lawyer is fighting acne, and your son's math teacher is wearing a training bra.

It's when an eight-year-old kid (who doesn't even own a sweatband) aces you in tennis. When a 16-year-old offers to parallel park your car for you when you fall apart in traffic. When a four-year-old takes the cap off a child-proof aspirin bottle for you.

It happened again last weekend when I was wandering through a department store and inadvertently found myself in the yard goods department. It looked like Woodstock.

Young girls who couldn't have been in their teens were flipping through pattern books like they lived there. Slumping tiredly on a stool, I couldn't help but overhear their conversation.

"If it has no pattern repeat, you could get by with the 44-inch stuff and a quarter of a yard less. I made it last week in one evening." (I couldn't thread my needle in one evening.)

"There's a remnant over there I know Linda could get an entire pants suit out of."

"I'm not starting on anything until I finish the coat."

"If you can't get your size, get the next one and we'll alter the pattern."

Then a salesperson approached me. She wore braces and couldn't have been more than 12. "Could I help you with something?"

"Well, the truth is..."

"You need something easy? Here's a pattern with only five pieces."

"That many?" I asked. "Actually, I was looking for something rather simple."

"Look, if you have any problems with gussets or facings or handling the new fabrics, just bring it in and I'll help you with it." (Gussets? I thought you made gray out of 'em at Thanksgiving.)

"That's terribly sweet of you," I said. "For starters, I'll have three yards of this crepe, a yard and a half of silk, and some corduroy for bedspreads."

I watched this child with pure respect as she added a row of fractions and came up with a total.

Call it pride. I didn't have the heart to tell her I don't sew.

At each world championship, the Dutch firm of Lucas

Bols, makers of fine liqueurs, presents a prize for the most brilliant play or defense of the tournament. We feel that this effort by world team champion Billy Eisenberg of Los Angeles will be a top contender for the award.

"Second hand low" is an old bridge adage. However, experienced players know that sometimes it is right for second hand to play high. On this deal, Eisenberg showed that "second hand middle" was the only way to defeat the contract.

After a Stayman sequence, North-South arrived at a normal three no trump contract. Since his long suit had been bid at his right, Eisenberg selected the safe lead of the ten of clubs. There were several ways for declarer to make his contract as the cards lay, but we will simply report the play as it went.

Declarer won the club in dummy and led a diamond to the queen. When this held, he shifted to a low heart. Eisenberg followed with the jack!

Watch the effect of this farsighted play. Dummy's queen of hearts won, and the jack of diamonds was run. A diamond to the ace cleared the suit, and declarer exited with the king of hearts.

West won the ace and continued the nine of clubs, which was allowed to hold. Another club went to declarer's ace. A spade to the ace put declarer in dummy to cash the thirteenth diamond. Now a heart was led off the table.

Because Eisenberg had unblocked at trick three, East was able to win the ten and cash his remaining club. Then, at trick thirteen, he led a spade to his partner's king to defeat the contract one trick.

Had Eisenberg failed to unblock, he would eventually have been end played and forced to lead away from his king of spades, thus giving declarer his contract. The variations are interesting, and you might like to try them for yourself.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" #### DRIP PAN

Remember to put a drip pan under the roast to catch drippings when cooking over coals to prevent excessive smoke. Inserting a meat thermometer into the center of the roast is the best way to determine the "doneness" of your meat, say U.S. Department of Agriculture home economists.

PINAFIRE GOES RED — Crayon red corduroy overalls with pinafore styling are perfect for fall. The Micky Mouse appliques add a fun touch.

FROZEN CAPPUCCINO

1/4 cup milk
1/3 cup brandy or more
3 scoops jamoca ice cream, slightly softened
3 scoops chocolate fudge ice cream, slightly softened
Chocolate curls, optional
Pour milk and brandy into the blender container. Add the 6 scoops of slightly softened ice cream. Whirr just until blended. Pour into stemmed glasses and serve immediately as an after-dinner dessert. (Or, freeze at least 3 hours.) Serve, if desired, topped with chocolate curls. Makes 4 servings.

NEW DETAILS — This three-quarter length, double-breasted coat with dropped shoulders, dotman sleeves and exaggerated, round lapels is equally effective for country or city wear. Its easy proportions make it a pleasure to wear.

The Slim Gourmet

Can you name an all-natural meat extender that's on hand in every supermarket's frozen food case? The answer is lima beans. A 10-ounce package of frozen limas has as much protein as a quarter-pound of hamburger...and no fat whatsoever!

Lima beans are said to be "fattening" because they're usually compared with other vegetables...not with meat. At 290 calories for a 10-ounce frozen package, lima beans are admittedly a lot more calories than string beans or squash...but a lot more filling and less fattening than their protein-equivalent in most meats. Adding a 10-ounce package of lima beans to a meat dish or slow-simmer stew is like adding one more serving of meat.

Here are some to try:

VEAL AND BEAN BAKE

2 onions, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 tsp. cooking oil
2 lbs. veal, lean, trimmed of any fat, cut in 2-inch cubes
1/2 tsp. dried basil
1/2 tsp. dried oregano
1/2 tsp. dried rosemary salt and pepper to taste
4 tomatoes, large, ripe, peeled, seeded and diced
10-oz. pkg. lima beans, frozen
Sauté the onion and garlic in oil until soft. Add veal and cook quickly until browned. Add seasonings and tomatoes. Cover; bake 1 1/2 hours at 350 degrees until the meat is tender. Add the beans and continue baking, covered, until they are cooked, about 15 minutes. Makes nine servings, 210 calories each.

PROVINCETOWN PORTUGUESE STEW

1 lb. lamb (or beef) stew meat, lean, fat-trimmed
1 cup water

3 tbsps. cider vinegar
2 cups tomatoes, diced, fresh or canned
2 cloves garlic, minced (or 1/4 tsp. instant)

1 onion, thin-sliced
4 ribs celery, thin-sliced
1 tsp. mixed poultry seasoning
1 bay leaf
10-oz. pkg. lima beans, frozen
Cut meat into 2-inch cubes, trimming and discarding fat, if any. Spray a heavy skillet with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Add meat and brown over high heat, no fat added. Drain fat, if any.

Add water, vinegar, tomatoes, garlic, onion, celery and seasonings. Cover and simmer over very low heat for 1 1/2 hours, or longer, until meat is tender. Add lima beans. Heat to simmering. Cover and simmer until tender, about 15 minutes. Serves five, about 225 calories each.

The following recipe is a whole meal for five.

BEEF AND LIMA BEAN CHILIED SKILLET

1 lb. beef round, lean, fat-trimmed, ground
1 onion, peeled, halved, sliced
2 ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded, chopped (or 8-oz. can)
1 green pepper, seeded and sliced
1 rib celery, minced
10-oz. pkg. lima beans, frozen
1 cup tomato juice
1 tsp. chili powder (or more, to taste) salt, or garlic salt, and pepper to taste

Spread the meat in a non-stick skillet sprayed with cooking spray for no-fat frying. Brown over moderate heat, then break into chunks. Turn to brown evenly. Drain and discard fat, if any. Add remaining ingredients. Cover and simmer 15 minutes, until lima beans are tender. Uncover and continue to cook until most of the liquid evaporates. Makes five servings, 215 calories each.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I agree totally with your criticism of women's fashions this year. There is no match for today's tacky designs, tacky workmanship and tacky fabrics. Is it any wonder so many women prefer to wear last year's comfortable, flattering pantsuits?

I remember the battle you put up against those crippling, pointed-toe, spike-heeled shoes some years back, and shortly afterward, they went out of style and were replaced with more sensible shoes.

Perhaps if more women would refuse to buy the new ridiculous clothes, the designers will get the message and give us something more elegant and feminine again.

NOT BUYING IN '78

DEAR ABBY: Accolades to you for protesting the absurd new women's fashions! Like you, I am also wearing what I think becomes me even though it may be several years old.

Let the fashion industry do their thing. Meanwhile, I'm sure that millions of style-conscious women will join you in protesting the new freakish-looking clothes by refusing to buy them.

GRANDMOTHER IN MARYLAND

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for protesting the ugly, outrageous new fashions the designers are trying to force on women this year.

I agree, the new clothes for women are a bad joke. Thanks for saying that you will either wear your old clothes or have something new made.

Women my age (40) are not buying this year.

WITH YOU ALL THE WAY

Dear With: Most of my readers were "with me" — but not all. Here's equal time for the other side:

DEAR ABBY: Just because you don't happen to look good in this year's clothes doesn't give you the right to put down models. You said the new clothes look like they were designed for women with no breasts and no hips, who stand 6 feet tall and weigh 105 pounds.

I am a model, and those happen to be MY dimensions. But for your information, the clothes are NOT designed for us models; they are designed for women of all shapes and sizes. However, models with the abovementioned proportions show off the CLOTHES better!

SIX FEET AND 105

Dear Six: I don't want to put you tall, lean girls out of work, but just once I'd like to see clothes modeled by girls who are 5 feet 4 inches with well-padded hips, ample breasts and a viable tummy.

DEAR TASTELESS ABBY: Why in the world would you want to perpetuate your antiquated ideas on the fashion-minded public?

In today's market, with such a wide variety of soft fabrics and feminine styles, there is something becoming for every woman.

After years of the unkempt, sloppy look, and polyester pantsuits, women are starting to dress and look like ladies again.

FRANKIE IN PHILA.

Dear Frankie: Please tell me where to find these "lovely, feminine styles." All I've seen are the oversized, layer-on-layer sloppy Russian peasant styles that make most women (me included) look like "Mrs. Five-by-Five."

DEAR ABBY: In reference to your swipe at this year's fashions: You said, "This year's fashions are intentionally kooky in order to make milady's last year's clothes look completely outdated."

Where have you been? You seem to have overlooked many of this year's styles which are flattering and feminine.

Oh, yes, there are a few far-out, unusual styles, but they are far from kooky and ridiculous as you claimed. A more appropriate description for them is "fun" clothes.

LIKES THE NEW LOOK

Dear Likes: I'm not sure I know what "fun clothes" are, but I can tell you that it's not "fun" to pay the prices they're asking for shoddy, unflattering merchandise. Women of the world, unite! Wear what you have as long as you can get the zippers up!

Improve Your Lifestyle

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.
DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 68-year-old woman and I hear my heart beat in my ears at night. It is driving me crazy and I cannot sleep until three or five in the morning. My doctor said nothing can be done for it and I have to live with it.

I do smoke a half pack of cigarettes a day and drink some coffee, but I only drink Sanka at the evening meal. I have been under a lot of stress since I got this beating in my ears just two years ago. Is there anything I can do to get rid of it?

DEAR READER — Many people can hear their heart beat if they're lying on their side with the ear against the pillow or mattress. You may be able to get rid of this sound simply by lying on your back. Some people can do it by sleeping on their other side.

In any case it is not a sign of ill health. It is more a sign of an active circulation, coupled with a high level of awareness on the part of the patient — you, in this case.

It is true that coffee heightens your sense of awareness and increases your nervousness because of its caffeine content. I think if you wanted to help eliminate your general tension and stress you'd be wise to switch to a decaffeinated brand of coffee all day long and eliminate regular coffee entirely.

You also should eliminate tea and any other beverages that contain caffeine. It will help your circulation if you'll stop smoking entirely. It would certainly help your lungs.

Aside from that, the other thing that might really help you is to use regular daily exercise as a means of relaxation. You may not feel vigorous enough to go out and do a lot, but a good daily walk will do a lot to help the body function in a more normal manner. You could start with a short walk of about 15 minutes a day and gradually build up.

Exercise too close to bedtime may cause you to stay awake, so I would recommend that you get your exercise during the day or early in the evening and not exercise in the hours immediately before going to bed.

If you can just improve your sleeping habits that might help a lot. For that reason I'm sending you The Health Letter number 10-6, Sleep and Insomnia. It will give you a better concept of sleep and the important things you can do to improve your sleeping habits. That may enable you to get to sleep before 3 or 5 a.m.

Also, if you have too much anxiety, which is sometimes coupled with depression, that may result in sleeplessness. If that is that is the case, some professional counseling might help you get your anxiety and depression under control and could be of considerable benefit to you.

You should avoid just taking sleeping pills. Many of these, including some that doctors prescribe, become useless in a few weeks, as explained in The Health Letter I'm sending you. Improving your lifestyle and sleeping habits, plus resolving any cause for anxiety, is a much healthier solution.

Other readers who want this issue of The Health Letter can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 328, San Antonio, 78292.

Contaminated Mascara Damages Cornea, Researchers Discover

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
 NEW YORK (UPI) — Mascara can be a beautifier for the lashes or a mess of trouble for the cornea, the covering of the eye.

Contaminated eyelash potions have been linked to eye ills touched off by innocent-enough slipping of the mascara brush onto the surface of the eye, scratching it.

Usually the damage heals itself. But in some cases redness worsens. That should tip the user to seek an eye examination as soon as possible, according to Dr. Louis A. Wilson of Emory University School of Medicine, Atlanta.

A corneal ulcer can be the result of such an accident — unless medical attention is prompt.

Wilson is a noted medical expert on mascara. Until he started looking at mascara suspiciously no one thought of a connection between the ulcers or an infection that can severely damage the cornea.

Eleven women have lost vision in one eye due to such accidents since records on the problem were started, according to a report in "Medicine at Emory."

Wilson's study, supported by more than $250,000 from the Food and Drug Administration since 1972, led to new federal requirements in the manufacture and sale of an estimated 50 million tubes of mascara every year in America.

Packages now carry words of warning, alerting users to possible injury and infection of the eye. And the mascara itself must contain more effective preservatives than in the past.

Before his research, the FDA thought cosmetics were safe to sell if they were not contaminated when packaged.

Wilson's research showed that was not good enough. Half the mascara in his random sampling was contaminated with various bacteria — and 20 percent contained potentially harmful fungi.

But where did it come from, if the mascara was okay when packaged? Wilson found contamination during use is virtually inevitable.

He and colleagues, including Dr. Donald Ahern, microbiology professor at Georgia State University, got the first clues in 1967. They were trying to spot micro-organisms normally present near the eyes.

Mostly, they found staphylococcus epidermidis bacteria. But several women had fungi on the lid margins of their eyes.

"The fungi didn't seem to belong there — and why only on women?" he asked.

"Obviously, the mascara had something to do with that."

"They were putting it on their eye lashes every morning and we were coming along in mid-morning and picking it up. When we stopped them from using their mascara, their cultures reverted to normal. So we next tested the mascara itself."

The investigators found women were transporting microbes to the margins of their eyelids when they applied mascara.

The contamination took place this way: when a woman puts on mascara she puts the brush on the eyelid and unwittingly picks up some of the normal organisms there.

Then she puts the brush back into the tube where the staph can sometimes grow. Normally she would have a hundred or so staph around her eye. But when there are cultured in the mascara and she takes it from there, she adds millions of germs.

But that's not the whole story. Once the staph have multiplied into the millions, they destroy the cosmetic's preservative.

This makes it possible, according to the scientist, for pseudomonas to grow. That's the noxious microscopic bacteria which can rapidly lead to the cornea's destruction after an accidental scrape with the mascara brush.

Secrecy Will Surround Conclave Of Cardinals

By VICTOR L. SIMPSON
VATICAN CITY (AP)—In the week of Aug. 20, 115 princes of the Roman Catholic Church will barricade themselves in the Sistine Chapel and the adjoining Vatican apartments.

Their conclave will be tightly guarded, and they will not emerge until they have succeeded in their purpose — to elect a new pope, almost certainly one of their own number.

He will succeed Pope Paul VI, who died Sunday.

From the moment it starts, this conclave will be a mixture of the old and new.

The cardinals will probably talk among themselves in Latin, have their meals sent in, and bed down in the apostolic palace.

But when they meet in the 15th century Sistine Chapel, it will be in a conclave room swept clean for electronic bugs beforehand — to ensure secrecy under measures adopted by Pope Paul VI.

There is no foretelling how long the conclave will last.

For example, it took less than three days to elect Pope Paul. But the conclave that elected Pope Gregory X in 1271 — the longest on record — took two years and nine months.

Since the gathering brings together cardinals from North and South America, Europe, Africa, Asia and Oceania, the only common language is that of the church, Latin. Translators are barred.

"Although anyone is free to speak any language, they will probably communicate in Latin most of the time," said Ernesto Civardi, secretary of the Sacred College of Cardinals.

Even before the conclave, the cardinals take an oath of secrecy. Any cardinal breaking it — at any time in his life — faces immediate excommunication from the church.

In 1975 Pope Paul laid down even stiffer rules on secrecy, instructing cardinals to "ensure that the enclosure is not violated in any way."

The pope was reported to have been angered by frequent news leaks from the Vatican and by a book by two Italian journalists titled "Sex in the Confessional" based on their own confessions, tape-recorded without the knowledge of the priests.

Under Pope Paul's directive, two technicians must be at hand to test for the presence of instruments for the recording, reproduction or transmission of voices and images in the Sistine Chapel.

Pope Paul also forbade assistants to cardinals, except those cardinals who are gravely ill. Their notes and their ballots are to be burned.

According to Vatican historians there are no known cases of valid revelations from recent papal conclaves, although there have been reports published purporting to show how balloting went.

There are no stenographers present to keep records, although individual cardinals may take notes.

In the conclave that elected Pope Paul such notes were sent afterward for storage in the Vatican's secret archives. Pope Paul's rules now bar this and the only permanent record will be that of the papal chamberlain, French Cardinal Jean Villot, whose record of the balloting and any remarks will then be stored in the archives.

According to Vatican insiders, no one actively campaigns for the papacy. Any such politicking is said to be fatal for a cardinal's chances.

One prominent European cardinal killed his chance in the current conclave, according to a high-ranking Vatican source, when he wrote an article a few years ago on how he thought the church should be run.

"No cardinal enters the conclave really

"papabile" (likely to succeed to the papacy)," says Giancarlo Zizola, author of a recent book on the making of a pope.

Nevertheless, the case of Pope Paul himself appears to be an exception to the rule.

On his deathbed, Pope John XXIII is reported to have said to an aide, "Cardinal Montini would make a good pope," and the word was passed on to the conclave.

Vatican sources say that it would not be unusual if cardinals asked their local bishops what kind of pope they would prefer, but this is a question of categories — theologian, pragmatist, diplomat, etc. — rather than of individuals.

The balloting can go on indefinitely. In the event of a deadlock, the cardinals may decide to drop the need for a two-thirds majority plus one for a simple majority or even a runoff.

Buzzer Will Tell Station Pope Has Been Selected

By JACK R. PAYTON
VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Roman Catholic cardinals electing Pope Paul VI's successor this month will use an electric buzzer to avoid confusion about the color of the smoke that signals the outcome of their vote.

The electronic signal was first used for Paul's election in 1963, since uncertainty about the color of the smoke billowing from the Sistine Chapel chimney five years earlier created confusion during the papal conclave.

Black smoke rising from the chimney has traditionally meant the cardinals had not chosen a new pope; white smoke means the vote has produced a two-thirds-plus-one majority and elected a new pope.

During the second day of balloting in 1958, what appeared to be white smoke billowed from the chimney, and Vatican Radio announced a new pope would shortly make his appearance on the main balcony of St. Peter's Basilica.

"There is no doubt," Vatican Radio told the world. "A pope has been elected."

Moments later the smoke rising from the chimney began to darken and doubts began to form.

"Dear listeners," said Vatican Radio, "we have been advised of the darkening of the smoke but we do not believe it."

The situation became even more confusing when the puffs of smoke began alternating between black, white and gray.

The Vatican Radio announcer, becoming more exasperated, said, "Now at this moment the puffs of white smoke are being followed by others less intense, of a slightly darker hue."

The announcer then went off the air and Vatican Radio began to play religious music. A few minutes later radio officials finally became convinced that no pope had been elected yet and it was announced the special broadcast was completed because of the "negative outcome" of the vote.

All this confusion was avoided in 1963, and will be avoided in the conclave of cardinals later this month, thanks to installation of an electronic link between the conclave hall and Vatican radio.

A blast on the buzzer meant the cardinals had elected a new pope, no matter what color the smoke appeared to be.

Technologies Find Many Uses For Timber

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — It used to be said around the packing houses of the Midwest that everything in the pig was used except the squeal.

Oregon's forest products industry probably can't make a boast that expansive but more and more uses are found for timber and timber byproducts each year.

One of the more recent innovations possibly could help if the United States is hit with another oil embargo.

Scientists say they are well on their way to converting wood waste from Oregon's forests into synthetic oil and giving the state its own renewable oil reserves.

Bechtel Corp., a nationally known engineering firm with headquarters in San Francisco, has been operating a $3.8 million test facility for the Department of Energy on a Bureau of Mines site in Albany, Ore.

The "waste-to-oil" experimental facility is designed to test the feasibility of converting forest and agricultural wastes into a renewable supply of synthetic crude oil.

"Basically, we do it with pressure and temperature, just the way Mother Nature does," said Ron McKinsey, Bechtel developmental engineer. "Only we do it in one hour instead of 5 million years, so our efficiency isn't quite as high."

The synthetic oil has a heating value of about 15,000 BTUs (British Thermal Units, a measurement of heat) per pound which compares to about 19,000 BTUs per pound for natural crude oil, McKinsey said.

to a refinery to make it into gasoline, it probably would require another step in the process.

He said the program falls within the Department of Energy's solar energy program. "Things grow from the sun's energy and we're converting the energy that's stored in wood to oil."

The process, he said, was developed originally in the 1960s in Pennsylvania. Wood or other organic material is dried then ground in a hammer mill to fine wood flour. The flour is mixed with an oil carrier to form a slurry and the slurry is pumped to a pressure as great as 4,000 pounds per square inch and mixed with a catalyst of sodium carbonate to which hydrogen and carbon monoxide gases are added. Then the material is heated and held in a reactor at a temperature of 600 to 700 degrees Fahrenheit.

A chemical reaction converts the wood slurry to oil.

Other uses of wood byproducts are less exotic but more widespread. Backyard cooks use charcoal briquettes. A natural cementing material from trees, extracted during the pulp and paper making process, is now used for adhesives in linoleum pastes, to hold animal feed pellets together, to control road dust and in gypsum board.

Bark, wood trim, sawdust and other wastes are pressed into fireplace logs and a lignin sulfonate product, another byproduct of pulp and paper, is added to the mud around oil wells to stabilize them.

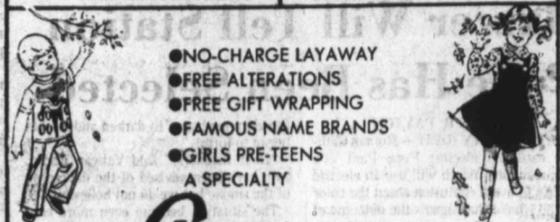

A byproduct from pine wood used in the kraft process for wood pulping, is called tall oil. It is used in paint to keep it from yellowing and to improve its water resistance and adhesion. And, those old, gray pine logs — weather-beaten, insect-eaten and stained with a blue fungus — that used to be left in the woods to decay are now being peeled and made into decorative paneling to cover a new home's walls.

The Almanac TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International Today is Wednesday, Aug. 9, the 221st day of 1978 with 144 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning star is Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars, Venus and Saturn.

These born on this day are under the sign of Leo.

English author Izaak Walton was born Aug. 9, 1593.

On this day in history: In 1831, the first train in the United States to be drawn by a steam locomotive made a run between Albany and Schenectady, N.Y.

In 1945, more than half of the Japanese city of Nagasaki was destroyed when the United States dropped its second atomic bomb.

Strike No Problem For Queen, Prince

GOUROCK, Scotland (AP) — Queen Elizabeth and her son Prince Edward newly side-stepped a potential union row Monday when they returned home from the Commonwealth games in Canada.

After flying into Glasgow airport, they were supposed to join the royal yacht Britannia at nearby Greenock. But because the men who operate the gangplanks at Greenock currently are involved in a pay dispute with the government, the Britannia's sailing was switched a few miles away to Gourrock. There the family was met by a Royal Navy launch which ferried them and their luggage out to the Britannia, moored about 100 yards offshore.

In 1970, 54 American citizens were among 99 persons killed when an airliner crashed in Peru.

In 1974, President Nixon's resignation became effective at noon and Vice President Gerald Ford was sworn in as the nation's 38th chief executive.

A thought for the day: A line in Izaak Walton's "The Compleat Angler," says, "I have laid aside business, and gone a-fishing."

Americans Protest, Japan Prays On Nagasaki Day

By KENNETH R. CLARK
United Press International

They planned a "die-in" in Colorado, a disaster drill in New Hampshire and a nuclear plant occupation in Oregon, but in Nagasaki, Japan, where it all began in a searing ball of fire 33 years ago today, they merely bowed their heads and remembered.

Nagasaki Day, the day on which a 20-kiloton atomic bomb incinerated 39,000 people outright, eventually killed 73,000 and plunged the world in a split second into the terror and the promise of the nuclear age.

Those who cite the terror and those who cite the promise were in rigid opposition across the nation today — with nuclear power plants the focus of demonstration and protest.

More than 100 anti-nuclear protesters were behind the bars of six Oregon jails, awaiting arraignment or trial on charges of criminal trespass in connection with their activities on Hiroshima Day. They invaded the Trojan Nuclear power plant on Sunday, setting up a four-day occupation, and protest leaders said the demonstration is far from finished.

"Waves of occupiers will be substantially greater than the last two days," said Norman Solomon, a spokesman for the Trojan Decommissioning Alliance.

The jails also were full in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where 200 members of the Abalone Alliance were lodged following clear power plants the focus of demonstration and protest.

More than 100 anti-nuclear protesters were behind the bars of six Oregon jails, awaiting arraignment or trial on charges of criminal trespass in connection with their activities on Hiroshima Day. They invaded the Trojan Nuclear power plant on Sunday, setting up a four-day occupation, and protest leaders said the demonstration is far from finished.

"Waves of occupiers will be substantially greater than the last two days," said Norman Solomon, a spokesman for the Trojan Decommissioning Alliance.

The jails also were full in San Luis Obispo, Calif., where 200 members of the Abalone Alliance were lodged following arrest at the Diablo Canyon site of Pacific Gas and Electric's nuclear power plant.

"People are singing and dancing," said Susan Bloch, spokeswoman for the alliance. "I understand even some of the guards joined in and some of the guards took anti-nuclear buttons."

Nearly 500 protesters were arrested Sunday when they invaded the plant.

"We know we are breaking the law," said one demonstrator. "But we are responding to a higher law."

On the East Coast, seven members of the Clamshell Alliance arrived unannounced in New Hampshire's lakes district Tuesday, staging a "nuclear waste disaster drill" in commemoration of the World War II bombings both of Hiroshima and Nagasaki. Alliance members — denied permission to stage their drill at the Laconia, N.H., fire house — passed out literature saying nuclear waste could be trucked through nearly any community, with risk of a nuclear accident.

The demonstrators said it takes 170 truck trips to remove spent fuel from the nearby Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant.

In Golden, Colo., former Pentagon analyst Daniel Ellsberg (of "Pentagon Papers" fame) said he will join protesters today at a "die-in" on roads leading to the Rocky Flats nuclear weapons plant.

"Every president since Eisenhower has considered using nuclear weapons," he said in a Monday interview. "Even without that direct threat, there is always the danger of an accident that could kill thousands of people."

The die-in was scheduled after a memorial service to the dead of Nagasaki by the Rocky Flats Truth Force, which has maintained a vigil at the plant since April.

Rocky Flats, operated by Rockwell International for the Department of Energy, makes nuclear components for bombs. Plant officials rejected the demonstrators' request the plant be closed for the day in commemoration of the Nagasaki bombing.

In Nagasaki, an estimated 10,000 people stood with bowed heads for one minute of silence at 11:03 a.m. — the moment at which the city was leveled by a single nuclear blast on Aug. 9, 1945.

Then, a bell tolled and hundreds of doves were released into the air. Factory sirens wailed and ship whistles sounded throughout the city as its residents offered silent prayers.

A total of 1,234 new names were added to the nuclear death list on the city's cenotaph — persons who died in the past year as a result of still lethal radiation-related illnesses.

Anti-bomb groups passed out leaflets saying, "No more Hiroshima, No more Nagasaki. No more Hibakusha (atomic bomb victims) — nuclear weapons, stop."

Youngsters Join Protest Over Canal

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Clad in T-shirts and cut-off jeans, a group of youngsters stood near the 90th Street School flashing signs that read "I Hate the Love Canal" and "My House is Worth Nothing."

"I don't know what I have in my blood," said 11-year-old Keith Shaw. "It could be cancer."

Another young protester, 10-year-old Don Huey, said: "I don't care how far I have to go. I want to get away from the canal. The school's right on top of the chemicals."

The school has been closed and 25 of the 37 families who lived in the area have left. The state has agreed to pay each family $1,800 for six months' housing.

The state Health Department planned to complete blood tests and liver scans today of residents of the contaminated area, which is over a filled-in, abandoned canal site where Hooker Chemical Corp. dumped chemical wastes from the 1940s to the early 1950s. After several years of heavy rains, the chemicals began moving to the surface.

Officials say they probably will not know for at least three weeks if the toxic chemicals have caused any blood or liver ailments.

An earlier series of tests conducted four and five weeks ago were limited to people older than 13. However, the age limit for the latest battery of tests was lowered to 18 months.

The state has uncovered an unusually high incidence of miscarriages and birth defects in its testing.

President Carter declared the 16-acre site an emergency area Monday, making it eligible for special federal aid.

The state will begin excavating the canal Aug. 15 in an effort to clean up the chemical wastes, unless it can be shown that the operation would be dangerous, according to state Transportation Commissioner William Hennessey, chairman of the state Love Canal Task Force.

Judge Dismisses Suit Against NBC

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A judge has tossed out an $11 million negligence suit against NBC, ruling that a lawyer failed to prove the televised movie "Born Innocent" was intended to incite the rape of a 9-year-old girl.

Superior Court Judge Robert Dossee ruled Tuesday that NBC was protected by the First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

Attorney Marvin Lewis, representing the rape victim and her mother, said he planned to appeal the dismissal immediately.

"As long as our neck was on the block and the ax had to fall, it's just as well that it happened today," Lewis said Tuesday. "This gets us to the appellate courts even faster."

Lewis said his appeal would challenge the judge's "excessive authority" in narrowing legal grounds for the trial and preventing Lewis from arguing negligence and recklessness.

Dossee, in dismissing the case, referred to his previous ruling that the only way Lewis could proceed was by arguing that NBC intended to incite a crime by showing the rape of a young girl with a plumber's plunger. Lewis did not follow that ruling, Dossee said.

Dossee had decided that Lewis would have to prove the network violated the constitution by "advocating or inciting" an immediate crime, such as rape. Lewis had responded that he could not and would not attempt to prove such a contention.

Dossee cited a 1969 U.S. Supreme Court decision in an Ohio case which determined that advocacy of force was unconstitutional if it "incited ... imminent lawless action." Lewis said he would be "idiotic as an attorney" to attempt to prove such an allegation.

Olivia Niemi, now 13, was sexually assaulted by three girls on a San Francisco beach four days after the film was shown in 1974. The girl's mother, Valeria Niemi, said the attack was prompted by the TV film and asked $1 million in compensatory damages and $10 million in punitive damages against NBC and its local affiliate, KRON-TV.

Jay Gerber, associate general counsel for NBC, said Dossee's ruling represented "an extremely significant victory. We think that the ruling means that unless incitement can be shown, suits of this kind will not lie as a matter of law against any broadcast media or newspaper."

Lewis had contended the judge placed "an impossible burden of proof" on the plaintiff, but he continued his opening statement Tuesday, trying to establish "negligent, irresponsible and reckless" behavior by the network.

He said the only person jailed in the attack had confirmed by deposition that the crime was inspired by the movie.

The attorney said Sharon Smith had testified she was "instigated to participate in the rape" by previews and talk about the movie.

Charges were dropped against two other girls and a boy who allegedly stood lookout. Miss Smith is free after serving a prison sentence.

The assailants were not mentally ill, Lewis argued, and were influenced by what they saw on television — a lengthy, particularly graphic scene, which showed no punishment for the violence.

In arguing for a broader base for the trial Tuesday, Lewis said, "If we begin using the First Amendment as a sword, it will kill this country."

Activity Center Fund Drive Nearing Goal

The campaign to provide the 562 residents at Lubbock State School with an activity center took another major step forward recently as volunteer workers turned in an additional 63 contributions totaling $46,160.

Total received to date from 149 contributors amounts to $200,132.

This is nearly 64 per cent of the $314,000 Building Fund goal, which includes the cost of construction of the 5,600 square foot facility, furnishings and equipment for the building, landscaping, playground equipment and technical assistance.

The Pattern Gifts Division, which begins its work earlier than the other soliciting divisions, has produced a total of $181,184 from 75 contributors.

Co-chairmen Clem Boverie and Bob Dunbar announced that one of the gifts reported during the week was a $10,000 donation from a major out-of-state foundation; another was a $3,000 gift from a family in Wichita Falls.

The Business and Industry Division, co-chaired by Bob and Lynn Stafford and Mary Nell Strong, will be visiting nearly 500 firms in the Lubbock area.

Workers in this division still have a majority of their prospects to visit according to the co-chairpersons. To date, 40 gifts totaling $8,710 have been reported by this group.

Dr. Glenn and Dale Barnett and Don and Ethel McLeod, co-chairpersons of the Individuals and Organizations Division, reported workers in their group have now reported 34 gifts totaling $9,238.

Warner To Announce For Senate

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Amid indications that he would be unopposed, former Navy Secretary John Warner was expected to announce today he will seek the Virginia Republican Party nomination to the U.S. Senate.

The millionaire husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor scheduled a news conference at 2 p.m. to announce his plans.

Warner's last apparent foe, state Sen. Nathan Miller of Bridgewater, withdrew late Tuesday as a candidate to replace Richard Obenshain, the party nominee who died Aug. 2 in a plane crash in Chesterfield County.

The Republican State Central Committee meets Saturday to select a replacement for Obenshain.

Former Gov. Linwood Holton ran third — behind Obenshain and Warner — and Miller was last in the convention voting. Holton earlier this week announced he would not seek the nomination again.

Warner was briefed by Obenshain campaign staff members Tuesday afternoon, and met Tuesday night with some of his key supporters and those of Obenshain and Holton.

The Republican State Central Committee meets Saturday to select a replacement for Obenshain.

Former Gov. Linwood Holton ran third — behind Obenshain and Warner — and Miller was last in the convention voting. Holton earlier this week announced he would not seek the nomination again.

Warner was briefed by Obenshain campaign staff members Tuesday afternoon, and met Tuesday night with some of his key supporters and those of Obenshain and Holton.

Solons Contemplate New Department

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration sought support from a House committee today for the transfer of Indian education and child nutrition functions to a proposed Education Department.

The House Government Operations Committee began considering the legislation this morning. It would create the new Cabinet-level agency by consolidating some of the government's education programs from other departments.

But the panel recessed without completing its work or tackling the major areas of conflict — whether the Indian education programs should be shifted from the Interior Department and school lunch and other feeding and nutrition programs ought to be moved from the Agriculture Department.

The panel decided to resume its work later in the day with the intention of finishing the bill on Thursday.

The administration suffered a setback on Tuesday when the Government Operations panel's subcommittee on legislation and national security voted to keep both the Indian education and the nutrition programs out of the new department.

The jurisdictional fights over these two programs have been among the most spirited ones in the debate over setting up the proposed department.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, who is chairman of both the subcommittee and the full committee, said an effort may be made to re-insert the programs into the bill. But he declined to predict whether the administration's plan to transfer the two programs could be salvaged by the committee.

"The subcommittee vote was substantial. It may represent the majority view on the committee and it may not," he said.

Brooks, who supports the administration on these points, said he thought it was important to establish the department even without those transfers.

The subcommittee also decided to leave science education programs now administered by the National Science Foundation out of the proposed department.

An attempt to consolidate the youth training and vocational education programs in the new department was defeated.

The subcommittee then voted 8-3 to approve the bill.

As outlined by the subcommittee, the new agency would have a budget of $13.6 billion.

Its nucleus would be most of the education programs now managed by the Department of Health Education and Welfare.

The administration sought to transfer the Head Start program to the new agency, but the idea has been virtually abandoned as neither the House subcommittee version nor the Senate version would authorize the shift.

The companion bill drafted by the Governmental Affairs Committee, which is awaiting action by the full Senate, approves the transfer of Indian education, child nutrition and science education programs to the proposed department.

Senate To Spend $135 Million On Office Building

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — A single vote by the Senate last week shows why Congress probably cannot be counted on to help cut spending and restrain inflation without a lot more public pressure than there has been so far.

Despite pointed criticism by some senators, the lawmakers voted by a wide margin to complete work on the most expensive federal building in history, a new Senate office building to cost $135 million.

The cost of the building is staggering, but to the many millions of Americans suffering from inflation and declining purchasing power, the contents may be even more dismaying.

There will be 16-foot office ceilings, a gymnasium, an indoor tennis court, a rooftop restaurant and a marble atrium.

The cost of all this when initially proposed in 1974 was supposed to be $48 million, meaning the cost has tripled in four years.

In fairness, the project was under way and the $16 million spent so far has bought part of a steel framework that would be an eyesore if work were to cease. And it is not hard to make a case that the senators need more space.

But Congress has voted to stop projects that have been under way before on the theory that it did not make sense to throw good money after bad. Republicans and Democrats lined up on both sides of the issue.

"I can't imagine a more galling symbol of congressional arrogance," said Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis. "This building is a farce and it ought to be stopped," added Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

But Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., saying the "Mussolini-style building is an outrage," lost on a 45-29 vote in his effort to have construction stopped.

The senators then voted 66-13 to continue construction with a spending limit of $135 million. One senator, noting estimates that the cost could increase to $200 million, observed the limit could be raised later if it was not enough.

It would be hard to argue, of course, that stopping work on the office building by itself would have made a dent in the nation's inflation rate, or brought about a balanced budget, which will be in deficit by $51 billion this year.

But at a time when polls and voter actions show the public is deeply worried about spending and inflation, the Senate let pass a perfect opportunity to demonstrate it is responsive to that concern and will do something about it.

Instead, the lawmakers once again voted to help a special interest group, this time themselves, without apparent regard for public opinion.

There are other recent examples. The lawmakers last month rejected the Carter administration's proposals to control rising hospital costs, one of the most inflationary parts of the economy, and its decisions to increase farm price supports, such as the recent committee action on sugar, contribute to higher food prices.

The cut in the capital gains tax that appears likely to pass will mostly benefit the wealthy, while also increasing the budget deficit at a time when there is great public pressure to reduce the deficit.

Congressional response to pressures from steelmakers and steelworkers for protection from lower-priced steel imports caused the administration to take action to reduce imports, which has made it possible for domestic steel producers to raise prices.

Clearly, farmers and steelmakers may need help, and the wealthy may be able to make a good case for lower taxes, and hospitals may be able to justify the rapid increase in their fees. But if somebody is not going to take the first step to slow the increase in wages and prices and costs, can they ever be slowed?

Even though the taxpayers are making known their demands that lawmakers spend the public's money with greater care, the message of the vote on the new Senate office building is that Congress is not yet convinced it must take the first step when its own interests are at stake.

"How do we get involved in the concept that absolutely anything goes around here?" asked a frustrated Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., during the debate on the new office building.

Perhaps only when there is a public outcry that is loud enough to drown out the pleadings of special interest groups, will the Congress then finally listen.

August is a month in which some of the more important inventions that helped bring changes in transportation and communications were patented, according to a study by Intellectual Property Owners, Inc., a non-profit education group.

Grabbling Catfish Results In Scars

By TOM MADDEN
JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Wrestling a 50-pound catfish is Tom Cleveland's idea of fun, even though he says you have to be one step away from a mental hospital to do it.

Cleveland takes to Mississippi lakes on weekends to "grabble" catfish out of their watery homes. And, most of the time, the stubborn catfish doesn't give up without a fight.

The 51-year-old plumber says the sport is filled with excitement and spiced with danger.

"It takes a special breed to do this kind of fishing. It takes a man who can endure pain. Your body has got to be able to resist infection. And you have to be just short of the mental hospital," Cleveland said.

Cleveland battles the catfish in their favorite lair — a hollow log.

"I prefer a hollow log. Approximately six feet under the water. I go down, stop up one end of the log and then prod the fish out with a stick," he said.

"When he tries to get out the open end I reach in and grab him, tie a rope around him and take him to the surface."

Cleveland, unlike the majority of grabbling fishermen, uses scuba gear to fish the logs. He also will set up his own fishing grounds, towing logs, culverts or drums in areas he thinks catfish will frequent.

He said the catfish don't always cooperate.

Cleveland said the catfish are in the logs protecting their nesting areas and they get mean when they are disturbed.

"I sometimes stick my foot in the log to block the fish. One time I felt something pulling on my ankle and it was the fish. He had my whole foot in his mouth and was tearing at the ankle," he said.

Cleveland said his arms and hands suffer most of the damage. "The catfish will tear at your arm and I've had cuts as long as five inches. They'll even tear your clothes off," he said. "The catfish has a big mouth, some of them are big enough you can put a gallon bucket in them."

"I guess I have a thousand scars. My wife says I am going to need plastic surgery if I keep it up. I have been cut everywhere," he said.

He said he catches numerous 50-pound catfish each year. The largest fish he's landed was 73 pounds.

"When they are about 50 pounds they are really strong. If you don't catch them in the logs, you can kill them good, they're gone," he said.

Cleveland said often times fish are not the only thing in the logs.

"Caught a couple of snakes in there. But I won't catch them anymore. I had some threats on my life when I surfaced and tried to put the snakes in the boat," he said.

Grabbling has been criticized by some fishermen who say the practice should be outlawed because the fish are taken while they are nesting.

Abortion Foes Claim Victory With New Law

By ROYAL BRIGHTBILL
 BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — The nation's toughest abortion law takes effect in Louisiana Sept. 8, giving anti-abortion leaders a new guidepost in their nationwide drive to make it more difficult for women to stop unwanted pregnancies.

The Louisiana law, a tougher version of an Akron, Ohio, ordinance that is not yet enforced because of a court challenge, will affect women who want abortions and the doctors and clinics who perform the operations.

Anti-abortion leaders, who praise the Louisiana law as a new national model, said it was the latest victory in their national effort.

Tennessee and Oklahoma also have abortion laws based on the Akron model, and now anti-abortion groups have set their sights on New Jersey and Missouri.

"We like to think you haven't seen anything yet," said Marvin Weinberger, president of the Akron Citizens for Informed Consent.

Weinberger, who said his group is aiding 25 states as a national clearinghouse for abortion reform, predicted major political battles in New Jersey and Missouri.

"The pro-abortionists have underestimated our intentions and our resources in terms of our desire to proceed with this. And I think they haven't taken us very seriously," he said.

Opponents say the Louisiana law will force women who want abortions to take actions that are illegal or dangerous to their health.

But Rep. Lane Carson, R-New Orleans, said the law he sponsored is aimed only at saving the lives of unborn children and preventing the exploitation of pregnant women.

"All we are doing is advising someone of alternatives and requiring minimum waiting periods to contemplate it, and then to make sure the facility is regulated," Carson said. "Who can be against that?"

Before an abortion can be performed on a woman, the Louisiana law requires a doctor to tell her "the unborn child is a human life from the moment of conception."

He must describe in detail the physical characteristics of the fetus, including "appearance, mobility, tactile sensitivity, including pain, perception or response, brain and heart function, the presence of internal organs and the presence of external members."

The doctor must tell the woman her unborn child may be viable if more than 22 weeks have elapsed from conception, and that he is obligated to try to save its life.

The woman must also be advised of risks to her physical and mental well-being, and of agencies that will help her if she decides to have her child.

Then she must sign a consent form and wait 24 hours to consider the operation.

A parent or guardian of unmarried women under 18 must be notified 24 hours in advance of the operation or there must be a court order. Unmarried girls under 18 must have the signed consent of a parent or guardian or a court order.

"We are the first state to adopt the Akron statute virtually in its entirety," said Michael Connelly, an attorney for the Baton Rouge Right to Life organization, who wrote the bill. "In addition we did make some substantive changes in it."

The changes include mention of possible permanent impairment to the health of the woman. The law adds a $1,000 license fee for abortion clinics plus fees of $500 for each doctor who performs abortions. It requires clinics to keep records and make them available to the state.

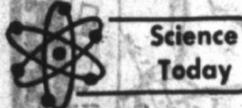

Clinics also must be able to provide emergency transportation to a hospital within 15 minutes of a complication, and must maintain emergency operating equipment.

Metal-Air Battery Planned

By AL ROSSITER JR.
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a different approach to the electric car, engineers in California are designing a power pack that would run on aluminum, water and air.

The car would need only stop at a service station every 300 miles to take on demineralized water and every 900 miles to exchange aluminum hydroxide powder for a fresh 50-pound supply of aluminum fuel plates.

The car's metal-air battery would be fundamentally different from the lead-acid batteries in use today which are charged electrically after 30 or 40 miles of operation. Even newer batteries are expected to be good for only 80 or 100 miles before requiring lengthy recharging.

The concept of John Cooper of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory and Ernest Littauer of Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., Palo Alto, Calif., harnesses the electrochemistry of aluminum. The metal, water and atmospheric oxygen react in special cells to produce electricity and the aluminum hydroxide reaction by-product which can be recycled.

In a paper prepared for an energy engineering conference in San Diego later this month, Littauer and Cooper estimated a sub-compact car using such a power plant could operate for 7.4 cents per mile in today's dollars in the 1985-90 period.

For a full performance electric car, Littauer said at a briefing, people have to get away from the idea of electrically-charged batteries and instead think of a recycling process.

"With a gas-powered car, you put in gas and exchange that for heat and pollutants in an electric vehicle, you would exchange electrode plates and produce a product that is recycled."

Although lithium, magnesium and calcium also would work, the engineers picked aluminum because it is abundant as a mineral and the United States has a growing aluminum production capacity.

It takes electricity to produce aluminum but Littauer said the power for aluminum plants is produced cheaply from hydroelectric generators.

"So it does make some logical sense and certainly would reduce our requirement for oil," he said.

"And you have absolutely no polluting by-products. You use water, you consume oxygen and aluminum and you recycle it, and in the process of recovering aluminum, the oxygen is returned to the environment."

What would happen to the nation's gas stations if cars were powered by electricity?

Littauer said the service stations would still be needed. They would just change from a gasoline dispensing facility to one that dispenses aluminum electrodes and water and collects the by-product.

"They don't object to this technology because it isn't putting them out of business," he said.

Aluminum has been studied for use as a battery anode before, but excessive corrosion made it impractical. Littauer and Cooper said new alloys circumvent that problem.

The researchers, whose work is sponsored by the Department of Energy, based their work on technology developed for Navy torpedo batteries. Much work still needs to be done, but they said it appears to be a logical approach.

Law Newspaper Sets Publication Date

NEW YORK (AP) — A tabloid-sized newspaper, the National Law Journal, is to begin publication on Sept. 1.

"For the very first time, lawyers from around the country will have an affordable and handy way to learn about their peers and keep up with major news affecting the profession," James A. Finkestein, president of the New York Law Journal, said on Sunday as he announced the new publication. Its editor will be John Fitzgib, formerly of The Associated Press and the New York Law Journal. Richard Babcock Jr., a former legal writer and graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, will be its managing editor.

U.S. Couple Disappointed In Return To Europe

By TAD BARTIMUS
 LONDON (AP) — For 20 years John Stewart and his wife dreamed of coming back to Europe. When they finally made it, they found strikes, junk food, shoddy service and universal disdain for their dollars.
 "This trip has really brought home to me that we are no longer king of the mountain," said Stewart, a tax accountant in Shawnee Mission, Kan.
 "The way to travel the world these days is to lose a war. All we saw were Japanese and German tourists. I think they're the only ones who can afford it."
 "I came to Europe to see the Eiffel Tower and Westminster Abbey. I got to do that, but I also spent a lot of time watching my wallet shrink as the dollar's value declined more and more every day."
 The Stewarts, both in their mid-40s, were startled by the prosperity and high cost of living in Europe. When they were here in the 1930s, it was just beginning to recover from the devastation of World War II during their 1930s visit.

 "Twenty years ago everybody in Europe rode a bicycle," said Eugenia Stewart. "Today everybody's got cars and they drive them all at once. We couldn't afford to eat in their restaurants or buy their clothes or pay a dollar every time we wanted a glass of milk."
 Stewart, his schoolteacher wife and 15-year-old daughter Karen arrived in London July 21 for a three-week vacation.
 "I had never really paid much attention to the dollar's exchange rate with other currencies until we started getting ready for this trip," said Stewart. "When I did, I began to get worried."
 "The travel agent in Kansas City said I should go to Mexico this year, that I should have gone to Europe last year. The way the dollar's going down, I'm glad we came this summer. We probably won't ever be able to afford to come back."
 They spent the first week touring England, Scotland and Wales by train on pre-paid British Rail passes. They slept in cheap bed-and-breakfast boarding houses or sat up all night chugging through towns and villages. They ate "very bad hamburgers and a lot of fruit."

 A trip to the Scottish Highlands was foiled by a wildcat strike of railway signalmen. They spent a total of 12 hours sitting on dirty platforms in the rain waiting for late trains.
 "For the past year I've been telling Karen about the great British train service, how they always ran spot on time," said Stewart.
 His wife lamented the buffet cars' soggy sandwiches, cold soup and watery coffee, and the absence of the snowy linen and service with a smile she enjoyed 20 years before.
 Off for a six-day bus tour on the Continent, the Stewarts crossed the English Channel July 30 on empty stomachs because the ferry ran out of food. Their tour guide was an hour late at Ostend and had lost her notes. As they whizzed through Belgium on a freeway she stood up only once, to tell her charges "there's Brussels," and point vaguely toward a distant patch of trees. Her next utterance was "Goodbye, Belgium, hello, Luxembourg."

 "We never knew what town we were in, only the country," said Mrs. Stewart.
 They arrived at their Luxembourg hotel shortly before midnight and discovered that drinks — not just alcohol, but all beverages — weren't included in their package deal. They ate the first of four pork-chop-potato-ice-cream dinners put before them in four different restaurants in four successive days. Their waiter, refused to return with dessert because another tourist at their table asked for ice water. There was one toilet for 20 rooms, and the only shower was in the basement.
 Their tour of Luxembourg was consisted of a 20-minute, 12-block bus ride. They were allowed a free hour to shop between 8:15 a.m. and 9:15 a.m. but the stores didn't open until 9:30 a.m. By then, they were in France.

 The brochure-touted luncheon was at a remote French truck stop. Late that afternoon, their tour guide made the day's fourth announcement — "We are now in Switzerland" — and the hungry Midwesterners caved in and paid $5 for three cinnamon rolls. But when Stewart tried to pay with dollar travelers' checks, the Swiss managers tartly demanded Swiss francs and he had to cash a check with the tour guide, at a rate much higher than the banks were giving that day.
 They priced Swiss watches and found some were cheaper back home. They settled for a chocolate bar each and saved the wrappers for the scrapbook.
 From the colorful brochure, the Stewarts expected to spend two nights in Lucerne. Their hotel was 30 miles from the city. They were among the lucky six out of 23 who got a room facing Lake Lucerne and the Alps. The rest opened their curtains on a brick wall.

 "We had to stay fully dressed all the time because the windows were dirty, somebody always came in and looked at you," said Mrs. Stewart. "I'm glad I'm home."
 They were offered the choice of a five-day party at $10 per person outside of a night walking through a town with one main street. They accepted the party and took the walk in heavy coats.
 The next day, instead of the promised afternoon in Interlaken, they sat in a roadside booth while a train of 100 members of the tour paid $25 to ride a train up a mountain and back to Interlaken. Everything was closed for Swiss Day. They spent 45 minutes watching a parade but were ordered back on the bus before it was over.
 "At first I didn't care. I had this magnificent view of the Alps, which is all I wanted to see anyway," said Stewart. "Then the fog came and I might as well have been in Kansas City."
 When they got to Paris their guide recommended a Chinese restaurant. They checked out menu prices to $100 and settled for a big loaf of french cheese and a bottle of wine in the end. But they loved the Tower and the Eiffel Tower and Karen got to see her high school French teacher's school.
 Friday they were headed out of their hotel shortly after 6 a.m. arrived three hours ahead of the planned ferry's scheduled sailing time. Waited at the customs officers' station a "three-hour slowdown and while waiting the channel two hours late."
 "Despite all the travel and scenery of a romantic European holiday, I'm leaving a very different reality," the Stewarts say they had a good time and are glad they came.
 "The really disappointing thing is that no one ever stamped our passports," said Stewart. "We can't even prove we were there."

Sanitation Inadequate In Japan

By TERRY SHIBUKI
 TOKYO (UPI) — In Japan, the land of economic miracles where G.I. stores at home than in Italy and Germany everyone is well-fed, the flush toilet is still a luxury item.
 In the 32 years since the end of World War II, Japan has become one of the most Communist world's top economic powers. But it still has no integrated sewer system.
 Amongst the Toyotas and Datsuns, high rise buildings, fancy restaurants and deluxe hotels, "vacuum cars" move from wooden house to wooden house siphoning untreated human waste from underground holding tanks.
 The fact is, Japan's sanitation facilities for its 112 million people are woefully inadequate.
 The Construction Ministry publicly admitted recently that despite Japan's wealth, only 26.6 percent of its 31 million households are equipped with flush toilets.
 Although the nation's sanitation facilities are more serious in rural areas, the nation's capital is not exactly up to modern standards.
 The ministry's White Paper on "Nation Building" released recently said only 37 percent of Tokyo's 3 million households have flush toilets.
 Only 2.4 percent of the government's $189 billion construction budget this year is earmarked for sewer building, with the rest to be spent mainly on highway, multi-story apartment buildings and infrastructure projects.
 Although $6.5 billion is more than the government normally spends on "social capital investments," it probably would not have been allocated if Japan hadn't come under pressure to reduce its huge foreign trade surplus.
 Prime Minister Takeo Fukuda pledged at the Bonn economic summit on July 18 that Japan would attempt to reduce its $20 billion trade surplus and achieve 7 percent economic growth by increasing consumer demand at home.
 One way Fukuda's conservative regime intends to live up to that pledge, is to spend more money on construction projects.
 But under the present administrative set-up, a national sewer system is still years away.
 Even when the national government has completed the major plumbing for an integrated system, it will be up to local administrations and individuals to install flush toilets and go through expensive hook-up procedures.
 Most local governments offer financial assistance to home-owners who want to link their houses to existing sewer facilities but it still costs the home holder about $1,500.
 Most Japanese would prefer to put that money toward a new and larger house, even if it means not having a flush toilet.
 Most people don't mind having what they've never had, but some spare in ways welcome, one official said.
 The average size of a Japanese house is about 630 square feet, including two to three small bedrooms, a dining room and a bathroom.
 "Because their homes are so small, among other reasons, Japanese don't like to entertain at home."
GLASSY BUT CHOPPY
 NEW YORK (UPI) — A new study says that the Japanese economy is still half the size of the U.S. but carries more passengers, about five million a day.

Controversy Engulfs Bill

By DONALD H. MAY
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — It began as a proposal to help middle income citizens pay the soaring cost of college tuition. But it has grown into a debate over public schools versus private and church schools in America.

An issue is a Senate bill to provide families with a federal income tax credit of up to $250 per year, becoming $500 in 1980, for each youngster in a college, university or post secondary vocational school.

Many predict this much will pass, but it has become almost a side issue.

The major argument is over a provision added in committee, providing a tax credit of up to $250 beginning Oct. 1, 1978, for parents of children attending non-public elementary and secondary schools, including church schools.

The Senate fight will come over an amendment by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., to delete the credit for elementary and secondary schools.

The House has passed a bill with lower tax credits for college and elementary and secondary education.

Here are the main questions asked about it, and the arguments on each side:

Q. Would public schools suffer? Some 44 million children attend U.S. public schools, which are largely financed locally. The federal government provides about $5.5 billion a year in federal aid to public schools, targeted to special groups such as the handicapped, those with reading difficulties, and the poor.

Another 5 million children attend non-public elementary and secondary schools. About $300 million worth of the same kinds of specialized federal aid goes to them.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, the bill would build to $2.6 billion in tax credits in 1982, $1.2 billion of which would be for elementary and secondary education.

Hollings says this would be the first "general" federal aid for elementary and secondary education — all of it for private schools — and would be "destructive" to the public school system.

Grace Baisinger, president of the National PTA, says it would "cut deeply into the resources available to public education ... The willingness of local communities to provide tax support to public schools will lessen if they are being taxed twice — once to support public schools, a second time to support those who choose not to attend public schools."

The National School Boards Association says another effect could be to decrease appropriations for public education.

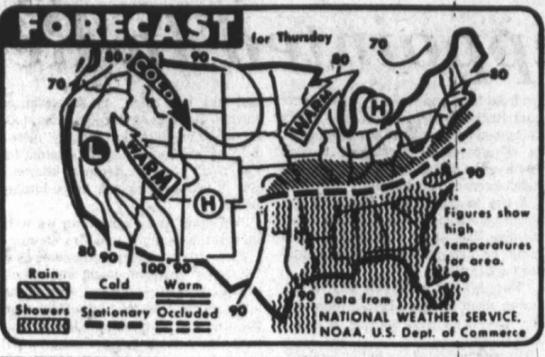

But Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., a chief sponsor, insists "federal funds are not going to be funneled away from public education." He said at most the children in private schools would increase from around nine percent to 15 percent in the next 20 years.

Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., a co-sponsor of the bill says, "The public schools come first... But the non-public schools have claims also."

Sen. S.I. Hlakawa, R-Calif., says increased "competition" from private schools "is bound to improve the public schools."

Q. Would it benefit the rich or poor?
 Hollings says a millionaire could take a tax credit for sending his son to a fancy prep school, while families with incomes below $15,000 would receive only 17 percent of the benefits.

Sponsors say 78 percent would go to families with incomes under $3,000. Some sponsors would agree to add an upper income limit. Packwood said those helped the most would be families who pay $400 to $600 a year to send children to church or other non-public schools.

Woman Testifies In Robbery Trial

ROSWELL (AP) — Dessie Sawyer testified that she was watching television with her ranch foreman and a visitor when two armed, masked men broke into her home and robbed her of jewelry at gunpoint.

Mrs. Sawyer, a former national Democratic committeewoman, was the first witness Tuesday as the state opened its case against Jerry Ray James, who is accused of masterminding a $200,000 robbery last year of the Sawyer's home in Tatum, N.M.

James, of Ruidoso, is charged with conspiracy to commit armed robbery and accessory to armed robbery in connection with the holdup on Jan. 27, 1977. Prosecutors have charged Thomas E. Cawthon and Tom Lester Pugh with carrying out the robbery of the Sawyer home. James was accused of planning the robbery.

Cawthon was granted immunity from prosecution in return for testifying for the state in the James trial.

Pugh pleaded guilty to armed robbery in connection with the incident. He is currently in prison in Texas on an unrelated offense.

James was being held in Lea County Jail in lieu of $200,000 bond pending the trial.

The robbers allegedly carried away $200,000 worth of jewelry, mostly diamonds. Police said the valuables have not been recovered.

Mrs. Sawyer testified Tuesday that she and ranch foreman Roy English and Leona Mae Pfifer were watching television in the Sawyer home when they were surprised by two armed men.

"I was sitting by the door when I felt the rush of someone running by me," Mrs. Sawyer testified. "I looked up and a man had a gun pointed at my face."

She said the other man pointed a pistol at English. She said the men tied them up and forced English at gunpoint to call in a security guard from his outdoor post.

Mrs. Sawyer testified that the guard was captured and bound. She said one of the men then told her to take him to her jewelry, which she said she did.

She told the court the gunman "went through the jewelry in the cabinet piece by piece, asking me the price of each one."

She said the men then tied her to a chair, put the jewels in a sock, cut all the telephone cords and fled.

Assistant District Attorney Ernest Carroll of Lovington and defense attorney Warren Burnett of Odessa, addressed their opening remarks Tuesday to alleged meetings between James and the robbers.

Carroll told the jury that evidence would show Pugh and Cawthon met several times with James before and after the holdup to plan for the robbery and sale of the stolen jewelry.

'Bloodbath' Discovered

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The bodies of two men, a woman and a young girl were found early today in suburban Cayce in what officers described as a "bloodbath." The victims had been shot and stabbed.

Cayce Public Safety Director Laverne Jumper said a man apprehended while trying to leave the dilapidated house where the slayings occurred is being held for questioning.

The victims and the man being held were not identified.

Hugh Munn, a spokesman for the State Law Enforcement Division, said officers believe they have identified the two men whose bodies were found outside the home, but were not sure enough to release their names.

"It was a bloodbath, the worst I've seen," said Munn.

He said the victims had been shot and stabbed. Munn said the body of the girl, apparently 12 or 13 years old, was found on the floor of a bedroom inside the house. He said there was "quite a bit of blood in other parts of the home and we are not sure where her slaying occurred."

The body of the woman, believed to be about 45, was outside the house underneath an automobile. The bodies of the two men, both believed to be in their 50s, were lying close together in the yard.

Prayer Amendment Stymies Court Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A deadlock over an amendment to reopen public schools to voluntary prayer is holding up legislation the Supreme Court says is vital for it to concentrate on major issues.

Although the legislation — aside from the amendment — is endorsed by all nine justices of the high court, its sponsor, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Tuesday he is not optimistic that it will reach the Senate floor for a vote.

"I don't think it's going anywhere," DeConcini told a reporter.

DeConcini said his only "slim hope" was that Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sponsor of the school prayer amendment, would withdraw it. Helms said he wouldn't.

"If they want their bill passed, they are going to have to give me my day in court," Helms said in an interview.

The DeConcini bill would give the nation's highest court the power to refuse to review virtually any case without giving a reason. At present there are several categories of appeals which the justices must either decide on or dismiss. If they dismiss one of the appeals, they must say why.

In a letter to DeConcini in June, the nine justices said many of the cases in question are of relatively minor importance. Because the justices are required to consider the appeals, they said, they "cannot devote ... time and attention to the more important issues and cases constantly pressing for resolution in an increasing volume."

Able to from the Helms amendment, the bill has not aroused controversy. But his amendment would remove from the jurisdiction of federal courts any cases arising from state laws concerning "voluntary prayers" in public schools or other public buildings.

The Supreme Court ruled in 1962 that organized prayer in public schools violates the constitutional separation of church and state. Several state legislatures have since enacted laws calling for daily periods of "meditation" in public schools.

DeConcini said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W. Va., had told him he did not think the bill would come up because supporters and opponents of the amendment had not been able to agree on ground rules for its consideration.

All senators have received letters in recent days from church groups opposing the amendment, including the Baptist Joint Committee on Public Affairs and a coalition of Protestant and Jewish organizations.

James E. Wood Jr., executive director of the Baptist committee, said he did not believe the Helms amendment had enough support to pass the Senate although "in an election year, it's awfully hard to vote against prayer."

Helms said his proposal has the support of a number of other church groups.

Meanwhile Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; and Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., urged senators to reject the amendment "regardless of your position on the merits of the Supreme Court cases on school prayer."

In a letter to their colleagues, they said passage of the amendment would encourage state judges to violate their oath of office, since they are "constitutionally bound to follow the Constitution, as interpreted by the Supreme Court."

Freedom of Choice Plan Ordered In Alabama

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A federal judge says his "freedom of choice" plan for attending rural schools in Marengo County may be novel and unpopular, but for now is the only way to avoid white flight from the school system.

U.S. District Judge W.B. Hand ruled Tuesday on a decade-old school desegregation case, voiding the county school board for racial imbalance.

The school system in the southwestern Alabama county has 8,200 students, 80 percent of them black, in five scattered schools. Because of the board's "racial imbalance," Hand said, two schools are all black, one is almost completely black, one has about two-thirds white students and only one is evenly divided racially.

Hand's "freedom of choice" plan would have all pupils from kindergarten through high school list their first, second and third choices of a school to attend and then have the school board try to match schools with pupils.

The judge criticized the proposed desegregation formula of federal government attorneys. Their plan would have paired four schools, giving all about a 70 percent black majority.

More disturbing, said Hand, was the "distinct possibility of white flight" under the government proposal.

Hand, who was involved in a desegregation case that resulted in the virtual abandonment of public schools by whites in Wilcox County, said Tuesday that past experience indicates a "white boycott" of public schools would result in Marengo County under the pairing plan.

He rejected pairing and said the "ultimate solution" is to create a "central school in the county to which all students shall be assigned." He said federal funds would be needed for the project, but were not likely to be given soon.

Until the school board can build a central school, students will attend classes beginning this fall under the judge's plan.

"The freedom of choice plan has enjoyed considerable dispute in the past 10 years," said Hand. But he said it was a "possible novel approach" that was necessary.

He, after all pupils have listed their choice of school, a school exceeded its capacity, names will be "drawn at random during a meeting of the board and government attorneys."

Those students picked will go to their first-choice school. The students not picked "will be placed in the pool of applicants for their second choice, and so on," said Hand, until all schools are within capacity.

Levi Strauss Opens Hungarian Factory

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Levi's labeled blue jeans made their debut in Budapest this week.

A factory set up jointly by Levi Strauss Co. and Hungary's Communist government is making the jeans in the village of Marcal. The American company supplies the materials, and the local price is the equivalent of $23 a pair.

Production is scheduled to increase to a million pairs a year in four years.

Despite U.S. Objection, World Bank Aids Vietnam

By R. GREGORY NOKES
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the United States continues to oppose helping communist Vietnam rebuild from the ravages of a decade of war, much of the world clearly favors aiding Hanoi.

That was evident in the vote in the World Bank Tuesday in which the U.S. representative registered the only opposition to a $60 million interest-free loan for an irrigation project to expand Vietnamese rice production.

In addition, oil-exporting nations that are solidly pro-U.S. chipped in another $20 million for the project, and the Netherlands added $10 million of its own.

While the United States still refuses to give Hanoi direct aid, it is giving indirect assistance through its contributions to the World Bank and its sister institution, the International Monetary Fund.

And there is reason to believe the United States looks favorably on this turn of events as a way of indirectly helping Vietnam, without having to actually vote aid to a government that it fought for 10 years.

Communist Vietnam apparently also finds it a satisfactory solution, since it no longer is demanding direct U.S. aid as a condition for establishing diplomatic relations with Washington.

In the three years since the Hanoi government took over South Vietnam's membership in the IMF and the World Bank, the IMF has provided it with nearly $115 million in economic support.

While the $60 million World Bank loan was its first to Vietnam, the bank indicated it will consider future help. It said "the reconstruction and development of Vietnam's economy will require very substantial resources" and pointedly referred to its loan as "the first project."

In contrast to the help now being provided to the Hanoi government, the South Vietnamese government never received assistance during the nearly 20 years it was a member of the IMF and the World Bank, although it was generously aided by the United States.

The United States also has provided about one of every four dollars spent by both the World Bank and the IMF. The $60 million bank loan will be made by a subsidiary, the International Development Association, to which the United States contributes about $500 million a year, or one-third of its budget.

Congress has been sensitive about World Bank lending to countries that violate human rights and it has threatened to require that U.S. contributions not be spent in such countries as Vietnam, Cambodia and Uganda. But the White House has opposed such an outright ban, while assuring Congress it will direct the U.S. representatives to vote against loans to certain countries, Vietnam included.

The U.S. representative to the bank, Edward R. Fried, said in advance of Tuesday's vote he would oppose the Vietnam loan "as a matter of U.S. policy" but declined to elaborate.

The loan will finance a major portion of a $110 million earth dam and irrigation project on the Saigon River near Saigon, now called Ho Chi Minh City. It is intended to increase rice production by 100,000 tons a year.

The area is one that was heavily damaged during the war. The bank said that although the Hanoi government has made "impressive progress" in rebuilding agricultural production following the severe disruptions caused by the war, it has been hampered by adverse weather and still must import rice.

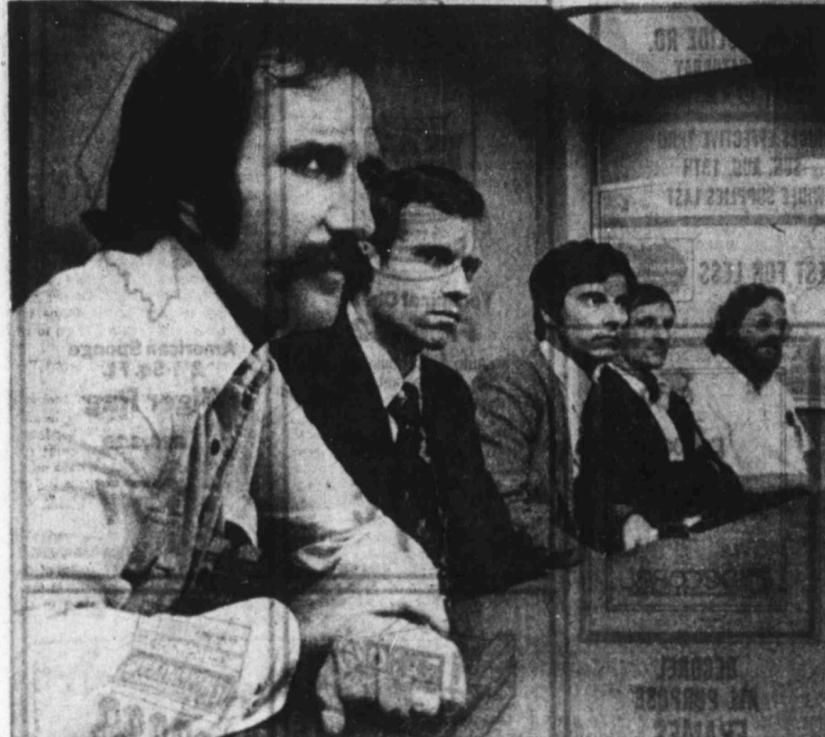

The Vietnamese government is now giving highest priority to increasing rice output and aims to achieve self-sufficiency in grain production in the early 1980s.

There was no mention in the announcement that Vietnam is embroiled in another armed conflict that is putting a new drain on its financial resources, this time with Cambodia, its communist neighbor and a fellow member of the World Bank and the IMF.

Until communist governments took over in Laos, Vietnam and Cambodia, and those seats in the IMF and World Bank, the only communist members were Romania and Yugoslavia. Of the three new communist members only Vietnam has received much help, although Laos received one small $1 million loan from the World Bank recently, which the United States also opposed.

Both institutions were created after World War II, largely at the urging of the United States. The World Bank was to assist war-ravaged Europe with reconstruction, while the IMF was to supervise operations of the postwar international monetary system.

The IMF now has 131 members and the World Bank 132. While the Soviet Union was initially invited to join, it refused.

MEETING THE PRESS — Two of these five men will be selected in 1980 to operate experiments aboard the first Spacelab mission. The group, chosen in June, was introduced to the press Tuesday at the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., where they will start their training and from where the mission will be managed. Left to right are: Dr. Wubbo Ockels, a German physicist; Byron Lichtenberg, a doctoral candidate at MIT; Dr. Ulf Marbold, a Dutch materials specialist; Dr. Nicollier, a Swiss astronomer, and Dr. Michael Lampson, a University of California at Berkeley physicist. The three Europeans are connected with the European Space Agency. NASA announced Tuesday the names of four American scientists chosen for 1981's Spacelab 2 as "payload specialists." (AP Laserphoto)

Friends, Neighbors Excluded From Seeing Baby Louise

By JEFF BRADLEY
LONDON (AP) — John and Lesley Brown are letting almost no outsiders near their test-tube daughter, disappointing friends and neighbors who want to see the world's youngest celebrity in person.

"We neighbors had elbowed together and we were hoping to see the baby," said Gladys Johnson, a neighbor who took a bunch of flowers and a small gift to the door of the Browns home in Bristol this week. "It's all very disappointing, being turned away like this. I suppose you can't really blame John and Lesley if they're getting all that money."

Mrs. Brown, 31, and her truck-driver husband John, 38, have sold exclusive rights to their story to the Daily Mail, a London tabloid, for about $600,000. While two dozen reporters and cameramen from other members of the media keep watch outside the house, only the Mail's representatives and members of the family are being allowed in to see Louise Joy Brown, who was 15 days old today.

Gynecologist Patrick Steptoe and Cambridge University physiologist Robert Edwards, whose technique resulted in the birth of medical history's first baby conceived outside the mother's body, also are keeping a low profile.

After one news conference, they have refused to talk to reporters. They also insisted that their breakthrough with Mrs. Brown was not an open invitation to other women who can't conceive because their fallopian tubes are irreparably blocked.

The Browns live in a 10-year-old row house in a working class part of Bristol, on the west coast of England; Brown has said the money from the sale of their story will not change their lives; they want to settle back quietly into an unassuming life style.

Baby Louise, who was 5 pounds 12 ounces at birth, was brought home from the hospital last Sunday. Waiting photographers didn't get a glimpse of her as she was hurried into the house through the back door in a blue car.

A report on her health came Monday from a local Health Department nurse, making a routine call on the Browns for the National Health Service, which paid the bills for Louise's birth.

"Louise is a lovely little girl," the nurse said. "She's very small and like all little babies spends most of her time sleeping."

Steptoe practices medicine in Oldham, where Louise was born by Caesarean section just before midnight on July 25. The Oldham Chronicle reported the doctor has had offers to continue his work in the United States, including one lucrative proposal from Las Vegas.

That's all pure speculation, a spokeswoman at Steptoe's consulting office told The Associated Press. "It's only a slight possibility at this stage."

The physicians announced after Louise's birth they needed new facilities and financing to continue their research. They had been trying for more than 10 years to succeed with this test-tube technique of fertilization in the laboratory of an egg from the would-be mother with the sperm of her husband.

LINCOLN BEDROOM
The Lincoln Bedroom of the White House, which contains an ornately carved bed and furniture of its period, is at the east end of the second floor. It served as Lincoln's cabinet room and in it he signed the Emancipation Proclamation. A portrait of Andrew Jackson, admitted by Lincoln, hangs there today. In the room there is also a copy of the Gettysburg Address, written out by Lincoln.

NASA Chooses Scientists For '81 Spacelab

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Four American scientists, two of whom will fly aboard an orbiting spacecraft, have been chosen to perform scientific experiments during the second Spacelab mission, scheduled for 1981, the space agency announced Tuesday.

Two of the scientists will go up with the orbiting space laboratory and operate the scientific investigations planned for the mission. The other two will operate ground-based experiment equipment and assist the pair in orbit.

The scientists are known to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as payload specialists, a new position in the space program. They are not required to pilot or operate the Space Shuttle, which will carry the Spacelab on its missions. The scientists will devote themselves to the operation of experiments as they would in a ground-based laboratory.

The Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., is responsible for training the payload specialists.

The Spacelab 2 payload will consist of scientific investigations, mainly in the areas of astronomy, high energy astrophysics and solar physics research, NASA said.

Experiments also will be performed in plasma physics, botany, medicine and space technology.

Payload specialists were announced in June for the first Spacelab mission, scheduled for launch in 1980.

The four chosen for Spacelab 2:

- Dr. George W. Simon of Alamogordo, N.M., chief of the solar research branch at the Air Force Geophysics Laboratory, with permanent duty location at Sacramento Peak Observatory, Sunspot, N.M.

- Dr. Loren W. Acton of Palo Alto, Calif., a research scientist at the Lockheed Palo Alto Research Laboratory.
- Dr. John-David F. Bartoe of Reston, Va., a research physicist at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D.C.
- Dr. Dianne K. Prinz of Alexandria, Va., a research physicist at the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory, Washington, D.C.

By ROLAND TYRRELL
MOSCOW (UPI) — The second deadline has passed for two U.S. reporters to retract articles declared libelous by a Moscow civil court, but neither has been told what action Soviet authorities will take next.

Craig Whitney of the New York Times and Harold Piper of the Baltimore Sun both refused to comply with the original order to retract their stories and similarly ignored the five-day extension granted last Thursday by Moscow City Court Judge Lev Almazov.

"I still have heard nothing and I hope I won't," Whitney, 34, said in a telephone conversation late Tuesday.

Almazov fined the reporters 50 rubles — $72.50 — each and extended the time limit when they failed to meet an earlier deadline that fell last Tuesday.

That deadline was set by Almazov on July 18 in a libel suit brought by the Soviet state television and radio network.

In dispatches May 25, Whitney and Piper quoted the friends of dissidents as saying the televised confession of a convicted Georgian activist may have been faked.

The activist, Zviad Gamsakhurdia, was called as a witness at the hearing and testified that his confession was genuine.

Whitney deposited more than $3,000 in a Soviet state budget account last Friday to cover the fines and court costs for both himself and Piper, who is on vacation in the United States.

He accompanied the payment with a written statement to the court saying he was paying "under protest" and rebuffing the libel finding.

He said then that he hoped that would be the end of the affair.

But Almazov said at last Thursday's hearing that if Whitney and Piper failed to comply this time, the court will have to take "different measures."

He did not elaborate on what those measures might be. The prosecutor at the original hearing had demanded that their press credentials be lifted and they could be expelled from the country.

Senior western diplomats view the protracted case as a Soviet attempt to force foreign correspondents to rely on official news sources.

The case has stirred up tensions between the Kremlin and the Carter Administration, which issued broad hints of reciprocal action if Whitney and Piper are expelled.

CONVENIENT REVOLVING CHARGE WITH APPROVED CREDIT

Self-Care Revolution Takes Off In United States

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
 NEW YORK (UPI) — A self-care revolution in America today promises healthier and longer life to those conscientiously joining it, claim experts writing in a new "Help Yourself" booklet.

Dr. Keith W. Schnert, known as the father of the self-care movement, writes in the free booklet put out by Blue Cross and Blue Shield Associations:

"Education in self-care may be as simple and informal as your doctor's taking five or 10 minutes to explain an illness, to answer all of your questions ... or it may be as structured as a 34-hour adult education course given by the School of Nursing at Georgetown University."

Persons taking the Georgetown course graduate with "black bags" of their own and know how to check vital signs, using stethoscopes, sphygmomanometers (blood pressure cuffs), otoscopes to check ears and some other medical equipment.

Persons expert in self-care, according to the former Georgetown University Medical Professor, learn to keep their own health histories, and learn the perils of eating too well.

"They're instructed in body talk — the symptoms that tell them when to seek professional help. They learn what to put in their medicine cabinets (or refrigerators) and what to throw away as well as how to find — and rate — a doctor."

Schnert said those in the self-care movement learn simple yoga exercises that may help banish sleeping pills and insomnia.

What can self-helpers do about minor injuries and chronic conditions that account for three out of every four visits to the doctor? They're taught to tell the difference between what helps on a do-it-yourself basis and what needs professional attention.

"If you're like many persons, the idea of self-care may be, at first, a little dismaying," Schnert said.

"But think about it. Prof. Godfrey Hochbaum of the University of North Carolina School of Public Health calculates that the average person spends less than one-tenth of one percent of his lifetime in direct contact with a member of the medical profession.

"That's less than one hour in every 2,000. The other 1,999 hours you're on your own."

"You make decisions about eating, drinking, smoking, exercises. These are more important than any the doctor may make for you. So, in effect, you already are acting as your own doctor most of the time. The trouble is you need some training."

You can even save money by knowing what your body is saying when it is injured or in pain. Those trained in self-care, according to the doctor, can tell when to go to a doctor's office — where treatment is less expensive — and when to go to a hospital emergency room, where charges are higher.

He gave as an example a laceration. "A common laceration treated at an emergency room now costs about $75. The same service in a doctor's private office costs only $20 — nearly a 400 percent difference."

Many self-care training programs are modeled after the pioneer program Schnert started when he was at Georgetown.

Courses now can be found in action or in prospect from Maine (Maine Medical Center, Portland), and the University of Maine-Farmington to California (Santa Rosa's 2,500-member Common Health Club, a prepaid health plan in which health education is mandatory).

Other programs cited by Schnert: —Andrews Air Force Base, Maryland. Self-care courses are run for both active and retired personnel.

—In Minneapolis, Minn., the health department and St. Mary's Junior College have helped start 20 self-care education programs.

State Plans Gimmicks To Attract Voters

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — State officials say traditional voter registration methods don't work well enough, so they're turning for help to a 9-foot-tall goose, the Goodyear blimp and McDonald's.

Dozens of stunts and promotional campaigns, including drawings for free gifts for new voters, are being arranged by California's secretary of state and more than a dozen private firms.

"We've acknowledged that voter registration, basically and fundamentally, is a marketing problem," Deputy Secretary of State Michael Gagan said Monday.

"We're taking the marketing and distribution skills of private industry, piggy-backing with what we think is a legitimate public purpose," he said. "We're convinced that the traditional registration techniques, while necessary, need to be supplemented with more innovative, unconventional techniques."

California has 9.9 million people registered to vote, with an estimated 14 million eligible. That is 500,000 fewer than the registration record set in 1972.

Gagan said the goal of the new campaign is to boost registration over 11 million by the Oct. 9 deadline to register for the Nov. 7 general election.

Secretary of State March Fong Eu plan to kick off the campaign Wednesday with a parade up Sacramento's Capitol Mall to the Capitol.

Gagan said Miss Eu, who is 4-foot-4, and the 9-foot-tall corporate mascot of Granny Goose potato chips will hand out voter registration forms to passersby.

Granny Goose is putting applications for voter registration forms in every bag of potato chips sold in California during the next month.

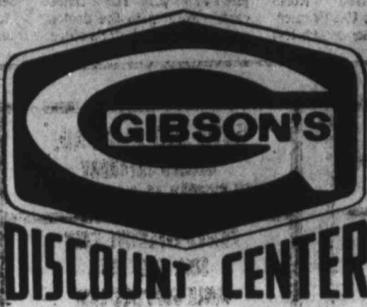

Gagan said Goodyear flashed register-to-vote messages on its blimp during registration for the June primary and that the state asked Goodyear to do the same during the coming month, concentrating on Southern California's crowded beach areas.

He said register-to-vote announcements also are planned at several football stadiums, and that Miss Eu is scheduled to tape a 30-second voter registration message with actor Alan Alda on the "M-A-S-H" set for showing to 700 of more theaters.

He said 100 McDonald's hamburger stands, 179 telephone company offices and Ayes supermarkets also will have forms for on-the-spot registration.

Some McDonald's outlets will give free hamburgers for registering, and other prizes are planned in other areas.

Black Self-Image 'Victimized' By TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Black children spend too much time in front of the television "victimizing their self-image and identity," a psychologist told the National Urban League's 68th annual conference.

"Television has much in common with the process of 'brain-washing,' hypnosis and addiction," Nathan Hare said Sunday during a discussion on the media image of blacks. Actor Raymond St. Jacques said sponsors' products should be boycotted to express dissatisfaction with television programs. "When you can create some solidarity in the boycotting of these products, then you can change the image," he told the league, a business-oriented organization dealing mainly with private industry.

Carter Links NY To Urban Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, after signing federal loan guarantees for New York City, flew back to the White House today to meet with mayors of other cities who are seeking $1 billion more in annual aid for troubled urban centers.

Carter had stayed overnight in New York City after signing the $1.65-billion loan-guarantee package, a measure he hailed as a step in fulfilling "America's national urban policy."

The 19 mayors are in Washington to lobby Congress for passage of Carter's plan to give financial aid to distressed cities. The fiscal-aid portion would authorize an additional $1 billion each year for two years, to be divided among cities with high unemployment and other symptoms of distress.

The mayors met Tuesday with members of Congress on the plan, which a House subcommittee set aside last week and which is still pending in the Senate.

Presidential aide Gene Eidenberg said Carter asked the mayors to report personally to him about what they had heard in their lobbying drive.

Invited to the White House meeting were the mayors of Chicago, Boston, Detroit, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Newark, Jersey City, Gary, New Orleans, Birmingham, Syracuse and El Paso.

Also, Lafayette, La., Waldham, Mass., Trenton, N.J., St. Paul, Minn., Bridgeport, Conn., Columbus, Ohio, and Berkeley, Calif.

The president signed the New York aid bill Tuesday at a City Hall Plaza ceremony amid attempts to publicize his administration's accomplishments more forcefully in the face of declining popularity polls.

"This bill is in the national interest," Carter said. "It is designed to put behind us a danger that would create problems for all our cities and for the financial markets of the nation and the world."

The signing ceremony for the bill that ensures New York City's economic survival was a fulfillment of Carter's campaign pledge to protect the city from bankruptcy.

It was the first time the president had signed legislation outside of Washington, D.C. The idea came from the White House.

"Those who thought that the United States was going to stand by while its greatest city went under were wrong," he said.

But Carter was careful to point out that the legislation is not a handout. "If New York keeps its commitments — and I am sure it will — then this bill will not cost the American taxpayer one cent."

When the president began speaking a small group of demonstrators with bull horns chanted, "Human Rights."

The group was quickly surrounded by police, and Carter ignored the incident. It was his third encounter with vocal protesters in four days.

Several hundred invited guests sat in the plaza while Carter, Mayor Edward Koch and Gov. Hugh Carey complimented each other on their respective roles in persuading a reluctant Congress to pass the bill. Hundreds of other New Yorkers strained to watch from behind police lines 50 yards away.

Carter, who carried New York in the 1976 election by just 288,000 votes out of 6.5 million cast, appeared in a jubilant mood.

The administration had lobbied hard for the bill, which guarantees payments on principal of long-term notes issued by New York City or its financing agent, the Municipal Assistance Corporation, until June 30, 1982.

Luckenbach To Advise Mayor Koch

By K. MACK SISK
LUBBOCK (UPI) — New York City Mayor Ed Koch can rest at ease. Help is on the way.

Luckenbach, population 3, has decided to send a delegation to the financially troubled Big Apple this month to advise Koch.

The delegation has requested a meeting with the mayor to tell him how Luckenbach solved problems of urban sprawl by recently putting in six flush toilets and a second parking meter.

The dilapidated burg was revived into a place of mirth by the late humorist Hondo Crouch, who kept a one-eared, beer-drinking pig named Oink Van Gogh, and gained considerable popularity with the recording of a song called "Luckenbach, Texas" by Waylon Jennings and Willie Nelson.

Jack Harmon, a San Antonio publicist who calls himself "press secretary of Luckenbach," said a motley Luckenbach delegation, including several musicians and a few armadillos, will make a trip to New York by Amtrak train and will entertain at each stop along the way.

The week beginning Aug. 20 has been declared "Texas Week" at the Lone Star Cafe on lower Fifth Avenue in New York and Harmon predicted the 300-seat establishment would be packed with Texans during the frivolity.

Among cultural exchange events the Texans have planned to teach New Yorkers how to forget their fiscal troubles are a genuine "Texas moseying contest" and a frozen duck race.

Residents of the megalopolis also will be shown how to properly conduct a drunk-and-falling-down contest, Harmon said.

Besides Harmon and his wife, Susie, editor of the Luckenbach Monthly Moon, and their 3-year-old son, people going to the aid of the big city will include Guich Kooch, a former owner of Luckenbach and now a performer on the "Carter Country" television series; Sam Lewis of San Angelo, founder of the Cross-Eyed Mule Chili Cooking team and inventor of the jalapeno lollipop; singer Kinky Friedman, and Gary P. Nunn and the Lost Gonzo Band.

"Everybody is somebody in Luckenbach," Harmon told Mayor Koch, in announcing the Luckenbachians were coming to his aid, "and we feed the same about other folks — even those as far away as New York City. We'll meet with you anytime in the mornings or afternoons and tell you how Luckenbach has coped with urban expansion."

Flood Relief Drive Begins

Texas Red Cross chapters are beginning fund-raising campaigns to pay for the cost of the assistance recently given to the flood victims in Central and South Texas.

Lubbock Chapter chairman, David West, said that the cost will exceed $300,000. At the peak of the emergency, affecting 887 families, nearly 100 disaster specialists were active in Assistance Centers providing food, clothing and shelter for 3,000 victims and emergency workers.

Three Lubbockites, Robert Davis, Larry Henschberger and Dempsey Taylor, helped in the assistance program in the Abilene, Kerrville and Albany areas.

Contributions marked "Texas Flood Relief" may be sent to the American Red Cross at 1313 Ave. L, Lubbock, Texas 79401.

Liquor Vote

contest suit in Taylor County or an appeal to the Texas Supreme Court. The deadline for contesting the commissioners' tally is today.

Assistant Attorney General Joe Dibrell, who represented the ABC, said he would ask the supreme court "probably Thursday" to prevent Mathews from assuming jurisdiction in the dispute.

Dibrell had argued that the ABC only received results of the second canvass and therefore had a duty to process liquor permits from Taylor County.

Mathews' decision leaves in effect a restraining order against the ABC. A hearing on that order was set for 10 a.m. Monday.

The controversial second canvass was ordered by State District Judge Don Lane of Abilene, who directed commissioners to include the omitted voting box.

Mathews said Lane had no authority to issue such an order.

Meals Aid Especially Helpful To Blind

senior citizens to take advantage of the direct deposit system for social security checks. A person's check is sent to the bank and automatically deposited. It can eliminate the theft of the check from the mailbox or the purse-snatching from an elderly woman on her way to deposit her check at the bank.

Concern for the elderly is evident when the volunteers gather each weekday morning at 10:30 to pick up a thermal chest of hot meals at Horace Mitchell's Restaurant.

Conversation centers on the volunteer's route customers. "Mrs. Johnson's in the hospital this week. I sure will miss her on my route," a woman says.

"How is Mr. Brown? I used to deliver that route and he was always so nice."

Client or recipient are words Mrs. Williams never uses for the persons in the program. "It sounds so cold and impersonal," she said. "I call them subscribers."

When she visits them, she often calls them by first name. The informality is often returned. Kay Furr, a volunteer, said some of the elderly women on her route hug her at the door and treat her like a granddaughter.

Volunteers go in pairs — one to drive and one to read the route instructions — on the 16 routes serving almost 200 senior citizens.

"The number fluctuates," Mrs. Williams explained. "Some days some are in the hospital or with friends."

Sometimes people subscribe to the service for only a few weeks or months while recovering from illness.

"Home is where they love to be and they're happier there," she said.

Each day an envelope is delivered along with a meat, two vegetables, a hot roll or cornbread, milk and a desert. Forty-five percent of the meals prepared for the program are special diets prescribed by each customer's doctor. Subscribers may deposit their $1.75 for the meal in the envelope left each day. Others pay what they can afford according to their income.

Sixty percent of the program's $140,000 budget this year comes from Title XX funds from the Texas Department of Human Resources. The remaining 40 percent comes from payments of subscribers, churches, civic groups, individual donations, sororities and fraternities and youth groups.

The envelopes delivered each day also provide a system of communication. Mrs. Williams reads all of the envelopes turned in each day. Some ask for transportation to a doctor's appointment. Others request assistance with shopping or counseling on selecting another place to live.

Much of Mrs. Williams' job is referring the elderly to the other services available to them through other organizations.

Most envelopes, though, comment on the food program.

Some ask for buttermilk instead of skim milk or cornbread instead of a hot roll.

"Thanks a million for the two girls bringing our food and also for the flowers," one couple wrote. "We put them with the Friday flowers and made a big bouquet."

Lubbock Wholesale Florist contributes flowers to subscribers on Mondays and Fridays. Other special touches are birthday cards and get-well cards sent by volunteers in the program.

Food, flowers and friendship. All things that those under 65 tend to take for granted.

For the elderly homebound, it means the difference between existing and living.

Tomorrow: For those who are mobile, the city's seven nutrition sites offer meals, companionship and a social center.

Former Conoco Official Fined For Price Violations

HOUSTON (AP) — A $5,000 fine has been assessed a former high official of Continental Oil Co. after he entered a plea of no contest to a charge of selling refined petroleum products at prices higher than those permitted by federal price controls.

The criminal information charge against Willard H. Burnap, 61, was filed just minutes before he appeared Tuesday before U.S. District Court Judge Finis Cowan.

The short court proceedings, however, were preceded by plea bargaining negotiations in which the former Continental vice chairman agreed to submit to a polygraph examination, be interviewed by the FBI, and testify before a grand jury or in a subsequent trial if called as a witness.

The eight-line charge alleges Burnap, then executive vice president for refining and marketing at Continental's Western Hemisphere headquarters in Houston, caused refined products to be sold in August 1973 to M&A Petroleum Co. at a price in excess of ceilings permitted by the Cost of Living Council.

Cowan asked for a statement of facts and James Ezer, an assistant U.S. attorney, answered by saying Burnap knew of a scheme in which Continental sold the products at the ceiling price and then took an additional payment for them.

M&A Petroleum is a subsidiary of Foremost Petroleum Co.

"It's M&A's position that, in order to continue buying gasoline, it had to agree to the arrangement," company lawyer Tom McDade said.

Burnap joined Continental in 1962 but was removed as vice chairman in 1976 during an internal investigation of unauthorized political contributions.

In late July, Howard W. Blauvelt, chairman and chief executive officer, said Continental was aware federal authorities were investigating certain matters associated with petroleum product regulations of the Federal Energy Administration that later became part of the Department of Defense.

"Conoco voluntarily disclosed these matters to the federal government more than a year and a quarter ago," Blauvelt said at the company's Stamford, Conn., headquarters.

"Although it is not possible to determine the dollar amounts involved, the investigation we have conducted indicates they are under $2 million."

A spokesman said Tuesday the company was aware of the court actions involving Burnap.

"Conoco is presently discussing related matters with the U.S. attorney's office and it would not therefore be appropriate to comment further at this time," the spokesman said.

TOYOTA
A TOUGH CHOICE FOR 1978!

One extra long. Both extra tough. Choose the standard bed or the extra large 7-foot bed. Either way you're in for one tough truck! Both are powered by a responsive 2.3 liter 50MC engine. So you can head up on a 1380 pound payload with ease. And because they're Toyotas you know they're quality engineered and built tough... to last! Standard Bed or Long Bed... either way it's a tough choice. See them today!

Shortbed

Officer's Murder Riles Rizzo

By LEE LINDER
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayor Frank Rizzo, reacting angrily after the city's 15-month war with a bedraggled band of self-styled anarchists ended in the death of a police officer in a bloody gunfight, called for return of the death penalty and said he would pull the switch.

The emotional Rizzo, biting his lips and fighting back tears, denounced the mope-headed members of MOVE as "an uncivilized foe that fired the first shot" in the confrontation with police sharpshooters Tuesday.

The battle ended with bulldozers and a crane leveling MOVE's three-story fortress after 12 adults, 11 children, 22 dogs and an unknown number of rats were flushed from the cellar. Inside, officers said, they found a dozen loaded weapons and 1,600 rounds of ammunition.

All the adults, held without bond, were charged with murder, attempted murder and conspiracy to a heavily guarded hearing that MOVE spokesman Delbert Orr Africa — all members take Africa as a surname — ridiculed as "a legalized lynching."

"Get that death penalty back, and put them in the electric chair and I'll pull the switch," said Rizzo, a former foot patrolman who rose to police commissioner before becoming mayor in 1972.

Pennsylvania has no death penalty law, but a bill is pending in the Legislature. Six other officers, five firefighters and two MOVE members were injured in the five-minute gunfight.

Afterwards, another 25 people were arrested in rock-and-brick-throwing skirmishes with police near the MOVE compound, in a rundown west Philadelphia neighborhood near Drexel University and the University of Pennsylvania.

MOVE claims to be a back-to-nature group with an announced goal to overthrow the government. It had been cited for violating the city's health and fire codes, and rejected court orders to vacate the premises where garbage and human wastes composted in the back yard.

"The adversary in this case was an uncivilized foe who we were forced to cope with according to civilized rules," Rizzo said, noting that the city had tried to negotiate with MOVE for more than two years.

"The incident is not closed yet because we have seven more to apprehend," said Rizzo, referring to members sought for charges including weapons violations and disorderly conduct. "Then the trial, and we can put this revolutionary movement out of business once and for all."

The shooting erupted after police in a pre-dawn raid, armed with submachine guns, stormed the compound, punched holes in boarded-up windows and began flooding the basement.

"If you want us, you'll have to bring us out dead," said Chuckie Sims Africa, who was one of two MOVE members wounded.

Cries of infants came over a MOVE bullhorn and Chuckie's voice filtered out into the street as the sun lightened the humid sky.

"You're trying to kill breast-feeding mothers and breast-feeding children. We are not backing down."

Monignor James Devlin and civil rights activist Walter Palmer appealed to the radicals to come out peacefully. But MOVE members screamed obscenities and rejected their entreaties, the cleric said. "They had no intention of coming out. We made repeated pleas for the lives of the children involved, but unfortunately we failed."

Finally the shots, the deluge of water from fire engine cannons, a battering ram and eventually tear gas brought results. With the dead officers' blood smeared the street — he was 37-year-old James Rupp, 52, a sharpshooter and 22-year-old sergeant — the MOVE compound emerged.

First a woman carrying a naked baby. Then a girl in a tattered dress, followed by two more naked kids and another woman with two children clinging to her. Then more adults, more children.

Delbert Africa climbed out a basement window, his hands raised, but officers hit him with a helmet and a rifle, knocking him down. Another officer stomped him on the head before he was handcuffed.

The 11 children, aged from 18 months to 12 years, were placed in the care of the city Welfare Department. All were hungry and thirsty, but unharmed and quiet.

Police Commissioner Joseph O'Neill, who led the MOVE raid and was standing only a few feet from Rupp when he was shot, said MOVE tried to use the children as shields "but it didn't work."

Mishap Blamed On Broken Bolt

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — One of the two bolts that held up a support arm on the Six Flags Over Mid-America Sky Way ride broke "sometime before" July 26 when a gondola slipped from its cable and plunged 70 feet to the ground, killing three persons and injuring a fourth, a preliminary report shows.

"According to Del Research Corp., an outside consultant hired by St. Louis County, the second bolt was cracked and rusted and when it broke the gondola made its fatal plunge. A county official had said Monday that the two bolts were corroded and appeared to be original parts of the eight-year-old ride.

Robert Hagel, director of the county's department of public works, which inspects amusement park rides, said the bolts are not inspected by the county. "I doubt they were inspected by anyone," he said, adding that Six Flags has been asked to make available maintenance logs to determine whether the bolts had been inspected.

County Supervisor Gene McNary asked the county police to hire an independent investigator to examine the Sky Way ride after he learned no other government agencies were involved in the inquiry into the accident.

Nixons To Host GOP Reception

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon and his wife, Pat, will give a reception at his estate Aug. 27 with all proceeds going to the United Republican Finance Committee of Orange County.

A spokesman for the committee said Tuesday that because of space restrictions, attendance at the $250-a-person event will be limited to several hundred people.

The Nixons will greet their guests from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., the spokesman said. He said the event is planned as a private party and will not be open to the press.

WEAPONS FOUND — Philadelphia police officers display guns confiscated from the radical organization MOVE Tuesday morning after a gunfight outside MOVE's west side headquarters. One police officer was killed and at least 10 other persons were injured. The guns were shown at a Tuesday afternoon news conference at City Hall. (AP Laserphoto)

Wrong Digit Mishap Spotlights Clay Action

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Former NCAA tennis champion Billy Martin claims two sets of rules exist in professional tennis—and that he's on the wrong side of them.

Martin of Palo Verde, Calif., made the observation after losing a controversial first-round match Tuesday to defending champion Manuel Orantes of Spain, 7-5, 6-3—a match he waited more than eight hours to play.

"I showed up at 9:30 (a.m.) ready to play one man, warmed up to play a different guy and then I was told I was going to play Orantes. It was sort of like musical opponents," said Martin, who added that he was protesting his loss to the Association of Tennis Professionals.

The incident took place due to a typographical error and a person who apparently thought he was being funny by giving wrong information to players requesting their playing time in the 68th U.S. Open Clay Courts tennis championships. The event is taking place at the Indianapolis Racquet Club.

Tournament officials distributed a packet to the players giving them a telephone number to call for information on their playing times. One digit in the number was wrong. The person receiving the phone calls apparently decided to give the players incorrect times.

"In all my years I thought I'd seen everything in tennis," said tournament director Stan Malles, a former president of the U.S. Tennis Association. "But this is something new for me."

The mishap took the spotlight in a day which included veteran Ken Rosewall, the No. 8 seed, being upset in the first round by 26-year-old Tenny Svensson of Sweden and the elimination of defending women's champion Laura DuPont by Kate Latham.

In other men's matches involving seeded players, No. 2 Guillermo Vilas of Argentina topped Dick Crealy of Australia, 6-4, 6-2. No. 6 John McEnroe overcame a poor start to defeat Chris Roger-Yasselin of France, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

"He (Orantes) did nothing wrong. I know that," said Martin. "But I feel I would have been defaulted. I wouldn't have gotten another chance."

"They (the officials) made a decision. That's their prerogative. I want to find out who's right or wrong," Martin said he felt he got pushed around in the incident.

Orantes on the other hand, thought the tournament committee did the right thing.

Rangers Bop Tigers; Wills Punches 'Jinx'

DETROIT (AP) — Texas' Bump Wills delivered a solid knockout punch to baseball's "Sophomore Jinx" Tuesday night.

Detroit's Dave Rozema found himself on the receiving end of a blow from one of the game's oldest superstitions.

four hits, including a two-run single in a four-run fifth inning as the Rangers ended the Tigers' five-game winning streak with a 9-4 victory.

"Wills just got off to a bad start like a lot of other guys, but he has been playing great the last week to 10 days," observed Manager Billy Hunter.

Rozema, who posted a 15-7 mark and earned several rookie honors last season, was the victim of Texas' fifth-inning uprising, and saw his record slip to 5-6. Rookie Paul Mirabella, 2-4, won his second major league start with relief help from Doc Medich over the last four innings.

"I'm relaxing more now than I have all season," was Wills' explanation for his recent success. "I've put the first part of the season behind me and I'm just thinking of the last three or four games.

"As far as the 'Sophomore Jinx' goes, I've never found anyone who can tell me what it is," the son of former major league Maury Wills said. "I'm not superstitious so it doesn't bother me."

Detroit Manager Ralph Houk says that Rozema's problems can be traced to wildness.

Texas snapped a 1-1 deadlock with its fifth-inning rally that included some mental errors by the Tigers. The most costly was a throw to second base by catcher Lanch Parrish on a bunt by Mike Hargrove with runners on first and second. The throw was late and Texas had the bases loaded.

Wills followed with his single that scored two runs and chased Rozema from the mound. Reliever Jack Morris got Jim Sundberg to hit into a fielder's choice at the plate, but after he intentionally walked Al Oliver to set up a double play, Bobby Bonds bounced a two-run double under the glove of third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez.

The Rangers sewed up their fourth straight win with three runs in the seventh. Two came on a home run by Sundberg and Juan Beniques drove in the other with a double. Bonds led off the ninth with his 21st homer to wrap up the scoring.

Detroit jumped ahead with a run in the first inning on a walk and singles by Rusty Staub and Steve Kempf, but Texas tied the score in the fourth on singles by Oliver and Bonds and a wild pitch by Rozema.

Staub increased his American League RBI lead with a single in the fifth and the Tigers added their final runs in the ninth on doubles by Parrish, pinch hitter Mill May and Ron LeFlore.

The Tigers and Rangers wrap up their season series tonight with Detroit rookie Kip Young, 3-1, scheduled to face veteran Fergie Jenkins, 10-7.

The contest will be the annual Khiva Shrine Football Game, with profits from the game to go to the Shriners' fund to support their orthopedic hospitals and burns institutes. Tuesday's meeting was the unofficial kickoff for ticket sales and promotion of the contest. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

Efren Who? Brandt Reappraises Kicker

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Remember Efren Herrera? He's that field goal specialist Gil Brandt and other Dallas Cowboy brass praised so highly a couple of weeks back while discussing new contracts.

But two weeks is apparently a long time in the National Football League. Moods change — especially when the season debut against San Francisco Saturday exposed the shortcomings of the Cowboy kicking game.

When Herrera failed to report to training camp here 18 days ago, Brandt's tone was almost grandfatherly — a bit chastizing, but still lovable. A happy reunion was not out of reach.

Monday, Brandt described the trading market for Herrera's talents as "not very lucrative.

"Maybe that's not the right way to put it," the Cowboy vice president added. "I'd say he's not a hot commodity. That may be a better way of putting it."

Brandt knows what Herrera will bring on the trading block, but Coach Tom Landry is the trigger man in the organization. And Brandt says Landry has not given Herrera his marching orders — yet.

"My view on the Herrera situation is that I don't think he'll be back," said Brandt. "I think it's a shame, too. He's been good for the Cowboys and the Cowboys have been good for him.

"I think the thing has gone too far."

Zimmerman Guides Minnesota To 10-2 Victory

By The Associated Press
Jerry Zimmerman, substituting for Gene Mauch, got the Minnesota Twins off on the right foot.

Mauch, hospitalized with an infected right foot, couldn't manage the Twins against the Seattle Mariners Tuesday night and isn't expected back until the weekend. So Zimmerman took over the club and guided Minnesota to a 10-2 victory.

"I talked to Gene about 4 o'clock," Mauch said. "He was zoned out on medication, but he knew it was on local TV and I hope he saw it."

Had he watched, Mauch would have seen Mike Cabbage crack a pinch grand slam to highlight the Twins' seven-run sixth inning that turned a close game into a laugher.

"It wasn't until the ninth inning that I started laughing," said Zimmerman, who added he hadn't gotten much instruction from his boss.

"We just went over the lineup and he told me to have some fun, I did."

The game was tied 2-2 when Jose Morales singled and took second on a wild pitch by Rick Honeycutt, 4-7. Roy Smalley walked and the bases were loaded when Honeycutt's throw to first on Willie Norwood's attempted sacrifice pulled Dan Meyer off the bag.

Larry Wolfe singled in one run, then Mike Parrott came in to pitch. He walked Glenn Borgmann to force in another and bring Cabbage off the bench to bat for Bob Randall.

Two pitches later, the bases were empty and the Minnesota fans were cheering Cabbage's sixth home run of the year.

Red Sox 9, Indians 7

Jim Rice went 4-for-4, including two home runs, to key a four-homer barrage and power the Red Sox past the Indians. Carlton Fisk blasted a three-run shot and Dwight Evans added a two-run drive, giving Boston its first four-homer game of the season.

"I'm not thinking about the home run race," said Rice, who raised his season's total to 27 and regained the major league home run lead. "I'm only thinking about going out there and doing what I'm paid to do—knocking in runs."

He knocked in four and scored three times and Bob Stanley, 7-1, turned in 42-3 innings of two-hit relief after replacing Mike Torrez.

The Red Sox lost Carl Yastrzemski again. The veteran, who had missed 5 1/2 games with severe back muscle spasms, aggravated the injury and had to leave after five innings.

Yankees 3, Brewers 0
Willie Randolph and Lou Piniella drove in sixth-inning runs, snapping Mike Caldwell's scoreless streak against New York at 25 1/3 innings and helping the Yankees to their second victory in 11 games against the Brewers this season.

The shutout, New York's second in a row, extended Milwaukee's scoreless streak to 26 innings. Dick Tidrow pitched the first eight for the Yankees, giving up three hits, and Rich Gossage pitched the ninth to record his 16th save.

Blue Jays 5, Orioles 3
A two-run homer by Rico Carty pulled Toronto even and a solo shot by Al Woods put the Blue Jays ahead as they handed the Orioles their sixth consecutive loss at Exhibition Stadium.

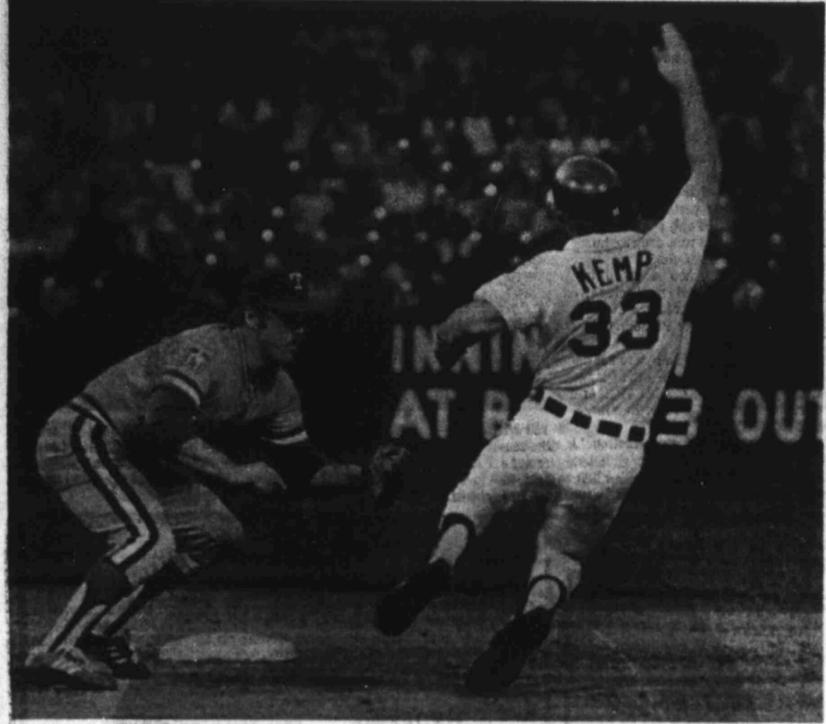

"I've tried three different pairs of shoes in three days and not one has worked," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver, a superstitious type. "I guess I'll have to try a different pair tomorrow."
Lee May's 18th homer of the year had

Angels 2, A's 1
Merv Rettenmund drew a bases-loaded walk from Oakland reliever Bob Lacey, capping California's two-run seventh inning and giving the Angels their victory over the A's.

Royals 10, White Sox 4
Clint Hurdle had four hits while U.L. Washington, Pete LaCock and Al Cowens had three apiece, keying an 18-hit Kansas City attack and helping the Royals hand the White Sox their fifth loss in the last six games.

Hurdle, singles, highlighted four-run bursts in the second and fifth for the Royals. Hal McRae added a two-run homer in the eighth.

OUT OF REACH—Detroit Tigers' Steve Kemp (33) was out at second when he tried to stretch a first inning single during Tuesday night's game against Texas at Tiger Stadium. Rangers' shortstop Toby Harrah made the play as the Rangers went on to a 9-4 victory. (AP Laserphoto)

Niekro 'Whacks' Atlanta 6-5

By The Associated Press
Phil Niekro pitches softly and carries a big stick.

Not only is the ace of the Atlanta pitching staff still baffling National League batters with his tantalizing knuckleball, but he continues to give opposing pitchers a hard time at the plate.

"I get my whacks in," said Niekro Tuesday night after driving in two runs and scoring another in the Braves' 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

Niekro's bases-loaded single in the eighth inning provided the Braves with their eventual winning runs and provided the pitcher with his 18th hit and ninth RBI of the year. Not bad for a part-time hitter.

"He's something with the lumber," said Atlanta Manager Bobby Cox. "He's the best-hitting pitcher in the league."

He's equally effective as a pitcher. Against the Reds, he had a no-hitter for 6 1/3 innings before surviving shaky defensive support and Cincinnati's home run power in the late stages.

"He can probably pitch as long as he wants to pitch," said Cox about the 39-year-old right-hander. "He's got to be the hardest guy to hit in the league. If I had one game to win, I would have Phil pitch it."

In other National League action, the San Francisco Giants nipped the Houston Astros 3-2; the Los Angeles Dodgers stopped the San Diego Padres 3-2; the St. Louis Cardinals took a doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phillies, 2-0 and 6-2; the Montreal Expos whipped the New York Mets 6-1 and the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the Chicago Cubs 9-5.

Niekro, 14-11, shackled the Reds until the seventh when Dan Driessen drilled a one-out single to right on the first pitch. Dave Concepcion followed with a single and both scored when third baseman Rod Gilbreath threw wildly to first on pinch-hitter Johnny Bench's grounder.

The Reds scored their third run on Ken Griffey's homer in the eighth inning, then added two more on Bench's two-run homer in the ninth, only the fifth Cincinnati hit of the night.

Niekro's two-run single in the eighth keyed a three-run rally for the Braves. Atlanta took a 1-0 lead in the third on consecutive doubles by Chico Ruiz and Jerry Royster. Biff Pocoroba made it 2-0 in the fourth with an RBI single.

Niekro scored their third run in the fifth. After drawing a leadoff walk, he moved to second on a sacrifice bunt before coming home on a double by Rowland Office.

Giants 3, Astros 2
Darrell Evans broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run single in the third inning and made two outstanding plays at third base to beat Houston. The Giants led the bases in the third when Houston starter Tom Dixon gave up singles by Terry Whitfield and Jack Clark and a walk to Willie McCovey. Evans then drilled a single to right field to break the tie.

In the top of the third, Evans had fielded a hard grounder to start one of three double plays the Giants made in support of winner John Montefusco. In the fourth, he leaped high and speared a leadoff liner by Bob Watson.

Dodgers 3, Padres 2
Steve Garvey hit two homers and Don Sutton scattered six hits as Los Angeles defeated San Diego. Garvey slugged a solo shot in the second inning off loser Gaylord Perry and hit a two-run homer in the fourth, also off Perry, to account for all the Dodger runs.

The Padres scored two unearned runs in the top of the fourth, taking advantage of Lee Lacy's error on Oscar Gamble's fly ball to left at the start of the inning. Sutton retired the next two batters, but Rick Sweet doubled to score Gamble and came home himself on Fernando Gonzalez's single.

Cardinals 2-4, Phillies 6-2
Pete Vuckovich hurled a four-hitter and Ted Simmons and Keith Hernandez each knocked in a run to lead St. Louis past Philadelphia in the opener of their doubleheader. George Hendrick's RBI double keyed a four-run rally in the third inning to help the Cardinals take the second game and extend their winning streak to five.

"We can make up a lot of ground on a lot of people if we play like we are right now," said St. Louis Manager Ken Boyer. "I'll tell you one thing: I've been sleeping a lot better these nights now that we have won five in a row."

Expos 6, Mets 1
Larry Parrish and Warren Cromartie cracked two-run hits in a six-run Montreal first inning, backing a three-hitter by Dan Schatzeder and carrying the Expos over New York.

Schatzeder walked five and struck out none in his strong performance. Loser Tom Hausman lasted only one-third of an inning, giving up five runs and five hits.

Pirates 9, Cubs 5
John Milner smashed a grand-slam home run and Dave Parker collected five hits, including a two-run homer and run-scoring single, to power Pittsburgh over Chicago.

Milner's homer capped a five-run uprising in the fifth inning, when the Pirates chased loser Rick Reuschel. Parker's two-run blast, his 17th, came in a three-run third.

"This is the kind of game that could give us the right momentum with the four-game series coming up with Philadelphia," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. "It's no doubt we've been struggling, but today we looked like the free-wheeling team that other clubs fear."

TURNING TWO—San Francisco Giants shortstop Roger Metzger, obtained earlier in the season from the Houston Astros, turns a fifth-inning double play against his former club as he hops over Terry Puhl Tuesday night at Candlestick Park. Giants' Bill Madlock, background, fielded Edos Cabell's grounder to start the double play. The Giants trimmed the Astros 3-2. (AP Laserphoto)

Grambling Hit With Probation

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Grambling State University has been placed on a one-year probation for violating certain National Collegiate Athletic Association regulations in its football and basketball programs.

The probation, which was announced by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions, prohibits the Grambling football and basketball teams from participating in any post-season competition or appearing on any NCAA-controlled television program during the upcoming academic year.

In a summary of the violations, the NCAA said that the Grambling athletic director, who is also the head football coach, loaned small amounts of cash to certain student-athletes for personal expense from 1959 until the 1976-77 academic year. Eddie Robinson has been athletic director and football coach at Grambling since 1941.

Young Knocks Rams' Attitudes

By The Associated Press
With the National Football League's first mandatory roster cut still a week away and coaches trying to put together a winning team, Los Angeles' Charles Young has given head man George Allen something else to contemplate.

The former All-Pro tight end criticized some of the Rams, saying that they have lost every big game they have been in. "I can't believe some of the guys on this team," Young was quoted as saying in the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "There are just too many Hollywood stars around."

"What has this team ever done? It's lost every big game it's been in. It's been fortunate to be in an easy division with teams like San Francisco, Atlanta and New Orleans."

The Rams wouldn't have won five straight division titles had they been in the same division with Washington, St. Louis and Dallas.

Young, who was beaten out by Terry Nelson for the starting job last year, referred to three of the NFC's Eastern Division teams that he played against during his four seasons with the Philadelphia Eagles. Young is beginning his second season with the Rams.

But the 6-foot-4, 238-pound Young went on to say that what the team needs is discipline. "The kind George Allen is trying to instill. The Rams will never win a big game without it."

"I know a lot of players are going to read this and get upset with me," said Young. "But I don't care. I'm just speaking the truth."

The Rams started their preseason by dropping a 14-7 decision to the New England Patriots last Saturday night. It had been reported that Young didn't play because he missed practice last week, but Allen said Monday that Young didn't play because of a pulled leg muscle.

While Young was criticizing his club, numerous other teams, including Los Angeles, began signing and waiving players in preparation for the first required cut.

Los Angeles waived defensive back Alan Caldwell, defensive tackle Bob Pfister, tight end Ray Jolla, wide receiver Mike Robinson and center Barry Caudill while running back Sonny Collins, in only his second year in the NFL, announced his retirement.

Veteran offensive guard Tom Wickert and four other players were placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs — offensive tackle John Patterson, cornerbacks Larry Dixon and Greg Anderson and linebacker Aaron Ball.

The San Francisco 49ers announced that wide receiver Willie McGeorge had been waived to give him a chance to sign with another team.

Chicago waived defensive end John Andrews, linebacker Mike Martin, kicker Tony DiRienzo, safety Phil Meyer and tight end Orlando Nelson. The Bears also announced that defensive end Billy Newsome has retired. The New York Jets waived defensive end Al Burton; cornerback Billy Hardee and linebacker Al Palewicz. St. Louis linebacker John Barefield, a second-round draft choice, agreed to contract terms and the Cardinals acquired running back Andre Herrera on waivers from Oakland.

Detroit Optimistic 'Bird' Will Recover

DETROIT (AP) — Mark "The Bird" Fidrych may never pitch again, but the Detroit Tigers still say they are optimistic he will recover from shoulder ailments that have plagued him for the past two seasons.

On Tuesday, the Tigers announced what had been feared for months — Fidrych is sidelined for the remainder of the season.

The Bird has never regained the form that made him a 19-game winner and gave him American League Rookie of the Year honors in 1976.

His antics — which include crawling around the pitcher mound to pat down the dirt — made him the darling of baseball fans and one of the biggest drawing cards the Tigers have ever had.

"As diagnosed, he still has tendinitis and it is unwise for him to pitch at this time," said Dr. Edwin Guise, an orthopedic specialist who examined Fidrych at Henry Ford Hospital on Monday.

Tigers General Manager Jim Campbell said he is optimistic about the future. Fidrych was sidelined April 17 with tendinitis.

"I'm not a prophet of doom," said Campbell. "I look to the positive side in everything. And I feel Mark is going to come back ... He has made real good improvement. But he's not 100 percent. He might be 90 percent, or 80 percent. I don't know. But I do know as long as he's not 100 percent we won't let him pitch here."

The American League ball club had sent the 23-year-old ace pitcher to doctors in Detroit, New York and California in hopes of straightening out the painful tendinitis in his right shoulder.

Campbell said Fidrych would be placed on the 60-day emergency disabled list which will extend beyond the regular baseball season. He also said Fidrych will not play winter ball, a decision that puts off his return to the mound until spring training next February — at the earliest.

Plans for a big comeback by the vaunted Bird went awry over the weekend when Fidrych threw eight pitches for the Tigers' farm club on Lakeland, Fla., and complained of stiffness again.

Fidrych was sent there July 21 to try to work his arm back into condition.

The Tigers had been hopeful Fidrych would be ready to pitch tonight against the Texas Rangers. It would have been his first game with the Tigers since the tendinitis kicked up in the spring. Tiger fans had bought up more than 30,000 tickets for the game against Texas.

Guise said improvement was noted, especially since the manipulative procedures he received in New York June 28, a reference to Fidrych's treatment by the New York Yankee team physician.

"Changes are good that with prolonged rest and rehabilitation, Mark will be able to pitch next spring," Guise said.

The usually talkative Fidrych was nowhere near Tiger Stadium when word was passed that he was through for the year.

Fidrych appeared in only three games for the Tigers this year, compiling a 2-0 record before coming up with a sore pitching arm.

Frazier's Son Eyes Olympics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier hopes he and his 17-year-old son, Marvis, can become the first father-son combination to win an Olympic heavyweight gold medal.

"It would be great," said Frazier, who won his gold in 1964. "I think his ability is greater than mine when I was 17."

In Indianapolis Saturday night, Marvis scored a second-round knockout to run his amateur record to 12-0 with six KO's.

"My goal is to win the gold medal in 1980," said Marvis. "I will graduate (from high school) in 1979 and then I'll take a year off to train for the Olympics."

The young boxer has already taken the first two steps toward achieving his ambition by winning the 1977 Pennsylvania Golden Gloves novice heavyweight championship and the 1978 Pennsylvania Golden Gloves open heavyweight title in a tournament in which he was voted the outstanding boxer.

The strategy for getting Marvis into the Olympics at Moscow has already been laid out at his father's gym here. George Benton, a former No. 1 middleweight contender, is his trainer. And Sam Hickman, who has taken U.S. boxing teams all over the world, is his amateur coach.

"Amateurs have to move up gradually," said Hickman, who has 18 years working with amateurs. "First they have to compete on the local level, then move up to the national, then the European and finally the Olympics."

"He has great potential," added Hickman. "I've already had two or three offers from the AAU to take him to Europe, but his dad doesn't want anything to interfere with his school work."

"He can punch," continued Hickman. "After he gets his confidence as a national fighter, I can turn him loose against anyone."

Marvis, who is six-foot-one and 190 pounds, is well schooled on defense with good speed and agility. By contrast, his father, who is 5-11 and generally fought in the 210-pound class, was an aggressive slugger with a powerful left hook.

Smith, Rono Highlight Games

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — Graham Smith is going, Henry Rono is going and Daley Thompson is gone.

Smith, the Canadian swimming luminary, went after a record-setting fifth gold medal today, with opportunities in both the 100-meter breaststroke and the 400 medley relay.

The 20-year-old from the University of California appeared on the brink of breaking out of a deadlock with three Australians — Murray Rose, Peter Reynolds and Mike Wenden — each of whom won four swimming golds in a previous games.

Smith made it look almost easy Tuesday as he stroked his way through his 100 breaststroke heat in a games record of 1:04.86.

"It hasn't been easy," Smith said. "I'm taking each race day by day, breaking each race down individually. I'll be ready, that's all I can do."

Smith already has won the 400 and 200-meter individual medleys, the 200 breaststroke and was part of the winning 400 freestyle relay since the swimming competition began last Friday.

Rono, the indomitable Kenyan distance runner, toyed with the rest of the field in his 5,000-meter heat Tuesday, finishing nearly six seconds ahead of Rod Dixon of New Zealand.

The Kenyan, who holds four world distance-race records including the 5,000, appeared capable of winning by as much as he wanted in Tuesday's race, much the same as his gold medal performance in the 3,000-meter steeplechase Monday.

He stayed well behind the leaders most of the way in the 5,000, finally taking complete charge with about four laps to go. His time of 14 minutes, 2.15 seconds, was nearly a minute over his world mark of 13:08 and slower than each of the first six finishers in the other 5,000 heat won by Tanzania's Suleiman Nyambui.

The two performances by Rono left the crowds watching the games at Commonwealth Stadium, as well as the media, wondering when and if the real Rono would surface here. The question will be answered Thursday when track and field competition resumes after a one-day lay-off.

However, when the runners, jumpers and throwers do come back to center stage, England's 20-year-old decathlon star Daley Thompson will be strictly a spectator.

The unheralded Thompson made himself the at least temporary holder of the title of "world's greatest athlete" by finishing his specialty with a total of 8,467 points for the 10 gruelling events.

Retired American Bruce Jenner's world record is 8,618, but Thompson's performance is now second best. And he apparently has plenty of room for improvement.

After piling up a first-day record of 4,550 points in the 100-meter dash, the long jump, the shot put, the high jump and the 400-meter run, Thompson slowed down considerably Tuesday in the 110-meter hurdles, the discus, the pole vault, the javelin and the 1,500 meters, in which he finished fifth.

The slick athlete showed more speed in leaving the stadium for a dinner date with his mother — avoiding the media — than he did in the final event.

In other track and field finals Tuesday, Gael Mulhall of Australia won the women's shot put, breaking the previous games record on each of her six tosses, with a best throw of 56 feet, 9 1/2 inches.

Ben Crenshaw To Try Again

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — A disappointed Ben Crenshaw is hoping for better luck in the $225,000 American Optical Classic after last week's performance at Oakmont, something which he says left "a bad taste in my mouth."

Last week's down was one in a series for the 26-year-old pro this year. Even so, the former University of Texas amateur still poses a legitimate threat in the four day 72-hole classic which starts Thursday.

Today, the pros teamed up with celebrities in the Pro-Am tourney.

This year, Crenshaw tied for 37th in the Masters, missed the cut at the U.S. Open at Cherry Hills and tied for second in the British Open en route to the Oakmont PGA championship, where he finished with a 69.

"I made eight bogeys on Saturday," he said Tuesday as he practiced for the Pleasant Valley Country Club classic. "I messed up on the last day, too. Every time I drove the ball, I was six feet in the rough and couldn't score out there."

Although Crenshaw has earned more than $600,000 and won five pro tournaments he says he's fallen short of his expectations.

"To tell you the truth," he said, "I haven't improved much since I've been on the tour. I feel I've got a long, long, long way to go. I want to play the game a long time."

In his years as an amateur star, winning three straight NCAA championships, Crenshaw could do without practice. No longer.

But now that golf is his income, he accepts it.

Heats in a number of events dominated the program, with Rono and Jamaican sprinter Don Quarrie, the Olympic champion, catching most of the interest. Quarrie, who Monday won his third straight Games gold medal in the 100-meter dash, Tuesday led qualifiers into the 200 meter semifinals. He also is seeking his third straight gold in that event.

Games records continued to fall like autumn leaves at the aquatic center, with new marks set in all three swimming finals Tuesday.

Sixers Set Talk With Walton

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — It's the Philadelphia story in Portland today, in the person of Coach Billy Cunningham of the Philadelphia 76ers, as negotiations continue on the future of Bill Walton and what the Portland Trail Blazers will get in a trade for him.

At Attles, coach of the Golden State Warriors, and General Manager Scotty Sterling got their chance to talk with Walton Tuesday, coming hard on the heels of some hard negotiating by General Manager Eddie Donovan and Coach Willis Reed of the New York Knicks.

All these talks were opened up last week with Walton's request that he be traded to another National Basketball Association team and the Portland club's announcement that it would comply with his wishes.

Cunningham was coming into Portland from Los Angeles. He was scheduled to talk with the Walton entourage and report to Sixer owner Fitz Dixon. "There's no point in me coming out," Dixon said. "I have the utmost faith in Billy Cunningham."

Dixon also has the bank account to handle the situation, Jack Scott, Walton's confidante and agent along with Portland attorney John Bassett, has said the negotiations start at "what David Thompson makes." The Denver star is paid $800,000 a season.

The Knicks certainly have the bank account and are ready to make an offer. Donovan stayed in town after Reed left Tuesday to talk again with the Walton group. Knicks' President Mike Burke also joined the talks.

Donovan and Reed had dinner Monday night with Walton, Scott and Bassett. "It was very enjoyable," Donovan said. "We exchanged a lot of ideas about our philosophy as far as the game is concerned."

Donovan said he didn't think Knicks center Bob McAdoo would be a trade possibility.

A key might be the Knicks' continuing negotiation with free agent Marvin Webster, who helped the Seattle Sonics to the championship series last season.

Stu Inman, Portland's director of player personnel, said, "the Knicks may not have the right player to make us happy. We would have to get a center plus I don't know what. The center would have to be better than Lloyd Neal and Tom Owens.

'Mother Hen Philosophy' Distinguishes Tanner

By WILL GRIMSLEY,
Associated Press Correspondent

It's a lesson learned the hard way, but Chuck Tanner insists that the best survival kit for a big league baseball manager should include a couple of physical deformities.

"You got to have one eye and one ear," says the always affable skipper of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who no less a critic than Charles Finley has acclaimed the best in the business.

"You can't afford to see everything. You can't hear everything."

The rugged 30-year diamond veteran — 17 years an outfielder in the minors and majors, a manager since 1963 — is an anachronism in this age of millionaire superstars, massive egos and escalation cynicism.

"I have never experienced inflated egos that were a problem," Tanner says. "I keep hearing that ball players are unmanageable now that they have become so rich — that they're a bunch of prima donnas."

"Sure, they've got money but almost everybody's got money these days. I don't see any fat heads in uniform or guys dogging it just because they've got long-term contracts."

"I was probably one of the lowest paid players in the majors (Milwaukee Braves, Chicago Cubs, Cleveland, California Angels). I played alongside guys like Hank Aaron, Ernie Banks, Eddie Mathews and Warren Spahn. They made 10 times what I made."

"It makes no difference. As soon as we pull on our uniforms we are all equal, driven by personal pride. I see only individuals."

Tanner said once when he signed as a manager he was asked his basic philosophy.

"I replied that I had not one rule but 25 rules," he said. "One rule for every player on the ball club."

It's his "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" outlook and mother hen complex that sets Tanner apart. He manages to find a rainbow in every setback. Like football's George Allen, he is his own cheerleader, an inveterate "Holler Guy," refusing to let his players mope or fall into the doldrums.

After the Pirates lost seven in a row on the road recently, Tanner jabbed the Pirates' sagging spirits with the reprimand: "What are you guys down in the mouth about? Where in the hell else can you lose seven straight and still remain in the pennant race." The Phillies had been losing, too.

"Two of the greatest things that can happen in baseball," he adds, "are, first, to win and, second, to lose. Never forget you're losing in the major leagues."

Oakland's Charles O. Finley, who traded him to the Pirates for catcher Manny Sanguillen and $100,000, said in changing managers 16 times in 18 years he found Tanner the best of all. He cited enthusiasm, rapport with players, respect for the front office, "everything you'd look for in a manager."

Tanner not only found favor with crochetty Charlie O. but was one of the few men able to handle Dick Allen, one of the game's most highly volatile talents, while with the Chicago White Sox.

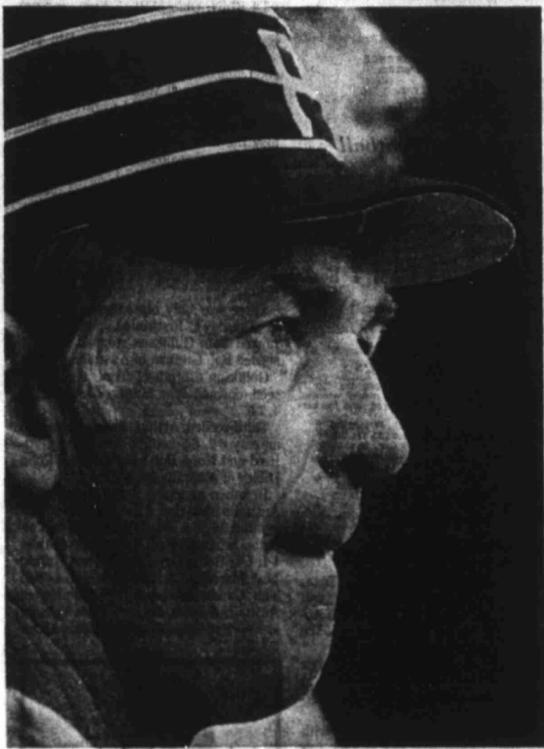

"There never was a more gifted performer," says Tanner of Allen. "He was a man who craved solitude. He performed best when left to his own devices. I gave him that freedom."

"Everybody is different — has different hangups, needs specialized treatment. It wasn't easy for me to learn. When I started managing in the minors

(first at Quad Cities (Ill.), then El Paso, Seattle, Hawaii) I was like a Marine drill sergeant.

"I believed in strict discipline. Everybody had to toe a single line. I was so tough some guys wouldn't play for me. But I learned my lesson — better than going to college."

"You don't have an X-ray to look inside of a guy. You have to remember it's just a game and baseball is a season — not a month, not a week, not a day. There's always tomorrow."

Unser Shuns Shift To Formula Racing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A world driving championship on the Grand Prix circuit, or one more Indianapolis 500 victory — which would you rather have, Al Unser?

"The Indy 500," Unser replied without any hesitation when the question was posed Tuesday during an appearance to promote the California 500 race Sept. 3 at Ontario Speedway near Los Angeles.

"It would take a good five years to learn all you need to know about the tracks in Formula 1 racing. I just don't want to go across the pond and try that. There's enough races here in the U.S.," said the 39-year-old who won his third Indy 500 this year.

Following Mario Andretti's highly successful shift to Formula 1 racing the past few years "just wouldn't be my bag," Unser said.

Andretti is the 1978 leader in the Formula 1 driving standings, concentrating on those events while returning to U.S. races only when time permits.

"Mario likes all that traveling. It's not that I can't drive on the road courses. It's that I can't put forth the total effort to run an entire circuit."

Unser also said that if the Grand Prix circuit "had a $1 million event like Indianapolis, then that would be their one big shot" — bigger than their driving championship.

Unser won the 1977 Labor Day weekend race at Ontario and he also captured the first two legs of the 1978 USAC "triple crown" of 500 miles when he won the Indianapolis and Pocono events.

"I've won all three in a row, just not in the same year," Unser said.

"I've crashed in every corner at Indy," Unser said of his 13 years in the premier USAC race, but he was not involved in any of the huge, first-lap smashups which led to moves to improve safety in the sport.

An older brother, Jerry, was killed in an Indianapolis crash in 1959.

"About that time, 1959 and 1960, they started jumping on safety real heavy," Unser said. "Now the cars are safer, tires are safer, clothes and helmets are safer."

"And the drivers are realizing you don't win a race in the first lap. There was no particular reason for those big crashes at Indianapolis, it was just bad days. You have bad days at work. It was bad days at the racetrack."

Unser's father and uncle were race drivers, his older brother Bobby is a past Indy 500 winner and now a third generation of Unsters is entering the field at the family's home base in New Mexico.

Bobby Unser has a 22-year-old son who has become a race driver. And Al Unser Jr. "has been racing sprint cars. He's just 15 years old but he won the first feature last Friday night at Albuquerque," the proud father said.

"He started in go-carts when he was 7 years old. I'm teaching him what racing is about. I'm all for it 100 percent if that is what he wants to do," Unser said.

"It's a hard life. But it's very rewarding if you're good at it. If they took away all the money in racing, I'd still do what I do."

Lubbock Stars Fall At State

WACO (Special)—Lubbock's Dixie All-Stars were defeated 3-1 here Tuesday morning during the second round of the State Little League baseball tournament by the San Antonio Stars.

The loss knocked the Hub team completely out of the double-elimination event. Dixie was dealt a 5-2 setback Monday night, losing to Crockett.

Chad Boykin was the losing pitcher.

San Diego Speedster Confident

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Former Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, hobbled for much of his brief career with the San Diego Chargers, says that if he had to play today or be fired, "I'd have to be fired."
The former Nebraska speedster who played four years in the Canadian Football League before signing with San Diego in December 1976, has been pedaling his new bicycle around training camp, but doing little on the practice field while nursing a strained knee.

He missed much of last season with a pulled hamstring and his latest injury apparently is nagging head Coach Tommy Prothro. At Rodgers' request, the two met Monday to air their differences.
"At first, Tommy was angry, real angry," says Rodgers, who likes to be known as J.R. Superstar. "But once we sat down and I explained what I was doing to get well, then he calmed down a bit."

"It bothers me that some people feel I don't want to play or might not do anything possible to get ready to play," said Rodgers.
"When the real games start, I'll be ready. But you can't get overanxious. It takes time to get well."

Referendum Set Next Year

By SONJA HILLGREN
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although authorization for a rerun of last year's beef check-off referendum is now law, a new referendum won't be held until next year.

The authorization, included in a major farm credit bill, was signed into law last week by President Carter.

The referendum will give beef and dairy cattle owners a chance to decide if they want a system to deduct three-tenths of 1 percent from the sale of each animal to finance a beef industry research and promotion fund.

A year ago July the cattle industry failed in an attempt to secure two-thirds approval of the proposed program for nutrition and marketing research, promotion, consumer information and export market development.

Of 231,000 cattle owners who voted in the 1977 referendum, only 56.5 percent approved the check-off.

Next time around the rules will be changed. The new law provides that just a simple majority representing two-thirds of the cattle owned by all those voting will be required for approval.

A task force to plan and campaign for a referendum will likely be appointed soon by Richard McDougal, president of the National Cattlemen's Association.

The task force, patterned after the 65-member Beef Development Task Force that promoted the last referendum, will review last year's order, the language which the cattle owners voted on, and possibly recommend modifications.

The task force will work with the Agriculture Department. The department is involved in the referendum because the agriculture secretary acts as a referee.

After a revised order is finally drafted and published in the Federal Register, hearings will be held. Eventually, the department will publish a final order with the date of the referendum.

"Until we get an order rewritten and go through all the administrative stuff with the Department of Agriculture, there won't be an opportunity to get a timetable," said Bill McMillan, executive vice president of the cattlemen's association.

"All we're projecting is that it will be sometime in 1979."

The process might not be easy sailing. The same opponents who helped defeat the referendum last year, particularly the National Farmers Union, will be working for its defeat again.

Dairy farmers in Minnesota, where there was only 34 percent approval, and Wisconsin, with 24 percent approval, will be encouraged to sign up in large numbers to vote against the referendum.

Tennessee will be a battleground. Support in that state was only 19 percent.

Support also was weak in Pennsylvania (41 percent), South Dakota (35 percent), New York (38 percent), North Dakota (43 percent), Kentucky (46 percent) and Iowa (41 percent).

The second chance for the referendum came about when Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., attached an amendment to the farm credit bill on the Senate floor. There were no hearings beforehand and no voice vote by the Senate.

A similar measure was not in the House bill, but when Senate and House conferees met to work out differences there was little contest.

House conferees, who were under pressure from cattlemen back home, went along with the Senate position. Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., made a futile attempt to get the House to reject the conference report. It sailed through both houses to the president's desk.

When Carter signed the farm credit bill at a Rose Garden ceremony, a smiling McMillan was standing right behind the president.

Nearby was Reuben Johnson, a Farmers Union lobbyist, who has been McMillan's foe on the issue ever since it arose. And the fight over the beef check-off entered a new phase.

Few Californians Fear Quakes

(EDITOR'S NOTE:) Despite California, the 400-mile long San Andreas fault line poised to deliver a minute or two of catastrophic shaking. But most Californians don't think about that, including AP reporter Bill Gardner, who here offers some thoughts on the curious apathy of those who live atop a sleeping giant.

By BILL GARDNER
LOS ANGELES (AP) — I sometimes wonder if maybe these scientists warning of the "Big Quake" aren't in cahoots with my mom.

She's always telling me I ought to come home and get the heck out of California before it's too late. It's only a matter of time, she says, before an earthquake knocks my house off its hillside perch.

Now comes this news story: "Scientists at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., say new calculations suggest that the next major earthquake on the San Andreas fault may be larger and might occur sooner than expected."

It's true, of course, that there aren't many earthquakes or hillside perches where I grew up in central Illinois. It might be nice and safe to go back, but I'm going to stay right here and take my chances with the big one.

I've hardly seen a bolt of lightning in the six years I've been here. No tornadoes, no snow, no icy roads, not many muggy days. And if I have to risk an earthquake for all this, well, nothing's free.

Mrs. Robley Evans, who came here with her husband from Wisconsin in 1959, feels the same way. They lived in the San Fernando Valley when the San Fernando quake struck in February 1971 and killed 58 people.

It was scary, but they never thought of moving away. "We're settled and that's the way it is," Mrs. Evans said. "In the Midwest there are tornadoes and blizzards and wherever you are there's something."

Thomas Nemes, a woman's clothing manufacturer, also lived in the San Fernando Valley in 1971. A few days after the quake, Nemes said he was "definitely considering leaving Los Angeles."

Seven years later, Nemes is still here. "I like it here. I really do," he says now. "I think I'll stay put. Before moving here, I lived in New York for five years and couldn't stand it."

One measure of the concern people here have about earthquakes is that less than 5 percent of the homeowners had earthquake insurance at the time of the 1971 quake. It's about the same today.

The San Fernando quake was a big quake, but not the Big Quake. It measured 6.5 on the Richter Scale, but scientists say a quake of more than 8.0 is due in Southern California.

They figure an 8.0 quake — which scientists consider a "great" quake — should occur on each segment of the San Andreas Fault every 100 years. Northern California last had a big quake in 1906, so one isn't due there yet. But Southern California last had one in 1857.

Earthquakes don't necessarily kill people directly. All but nine of the 58 victims of the San Fernando quake died in the collapse of one hospital. Three others died in the collapse of another hospital.

And there are plenty of old buildings around that were put up before modern construction codes required extra strengthening for earthquake protection. The city of Los Angeles is taking an inventory of those buildings. It's found 5,800 so far and expects to find 3,000 more.

A great many of these buildings are residential hotels and apartment buildings. Mostly old people live there. If anybody should be worried about earthquakes, they should.

Jim Davis lives in one of those old buildings. It's a four-story job, made of red brick and by the front door is a barely readable iron sign that says "Blasdel Arms."

But it's not the Blasdel Arms and hasn't been for some time. Painted on the building's side is another sign. Much of the paint has chipped off, but the words "Bel-Rio Hotel Apartments" can be made out.

Davis lives on the second floor. His door is open and he sits — no shirt on — by himself on his old couch, sipping something. He's 46 and says he came here 15 years ago from Oklahoma for a piece of California prosperity. He's quick to say he has a job, in the back shop at a drycleaner. Pays $105 rent.

Earthquakes don't worry him. "If it's going to happen, it's going to happen. If the quake is strong enough, it can knock down any building."

Geoffrey Goddard's wife died of cancer seven years ago and he lives by himself in a fifth-floor apartment of another old building. After years of "termite work," he's retired at 62 but looks older.

There have been several fires in his building but he feels safe. "I'm right next to the fire escape," he says. "I can get out of here in nothing flat."

Earthquakes? "I don't know what's to worry about,"

he says. "It might happen 16 seconds from now or 16 years. You aren't going to do anything about it anyway."

Goddard is from New York and would like to return east for a visit.

"If I had a car, I'd take a trip back to New York. But I know it's just like I left it, same old 8 million people."

Over at the Bel-Rio, Davis, too, thinks about his old home sometimes. "If I died, I'd rather be in Oklahoma. I ain't put down no roots here even though I been out here 15 years."

The community of Palmdale, population 12,600, sits atop a desert plateau about 60 miles north of Los Angeles. It also sits atop the San Andreas fault — right on top of it. But like their neighbors down in the city, Palmdale people aren't very worried.

"I don't think anyone really worries about it," said Patricia Hunt, a city hall secretary. "Everytime there's a new prediction in the paper, you think about it for a while and just forget about it."

Mortgage Plan Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plan sometimes suggested for persons changing homes to make money sounds good, but may not be all it appears, according to research reported by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

The idea is when you sell a home at a profit to make as small a down payment as possible on your new home, and use the rest of the money from the sale for income-producing investments.

Dr. Richard T. Garrigan of the University of Wisconsin reports that this plan can be a delusion, the bank board says. The individual, Garrigan says, must consider how much the additional mortgage money borrowed will cost and how much he can make on his investments.

The extra cost of a 90 percent mortgage over an 80 percent one would be about 16 percent in the first year and 13 percent in the second, he said, and few investors can get that kind of return on their money.

He advises making the larger home down payment and being able to write a smaller check to the mortgage lender each month.

Mosquitoes Biting In Record Numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mosquitoes are biting in record numbers this year because rain fell at the right time in the right spots this spring and summer, entomologists report.

One Maryland expert, Dr. Robert M. Altman, linked his state's increased mosquito population to the fact that rain fell during the full moons.

Altman explains that marsh mosquitoes need salt water to hatch, while their upland cousins require rain. He says when a full moon draws the tide farther inland, greater numbers of marsh mosquitoes are hatched.

And when the lunar tide coincides with rain, upland mosquitoes also appear in force, according to the National Geographic Society.

Long Island Group Sues Port Authority

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven members of a Long Island group that lost its fight to bar the Concorde supersonic aircraft from Kennedy Airport are asking for $1.84 million in damages allegedly caused by the Concorde and all other jet flights in New York City.

Arthur Spatt, the plaintiffs' lawyer, said that if the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey does not settle the claims within 60 days, a damage suit will be filed in federal court. There was no immediate comment from the Port Authority.

Mary Tyler Moore Takes On Perilous Project

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Mary Tyler Moore suffered attacks of cabin fever during a five-month break in her television activities before plunging into the most perilous project of her career.

Mary is facing the prospect of succeeding in a musical-variety series, the toughest format in television.

Julie Andrews, Glen Campbell, Jim Nabors, Helen Reddy, The Smothers Brothers, Redd Foxx, the Captains and Tennille are among those who tried to beat the odds and failed.

Mary, however, says most such shows were built around people from the music world. Mary will rely heavily on comedy, but she also will sing and dance in the new series, titled "Mary."

Tanned and slender in snug blue jeans and a white blouse, Mary sipped iced tea in her Bel Air home the other day, taking a breather after completing the fourth show of her series.

"I don't know how Carol Burnett did it for 11 years," she sighed. "I'm told a weekly variety show gets easier as you go along. At least that's what Carol said when I conferred with her about the show."

"She was a big help. We share a lack of confidence when it comes to singing. She said the worst moment is doing the dress rehearsal in front of the death watch—that's when the producers, the director and the writers sit down to study what we're doing."

"She was right. I wanted to open a vein. But by the second dress rehearsal I was much better. When we actually did the show, I became a real singing person. It worked out just great."

Mary has a different look about her. The long hair has been clipped to give her a gamine appearance. She no longer looks like the Mary Richards of the old "Mary Tyler Moore" sitcom.

Not that Mary is making a conscious effort to destroy the image she established on that show and as Laura Petrie in the "Dick Van Dyke Show."

To the contrary, Mary likes to think people who enjoyed her work in both series will see there isn't all that much difference between the real life Mary and the two characters she made so popular.

"Mary Richards is essentially me," she said. "But I have many facets and I am trying to show them all in the new show."

"Everyone seemed to like Mary Richards but I don't make the assumption they will feel the same toward Mary Tyler Moore. However, I hope that viewer affection is transferred to me."

Mary says her new show won't be a traditional, flashy, razzle-dazzle TV variety show. The only well-known member of her cast is the resident comedian, Dick Shawn. Nor will her show feature guest stars, that troupe of familiar faces which has appeared, round robin, on variety shows for 25 years.

"Our is an intimate repertory hour with the production values of a splashier show," she said.

"I'm aware the recent history of variety shows has been bad. The odds are it won't succeed. It is up against stiff competition, 'Battle Star Galactica' and 'Centennial'."

"But there's a bright side, too. We follow '60 Minutes' and I'd like to have the same sort of viewers that show does.

We're doing a show I'm so proud of that even if it doesn't succeed we can hold our heads."

"I say we're not so much a variety show as a situation-variety program. I spend a few minutes talking to the audience during the course of the hour. And it came as a surprise to me that I was comfortable and relaxed."

"And I refer to Grant (Grant Tinker, Mary's husband) a lot. He's liable to become the 'Fang' of 1978."

"I'm making the adjustment from situation comedy to this new format. It was easier doing the same character every week because all you had to do was memorize the lines."

"I don't have the luxury of formulating a character and staying with her. I knew Mary Richards so well I never had to think about her."

"Now I'll be playing from three to seven different characters every week.

There isn't time to clearly build a character. Each sketch is short so you have to define the character immediately. Carol was wonderful at doing that."

It's been a year and a half since "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" left the air. During that time Mary did a CBS special and a TV movie, "First You Cry," taken from Betty Rollins' dramatic story of her mastectomy and how it altered her life.

"Before we started the new show I had five months off," Mary said. "I was bored because like so many people in show business I never developed other interests."

"I do very little entertaining. I don't cook or garden. I don't go out to lunch with the girls. And how much tennis can you play?"

"I'm not a real workaholic, but I thrive on work. This show is at least four times as difficult and time consuming as anything I've done before. I'm not complaining. I can't remember when I've enjoyed work more."

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: Dick Cavett (least publicized of the talk show hosts married) — Myra Bolton, Syracuse, N.Y.

A: Yes. For some 14 years to the same attractive woman, actress Carrie Nye. Nevertheless, using Viva magazine as his forum, Dick agrees that marriage is a risky business. "To bind yourself to one person who must, by definition, be largely a mystery to you — as every other human being is but to decide that, even with all the unknowns, you're going to spend your life together, is a challenge. I don't believe that there's that one person you're destined to meet by fate, or any of that crap." However he confesses that he never tried to imagine being married to anyone other than his one and only wife.

acended from one of Alexander the Great's generals. The only Cleo we remember is the seventh — or last.

To Carol M. Reechling, Phoenix: Touche — some of the scenes in "Grizzly Adams" were indeed filmed in Payson, Ariz.; in other areas where the scenery fit the subject, not, as we were advised, exclusively in Utah.

To Mrs. Kenneth Klammer, Seattle: In response to your letter, we ransacked our Gabor file and have sent a group photo of all the Gabor girls to your husband at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska. Hope it keeps him warm, but not too warm.

Q: With the popularity of the "Love Boat" TV series, what's the question most frequently asked of cruisehip captains? — Pat Mascola, Hollywood, Fla.

A: Capt. Von Harling, skipper of the Sunward II smiled when we asked him that question. "I'm constantly asked why I don't wear Bermuda shorts like Capt. Gavin MacLeod of 'Love Boat.' And my answer is always the same: 'Because my knees aren't as dimpled as the actor's!'" Marsh and Adams, the resident comedy team on Von Harling's ship say audiences aboard ship are more responsive than those on land. "It's because cruise passengers are completely relaxed. No worry about where they'll dine or dance after the show." One of the ports-of-call between Nassau and Miami Beach is Stirrup Cay, a Bahamian outer island not much larger than a nightclub dance floor. The dot on the ocean was recently bought by the Norwegian Caribbean Lines for picnicing and adding a romantic and adventuresome element to cruising.

Send your questions to Hy Gardner, "Glad You Asked That," care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 11748, Chicago, Ill. 60611. Marilyn and Hy Gardner will answer as many questions as they can their column, but the volume of mail makes personal replies possible.

PERSONAL POSTCARDS: To Shep B., FL Lauderdale, Fla.: The initial payment David Frost made to former President Nixon for the rights to his story was $200,000. Recalls David (in his follow-up article "I Gave Them A Sword"): "Nixon handed the check to Swifty (Lazar) his agent, with the forlorn look of a little boy not allowed to consume the cookie he has swiped from the jar before dinner."

To Wilma Erbe, New York City: The remark, "A broken egg cannot be mended," was attributed to Abe Lincoln.

To Mrs. Dolores R., Philadelphia: The Fordism ex-President Jerry Ford made in an ad-lib conversation between him and an ABC sportswriter between innings of the All-Star game, was "Yes, I watch sports events on radio every chance I get."

To Hank Meyer, Miami: It was our old pal Arthur Godfrey who told about the pilot of a private plane approaching an airport calling to the tower, "Beachcraft to tower, Beachcraft to tower, can you hear me?" Came the instant reply, "Tower to Beachcraft, yes we can hear you. But why are you shouting?" "Because," the pilot shouted, "I haven't got a radio!"

To Rosemarie Vitale, Pittsburgh: None of the seven women who reigned as "Cleopatra" was Egyptian. They were Greek,

Actress Joins CBS TV Sports Program

By JAY SHARBUTT
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It's said, Jayne Kennedy, you've never played pro football, as has Irv Cross, or written of sports, as has Brent Musburger. What qualifies you to talk Sunday football with them?

"Well, I was basically brought up on football, and I've admired the sport since I was a kid," said the actress, 26, who joins the two gents on CBS' half-time football show on Aug. 27.

"I don't think I'll be expected to have the technical knowledge and know-how Irv Cross has. My job on the program is to interview sports personalities and bring out the human side of them."

"And I think my knowledge in the sports field, especially football, is well-rounded enough to do that."

A former Miss Ohio, she is succeeding Phyllis Geore, a former Miss America who has been on "The NFL Today" since the fall of 1975. Miss Geore now will host CBS' new "People" series.

Miss Geore's predecessor was Jane Chastain, who did one season. Her background was in sportscasting. She'd done that 16 years.

CBS' rookie sportscaster previously was sighted on TV in such fare as "Police Story," "Wonder Woman," and "Kojak," and in six films, among them "Group Marriage" and "Big Time."

When a reporter sought her views on her new job, her press agent arranged a phone chat with Miss Kennedy from his office at Rogers & Cowan, a top Hollywood emporium of tub-thumping.

She said she landed her job after initial interviews and a day-long audition with 18 other prospects at CBS in New York.

The audition was a minishow, she explained, in which each candidate was interviewed by Musburger, then read some copy, then interviewed a New York Giant for five minutes.

For Miss K., a Pasadena resident and married to producer-actor Leon Kennedy, it led to a one-year contract with a renewal option.

As she'll now be sighted in CBS' pigskin parlor, she was asked if she suspects male chauvinists in the bars of America.

Wins In Congress Needed By Carter

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — There's still time for Jimmy Carter to win back his popularity, says former presidential aide Ted Sorensen, but unless he wants to be sent back to Georgia, the president had better win some victories in Congress before 1980.

In a copyrighted story in the Lincoln Journal and Star on Sunday, Sorensen said Carter's problems are a creation of style and method, not the result of substance. He thinks the characterization of the Carter White House as amateurish will disappear if a third of the programs that Carter has sent to Congress are enacted.

If Carter doesn't win in 1980, he'll lose to a Republican — he won't be unseated by a revolt within the party, Sorensen predicted.

The only Republican with a serious shot at unseating Carter is former President Gerald Ford, Sorensen said, adding that the GOP won't nominate Ford.

NOT MUCH HELP WANTED

Business leaders expect only modest employment gains in their industries in 1978, according to a Conference Board survey. Of 1,500 chief executives polled, roughly 45 percent see no significant changes in their industries' job rolls this year. Some 20 percent look for employment to fall by 1 percent or more, and about 45 percent expect job gains of 1 percent or more. Prospects are strongest for metals, machinery and transportation equipment and weakest for apparel, paper and food.

Modern Technology Boosts Protection

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Today's average homeowner doesn't have to build a house that looks like a fortress to protect it from burglars and other intruders, a leading protection services expert says.

"Modern technology has made fashionable and reliable alarm devices much less expensive over the last few years," says William N. Wray of Honeywell Protection Services. "So it is much easier to build very safe homes with open spaces and architecturally friendly entrances."

In the last few years there has been a growing trend even among average income homeowners to install combined burglar and fire alarm systems," he says. "Combined systems can be connected to a 24-hour monitoring center for as little as $30 a month. New experienced operators can immediately notify police and fire departments of emergency situations — even if the homeowner is away."

USDA Seeks New Food Safety Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — A search is underway to find a permanent head of the Agriculture Department's Food Safety and Quality Service, now run by Deputy Assistant Agriculture Secretary Sydney J. Butler.

Butler, 35, a lawyer, took over after Dr. Robert Angelotti quit the post of top food-safety regulator Friday, saying he had been the target of "numerous attacks" by some people in the meat industry and employees.

Film Industry Big Business In Louisiana

By JOAN L. BUFFY
NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—In 1977, Hollywood discovered a Louisiana bayou that looked like deepest, darkest Africa.

Since the production of "Tarzan of the Apes" in the jungles of Morgan City, filmmakers have found ready-built sets in Louisiana that duplicate Southeast Asia, South America and 19th Century France.

"It is very big business, it's very competitive and it's becoming more competitive," said Phil Oakley, director of the Louisiana Film Industry Commission.

He was appointed to the job in 1974 by Gov. Edwin Edwards who told him to "give those people any damn thing they want."

"We let Allen Lansburg Productions bring 100,000 bees a day into the Superdome for four days," Oakley said. "I was out on the turf stomping on the bees right before Tulane played Cincinnati."

It is willingness to cooperate with every request made by demanding film producers that makes Louisiana one of the top three filmmaking states (behind Texas and Georgia) outside California.

"When Jimmy Carter became governor of Georgia they produced a film called 'Deliverance,'" Oakley said. "When Burt Reynolds came back a year later to film 'The Longest Yard,' which was supposed to be made in Florida, the people in Florida were not wild about letting them work in a penitentiary."

"The one in Georgia looked pretty good, but they needed a football stadium, so Georgia went out and built them a stadium in the prison."

"These are the kinds of things you have to do to be in the film business," he said. The Louisiana Film Commission, with offices in Baton Rouge and New Orleans, becomes host and liaison to film companies from the moment they decide to scout the state for locations.

Any property or building owned by the state or its subdivisions is provided for filming free of charge. One state trooper is assigned to each company at no charge, and more protection is offered gratis if the filming involves rerouting traffic or other crowd control.

"They filmed at the State Capitol for two weeks — while the Legislature was in session no less — in 1976 for 'The Life and Assassination of the Kingfish,'" Oakley said.

"We took the House and Senate chambers from the legislators, some of whom were in the film," he said. "We assassinated Huey Long on the spot he really was shot, we reburied him and re-inaugurated him."

The 34-story Capitol was used again that year when the University of Texas at Austin balked at providing its Main Building, the actual site of the Charles Whitman tower shootings of the 1960s, for a TV movie about that incident.

When a film company descended on New Orleans during this year's carnival season to make "Murder at the Mardi Gras," the commission and the city dumped tons of garbage on the already-trashy Royal Street because the director didn't think the French Quarter street was dirty enough for a scene.

The film commission also works with the State Office of Employment Security — the unemployment office — to recruit the jobless as extras.

Professional talent agents have objected to the state hoping in on their business, but Oakley said finding an unemployed citizen a job on a film is no different than finding him a job as a truck driver.

The average full-length motion picture is produced with a budget of $3 million and, after a six-to-nine-week shooting schedule, the production company can leave $1 million behind in salaries, hotel rooms, food and other expenses.

During fiscal 1976-1977, Hollywood spent a total of $3.8 million filming "Casey's Shadow," "The Savage Bees," "Pretty Baby," "Return to Boggy Creek" and "The Long Escape."

"We've got a two-part movie of the week for television that will be in the state next week looking for plantation locations, a medium budget feature film set in a prison and a major feature film called 'Where Are the Children' to be produced by Ray Stark and the 'Casey's Shadow' and 'The Goodbye Girl' and 'The Cheap Detective'.

Researchers Probing Genes

NEW YORK (AP) — Researchers at Harvard have thrown new light on the specific genes that cause Down's syndrome, or Mongolism, and could lead to help for its victims, the Daily News reported Tuesday.

Mongolism, which causes varying degrees of mental retardation and other disabilities, has long been known to be caused in most cases by the presence of an extra chromosome in the victim's genetic makeup.

The News said Dr. Park Gerald, who led the research, described the new research Monday at a meeting at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Maine, under the sponsorship of the National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Gerald was quoted as saying that researchers, trying to discover why a small number of victims of Mongolism do not have the extra chromosome No. 21 found in most patients, have found that some apparently normal chromosome 21s actually had an extra section.

It is that extra section, comprising about 10 percent to 20 percent of the genes in the chromosome, which apparently causes the Down symptoms, Gerald said, according to the News.

Gerald said that if researchers can identify the genes in the extra section and determine their composition, the information might be used to help victims, possibly blocking the bad effects that occur after birth.

"If we could boost IQ 20 points or so, we could help these children enormously," the researcher was quoted as saying.

He added, however, that help for patients probably is years away.
