Front May Trigger Showers

A-J News Services

Scattered showers or thunderstorms were forecast today and tonight throughout the South Plains, the result of a cold front that early this morning crept into the Panhandle and is expected to move over Northwest Texas by tonight.

Far to the north, thousands of persons in the upper Midwest continued their week-long battle against record flooding by the Red River. A large portion of the wheat crop in North Dakota and Minnesota is threatened by the deluge, according to state and federal officials

Lubbock temperatures, which peaked at 76 degrees Thursday, were expected to rise no higher than 70 degrees this afternoon and Saturday. Hub City temperatures tonight are forecast to cool near 50

Scattered showers were reported across a wide band of West Texas Thursday night, but accumulations were mini-mal. Abilene and Amarillo received trace amounts of rain, as did Hereford, Snyder and Levelland.

Forecasters listed the probability of rain in the Lubbock area at 20 percent this afternoon and 20 percent tonight. Statewide forecasts today showed partly cloudy skies over much of Texas, with the possibility of widely scattered thunderstorms over western and central por-

Meanwhile, Red River floodwaters, surging toward an expected crest today, churned along a 150-mile front of prime prairie farmland from Grand Forks, N.D. to Winnipeg, Manitoba, threatening the area's important wheat crop.

Officials in Winnipeg said by early today some 2,650 people in the Red River Valley notified the Canadian government of their evacuation plans. The valley, south of Winnipeg has a population of south of Winnipeg, has a population of between 12,000 and 15,000.

National Guard helicopters planned to continue their flights today over the upper Red River Valley, the crews scanning vast flooded areas in search of marooned farm families. "There was water as far as you could see going north into Canada," one helicopter pilot said after a flight

"Our chopper pilots reported a couple of farm families who said they hadn't seen anybody in four days and appreciated the food brought in," Lt. Col. Adrian Beltrand said Thursday,

School Board Gives LEAP Green Light

Avalanche-Journal Staff
In order to give all courses a fighting chance, public school trustees today voted to include in the Lubbock High School magnet program courses that were cut from administration recommendations.

The only provision attached by the board is that all classes proposed for LEAP (Lubbock Exemplary Academic Program) must draw at least seven students to be included in the course load for the program that will begin this fall.

The administration made its recommendations based upon student demarkd and cost of the proposed courses after evaluating choices made by students during sign-up for the program.

After listening to objections by mem-bers of the LEAP Community Advisory Committee, however, Superintendent Ed Irons and board members agreed that more time is needed to give additional students the opportunity to sign up for courses before any classes are withdrawn from the lineup.

and their feeder junior highs were given until April 13 to enroll in the voluntary program that was proposed as a means of drawing more students to the under-enrolled high school.

The program, which is also meant to bolster academics at the school, was approved by the board in February as an alternative to redrawing attendance zones.

Though some of the courses omitted by the administration had a number of Lubbock High students enrolled, school officials felt that they were not justifiable because they did not draw enough students

Other courses were dropped due to lack of student demand or because the cost was not deemed justifiable in relation to the number of students enrolled.

Advisory committee members, however, argued that time is needed before any definite decision can be made as to the courses to be offered in the program.

We want Lubbock High to have a program for bright kids to make school fun. We want Lubbock High to be the place to go, but it's going to take time," said committee member Liz Sisco.

Members also strongly objected to the administration deleting courses because they did not draw enough students from high schools besides Lubbock High.

Mrs. Sisco said that the deletion of such courses would be "scuttling the whole purpose of the program" which is to provide an "enriched academic program" for all interested high school stu-

"It's not just for Coronado and Monterey to benefit from," said committee member Annette Turner.

Irons said that he saw no discrimination in the elimination of such courses. "The premise of the program was to see how many students we can attract."

The superintendent agreed, however, that time was the key element in evaluat-ing the LEAP courses. "We're going to have to give it about a three-year run to

Utility officials have said such a shut-

On Thursday, it postponed it again to Friday because Denton wanted more time for further consultation with the companies, which now have agreed to make immediate safety improvements and to shut down the plants while they

House Acts To Shield Officers

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas House has passed a bill that would exempt the addresses and telephone numbers of police officers from mandatory disclosure under the state Open Records Act.

The measure passed without objection today on a calendar of local and uncontested bills and next goes to the Senate. House members also passed a bill requiring each person who examines a pub-

"Our law enforcement officers have to come into contact with criminal elements every day on the job and we must insure that they don't have to worry about those elements using this loophole in the law to track the officers to their homes to threaten or harrass them and their families," Jones said in a statement.

An attorney general's opinion last year held that the addresses and telephone numbers had to be disclosed under the open records law as it currently exists.

Rep. Bill Blythe, D-Houston, sponsored the bill requiring the Secretary of State to place in financial disclosure files the identity of persons who inspect them.

Lose Hour Sunday WASHINGTON (AP) - At a time when many Americans are giving thought to their timepieces because of Daylight Saving Time, the Smithsonian Institution has mounted a display of rare European and American clocks from the 16th to the 19th centuries. As millions of Americans fuss with buttons and dials to move their clocks ahead. visitors to the Museum of History and Technology may view timepieces made by some of the finest craftsmen of their time, located in the hall of timekeeping.

The exhibition is, well, timely. This is the weekend when most Americans make the switch to daylight time at 2 a.m. Sun-Daylight time is effective from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October. It is not quite universal. Areas which remain on standard time are Arizona, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa and the portion of Indiana in the eastern time zone.

The Smithsonian exhibition includes 16 mantle clocks, tall clocks and others to be mounted on a wall.

There is a forerunner of the travel alarm clock in a Czechoslovakian table clock made in 1760 with a gilt finish. For early risers; it has a flintlock gun mechanism which lights a candle when the alarm is sounded.

Striking Union Modifies Hourly Wage Demands

Wilton Waldrop, NLRB assistant re-gional director in Fort Worth, said he understood the decision of the Lubbock contractors "to bargain individually in good faith on each contract without regard to each other's contract" was the basis for the withdrawal of charges.

Laborers Union International Local 1253 spokesman John Wallace seconded this assessment, saying, "During the course of the NLRB agent's investigation (NLRB agent Charles Steere was reported in Lubbock last week investigating the strike), all the contractors agreed to bargain in good faith. They submitted in writing to us their willingness to meet and negotiate."

Wallace said the charges against the contractors were dropped Tuesday, but stressed that if the union believes future negotiations are not being conducted in good faith, the charges can be refiled.

Wallace also said this morning that the union has offered to settle for a 271/2-cent per hour increase in the workers' wages. He said the previous request for a 7 percent increase amounted to a 45 cents per hour raise.

Speaking of the new wage proposal, Wallace said, "I had made it off the record to Page & Wirtz (one of the struck Lubbock contractors) about three weeks ago, but it was made official this week." He said that under the new proposal, union workers would be provided a 121/2-

Lead Levels Reported Higher

BOSTON (UPI) - Researchers reported this week that the amount of lead in modern man is 500 times greater than natural levels, compared to skeletons dating back to the 4th century A.D.

In the report, anthropologist Dr. Jonathon E. Ericson said scientists at Harvard University and the California Institute of Technology said they were able to make the comparisons based on analysis of lead samples taken from the bones and teeth of people buried 1,600 years ago in Peru.

"Based on what we already know about lead poisoning and its effects on neurological functions, it is extremely important for us to re-evaluate now the critical levels of lead permissible in our society," Ericson said.

Children with acute lead poisoning suffer from a variety of physical and mental effects, including drowsiness and irritability. Recent studies at the Harvard Medical School have also traced certain classroom behavior problems to children with low-levels of lead in their bodies.

The researchers measured lead deposited in the skeletons of modern man and of Peruvians who lived in the Viru Valley on the northwest coast of the South American nation around the 4th century

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Carter believes his message on the need for socking it to the oil industry with a windfall profits tax on revenues from the decontrol of oil is hitting home with the

But he also believes the fix may be in with Congress to take care of the big oil companies.

The people who are paying higher prices at the gas pumps are unhappy. Many question whether Carter's thesis that high prices will reduce oil consumption is valid in today's society. There will be growing pressure on oil companies such as Standard Oil and Exxon, which this week reported whopping increases in their profits, to pay their fair share of the new bonanza

Speaking to the National Academy of Sciences, Carter said the industry has given up the battle to kill the tax and has adopted a new strategy - to get their many, and powerful, friends on Capitol Hill to draft legislation with loopholes providing kickbacks to the tune of billions of dollars.

"Many of those who only a few weeks ago were dedicated to killing outright the windfall profits tax have now given up on that fight," Carter said. "But the battle is far from over. Their new strategy seems to be to try to hoodwink the American people by passing a windfall profits tax that is in fact a charade - a tax designed primarily to provide loopholes so the oil companies will get another $4 or $5 billion in unearned profits on top of the $6 billion they would get under decontrol with an honest windfall profits tax."

The fight centers on the proposal to include a "plowback" provision in the bill that would allow the oil companies to deduct from their taxes any profits that are reinvested in exploration and production.

In announcing that he would allow oil prices to rise as of June 1, Carter also proposed new taxes that would recapture 50 percent of the resulting revenues. He said the revenues would be put in an Energy Security Fund to subsidize the

Washington Window

Although the president did not mention oil companies in his speech, press secer-tary Jody Powell later told reporters the president's remarks were directed against the industry.

There is some suspicion that Carter may have already thrown in the towel by showing too much flexibility by deciding to send to Congress only the "specifications" that outline a windfall profits tax bill and letting the lawmakers write their own legislation.

Veteran reporters say that is not an unusual way of doing business, but it does appear to give a heavily lobbied Congress broad leeway in writing its own ticket. The administration cannot complain as much when it did not detail its own de-

A key figure in the battle will be Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and strong supporter of the oil industry. Long is on record as favoring more "incentives" for the industry to develop new oil resources. He has a lot of clout in Congress, and the awe of the White House. Other Democrats in leadership positions feel the same way as Long.

All of which puts Carter in the position of having to decide whether at some point he is ready to take on his own party members. He has been very reluctant to do that in the past. With the re-election campaign coming up, there is a question of whether Carter is willing to alienate the men whose political support he needs. Therefore, if the public is willing to buy Carter's argument about "charade" legislation, is he prepared to take on the real perpetrators?

GM Executive Suggests Safety Cooperation

DETROIT (AP) - The auto-producing nations should get together on a scientific study of safety and environmental requirements with a view toward bringing them into harmony, says the No. 2 man at the world's biggest auto manufacturer.

Speaking at a dinner meeting this week of competitors - the Automobile Importers of America - in Washington, GM president Elliot M. Estes said differing standards held down competition and raised costs to consumers throughout the

GM released the text of the speech in

Detroit. "There is no question that all people, everywhere, would benefit if the nations of the world would examine - objectively - the question of what really is needed in the way of automotive standards to protect consumers and the environment," Estes said.

"I stress it should be an objective examination - based on scientific evidence and technical and economic reality. Just to open up any country's regulations to further political compromise and subjectivity or administrative capriciousness likely would be worse than just leaving things the way they are."

As an example, Estes said the United States requires side marker lights, Japan permits them and some European countries prohibit them.

GM calculates that it spends $400 in modifications for each car exported to Europe and $800 for each going to Japan,

"Those estimates do not include any conversion to right hand drive, the cost of any regular production options we are able to use or the expense of local inspections and tests. The higher figure for Japan, however, does reflect the lower volume we are able to export there as a result of a number of different obstacles, including a costly distribution system,' he added.

The company had not studied U.S. regulations in detail from the point of view of importers, he said, but they are "among the most costly and difficult in the world ... enough to discourage most lowvolume imports that are the least price

Bitter With Sweet-ner

THUS FAR, Congress appears a good deal more concerned about offending low-calorie soft drink lovers than about protecting the rest of us from a potential risk Any doubts about the prevailing view of the saccharin controversy should have been dispelled when Rep. Phil Gramm, D-College Station, strolled into a recent House hearing waiving a diet soda and wearing a smirk.

Gramm's grandstanding may not have been a class performance but it pretty much typifies the skepticism towards scientific evitlence identifying the popular artificial sweetener as a cancer-causing agent.

An 18-month moratorium on a ban by the FDA will expire next month, but it now appears likely that Congress will extend it for another two or three years.

A NATIONAL Academy of Sciences panel, after reviewing all existing studies, last fall concluded that the sweetener is indeed a carcinogen, albeit a relatively weak one.

The study committee also concluded there is no evidence saccharin offers any health benefits, as opposed to risks.

Nonetheless, a second NAS panel stopped short of urging an immediate ban on saccharin-the only action available to the FDA under existing food safety laws-and recommended instead that the laws be changed to permit a more flexible response.

Members of this panel, in testimony before the House health subcommittee last week, suggested the FDA be authorized to place some restrictions on the use of saccharin as a food and beverage additive without banning the substance entirely for now.

PANEL MEMBERS expressed particular concern about the growing consumption of diet soda pop by children, who are obviously in no position to make their own informed judgments about the risks of saccharin.

The diet soda industry is vociferously opposed to any restrictions on its product, and has stirred up massive public resistance to such moves.

However, if there is a single form of saccharin use that seems logical to curtail, it is the diet soda. By no stretch of the imagination can soda pop, diet or otherwise, be considered essential or even desirable from a nutritional standpoint.

For a thrist quencher, nothing beats plain old well water. And for weight control, there is no substitute for simple self-control.

An Old Game With New Tryst

WASHINGTON-The country owes a debt to Jerry Brown. In the midst of natural disasters, manmade calamities and the unmitigated horrors of Idi Amin, the governor's African holiday with rock star Linda Ronstadt provides a great moment for aging copy editors and a nice break for vervone else.

The rim man hasn't been born who doesn't yearn, all his life, for just one opportunity to use the word "paramour" in 48-point bold. "Brown

To be sure, to the extent that presidential polities is serious business, the African tryst (another rifn man's word) has its serious aspect. Will the safari spoil Jerry Brown?

Has the governor of California forfeited his chance for the White House in order to gambol in the veldt with the woman he loves? Stay tuned. Meanwhile, await the Gallup Poll.

It would be interesting to see what Dr. Gallup might come up with. My guess, for what it may be worth, is that the governor has indeed done

If my surmise is correct, a large majority of the people will regard this African adventure as a salpable insult to conventional moral values. More voters will be shocked than amused

BUT I COULD be quite wrong. The analogy that comes immediately to mind stems from the presidential campaign of 1884. The Democratic nominee was Grover Cleveland, 47, former governor of New York.

On July 21, the Buffalo Evening Telegram spread across page one a copy editor's finest hour. "A Terrible Tale." the headline read. "A Dark Chapter in a Public Man's History. The Pitiful Story of Maria Halpin and Governor Cleveland's Son.

To his credit, Cleveland at once affirmed the account. He had indeed entered into an illicit relationship and the boy was his own.

CHARLES A. DANA in the New York Sun thought the scandal would prove fatal to Cleveland's chances:

We do not believe that the American people the White House. will knowingly elect to the presidency a coarse debauchee who would bring his harlots with him a First Lady in the White House and not a Dear to Washington and hire lodgings for them convenient to the White House."

Lubbock's symphony is recognized as one of the finest in the country, especially for a city of less than 200,000 population, and it seems to get better all the time.

Growing community support, spearheaded by civic leaders and businessmen who want the city to have a complete range of cultural and entertainment offerings, is strengthening the Sympho-

Conductor Harrod, of course, has nursed, pushed and pulled the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra to its current state of greatness with the help of a dedicated core of participants.

For a job well done, the Symphony gets a standing ovation.

FURTHER EVIDENCE of Lubbock's emergence as the cultural center of West Texas will be provided by the Arts Festival now underway.

As a first effort, the festivities in the Memorial Civic Center are amazing. For the first time, every resident of the Panhandle-South Plains area can get a kaleidoscopic impression of the variety of arts and humanities activities available to every member of the family in Lubbock.

The Lubbock Cultural Affairs Council, a product of the Chamber of Commerce's interest in a better Lubbock, is gaining momentum all the time in its efforts to broaden the support of the arts and humanities here.

AS A BYPRODUCT of making Lubbock a more enjoyable place to live, these activities-as the city's Goals for the '70s observed-are a boon to economic development because they attract new payrolls to the community.

Look around. Every day, Lubbock is taking on a little more of the atmosphere of a city. That's not all good-although the good outweighs the had-but it's a fact of life nonetheless.

Cultural activities such as those represented in the Arts Festival are what is giving an air of quality to the population growth that is inevitable for a progressive city in the heart of the Sun Belt.

There are plenty of impediments, but we shall be all the stronger if we overcome them. We should rid ourselves of obsolete notions. One of the these is the backward reliance on coal as a fuel, which is many times more hazardous than the nuclear cycle.

Sylvia Porter:

Buyer May Be Winner In Detroit 'Car Wars

SUDDENLY IT IS 1960 again in the nation's auto capital. Renewed hostilities have broken out in Detroit's perennial "car wars"-this time in the form of a $2 billion "Battle of the Optional Warranties.' And you, as a buyer of a '79 domestic model, could benefit from the confusion of the revived conflict. The first warranty war started nearly 25 years ago when independent companies began offering extended "service insurance" contracts through car dealers. In the late 1950s, manufacturers broadened their own service agreements. Then in '61. Chrysler struck with a free fiveyear, 50,000-mile warranty. Ford and General Motors expanded their own agreements. As the models aged, though-and mileage and expenses rose-all three retreated to the 12-month, 12,000mile protection.

BUT INDEPENDENT coverage continued to grow, expanding to used cars as odometer laws became more stringent

American Motors picked up the conflict with an offer three years ago of a $75 optional contract, lengthening protection to 24 months or 24,000

In 1977, Ford countered with a three-year 36,-000-mile agreement at prices of $165-$285, depending on the models.

Early in 1979. General Motors jumped in with its own 36/36 "continuous protection plan" for $153-$270. plus an option-on-an-option: 50,000 miles or 36 months (whichever comes first) for $270-$365

Ford lashed back with a cut in prices to as low as $100 for subcompacts. A few weeks ago, the war came full circle.

Chrysler reintroduced its 5/50 plan, at prices of Just before election day, Blaine blundered by $196-$281 for cars and up to $259 for the increasingly popular light-duty trucks. On top of this, on a limited number of models. Chrysler's limited warranties were offered free

ALL THREE major automakers insist they have no intention of reverting to the free warranties of the '60s on a permanent basis.

Have these products that Detroit once gave away suddenly become a bargain now that the automakers are selling them?

The answer must be a qualified "maybe." No the number of 1960. Popular magazines matterreliable analysis is possible because the lines in the warranty war are still fluid, and the manufacturers are not being completely candid on costs.

For instance, at the Detroit press conference announcing the GM plan, GM president Elliott M. (Pete) Estes, said, "I don't have any idea" how much it costs to repair the average car during its first three years of use. Any GM profit on the option is expected only in terms of "customer satisfaction," he added.

OTHER STUDIES show, however, that car upkeep costs have actually fallen since 1950 by about 25 percent-after adjustment for inflation and in a relative sense. And most of this relative drop has occurred in the 1970's.

But car repair charges remain substantially include tires and batteries (covered separately) or 'normal maintenance items" (filters, belts, hoses) and engine tune-ups. Even so, these born-again warranties well may be cheaper than buying repairs a la carte.

In addition, the warranties buy you protection against the inflation spiral of the next three to five years, whatever its extent. GM is selling the option so hard it will offer the warranty to motorists who bought their 1979 model before the new contract was announced.

AND GM DOES not rule out reimbursing you for costs incurred before you purchased the cov-

Obviously, the problem of dealer repairs and 'lemons" has once more caught the attention of top Detroit officials. GM's Estes says he personally handles about 20 letters a day and a bunch of 'phone calls" from disgruntled owners. (He actually urged reporters to call him directly with problems on their own cars.)

To sum up: as a car buyer, you should benefit from Detroit's revived warranty war (even though you do not talk directly to Estes on the

Feel Slowdown

By PHILIP GREER and MYRON KANDEL

The Federal Reserve Board's slow-down policies aren't having much effect on big corporations, but they certainly are bringing headaches to smaller busi-

While overall corporate profits soared 26 percent between the end of 1977 and the last quarter of 1978, small business people are having trouble just paying their bills — and a lot of them have almost given up trying.

John Gordana is in an especially good spot to assess the plight of small businesses. Gordana runs the Equitable Adjustment Service, a com tion agency in Totowa, N.J. He doesn't deal with individuals who can't pay their bills — only with businesses. He repre-sents giant corporations like Pfizer, Na-bisco, Warner-Lambert and Johnson and

"People are using their creditors as banks," he says, admitting that often they don't have much choice. "Because of the high cost of money, they have to make a choice between risking their credit ratings and using the creditor's money to finance their own businesses. So they just don't care much about credit ratings anymore.

Gordana, whose job is to get bills paid without going to court (he loses 75 per-cent of his fee if a claim has to be settled by a judge), says that while some people plan from the outset to hold up payments as long as they can — even if it means a court suit - many more are trapped by inflation and high interest rates.

"I'd say 90 percent of our debtors are honest people," he says. "Tight money is the problem. A lot of them didn't expect the kind of inflation we have and they can't keep up with it. Some of them can't afford to pay the interest banks are charging and some just can't get financ-ing no matter how much they're willing to pay. They have to pay the rent and the electricity bill, so they don't pay their suppliers.

Gordana says inflation plays more than one role in creating problems. "Some of the creditors buy all the merchandise they can whenever they can. They hold onto it because they know that prices are going up and it will be worth more in a few months. They figure they just won't pay for it until it's sold."

Inflation also affects the suppliers' thinking. "The suppliers often are willing to just take the merchandise back," Gordana says, "because in the time it's been out, its value has gone up. That's some-thing the creditors get to know and it makes it harder for me to convince them they have to pay their bills.

"It's like buying on consignment, only these big companies usually don't sell on consignment. With drug companies there's another problem. By the time they get the product back, it's often of date and they have to throw it out."

Even so, he says, the creditors often are willing to take less than they're due. "Most of the time they don't want to go all the way through a court case," he says. "So they file suit and there are a few postponements and when the time comes for the trial, they settle. A lot of debtors get to know that, too."

If the high cost of money has made it more difficult to get bills paid, it also has made big companies more senitive to

Wine Scandal Surfaces In France

PARIS (UPI) - That exquisite bottle of Burgundy you plan to impress the boss with at dinner tonight may not be what you think it is. So if you value your job, check it out.

A Burgundian vintner has been accused of shipping 70,000 bottles of elegantly la-beled cheap table wine to the United States in a scandal reminiscent of one in Bordeaux five years ago.

A top-quality Burgundy can cost around $24 a bottle while a simple table wine goes for as little as 70 cents a bottle.

The amount of Burgundy involved is worth up to $1.25 million - considerably less than the amount involved in the Bordeaux scandal. Also, the Burgundy was sent only to the United States while the Bordeaux was shipped around the world. But according to the main offender in the latest scandal, the Burgundy scandal could be a lot worse than it appears. Bernard Grivelet, the accused vintner, has hinted the scandal is a lot bigger than authorities had hoped. He contends putting expensive Burgundy labels on cheap bottles of wine is not an uncommon practice and that he is being made a scape-

Representative Says Life Not Changed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The quality of ife for most black Americans has not changed significantly in the past decade, says the former head of the Congressional Black Caucus.

Rep. Parren Mitchell said this week that while blacks made progress after the civil rights movement of the 1950s and 1960s, racism is still present in American society. In a speech to the American Association for Affirmative Action, the Maryland Democrat urged blacks to improve their place in society, "but not at the expense of leaving the lives of the vast majority of black Americans substantially unchanged." ness has picked up sharply in the past three or four months, but that his clients started reacting as long ago as last sum-

"They started making faster referrals to us then, and we've had more conferences with them to try to head off credit risks," he says.

The number of professional paymentodgers is increasing, Gordana main-is the biggest cause of commercial delinquencies. "A guy sets up in business and he gets used to a certain standard of living," he explains. "A couple of cars, a couple of vacations a year, things like that. When things get tight, he wants to maintain that standard, even though sometimes he knows he can't pay for it.

So he takes it from the creditors. "I find there are two reasons why businesses fail - poor management of under-capitalization. In good times those are touch to overcome. In hard times, what was a crack in the wall becomes a collapse," he says.

Gordana sees no let-up in the pressure on small business. "If we keep having these high interest rates, we're going to lose a lot of small busines fewer companies and they'll all be big.'

MARMADUKE by Brad Anderson Enemies Must Forget Prejudices

"You're the one who puts all the drudgery into my housework!"

Texas Representative To Remain At Home

WASHINGTON (AP) - Rep. Ron can Development Bank. Paul, who doesn't go on congressional trips, says he's not going on another one. Non-trips normally aren't news. For example, nobody wrote about Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., telling his constituents in a newsletter that he wasn't one of the more than 108 members of the House who took foreign trips during the Easter

But Paul, a Texas Republican, is the author of a resolution that seeks to virtually eliminate all overseas "fact-finding" trips by members of the House.

Paul was the man who said he didn't see any need for congressmen to journey overseas to check out peace prospects or waterway development or any of the hundreds of other reasons cited for such taxpayer financed journeys. "That's what we have ambassadors for," he reasoned.

And it was Paul who said he figured that the congressional trips might be sharply curtailed if he could just get the public behind him on the issue.

So that's why he announced this week that he will not go on a House Banking Committee trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica, for a conference on the Inter-Ameri-

"The specter of affluent congressmen lolling on Caribbean beaches, while taxpaying Americans have a hard-time taking a long weekend to go camping, is outrageous," Paul said.

As much as I appreciate the high public purpose served by congressmen getting tans at taxpayers' expense, I have turned down this invitation," he added.

This conference at the lush resort of Montego Bay is just another rip-off of the taxpayer," he said, adding that his constituents would be justified in calling for his resignation "were I to abuse their trust in this fashion. ...

PARIS (AP) - Camera-clicking Israelis at the Pyramids. Egyptians sunning themselves on Tel Aviv's beach. Two years ago such notions would have

Now they are the idyll that shimmers in the thicket of clauses and subclauses of the first peace treaty between Israel and an Arab nation.

With the formal ratification of the treaty by Egypt and Israel, the two sides have taken one more step toward a stupendous human drama of enemies becoming friends.

But if "the waging of peace," as President Carter put it, is to succeed, signatures and ceremonies aren't enough. Both sides will need to learn tact and patience, to unlearn many propaganda-bred prejudices and stereotypes, to stop shoutng and start listening.

Perhaps never has peace been made between two nations who know so little about one another," says author Amos Eylon, one of the few hundred Israelis who have visited Egypt since the peace process began.

Egypt's Moslems and Israel's Jews would seem to have much in common. They share many Biblical patriarchs -Ibrahim-Abraham, Mussa-Moses, Yaqub-Jacob, Daoud-David, Samwil-Samuel. Both suffer war-drained, inflationary economies, and both must contend with a harsh, suffocatingly hot climate.

But where Egypt has a uniform cultural and historical background, Israel is dominated by its European founders, who only gradually are being replaced by native-born Israelis, called sabras. Where the Egyptian is easygoing and languidly graceful, the sabra is hard-driving and blunt.

The sabra cannot believe that a Cairo worker may be more content than his upwardly mobile counterpart in Tel Aviv, suffering none of the rising crime, alienation and hypertension that modernization has inflicted upon Israel.

In Israel, a dented fender or pushing crowd provokes a fistfight. In Egypt, such incidents usully end with coffee and Israelis sometimes too loudly profess their desire to teach Egyptians to uplift themselves. "Our experts could double his crop," said one well-meaning Israeli journalist watching a farmer maneuver a primitive buffalo-drawn plow in the Nile common Egyptian riposte. Egypt is a land of hints and secrets," writes Tamar Golan, of the Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv, one of the handful of Israelis who have spent time in Egypt since the peace process began. "Where the Israeli is proud of his directness, the Egyptian takes pride in his good manners and his circumlocution, in concealing more than he reveals."

The solemnly nationalistic Israeli is suspicious of advice from outside. Egyptians lace their nationalism with humor. Unlike 31-year-old Israel, 7,000-year-old Egypt long ago learned that nothing is

The Israeli is proud of having cleansed his land of diseases common in the Middle East. He has built factories, planted fruit in the desert, carved expressways and raised skyscrapers along once-desolate beaches.

Where Israel measures itself by its Brooks Accuses GSA Of Wasting Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) - The General Services Administration is being accused of wasting millions of dollars because of "an unfortunately consistent failure ... to protect the government's rights and in-terests in dealing with private contrac-

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, made the comment Wednesday following release of a study that said lax management by GSA resulted in the government spending an extra $16.7 million for leased office space.

achievements, Egypt treasures its size and its timelessness. Forty-eight times bigger and 13 times more populous than Israel, Egypt is the spiritual and cultural epicenter of a vast Arab world, its existence as secure as the mighty life-giving

While, in the words of Israeli Defense Minister Ezer Weizman, "Paris and London have always seemed closer than Cairo or Beirut," the Israeli is an indefatigable do-gooder, convinced that the quickest route to acceptance is to teach his neighbors to desalinate seawater and harvest olives with mechanical treeshakers.

Observes one concerned Egyptian official: "I'm afraid the Israelis will try to 'occupy' us economically. Peace can be an invasion too. Israelis must remember that in Egypt, for the first time in their lives, they will meet Arabs as neighbors, not as occupiers."

Alongside their hopes, both sides have fears of this gigantic unknown called peace. Egypt broods about being ostra-cized by its Arab brothers for reconciling with its longtime enemy. It worries about its people rushing to Israel in search of work, and bringing back inflation-boosting high wages and bad Western habits.

A building laborer earning $2 a day in Cairo could make five times that in Is-

While the majority of Israelis look forward to peace as the greatest turning point of their lives, some fear it will deflate the challenges that built their country, that something in their moral fiber will snap and leave them limp.

Trevino In Middle Of Dispute

DENVER (AP) - A dispute is brewing over professional golfer Lee Trevino's endorsement of Coors beer, whose producer has been accused of unfair practices against its laborers, many of them Mexican-Americans like Trevino. A leader in Denver's Mexican-American community charges that Adolph Coors Co. retained Trevino for the beer endorsements to confuse the community. He called on Trevino to cancel his contract with the Golden, Colo., But a Trevino spokesman said the golfer's endorsement of the beer is not necessarily an endorsement of the brewer. "I don't think he (Trevino) even knows what the labor practices are," said Albert Salinas, a business manager of Lee Trevino Enterprises in Dallas. "... Trevino's intentions were not to side with anybody," Salinas said Thursday.

Coors claims it tries to recruit minority members for brewery jobs. But state Sen. Don Sandoval of Denver, who criticized the endorsements, said the company has done little to change allegedly discriminatory hiring policies involv-

Klein, 48, of New York faces up to a three-year prison term on the conviction when he appears for sentencing June 18 before Judge Vincent L. Broderick.

Charges against Klein stemmed from his alleged failure to report income from the sale of "promotional" recordings of the Beatles and other performers.

Lee Radziwill Plans Wedding

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Lee Radziwill and San Francisco hotel executive Newton Cope plan to marry a week from today, Cope has confirmed.

Cope, 57, said Thursday the ceremony here would be the third wedding for both him and the former princess, younger sister of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

"We plan a very small wedding, with just six or eight close friends, then we will do a church wedding a month or so later, with all of our family and friends," Cope said, adding the couple will reside here "most of the time."

Cope's first married Marilyn Jacobs of Sacramento, Calif. Before divorcing, they had three children, now grown and married. His second wife, San Francisco heiress Dorothy "Dolly" Fritz, died three years ago. The couple had two children and Cope adopted two of her children from a pre-

Fewer Apartment Units Available For Families

WASHINGTON (AP) - Families searching for apartments this spring face hard times because fewer units are avail-able. And housing experts say the situation will get worse, especially with infla-tion boosting rents.

"There is really a crisis in multi-family rental housing in this country," Lawrence B. Simons, federal housing commissioner, said in an interview Thursday.

Jay Shackford of the National Association of Home Builders agreed. "The vacancy rate has been declining since the recession of 1974-75," he said. "You don't see the big rental apartment projects going up any more. They're just too Statistics show that the tightest rental market is in the Northeast and that apartment dwellers in central cities everywhere fare a bit better than their counterparts in rural and suburban locales.

Most housing experts believe at least six to seven apartments of every 100 must be on the market to give families enough

He adds: "The multi-family rental side would really be in severe trouble if it weren't for the government side.'

The Department of Housing and Urban Development is responsible for building or rehabilitating 200,000 multi-family units this year and has asked Congress for money to fund a similar number in 1981. The Senate, however, has threatened to pare that figure to 30,000.

While people in the Northeast face the tightest rental market - 4 units per 100 were vacant during this year's first quarter - the South had the most units to offer, with a vacancy rate of 5.5 percent, Census Bureau figures showed.

The vacancy rate was 5 percent in the North Central region and 4.5 percent in

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL-Friday Evening, April 27, 1979-A-Scientists Say Man May Be Only Intelligent

By K. MACK SISK
SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — We Earthiings may really be all alone in the vast darkness of the universe — the only inhabitants among the trillions of stars that make up the cosmos.

Despite the conventional wisdom that the odds favor other intelligent beings living somewhere in outer space, there's a small but growing number of scientists who say the only form of intelligent life in the universe exists right here on earth.

"I think ours is the only advanced civilization in the universe and almost certainly the only one in our galaxy," says Dr. Michael H. Hart, an astronomer, who has published several articles on his theo-

In fact, he says, Earth was fortunate to make it as a habitable planet.

If Earth's orbit was 5 percent closer to the sun, the planet would be cloud-shrouded with temperatures approaching 900 degrees. On the other hand, if Earth was 1 percent farther from the sun, the planet would have become a barren desert, says Hart.

In an interview, Hart also pointed out what he calls "Fact A: There are no intelligent beings from outer space on Earth now."

Hart, who teaches physics and astronomy at Trinity University, recently expounded on "Fact A" in an article in a British scientific journal.

"In recent years several astronomers have suggested that intelligent life in our galaxy is very common," Hart said in the article, adding that it has become accepted that some stars have planetary systems containing an Earthlike planet that supports life.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

"These optimistic conclusions have perhaps led many persons to believe that (1) our star-faring descendents are almost certain, sooner or later, to encounter oth-er advanced cultures in our galaxy; and (2) radio contact with other civilizations

Hart maintains if there were sucleings on any of the thousands of planet the galaxy, they would have found eir way to Earth by now, just as hu ans are attempting to reach other planet.

CBS News reported Thursday that committee lawyers have drafted the setlement in the case against Talmadge, a Georgia Democrat who is accused of financial misconduct.

However, Carl Eardley, the committee's chief counsel, said he was not aware of a proposal such as reported by CBS and Lynne Murphy, the chief spokeswoman, said she also knew of no proposed settlement

'I'm preparing for the trial on Monday. If there is a settlement, nobody has bothered to tell me about it," Eardley said in a telephone interview. Talmadge's office declined comment on the report. Miss Murphy noted that the six-member committee has been receptive to a settlement for months and has so stated publicly. But, she added, "We have had no indication (from Talmadge) that there was any hope. We think it's a dead issue

Under the agreement drafted by committee lawyers, according to the network, Talmadge would say he filed false

The network added that all allegations relating to a secret bank account would be left unresolved. That bank account allegedly contained more than $39,000 in campaign contributions and improperly obtained Senate expense funds.

Talmadge has denied having knowledge of the account.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the wife of Talmadge's chief accuser, Daniel Minchew, once was a campaign worker for a member of the Ethics Committee.

Reputed Mafia Kingpin Found Dead At Spa

LONG BRANCH, N.J. (AP) - Anthony Russo, once believed to be the kingpin of organized crime on the Jersey Shore, was shot and killed while in bed at a weight loss spa, officials say.

Paul Chaiet, an assistant Monmouth County prosecutor, said Thursday police had no suspects in the death of the 62year-old Russo, who lived here and in Hallandale, Fla.

Russo's body was sprawled across his bed in the Harbor Island Spa when a hotel attendant checked about 9:30 a.m. Thursday at the request of Russo's attorney, who said the reputed Mafia figure had missed an appointment.

Attorney John Russell of Jersey City said he then rushed to the hotel-spa and found Russo, who he said suffered from a rare blood disease, hemorrhaging from the nose.

"I thought maybe he'd had some type of attack ... I put my hand on his chest, but felt no heart beat," Russell said. Then I looked at him closely and saw the bullet hole.

DR. LAMB

Rare Blood Condition

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I have a multiple anemia. The bones don't make blood and my doctor has tried medicines but they don't work. The only way to build up my blood is to take transfusions. My blood is extremely low and I have difficulty in walking. My thighs and hips are sore and hurt. Is there any cure for this? I have a mild heart condition and take medicines for that. I am 78 years old and

DEAR READER - The condition you have is reasonably uncommon. In adults the major source of our blood cells is from the bone narrow. Sometimes it quits functioning and doesn't replace the cells that our body destroys regularly. Each one of your red cells has an average life span of only 120 days.

There are so many red cells in the blood that to replace these as they are destroyed your bone marrrow has to manufacture three million new red cells each second. You have so many tiny red cells in your blood if you measured the surface area it would represent an area of 40,000 square

We tend to take all these things for granted and are only aware of what enormous changes are occurring in our body when some balance is disturbed. There are many reasons why the bone marrow may stop producing enough blood cells to maintain a pro-

The bone marrow can be replaced with tumor growth. It can stop functioning because of the toxic response to medicines. Many common medicines can cause this in a few susceptible individuals. There is a long list of chemicals which can induce it also. Finding out which medicine or chemical may have precipitated such a response literally requires a Sherlock Holmes.

Then, of course, your body has to have adequate nutrients to stimulate product. Pernicious anemia is caused by an inadequate amount of vitamin B-12 which is essential to the formation of the new red blood cells. In some people the chronic loss of small amounts of blood, for example, caused by bleeding from the digestive tract, may exhaust the bone marrow's ability to form cells. In its exhausted state, it's unable to respond

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-3, Understanding The Anemias. It will explain to you the delicate balance between the formation of red blood cells and the destruction of the cells plus all the different things that can affect this balance. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

As you see, the proper treatment of your blood cell balance mechanism depends entirely on what has caused it. In many instances medicines are very helpful in correcting the problem. In others, treatment is exceptionally difficult and blood transfusions may be the only immediate method of providing adequate sup-

Because of many of the true miracles that are accomplished in medicine, I sometimes think that the general public believes all medical problems can be cured and that the cure should be simple, immediate and cheap. Unfortunately, that's just not the fact of life.

Study Concludes Small Plants Could Provide Advantages

LOS ALAMOS, N.M. (UPI) - Electric utilities planning to expand their generating capacity with new coal-fired power plants might profit by avoiding the traditional "bigger is better" thinking.

A recent study by the energy systems and economic analysis group of the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory concludes that building a network of relatively small plants instead of a single large plant could provide several advantages to a utility and, in turn, to consumers.

"We went into the study thinking we would find environmental benefits from smaller plants, but an economic penalty in higher costs to consumers," said Andrew Ford, leader of the research team.

"We found the anticipated environmental impacts were confirmed," Ford said. "But when we turned to the economic impacts, we found they are better-with the small plants. We didn't expect that to come out of the analysis."

The study compared two hypothetical power projects to generate electricity from plants in southeastern Utah for consumption in Los Angeles. One model consisted of a single, 3,000-megawatt plant, patterned after the Kaiparowits power plant project that was abandoned three years ago, and the other was composed of one 750-megawatt and three 500megawatt plants.

Ford said the study showed that the small plants model would result in fewer planning and financing problems for the utility, cheaper electicity in Los Angeles and less environmental degradation in

Utah "We are suggesting that when utilities prepare environmental impact statements (for proposed power plants), instead of looking at a few locations for a large plant, they consider that a collection of small plants may be better," he

A major advantage for utilities is that the time for construction of small plants is much shorter than for large plants. The average time to get a small plant approved and built is about six years, compared with 11-12 years for a large plant.

The shorter time would allow utilities to make more accurate forecasts of electrical demand and reduce the possibility of unexpected increases or decreases in demand, both of which have a detrimental effect on a utility's operation.

The ability to build plants faster also would help companies in states where they are not permitted to count the costs of construction in their rate structures, Ford said.

Another advantage for a utility in the study is that it would have to pay for only 2,250 megawatts of generating capacity in

Despite the difference in total power,

Ford said, the two models were judged to be equivalent in delivering electricity in kilowatt-hours to Los Angeles during a one-year period. The reason, he said, is a higher forced outage rate for larger plants - "they tend to go down more frequently and stay down longer for repairs" - and greater backup systems are required for

Ford said the reaction to the study, prepared with support from the Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Energy, has been mixed so

"One utility says, 'We are shying from big plants,' but another utility with other problems will state just the opposite," he said. "A lot of reaction we get is, 'My goodness, that's interesting. We hadn't thought about it.'

Britian's Non-White Voters Major Factor In Election

LONDON (AP) - Britain's 1.2 million non-white registered voters are considered a major factor in the general election next Thursday. They hold the key in a dozen districts and could tip the balance in 40 others, political analysts say. The Guardian, a liberal newspaper, recently noted: "The ethnic vote ... is for the first time considered to be a real force in a British general election." A Community Relations Commission study after the October 1974 election noted there were more than 50 districts in which non-white voters outnumbered the majorities that put winning candidates in the House of Commons.

"It's obvious that colored voters have the capacity to wield significant electoral power," a Labor Party campaign official "Proportionately, they could elect as many as 12 blacks to the House of Commons if they chose. But there's little chance of that happening because they have never used their votes or have never been organized in the way they voted."

There are only five non-whites among the record 2,751 candidates running for the 635-seat House of Commons. But

There has been no non-white member of Commons since an Asian, Sapurji Saklatvala, was elected on a Communist ticket in 1928. However, there are signs that the traditionally-fragmented non-white vote is being organized to a greater extent than in any previous election.

Non-white community leaders last week drew up a Black People's Manifesto listing racial issues that non-whites should question candidates about in the current campaign.

Russell Profitt, a non-white Labor Party candidate in London's traditionally Conservative Westminster district, said: "This is an attempt to educate black voters and shake the political parties out of their complacency towards blacks. It is an attempt to intervene in the election on our own terms instead of just reacting to issues as they come up.

Connally Wants To Cut, Boost Military Spending

By EVANS WITT WASHINGTON (AP) — Step one, according to John B. Connally, is to cut defense spending by 5 percent. For step two, he would increase defense spending by 10 percent.

That may not sound quite consistent, but then consistency is not a traditional hallmark of presidential candidates.

Connally speaks with equal fervor of reining in the Pentagon budget, along with spending by every other federal agency, and of increasing the Pentagon budget to enhance U.S. security.

Betty Ford Hospitalized

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) - Former First Lady Betty Ford has been hospitalized as part of "a routine six-month eheckup," hospital officials disclosed Wednesday night.

Mrs. Ford, 61, reportedly checked into Eisenhower Medical Center Monday.

A Ford spokesman told the Palm Springs Desert Sun newspaper the checkup was strictly routine and Mrs. Ford would leave the hospital some time Thursday.

Hospital administrators refused to say if Mrs. Ford was present or not, saying only the Ford family could discuss the matter.

Mrs. Ford underwent four weeks of treatment at a Navy hospital in Long Beach, Calif., in April and May of 1978 for alcoholism and dependence on prescription painkillers, and had a face lift in Sentember One breast was removed in 1974 because of cancer, which she and her family have said has not recurred

During an average Moscow winter, the snow cleared from the streets would cover 25 acres and be piled 750 feet high.

The 5 percent he would cut would be waste, mismanagement and paperwork. The 10 percent he would add would be worthwhile weapons spending.

If that's not clear, let's backtrack a bit. Last September the former Texas governor, who is seeking the Republican presidential nomination, was calling for an across-the-board 5 percent cut in federal spending, a popular position at the time "Proposition 13 Fever" and budgetslashing moves were sweeping the country.

"Yes, I would cut 5 percent in defense, I sure would. I'm a strong supporter of a strong defense for this nation, but I don't believe the Defense Department should be immune from such cuts," Connally said during an appearence at the American Enterprise Institute.

Such a cut would be essential to helping control inflation, he said.

"We would be trying to say to American business and American labor that, before asking them to engage in voluntary restraints in wage and price demands, the Defense Department is going to take the first cut," he added. As of last Sunday, Connally was still in favor of such cuts.

"The first thing I would do (about inflation) would be to cut federal spending. .. I would demand every department and agency reduce their spending by 5 per-

"Then the question is asked would you apply it to defense? The answer is ves." The cuts at the Pentagon would come through increased efficiency and reduced misspending, he says. "I will try to ferret out waste, as much corruption, as much would try to ferret that out in the Defense Department.'

Then Connally, on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers," went on to describe his stance in a year when U.S. military strength has become a major political is-

"I think we can save 5 percent, but ... I would turn right around and probably add at least 10 percent in the defense budget to build the B-1 (bomber), to increase the time ... in which we are going to have the MX missile available to us. I would probably build a nuclear aircraft carrier. Clear?

It wasn't to Connally's interviewers. Question: "We are going to cut 5 percent from defense, but you are going to add 10 percent to defense spending, so we have an addition of 5 percent to de-

Connally: "Maybe more than that." Question: "Maybe more than that?" Connally: "Yes."

So after cutting 5 percent through eliminating "extravagance in the Defense Department," Connally says he would tack on at least a 10 percent increase to keep up with Soviet defense spending, leaving the Pentagon budget at least 5 percent more than now.

Defense spending has always been a popular topic for presidential candidates whether they want to cut such outlays or increase them.

For example, Connally's stance brings to mind Jimmy Carter's campaign position on the Pentagon budget.

Carter promised to cut the defense budget $5 billion to $7 billion annually, mainly by eliminating waste and ineffi-

When Carter took office, he cut President Ford's fiscal 1978 budget request for defense by $3.5 billion. But for 1979, Carter got $9.4 billion more than 1978. For fiscal 1980, he has asked for an additional $11 billion in outlays.

NEW YORK (AP) — Associated Newspapers Ltd., the British conglomerate that owns Esquire magazine, reportedly is negotiating to sell the bi-monthly publication.

Esquire staffers said they understand that the Bonnier Magazine Group, a Sweden-based conglomerate, is negotiating to purchase the 46-year-old magazine, according to Thursday's editions of The New York Times.

The newspaper also quoted the staffers as saying they believe that the departure of the magazine's editor and publisher, Clay S. Felker, is imminent, possibly as early as next Monday.

Felker was not immediately available for comment.

According to the Daily News, Swedish publisher Ahlen Akerlund and a Tennessee affiliate, the 13-30 Corp., are the interested buyers.

Felker told his staff in a letter distributed Wednesday that the conglomerate was dealing with several companies but no deal had been made "at this time" and operations at the magazine would not be affected, The Times reported.

The Times said Felker told the staff: "Esquire has not been sold. But no matter what happens, the continued publication of Esquire is assured."

Felker took over the magazine, which claims a 650,000 circulation, in August 1977. The magazine's circulation and profits reportedly have been on the upsware update his direction.

ing under his direction.

He had received significant financial help from Vere Harmsworth (Lord Rothmere), head of Associated Newspapers. The chain also publishes The London Daily Mail and has a majority interest in the Soho Weekly News, a Manhattan-based tabloid.

Before taking over editorial control of Esquire, Felker lost New York and New West magazines and The Village Voice in battle with Australian publisher Rupert Murdoch. Murdoch is a competitor of Harmsworth.

An article in Editor and Publisher magazine two weeks ago indicated that Felker had established the Felker Communications Corp. to purchase The Advertiser, a weekly shopping paper in California. The article quoted Jack Kliger, the company's vice president, as saying that Felker was in love with California and interested in buying other publications.

"We've said all along that the facts of the case wouldn't sustain the charges.' he said

Spokesmen for Page & Wirtz Construction Co. and Furr's, Inc., this morning said they had not been informed of the union's decision to drop charges and indicated, furthermore, that serious differences remained to be resolved.

"The disagreement isn't over money, Jack Wirtz, owner of Page & Wirtz, said today. "Our disagreement is over the hiring and referral clause (of the expired March 31 contract between the Associated General Contractors and the union), and we're asking for a lower wage for inexperienced workers.

Wirtz also emphasized that the distinction must be made between skilled and nonskilled construction workers.

He said increased pay for skilled workers was not in contention. He added that the union had offered his company a 75 cents drop in the wage for unskilled workers but Page & Wirtz was still asking for the $2 decrease.

Steve Ruten, general manager and vice president of Furr's, Inc., agreed that the right to use non-union help was at the core of the controversy.

"We have no right as an employer to ask whether he belongs to a union or not." he said

Ruten said that a recent negotiating session with union representatives the reduced request for a 271/2 cents per hour raise had been proposed.

Ruten said that his latest offer for beginning unskilled laborers' pay was $3.65 per hour and added that he has never lobbied for a $2 cut.

With the charges against the contractors withdrawn, Wallace said he expects negotiations to continue next week. Indictment Cites PBB Cover-Up

DETROIT (UPI) - Velsicol Chemical Corp. and two employees at the plant where it produced the toxic chemical PBB have been indicted by a federal grand jury in an alleged cover-up scheme at the height of Michigan's cattle feed contamination disaster.

In a two-count indictment handed down Thursday, the grand jury accused the Chicago-based firm and two former managers at its St. Louis, Mich., plant of lying to federal investigators and concealing "material facts" about how PBB was made, packaged and stored.

The indictment charges that Velsicol and the two "falsified, concealed and covered up by trick, scheme and device, material facts" relating to the PBB investigation during a 21/2-year period.

Each count carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine. The employees named in the indict-ment were Charles L. Touzeau, 56, manager of the St. Louis plant, and William Thorne, 44, operational manager of the plant. PBB, or polybrominated biphenyl. was made at the now-defunct plant from 1972 through 1974. According to the indictment, Velsicol and the two employees lied when they told Food and Drug Administration investigators that they were not aware of any cattle feed contamination problem prior to April 26, 1974, several months after PBB was accidentally mixed with cattle feed and distributed around the

The result of that mixup, termed the worst agricultural disaster in Michigan's history, was the contamination and destruction of thousands of cattle and other farm animals. Many dairy farmers lost entire herds, and the toxic chemical has found its way into Michigan's food chain.

Under the rationing plan, gasoline cou-pons would be issued on the basis of how many cars are owned by each motorist. A person who commutes 50 miles to work in Texas could receive the same number of coupons as a resident of Connecticut who commutes 10 miles

Late Wednesday, White House aides agreed to a compromise under which 10 percent of the nation's gasoline reserves during a serious shortage would be used to alleviate regional inequities.

Governors in states of high per capita gasoline usage, mainly in the West and South, would be allocated extra coupons which could be used to make the rationing system more fair. The 10 percent allocation proposal was contained in letters from White House domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat to key members of the Senate committee and the House Commerce Committee. Until Carter promised to offset the potential imbalance, key House and Senate members had said the rationing plan Among them was Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., chairman of a Senate energy conservation subcommittee, who said the rationing plan would have been rejected in the committee without the president's new proposal.

'That tipped the balance," he said, "along with the realization that the (energy) situation is really serious.

Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the full energy committee, said members of the House and Senate are becoming aware that there will be serious gasoline shortages this summer, and that there will be insufficient reserves of heating oil this fall and winter.

While the rationing plan would not be ready for use until fall, if then, Jackson said Congress should give Carter some standby authority even if the proposal is imperfect. Under federal law, Carter's emergency energy conservation measures can be either approved or rejected by Congress, but not changed. The standby plan still has strong critics and there is no guarantee it will be approved by the full House or Senate. Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who voted against the proposal, said under the original plan his state's motorists would be able to purchase 30 percent less gasoline than they usually use while Pennsylvania would get 10 percent more than it historically consumes. Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., one of Carter's most persistent critics in energy matters, said of the rationing proposal, "I think it looks like it was written on the back of an envelope in the back seat of a limousine on the way up from the Department of Energy.

In another energy development Thursday, it was reported that Carter's proposed "windfall profits tax" would cost oil companies only about 13 percent of the billions the companies will reap from decontrol in the next three years.

The proposed tax would net the government only $2 billion of the more than $15 billion oil producers are expected to get,

Egypt Says New Clashes Not To Obstruct Peace

By RICHARD SISK

United Press International Writer Egypt said today that fighting between Israel and Palestinian guerrillas will not obstruct implementation of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty and urged Saudi Arabia to reconsider its break with Cairo before it is too late.

In Lebanon today, Israeli-backed Lebanese rightist militiamen ignored a U.N.-engineered cease-fire in south Lebanon and Israeli warplanes flew several reconnaissance missions over the region, witnesses reported.

Palestinian and Israeli guns were silent for the second straight day after four days of strikes and counter-strikes which left about 50 Lebanese and Palestinians dead and more than 80 others wounded. In Cairo, Weizman reacted coolly to a Romanian proposal for a revival of the Geneva Arab-Israeli peace conference, comprehensive settlement.

Weizman and Egyptian Defense Minister Lt. Gen. Kamal Hassan Ali briefed reporters following their third and final session since the Israeli leader's arrival Wednesday.

Ali was asked whether PLO and Israeli military strikes and counterstrikes such as those that took place earlier this week across the Israeli-Lebanese borders would impede the implementation of the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

No, this will not affect our negotiations," Ali replied. But he expressed "a wish" for some arrangement to stop the Israeli-PLO hostilities to "pave the way for a good atmosphere for the negotia-

evaluated each year to determine student demand and the feasibility of continuing

One course that generated discussion was a proposed class in electronic guitar. The course drew 28 students from Lubbock High, but only seven from other secondary schools in the city.

The course was cut because the majority enrollment was from Lubbock High, because of the cost and also because of a space problem Irons said that the course, which would cost an estimated $12,000, was the third most expensive offering in the proposed course load.

Knox Williams, Lubbock High principal and advisory committee member, said that the electronic guitar course would necessitate speakers in the band hall the proposed location for the class - and the speakers could "not be worked

Board members and committee members, however, suggested a regular guitar course to replace the electronic guitar class. That proposal would cost less and would be less of a physical space prob-

Administration officials agreed to check with the 35 students enrolled in the electronic instrument course to find out

if they would be open to a regular guitar

Trustees also agreed to reinstate the controversial Western Cultures course to the list of LEAP offerings. The class would include a trip to Europe that would cost approximately $1300-$1500 per student.

The cost factor has sparked some controversy within the community, and in fact, had prompted administration officials to drop the course from the sched-

Irons said the cost could not be justified based on what he believed was a sparse enrollment of 13 students.

Committee members felt that the course should remain available to the students because it was a big drawing card to the program, however.

Board members also thought the cost was a legitimate educational expense. Trustees also voted to combine two separate instructional departments in the central office into one service.

Special education and guidance have previously been maintained as two different entities, but will now be operated under one supervisor - the director of special services.

The reorganization was proposed due to the retirement of G.B. Morris, coordinator of guidance in the school district.

aissance statuary timepiece from south Germany with a turbaned warrior clutching a snake. The hours are engraved on a sphere located on a stand above a Turk. The sphere revolves once every 24 hours.

Clockmaking skills often ran in the family, the Smithsonian says. Aaron Willard made a banjo clock which resembles the musical instrument in its simplicity; his brother Benjamin made a rather ornate tall clock.

One unusual 16th century clock has two brass figures dressed in suits of armor that strike the hours with swords.

A Japanese Victorian shelf clock made before 1873, when that nation switched to the 12-hour timekeeping system, showed seasonal variations and hours on a central dial. The clock's single hand remained stationary while the wheel revolved.

These are clocks from a collection started in the late 19th century by a Scottish immigrant who started a successful machine works in New York and collected approximately 1,500 clocks, watches, sundials and other timepieces.

Before his death he donated the collection to New York University. It is now on loan to the Smithsonian.

Many of the clocks are in working order, but they will not be running in the public display. The museum several years gave up trying to keep the hundreds of timepieces in its hall running, on the ground that it required too much time and manpower.

Many officials - from Federal Reserve Chairman G. William Miller to Barry Embezzling City Funds Bosworth, director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability — have warned that the public needs signs soon that inflation is slowing.

Bosworth, in a recent interview with The Associated Press, said, "The next two to three months are crucial."

He explained that "if the price situation doesn't begin to improve," wage earners will abandon hope that govern-ment policies can soften the bite of inflation and start demanding ever higher wages that would only worsen the inflationary spiral.

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) - Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said today even if he or one of his children is assassinated that the Islamic revolution "must go on."

It was believed to be the first time Khomeini referred to an assassination of himself or members of his family since he returned to Iran in February and engineered the overthrow of the monarchy.

'If one of my children is assassinated or if I am assassinated, you must realize that our movement is not dependent on individuals and that it must go on," he told representatives of the nation's oil workers at his headquarters in the holy city of Qom, the state radio reported.

en's Profits Increase

WOLFSBURG, West Germany (AP) -Volkswagen reported Thursday that its consolidated profit rose almost 7 percent in the first quarter and said it believes the company will need a second assembly plant in the United States.

The company said first quarter profit was 175 million marks, or about $92 miltion, up from 164 million marks in the year earlier period. One mark is equal to about 53 U.S. cents.

Sales in the first quarter were up 8.6 percent to 7.4 billion marks from 6.8 biltion marks, the company reported.

For all of 1978, VW earnings were 574 million marks, up 37.0 percent from 419 million marks in 1977. Sales were 26.72 billion marks, up 10.6 percent from sales of 24.15 billion marks in 1977, the company said today. One mark is equal to about 53 U.S. cents.

Toni Schmuecker, VW's management board chairman, called Volkswagen's 1978 business development "positive" and said equally satisfactory results are expected for 1979.

But Schmuecker told reporters the automotive company's profitability was not as good as that of its major foreign rivals, especially General Motors Corp. He said VW group sales produced a profit yield of 2.1 percent, up from 1.7 percent in 1977 but still only about a third Schmuecker said final decisions on when and where a new U.S. plant should be built are still "far away." Volkswagen"s assembly plant at Westmoreland, Pa., produces 800 cars a day and VW plans to expand that to at least 1,000 units a day and possibly 1,200, he said.

He stressed the need to open another production plant in the United States not only because of growing demand for small, gasoline-saving automobiles but also because of remaining uncertainty on the foreign exchange rate of the dollar. Although the start-up of Rabbit production at Westmoreland has made VW less vulnerable to the fluctuation of the dollar, Finance Manager Friedrich Thomee said the company still suffered a net loss of $110 million last year because of currency floatations.

Schmuecker predicted a 1979 sales rise similar to that of last year's but added that net profit may only increase slightly. In the first quarter, sales of Volkswagen do Brasil S.A. and of Volkswagen of America — the two biggest Volkswagen subsidiaries - were unchanged at 800 million marks and 1.2 billion marks, respectively, Thomee said.

First-quarter sales of Volkswagen de Mexico S.A. and of Volkswagen of South Africa Ltd. rose 50 percent and 20 percent respectively, he said. In the first quarter, Volkswagen's climbed 13 percent from a year ago to 630,000 units, Schmuecker said.

He said deliveries to the West German market were up 50 percent to 234,000 units, up 9 percent at 125,000 units to the large-volume European market and up 50 percent to 98,000 units in the United States.

For Sale Of Bonds

Avalanche-Journal Staff
The City of Lubbock can afford to sell $8.82 million in capital improvement bonds this summer, City Manager Larry Cunningham told the city council Thursday, but changes in the city's financial condition may mandate increased fees and/or service cutbacks next year.

Cunningham made the projections in a report to the council on a plan to finance the sale of $26.4 million in bonds approved by voters in 1977.

On the advice that the financing plan still was basically sound, council members tentatively set Aug. 21 as the sale date for the $8.82 million in bonds.

The most urgent project in the bond sale is a Southwest Lubbock reservoir and pump station which city officials say must be built before June 1980 or water city officials say.

Council members agreed to purchase land for the reservoir Thursday at the northwest corner of Memphis Avenue and 82nd Street at a cost of $28,363.

After a 167-tract, including the proposed reservoir site was purchased by owners of the South Plains Mall, possibly for a new shopping center, city officials had feared they would be unable to obtain their chosen site at 78th Street and Quaker Avenue.

The city offered mall owners $7,345 per acre for the seven-acre site last week, after the landowners paid an average of $12,274 per acre for the land.

However, the landowners countered with an offer of 5.2 acres at Memphis and 82nd at the same cost per acre offered by the city, and council members accepted

Public works division director Sam Wahl said the mall owners proposed another site because the original location 'didn't fit into their future plans." The owners made a "considerable concession on cost. he added. Cunningham told the council the 1977 plan to use increased water and sewer rates to pay for water and sewer bonds and to retire bonds for other projects from a declining debt service fund still could be used to finance the remaining bonds in the 1977 issue.

An 18-month delay of any bond sales because of litigation, however, will keep the city from completing about $5 million worth of the bond projects, Cunningham

The fire service requirements and

State legislators battling to make Texas the eleventh state to enjoy the benefits of the commercial production of gasohol won a major battle Thursday, but admitted a hard road still lies ahead.

Three Senate bills paving the way for the construction of gasohol plants and production of the hybrid fuel sailed through the Senate Thursday but still face approval by a budget-conscious

House of Representatives. The three bills, all sponsored by Bob Price of Pampa, met "literally no opposition whatsoever" in the Senate, according to Margaret Spearman, Price's legislative assistant. Price's legislation exempts gasohol from the five cent state motor fuels tax; too high. "You know this House, I don't know if authorizes five grants of up to $4 million each for the construction of grain alcohol they'll go for a bill that costs this much,' plants; and authorizes the state to spend said Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale, who $20 million to build a pilot gasohol plant. has agreed to carry Price's bills through Kubiak and Rep. Bill Keese of Somerville have three similar gasohol bills un-der consideration in the House. Keese's bill, which mirrors Price's fuels tax exemption bill, appears safe, but Kubiak admittedly is worried about his legislation — especially a bill which would legalize the production of beverage quality alcohol in the state.

That bill has become the target of an intense lobbying effort from the state's liquor interests, who strongly oppose any change in Texas alcohol laws.

"We're not trying to disrupt the liquor people," Keese said. "But we need to be able to make top quality alcohol here to attract the major companies to build plants. We already have a law which for-bids the sale of alcohol here; that should protect the liquor people."

Keese was referring to a bid by Midwest Solvents to construct a major gaso-hol plant in the Rio Grande Valley if gasohol becomes legal in Texas. Without the option to make beverage-quality alco-hol and ship it out of state, though, the company feels it might not be able to risk the $20 million investment it feels it would have to make.

Kubiak's other bill also establishes a $20 million fund for the construction of individual gasohol facilities, but his dif-fers from Price's in that Kubiak's offers the money as loans rather than grants. Kubiak last week was successful in ap propriating $240,000 for a pilot gasohol plant near Thrall. Should the gasohol bills become law, other plants would be constructed across the state, with one most likely to be located in Din mitt.

All three House bills are out of committee, and should see hearing dates set for

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Stan. who complained a lot in restaurants, may have gone overboard but he had the right idea. He had a habit of sending back food that was either overcooked, cold, smelled "funny" or wasn't what he ordered. And if the service was poor he left no tip and complained to the management.

Stan also carried a little battery operated fan to blow smoke back into the faces of people who smoked while he was eat-

With the prices one has to pay in restaurants today, we should demand top quality food and first-class service. It is our willingness to accept mediocrity that makes for sloppy service, bad food and shoddy merchandise in general. As for Stan's little fan, he should be

If you're big on "big" breakfasts, it's disheartening to know that most of the menu is off-limits to anyone on almost any kind of diet, whether it's low-calorie, low-cholesterol, low-sugar or low-fat. At Wit's

By ERMA BOMBECK

A magazine recently surveyed a group of teenage girls in which 80 percent of them said that a pleasing personality and a sense of humor were the prime consideration in accepting a first date. Oh sure, and I'll bet the boys said the same thing. They always do. Being touted for a blind date by reassuring the blindee "she has a wonderful personality" is like being named Miss Congeniality in the Pillsbury Bake-off. It's a kiss-off. Who cares?

I'm no dummy. When I was in school I saw boys date girls with waists bigger than their IQs. I sat next to a girl once who had the personality of a leftover. but she was definitely assembled at the factory.

She took the History of Russia course only because the class was at 9:30 a.m. and she got the morning sun on the right side of her body. (This worked out perfectly with The Wit and Humor of Ho Chi Minh, which she took because it had a window with a western exposure so that she could tan the left side of her body.)

She had a date when she had her teeth

I pegged her as one of the few who would never diagram a sentence in her lifetime, but would somehow overcome this handicap.

Frankly, a pleasing personality and a good sense of humor bears too great a stigma to ever overcome. Mothers used to say that when they were trying to palm off a girl who breathed through her mouth and had a nice tooth.

Or when they were trying to set up a boy who raised earthworms and had a collection of Barbie dolls in his room.

In all the years I was in the dating marketplace, not once did I hear a boy or girl say. "Wow! Would you get a load of that pleasing personality and check out that sense of humor."

It is commonplace to find hands where declarer needs to count distribution to produce the winning play. But it is just as important, and it occurs just as frequently, to count on defense. By taking time out to count the hand at a critical stage, West was able to come up with a thoughtful play to defeat South's spade slam.

The bidding is recorded as it actually took place, and does not have our stamp of approval. We prefer a two no trump opening with the South hand. The danger with opening one spade on such a strong hand is that partner might not be able to respond at such a high level, with the result that a game could be missed. North's jump to four spades is certainly open to question-despite his fivecard trump support and singleton, two spades is am-ple on a hand that contains

Had West won the ace of clubs, the slam would have made-a club continuation would have been into declarer's 10-8, and a diamond would allow declarer to ruff in one hand while discarding a club from the other. Fortunately, West took time out to count the

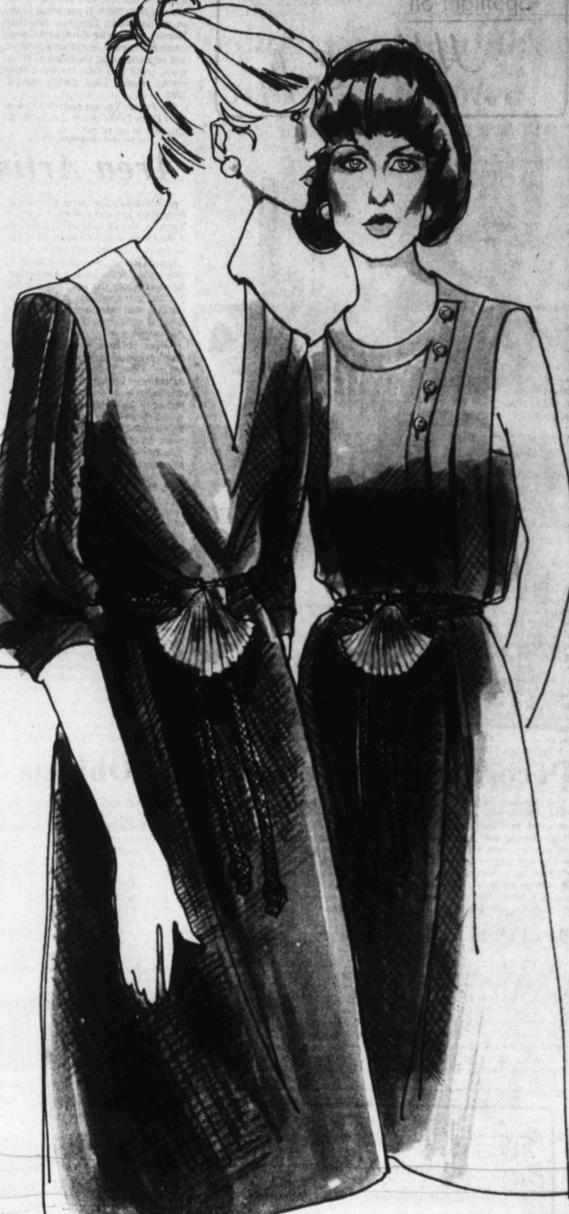

Declarer is known to have four spades, three hearts and two diamonds (if he had another diamond, he would have ruffed it before playing on clubs). Therefore, he had started with four clubs and, despite his discard, he still had two more clubs; so there was no need to rush in with the ace. Accordingly, West allowed declarer's king to win the trick. Now there was nothing declarer could do to prevent the loss of two club tricks. A fine defensive play was well rewarded.

Area Artists To Exhibit Works In Kerrville

KERRVILLE (Special) - When the official state arts and crafts fair opens in Kerrville, May 26, local artists will exhibit their work along with about 225 of Texas' finest artists and craftspeople.

Stinson Behlen, who crafts musical instruments, Charles Luck, a woodworker, Ann and Woody Orr, jewelers, and Star Shelton, who specializes in hand woven clothing, won their places from a field of over 600 applications in the statewide, juried competition.

Behlen, of Slaton, has handcrafted the finest dulcimers mandolins, folk fiddles, banjos, harps, Indian mouth bows and Aztec drums for over 20 years. He reports that he has made over 3800 dulcimers and earned 12 triple blue ribbons and has returned to the Texas Arts and Crafts Fair by automatic invitation for the past eight years. All of Behlen's dulcimers are built from fine woods to give them that certain haunting tone.

Charles Luck has made woodworking his hobby for about 15 years, and has specialized in Mesquite wood for over a year. He is employed as Terminal Manager for Benton Oil Company in Lubbock and has two sons. His wife, Talluah, is employed at the First State Bank in Shal-

Jewelry making i a hobby from Ann and Woody who are both employed at Texas Tech University. Planning to travel to craft shows all over the country after retirement, the Orrs have exhibited their work as far away as Natchez, Miss.

Largely a self-taught craftsperson, Star Shelton has been weaving for three years. She is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a degree in clothing and textiles who now specialize in garments of natural fibers such as wool, cotton and silk. A winner of the first place award in the tex-tile division at North Texas Regional Fair, Star has studied with internationally known craftspeople, and attended workshops in Colorado. The dates for the Kerrville fair are May 26, 27 and 28, and the event will be held on the tree-shaded Schreiner campus. All

Senate Panel Approves Revised Tax Measure

AUSTIN (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee has approved a tax relief bill without even knowing how much it costs.

The committee bill would revise the House version by eliminating proposed homestead exemptions for elderly and disabled Texans who have incomes exceeding $10,000 a year. It was approved 9-

Both proposals implement the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment, which voters adopted overwhelmingly, with the elderly promoting its passage in hopes of getting tax breaks.

Sen. Tom Creighton described the 1978 proposal as the "worst bill we've ever passed" and said if the amendment is carried out by the Legislature "it will bankrupt every political subdivision in Texas.

The Senate committee bill does not contain the $430 million in state money that the House had provided to reimburse school districts for revenue losses resulting from mandatory property tax Sen. Grant Jones, committee chairman, said reimbursement would be covered in a separate school finance bill being written by the Senate Education Committee. Jones, D-Abilene, admitted he had for-gotten to ask the Legislative Budget Board to estimate how much the Senate bill would cost the state. "In all honesty, I flat forgot to get a fis-cal note," said Jones. He promised one would be made available before the full Senate votes on the bill.

R.H. Gibbons, a Fort Worth-area resident representing 500,000 elderly Texans, urged the committee not to base eligibility for the $10,000 homestead exemption on income.

The 1978 amendment automatically exempts $5,000 of the market value of each owner-occupied house in Texas from school district property taxes.

AUSTIN (AP) - Chances of passing a compulsory auto insurance law in Texas received a setback Thursday from a simple little windshield sticker.

Over objections of Rep. Gene Green, the House added an amendment, 67-62, that might strengthen insurance company arguments against the bill and raise opposition from state police.

Green, D-Houston, sponsor of the compulsory insurance bill (HB22), then decided to delay any further debate until next

The amendment would require insurance companies to issue each policyhold-er a windshield sticker showing his or her car is covered by liability insurance.

AUSTIN (AP) - The Senate Finance Committee completed work Thursday on a state budget for 1980-81 which exceeds a House proposal by $600 million.

Chairman Grant Jones estimated the Senate bill totals $20.9 billion. If adopted, the spending total would exceed the House's $20.3 billion proposal — a budget that Governor Bill Clements termed "totally unacceptable.

Clements told a news conference Thursday the House bill was unacceptable because of its dollar total and some appropriations

Residents of six southeast Texas counties swamped by floods are eligible for federal assistance after President Carter declared Texas a major disaster area for the second week in a row.

Only man can create with his hands, making beautiful things from the substances that come from God's earth. Only man can truly reason. Only man can run the full gamut of feeling from joy and victory to despair and defeat.

We are complex creatures, because we can create and reason and feel. Sometimes it seems virtually impossible to bring our faculties into a sensible focus. Everything from unpaid bills to vital decisions affecting ourselves and our loved ones seems to be just a step ahead of us. We are eternally running to keep up, and often falling short.

No one ever said that we had to go it alone. The Church isn't a crutch but it is a sanctuary, a place where souls are healed. Have you been there lately?

To sell the remaining bonds, Cunningham recommended that the council: -Approve a tentative bond marketing schedule for 1979 and proceed with the sale of $8.8 million in bonds in July or August 1979. - Update cost estimates for all 1977 bond projects.

- Review all 1977 bond projects as soon as possible and set priorities of projects and determine which of the projects the city is not going to be able to finance. Begin validation procedures for bonds to be sold in 1980 immediately after the 1979 sale. - Review the financial plan for bond financing annually and establish an an--nual capital improvements budget.

Cunningham also suggested users of city services begin to pay for those services so the city recovers the cost of providing the service The service charges need to be changed

Without examining next year's budget requests, Cunningham said the city would have nearly $1.5 million less revenue than expenses next year.

"That could mean we might have to look at some type of service changes," he said, but added "it's not definite and it's too early to tell until we get into the details of budget requests.

"It's certainly a possibility we might have to reduce services," he said.

However, Cunningham said increased fees might cover $600,000 of that deficit and said he was examining partially paying some salary costs out of federal and state grants.

HOUSTON (AP) — Ignacio Cuevas will building and conducted the longest siege return to the only home he has known for in U.S. penal history, 11 days. the past four years - death row in the Texas state prison system.

Cuevas, a Mexican-American described by his defense attorney as "stupid," was sentenced to die by injection for the second time in a verdict returned by an All-

Anglo, six-man, six-woman jury.

There still is an appeal route to take and defense attorney Will Gray said he would use it.

For Cuevas, it was back to the 5-footby-8-foot-by-9-foot cell on death row. His wife and four young children, ages nine to 14, were in the courtroom. They left about 30 minutes after the verdict was announced. Mrs. Cuevas lowered her head, and there were tears in her eyes. The childen didn't seem to understand what had happened to their father, a man they have not really known since his 1970 conviction for murder in Pecos.

Cuevas was convicted in 1975 of causing the death of a hostage during a prison uprising in the late summer of 1974. He was sentenced to death

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, citing a judicial error, ordered a new trial This verdict of guilty and the decision by the jury for a death penalty were the same as in 1975. In Texas state courts, the jury has the final say on punishment.

Gunfire erupted. Carrasco and Dominguez were shot to death. Two hostages, prison librarians Julia Standley and Elizabeth Beseda, were killed. Father Joseph O'Brien, the Roman Catholic priest at the prison, was wounded.

Cuevas was accused of causing the death of Mrs. Standley, although evidence showed she was killed by bullets from the gun of Dominguez. Other evidence presented during the trial indicated Cuevas had fired at Father O'Brien.

Defense lawyer Gray left the courthouse by a back exit and did not talk to Mark Ward, Walker County district attorney and lead prosecutor, said, "I am glad it's over and I'm glad justice has been served.'

Ed Lawrence, a 31-year-old photographer and jury member, said, "It was a tough decision, but following the evidence there was nothing else we could do. We took about a dozen ballots. On the first ballot it was seven "yes" (for the death penalty) and five against. After we slept on it last night and came back today and reread the judge's charge, the vote was unanimous

That is the PQ's idea for making Quebec an inde-pendent nation while retaining free trade and other economic ties with the English-speaking provinces of Canada.

If the Liberal Party government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is re-elected in the national election May 22, the showdown hand may come-sooner. For Trudeau, although himself a French Canadian and a native of Montreal, is staunchly anti-separatist.

This bustling, cosmopolitan city on the St. Lawrence is the focus of the French-English confrontation in Quebec. Although 80 percent of the province's 6 million people are French-speaking, well over a third of the 2.2 million Montrealers are English-speaking.

The PQ plans to ask in the referendum for a mandate to negotiate sovereignty-

Trudeau flatly rules out negotiation. And after some initial waffling, his opponent in the current national election campaign, Progressive Conservative leader Joe Clark, also declared he would not negotiate the breakup of Canada.

Unterberg, one of 15 members of the PQ's executive council, says if the rest of Canada rejects sovereignty-association, "we would say, 'OK, we'll go it alone.' We would go back to the people and say, 'We are going to become independent on our own.'

But Unterberg insists Canada will realize it must agree to an economic union with a sovereign Quebec. Industry-heavy Ontario, whose factories sell much of their goods in Quebec, "has far more to lose than we do," he claimed.

Economists dispute this. "Quebec is the Canadian province that most needs the Canadian market," said Caroline Pestieau of the non-partisan C.D. Howe Research Institute in Montreal. "It's politically unthinkable" for Quebec to go it alone, she said.

All agree, however, that a complete break would cost both Quebec and Cana-

Many PQ members would like to see the Progressive Conservatives, who have virtually no support in French Canada, win the election. They believe this would sharpen the contrast between the two Canadas and speed the break-up process. But Claude E. Forget of the Quebec Liberal Party, the main anti-separatist. faction in the province, contends that Clark might be more "flexible" than the French-Canadian Trudeau because he could speak more confidently for English provincial power. If Trudeau is victorious May 22, he is expected to force a quick confrontation with the PQ by staging his own nationwide referendum on the Quebec question or by pushing through constitutional re-

Canada. In addition, Clark is a believer in linguistic and cultural differences be-tween the English and French Canadians and the longtime contention of French Canadians that the English-speakers who dominate Canadian business and industry

Academic Track Meets Help Bolster Migrant Kids' Self-Confidence

ABILENE (UPI) - Primary school education offers most children the continuity of day-to-day learning, but for the mi-grant worker's child, education is almost random, with large gaps as families change work sites.

Last year Carol Tucker, a specialist in migrant educational programs, devised a sort of academic-track meet to reward migrant children for academic and athletic improvement. In theory, she said, the meets were designed to bolster flagging self-confidence exhibited by some of the children, who as a matter of course are forced to compete with pupils learning under optimum conditions.

Mrs. Tucker, who holds a master's degree in education from Abilene Christian University, devised the Migrant Competitive Events Meet, a competition that pits migrants against migrants in basic skills

In its second year, she expects as many as 600 migrant student participants. The competition is open to 4-year-olds through eighth graders.

During April, students from 27 school districts have been participating in the meets staged on alternate Saturdays. The winners at district meets will advance to a regional contest scheduled May 5 on the ACU campus.

Already, Mrs. Tucker said, migrant children seem more inspired by the

Baby Gorilla Survives Difficulties

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) - For a 4-monthold gorilla, Murphy probably feels like he's gone through a lifetime of medical

"This little guy nearly died on us four or five times," Henry Doorly Zoo Director Lee Simmons says.

"We named him Murphy after Murphy's Law, because absolutely everything that could have gone wrong with him did, and he toughed it out and survived. Now, he's finally in gear.

We did a whole lot of things that have never been done with gorillas before. We tried four different experimental diets, and he was over 6-weeks-old before we finally got him back to birth weight."

Pumps kept Murphy's blood flowing and gave him basic nutrients, but his stomach and intestinal trouble prevented him from eating

From a birth weight of 4 pounds, 11 ounces, he dropped to 3 pounds, 9 ounces from loss of water.

Murphy then contracted pneumonia and doctors discovered a heart murmur. a condition in which one of the valves fails to close completely as the heart

The gorilla was taken to Childrens Memorial Hospital and pediatricians specilizing in heart and digestive surgery were called in.

During some of his illnesses, Murphy was kept in the home of zoo er Madeline Martinez. That too may have saved his life.

A fire swept through the zoo's nursery Jan. 13, Murphy's sister, Tara, was killed as well as a South American cat and sev-

Simmons said Murphy has been moved to the zoo's temporary nursery for public display.
"He's rough, tough and independent, and he loves a crowd," Simmons said. "He's just like his old man." Murphy, born last December, is the son of Casey the gorilla. "Because we've put in so much time and effort and emotion," Simmons said, 'he's become rather special to us. 'He's our first little male gorilla and he acts like it," Simmons said. "He's the macho type.

USS Dallas Joins Fleet

AUSTIN (AP) - Rita Clements will crack a bottle of Texas champagne on the bow of the USS Dallas Saturday to christen it as the Navy's latest nuclear attack

The ceremony will take place at Groton, Conn. Texas Gov. Bill Clements, former Deputy Secretary of Navy, will be the principal speaker Dallas Mayor Robert S. Folsom will bring greetings from Dallas citizens. The champagne used by Mrs. Clements, the ship's sponsor, was provided by the La Buena Vida Vineyard in Springtown, Parker County. The USS Dallas is the 13th submarine of its class. The keel was laid Oct. 9, 1976. Commissioning and delivery of the vessel to the fleet is scheduled for the summer

Screening Methods Foil Hijackings

WASHINGTON (AP) - As many as 75 airplane hijackings may have been foiled in the United States in the last five years because of tight passenger screening methods, Transportation Secretary Brock Adams says, Adams told visiting foreign airport security officials recently that during the five-year period there were 26 hijacking attempts, but none involved real firearms or explosives. He called on the officials to adopt more stringent security standards at their airports, saying at least 28 of the 42 foreign hijackings in 1977 and 1978 were caused by weaknesses in screening

EPA ESTIMATED MPG

ESTIMATE 24 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the "estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your-actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy, the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate."

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

Stock Mart Dips Again To 856.90

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market retreated again today, faced with concern over a sudden surge in the money supply.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 6.49 on Thursday, lost another 4.07 to 856.90 by noontime today.

Losers outdistanced gainers by about a 5-2 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. Federal Reserve statistics issued

The NYSE's composite index dropped .22 to 57.30, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was down .06 at 183.37. Volume on the Big Board came to 13.38 million shares at noon-

Critics Want Electronic Price System

AMARILLO (AP)- Critics of the "Yellow Sheet," a daily report of prices widely used by the meat industry, are calling for an electronic pricing system to spur competition and lower prices.

"Why not simply have a computer system where all transactions over some minimum weight are required to be transacted through a computer so that anybody - the government, the industry, consumers or any other interested party can see what is going on?" George Shultz said Thursday, the first day of Department of Agriculture hearings here. "If beef prices begin to skyrocket, at least consumers will have some satisfaction in being able to look at the computer and see why prices are skyrocketing," said Shultz, a consumer advocate representing the California Public Interest Research Group. "No longer would transactions be hidden from the public as they currently are today and competition in pricing would be mandated," he said. The department's Meat Pricing Task Force is holding two days of hearings here to help determine if changes are needed in the pricing system. The group met earlier in the week in Omaha, Neb., and meets again next month in Wash-

The Yellow Sheet is published by a private company in Chicago and lists meat prices in the previous day's transactions. Cattlemen and processors use it to determine the going rate for meat, but Shultz called it the most "archaic, ridiculous pricing system in the existence of the United States today." Clement Ward, an agricultual economist at Oklaholma State University, said that even though there may be flaws in the current reporting service, there are no data to indicate that an electronic reporting system would work in a more efficient manner than the current system. "There is little need for impulsive change," said Ward, noting that electronic reporting "has its possibilities." "But at this time, such a system is inadequate and long-term research into this and other possibilities must take place before the present system is changed if a change is required," he said. He said an electronic system replacing the Yellow Sheet would 'encourage competition."

Lawyers Get 10 Days To File Brief

Attorneys for Jim Gordon, charged with the Christmas Eve 1977 shooting death of William Drew Young. Thursday were given 10 days to file a brief citing arguments for a change of venue in Gordon's murder trial.

District Judge Thomas L. Clinton agreed to take the venue change request under advisement after listening to testimony from 13 defense witnesses and five prosecution witnesses during a day-long hearing Thursday in his 99th District Court.

The criminal district attorney's office has 10 days after the defense brief is filed in which to file a brief against moving Gordon's trial.

Gordon's trial.

Gordon, 43, is one of three men charged with Young's death. The former nightchub owner was a key witness in trials of the other two defendants, and his attorney, Gerald Anderson, told the judge that the amount of publicity and details of Young's death brought out in those trials will prevent empanelment of an impartial jury.

Among witnesses called by Anderson Thursday were representatives of Lubbock's three television stations, The Avalanche-Journal, radio stations KRLD,

Jim Bob Darnell, first assistant district attorney, opened the state's case against the change of venue at 3 p.m., calling to the stand two men who had served on the jury during the trial of Kenneth Wayne Herndon, who also was charged with killing Young

Other prosecution witnesses were Jack Bryant and Lee Rice Jr., investigators for the district attorney's office, and Jess Foster, deputy in charge of the central jury room.

Boise Cascade Ignores 1972 Financial Skeleton

By STEVEN K. WAGNER
BOISE, Idaho (UPI) — A modest office

tucked away on Boise Cascade's fifth floor curiously symbolizes a company attitude.

In that office, the firm's annual report library conspicuously lacks a 1972 edition.

"I can't believe it," said one communications employee after a search through the department turned up only one 1972 annual report, "This is the only one in the whole building."

Another was even more blunt.

"Why do you want to know about 1972?
he said. "That's a skeleton in our closet that we'd just as soon forget."

It is hard to forget such a skeleton, especially at one of the nation's largest wood products firms.

It was in 1972 Boise Cascade came "very near liquidating." according to Robert V. Hansberger, who built the firm after its formation through merger in 1957 and also watched it nearly collapse 15 years later.

So the attitude at Boise Cascade — and at other corporations which underwent similar problems — is no mystery. It is designed to keep the focus on the company's present.

To put that present into perspective, a the National Geographic.

look at the years before and after 1972 helpful.

From 1968 to 1969, Boise Cascade's net income climbed 37 percent — from $61.3 million to more than $84 million. Then the slide began.

Earnings dropped to $36.6 million in 1970 and fell into the red in 1971 when the company lost $85.2 million.

Then came 1972, when the company's net loss peaked at $170.6 million.

After that, a turnaround began, but without Hansberger, who resigned as board chairman. John B. Fery was named chief operating officer.

Though Boise Cascade is reluctant to talk about 1972, Hansberger is not.

"The problem was basically very simple," he said. "The company had been pursuing land development nationally, but most significantly we found ourselves heavily committed in California.

MANY-FACETED TAIL

A kangaroo's heavy tail bends at the end like a boomerang and acts as a counter-balance when the animal is on the run. While the kangaroo is at a standstill, its tail serves as a sort of stool, according to

"It came upon the company so suddenly. California is a state in the leading edge of change. The environmental issue probably began in California in a more rapid way than anywhere else. They took the posture, as far as land development was concerned, that anything that began to alter the land was bad."

The environmentalists won and the company took a $200 million writeoff, withdrawing from businesses not related to paper and building materials.

"If there was any surprise it was simply that things could develop as rapidly as they did," Hansberger said.
In 1973 earnings rose to $141.8 million.

dipped to $105 million in 1974, fell off again to about $64 million in 1975, then climbed to $100.8 million in 1976, $115.6 million in 1977, and $132.8 million in

"Dance with the girl that brung you," as the saying goes, and that is what Boise Cascade did: It concentrated on what it knew best — wood products — and climbed back into the black.

That made Fery a prophet.

"Boise Cascade is financially strong and well positioned for profitability and planned growth," he said in the now-scarce 1972 annual report. That growth resulted in sales of $2.6 billion in 1978.

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff It took Curtis Conaway no less than three days of serious soul searching before reaching a decision where or not to run the mile or the half mile in the District 4-AAAA meet.

No blood beaded on his forehead, but

He eventually opted for the 880-yard dash, figuring his chances of winning a state title in that event were a whole lot better than they were in the mile.

But first to even get to Austin, the Monterey senior must either win or place second in the Region I-AAAA meet which gets underway at the Texas Tech track, today. The finals are set for 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Also getting underway at the Tech field is the Region 1-AA meet.

In Levelland, the Region I-B meet starts today and runs through Saturday, while at Odessa, the A and AAA encounter is set. No prelims will be run in the AAA competition since only eight tracksters qualified for the meet. The finals are set in Odessa for 2 p.m. Saturday. Conaway admits that the competition in the 880 at the region meet "is going to be a heck of a lot tougher than in the mile". And, believe it or not, that's the primary reason he chose run it, instead of

"I could have won the mile (at region) without any problem at all," said the Monterey senior who won the regional mile title last year. "But because of the lack of competition I'd have gotten in it (the mile), I chose the half instead.

"I figured it will take a 4:08 to win in Austin and since I haven't been below a 4:15 this year I knew it would be tough to win down there. I've got a lot better chance in the half ... a lot better."

Perhaps the top miler ever to come off the South Plains. Conaway is no slouch in the 880, either. He is currently ranked second behind Sergio Oaxaca of El Paso Ysleta. Conaway has a best of 1:53.2, while Oaxaca leads the entire state with a

The two are expected to battle for the top two places during Saturday's finals.

"It should be a heck of a race," said Conaway, who has run the half in competition only twice this year (once when posted the 1:53.2 at the Hobbs Relays and the other at last week's district meet). "I might get beat, but there's no way I won't be going to Austin."

Oaxaca and Conaway won't be the only top tracksters competing on Tech's allweather surface. In all, no less than 20 cinderman competing here are currently listed among the state's best.

Rangers Surprise Cross-Town Rivals

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) - As a rule, the New York Islanders are not excuse makers. When they play badly, they ad-

They were doing a lot of admitting and a little excuse making - Thursday night after the New York Rangers outchecked, outhustled and outscored them 4-1 in the opener of their National Hockey League semifinal playoff series.

"We haven't played that many games since the season was over," said Islanders Coach Al Arbour, noting his team had a week off after winning the Patrick Division title, then breezed to a four-game sweep of the Chicago Black Hawks in the Stanley Cup quarter-finals.

"We weren't smart with the puck. We weren't smart in anything we did. Our discipline wasn't good out there, and thank God it's a seven-game series, so we can get back to playing the type of hockey we know we can play," said Arbour.

The Rangers' type of hockey has earned them seven victories in eight playoff games - five of them in a row. And though they finished 25 points behind the Islanders in the standings this season, there was no question who was superior in Game 1.

The Rangers fell behind on Bryan Trottier's goal at 10:41, but got goals 2:56 apart from Don Murdoch and Ed Johnstone to take the lead for good before the first period ended. They stifled the attack that gave the Islanders a league-high 358 goals in the regular season, and held right wing Mike Bossy - who had 69 of those goals and five more against Chicago without a shot on goalie John Davidson.

'Sometimes, if you're hot and get a lot of shots, it doesn't mean you're doing anything well. You just happen to be there. You're free," said Rangers Coach Fred Shero. "In other games, you just have to work like crazy and pray you get a shot away

The Islanders managed just 22 shots on Davidson, who has given up just 11 goals in eight postseason encounters this

"Maybe we're starting to make people believe in us," said Davidson. "I know we believe in ourselves. We can't help it, the way we've been playing Maybe they took the Islanders by sur-prise. Maybe the Islanders were rusty after just four games in 17 days. Whatever the reason, the Islanders - the best team in the league in the regular season knew they had been soundly defeated.

"After the first 10 minutes, we didn't have four good scoring chances," said Islanders goalie Glenn Resch, who gave up second-period tallies to Ron Duguay and Bobby Sheehan. "Except for the first 10 minutes, they (the Rangers) thought they were playing Minnesota.

Philadelphia 76ers stayed alive in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

Both clubs were one loss away from elimination prior to Thursday night's games, but both postponed their summer vacations with lopsided victories in the Eastern Conference semifinals

Steve Hawes and Eddie Johnson scored 12 points apiece in the second half as the scrappy Hawks beat the defending champion Washington Bullets 104-86 to even their best-of-seven series at three victories apiece. The deciding game will be played Sunday in Landover, Md.

The umpires' strike has gone on long enough. Baseball is being hurt by a cheap image and by bad calls from well-meaning but not-quite-

The problem is not money. Baseball drew over 40 million people last year. A few teams are in financial trouble, but most are doing well. What the umpires are asking would cost each team about $20,-000 a year.

The umpires are getting the heat from owners who want to present a tough front for upcoming negotiations with the players' union. These negotiations could cost them plenty. Marvin Miller and his players' association are tipping the balance of power in the game and a lot of baseball people are understandably worried.

Fortunately, there is a solution that will permit the umpires to be treated better and will allow the owners to save face.

All the owners have to do is cut out the free food and beer in the press box and use that money to pay umpires' salaries and expenses. The food and drink should be there but the news people could pay as they go.

Some teams already have cut out free items to the media. Some newspapers are refusing to take free food and beer. The Boston Globe, for instance, sends a check to the Red Sox every year for food and drink its writers have consumed in the Fenway Park press

The Suns took a 3-1 lead in that series with a 108-94 victory at Kansas City Wednesday night, a game in which the Kings shot just 33 percent from the field. The winner of that series will take on the Seattle SuperSonics, who eliminated the Los Angeles Lakers 4-1 in the other West semifinal. If Phoenix wins tonight, that series would start on Sunday.

Atlanta went ahead to stay on a 12-foot jumper by Johnson that made it 35-33 midway through the second period. Hawes poured in 10 points during the third quarter and Johnson got 10 points in the final period as the Hawks pulled away from Washington.

Lubbock Christian Has Last Loop Road Series

FORT WORTH (Special)—Lubbock Christian College, riding a three-game winning streak, travels to Texas Wesleyan today to begin a pair of weekend

What's that, you say? A three-game winning streak?

That's right. It's the longest Chap streak of the month. April has not been at all kind to Larry Hays and his crew.

LCC, now 36-17 and 12-4 in Texas Athletic Conference play, has won only 11 games this month against nine losses, hardly a banner streak for a Chapar-

Still, they are ranked 10th in the national NAIA poll this week and they're No. 1 in District 8.

Last time TWC and LCC hooked up, it was in Lubbock, and the Chaps took it on the chin, losing three of four. But the Rams used an ineligible player, forcing them to forfeit the three wins and putting the Chaps three games in Hays will feel fortunate to come out of this weekend with that lead intact. He knows it's extremely possible that TWC will sweep the Chaps, as it did Midwestern last weekend on the road in Wichita Falls.

If that happens, and second-place Dallas Baptist sweeps MSU, it'll be goodbye first place for the Chaps.

To avoid that, Hays will probably pitch Gary Swann (1-0 and 0.00 ERA in conference) and Kevin Burke (2-0 and 4.14) today and Chris Cook (1-1 and 4.45) and John Ross (1-1 and 3.50) on Saturday.

Leading hitters for LCC are Tim Leslie with a .424 batting average, 61 RBIs and 15 homers. Following right behind is Steve Brigante, .329, 54 and 13. Richard Bowles is at .329 with 32 RBI and 27 stolen bases. He has only

The Raiders still have an outside - actually microscopic is a better word chance at landing a-berth in the SWC postseason tournament. It would be something of a historymaking event. Since the Horns have been playing in their new $3 millon, AstroTurfcovered Disch-Falk Field complex in 1975, they have never lost to the Raiders. Offensively the Raiders are led by Lar-

"Texas may have the best pitching staff in the nation, " said Tech mentor Kal Segrist. "There are guys down there that aren't playing that could be all-SWC candidates somewhere else."

400,000 Americans who went bicyling last year ended up at hospitals for treatment. Nearly as many baseball, football and basketball players suffered a similar fate, government statistics indicate.

Skatebard safety seemed to be improving, but direct comparisons with statistics of previous years may be misleading because of changes in the number of hospitals reporting to the counting systems and changes in what is included in some categories.

The government's National Electronic Injury Surveillance System is still preparing its annual analysis of injuries caused by various products and activities, but preliminary data indicate 446,878 Americans suffered injuries involving bicycles

To be counted, injuries must be severe enough to require hospital attention.

The system was notified of 493,234 injuries to bicyclists in 1977. But spokeswoman Nancy Johnston, noting the possible margin of error, cautioned against assuming the lower 1978 figure indicated an actual decline in injuries. She did say there appeared to be a sig-nificant decline in skateboard-related iniurles in 1978, though no exact comparison can be made. In 1978 skateboards were blamed for 87,093 injuries. In 1977 they had been counted in a category together with roller skates and scooters, but the total for that group was 226,666 injuries - about 42,000 ore than the 1978 total for the three.

Mrs. Johnston said the reason for the apparent decline in skateboard injuries "could be in usage, perhaps the fad has peaked, or maybe kids are more aware of skiing with 103,893. The year before, playground equip-ment had been associated with 150,311 in-

Call them the modern-day hitless wonders - Robin Yount, 1-for-29; Gorman Thomas, 0-for-24; Ben Oglivie, 1-for-31.

The three Milwaukee Musketeers broke their slumps with a vengeance Thursday night, collecting 12 hits in 25 atbats with four doubles, three homers and nine RBI as the Brewers snapped a fivegame losing streak by sweeping a 5-1, 7-5 double-header from the Detroit Tigers.

In a stroke of genius, Manager George Bamberger made Yount and Thomas the 1-2 hitters in the Brewers' batting order and it paid off. Yount broke his slump with a three-run sixth-inning double in the nightcap and doubled home another run in a three-run eighth. Thomas, who homered in each game, followed with a decisive two-run single.

Including the double-header, there were only eight games on Thursday's major league schedule and two of them the New York Yankees at Oakland and San Francisco at the New York Mets were rained out.

In American League action, the Boston Red Sox blanked the Seattle Mariners 2-0, the Baltimore Orioles downed the California Angels 4-2 and the Kansas City Royals nipped the Cleveland Indians 5-4.

In the only National League contest, the Houston Astros defeated Chicago 6-2, ending the Cubs' five-game winning

The Brewers won their first game from Detroit as Cecil Cooper homered and Charlie Moore lined a two-run single in a three-run seventh-inning.

They loaded the bases in the sixth inning of the nightcap on Oglivie's fourth straight hit, a walk and a checked-swing pinch single by Larry Hisle. Yount then doubled to score all three runners and give the Brewers a 4-3 lead. A walk and an error preceded Yount's RBI double in the eighth and Thomas followed with a

"Robin can steal a base, so I'm going to see more fast balls," said Thomas, who was elevated from eighth to second in the batting order and raised his batting average from .119 to .216 "But a lot of it is luck, like getting a 10 in Black Jack when you're trying for a 4," he said. "You can see the stitches and see the signature of the league president on the ball, but you still won't hit it if your luck's not there. I had been seeing the stitches fine for 24 days, but nothing was falling in." Red Sox 2, Mariners 0

Tom, Ron and Earned Runs

Tom Seaver and Ron Guidry must rank as the most dependable pitchers in baseball, but each will have a difficult time matching their 1978 performances. 'Tom Terrific' had a woeful start, but when he put it together no one was better. 'Bayou Ron' sparkled at the start, wavered a little at mid-season, then finished with the stretch drive of a Secretariat.

To some people, the mystery might provoke no more comment than "It's about time." But others cannot dismiss the evidence so lightly.

Robinson comments that "what people do with their time is of ultimate concern to every society." Whether time is used wisely or unwisely, he observes, "bears heavily on the quality of societal life."

The statement is true, of course, whether one speaks of politics or religion or foreign travel. But Ben Franklin, of practical bent, pointed to an area of very great interest. Time is money, he said.

For those who seek to make money from what appears to be a fundamental change of attitude, the first question being asked is: How can I profitably fill up that time? What product, program, book will do it?

The challenge is ubiquitous. It involves all the media, the leisure product manufacturers, the fast food restaurants, travel promoters. It concerns greengrocers.

does it mean? How did it happen? Robinson's main job was to record precisely how time was used: in meal cleanup, ironing, gardening, marketing, animal care, waiting in line, dressing the kids. Asked why it happened he offers on-

Rockslide Isolates Tourist Area In California

MALIBU, Calif. (AP) - No one in this crashed through their windshields. picturesque seaside community minds the small town intimacy forced on the area by a rockslide that has closed the main road from Los Angeles. But the isolation is another matter.

None of my employees can get in unless I go pick them up," said Judy Johnston, manager of a fast food hamburger restaurant that lost $10,000 in business last week. "I'm frustrated. And even when the road does open, will my emplovees still be around?

E. Q

Two weeks ago, the hillside overlooking the Pacific Coast Highway burst loose, sending tons of boulders and rocks down onto the road. The state Department of Transportation closed a 51/2-mile stretch of the route after four motorists suffered minor injuries from rocks that

Most of that road was later reopened. but a 500-foot stretch remains closed. Surrounded on one side by the 150-foot cliff and on the other by the sea, the road is impassable.

The debris has continued to trickle down the hillside, and geologists say they expect the hillside to tumble into the sea, destroying six $500,000 homes and an apartment building.

Shifting earth is not uncommon for the irregular terrain of Southern California and as the rocks tumbled from Pacific Coast Highway, two other areas were trembling.

In Rancho Palos Verdes, 30 miles south of Malibu and the scene of a major landslide that destroyed or damaged 150 homes in the 1950s, new cracks began opening last spring. And farther south, in Laguna Beach's Bluebird Canyon, two $150,000 homes fell victim to the same slow slide Monday that destroyed more than 30 homes last fall.

But those are residential neighborhoods and the problems - though serious - affect only the few residents in the Malibu, a popular tourist area known for its beaches, is cut off from the world just as the summer season is getting underway. Businesses along Pacific Coast Highway are devastated - customers are down 95 percent at some restaurants, with losses estimated at between $10,000 to $25,000 per week. One seafood spot had more than 50 reservations for Easter Sunday; all were cancelled.

The residents, many of whom work southeast of the slide area in Santa Monica, about 10 miles away, must either drive a circuitous mountain road 30 miles out of their way or walk past the slide area to the cars they left parked overnight on the other side.

"Every time we open our doors in the morning, it costs at least $1,500," said Connie Spiros, co-owner of the 680-capac-ity Sea Lion Restaurant, whose huge picture windows face the Pacific Ocean. "We employ 77 people, but Took around today — it's incredible."

The restaurant was empty. One of the two waitresses working, who said waiting lists are common at lunchtime, said only 13 checks were written by dinnertime the trations of his neighbors, the owner of Al-ice's Restaurant refuses to complain. He's scheduled a meeting of Malibu businessmen at his oceanside restaurant businessmen at his oceanside restaurant Monday and hopes to work out a plan for publicizing alternate routes to the area.

"Instead of yelling and screaming, we have to let the disaster work for us," said Yuro, who had 65 employees but is now back to "a momma-and-poppa" operation. "I want to get people to support the community and go out of their way to get here. And I want to make it interesting to here. And I want to make it interesting to

To encourage them, Yuro wants the community to sponsor "Malibucks" — providing $12 worth of food and fun for only $10 in Malibucks. He wants the creation of a carnival on weekends, with ma-gicians, mimes and other entertainers walking the streets and beaches.

"We're thinking of chartering buses to leave the (San Fernando) Valley or Hollywood to bring people to Alice's for brunch, and then they can go to the beach for the day," Yuro said. "We'll have a couple of social directors out there with them and then we'll drive them back in the afternoon. They won't have to worry about the traffic.

"I think it can bring the community together," he said.

Most residents, however, won't be sat-isfied with any solution that fails to open at least two lanes of the highway. It is a mostly two lane road, but is four lanes at the point that is closed.

For now, residents walk single file along a narrow pedestrian path left open when the transportation department built a chain-link fence around the slide

"Right now, there's a spirit of goodwill and it's almost fun," said Thomas McDonald, after he parked his car on the south side of the slide and began the 11/2mile walk home. "All the wives come, down early to drop their husbands off, and it's not an unpleasant walk in the

Judges Urged To Take Advantage Of Cameras

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Cameras are coming to Ohio's courtrooms, and judges should take full advantage of the situation, says one jurist. Among other things, he says, they can Rocker of Shaker Heights, buying time on airwayes costs a fortune. Rocker, editor of the Ohio Municipal Judges Association's monthly newsletter,

"The Chronicle," also suggests judges shave carefully before court sessions, brush up on oratory skills and use body language in certain cases.

Rocker offered the tongue-in-cheek advice in the April issue's lead item: "TV Municipal Court Judge Bonanza.

A one-year test of in-court photography was authorized to begin July 1 by the Ohio Supreme Court, which set some guidelines for the use of still and television cameras but left judges considerable

'It is recognized generally in the news business that first impressions carry the greatest impact," Rocker said.

"As a result, a sensational murder, robbery, rape or other type of important criminal case will attract the newspeople with their cameras to the municipal court first for the setting of bail and then preliminary hearing.

Rocker then offered judicial peers three "lessons."

-"The rule of the Supreme Court permits the judge to specify the place ... where the operators and equipment shall be positioned. It is suggested that before court opens, the judge glance through the camera's viewfinder and make sure that most of the action will include the center of the bench where you sit.

Finding Substitute For Carson Will Be Difficult For NBC

NEW YORK (UPI) - Johnny Carson - the man who at $3 million a year proved talk is not cheap — appears determined to leave the "Tonight" show. Who will succeed him?

That's the problem facing NBC, which currently is facing a good many problems. The timing is excruciating for the network, which will face its affiliates in Los Angeles May 13 with the Carson situation adding to the bad news of a disastrous prime-time year and a recent weakening of its evening news ratings.

It also could prove a disaster for the millions of Americans who apparently can't get to sleep at night without Carson That his replacement will be difficult is evident from the fact the current Carson show still gets high ratings on the three nights a week when Johnny is present.

audience. Variety, the show biz newspaper, says NBC has begun to line up a successor and may be fiddling with the idea of rotating hosts. Spin them around fast enough and maybe one will rise to the top of the Niel-

Among the names Variety proposes, based on past Nielsen performance as guest host, are Gabe Kaplan, Don Rickles, Bob Newhart, Steve Martin, David Brenner and David Letterman.

Other names that are bound to surface: NBC might do worse than pick Dick Cavett, who made a good try at the late night talk show game for ABC. Now he could be Carson, instead of competing against him. If Cavett can be lured away from public television, it might be for that old basic - money.

Sure to crop up in the rumor mill is Tom Snyder, the utility infielder of broadcast rumors, and Hugh Downs, the designated hitter for all talk shows. Would anybody bring back Jack Paar? Is and ready to switch to going to bed late? Then-there's McLean Stevenson, if his

But why let the professionals have all the fun? Insomniacs of America, arise you have nothing to lose but a good night's sleep. Raise your weary voices and help NBC pick your late night companion. The concerned Carson fans ought to write NBC and express their preferences for a replacement.

Meantime, back at the other networks, Carson's departure might signal a switch away from reruns and into an attempt at competitive programming. ABC in particular has experimented with documentaries in the 11:30 p.m. Eastern time slot - a handy place to tuck the low-rated news shows.

Don't worry about Johnny, though he'll probably wind up with a fat NBC contract calling for prime-time appear-

By VERNON SCOTT HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — "Art" was a four-letter word at American Internaal Pictures which produced 500 lowbudget films in 25 years and now finds it-self honored with a retrospective by New York's Museum of Modern Art. AIP board chairman Samuel Z. Arkoff, founder of the company, says, "I suppose time can dignify anything."

Arkoff is a delightfully humorous man who gave the world such epics as "How To Stuff A Wild Bikini," "I Was a Teen-Age Werewolf" and "Beach Blanket Bin-

Arkoff is a brilliant businessman and former lawyer who built AIP by following contemporary youth trends for a quarter-century and by inventing a special kind of double bill.

Pre-Arkoff, theater owners booked an "A" picture and a "B" (low budget) film on the same bill. They were usually of different genres - say, a comedy and an adventure drama - to lure moviegoers of different tastes to the theater.

Inevitably, producers of "A" films (i.e. major studios) took the lion's share of box-office receipts. Arkoff revolutionized the business by convincing exhibitors to book two AIP films of the same type be they horror, sci-fi, motorcyle epics or AIP's double dip eliminated "B" films per se in what Arkoff describes as "combination bookings." More importantly, AIP picked up all the producer's marbles at the turnstiles.

"We'd allocate so much money for our program of pictures per year. One year we ran short and had only $30,000 left for 'The Beast With A Million Eyes.' Corman brought it in on budget with non-union help on location in Palm Springs. The unions chased him all over the desert trying to close us down.

California Farm Workers Say Union Has Helped

SALINAS, CAlif. (UPI) - The women's faces are hidden behind pastel scarves worn for protection against the morning cold, afternoon sun and insecticide dust. Men wear hats with brightly colored bandanas trailing behind.

The morning mist combines with the field dirt settling on the huge leaves of the kneehigh cauliflower plants and turns to mud that trickles down the yellow rain pants of the pickers as they make their way down the neat rows.

Stooping to get at the groundlevel vegetables, a picker chops off a yellow head with a square-ended knife, trims off the excess leaves and places the head in a box on a tractorpulled trailer following him through the field.

That is the scene today. It could have been the same nine years ago, when Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union walked out of California fields in its first lettuce and cauliflower strike Despite the presence of the UFW, the rewards of this labor haven't changed

In 1970, lettuce and cauliflower cutters made $1.65 an hour. Chavez' union, seeking to better the figure, launched its strike against growers and later signed its first contract with them.

Today, lettuce workers make about $3.75 an hour. But it's still not enough, in the eyes of the union and in the bellies of its members.

Harvesters are only able to work full shifts during the peak harvest period, May through September in Salinas. Income thus remains on the low end of the organized labor scale - and frequently dips far below the official poverty line.

The UFW says the average income of their members is $6,000 a year or $700 below the federal government's poverty The union has called another strike this harvest season, its longest to date. The UFW today wants benefits as well as fatter paychecks and has turned down offers of $5.25 per hour because there wasn't enough in the overall package.

Violence flared during lettuce harvest this spring in the Imperial Valley between union pickets and field supervisors. One picket died in that round of confrontation. Now the trouble is moving north with the harvest.

Whatever the difficulties, Mary Rivera is an example of a UFW member who believes it's worth it.

Mrs. Rivera, 30, has worked in Salinas Valley sheds wrapping lettuce — among the most tedious harvest jobs — and knows what it was like before the UFW organized.

"You would show up at work," she said, "and if you had some complaint, they would say, 'Just go complain at your own house and take off." They give you your check. You're fired. We had a lot of that until the union came.'

Lotte Marcus, founder of an educational program to teach English to Salinas area farm workers, also has watched the UFW since it was formed in 1962.

"There has been some improvement but the struggle continues," she said. "I don't distinguish farm workers' problems from any other poverty problems in this country. The farm workers' struggle is connected to education, work, health, housing and immigration."

Initial organizing efforts by the UFW were hampered by the transitory nature of farm work. Migrant workers would often travel from harvest point to harvest point, following the farmers' needs

But more and more former migrant workers seem to be settling down.

They have settled in places like neobron Heights, the Spanish-speaking barrio of Salinas. Crowded houses with peeling paint line the streets. Children play in dirt yards. There are few green plants to remind residents they live in one of California's lushest agricultural

Some others live in Mexico and, after receiving work permits by the U.S. government, travel north to join the harvest in California, where their poverty-level pay is nevertheless far in excess of their earnings at home.

"Yes, it's true," said Mrs. Marcus, "there are fewer migrants. Housing is so costly they can't afford to move their families. It's not because life is better for them, not because they are participating more in society.

William Friedland, a professor of community studies and sociology at the nearby University of California's Santa Cruz campus, also said migrant workers are slowly disappearing. He said they comprise 15 to 30 percent of the total farm labor force

They're settling down in the Salinas area and using it as a base," said Friedland, considered an expert on California's farm workers. "Then they follow the crops but leave their families be-reflect all the migrants that work in California's vineyards, vegetable fields and orchards. "You have to remember that you have all kinds of crazy living arrangements for the migrants." he said. "They just don't New York City. live in those (stateoperated) places.

Some owners provide housing, some of the migrants rent and some even 'ditchbank' (live on the banks of irrigation ditches)," he said.

Employers argue that farm workers can be paid well if they stick with socalled contract work where pay is tied to production and they travel with the crops. Earnings can go as high as $12 an hour, company spokesmen have said.
"The point is." said Friedland. "you don't earn that kind of money on a yeararound basis. They are just citing the peak daily earnings during the harvest." Alfonso Salazar, 31, is married with two children. He has refused to cross picket lines in Salinas to work this sea-

"The strike will help." he said. "If it works for other unions, it will work for us." said Flavio Alejo, 35.

But not everyone in the work force follows the union lead. Enough non-union help was found in the Imperial Valley. 400 miles south, to bring in a harvest producing record profits for growers.

In Salinas, Carlos Perez, 43, also intended to keep working as a driver for Bruce Church Inc., one of the Salinas Companies hit by the strike. He said his family came first.

"But they threatened me." he said. "The strikers told me not to go against the strike. I stopped working.'

After 14 years as a crop irrigator and the last two years as a driver. Perez was

I have known all along no one else would do this kind of job for cotton, and I am just pleased we have an organization like Cotton Inc.

> that is doing this kind of thing for us." Cotton Inc. is the fiber company of American cotton producers. It is funded entirely by per bale assessments from

The producers also heard about agricultural research to help lower costs of production through improved insect, disease and weed control; through better varieties and cultural practices; and through systems that streamline the harvesting-handling-ginning process.

Cotton Inc. economists explained to the group how their research helps producers make planting and marketing decisions by gauging domestic and foreign demand for cotton and monitoring the cotton supply around the world.

Robert J. Boslet, vice president of market services, told the producers that through promotional work of Cotton Inc., more than half of America's consumers have come to recognize the Seal of Cotton as a mark of quality and com-

He also told them about the successful introduction of new all-cotton, easy care men's dress shirts by the nation's two largest shirt manufacturers.

In the research center labs, the cotton producers saw how Cotton Inc., develops and tests new predominantly cotton and all-cotton fabric. They viewed

Wolfgang Strahl, associate director for textile product research, showed the producers results from a new process called piece mercerization that is used to treat knit fabrics to give them more luster and strength. The new piece mercerization process used to determine cheaper ways for tex-makes it possible to use short staple cotton from West Texas to produce a highquality knit garment, he explained.

The new process drew favorable comments from several West Texas cotton producers. "I've been real impressed with the mercerized fabric, especially since they can use our quality of cotton in this process, yet make a superior fabric,' said Bobby Jackson of Levelland.

Ronnie Fenton of Lubbock commented, "It looks real good. It's very interesting. I believe we are getting our money's worth out of Cotton Inc."

Concluded Jerry Oswald of Abernathy, after the tour, "It's been very educational, very enlightening, and I am very impressed with the research going on

1978 crop. The first harvests of any consequence of the 1979 crop will take place in India

But the major start on gathering this year's winter wheat will begin about mid-May in Texas. Most wheat in the Northern Hemisphere will be harvested this summer, while the spring wheat crops haven't even been planted. So it is a little early to attempt a definite estimate on what the whole world will produce in the way of wheat this But from the information that is available, such as acreages of winter wheat now in existence, the International Wheat Council in London, which gathers information from around the globe, ventures that the world's crop may not be Reception To Honor as large in 1979 as it was in 1978.

The world's wheat crop in 1978, ac cording to the council's calculations, was a record 440.1 million metric tons or a little over 16 billion bushels. The crop in 1977 was estimated at 385.5 million metric tons or over 13 billion bushels while the 1976 crop was 417.5 million metric tons or about 15.4 billion bushels. The 1976 crop was the record until the 1978 harvest. There have been three big crops in a row.

As recently as January 17, the International Wheat Council had estimated the 1978 world wheat crop at 436 million metric tons but when the Australian harvest turned out to be much larger than previously predicted, the world total estimate was raised to the 440.1 million metric tons. This is interesting simply because it demonstrates that assessments on world production on wheat are changing all the time for one reason or another.

The acreages planted to winter wheat in the fall of 1978 apparently were smallthan in 1977 in the Soviet Union. Eastern Europe and China.

Contrary to reduced wheat acreages in Europe and Asia, the United States already has boosted winter wheat plantings by 7.8 percent and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's first report on spring plantings indicate a small increase in that area.

Ex-Gin Manager

ACUFF (Special) - A reception honoring Charlie Hunter, who was manager of the Acuff Coop Gin for 28 years, will be held Sunday from 2-4 p.m. at the Roosevelt Club House.

Hunter left the gin to become cotton gin specialist for Anderson and Bigham Sheet Metal.

A native of Navarro County, Hunter moved to Acuff in 1942 where he was a ginner for 11/2 years. After a term in the army, Hunter returned as a ginner for 1 year. He farmed for four years near Shallowater before returning to Acuff in 1951 as gin manager.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) - Wheat futures rose while soybean and corn futures were mixed today on the Chicago Board of Wheat prices gained on speculative buying, partly in response to government reports of damage to the winter wheat crop in the Soviet Union that triggered talk of potential new Soviet grain purchases, Planting of spring wheat also is running behind scheduled because of wet weather, traders said.

Nearby corn futures declined, partly on hedge-type selling by commercial interests apparently seeking to offset cash purchases of corn, which were reported heavier than usual overnight. The nearby May contract was under pressure from speculative liquidation before deliveries begin against it next month.
