Mrs. Jack Dillon Jr. gets that special hug reserved only for Mothers and a big promise to be good and helpful Sunday, Mother's Day, from her three-year-old daughter Dusti. Mothers and motherhood are honored annually on the second Sunday in May.

Love and respect for Mothers best expressed by their kids or those who think parenthood is a thankless job, the students at Wheatley Elementary School have news for them. Approximately 100 of the youngs-ters in all grades last week concentrated their efforts on literary and artistic creations expressing the importance of their mothers in their lives.

Students in kindergarten through sixth grades and in the academic adjustment classes either wrote essays or drew pictures illustrating the meaning of their mothers to them in honor of the forthcoming Mother's Day holiday.

Winners and runners-up at each grade level were chosen and will be honored, along with their mothers, at an all-school assembly and reception today.

THE PROJECT WAS THE brainchild of Wheatley counselor Margaret Randle

"I wanted to do it for several reasons — one of which was to give them some experience in expressing their feelings for their mother," Mrs. Randle said. "I was just driving along one day and it hit me that this (the essays) was it.' She said the students were instructed to express why they felt their mother should be recognized on the special holiday. Youngsters in kindergarten and academic adjustment classes drew their creations, those in first grade drew pictures and wrote several lines, and the students in the other grades all wrote es-

The results ranged from those that were brief and to-the-point, such as first grader Charles Thomas' four-line essay that read, "My mother helps me make cake. My mother helps me wen I get hrt (sic); to the three-page thesis written by sixth grader David Tong and published in his own writing below.

EXCERPTS FROM SOME OTHER winning essays include that from fifth grader Kristin Schultz:

"I think my mother is wonderful because she gives me everything I need. She cooks for me, she buys nice clothes for me, but most of all she loves me Whenever I get sick she is always by my side. She stays home all day with me to make sure I am all right. If she has plans she cancels them. Almost everything she does is for our family.

Fourth grader Christie Padgett wrote: My mother is special because she always understands what I'm saying. We can keep little secrets because she is very honest. She takes me places and takes me shopping. To me she is the best and most beautiful mother in the world."

JASON WILLIAMS, THE second grade winner, wrote:

"My mom is very nice. She just about never gets mad. She goes to a lot of places like O.A. and all kinds of places like that. She takes us out to eat when she has time. And buys us a lot of stuff. She takes us alot of places to." (sie). And from Dodie Johnston of the third grade:

'My mother have never won anything in our live if I win this I can say I won something. My mother is everything in the world to me and my mother's name is

The violence at the park, which also included a robbery, has convinced Lubbock police to beef up their enforcement

Antonio Gonzales, 14, of 408 Ave. F was beaten by seeral persons with a baseball bat during one of several of the altercations at the recreational area. The vouth was listed in serious condition at West Texas Hospital for several days, but was said to be improving by mid

The 9:15 p.m. fight also resulted in Victor M. Jiminez, 19, of 105 Ave. D being stabbed in the arm. He was treated and released at West Texas Hospital.

The state park Sunday also was the scene for an 8 p.m. fracas, with two men being shot, neither seriously. Ismaew Salgado Jr., 20, of 219 30th St. told police he and his cousin got into a fight with a 21-year-old Mexican-American man, who allegedly displayed a pistol and shot Salgado once in the arm:

The victim's cousin said he then shot Salgadb's assailant. Both shooting victims wound up at Health Sciences Center Hospital, where they were questioned by police.

Police were again called to the park about 10:30 p.m. Sunday, where Joe Wayne Jeffreys of 1324 62nd St. said he was robbed of $15 cash by two Mexican-American men.

Police Tuesday announced that the violence has prompted the assignment of police units to patrol only the park. The department did not disclose the number of police who have been assigned, or the times and locations of the patrols. "That would be counterproductive to our purposes," police information officer Bill Morgan said.

Big step back for education

FLOOR ACTION is expected soon in the Senate on implementing legislation for the proposed U.S. Department of Education amid legitimate fears that it ultimately will lead to complete federal domination of our

With or without this new federal department (with an estimated first-year budget of $14.5 billion and 15,600 new civil servants) Big Brother's role in education, already strong, can be expected to increase.

But establishment of a new bureaucracy to centralize these activities "will almost certainly speed the process along," warns a Heritage Foundation policy analyst.

"The proposed 13th department of the cabinet would be larger than the current departments of Commerce, HUD, Interior, Justice and State," writes Thomas R. Ascik.

"IF FEDERAL government precedence is any indication, then the department can be expected to grow in size and expenditures as soon as it is established," he says.

The proposal faces its first test in the House Government Operations Committee, where a close vote is predicted. The fact any consideration is being given to this insidious piece of Orwellian trash is frightening.

"The most persistent fear about the establishment of...such a department is that (it) would lead to a final federal takeover of education," Ascik said this week.

"The federal role in hiring and firing of teachers and other educational personnel, admission of students, and construction of buildings is already pervasive," he points out, "and can be expected to grow."

In recent years, control of educational institutions and educational policy has been moving ever to the center.

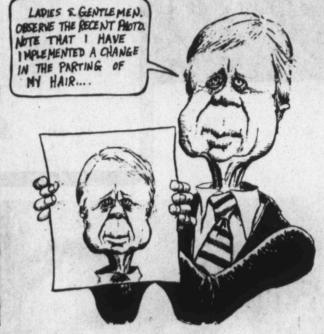

THE NUMBERS of agencies and school board members serving at the local level has declined since 1962, while the number of staff in state education departments has more than doubled over the same period.

Along with that, the number of local districts has declined from 17,995 in 1970 to 16,-376 in 1975, a drop of 9 percent. The increase in federal expenditures and regulations has risen dramatically, meanwhile, as school bond approvals have declined.

There has been little enthusiasm for development of new textbooks, curriculum and methods of instruction among local school districts and states in the past decade partially because costs were/are prohibitively high and new techniques often have proved unsuccessful. As a consequence, the federal government has taken this role for itself.

Samuel Johnson said the supreme end of education is expert discernment in all things; the power to tell the good from the bad, the genuine from the counterfeit. It doesn't take an expert to discern that Ascik's "13th department of the cabinet" is bad business.

washington update

By U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen

Alcohol and automobiles have never mixed in this country. And that's a Mixing alcohol and drivers is one thing. The combination is a deadly mixture. According to a National Safety Council study over 21,000 Americans died in auto accidents in which drinking was a factor during 1977.

But, we are just beginning to realize the benefits that could occur if we pour alcohol, not into our drivers, but into our gas tanks.

"Philippine Alcohol," made from sugar cane and pineapple pulp, was a popular automotive fuel in the Philippine Islands during the 1930s.

Newspaper ads of the day offered Studebaker trucks "built to use alcohol instead of gasoline, a saving to you of 45 percent on fuel." International Harvester ads said their alcohol powered trucks were "... absolutely dependable ... more economical ... free from carbon ..." with ower, and advertisements placed by McCormick Deering featured a bulldozer "especially designed to burn Philippine alcohol."

During World War II the dread Afrika Korps of German General Erwin Rommel included hundreds of tanks powered

Alcohol has never caught on as an automotive fuel in this country, with our vast, seemingly endless supplies of oil.
Gasoline has always been so much scheaper than alcohol that the alcohol couldn't compete economically, until

The 1973 Arab Oil Embargo brought home the point that our petroleum re-serves, as limitless as they once seemed, aren't going to last forever. And in re-cent months the price of gasoline at the pumps has continued to climb steadily. A wide search is under way for alter-

One alternative fuel source drawing increased interest is alcohol, either methanol, known as wood alcohol, or ethanol, known as grain alcohol.

For the short range, at any rate, methanol seems the better bet of the two. The best estimate is that it would cost at least $1 a gallon to produce ethanol from grain and if we took all our grain harvest and burned it as fuel it would fill only 25 percent of our automotive needs.

Even so, it would be foolish to dismiss ethanol as a potential alternative fuel source. It must be given strong consideration for use in localized areas, and, as the technology improves, the price will come down and the number of sources from which it can be obtained will multiply. Brazil, for example, has embarked on an ambitious $800 million project to extract ethanol from sugar cane and form a root crop that grows in all parts of the country. Gasoline blended with ethanol already is on sale in Brazil.

Methanol can be obtained from coal under existing technology. Dr. T.B. Reed of Massachusetts Institute of Technology has conducted some interesting and highly promising research into this.

States could supply 10 percent of its automotive needs from about 10 percent of our present coal production. As of 73 it would cost only 8.5 cents a gallon to convert coal to methanol, compared with a

Why the PATSYS?

Awards for Animal Actors

Human actors get "Oscars" for good performances in movies.

Dogs, cats, birds, horses and other animals get "PATSYS."

These awards are given each year by the American Humane Association.

The American Humane Association is a group that looks after the welfare of all animals, not just the animal stars.

In their Hollywood offices, they have three officers who go to movie and TV sets. They make certain that the animals are well treated.

Filmmakers are asked to invite an officer from the association to the set, and most of them do.

Having the officer there protects the animals. It also protects the human actors, who might get hurt if a "trained" animal is pushed too far by a director.

However, these officers are not on the set for all animal filming. A few film directors choose not to ask them. Also, there are many films made outside of the United States.

In the past, many animal actors have been very poorly treated. Some have been killed just to make a good show.

PATSY awards encourage the use of trained animals. These talented stars can do tricks without getting hurt or hurting someone else.

In September of last year, Mary Glover, a student at Texas Tech University, began an ambitious project as Girl Scout leader of Junior troop 402, composed of fourth, fifth and sixth-grade students at Jackson Elementary School.

Miss Glover says that she had been a Girl Scout while growing up and had always hoped to lead a troop some day. "Scouting used to be exciting," she said, but my experience this year has been

"I felt that working on the 'Cook' badge was important to both the girls and their families. Mrs. Herrington says that she tries to correlate practical tips on nutrition with illustrations. "That helps the girls to understand the need for good nutrition," she said. "However," she added, "I think the whole group 'comes alive' when we begin demonstrating how to prepare a dish. One of the requirements to win the cook badge is to choose recipes from three different countries, using a common ingredient such as beans, rice or potatoes. And, although there is some complaining about having to make muffins, biscuits or a quick-bread, I think the girls enjoy progressing to one of the more difficult requirements.'

1. Read animal stories and ask students to illustrate them.
2. Set up a make-believe pet store using stuffed animals brought from home. Ask the students to act out being shopkeepers and

3. Ask the students to write letters to their pets telling them how

4. Ask the children to write very short, make-believe TV or radio

5. If possible, visit a local animal shelter.

6. Start a clipping collection of animal stories from newspapers.

7. Have a poster contest. Ask the kids to draw or paint a picture

SHOWPLACE

Best, cheapest entertainment is still available in movies

By Ray Westbrook Update Staff Writer

Steve Richerson, city manager for the Lubbock operation of Noret Theaters Inc., says Lubbock is an excellent show town, with audiences a bit more sophisticated than is generally believed.

Richerson, who maintains offices at Showplace 6, told Update that people are "interested in what we have to play. They come to us with their suggestions, and we try to adhere to those suggestions as much as we possibly can."

He added that any movie of any worth that comes to town is very well attended. "I think we have a good base to work on here."

Richerson has been in the motion picture theater business for the past 10 years. After graduating from the University of Houston, he managed a multiscreen operation, and eventually a sixscreen theater, in Houston.

He later managed a multi-screen theater in Wichita Falls, and joined the Noret Theaters about 1½ years ago.

The company, founded in 1948 at Odessa by Skeet Noret, now has theaters located in Lamesa, Snyder, Big Spring, San Angelo, San Marcus, Denison, Amarillo and Roswell, N.M., in addition to Showplace 6, Backstage Theater, Golden Horseshoe Drive-In and Fine Arts Drive-In, in Lubbock.

"There is an old adage in the movie industry that says movies are your cheapest and best entertainment, and I think that adage is continuing to prove true," Richerson said.

He said that although a person may go out to dinner and attend concerts and the legitimate theater, or participate in any sort of physically active sport such as bowling, golf and boating, "economywise you will probably come away from the movie experience — more times than not — better satisfied for what you have spent."

The movie business itself operates primarily on the basis of what people want to see, according to the theater manager.

"Most of the movie companies presently based in California, with a little time lag, generally provide the population with the kind of features that they (the public) want to see.

"The best example lately would be the space movies that are coming out — people want to see them, so they continue to make them. When attendance starts dropping off, there will be other directions taken with the production of movies," he said.

Our service is to provide as efficient and nice a place as we can to present those movies and to get the people to come see them in an atmosphere that will make them want to come to shows in general."

Richerson said, "I feel that we are pretty close barometers of what the population actually does want to see. We are on occasion criticized for not showing more G-rated movies, and in turn we will on occassion respond with the showing of G-movies when they are presented to us for exhibition.

"The population as a general rule will not turn out for those G-movies. If the PGs are available, people will generally come to see those more than they will any other type."

He said that two or three years ago there was a tremendous amount of R-rated movies being produced. "That was the majority of what we had to select from to show. Those movies were well attended.
"Within the last year to year and a

Within the last year to year-and-ahalf, those movies have not been as well attended as the PGs are now. I see a bit of a reversal in the trend right now back down to a little less violent movies, a little less sexually-oriented movies — but that is really only starting to come into play now."

Richerson said, "In the criticism, people say they want more G-rated films, but when we put them on, they don't come to see them."

He explains that a lot of the cause is in the plot — or lack of plot. "I think people are coming to the show to be stimulated — intellectually or otherwise. If they come and have a bland, two-hour experience, I don't think they will come to the movies in general.

"We are a pretty close barometer," he emphasized, "to what people are wanting — we can't afford to play what people don't want, just as in any other business. If you are in a restaurant, and you're not serving what people are buying, you will not be there very long."

Theaters in Lubbock acquire their films through booking offices in Dallas, the headquarters for a five-state region. The distribution companies, such as 20th Century Fox and Universal, provide to the bookers and buyers in Dallas, the films they are coming out with. The bookers and buyers, in competition with each other, secure those movies for Lubbock or any other town they are dealing with, according to Richerson.

On a local level, the various Lubbock theaters are in competition for up-coming films, which are acquired basically through market, or business arrangements.

"Our people in Dallas are in constant contact with what's available through various film companies," Richerson said.

When the movies become available, the film companies contact all the potential buyers and make offers. The buyers then respond to the offer, and the best deal secures the all-important response of the public. "We are presently into our 22nd week of 'Superman.' and as long as the people are responding to a movie we will keep it. When they do not respond, it will be in and out in a week — we are usually committed to at least one full week's run on any show," Richerson explained.

"Primarily, we are what is known as a first-run house — a product that has not played before is generally put into a house that is newer and larger, and can serve the crowds that will more than likely be attending those first-run movies," he said.

Ticket prices have not changed during the year that Richerson has been with Showplace.

"When I started in the business about 10 years ago, common ticket price was $1.75. Within 10 years it has almost doubled. I don't believe our ticket prices have kept up with inflation. We are still a little under the increase in inflation."

Richerson said ticket prices in Lubbock are generally lower than they are in other parts of the state.

"At Showplace we have elected to pursue a volume-orientation rather than an increase in price, and we hope to be able to continue that system.

"Concession is one of the major considerations we have to take into account in keeping our doors open," he said. "It's important to any of the industry that their concession function well — if it is not able to function well, they really can't keep their doors open. The culmination of both box office and concession is our revenue." he said.

Richerson said film companies have done well within the past two or three years. "If they can be convinced to plow their monies back into production and stay in the business that they are supposedly in. I think that not only they and us, but the public would be benefitted by that policy."

He expects quality to continue to increase, and thinks movies have a teaching effect on the public.

"The future of the business right now looks bright. We are in a situation where we can provide to the public their best entertainment."

Never pull out to pass unless you are sure someone behind you isn't trying to pass you on the same side. Check the traffic behind you before changing lanes. First check your mirrors, then your blind spot.

Always signal before you change lanes. Accelerate as you move into the left lane. Signal your intention to return to the right lane and return only when you can see all of the passed vehicle in your rear-view mirror.

Children were quick to blow the whistle on needless risks and bad habits. even if they did have difficulty spelling it out

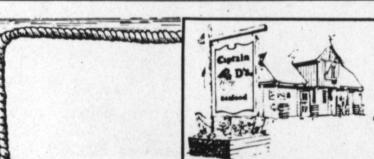

For example, "She's a deesent driver, but not too deesent," analyzed one woman's daughter. "My father is a road hogg." said another. Another added 'The way he drives, we're glad to get out in one peace." Still another father reportedly "puts his foot down" when-

THE THE PERSON OF THE PERSON O

May 11, 1970: Few scars left

By Jeff McCaslin Update Staff Writer

Man has always built memorials to honor legends.

And the shrine which stands today in honor of the 26 people who lost their lives nine years ago in the Lubbock Tornado is no exception.

The Lubbock Memorial Civic Center proves that shrines are built for ordinary people as well as martyrs.

The deadly twister which struck Lubbock at 9:47 p.m. May 11, 1970 killed 26 people, injured scores more and devastated a 36-block area of the downtown sector. The funnel, a mile and a half wide, was on the ground for 8½ miles taking only three minutes to unleash its havoc on the land, bringing $136 million damages with it.

And almost before the smoke had cleared the citizens of Lubbock began thinking and talking about a "new" city. Shortly afterward, plans were beginning to take shape on a monumental rebuilding program. And the seeds were planted early on the civic center idea, to replace the large residential area next to downtown with a monument to a death-

In 1977 the city opened new doors with the dedication of the $23.8 million civic center which covered the scars of nature's vengeance.

It sits where 300 families once lived and more than 100 businesses once thrived.

The tornadic bomb which fell from the dark skies nine years ago today destroyed many other portions of the city as well. And other memorials now stand to test the memories of those living in Lubbock at the time.

A $1.4 million library has been lending books since 1974 at 9th Street and Avenue L as part of the Civic Center complex.

Two major hotels, an office building, new headquarters for the Department of Public Safety and West Texas Hospital have all added to the new look of Lubbock since the storm struck.

A massive Urban Renewal Project in local neighborhoods has resulted in expenditures of $15.4 million to aquire 865 parcels of land, demolish 750 substandard structures and provide a means to rehabilitate 530 dwelling units and 237 new homes since 1970.

But the pride in the civic center rises above all others as memories become rekindled of that fateful night.

The center, built by local and federal funds, houses a 1,500-seat theatre, a 1,500-person banquet hall and a 192-booth exhibit hall. Its modern structural design attests to man's ability of rising above tragedy, whenever and wherever it strikes.

Other city projects aimed at uplifting Lubbock's face from the tornado scars include the $8.2 million Canyon Lakes project, which stretches for seven miles along the Yellowhouse Canyon.

The Metro Tower, formerly called the Great Plains Life Building, is one of the few structures to withstand the 1970 tornado and its powerful winds.

All the building's windows were shattered and bricks were stripped from the foundation. Lubbock's tallest building remained ignored for five years, a constant reminder to the tornado's effects, until a pair of Amarillo developers remodled both the exterior and interior for its new occupants.

for its new occupants.

The city of Lubbock rose above the tragedy and continues to prosper and grow as the "New Metro City of the Southwest," as the slogan proclaims.

Few scars are left but the shrines in memorial to the 26 who lost their lives that day still stand. Their names may not be remembered by all, but the eulogy given by the mayor at the time the Civic Center was dedicated two years ago said; "Twenty-six immeasurably valuable people were killed, and the Civic Center should be a continuing memorial to those who died. We've got to say to them we've done our best to experience this tragedy with hope."

At top, Lubbock's Cumberland Presbyterian Church has only the altar standing after a tornade ripped through the city May 11, 1970, in this Associated Press photo. In Update photos, a nature-made tree house of sorts was erected during the storm, at top right, as the twister came through bringing death and destruction to all in its path and the open house sign in front of this house really meant what it read.

Kids set the record straight, keep adults from exaggerating

By Kim Cobb Update Steff Writer Adults have been known to exaggerate their occupations — but all it takes is a knowing child to set the record straight.

Employees at Lubbock's Health Sciences Center Hospital discovered what their kids really think they do for a living through an auxilliary-sponsored es-say contest. The young contestants were asked to describe what their folks do at the hospital — producing some eye-opening job descriptions.

First-place winner Ted Blackurn, 8-year-old son of Nurse Recruiter Edie Blackburn, said his mom talks people in-to coming to Lubbock "hospitils."

Here's an excerpt from the letter: "She goes to many far away towns She used to take care of sick people. her secretary is tony. She writes letters for my mom. And the people my mom gets to come to the hospitil. Tony finds them job and says "She gets paid a lot." But he doesn't like all the business trips she has to make to recruit the hospital's dly-needed nurses.

Ted probably spoke for a few hospital administrators as well as himself when he said, "I can't wait till they don't have to have any more nurses so my mom doesent (sic) have to go on any more buiness (sic) trips."

Jeffrey Roberts, seven-year-old son of assistant administrator Charles Roberts, took second prize for his brief but revealing essay on his dad's job. The accompanying illustration looks a bit like a spider, but is probably a portrait of his father seated at his desk

Jeffrey got to the point "My daddy works at the hospital. He puts things in order. He takes care of

What Jeffrey probably meant by "He takes care of women." is that his dad works with employees in medical re-cords, communications, medical social services and other departments with a majority work-force of women.

Eight-year-old Melinda Medlock, daughter of file clerk Helen Medlock. won third place for her neatly spaced description of her mother's work. Her entry read as follows:

"What my mother does at work? My mother works in medical records. She files records. She works with doctors. She counts records each week. She files reports. She gets donuts and coffee for the doctors while their (sic) working. That's what my mother does at work.' The award for first place is $10 and the second and third place winners will receive $5 each. Lubbock County Hospital District Ex-ecutive Director Gerald Bosworth is scheduled to make the award presentation at 4 p.m. today in the hospital's

Update Entertainment Editor While I wouldn't say there are any truly big names playing the clubs this weekend, this does not mean there isn't a lot of talent available. Big D Stuff will be playing rock at Rox, and it looks like family time at some of the other clubs with the entertainment being offered by The Maines Brothers, The Sphere Brothers, The Teneyuque Brothers and The Boos Brothers. Oh brother...

By William D. Kerns

There aren't may new movies opening this weekend, but the best pictures in town remain Woody Allen's "Manhattan," Michael Cimino's "The Deer Hunter" and, for those who appreciate gory and brutal horror movies, George Romero's "Dawn Of The Dead."

Families shouldn't miss "The Champ," either.

on screen

Bockstage I — "Magic." I enjoyed this film immensely the first time, and found it even better upon subsequent viewings. Anthony Hopkins should have earned universal acceptance through his performance here as a psychotic ventriloquist who shares an evil, sometimes brutal, split personality with his dummy named Fats. "Magic" is a nerve-wracking thriller, one of the best 1978 Christmas releases and one which many felt should have won Hopkins an Oscar bid.

Backstage II - "Sex And The French Schoolgirl." X-rated material.

Cinematheque — There will be no more Cinematheque classics screened until Texas Tech University resumes classes in the fall.

Cinema West — "Ashanti." This action film about the pursuit of modern day slave traders stars Michael Caine, Peter Ustinov, Omar Sharif, William Holden and Rex Harrison. Not screened at press time.

Fine Arts Drive-In - "The Virgin And The Lover" and "Eruption." X-rated mate-

Fox i — "Manhattan." This is Woody Allen's best film to date, an absolutely flaw-less film of purpose, a loving and extremely personal mixture of wit and tenderness which manages to spark both comedic and emotional reactions as it damns fashionable intellectualism in favor of the drama of losing relationships. The laughs are plentiful, but they are neither nonsensical nor nonstop. "Manhattan" is Allen's most moving and but they are neither nonsensical nor nonstop. "Manhattan" is Allen's most movi human and entertaining film. It is further, in my opinion, the best film yet relea 1979. Filmed in black and white, with Diane Keaton and Mariel Hemingway co-starring.

Fox II - "Dreamer." A new picture about a young man who dreams of becoming a champion bowler. Not screened at press time.

Fox III - "Richard Pryor: Live In Concert." The title tells it all in this film. Pryor. one of our best standup comedians, is filmed during a 1978 concert in Long Beach, Calif., and that concert is what we're given - with no censorship whatsoever. The language is extremely raw (the producers even deem it "vulgar") but, if the language is not a personal or moral roadblock to enjoyment, you may even find this comic a black Lenny Bruce. Yet another who knows how to talk dirty and influence people. In any case, it's a

Fox IV — "Ice Castles." Only the coldest of hard-hearted moviegoers could say they felt nothing from this re-release starring Lynn-Holly Johnson and Robby Benson. The picture is far from flawless and there's no denying it is overly sentimental — but the caring is so obvious that viewers may find the flaws hidden behind a veil of tears. Excellent supporting performances from Tom Skerrit, Colleen Dewhurst and Jennifer War-

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen - "Psychic" and "Amuck." Management could not tell Update anything about these two films. Not screened at press time.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "Silver Streak." A funny, funny movie which helped make Richard Pryor a household name. Co-starring Gene Wilder and Jill Clayburgh, this film is a combination murder mystery-comedy with constant confrontations on a fast-moving train. It skips from comedy to serious material throughout, but the pacing steadily picks up when Pryor makes his initial appearance. It will be shown at the drive-in with two colored cartoons and a Three Stooges short subject.

Home Box Office — This pay television station offers movies and specials not presently on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO each weekend evening and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see HBO screen the Barbra Streisand remake of "A Star Is Born," co-starring Kris Kristofferson. A couple o action movies, "Speedtrap" and "Stingray," will make their debuts on Saturday. And on Sunday, Bill Bixby will host a special called "Psychic Follies," dealing with real hypnotists

Later this month, HBO will offer Burt Reynolds' "The End" and Gary Cooper's "The Hanging Tree." And June selections on HBO will include both Paul Mazursky's "An Unmarried Woman" and Mel Brooks' "High Anxiety."

Showplace I - "Buck Rogers In The 25th Century." This may be the funniest Bmovie released this year. Despute an obvious tendency to rip off shows like "Star Wars" and "Battlestar Galactica," the tongue-in-cheek humor and comic book situations still have us slapping our thighs with mirth while watching Buck save Earth from the Draconian Empire. The kids are bound to love this one, and adults with a broad sense of humor may also get a kick out of it.

Showplace II - "Phantasm." The dead refuse to stay dead - or buried - in this new horror flick which has been scaring audiences across the country. All I've seen is a television preview for the film, and even that left me jumpy. So I'd have to say this flick has possibilities. Not screened at press time.

Showplace III — "Silver Streak." See comments under Golden Horseshoe Drive-In.

Showplace IV — "Superman." The longer this film stays on the market, the more apparent it becomes that it will not withstand the test of time. More and more regular filmgoers are expressing their disappointment in the lack of cohesion and lackluster special effects. Christopher Reeve's performance in the title role was the only aspect of the film which pleased me, but rest assured there have been a few folks writing and calling in to express their admiration for the film as family entertainment. It remains a movie which has neither completely alienated the critics nor completely captured the public.

Showplace V — "Star Crash." At first glance, this would appear to be a poor man's "Star Wars," with Christopher Plummer holding one of the major roles. Not Showplace VI — "Love At First Bite." Surprise! This spoof on the Dracula legend is really pretty funny, actually hilarious whenever Richard Benjamin is on screen. The plot finds George Hamilton as Dracula evicted from his Transylvanian castle and traveling to the Big Apple in search of Susan Saint James; Benjamin is her psychiatrist and a descendent of a noted vampire hunter. The laughs come pretty much non-stop, with everyone involved keeping the mood tongue-in-cheek. Look for Arte Johnson as the count's bug-eating assistant.

South Plains Cinema 1, Mall — "The Deer Hunter." Winner of five Academy Awards (the most won by any 1978 film) for Best Picture, best supporting actor, best direction, best editing and best sound. One of the most devastating films ever put on the screen. "The Deer Hunter" is bound to leave every single viewer weak-kneed and slack-jawed as he leaves the theater. The picture deals with the friendship of three men (Robert DeNiro, Christopher Walken and John Savage) in a small steel town in Pennsylvania, and the effect Vietnam had on each of these three individuals. Michael Cimino's direction is received as the film indeed example as the film indeed example of the pilm of t tion is superb, and the film indeed earned each of its nine Oscar nominations. There was never any doubt that Walken, playing the disturbed Nick, would win for his dramatic performance. Three hours long, "The Deer Hunter" is a slightly flawed, unforgettable gem whose roulette scenes alone will leave a lingering feeling of depression and an heartache for many nights to come. Not to be missed.

South Plains Cinema II, Mall - "The Promise." Definitely a candidate for Worst Movie of the Year. This picture is a corny, very stupid love story about a man and a woman who promise never to leave one another, only to be split up by a car accident and a mother trying to be more evil than the Wicked Witch of the West. Full of plot errors, silly dialogue and junky music, this one's a yawner. At one point in the film, the man tells his mother, "That's the biggest load of crap anybody's ever laid on me." We leave the theater feeling much the same way.

lcky-pee, lovey-dovey idiocies available in THE PROMISE

South Plains Cinema III, Mall - "Dawn Of The Dead." This film carries no rat-South Pleins Cinema III, Mail — "Dawn Of The Dead." This film carries no rating, and the law states that the only one which can be self-applied is an X. Though there is no pornography in this movie, it might very well be the first which could have earned an X through violence alone, as it stands out as the most gory and brutal horror film yet released to a relatively unsuspecting public. And yet — I liked it a lot. Writer-director George Romero uses overkill literally, to the point where we are no longer shocked by his zombie murders (this is a sequel to "Night Of The Living Dead," where the dead returned to chow down on the living). Romero's sense of humor is evident throughout, and that instillation of humor into such grisly business makes for a nice effect. But stand warned: this remains a violent, gory, brutal film that those with weak stomachs and that institution of number included in such garry business makes the second stand warned: this remains a violent, gory, brutal film that those with weak stomachs will not be able to sit through. I do not use that description lightly. Heads are blown off, entrails are dined upon. Stand warned. Quite a few viewers walked out of the advance screening, telling the theater management they "just couldn't take it."

South Plains Cinema IV, Mall - "Same Time. Next Year." Playwright turned screenwriter Bernard Slade has refused to open up his tepid little Neil Simon clone for the screen and, as a result, the cinema version of his hit stageplay is predictable to the point of being yawn inspiring. The whole thing is just too stage-v - but luckily for Slade (and us), the performances are strong enough to keep us from walking out. Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn work wonderfully together; one only wishes they'd held out for Villege — "Smokey And The Bandit" and "Convoy." The good and bad side of trucker movies. "Smokey And The Bandit," while hardly taxing the mind, is nevertheless quite an enjoyable diversion. Burt Reynolds' sense of comic timing shines through again and again and, while the highbrow critics slammed this movie, it's not hard to see why it became one of the highest money making pictures of our time. "Convoy," on the other hand, is Sam Peckinpah's latest excursion into mindless slow motion could very well also prove to be his swan song.

Winchester — "The Champ." The tearjerker to end all tearjerkers, this film is Franco Zeffirelli's remake of King Vidor's classic 1931 sob story which starred Wallace Beery and young Jackie Cooper. The stars in this updated version are Jon Voight and 8-yearold Ricky Schroder, and the two work wonderfully together as they yank at our heartstrings. There's no denying director Zeffirelli is being manipulative: there's no denying the film is hard to believe at times and overly sentimental throughout. But the fact remains: It works. The film works. I haven't cried so much at a movie in years — and if even this hard-hearted critic can be reduced to tears, think what it's going to do to all

"I really started at the bottom in the aviation field," laughs Lubbock's Director of Aviation Marvin Coffee. "I was on the garbage detail at the airport in Sioux City, Iowa."

Though he never intended it to, those inauspicious beginnings blossomed into Coffee's life work. Over the years his career has taken him to six cities in five states; moving each time to take on more responsibilities in a larger airport.

"Aviation management is such a limited field," he explains, "you have to keep moving to take on bigger challenges."

Coffee's original idea was to become an architect, but fate apparently had

Coffee got his start in aviation in the Air Force during World War II. Before that he says his exposure to planes was limited - "maybe a barnstormer would land in a field, (in rural Ohio, where he grew up) and I would take a ride, but nothing beyond that."

Since he arrived in Lubbock in 1969 he had a hand in getting the plans for the new airport, which opened in 1976, off the drawing baord. "It was exciting to get to help put it all together, especially after having been involved in building three other terminals."

Coffee also has been involved in making the aviation industry safer for the public. After witnessing a plane crash in which 47 people were killed in Michigan, Coffee went to the Civil Aeronautics Board with the idea of an in-flight tape

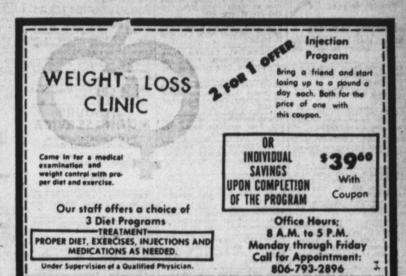

"We didn't have any idea as to why that plane went down," he said, "and I thought that by recording what went on in the cockpit, we might be able to learn something that could make flying safer." Though the CAB never made a formal reply to Coffee's suggestions, he notes the cockpit recorders have been in service for some 15 years now. Whatever his
