The bond election, which could occur as early as this fall, would finance construction of a pair of water reservoirs about 60 miles southeast of Lubbock. However, the $109 million project wouldn't be needed if Lubbock stopped growing, city officials say.

The water supply we have now is adequate for our current population," water utilities director Sam Wahl said. "We have water for many, many years if we

In fact, the city's current Water supply from Bailey County wells and from the Canadian River Authority would provide plenty of water for the next century, if those sources are fully developed, Wahl

The choice for Lubbock citizens is clear. Wahl said, "Either we secure additional water or we say no more growth

It's unlikely Lubbock will not continue to grow. Wahl said, and the city's Planning Department has estimated Lubbock's population will climb to between 315,000 and 350,000 by the year 2010.

"Lubbock is growing at a constant, substantial rate," Wahl said, "and for this reason we need to be looking at a water supply for this future growth.

Two studies conducted by consulting engineers recommended the plan now being pursued by city officials - construction of a reservoir near Post and a reservoir near Justiceburg on the Double Mountain Fork of the Brazos River. With full development of all three water sources. Wahl said the city would have a 30-year water supply for the projected population in 2010. But the price for Lubbock's continued growth is high - $109 million at 1979 And that means Lubbock voters will be asked to approve the largest single bond sale in the city's history. The real cost of building the two reservoirs, four pump stations, a 60-mile long pipeline, a water storage facility and a filter plant will depend on the rate of intween now and 1989 when the project should be substantially complete, he said.

The actual development cost will be more than $109 million, but how much more is unknown, Wahl said.

Since the project first was conceived nine years ago, the cost was estimated at $55 million. But since that time, Wahl said some costs have increased 300 percent and the overall cost estimate has nearly doubled.

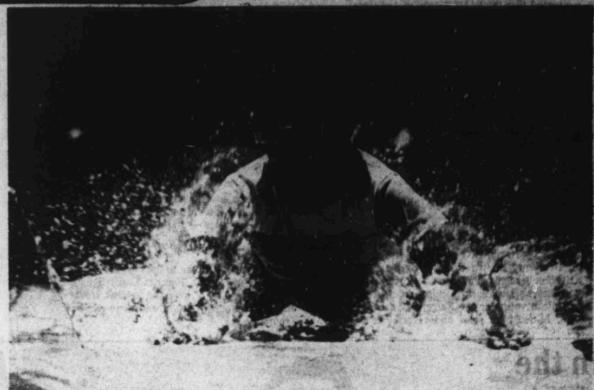

The Lubbock City Council is expected to discuss how to finance the mammoth project at its meeting next week, but the options seem limited to tax-supported general obligation bonds, revenue bonds paid for by water users, or a combination of both types of bonds. Either way, its a safe bet both taxes and water rates will be substantially

City Manager Larry Cunningham said the council must decide when to have the bond election and whether to ask voters to approve the financing all at once or in two phases.

"My initial reaction is to do it all at one time." Cunningham said, adding "it looks like the longest we could wait for an election would be spring, 1980."

Whether submitted to voters in its entirety or in parts, the reservoir bond is-

n apparent drag race early Saturday morning resulted in one of the most shattering and tragic traffic collisions the city has seen.

The smash-up, which killed two Lubbock elementary school principals, also resulted in 17-year-old Ramaldo Belasco Jr. of 3017 30th St. being charged with two counts of involuntary manslaughter. The collision occurred about 12:55 a.m. Saturday at Boston Avenue and 22nd Street and claimed the lives of William Raymond Bravenec, 35, and Tommy Edward Herring, 38.

Bravenec, who lived at 2604 76th St., was principal of Rush Elementary School, and Herring, of 2710 24th St., was principal of Ballenger Elementary School. Both were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident.

Justice of the Peace Charles Smith

ruled both deaths homicide and the Criminal District Attorney's Office recommended a $10,000 bond for each charge. Belasco was recovering from his injuries suffered in the collision at Methodist Hospital. Police say prior to the collision the teen-ager had been racing another car. Police Det. David O'Haver reported that he saw Belasco racing in his Grand Prix on 34th Street, adding that he began pursuit of the young driver after clocking his speed at 70 miles per hour.

O'Haver said he stopped the chase in the 3300-block of Boston Avenue after Bravenec was turning onto Boston Avenue from 22nd Street when the crash Though Belasco's vehicle and Bravenec's 1974 Corvette were both demolished and debris scattered for several hundred feet, the teen-ager was able to

The girl said she was at an East Stanford Street residence when the suspects forced her into a bedroom and ordered her to disrobe. Reports indicate the girl was held down and sexually assaulted.

No arrests had been made in connection with the incident. The ages of three of the suspects were said to be 14, 16 and 17.

Also Sunday, police investigated a re-ported rape of a 19-year-old girl at a Lubbock motel.

The victim said she and a friend had accepted a ride home from two young black men. One of the suspects reportedly told the girls he had to stop at his motel room before taking them home.

The woman told police that she was grabbed in the room, thrown on a bed and raped. The second man held the other woman in the room during the rape, according to reports.

The alleged rapist was described as between 14 and 17 years old and wearing black clothes. The other suspect was between 18 and 25.

SALT battle only just begun

NOW THAT President Carter and Soviet Premier Leonid Brezhnev have signed the SALT treaty, the administration's attention can shift to the next battle: obtaining the 67
Senate votes needed to ratify the treaty.

The debate will be long and intense. Senators will scrutinize not only the details of the strategic arms limitation treaty but also the entire web of U.S.-Soviet relations and the Carter administration's controversial handling of national security issues.

Two foreign policy specialists, writing in a recent article in Foreign Policy magazine, asserted that the SALT debate will confront the nation with the "collapse" of the traditional bipartisan coalition on foreign policy

"CARTER HAS largely squandered the reserve of bipartisan cooperation in interna-tional affairs on which his predecessors relied," write Alton Frye and William D. Rog-

"Responsibility (for the breakdown in cooperation) rests squarely on the President and the political team he installed in the White House."

In several cases, Carter's failure to understand Congress has severely hurt him and now makes treaty ratification more difficult. the authors claim, citing decisions to change the SALT plan developed with the Soviet Union by President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and to terminate the B-1 bomber and neutron bomb programs.

Carter's success in gaining essential Republican votes for the Panama Canal treaties, Mideast jet sales and reversal of the arms embargo to Turkey merely give the GOP more leverage to oppose Carter on SALT, Frye and Rogers deduce.

ADMINISTRATION officials are hoping the treaty's merits and strong public support for arms control will convince the large number of uncommitted senators in both

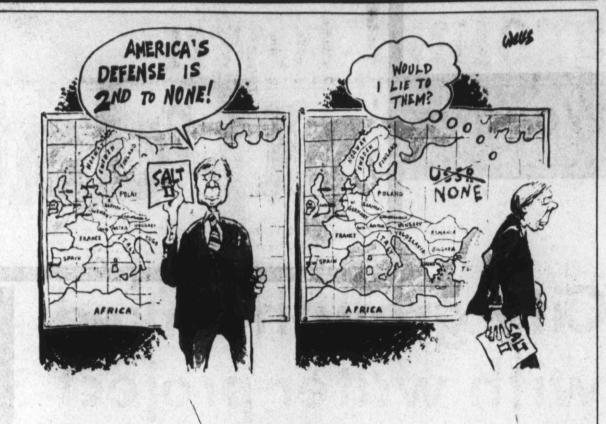

They are moving on three fronts to secure Senate backing. Most important is personal lobbying by Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, Secretary of Defense Harold Brown and others.

Supplementing those efforts will be a campaign mapped out by Gerald Rafshoon, Carter's public relations adviser, to gain public support through direct presidential appeals to the nation as well as "background" sessions explaining the treaty to the

WHETHER THESE plans will work is the big question. Carter critics believe that his handling of the Panama Canal treaties raises doubts about his ability to handle the more complex SALT treaty.

They are also on guard for a display of White House muscle to extract deals from wavering senators - plans that Carter aides vigorously deny, according to syndicated columnist Richard E. Cohen.

The focus is turning to the big guns in the Senate. But, as the Panama Canal debate proved, the vote of even the lowliest freshman carries equal weight and none can be

Board considers replacing buses with larger models

Update Staff Writer

Members of Lubbock's Transit Advisory Board already are thinking of the day when the city's fleet of 24 "Citibuswears out and are considering replacing them with models larger than the 21-passenger vehicles now in use.

Cost of operating the city's transit system is the major factor in the deliberations. Milton Smith, acting TAB president, said during this week's board meeting, "the Grumman (Citibus) should be replaced with the lowest operating cost vehicle, since that's where the city makes its biggest contribution.'

Greg Bonat of Lubbock Transit, which manages Citibus, contends that a larger bus would have a lower operating cost over the long run than a smaller

According to John Wilson, city transit coordinator, the "Citibus" has a life expectancy of only five years or 200,000 miles. The buses have been operating in Lubbock three years already and some buses have up to 130,000 miles of wear.

Wilson says the city "will have to run the buses longer than we want to -some up to eight years," but it isn't too early now to think about replacing them. Applications for and approval of federal grants, which provide most of the funding for buses, take time and the buses have to be ordered and built. The whole process takes years, Wilson says.

The transit board will join Lubbock City Council for a work session Thursday to discuss ideas for the future of mass transit here.

Also at their meeting, TAB members reaffirmed their recommendation to the city council to use funds from a yet-to-be approved federal grant to buy 14 37-passenger busses. Nine of the approved General Motors "RTS II" buses will be used on the Texas Tech University campus. The other five have not yet been al-

With strong religious convictions, Lillie Noble of Idalou believes she can accomplish all manner of things. And she does!

Her "family" also includes all the employees of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, where Lillie manages the coffee shop. But, in addition to the prescribed duties of her job, she dispenses a friendly word to the newcomer, encourages a reporter about his writing or gives compassion whenever it is needed. In other words, Lillie helps make the coffee shop a pleasant place for staff members to come.

Mrs. Noble grew up near Borger in a family which included five sisters and two brothers. "But," she said, "I didn't learn how to cook at home, since I was usually assigned to other household chores. Incidentally, my mother was a wonderful cook and all my sisters are, too.

"How did my husband and I meet? — we just grew up together. I was never 'serious' about anybody else and knew I wanted to marry him.

"As I've already mentioned, I didn't know how to cook when I got married. I remember the first meal I cooked for my husband -fried potatoes and gravy. Well, I guess fried potatoes will turn out every time, but the gravy was so thick you could cut it with a knife. So, during the first months of our marriage, we lived on a lot of tamales which we bought from a man who came by with a cart. Eventually, we both got tired of tamales, and I started trying then to learn to cook."

Almost from the beginning of her attempts to cook, Mrs. Noble says cooking seemed to come naturally. "Not that I didn't try very hard," she said, "but even from the beginning everything always seemed to come out all right, And I soon discovered I was especially good at making pastry.

"I truly feel God gave me whatever talent I have to cook and bake. I also have always felt I should use this talent to help my family, friends who are ill or suffering bereavement or any number of other things that can happen to people. Believe me, a gift of a coffee cake at a particular time 'tells' the person you understand and that you care."

son you understand and that you care."

The most recent challenge came to the Noble family when son Kevin was named as a "People-To-People Ambassador" selectee, sponsored by the Ei-

"It was such an honor Kevin was even named," Mrs. Noble said, "but as a family we decided it was important for Kevin to go. After making the decision, all we had to do was raise the money for his trip. At the time, I'm not sure Jerry and I fully realized the enormity of what we were planning to do. If we had, I'm certain we'd gone ahead anyway.

"I decided to do what I do best - baking - as my contribution to the project. So, I began baking bread, braid rolls, cakes, pies and everything else I could think of and selling them of course.

"Kevin left June 12 and will travel to six European countries. I know he'll learn so much. When he returns, he will talk about his impressions and experiences to clubs and other groups.

"But without the encouragement of my supervisor (J.C. Rickman) and all my other friends at the newspaper, Kevin could not have gone on this trip. I also had help from friends and neighbors at Idalou — what would we have done without them!

Two of Mrs. Noble's most famous recipes are:
PASTRY DOUGH FOR CINNAMON ROLLS OR BRAIDS

From Idea to Post Office

tory of a Stamp

To find out how stamps are made, The Mini Page followed the Year of the Child stamp from idea to post office.

1. Idea: The Year of the Child stamp was suggested nearly two years ago. Many stamp ideas are sent by interested citizens to the postmaster general (the official who heads the U.S. Postal Service).

The year of 1979 is a special year set aside by the United Nations to get people to think about kids.

2. Idea Approved: The Citizens Stamp Committee, made up of artists, business people and stamp collectors, considers the stamp and suggests it to the postmaster general. He must approve all new stamps.

Model Made: An artist from the Bureau of Printing and Engraving turns the art work into a stamp design by adding the title, the letters USA and the price. (The tiny thing on the left shows the size of the stamp when put next to the design.)

5. Engraving: An engraver cuts the design into a piece of soft steel. This is called "making a die." He must use a magnifying glass because this is such detailed work.

Presidents can be pictured on stamps soon after their death, but all other people must have been dead 10 years or more for the honor.

•21

This Robert Kennedy stamp was not issued until he had been dead 10 years.

6. Printing: Using the die as a pattern, rows of stamps are engraved on metal and made into a roll. This roll is put on a stamp printing press. The paper already has the glue on the back.

8. Perforation: A machine makes perforations (tiny holes) in rows between the stamps so they are easy

10. First-Day Ceremony: Each new stamp is issued at a special place on a special date. This stamp was issued in February at The Children's Hospital in Philadelphia, Pa. Kids, Paul Calle and other important people attended.

The first stamps issued in this country were the Benjamin Franklin 5-cent stamp and the George Washington 10-cent stamp in 1847.

These stamps did not have perforations (lines of little holes), but had to be cut apart.

The Postal Service prints about 27 billion stamps a year. This is enough stamps to stretch around the earth more than 16 times.

2. Lay your stamp face down on a paper towel to dry.

3. Press the stamp between the pages of a book if it has become wrinkled.

Jobs: Mail Carriers

Do you like to work outdoors? Do you enjoy walking? Are you a good reader?

Do you plan to graduate from high school someday?

If the answer is yes to all of these questions, then you might make a good mail carrier.

To get the job, you must be 18 years old, have a driver's license and pass a written test.

New carriers are trained on the job. They usually begin as part-time carriers.

Job Outlook: The number of mail carrier jobs is expected to stay the same in the 1980s. There will be new buildings and places to deliver mail, but the number of deliveries is expected to go down.

Page 1: Stamp collecting can be a very rewarding and educational experience for your child.

Even though children can start their collecting in a simple way with a shoebox to store their stamps, they might consider getting the following items if they are more serious about the hobby:

Stamp tongs: These can be used to pick up stamps when you identify them. They are also helpful when mounting or putting stamps in your album.

Perforation gauge: A perforation gauge is helpful in identifying certain stamps, especially from the U.S.

Watermark detector: A watermark is a pattern that is made into the paper while it is being manufactured. An example of a watermark is "bond" stationery that carries the trademark of the manufacturer. A watermark detector is a liquid. To use it, put the stamp face down in a special fluid in a small black tray. Don't let your child use it unless you are around.

Stamp catalog: Stamp catalogs serve as guides. They list the stamps by number and also give the price. This helps in swapping and buying stamps.

for a tax increase would be to convince taxpayers that the teaching hospital has solved its billing problems.

State legislators let a bill die in the last few days of the regular session which would have provided state aid for resident physicians salaries in state teaching hospitals. In its original form, HB 169 would have supplied about $1.5 million to Health Sciences Center Hospital—about $15,000 per resident.

By the end of the session, it was apparent that even if the legislation had passed, the hospital would not have received the $1.5 million it had hoped for.

Bosworth, 42, was reported to be the unanimous choice of the board as well as the medical school staff when he was hired in June, 1977. He took over the hospital after the board forced the resignation of then Executive Director Harold Coston in February, 1977.

Board chairman Strong has said Bosworth's working relationship with the board will probably be uncomfortable from now on. He said Bosworth is aware of the admittedly shakey status of his job and is probably already looking for other employment.

Strong has expressed sympathy over Bosworth's current situation, saying administrative jobs with teaching hospitals are not easy to come by.

But pew board member Rushing is

In addition to the construction cost consultants estimate it will take another $11.6 million a year to operate and maintain the reservoir system once it is built.

That estimate includes an annual payment of $7.9 million in principal and interest on 30-year bonds to finance the project — assuming it costs $100 million to develop.

The estimate of $2 million in power costs to operate three pump stations between the Justiceburg reservoir and Lubbock each year could go "much much higher," Wahl said.

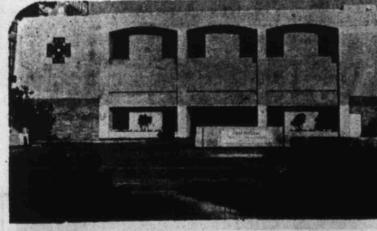

He explained the water must be lifted about 1,000 feet between Justiceburg's 2,200-foot elevation and Lubbock's 3,200-foot altitude.

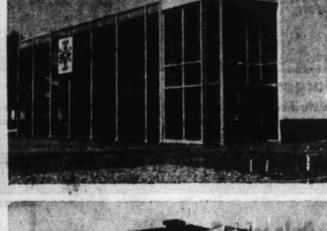

"It's uphill all the way." he said.

Lubbock's Winchester Theater among top facilities in state

The Lubbock Video Theater system, which includes the Winchester, Cinema West and Village Theaters, represents one of Texas' most significant bulwarks of the single-screen motion picture con-

Industry observers, noting the trend toward "twinning," indicate that the Winchester Theater, 3411 50th St., is currently among the largest movie facilities

Robert E. Scott, manager, can recall atime in the industry's heyday when spacious theaters were not particularly

He joined the Video Independent Theaters' predecessor company on July

THE BUSINESS DURING the 1940s was entirely different from that which exists now, according to Scott. "In the first-run theater in town there was at least two film changes a week, and sometimes three. Smaller theaters would change four times a week," he remembers. The method then was for a particular film to start at the top theater, then be handed down for three, four or even five runs in a single town.

"When I was here before (during the 1950s), we were operating seven units. We would take a picture and start it at the Lindsey, then it would go into the Tower or the Plaza, which are both longgone. They were subruns. Then it went to the Drive-in, and would later come back to play the Lyric and then the Cac-

Scott, with a note of nostalgia, adds, "At that time the old Clifton was down there. . .it's a parking lot now. The Lyric is part of the drive-in bank facilities downtown, and the Cactus is some kind of a commercial building, but is still there on Avenue H. The old Tower is part of the apartments across from Tech

Scott thinks the advent of television was a milestone in the movie industry. 'It brought us in off the heyday of the World War II years, the big boom, and changed entertainment habits."

other organizations that they have to attend, and the ease with which they can drive across town to visit somebody" all exerts an influence.

You can live in Wolfforth and think nothing of commuting in just to see a picture, but back in the early days, when the outlying people came to Lubbock it was a big event, and they would stay to make it even bigger by seeing a show. Now, the kids drive down from Plainview for a date.

THE VIDEO INDEPENDENT Theaters steer around X-rated products. "We don't want to adapt a holier than thou attitude, it's just a matter of business with us," Scott said in discussing film

"Today, when one speaks of X-rated pictures, he is thinking of the hard core stuff that is run in some theaters, and we do not handle it at all," he added. The G-rating is the kiss of death to a film today, with the exception of the Disney movies, according to the Lubbock manager. He said there are a great many pictures that are as good as the Disney films. "They are family entertainment at name on it, it will die a natural death. Scott said if a filmmaker can use just enough controversial material to get a PG rating, then there is a much broader base for a movie house to work from. Those draw the high school group and college group — who, Scott said, for the most part "wouldn't be caught dead at a

G-movie HE POINTED OUT, however, that occassionally when a Disney movie is brought back, such as "Jungle Book," and "101 Dalmations," college students attend because they have memories of seeing the films as children and "want to come see it again."

Usually, high school age and up don't attend the Disney movies, he said.
"The dividing line between PG and

R is nebulous. . .you see pictures with an R-rating that cause you to ask yourself - and your patrons ask you - 'Why is this an R,' and you really can't answer

"And other times, there is a PG, and some people come out and ask why isn't that an R, and you can't answer that ei-

The "old-fashioned" curse words will no longer buy a PG rating, according to Scott, who describes it as John Waystyle profanity.

But the so-called four letter words will get you into an R," he said. An upcoming James Bond movie, rated PG, is expected to draw everyone "from grade school children right up to the older people."

Scott said, "We are hoping this will be better than average, and maybe even one of the good ones. It has a good cast, and is supposed to have the gimmicks in it, so we think it will play with the best LUBBOCK IS AN excellent movie town, according to Scott. "When we have the product, and I speak for myself, we have had at times some of the best engagements in the country. 'We have had pictures that have played here that were equal to the best in the state.

"The Buddy Holly Story, of course you would expect to be good, but we have had some others that have done extremely well here that were pretty light around the rest of the country "Lubbock is just a good showtown.

Now, they are not indiscriminate, they want quality."
Scott said the concession side of the theater still is important to the movie operation. "There was a time when if you broke even at the box office, you were lucky. The majority of the money you were going to make came out of the concession stand." The film acquisition terms now "are etting outrageous, ridiculous, really,"

Scott said. "But it's a seller's market. If you are going to remain in the business you have to go after them (films), and pay the price. But that price can be too high for the theaters — for any theater here in town. BY WAY OF CONTRAST, Scott recalls that his starting salary in the theater business was $7 a week, and that tickets used to sell for 25 and 35 cents.

"Social Security was 1 percent then. They took out seven cents out of my salary, leaving me $6.93.

"But you could get a steak for 75 cents," he said.

Summertime arrives, the schools recess and suddenly the energies of children are devoted to roughhousing in the backyard, plotting schemes on the corner and pestering mom in the kitchen.

That energy must be spent, but perhaps the trick can be accomplished without dad's having to pay for a neighbor's broken window in the process. Providing a pet for a child may help. The bonus is that it probably will give joy to the entire family

Knowing how to choose a pet - be it a dog or cat - is an art often underestimated by the public. And no sooner is this decision made than the new owner must understand how to care for the pet. If it sounds like a responsibility, it is, but the rewards are usually great.

You need to get the animal young and raise it with the children," says Dr. Gary Schwede, a veterinarian at Acres North Veterinary Hospital, Otherwise, he explains, a grown animal will have developed a disposition that may or may not be suited for a family and young

In examining puppies and kittens, look for clear, bright eyes, a cold, moist nose, pink tongue and a soft, glossy coat, says the "Summer Checklist for Healthy Pets" published by the Pet Information Bureau (PIB).

In addition to those general characteristics, beware of runny eyes and a runny nose, diarrhea, stomach swelling and small size, according to Dr. Schwede. "There may be a medical reason why an animal is smaller than the others," he says.

Fleas and ticks, brought forth by the heat, are especially troublesome to pets in the summer months. The PIB pamphlet advises owners to check the coats of their dog or cat at least once a week, and Thomas Trombley, director of the Lubbock Animal Shelter, speaks of the dangers of animal neglect.

Lubbock has a problem with ticks during the summer every year," he says. We've seen it where they will kill the dog. Now these are small dogs, but where they are completely infested, ticks can sap all their strength.

Commercially-prepared soaps, collars and sprays are helpful in controlling the small pests, according to the pamphlet, Trombley urges owners to use only commercially-recommended products; several dogs in the city died last summer after being dipped in motor oil to cure them of ticks, he says.

Symptoms of roundworm and hookworm infestation in dogs include stomach swelling, vomiting, diarrhea, slow weight gain and lethargy, says Dr. Schwede, who stresses the importance of examining young animals.

Older dogs are stronger and usually able to withstand the worms until given treatment, he says, but puppies can die in a matter of hours from when they first begin to show the symptoms.

"That is why it is important to have

Lubbock teacher Kay Geiger has been chosen to participate in the Federal Forum program, which allows citizens to observe the workings of the federal government.

From June 23 to June 30, Miss Geiger will be in Washington, D.C. with other educators and professionals from across the nation to meet with top government officials, including each participants' senators and representatives the animal checked at the time of purchase," he says. "I would recommend a dog be checked a minimum of every six months if possible, and puppies should really be checked in the first three months.

Another threat to dogs particularly associated with summertime is the heartworm, which is transmitted by mosquitoes. Symptoms of the heartworm include shortness of breath and lack of energy, and the damage to the pet done by this parasite is irreversible, according to Dr. Schwede. "And this time of year, with all the rains, we're going to see another boom of heartworm," he adds.

Distemper, a common virus among dogs and cats, is also prevalent during the summer months. The PIB pamphlet suggests a vaccination for the kitten or puppy at about two months of age followed by a booster shot when the animal reachessix months.

Beyond the first year of the pet's life there is a common misconception among owners, according to Dr. Schwede. "People think they can give a dog (or cat) one rabies shot or distemper shot and think they have given them permanent protection. That is not so,"

He says both shots need to be administered to both animals once a year.

Cats are plagued with many of the same parasites as dogs, but fortunately they do not attract the heartworm, Dr. Schwede says.

He advised the cat owner to beware of two ailments - feline distemper and protected against with vaccinations.

The feline distemper affects primarily the gastro-intestinal tract while the virus attacks the membranes of the eyes, nasal cavity, mouth, sinuses, trachea and lungs and will eventually kill the cat, according to the veterinarian.

Without treatment, they (cats) will run about an 80 percent mortality rate (from the distemper and virus)," he says. "Even with immediate treatment, you will have about 40 percent mortality. That is why vaccination is so imporflicting him with parasites.

According to the PIB pamphlet, pets can be overexposed to the sun and suffer from sunstroke and heat stroke. It advises owners to leave parked cars with pets in them in the shade with an open window and available water.

Trombley says the animal shelter also receives calls from irate neighbors who watch a dog being chained up without water or shade across the boundary fence. He says thick-coated dogs can get very warm under such circumstances.

Finally there is the element of personality and the effects of weather on it.

June 18, 1978, there have been 19 people killed on city streets, a if we're looking at records, we're making progress. Our fatality total is six leathan it was the same date last year. ### Laser properties used to study semiconductors

Computers, push-button watches and a myriad off other sophisticated electronic devices provide lighted message at the tap of a fingertip. To do so they use LEDs, or light emitting diodes.

The light is caused by impurities in semiconductors which, although commonly used, are little understood, even by experts in the area.

Dr. Martin A. Gundersen of the Texas Tech University electrical engineering faculty is using the properties of lasers to study the properties of the semiconductor impurities, to determine which defects perform what roles. Semiconductors are the heart of solid state devices," he explained. "We need to know what impurities can and can't do. the physics of their performance. It is hard to improve on a device when you don't even know what the real limts are.

"We know there are deep traps, but we don't know it detail how they work or how to control their effect. The same is true of many other defects.

With understanding of the physics involved. Gunderson said that it will be possible to build devices that are cheaper, more efficient, with slower degradation. In addition, important new devices wil be possible, such as fast, high-power semiconducter switches. In his laboratory research. Gunderson's previous experiments with infrared lasers have led him to believe that much can be learned about semiconductor impurities by using the laser as a scientific detective.

His special interest is in gallium arsenide phosphide and silicon semiconductors. Studying them, he is seeking the methodology for learning the role of the impurities.

It is an industry that has moved so rapidly and successfully that the need for greater understanding of the semicondutors has, until now, been put on a back burner, in Gundersen's view.

Students working with Gundersen on the project include Paul G. Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Snyder of Dallas. and Terry A. Yocom, son of J.C Yo-tor told interior design major Peggy Spalding that no student at Texas Tech University had ever completed a metal chess set by use of the "lost wax" casting method, a tedious and time-consuming process.

Three semesters and several hundred from Texas Tech, Spalding cast the last bronze figure of a chess set modeled after characters in the movie "Star Wars."

The two-to seven-inch figures pose in combat-ready positions and collectively weigh approximately 20 pounds. Each was carved separatedly in wax before being cast in molten bronze. Two carry sterling silver swords. All are faithful reproductions of characters from the popalar science fiction movie.

Miss Spalding, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Aaron Spalding of Waxahachie, said she chose "Star Wars" characters because she loved the movie. "I'm a science fiction fan," she said.

And when I decided I'd like to make a chess set. I chose 'Star Wars' because there were so many characters. I needed a variety of different figures to fill the roles of king, queen, knights, pawns and

"Spending that long working on a project is not uncommon for art students. Most have to do it at one time or another." she said. "The art building is our second home. But for me, it was the culmination of a very long effort.

The "lost wax" casting technique, often used in jewelry-making, involves many steps. "After the artist chooses the design, he or she shapes special wax into the desired form by using both the fingers and hot metal tools. Because the wax figures will later be encased in plaster for casting, wax sprues are attached to channel molten metal to the figure.

"After the wax figure or jewelry is embedded in plaster, it is heated in a 1300-degree kiln overnight to melt and vaporize the wax. Before removing the plaster from the kiln, the artist melts metal to a glowing orange liquid. The metal is poured through the sprue channel and into the empty mold left when the wax burns away. The figure is cooled and removed from the plaster," she ex-

The lengthy process leaves much room for error. Spalding recast at least 10 of her chess figures because of technical problems. "Several chess pieces were ruined because the plaster did not heat long enough before I poured the

They thought the things were dangerous - as if I looked sinister! Anyway, they let me on the plane after I put everything in my suitcase, which was then safely stowed in the baggage compartment.'

However, the metal did pose hazards for her personally. Miss Spalding rubbed her hands raw working with hot, rough bronze. She displayed a burn she received from metal heated by friction from the metal polishing machine.

Florence Lawrence, Lubbock artist, and Wendy Yothers, a graduate enameling student, followed Spalding's efforts closely. Lawrence offered encouragement and helped develop the casting techniques Spalding used. Yothers was primarily an observer.

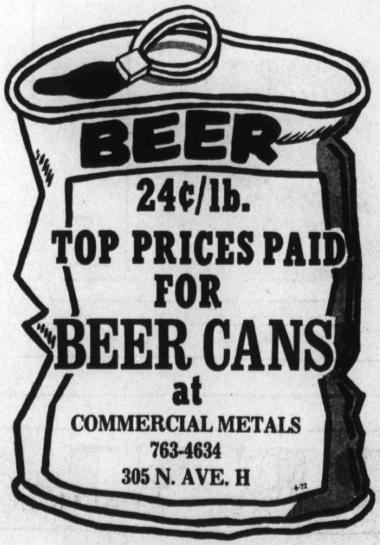

"You really have to admire Peggy," Yothers said, "She had an idea and stuck to it. That dedication is what art is all about.

Dedication and energy also appear in Spalding's other activities. When not working on interior design class projects and chess pieces, she casts jewelry, reads science fiction novels, takes camping trips and worries about her ailing

Spalding plans to seek employment with an interior design firm in the Dallas area. Until she finds a job, much of her energy will be applied toward finishing the chess board, which will be formed from squares of black acrylic plastic and polished metal inlaid with enameled spaceships.

What will she do with the finished chess set? "At first I thought I'd take pictures of it and send them to George Lucas, creator of 'Star Wars,' and see if he was interested in marketing it. But now I think I just want to keep and enjoy it, knowing that it is the only one of its kind in the world. And if I keep the chess set just as an art form and don't try to sell it, I won't have to worry about

"After I finish the chess board, I'm hoping to do something I've never really spent much time on - I guess I'll have to learn how to play chess.

Cubs at Lowrey Field in Lubbock. Midland's Jared Martin beat Carroll's throw to the bag and was safe. Ashby drilled a pair of base hits and drove in two runs to lead the Gold Sox over the Cubs 10-5. It was the first professional baseball game played in the Hub City in over a decade.

During his prep playing days at Mon-terey High School Gary Ashby enjoyed a lot of big days out at Lowrey Field.

The woolly came from the players. They didn't particularly care for the conditions at Ashby's old playground - and they let him know about it.

'My teammates hated it (Lowrey Field)," Ashby said after the contest. "They kept blaming the whole thing on me. Heck, I had to remind them that we would've been playing here even if I wasn't on the team.

Though inconsistent, the humor and unique approach provide a memorable evening. Standouts include Scot Purkeypile as Master Bates, Toni Cobb as Rosie and all the wenches: Toby Probasco, Heather Hollingsworth, Julia Roberts, Betty Tousch, Diane Hosey and Becky Mathis. The event is staged at 8 p.m. each Thursday through Saturday, with admission prices set at $9.95 on Thursdays, $11.95 on Fridays and $12.95 on Saturdays. #### on screen

Backstage I — "Heaven Can Wait." When the Avalanche-Journal ran conducted an opinion polit to pick the Best Film of 1978, this was the picture revealed to be the public's favorite. The Academy didn't agree though, as the film's nine Oscar nominations did not reap dividends. Nevertheless, Warren Beatty is splendid as the football player called to his Maker too soon, and Dyan Cannon, Charles Grodin and Jack Warden are all fine and funny in supporting roles. Without a doubt, one of the most delightful and popular pictures of the 70s.

Backstage II - "Fiona On Fire." X-rated material.

Cinema West — "101 Dalmations." This is one of those pictures which gets better with every new viewing. A not to be missed grab bag of animated fun in which a pair of Dalmations must depend on the Twilight Bark, their fellow canines and their own ingenuity to retrieve their dognapped pupples from the cruel Cruella DeVille. Take note: This willil probably be the last week for this comedy, as a new Disney comedy is expected to debut June 29.

Fine Arts Drive-In -- "Backseat Cabbie" and "Diary Of A Sinner." X-rated material

Fox 1 — "Players." Though the footage of Wimbledon competition is excellent, not to mention probably the best tennis footage ever captured for a feature film, this is basically a love story which does not work. Ali MacGraw, a former model whose acting career is quickly going down the tube, and Dean-Paul (he used to be Dino) Martin play a couple of truly mismatched lovers who never really manage to draw our sympathies. Miss MacGraw gives an exceptionally horrible performance, receiving little help from director Anthony Harvey. But Martin, when's he's not playing guitar (reliving his Dino, Desi & Billy bubblegum days) or flexing his muscles, has some strong scenes and shows a lot of potential.

Fox II — "The Main Event." Barbra Streisand and Ryan O'Neal, reunited for the first time since "What's Up, Doc," go for the funny bone once again. He's a former boxer and she's got his contract; he doesn't want to go back in the ring but she insists. Not screened at press time.

Fox III — "Prophecy." One of the biggest duds of the year, if only because we walk in expecting so much from screenwriter David Seltzer and director John Frankenheimer. An old fashioned monsters-created-by-man's-pollution story, this tale of a 15-foot-tall mutant killer in the Maine forests is predictable and often laughable. Subplots are not resolved and the special effects, with the exception of closeups of the baby monster, are ineffective. And if you're looking for good acting — look elsewhere. In short, if it's fear you're seeking, run don't walk to "Alien" at the South Plains Cinema.

Fox IV — "Escape From Alcatraz." After making one of his most insulting films of recent years ("Every Which Way But Loose"), Eastwood returns to the genre he knows best: the action drama. And his new film has definite potential in that he's finally returned to the grasp of talented action director Don Siegel. Not screened at press time.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Front Screen — "Halloween" and "The Toolbox Murders." Believe it or not, the former is one of the decade's best horror films. "Halloween" makes use of every horror cliche imaginable and keeps us jumping throughout. Don't go looking for valid explanations, or characters of intelligence. But do go expecting to be thoroughly entertained. Director John Carpenter uses the subjective camera approach to great effect, giving us a 21-year-old killer (a demon force perhaps?) who returns to the small town where he first committed murder 15 years earlier. Again, on Halloween night. "The Toolbox Murders" was not screened at press time.

Golden Horseshoe Drive-In, Back Screen — "Buck Rogers In The 25th Century" and "Message From Space." The former may be the funniest B-movie released this year. Despite an obvious tendency to rip off shows like "Star Wars" and "Battlestar Galactica," the tongue-in-cheek humor and comic book situations still have us slapping our thighs with mirth while watching Buck save Earth from the Draconian Empire. The kids are bound to love this one, and adults with a broad sense of humor may also get a kick out of it. "Message From Space" is a low budget Japanese war in the stars, and was not screened at press time.

Herne Box Office — This pay television station offers movies and specials usually not available on Lubbock's big screens. Premieres are held on HBO several times each week, and then repeated throughout the month. Tonight will see HBO premiere a new Steve Martin concert special, this one called "The Funnier Side Of Eastern Canada." Saturday's highlight is "Earthquake" (minus the Sensurround), and Sunday's special attraction is called "Abracadabra, It's Magic" and concentrates on the world's best magicians. Highlights from Wimbledon tennis competition will be aired Monday through Wednesday.

Looking ahead: July will offer the movie "The Boys In Company C," as well as more Wimbledon action.

Showplace I — "Rocky II." At the end of the Academy Award winning "Rocky," Rocky Balboa and champion Apollo Creed agreed there would be no rematch. But that's all changed as the sequel finds Rocky and Adrian marrying and having trouble coping, and goes on to pit Rocky and Apollo against each other once more in the boxing ring. All of the principals from the celebrated first film — Sylvester Stallone, Talia Shire, Burt Young, Burgess Meredith and Carl Weathers — return in the sequel, and Stallone (not the accomplished John Avildsen) is now directing. Not screened at press time.

A sidenote: United Artists has already given Stallone the go-ahead to film "Rocky"

Showplace II — "The Dark." A new supernatural thriller, and a pretty poor one at that. William Devane looks pretty embarrassed by the whole thing, disguising himself as a longhaired novelist interested in finding thr weirdo who wrenched his little girl's head off. Turns out the weirdo is an alien, clad in a Levi jacket and jeans and able to shoot lightning bolts out of his eyes, which goes around decapitating folks on a nightly basis. We never really learn why. Cathy Lee Crosby (last seen bedding a high school jock in "Coach") has a supporting role as a TV reporter, but is still not dramatically tested, John Cardos' direction is not without its suspenseful high points, but only rarely treats the subject matter intelligently. The low points of the film are unquestionably Richard Jaeckal's portrayal of a cop who wouldn't know a civil right if it jumped up and bit him on the nose, and Cardos' silly inclusion of a blind man as his "McGuffin."

Showplace III — "Butch And Sundance: The Early Days." Though we've been flooded with sequels, this has to be our first so-called "prequel." Tom Berenger takes the Paul Newman role, and William Katt plays the early Robert Redford part. Under the direction of the talented Richard Lester (he helmed the Beatles' films and "The Three Musketeers"), our two stars show us how Butch and the Kid first met and made do before becoming famous with the Hole In The Wall Gang. Not screened at press time.

Shewplace IV — "The China Syndrome." Starring Jack Lemmon, Jane Fonda and Michael Douglas (and certain to win the former two Academy Award nominations next year), this film manages to be both exciting and topical. It is also, without a doubt, the most important film yet released in 1979. The plot concerns itself with an accident at a nuclear power plant, but even those who don't care for the political implications (and how can you not care after life imitated art at Harrisburg?) will be kept on the edge of their seats by the thriller's tension. The entire cast is superb, but Jack Lemmon stands out more than any other as the power plant employee who must come to grips with his own conscience. Though the filmmakers insist it was not intentional, there is also a highway murder scene which brings to mind the Karen Silkwood case.

Shewplace V — "Racquet." Bert Convy stars as a former Wimbledon champ now hustling rich women so he can set up his own tennis club. Reportedly a comedy in the "Shampoo" vein. Not screened at press time.

Showplace VI — "Love At First Bite." Surprise! This spoof on the Dracula legend is really pretty funny, actually hilarious whenever Richard Benjamin is on the screen. The plot finds George Hamilton, as Count Dracula, evicted from his Transylvanian castle and traveling to the Big Apple in search of fashion model Susan Saint James (who dies her hair blonde for this film). Benjamin plays a psychiatrist descended from noted vampire hunter Dr. Van Helsing. The laughs come pretty much non-stop, with everyone involved keeping the mood tongue-in-cheek. Look for a lovable performance from Arte Johnson as the count's bug-eating loyal assistant.

South Plains Cinema I, Mall — "Alien." Without a doubt the most involving and terrifying outer space horror film ever released. Ridley Scott's direction is so meticulous, capitalizing on gruesome shock without exploiting it, surrounding his every scene with a hint of menace. Beautifully lit, photographed, edited and scored, "Alien" offers superb special effects and gut-wrenching pacing as it turns the old "us vs. it" formula into something which immediately fills the viewer with a sense of both excitement and impending doom. That we get a terrific performance from Sigourney Weaver as Ripley is just frosting on the cake, because this is undeniably a director's film. Certain to wind up the most popular film of the summer (deservedly so), and one of the most frightening films of all time.

South Plains Cinema II, Mall — "The In-Laws." An unexpected comedy hit. Arthur Hiller's erratic directing is saved by the pure and simple fact that Alan Arkin and Peter Falk make a terrific comedic team. Falk's low key unexcitable boy is perfectly complimented by Arkin's high strung dentist. Together, they somehow manage to engage in running gun battles, encounter a crazy South American dictator and make a couple million bucks before their kids get married on the weekend. A film which must be seen to be believed. Just let yourself go and have a good time.

South Plains Cinema III, Mall — "Van Nuys Boulevard." Judging by the ads, this is another film about living and loving and crusing the boulevard. Not screened at press time.

South Plains Cinema IV, Mall — "Same Time, Next Year." Playwright turned screenwriter Bernard Slade has refused to open up his tepid little Neil Simon clone for the screen and, as a result, the cinema version of his hit stageplay is predictable to the point of being yawn inspiring. The whole thing is just too stage-y — but luckily for Slade (and us), the performances are strong enough to keep us from walking out. Alan Alda and Ellen Burstyn, the latter an Oscar nominee, work wonderfully together. One only wishes they d held out for a stronger screenplay.

Village — "Every Which Way But Loose." Clint Eastwood stars with an orangutan named Clyde, but only Clyde has an excuse for making this nauseating piece of trash. After all, he (H?) couldn't read the script, Laced with country music, this picture is an insult to liberals, conservatives, rednecks, music lovers, animal lovers and anybody who prefers movies offering entertainment. But don't ever make the mistake of thinking a critic makes or breaks a movie, since "Every Which Way But Loose" has already earned much more money than any other Clint Eastwood movie released to date.

Winchester — "Beyond The Poseidon Adventure." Now come on, did any of you really expect this to turn out to be a good movie? If you did, I have some bad news for you. This one ranks with "Hurricane" and "The Promise" as the worst films released so far this year. A talented cast sells out for fat paychecks and goes through the motions as a rotten screenplay and even worse direction by Irwin Allen traps them in the capsized ocean liner Poseidon. Michael Caine and Sally Field are the big losers (let's hope this flick doesn't hurt Miss Field's Oscar chances for "Norma Rae"), but one also has to feel sorry for Karl Malden. A pittiul film, one which should be avoided at all costs. Luckily, it only has a week left to haunt us, as James Bond is booked to come back next Friday.

Merning Shows — Showplace Six will screen the G-rated film "Treasure Island" (not the version with Wallace Beery) at 10 a.m. Saturday. The admission charge is either a Rainbow Bread wrapper, a Dr. Pepper bottle, a Borden's Milk carton (milk cartons from school cafeterias are not acceptable), a bag from Mister Doughnut or $1 in cold cash.

Midnight Shows — Showplace Six will screen the 1978 remake of "Invasion Of The Body Snatchers" at midnight tonight and Saturday. Phil Kaufman's picture not only boasted some of the year's finest special effects and editing and cinematography, but also succeeded on two levels: first, as a dandy science fiction story and second, as a statement of conformity vs. individualism. It stars Donald Sutherland, Brooke Adams and Leonard Nirnoy (with a great supporting performance from Veroncia Cartwright, also now on screen in "Alien"). The Fox Theater will have midnight shows tonight and Saturday of "Pink Floyd," a film by the rock group of the same name which offers a lot for the ears but very little for the eyes. Showplace will also offer late showings tonight and Saturday of "Rocky II." "The Dark," "Butch And Sundance: The Early Days," "The China Syndrome" and "Love At First Bite." Check the movie listings in today's Avalanche-Journal for gract showtimes.

and Saturday of "Rocky II." "The Dark," "Butch And Sundance: The Early Days, "The China Syndrome" and "Love At First Bite." Check the movie listings in today's Avalanche-Journal for exact showtimes.

The Red Cross

QUESTION: What is the Red Cross?

ANSWER: The Red Cross is a worldwide organization that aims to relieve human suffering. Among the programs conducted by the organization are those which aid victims of disasters, collect and distribute blood, aid veterans and servicemen and instruct in health and safety. The Red Cross is financed by voluntary contributions.

The International Red Cross began with an idea from a Swiss philanthrop-ist named Jean Henri Dunant. In 1859, while touring Italy during wartime, Dunant visited a battlefield. There, he was horrified to see the suffering of the wounded. In 1862, Dunant described his feelings in a pamphlet which pro-posed the formation of an international volunteer organization to aid the wounded in wartime. Representatives of many nations met in Geneva in 1864 to formulate the "International Red Cross Treaty."

America did not become officially involved with the Red Cross until 1882 when the U.S. adopted the treaty. The American Red Cross was organized, and in 1905, it was granted a charter that established the basic organization that exists today.

The Red Cross is named for its symbol, a red cross on a white background. The design was adopted to honor Switzerland, whose flag is a white cross on a red field, where the organization began. In Muslim countries, the symbol is (Holly Reagan, of Plainville, Conn., wins a prize for this question. The 14-year-old Lubbock Christian High School sophomore also was second runner-up in beauty in the contest, which had 100 entrants. Her father, Dub Manis, is a Lubbock Christian College football coach. Her mother, Murvelle Manis, is a house parent at Children's Home of Lubbock.

To test the popularity of President
Carter these days, citizens were asked,
"If you had to vote tomorrow, would you mark your ballot for Jimmy Carter?

Mike Bates said, "I guess it would depend on who else was running. I didn't vote for Carter last time."

didn't vote for Carter last time."

Paula Polka commented, "No, I wouldn't vote for Carter. Who would I vote for instead? — Senator Kennedy."

Joe Henderson said, "I'm really undecided now about who I would vote for. But it's a long way off, so I guess I have some time to think about it. I am uncertain who could do better and will have to think about that also."

To delve further into the intriguing question, Update will continue its interviewing next week and hopefully come up with more responses.

eyes and answers

Dear Dr. Pettey: My dad had a hem-orrhage in his right eye, and he was sent to Dallas where the laser beam was used to stop it. Can you tell me how it works and can you see a hemorrhage when you look in an eye - that is, if there is one

Yes, the hemorrhage can be seen in most instances by looking through the pupil with a light. When one is found and the patient does not necessarily know he has it — the eye surgeon ad-ministers whatever care he knows is required. In you dad's case, the ophthalologist obviously decided the laser beam procedure was required to stop the hemorrhaging and save the vision. The beam cauterized a tiny spot in the blood vessel, stopping the spreading of the hemorrhaging somewhat like tying a knot in a ravelling thread. Where and when needed, the use of the laser beam by a specially trained and skilled thalmologist is another of our mod ern-day miracles. I hope your dad's eye was saved; you didn't says.

Readers with other questions about eye care may address Dr. Pettey in care of this paper of the Texas Optometric Association, P.O. Box 2242, Austin, Tex-

Sign Up For Independence

When young people sign up for newspaper route work, they are really signing up for independence. The kind of independence that goes with earning your own money, running your own business and dealing with people on a one-to-one basis.

Our carriers are young business men and women. They provide a vital service, handle their own finances and reap a handsome profit from their efforts. What better training to prepare them for the future?

If you are interested in stepping into the business world and declaring your own independence, contact our carrier manager right now. He'll give you all of the important facts about carrier work. Then, if you are still interested, he'll provide the pen and show you where to sign ... even if your name is John Hancock.
