Roping camp fun

More than 100 kids showed up for the Muleshoe Cowboy Fellowship's 11th annual Christian Roping Camp at the Good Times Arena on Hwy. 214.

The camp, which included recreational roping and church services, concluded with evening worship Tuesday evening.

An estimated 200 per day joined in at the camp's noon day meal, and about 250 at the evening meal prior to the worship services, according to Pastor Steve Friskup.

'Caring son' joins father in local medical practice

Escaping small-town America might be the dream of many college graduates and professionals, but such hasn't been the case for Muleshoe's latest physician, Dr. Tyson Purdy, who says he's always dreamed of practicing medicine in a rural community.

Add to the fact that the rural community is the one he and his wife Kayla, a graduate of Lazbuddie High School, had grown up in — complete with friends and family, and you get a feeling about how special this career move is.

"It's good to be back in West Texas," said Dr.

Dr. Tyson Purdy, MD

Purdy — the son of Dr. Bruce and Cindy Purdy, also of Muleshoe.

Graduating from Muleshoe High School in 2000, Tyson Purdy attended Texas Tech University before graduating and attending the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

After graduating from UTMB in 2008, Purdy completed his residency in San Antonio.

"All I've ever wanted to do, since I was three years old," he said, "was practice medicine."

While attending Texas Tech, Purdy said he tried to keep his mind open concerning other professions, but said, "Nothing else made sense."

He also said it sounded like a cliché, but he wanted to make a difference, and felt he could best accomplish that through a family medicine practice in a rural community such as his home town of Muleshoe. "It's a calling," Purdy said about a rural medical practice.

Purdy said it was important to him to be able to develop a deeper relationship with his patients than he felt he could do in an urban medical setting. "That's what it's all about," he said.

Purdy will be working with his father, and

"All I've ever wanted to do, since I was three years old... was practice medicine."

Dr. Grant Nitzel, at the Muleshoe Family Medicine Clinic. "Dad and I will work fine together," he added.

Although the young-looking Dr. Purdy — he says he's use to the frequent comparisons to television series physician "Doogie Howser, MD," recognizes the continuing need for his father in the area medical system, it shouldn't be a great surprise that a caring son would hope his joining the practice at the clinic

Area residents have been successful at escaping heat

High temperatures have been blamed for medical problems across the nation; however, according to medical personnel in Muleshoe, no heat-related illnesses have been treated to date.

"They've done a good job staying out of the sun and heat," one local official noted about this year's lack of such incidents.

"Hope it stays that way," said another when discussing the lack of patients exhibiting heat-induced symptoms.

And while the recent rainfall has raised the possibility of an end to Bailey County's drought, the increased humidity can join with the high temperatures to raise the area's heat index and reduce the body's ability to recover from the high temperature conditions.

According to information received from Janet M. Pollard, MPH, of the Texas AgriLife Extension, excessive exposure to a hot environment, especially while active or working, can bring about a variety of heat-induced symptoms — some mild and some severe.

Heat illness can range from mild to moderate cramping and leg swelling to more severe heat exhaustion and even fatal heat stroke if the body's temperature is not brought down.

In all these cases, you will want to get the person to a cooler environment — an air conditioned building if possible — or under a shade tree or other

Who is the chamber?

A couple of weeks ago, we asked the question, "What is the chamber?" and expressed our concerns and opinion about the Muleshoe Chamber of Commerce & Agriculture.

Of course Muleshoe's chamber isn't the only chamber facing such issues. Occasionally, as a member of newspaper associations in Texas, we're called upon to judge newspapers in other states, with the most recent being from the State of Washington, where interestingly enough we learned some of the communities were asking themselves the same question: How does a chamber return its focus to promoting business and not just events.

But there is another side to the issue that also needs to be addressed, and that question is "Who should be involved in the chamber?"

For the most part, the local chamber's work is done by the members of the chamber's executive committee. The executive committee plans various events, but with a few exceptions, the work is carried out by those same committee members.

Yes, the chamber needs some method of gathering or gauging the opinions and desires of its membership, but it also needs members who will spend some of their time improving the community and the chamber organization.

Over the years, we have been told the primary objection to service on the chamber's executive board is the amount of time and effort involved.

Without an active chamber membership, the work continually falls upon the chamber's executive board to provide both the leadership and the muscle needed to carry out the chamber's projects.

And while the chamber has attempted to utilize a variety of committees in year's past, it is our understanding that such attempts failed due to a lack of willing participation.

Remember, it's not your chamber unless you make it "your chamber." Get involved.

MISD school board...

Continued from page 1 of deposit at two percent interest, a higher rate than the school district has been receiving through its Lone Star account.

Investing through the Certificate of Deposit Account Registry Service program had been previously approved by the school board, and allows investments of more than $100,000 to still be covered by the FDIC.

"We're not putting that much in," Dr. Sheets said.

According to the superintendent, the school district would only invest about $2 million in the CDs, and would receive an estimated $40,000 in interest.

Births

Romylie Valadez

Jesus Valadez and Belen Nunez of Muleshoe announce the birth of their daughter, Romylie Adelice Valadez, on July 1, 2011, at 11:16 a.m., at Lamb Healthcare Center of Littlefield.

Romylie weighed seven pounds, five ounces at birth, and was 19-3/4 inched in length.

Her grandparents are Juan and Alicia Nunez, and Guillermo and Acдела Valadez.

Precautions for high temperatures listed

You will also want to be sure the person is hydrated with regular sips of cool (not ice cold) water or electrolyte-containing sports drink (unless vomiting ensues or heat stroke symptoms are evident).

For cramping, you can apply firm pressure or gentle massage.

For legswelling, elevate the legs. Call a doctor if elevation doesn't bring the swelling down.

For heat exhaustion (characterized by dizziness or feeling faint, headache, nausea, profuse sweating, clammy/cool skin, rapid/weak pulse, low-grade fever, low blood pressure, and ashen or pale appearance), get the person out of the sun; lay him/her down; and cool the body with cool, wet cloths (changing them often) or by spraying or sponging the body with cool water.

If signs of heat stroke are present (characterized by high body temperature [103 degrees F, orally]; red, hot, dry skin; no sweating; rapid heartbeat; rapid, shallow breathing; dizziness; nausea, confusion, irritability, and/or unconsciousness), call 9-1-1 immediately, and begin cooling the body in whatever way possible.

Time is crucial, so use whatever means are available for cooling — get the victim to shade or air conditioning; immerse the victim in a cool bath or shower, or spray with a garden water hose; sponge or spray with cool water.

If the humidity is low, you can wrap the victim in a cool, wet sheet and fan him/her vigorously. Do not give the victim fluids in this case.

To stay safe in the heat and prevent heat illness, allow your body to adjust by limiting your activity at first.

Slow down and avoid strenuous activity during the hottest parts of the day (between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.), if possible.

Wear a wide-brimmed hat; wrap around, 100 percent UV protective sunglasses; and loose fitting, lightweight, light-colored clothing to allow some of the sun's energy to be reflected away from the body.

Drink plenty of water even if you are not thirsty. Your body needs water to stay cool. If you are doing strenuous activity for more than one hour, try an electrolyte-replenishing drink, like Gatorade™ or Powerade™.

Eat well-balanced, light, regular meals. Avoid salt tablets unless directed to do so by your doctor.

Check on family, friends, and neighbors who do not have air conditioning or who spend much of their time alone. If possible, spend the warmest part of the day in public buildings with air conditioning, such as libraries, schools, theaters, malls, or other community facilities.

If air conditioning is not available, stay on the lowest level of the building. Never leave children or pets alone in a closed vehicle, even when you crack or roll down the windows — temperatures inside a vehicle climb higher than the outdoor temperature.

Giving the body time to adjust to the heat, staying hydrated, and being aware of the signs of heat illness can help keep you and your loved ones safe in the sun.

HPWC board approves district rules amendments

High Plains Underground Water Conservation Dist. No. 1 Board of Directors approved rule amendments to implement the district's 50/50 management goal to have 50 percent of the saturated thickness of the Ogallala Aquifer in 2010 available for use in 2060 during its Tuesday, July 19, meeting.

State law requires that groundwater conservation districts adopt and enforce rules to implement and achieve their established management goals in order to maintain local control over groundwater management.

In order to achieve the 50/50 goal, the rule amendments establish the first-ever production limit for groundwater pumpage by water users within the 16-county High Plains Water District service area. This includes agriculture, municipalities, public water suppliers, and others.

"These rules are a good start, but the High Plains Water District Board of Directors and staff are committed to the rules being a living document as we go forward. We know issues will arise that can be addressed through tweaks and adjustments," Board President Robert Meyer of Canyon and General Manager Jim Conkwright agreed.

Beginning in 2012 and continuing through 2013, all persons owning or operating an existing, new, or pre-district well or well system pumping groundwater from the Ogallala Aquifer must limit the total amount of production to 1.75 acre-feet (21 inches) per contiguous acre per year.

The production limit drops to 1.5 acre-feet (18 inches) per contiguous acre per year during 2014-2015, and is lowered to 1.25 acre-feet (15 inches) per contiguous acre per year in 2016 and beyond.

In addition, metering of groundwater and submission of annual production reports to the district will be required in the future.

Beginning Jan. 1, 2012, all new water wells or well systems in the district are required to have a meter in place before pumping can occur. Existing water wells or well systems may measure groundwater through an alternative measuring method from 2012 to 2016. These systems must be equipped with meters no later than Jan. 1, 2016.

A list of approved meters and alternate measuring methods will be made available on the High Plains Water District web site on or about Sept. 1, 2011.

Wells or well systems with fully functioning meters as of the date that the district's approved meter list is published are "grandfathered" and will remain so as long as the meter remains fully functional.

Owners or operators of wells required to be metered must submit annual production reports to the High Plains Water District. The first annual production report is for production during calendar year 2012 and must be submitted to the district no later than March 1, 2013.

The 4-0 vote to adopt the proposed rules was preceded by a public comment period in which agricultural producers and others spoke for and against adoption of the new rules.

Precinct One District Director James Powell of Lubbock thanked those in attendance for their participation in the rulemaking process.

"We may not all be right and we may not all be wrong. But one thing is for certain — when the water is gone, none of us will be here. We encourage you to stay engaged as the Water District continues the process to meet its 50/50 management goal. I assure you there will be adjustments, as needed, along the way," he said.

Created in 1951 by local residents and the State Legislature, the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District No. 1 is charged with the responsibility of conserving, preserving, protecting, and preventing waste of groundwater within its 16-county service area.

"Giving of yourself, learning to be tolerant, giving recognition and approval to others, remaining flexible enough to mature and learn - yields happiness, harmony, contentment and productivity. These are the qualities of a rich life, the bounteous harvest of getting along with people."

Senior Citizen News

By Laverne Winn

The days of summer are going by. It will be time for school and fall activities before we know it. We hope and pray our rains continue.

Monday, July 25, the POD's group will be meeting at the Oneita Wagnon Senior Center, beginning at 6 .m. If you have signed up to participate with this group be sure and come.

The dances have been cancelled for the time being. If the senior center's board decides to try them again in the fall, everyone will get a notice.

We will miss seeing all of our out of town friends. We invite you to come visit and have lunch with us anytime.

Wednesday, July 27, Kathy Carr, from the AgriLife Extension Office will be bringing her nutrition program.

Kathy's program are always informative and helpful. We really appreciate her giving her time for us. She also gives prizes.

Thursday, July 28, would be a good day for you to call a friend, come have lunch, then stay and enjoy Bingo at 1:30 p.m. There is a lot of friendship and laughter during the games.

Refreshments are provided and prizes are given. Karen Jones so graciously gives her time to call Bingo for us. We appreciate IntegraCare and Karen.

We have missed several of our senior friends due to illness. We hope and pray that you will soon be well and back at the center.

Menu for July 25-29:
Monday, July 25 —

Chicken Alfredo, salad, wheat rolls, fruit and cookies.

Tuesday, July 26 — Hamburger casserole, greens, salad, biscuits and cake.

Wednesday, July 27 — Grilled steak, gravy, mashed potatoes, green beans, salad, wheat roll and cherry cobbler.

Thursday, July 28 — Ham and potato casserole, peas and carrots, salad, wheat rolls and pudding.

Friday, July 29 — Fish or chicken strips, gravy, pinto beans, coleslaw, cornbread and fruit salad.

Earth ranch rodeo to be held

The Earth Roping Club will be hosting a ranch rodeo Friday and Saturday, July 29-30, beginning at 7 p.m. nightly.

The event will include wild cow milking, mugging, doctoring, ranch bronc, branding and team penning. A parade is set for 5:30 p.m. Tickets for the rodeo are $6 for adults and $4 for children.

There is a $500 per team entry fee.

How much water to expect?

It seemed as if the US Coast Guard was trying to tell Muleshoe residents something last week when a pair of US Coat Guard MLBs showed up in Bailey County after it first rain in months. According to Gary Phelps of Justin Boat Transport, the motor lifeboat pictured above was being transported from Cape Canaveral, Fla., to San Francisco, Calif. The other boat was headed to Oregon.

Breaking God's covenant is like a troubled marriage

Lamplight By Larry Thornton

In many instances, the New Testament compares the relationship between Christ and his church to that between a man and a woman within the bonds of matrimony.

The church is called the Bride of Christ, and the Bible describes the celebration after the rapture as a wedding feast.

In Revelations 19:7, NIV, we read, "Let us rejoice and be glad and give him glory! For the wedding of the Lamb has come and his bride has made herself ready."

Just as marriage is the most intimate of human relationships, the relationship between Christ and his church is a deeply intense, loving relationship. And just as the covenant of marriage is sacred, so is the covenant between God and his people.

While the Book of Malachi also talks about the relationship between God and his people, the picture it paints is of a troubled marriage. In fact, some of the same type of behavior that has endangered many relationships between a husband and a wife are seen in the first couple of chapters endangering the bond between God and his chosen people.

In the first chapter of Malachi, the Bible talks about how the children of God were doubting God's relationship with them. Even though God's love for Israel as his chosen people existed prior to the existence of Israel, they questioned his love.

But even more than God's love, this passage says they were doubting God's election... God's decision to honor them as his chosen people.

We know God loves all mankind. However, the nation of Israel was set aside as something special in the eyes of God.

Malachi's message was being delivered about 100 years after the Jews had returned from exile in Babylon. But they were still under foreign domination and experiencing difficulties. The people of Judah were saying, "How could you love us when you've removed your blessings from us?"

The blessings they thought should be forthcoming, according to what they chose to remember from their covenant relationship with God had failed to arrive. What they didn't understand was that their misfortune was a result of their disobedience.

In the same way, God loves us. In this, there should be no doubt. God loves you, and always will. In fact, Malachi 3:6, reminds us that the Lord does not change.

The first chapter of Malachi also tells us how God's chosen people were taking their relationship with God for granted.

considered for 20 seconds, and said, "Mr. Williams is right — forget everything I have said."

Amazing humility! And true humility is always impressive.

Most folks don't even begin to realize how much we are blessed by those like the good professor and so many others who have devoted their lives to helping us better understand God's written word.

May we never forget that the real purpose of God's written revelation — every page — is to help us know and become like the Lord behind it.

Knowing its facts but not its Author would be sad indeed. The more we truly know of him the more truly humble we will become.

'That person really knows the Bible!'

"Wow! That person really knows the Bible!" I hear that comment made fairly often, and I always wonder what the speaker means.

Focus On Faith
Curtis Shelburne

Usually they mean that someone is quite familiar with the words of the Bible, its many facts and wonderful stories, etc. On one level, that's great, since most studies these days show that the general level of factual Bible knowledge among even Christians is appalling.

But then I wonder, how much does that person whose Bible knowledge is being touted really understand about God's written revelation?

For example, how much does he understand about the various types of literature that are contained in the Scriptures?

Does she realize that being serious about learning what a particular book of the Bible has to teach means being serious enough to learn something about its context and setting? And on we could go.

I don't doubt for a moment that one doesn't have to have credentials as a Bible scholar to derive great blessing from simply reading the Bible and learning about the amazingly Good News of God's love.

But neither do I doubt that those who have worked hardest to truly know the most about the facts, the message, and the meaning of the Bible are the very last to ever claim to know much about it at all.

You might as well claim to truly know the Milky Way, and only the most foolish and blind astronomer would ever make that claim.

I've been enjoying Dr. Eugene Peterson's memoir, The Pastor. One of Peterson's most truly wise and learned teachers at the Johns Hopkins University was Professor William Albright, then perhaps the world's leading scholar in biblical archaeology and Semitic studies.

Peterson says that one day Dr. Albright walked into the classroom greatly excited.

For years scholars had been debating the exact location (and meaning) of Mount Moriah, where Abraham had "bound Isaac for sacrifice."

Dr. Albright had awakened that morning to suddenly realize that he had discovered some very important answers.

He stood before his doctoral students and laid it all out, filling the chalkboard with Ugaritic, Arabic, Assyrian, Aramaic, and Hebrew words pertinent to the issue.

He'd gone on for 20 minutes when one of his best students raised his hand and asked, "But Dr. Albright, what about..."

Peterson says that the professor stopped,

A lack of appreciation within a relationship is more dangerous than many realize. You come home from a hard day at work and cook a meal, and no one expresses appreciation for your effort. You mow the lawn, and no says "Thank you."

What's being said is all of that spouse's efforts aren't of value. You always tip your waiter 15 percent, but the man or woman to whom you've pledged your life isn't worth even that.

Some of us need to remember that a simple "I love you," or "thank you" costs a lot less than a divorce attorney.

The Israelites were also showing their lack of appreciation for God by offering blemished sacrifices. In fact, this goes beyond a lack of appreciation, the Bible tells us it is total disrespect.

The priests no excuse for their actions, yet when they are confronted their response was to question the admonition of God.

We do likewise today when we don't worship God in truth... when we only worship halfheartedly.

We need to remember that our worship, like driving a car, is a privilege and not a right. We are permitted to offer acceptable worship only by the grace of God.

And in the second chapter of Malachi, the Bible tells us how Judea was allowing others to interfere in their relationship with God. Maybe the Israelites would have been Dolly Parton fans, because as her song goes, "Here we go again."

Throughout the history of the Israelites, the entire nation has repeatedly been dragged into the mud by its unwillingness to follow the instructions given to Joshua when they first reached the Promised Land. But we shouldn't be judgmental, because mankind in eons past and today has a tendency to repeat its sins. Once more, the Israelites were marrying Canaanites, and were being lead away from the true God.

Just as God disapproves of adultery, he disapproves of his people falling into idolatry. Our God is a jealous God. In both the Old and the New Testament, God tells us that nothing should be allowed to interfere with our relationship to God.

As the bride of Christ we are called to remain faithful to him. Without fidelity, marriage as God intended it to be cannot exist.

How about you? Has something come into your life this past week that threatens your relationship with God? If so, God asks that you do the same thing he told the church in Ephesus, "Repent and do the things you did at first."

Texas NRCS offers additional funding following wildfires

Landowners affected by wildfires in the West Texas region can apply for financial assistance through the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) for range deferment of all livestock grazing throughout the growing season, plant health concerns, and cross fencing assistance.

Mickey Black, NRCS assistant state conservationist said, "NRCS is prepared to assist landowners with prescribed grazing for deferment to rejuvenate plant health and prevent soil erosion due to drought and the effects from wildfires. We want to provide assistance that will enable landowners and livestock producers to accelerate the recovery of the health and vigor of affected grazing land."

Wildlife habitat also can be impacted by wildfires and NRCS can provide technical and financial assistance in re-establishing the habitats for desired species.

Texas NRCS receives funding for Lesser Prairie-Chicken Habitat Panhandle and South Plains water conservation projects

The USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) has also announced available funding through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) for the Lesser Prairie-Chicken (LPC) Initiative which is targets specific counties in the Panhandle and South Plains regions.

In addition to LPC funds, additional funds are now available through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) to address water conservation concerns through the Agricultural Water Enhancement Program (AWEP) and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative.

The LPC priority area includes Bailey, Parmer, Castro, Lamb and Cochran Counties.

The LPC initiative is a local and regional working partnership through the NRCS EQIP program focused on assisting producers in conservation plan development to help maintain, establish, improve and manage habitat for the LPC.

"This program provides an opportunity for cropland and rangeland producers in the designated priority counties to implement practices for improved Lesser Prairie-Chicken habitat and grazing conditions on rangeland," said Manuel DeLeon, NRCS wildlife biologist in Lubbock.

"This current drought situation may have some farmers and ranchers thinking about critical areas that have been impacted by dry conditions, high-winds and wildfires. For example, these funds may be used by producers to plant native grasses on critical cropland areas to minimize erosion and help improve LPC habitat." DeLeon said NRCS' efforts in planning habitat improvements for the LPC have proven successful since 2002.

"Our goal for the LPC initiative is to encourage more landowners and producers to participate in an effort to improve additional habitat and develop a comprehensive wildlife management plan that can specifically address the LPC habitat," DeLeon said. "Conservation practices include brush management, native grass planting, fencing, water facilities, livestock pipeline, watering facilities, and prescribed grazing."

In addition to LPC funds, additional funds are now available through the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) to address water conservation concerns through the Agricultural Water Enhancement Program (AWEP) and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative.

"AWEP and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative are both voluntary programs and provide financial and technical assistance to farmers and ranchers to improve water conditions on their agricultural land," said Salvador Salinas, NRCS state conservationist for Texas. "With water supplies at an all time low, this is just one more way agriculture can help conserve its use."

AWEP and the Ogallala Aquifer Initiative promote ground and surface water conservation by helping farmers and ranchers implement agricultural water enhancement activities. Projects address water quantity resource concerns in the 49 Panhandle and South Plains counties within the Aquifer area.

Types of water enhancement activities include water quantity or water conservation plan development; irrigation system improvements and irrigation efficiency enhancements; water conservation restoration and activities designed to mitigate the effects of drought. All these activities are utilized to enhance water quantity or water conservation benefits on agricultural lands.

Producers are encouraged to work with NRCS on conservation planning assistance to develop a conservation plan as a primary tool for long-term management of their natural resources.

"Benefits of a conservation plan go a long way in helping producers protect and improve their land," said Jon Weddle, NRCS program manager in Lubbock. "The plan will help producers qualify for NRCS financial assistance to implement the conservation practices to make the changes on their farms or ranches. It will also serve as a planning tool, and can be modified as they change their objectives and goals throughout the years."

Jump! Leap! Hop!

Animals jump to move to somewhere, to get out of danger, to catch food and to show off for others.

Not all animals can jump. Can you unscramble these letters to name one animal that cannot jump?

Dolphins leap through the air to save energy.

I am a jumping mouse. I weigh under an ounce and am 3 to 4 inches long. I can jump up to 13 feet!

Next, read the clues and fill in the puzzle with the names of animals that do jump!

Flies jump backward when they take off.

When a little worm living inside a "Mexican Jumping Bean" moves, it makes the bean look as if it is jumping.

Kangaroos cannot walk backwards like I can!

Across:

- can jump up to 20 feet out of the water; easier for them to move through air than water - it saves energy
- live all around us; they jump using a silk line
- active during the day, they blend into the grass, and jump using their "spring-loaded" legs
- also called mountain lions, can leap up to 18 feet in the air and as far as 40 feet
- carry their young in their pouches; they are from Australia
- can be trained to race and jump over obstacles in a certain amount of time
- are antelopes; most live in Africa

Down:

- a rodent; can jump up to 12 feet; likes to eat grass seeds and fruits
- do not really fly; a loose fold of skin between their front legs and hind legs lets them glide from tree to tree
- are active at night; can jump up to 20-30 times their body length, or about 3 feet
- hop along everywhere except in Antarctica; they like carrots

Unscrambled letters: H P N L E A T

Clues for crossword: 1. grasshoppers, 2. horses, 3. jumping spiders, 4. gazelles, 5. kangaroos, 6. cougars, 7. flying squirrels, 8. crickets, 9. rabbits, 10. dolphins, 11. jumping mouse.

Texas milk production is up from last year

Texas milk production totaled 803 million pounds during June, up 10 percent from last year's production of 728 million pounds. May production totaled 839 million pounds. The number of milk cows during June averaged 434,000 head, up 24,000 head from last year and up 4,000 head from the May number. Production per cow averaged 1,850 pounds during June, 75 pounds more than last year and 100 pounds less than May. Milk production in the 23 states participating in the monthly survey totaled 15.4 billion pounds, up 1.4 percent from production in these same states in June 2010. May revised production, at 16.1 billion pounds, was up 1.6 percent from May 2010. Production per cow during June averaged 1,819 pounds, 2 pounds above a year ago. The average number of milk cows in the 23 states was 8.46 million head, 106,000 head more than last year and 11,000 head more than May 2011.

Bluegrass band performs, teaches at SPC's Camp Bluegrass

In the bluegrass music world, Chris Jones and the Night Riders are an "old band" as they mark their 10th year of performing. The award-winning International Bluegrass Music Association (IBMA) band is spent the week, July 17-22, at South Plains College's Camp Bluegrass where they are sharing their talents and their music to camp participants. In addition to teaching classes in guitar, banjo, bass and mandolin, Jones and band mate Ned Luberecki are airing their radio shows for SiriusXM Satellite Radio's Bluegrass Junction on Channel 61 from Levelland. Luberecki is famous for giving banjo lessons while on the air during his segments on Sunday afternoons. Jones has spent 18 years performing with artists such as The Chieftains (he was featured on their 2003 U.S. tour), Vassar Clements and the Lynn Morris Band. He performed with legendary country singer/songwriter Tom T. Hall on the song, "Man On the Side of the Road," which will be featured on the band's new CD. Jones was named "Broadcaster of the Year" at the IBMA's annual awards for his work as a DJ on Sirius Satellite Radio's bluegrass channel. He also won a co-writer's "Song of the Year" trophy for "Fork In the Road," the title track of "Album of the Year" winner the Infamous Stringdusters. Jones grew up in New York. At age 9, he moved to Albuquerque, N.M. where he got into bluegrass music. He left college at the University of Vermont after two years to pursue a career in music. He said he met his band mates at various festivals and officially became a band in 1995.

The Sudan Buzz

Sudan teacher recognized

Cheri Sain, a Family and Consumer Sciences teacher at Sudan High School, was recognized as a Master Adviser by Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA) at their 2011 National Leadership Conference. Held July 10-14 in Anaheim, Calif., the meeting welcomed more than 6,300 members, advisers, alumni, and guests.

Forty-two advisers from across the nation were recognized at the Advisors Recognition ceremony as being a Master Adviser.

Three teachers from the state of Texas were selected: Donna Corder, formerly of Muleshoe and now teaching at Lubbock Cooper, Cheri Sain from Sudan, and Tiffany Macklin from Petrolia.

FCCLA's Adviser Recognition Program seeks to reward outstanding local Family and Consumer Sciences teachers who make significant contributions to the organization. The Master Adviser program recognizes advisers who have been successful in leading an FCCLA chapter for at least three years.

These advisers promote the organization, operate an integrated chapter with a balanced program of work, and facilitate youth-centered activities while keeping abreast of the issues in their field.

Without capable adult leaders, students could not take advantage of the many opportunities offered through FCCLA. Being an effective adviser takes special skills and a tremendous commitment of time and energy.

Exceptional advisers motivate their chapters to take advantage of opportunities beyond the local level, use a wide variety of resources available to them, and encourage student involvement.

Family, Career and Community Leaders of America (FCCLA), is a dynamic and effective national student organization that helps young men and women become leaders and address important personal, family, work, and societal issues through Family and Consumer Sciences education.

FCCLA has more than 190,000 members and over 6,500 chapters from 50 state associations, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The organization has involved more than ten million youth since its founding in 1945.

FCCLA: The Ultimate Leadership Experience is unique among youth organizations because its programs are planned and run by members.

It is the only career and technical in-school student organization with the family as its central focus. Participation in national programs and chapter activities helps members become strong leaders in their families, careers, and communities.

When utilizing national programs,

65 percent of FCCLA advisers report teaching community service and 74 percent report teaching career preparation.

Summer reading program ends

The Sudan Elementary Reading Program ended the first week in July with another successful summer.

Several elementary students took advantage of the program where they had access to library books and the computer lab to continue their work on various programs including Study Island and other resources.

DeAnn Wilson, the new Sudan Elementary Principal, composed the number of participants this summer. Ninety-two students in total attended the Summer Reading Program. This is about a third of the elementary PK-7th grade.

On average, 15 students would be in attendance. Also, during the summer, the school offered summer tutoring for those who did not pass the TAKS test. These sessions ran through the month of June.

Just as a reminder, Sudan schools will begin another school year on Aug. 22. In-service training for teachers will begin the previous week.

The children of Texas come in all sizes, shapes, colors, and abilities. They do not all learn the same way, but they all learn!

Do you know a child ages 0-21 who shows signs of developmental delay, on-going learning problems, behavioral or medical problems that interfere with learning?

If so, please call our office for more information. For parents of very young children, we invite you to attend the Kindergarten Roundup at Dillman Elementary on August 8-9, 2011.

Muleshoe ISD will be screening young children birth through five who may have learning problems.

For more information please call the Special Education Office at 272-7323.
