Need for Willing Workers

They knew that they must fell the forests and build houses before they could have farms and homes It required initiative, industry, and vision to foresee fields of growing grain and comfortable homes where the primevaal forest held sway. But strong men with the love of land born in them did not hesitate to tackle the job. Each did for himself so far as he was able and asked no odds. Only when the task was too great for one alone was cooperation sought and help then was asked only that it might be given in turn. When difficulties beset them they solved the problems themselves. They were self-reliant because they knew that on themselves depended success. Villages grew and became cities in response to conditions that demanded them. Whatever progress was made was due to the efforts of individuals working alone or in cooperation with others. Our forefathers had no delusions about work. They knew that nothing is accomplished without effort. We appear to have gone far from the ideas of the pioneers. Too many people believe that there are shorter cuts to accomplishment than hard work coupled with good judgment. This, that and the other interest wants the government to do something. It is true that government can give encouragement to industry but the people themselves must act to gain the advantage of whatever inducements are offered. Here you have the picture of a Humble Service Station and what it offers you, the Texas motorist, in services and products. It is as complete a representation of the idea as can be achieved with printer's ink and paper, but - you can't draw a picture of the intangibles that go to make Humble service the favorite with Texans - such things as the friendliness of the men who render Humble service, the policies of the Company which provides it, the outstanding quality of the motor fuels, motor oils and lubricants; you can't draw a picture of things like that - you have to find out what shey mean.

Along about this time of the year we begin to get sun conscious. Last winter, remember, we longed for weather like this-honestly believed a real sunburn would be a thing of beauty and a joy forever! Now we're looking forward to the season when the thermometer will go down and down.

Strange? Not at all! One of our basic characteristics is desire for change. And your newspaper is dedicated to the daily satisfaction of this human need. Each day it is as new as that day's sunrise. Each day it is full of surprising things.

And nothing in it is newer in appeal or in opportunity than the advertisements. They are filled with facts about all the things you want today and will be wanting tomorrow. Always changing, to keep up with your own eternal desire for change, the advertisements in this newspaper are quide posts to happier living.
