THREE POINTS EMPHASIZED IN FIRESIDE CHAT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—The administration advanced the ever-normal granary principles of controlled production and stored surpluses today as the basis for new farm legislation. The ever-normal granary endorsed in principle by President Roosevelt in his radio address last night and which he is expected to ask the special session of congress to enact immediately, provided for: 1. Storage of surpluses in years of plenty for use in lean years. 2. Adjustment of production to expected domestic and foreign demands. 3. Stabilization of prices through a constant and even supply of farm products reaching market.

The program provides for federal control of production through establishment of quotas for every farmer producing one of the principle crops of cotton, corn, wheat, rice, sugar, potatoes and oats. Benefit payment from the federal treasury would be made to farmers who produced within their quotas and observed land use practices prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture. Penalties would be assessed those who failed to comply.

MIDGETS GAME WITH PUTNAM IS POSTPONED

Grammar school Midgets will not play Putnam at Chesley field Thursday as scheduled as the game has been postponed indefinitely, because of rain and the death of one of Putnam's players' mother. However, the Midgets are drilling constantly whenever the weather will permit so that their triumphal march toward victory for the entire district will not be interrupted. Principal C. C. Duff and Coach V. E. Andrews are working the team hard. They are enthusiastic and keep plenty of pep instilled into the team. Here is probable lineup that would have been used had the game not been postponed: Marcell Lenz, lt; Felix Alsip, lt; John Potter, ig; Glen Duggert, c; N. M. Coats, rg; Kenneth Tomlinson, rt; J. M. Eudy, re; Billy Ray Dill, q; Garland Lasater, rh; Henry Tipton, lb; Billy Fred Mitchell or Wilburn Boyd, f.

CIVIL APPEALS COURT CHANGES FORMER RULING

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—The court of civil appeals today specifically overruled its former holdings on accomplice testimony in an opinion by Justice O. S. Latimore and held that liquor board agents are not accomplices when they buy intoxicants for the purpose of obtaining conviction. The ruling allows conviction on the uncorroborated testimony of enforcement officers. This testimony would be required to support a conviction if they were accomplices.

20 Years Later—Still Shooting

Twenty years, more or less, may have widened their waists and thinned their hair, but it hadn't affected the American doughboy's fondness for the peculiar pastime in Cherbourg and started a game in the station, where this picture was taken. When the game ended the veterans continued their pilgrimage to the battlefields on which they had fought two decades before.

LAST RITES ARE SAID FOR J. A. BEARMAN

Floral tributes from friends banked the altar of the First Presbyterian church today at 3:30 as the last rites were said by Rev. M. H. Applewhite over the mortal remains of J. A. Bearman, oil operator and civic builder, who passed peacefully and quietly away to his long rest at 4:15 Tuesday morning. Mrs. H. V. House sang "The Old Rugged Cross" with Mrs. S. E. Hittson accompanying at the organ. After the readings, scriptures and consolation words were said, the body was given over to the Masons for ceremonies and burial in Oakwood cemetery. While all friends were honored as honorary pall bearers, active bearers were: Alex Spears, Charles Kleiner, R. L. Ponsler, W. J. Leach, Dr. E. L. Graham, E. L. Smith, A. D. Anderson, and J. H. Reynolds. The body lay in state at the Green funeral home until the church service, where it was viewed by many friends as the Lions kept official watch over their former leader and friend.

Local Masons met at 2:30 at the hall and marched to the church at 1:20, after the Episcopal service by Rev. Applewhite, they took charge of the body for their burial ceremonies.

Deceased is survived by his wife and two children, Richard A. and Agnes Bearman; two grandchildren, Margaret Elizabeth and Alice Joan. Out-of-town friends attending the Bearman funeral: Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Talbot, Tulsa; Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Harris, Tulsa; Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Bryant, Cross Plains; Mrs. Bertha Maynard, Rising Star; Mrs. E. M. Howard, Rising Star; Mrs. Lynn Abbott and Mrs. E. J. Anderson, Durant, Oklahoma; J. N. Canton, Talco; W. L. Harrell, Austin; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Farr, Mineral Wells; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Holleran, San Antonio; Art Newcomb, Doyle Morrow, Virgil Clayton, all of Fort Griffin.

HOUSE MEMBERS VOTE OIL TAX SCALE BELOW OMNIBUS BILL

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—House members voted today for a graduated oil tax scaled considerably below the 4-cents-a-barrel proposal in the omnibus tax bill they are considering. After one attempt to put the tax at three and a quarter cents the house voted 85 to 57 for the following scale: Three and a half percent on crude selling for over $1 a barrel; three and a quarter on that selling between 75 cents and a dollar; and three cents on oil less than 75 cents a barrel. Under the four-cent rate, estimated $7,000,000 a year extra would be added to the state from oil. The graduated scale presented by Representative Penrose Metcalf of San Angelo would make that increase only about $3,500,000 a year.

Votes for the lower rate came from members whose district contains stripper wells and oil pools of low gravity as well as from the major oil districts. The house recessed until afternoon with debate on the oil section still open.

CONFEDERATES ASK GOV. EARLE JUDGE DISPUTE

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—Proud veterans of the confederacy in convention here today called upon Governor George H. Earle of Pennsylvania to settle a dispute that threatened to mar the civil war veterans' joint reunion at Gettysburg next summer. United confederate veterans argued the question of whether or not to wear their brigade uniforms when they meet with survivors of the union army at Gettysburg in the last convention of the two groups. The decision was to leave that optional. Those who wished could wear confederate grey and the other civilian clothes.

Mapping Strategy for A. F. of L.

Intent upon determining the best course for the American Federation of Labor to follow in the turbulent convention at Denver, and a critical national labor situation, were Frank J. Duffy, left, first vice president, and Frank Morrison, veteran secretary-treasurer, as this picture was taken. Internal strife and a campaign against the CIO make their task more difficult.

COTTON CROP OUTLOOK SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

AUSTIN, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—Material improvement in the cotton crop outlook during September was reported by the U. S. Bureau of Economics here. Under favorable harvesting conditions, the cotton crop gained nine points during the month and on Oct. 1 had a prospective yield of 5,025,000 bales of 500 pounds each. This compares with 2,933,000 bales last year and a five-year average of 4,580,000 bales. Lack of rainfall hampered maturity of late crop, and the prospect October 1 was for 74,300,000 bushels, 2,250,000 less than the month before. The outlook for grain sorghum, rice, peanuts and pecans remained favorable.

Farmers Told to Paint Mail Boxes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—Postmasters on rural delivery routes in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio have been telling mail box owners that the boxes must be painted, and that they should be painted with aluminum paint. It isn't so, says the second assistant postmaster general in Washington. Certain rural postmasters have been circulating printed cards announcing the new "requirements" of the department. Although the department "encourages" the painting of mail boxes, it makes no such requirement. And, besides, the department adds, if mail boxes are to be painted, it prefers that they be painted white.

GOOD RAINS AID FARMERS; PROVIDE WATER

About 2.5 inches of rain had fallen at noon today since the beginning Saturday night. Stock water which had become quite scarce in many pastures has been replenished and grass will be renewed for winter grazing. Much winter grain will be planted and some that is up will get off to a good start for winter pasture. Some peanuts have been gathered and threshed, while other patches have been pulled with hay still on the ground. This will be badly damaged if not rained. Some more beets have not pulled up their nuts and they still have a chance to be saved for needed hay. Turnip and spinach patches are thriving while others will be planted as they are not easily killed.

REDUCES RELIEF ROLLS

What's News Today

Five things stand out in Mr. Roosevelt's call for a special session of Congress, issued at an interview with newspapermen late Tuesday afternoon. It was remarked by many that court reorganization was not mentioned unless the fifth item could be construed to mean Supreme Court reorganization.

In this message the president renews his fatherly, straightforward attitude which he has consistently held throughout his administrations for the good of the common people.

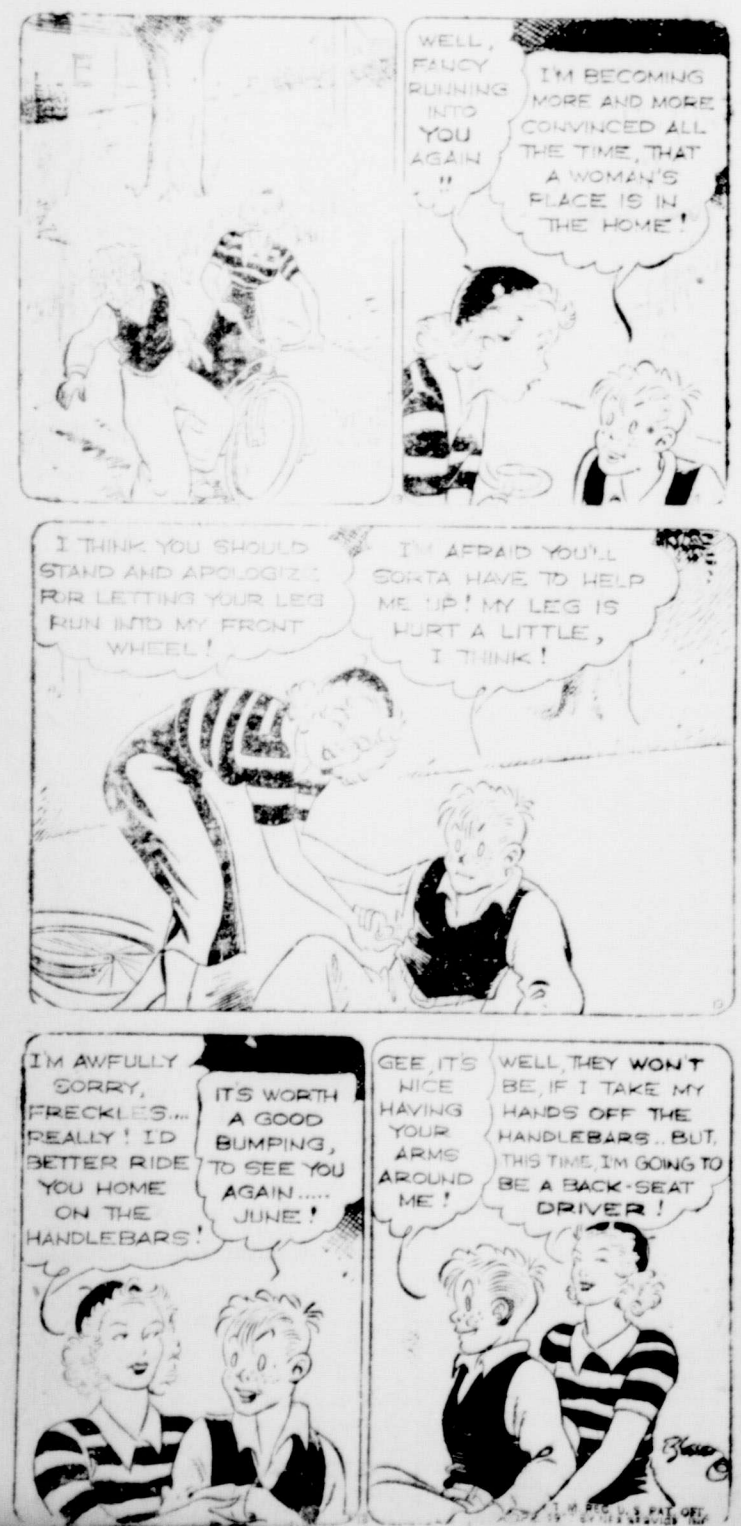

Born with a silver spoon in his mouth, Mr. Roosevelt has steadily throughout his public life been considerate of the poor and middle class. While being himself one of the upper crust, both he and Mrs. Roosevelt are known to be the most democratic of all educated White House inhabitants.

No man in the world today, perhaps is the equal of Mr. Roosevelt as a clear and forceful speaker. When he is through with a speech to the American people there is nothing left unexplained. And he is convincing. His meaning is always perfectly clear. There is no hedging, no possible chance for a mis-interpretation of his meaning.

British are said to be incensed at the attack by Jap fliers on automobiles of British embassy members Tuesday. A former similar occurrence in which Sir Hugh Montgomery, British ambassador to China was wounded, had hardly healed over in the breach of feelings, until this incident inflamed the English nation again.

In the president's fireside chat, the United State's cooperation with both China and Japan is emphasized. However, the Japs seem lacking in a desire for any cooperation or meddling as they term it. They want to be let alone.

FRECKLES and HIS FRIENDS—By Blosser

OUT OUR WAY

INSANITIES OF THE SANE

By Rosalie Winifred Clark (Winifred Clark White) (Reprinted from the Modern) Psychology, July, 1936. New York. Look at your neighbor. To all appearances he is perfectly normal. His conversation alone is abundant proof of intelligence and education, and there is not the slightest indication in either his words or his demeanor of an unbalanced mind. Yet in all the probability if it were possible for you to probe into the workings of his mind in an analytical manner you would find there a strange quirk that could definitely be placed under the heading of some branch of insanity. That this "quirk" does not intrude itself upon society does not change its identity; nor does the fact that the victim himself may not recognize it in its true significance.

OUT OF THE NIGHT

BY MARION WHITE Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc. CAST OF CHARACTERS PRISCILLA PIERCE—heroine, young woman attorney. AMY KERR—Cilly's roommate and murderer's victim. JIM KEORIGAN—Cilly's fiancé. HARRY HUTCHINS—Amy's strange visitor. SERGEANT DOLAN—officer assigned to solve the murder of Amy Kerr. KERR did. The bonds were out on a table, carelessly slipped into a magazine. Martin looked through every crack and crevice of that room, into bureau drawers and between the sheets. But he never thought of going through the magazine; that was too obvious. "A little too obvious, it seems to me," Cilly retorted. "I'll bet someone put them there." "Who? Kerr, Senior, stole them; his son is here to dispose of them. I don't know what miracle of fiction you saw this afternoon, but don't ask me to believe that a vindictive, vicious cleaning-woman slipped those bonds into the magazine. "I won't ask you to believe anything. You're determined to accuse Jim Keorigan, and you've a one-track mind, sergeant." "Not at all. But when all the evidence points to one man, we can't overlook him because a certain young lady has responded to his personality." "All the evidence does not point to Jim." "Ninety per cent of it does. Kerr's been traveling outside the law these past several months. Naturally, he didn't want you to know that, so to bargain with the girl not to tell, he asked her to meet him up on the roof, where he probably hoped, if she didn't come to terms, that she'd accidentally fall off." He dug into his coat pocket, drew forth something wrapped in paper. He handed it to Cilly—a blue belt, a belt from a woman's chiffon dress. Cilly stifled the cry that came to her lips, her eyes staring hypnotically at this new piece of evidence. The belt belonged to Amy Kerr's blue chiffon dress... the one she had taken up on the roof to air! "You recognize it?" "Cilly did not, could not, answer. This was the last straw, she thought. This was the last link in the chain that was slowly, surely binding Jim to the murder. Her head spun madly; there was a wild throbbing in her temples, a choking in her throat. She tried to think of an explanation, but her thoughts were a whirlpool of horror and despair. She was dimly conscious that Dolan was still speaking; she heard his voice, relentlessly pursuing: "... found it in the pocket of one of his jackets... probably wore it here. We have the dress down at headquarters. You remember the girl was holding it in holding a person whose mind had never, to all outward appearances, entertained a serious thought engaged in the same fruitless occupation. Yet the post-counting inclination might well be as undeniably a mania with the one as with the other. In the one, the meaningless counting of posts would stand out in a startling manner against a background of forceful achievement, while in the other it would merely fall in line with a characteristic appearance of mental wastefulness. A strong superstition is not necessarily a form of insanity—but any superstition may evolve itself into a form of insanity. Take, for instance, the superstition surrounding cats. Legend has it, in the United States and in several other countries, that a black cat crossing the trail in front of a person presages ill fortune. With this legend in mind, it is not unnatural that a large number of people should recoil slightly at the sight of a black cat; it is, in fact, plausible to state that this superstition may have so implanted itself within the minds of some that a definite apprehension accompanies the sight of a black cat crossing the trail in front, and still be, in this instance, within the bounds of sanity. When, however, this superstition reaches the point where the mere sight of a black cat produces such fear that the patient is seized with a sensation of weakness and trembling, this reaction has gone beyond the bounds of a mere superstition and is a form of monetary insanity. Proof that such a reaction has gone beyond the bounds of a mere superstition of the black cat lies in the fact that fear often grows to embrace not only the black cat, but all cats. Few people, I think, are without some such insane fear, or some slight insane disorder which may show itself only upon occasion. Most any one can recall some instance of having been in the presence of a person who exhibited the most intense fear at the least disturbance of the heavens. Now, while a reasonable amount of fear may quite naturally be aroused by a threatening storm, the absolute terror into which numerous people are thrown into at the very rumbling of thunder or the flash of lightning is beyond reason and is therefore a phase of insanity. Every one is familiar with the temporary insanity which rides through a mob. While mob insanity has a definite bearing on the individual, it illustrates more clearly than individual cases can illustrate the facility with which human minds in general may turn from sanity to chaos. This again illustrates the point that not only are the less intelligent as susceptible to insanity as the very intelligent, but to some form of insanity they are more susceptible, as a mob is rarely composed of highly intellectual people. In everyday life the individual members of the usual mob could not be classed as insane. As likely as not they are quite rational and inoffensive. Yet given the mob incentive their minds leap from sanity to insanity in the twinkling of an eye, leaving them, after the disappearance of the incentive, quite as normal as before. There seems to be a general innate susceptibility to certain given stimuli. Among these is the sound of the tom-tom. Some individuals are able to throw this off with more ease than others, but in some it produces a state of unquestionable insanity. It is a well known fact that the morale of a brave company is in danger if an opposing army marches upon it flashing a phalanx of bayonets. So far as actual physical danger is concerned, the men may be unsurpassed in bravery, but the psychological effect of the flashing blades is one of insanity and under it the normal action of the soldier often gives way to chaos. There are few persons whose minds have not, at some time or another, become slightly unbalanced through an excess of worry. Suicides and the thousands of other desperate, futile actions are often the product of an insanity brought on by worry. Some trivial provocation following close upon almost unendurable worries of long standing may instantly destroy the equilibrium of the mind, and the unbalanced brain demands of the individual desperate action. The person at such a time is indeed not responsible for his actions, and it is sometimes pitiable that he must later bear the brunt of them. In some women the mental state directly preceding menstruation is one of near insanity. An unaccountable gloom settles down upon the mind, veritably driving it in circles, and insignificant events assume an exaggerated and twisted significance. A common outlet for the depressing emotions of this period is a series of temperamental outbursts, often involving a fit of anger that reaches the high-point of insanity. The unbalanced state of mind that prevails during the menopause has long been a matter of concern to both the layman and the physician. Disregarding the cases where lasting and violent insanity ensues, the average woman at this period is subject to an unbalanced mental state that is nothing short of insanity. (CONCLUDED TOMORROW)

DON'T SCRATCH SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, pityriasis, and irritation about the neck or personal parts is obtained by applying an ointment called Resinol. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases irritation. The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting out of the irritating parts and makes you comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol. The only base of Resinol Ointment is ideal for penetrating the outer layers of the skin and reaching deeper action. Bathing the affected parts first with Resinol softens the effectiveness of the ointment. Try this treatment today.

EUROPE CHARTS DAILY ORIENTAL PLANE SERVICE

By RENE L. MOORE United Press Staff Correspondent LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Expanding air programs of European colonial powers will in a few months connect Europe and the Far East virtually by daily airplane service. Policies seeking closer empire contacts, and keen commercial rivalry, will by early in 1938 increase trans-Asia airplane schedules until there will be seven departures each week from Europe to the Far East. Although all schedules have not been finally announced, the seven departures will mean that every day, from some city or other in Europe or Great Britain, a plane will wing eastward and southward for the 8,000 mile flight to the Malay peninsula. Each week the same number of planes will head westward toward Europe, carrying air-mail from Australia, the East Indies, Singapore, the Philippines, Indo-China, Hong Kong and China. Formerly 5 Planes Weekly For the past two seasons there have been five planes each way weekly, two operated by the British Imperial Airways, two by the French. The first new schedule was added by the K.L.M. (Royal Dutch Airlines) on Oct. 2, when the frequency of the Dutch service was increased to three planes a week. Imperial Airways, now engaged in an expansion program calling for 28 new Empire flying boats and 14 new airliners, will step up operations to three planes weekly each way as far as Singapore not later than early in 1938. Imperial Airways' new fleet is nearly completed. When it is entirely ready, air mail will be carried at ordinary letter rates to the Far East, as it is now carried to South Africa. From London to Brisbane the rate within the empire will be 3 cents for half an ounce. The British thus followed the example of Holland in instituting ordinary mail rates for air mail. In the case of the Dutch, however, the rate is 12 1/2 Dutch cents, which is the foreign ordinary letter rate, between Holland and the East Indies. Service Nearly Doubled The completed British program will include a schedule of nine planes a week between London and Alexandria. From Alexandria to India there will be five planes a week. Between Calcutta and Singapore there will be three planes a week, and between Singapore and Brisbane two planes a week. The increased Far East service will benefit countries not under empire flags as well. Once a week an Imperial Airways' plane flies from Penang to Hong Kong and back on a schedule correlated with the Pan American Clipper service. The latter provides a flight once a week each way between Hong Kong and San Francisco, via Manila and Honolulu. The French line to Indo-China is linked with Canton, only a few miles from Hong Kong, by a service operated by the Southwestern Air Corporation. Dutch Add Planes The Dutch are extending service in the Far East through K.N.I.L.M. (Royal Netherlands Indies Airways). The K.N.I.L.M. operates at present a weekly service to Tarakan, Borneo, from Batavia and Soerabaja, and is negotiating for rights to extend this service to the Philippines. That would give the Dutch airways system a direct contact with Pan-American's trans-Pacific service. The Dutch have obtained authority to maintain a weekly service to Sydney, Australia, 3,460 miles distant. Other air routes may be more spectacular than the aerial highway across Europe and Asia. Air France recently completed the 200th crossing of the South Atlantic. It operates a mail service once a week on that route. Pan-American's successful operations on the Pacific are even more sensational, while new romance is being written as the pioneer liners

HIGH SCHOOL HOLD BIG PEP RALLY TODAY

By RUTH EL DUFF The Cisco high school was very peppy this morning. They had a pep meeting today because this was the only free day they would have and the Lobos would be here to hear it. The whole school is backing the Lobos with all the spirit they have. The roof was almost raised off the auditorium this morning in order to impress the Lobos of their backing. Seniors were called into a meeting to select their rings, and to have their fingers measured for the rings. Shining faces showed the approval of the senior's rings over the committee's choice. Senior sponsors and the ring committee were taken to dinner by the ring salesman. They then selected the rings from the selection the salesman showed.
