Anti-Khomeini Plot Brings Executions

Oil Pipeline Reported Bombed

By The Associated Press
 REVOLUTIONARY guardsmen foiled a plot by Iranian army officers to overthrow the Khomeini regime, and the conspirators were secretly executed by firing squad, a Kuwait newspaper reported Wednesday.

Word of the alleged plot came after saboteurs reportedly bombed an oil pipeline in what Iranian officials also described as a pro-shah, anti-Khomeini attack.

Wednesday was the first anniversary of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's flight from Iran, and the 74th day in captivity for some 50 American hostages held by Moslem militants at the occupied U.S. Embassy in Tehran. It also was the first full day of a blackout imposed by the Iranian government on American news reporting from Tehran.

Outwardly at least, the embassy situation was stalemated.

The Iranians again rejected the idea of having U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim act as a mediator to try to resolve the U.S.-Iranian crisis.

ABC News had reported the Iranian Foreign Ministry sent a message to New York saying Waldheim, rebuffed on a mediation mission to Tehran two weeks ago, was now acceptable to Khomeini as an intermediary.

But Tehran Radio, monitored in London, said later the Foreign Ministry had denied the report as an "absolute lie." A Waldheim spokesman said the U.N. chief had received "no official communication on this matter," but the spokesman said Waldheim remains in contact with Iran's U.N. ambassador, "so he must be acceptable to Iranian authorities."

coming more real with every day."

About 200 people were arrested after the recent violence in Tabriz, the city's prosecutor told Tehran radio's Tabriz correspondent Wednesday. He said that about 100 people had been released after preliminary investigations had shown that they were "ignorant and provoked." The cases of the remainder would be dealt with quickly, he added.

In an interview with the Iranian news agency, Pars, Khomeini's representative in Tabriz, Ayatollah Madani, said, "There are very few counter-revolutionaries in Tabriz."

Madani was asked what measures had been taken to ease the "shortages of meat, rice, vegetable oil and washing powder" not only in Tabriz, but other parts of the country. He replied: "For the past three days meat has become plentiful in Tabriz and from today the same applies to vegetable oil." He said measures had been initiated to provide adequate rice and washing powder.

Iranians marked the anniversary of Pahlavi's departure with street decorations, congratulatory messages to Khomeini and other celebrations, government-run Tehran Radio said.

The report of the coup plot, by the usually reliable Kuwait newspaper Al Rai Al Am, could not be confirmed with officials in Tehran. But ever since the shah's downfall, the revolutionary re-

Car Theft Ring Charges Filed

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 LOCAL authorities began their part of breaking up an alleged four-state auto theft ring Wednesday with the filing of felony theft charges against three persons and the confiscation of 11 vehicles officials say were stolen and then resold in Lubbock.

One informed source with the Lubbock County Criminal District Attorney's office said that Wednesday's theft charges ultimately may result in a grand jury returning several organized crime indictments in connection with the alleged "salvage switch" operation.

Named in the Lubbock County criminal charges are Ronnie Lynn Scott, 39, and his 29-year-old wife Barbara Jean of Del City, Okla., and Ralph Baez, 42, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Mrs. Scott and Baez each were charged with one count of theft and the criminal district attorney's office recommended their bonds be set at $10,000 and $50,000, respectively. But neither suspect was in custody Wednesday night.

Scott, however, was arrested by Oklahoma City authorities and was being held Wednesday night in lieu of a $50,000 bond. Officials with the Lubbock district attorney's office have begun extradition proceedings against Scott in an effort to bring him here to face the four local theft charges lodged against him Wednesday afternoon.

Police Agencies Cooperate
 Investigators with the the Lubbock prosecutor's office, Department of Public Safety motor theft division and police detective division cooperated with law enforcement agencies in Oklahoma, Kansas and California, the other three states in which the alleged theft ring operated.

According to authorities, the trio allegedly used the "salvage switch" method, by which they first purchased a car at a reduced cost from a salvage dealer and got the car's title.

Then, the group allegedly found a vehicle of the same make and model as the salvage auto, but in better condition, and stole the vehicle. The third step of the operation, officials said, was to replace the dashboard vehicle identification number (VIN) plate on the more valuable car with the VIN plate from the salvage vehicle.

Once the process is completed, officials said, the clear title to the salvage vehicle.

R.N. Needs Aired By Hospital

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY

 A METHODIST Hospital official explained Wednesday that a shortage of registered nurses and a question of record keeping methods account for the recent decision by an inspection firm that the hospital "does not comply substantially" with standards.

The hospital retains its accreditation while the decision is under appeal.

Earlier this week, administrator George Brewer declined to name the specific problems, saying he was not required to do so because Methodist is a private hospital.

But Fred Timberlake, chairman of the board of trustees, issued a statement Wednesday in which he "enlarged on the prior statement of George Brewer."

A shortage of local registered nurses prompted the hospital to fill 15 R.N. positions at the hospital with foreign nurses, Timberlake said. He explained that the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals says those jobs can be filled only with RNs who are licensed in Texas.

"But eight of those are going before the (state licensing) board in February," Timberlake said. He expects those eight nurses to receive their state licenses and said the remaining foreign nurses "will be given other duties" at the hospital which do not require a Texas-licensed R.N.

Schedules and duties of American R.N.'s employed at the hospital will be rearranged to comply with the inspection firm's standards, he said.

"We are always on the look for qualified R.N.s."

Clements Plans Tax Reduction

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements said Wednesday he would call a special legislative session in August or September to return $700 million or more to Texas taxpayers.

Clements said he would also ask legislators to approve proposals this summer authorizing wiretaps and giving people more control over the laws that govern their lives.

Looking ahead to 1981 and the regular legislative session, Clements said, "We will probably make the most significant change in the public school system of Texas since the Gilmer-Aikin bill some 30 years ago."

The governor spoke to a breakfast meeting of the Texas Real Estate Political Action Committee (TREPAC), which interrupted his speech at least five times with loud applause.

After Clements had concluded his remarks, one member of the audience said TREPAC had made a mistake in supporting former Attorney General John Hill for governor against Clements in 1978.

Clements said the special legislative session would "certainly" consider three of the 82 subjects proposed to his aides: surveillance — "a $10 word meaning wiretap," initiative and referendum, and tax reduction.

Clements said he would have to wait until summer to get a more exact figure on any "surplus" in the state budget, but he added:

"I'm still saying if we can maintain any kind of stability in the international arena we will have a surplus of $600 million to $700 million and even perhaps higher, and I want to return that money to the Texas taxpayer from whence it came."

Clements said wiretap legislation would be directed at halting $3 billion in drug traffic in Texas each year.

"A lot of bleeding hearts have said to me that this is an invasion of privacy and therefore they are opposed to it, and I find that there really isn't very much sympathy for this view — and certainly not on my part. I do agree that it is an invasion of privacy, the privacy of the criminal who is engaging in drug traffic and I intend to lock that person up," the governor stated.

He said his polls show 70 percent of Texans favor initiative and referendum, which would allow persons to bypass the Legislature in adopting proposals.

"This would be a dilution of the legislative process in Austin and I'm not sure that's bad," Clements said.

His remarks about President Carter indicated Clements had launched his 1980 anti-Carter presidential campaign.

He repeated an earlier statement that he was "absolutely dedicated that we are going to have a change in the White House in 1980, and Mr. Carter is not going to carry Texas again."

Critics Question Firemen's Logic

 LUBBOCK'S other emergency service workers apparently find it difficult to support proposals by the city's firefighters for a wage increase and collective bargaining rights.

Lubbock voters will decide Saturday whether to grant the firemen bargaining rights and an additional 8 percent pay raise. A 7 percent pay raise already has been approved by City Council for all city employees.

Employees of the county hospital district's Emergency Medical Services seem somewhat unsympathetic toward the firefighters' demands. While some say they understand the desire for collective bargaining privileges, they find it hard to believe the firemen want more money.

On the other hand, many members of the Lubbock police force are irate about (Additional Election Stories Pages 11 and 15, Sec. A.) the firemen's demands. None of the 20 officers contacted by The Avalanche-Journal said he supported the demands, and several made critical remarks about the firefighters and their tactics.

"If we can't get what we want through our chief, just like they (firefighters) are supposed to go through their chief, then we ought to be looking for a job someplace else," said one veteran police officer who asked not to be identified.

Although most of the policemen said they sympathized with the firemen's demand for higher wages, none of them favored collective bargaining, especially by public employees.

"I wish everybody got more money," another officer said. "My only argument is that I'm looking at it from the point of view of the taxpayers."

One EMS paramedic claimed the highest-paid man within the EMS organization doesn't make as much money as a rookie firefighter.

"I don't think they have a legitimate gripe," Richard Pope said. "And EMS as an entity doesn't need collective bargaining. When we were having troubles with our salary, I don't think it would have been helpful to threaten the board," Pope said.

He admitted that he and other EMS employees had considered the idea of collective bargaining during a period of salary negotiations, but decided the consequences would not be worth the trouble.

Some paramedics and Emergency Medical Technicians were angered by the firefighters' claims that they deserve

POOCH WITH PROBLEM — Robert Avanzino, president of the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, top panel, has come to the aid of Sido, lower panel, whose former master, Mary Murphy, took and overdose of sleeping pills shortly before Christmas. Doomed Dog Gains Help Of Attorneys

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sido, a 6-year-old mutt with a long snout and trusting eyes, was doomed by the terms of her late owner's will, which specifies that she be destroyed after her owner's death.

But a team of attorneys and the head of an animal shelter say a law which lets a pet be "destroyed like a piece of furniture" is wrong and they plan to fight the will in court.

"Sido's full of love, full of companionship. She's well-trained and house-broken," said Richard Avanzino, president of the San Francisco Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

"She's just adorable ... I know a million people in the world would want to share" their home with Sido, Avanzino added.

Avanzino, who takes Sido home at night, also has taken the pooch to heart. With the volunteer assistance of four lawyers and a law student, Avanzino plans to challenge the will of Mary Murphy, an elderly widow who died four days before Christmas.

"I personally believe Sido misses her owner. I think she (Mrs. Murphy) spoiled her and probably gave her a heap of affection," Avanzino said. "The law says a pet can be destroyed like a piece of furniture. We're saying that's wrong."

Rebecca Wells Smith, Mrs. Murphy's friend, lawyer and executrix of the will, said she didn't want to "add to her (client's) notoriety." She declined to talk at length about the woman's request.

"She would have shrunk from this sort of publicity," Miss Smith said. "She wanted to protect the dog."

Miss Smith said Mrs. Murphy was a loving owner and stressed that she was following the widow's wishes as a friend and professional.

Avanzino thinks that if he had talked to the woman before she died she would have consented to the pet's adoption.

Jury Hands Woman 10-Year Prison Term

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Grace James, a great-grandmother standing trial for the March 17, 1979, shooting death of her former boyfriend, was sentenced by a Lubbock jury Wednesday evening to 10 years in prison.

Although the 51-year-old Mrs. James was eligible for a probated sentence, the 140th District Court panel returned with the prison term verdict after deliberating slightly more than two hours.

Earlier Wednesday, the panel considered evidence for 3 hours and 20 minutes before finding Mrs. James guilty of voluntary manslaughter in connection with the slaying of Robert Lee Johnson.

Mrs. James told the three-woman, nine-man jury she shot the 57-year-old Johnson twice after he confronted her at a Clovis Road bingo club.

She said he entered the AA Faith Club, 2819 Clovis Road, that night, called her a vulgar name and threatened to kill her if she would not resume the dating relationship they had had until about two months earlier.

Seconds later, when Johnson placed his right hand in his trousers' pocket and appeared to be coming at her with a weapon, according to Mrs. James, she shot him with the gun she usually carried in her purse as a means of protection.

During punishment arguments, defense attorney Pat Simek emphasized the voluntary testimony given by some of Mrs. James' former employers in his plea for a probated sentence. Mrs. James had been a maid for several noted Lubbock families before the shooting incident.

College Financial Aid Session Set

Two Lubbock public school counselors are sponsoring an information session on college financial aid today from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Monterey High School.

Juniors and seniors from all high schools, as well as parents, are invited to attend.

Monterey High counselors Ann Linguist and Jane Durham will present the program featuring a film and printed material. Financial aid representatives from LEARN Talent Search, Lubbock Christian College, Texas Tech University and South Plains College also will attend.

The last 30 minutes of the session will be reserved for group discussion with the representatives.

DERAILMENT

GLEN BURNIE, Md. (AP) — A chemical company railroad tanker carrying liquid anhydrous ammonia derailed Wednesday, leaking for about 90 minutes, fire officials said. No injuries were reported and no evacuation was ordered in the early morning incident at the U.S. Agricultural Chemical Co.

Simek also pointed out that the silver-haired defendant was the primary wage earner for the seven other persons who had lived with her prior to Johnson's death.

While prosecutors Everett Seymore and Danny Hurley did not ask the panel to return a specific number of years as Mrs. James' penalty, they did ask the jurors "make the punishment fit the crime." The second-degree felony offense of voluntary manslaughter carries a punishment—range of two-to-20 years. Any sentence of 10 years or less may be probated.

Seymore asked the panel to consider that it was one word—the name Johnson had called Mrs. James—that prompted the shooting.

"Will there be another Robert Lee Johnson?" Seymore asked the jury. "Will there be someone else who'll talk down to Grace James in front of her friends?"

"We always run that risk with probation," the prosecutor said. Seymore asked the panel, if they decided to give Mrs. James probation, to give assess the maximum 10-year term.

In arguments earlier Wednesday before the panel retired to consider Mrs. James' guilt or innocence, Simek sought an acquittal of Mrs. James on grounds of self defense.

Seymore and Hurley had asked the jury to return with a verdict of murder, the first degree felony with which Mrs. James was charged and indicted.

Simek asked the jurors to place themselves in Mrs. James position, one he said was created by a drunken Johnson.

"The only thing Grace James is guilty of is defending herself," Simek said, emphasizing that state law concerning self-defense does not require a weapon be exhibited, only that a person have a reasonable belief a deadly weapon is about to be used.

But prosecutors contended that Mrs. James had become tired of fending off her former boyfriend's entreaties and decided to end further encounters with Johnson by murdering him.

Seymore also attacked the self-defense claim, telling the panel, "The night this happened, no one came forward to say I did this in self-defense. Instead, she went to Fort Worth and stayed there seven months."

Trial testimony indicated that when officers went to Mrs. James' 2730 Erskine St. residence following the shooting, no one was home. Mrs. James was arrested in Fort Worth in late October and returned to Lubbock to face the murder charge.

"Flight is the best evidence of guilt," Seymore argued, adding that "it was only after prodding by counsel that the defendant remembered why she left Lubbock."

In reaching their guilty verdict on the lesser charge of voluntary manslaughter, jurors apparently melded the various arguments.

Although the voluntary manslaughter conviction indicated the panel rejected the defense contention that Mrs. James fired in self-defense, it suggested that jurors had relied heavily on testimony that Johnson's actions precipitated the shooting.

Under state law, a person is guilty of voluntary manslaughter if he kills another person "under the immediate influence of sudden passion arising from an adequate cause."

Shell President Announces Earnings, Predicts $2 Gas Prices

By WILLIAM GLASGALL.
NEW YORK (AP) — Shell Oil Co.'s net income was "a little bit over $1 billion" in 1979, an increase of approximately 23 percent over 1978's total, President John F. Bookout said Wednesday. Sources said later that Shell is raising wholesale gasoline prices by five cents a gallon.

Bookout told a press luncheon the nation's eighth-largest oil company expects to boost spending on petroleum exploration and production, refinery and coal mine development, and other projects by 8 percent in 1980 to $2.7 billion.

Oil industry sources said Shell, which raised wholesale gasoline prices by a nickel a gallon last week, is increasing wholesale prices by another five cents effective midnight Wednesday.

A Shell spokesman, Norman Altstedter, said he could "not confirm or deny" the report. Shell is the nation's third-largest gasoline seller behind Exxon Corp. and Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Last week's Shell gas price hike, one of several announced in recent days by major oil companies, was attributed to the sharp rise in world crude oil prices this winter.

At the luncheon Wednesday, Bookout said "it's not all that unlikely" that gas prices will climb to the $2-a-gallon range in "late 1980 or 1981."

The United States will have "an adequate availability" of petroleum products this year, although "I'd literally have to be a magician to forecast gasoline prices for the long-term," he said.

Leaded regular gasoline now sells for an average of $1.094 a gallon, up 60 percent from a year ago, according to the Lundberg Letter, an industry publication. But at one Connecticut filling station Wednesday, the fuel was selling for $1.134 a gallon.

Bookout said U.S. gasoline consumption in 1979 was 7 to 7½ percent lower than it was a year earlier as prices rose and as federal mileage rules gradually increased auto fuel efficiency.

"I've seen forecasts of a (further) 5 to 5½ percent drop in 1980" gasoline use, he said.

In 1979, Shell earned $813.6 million or $5.45 a share, on sales of $11.1 billion, and had a $2.5 billion capital investment program. Its 1979 earnings will be reported in detail Jan. 24, but Bookout said the year's per-share earnings would be around $7.25.

three refineries to process low-quality domestic crude oils, displacing about 30,000 barrels a day of imported oil.

"Construction could begin by mid-year if negotiations with local agencies on permit conditions and restrictions are successful," a Shell statement said.

The company said it plans to spend $1.65 billion this year to explore for and develop U.S. oil and gas resources, and will spend an additional $240 million, primarily in Malaysia and Cameroon, on overseas exploration and development.

Shell last month acquired Belridge Oil Co., a producer of low-quality "heavy" crude oil in California, for $3.6 billion. Bookout said Shell will make a "substantial investment" in Belridge this year to enable the division to "increase production significantly."

Energy Group Seeking Windfall Tax Share

WASHINGTON (AP) — A coalition of industry, utility and environmental groups called on Congress Wednesday to earmark $26 billion of the "windfall profits" tax to pay for development of non-oil sources of energy.

The nation cannot be secure "until we have our own energy under our own control forever," Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., told a news conference. "Sooner or later we're going to have to move to renewable sources of energy."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., like Packwood a member of the conference committee that is considering the tax bill, said that within 20 years solar and other exotic sources could fill 35 percent of U.S. energy needs.

The package of income tax credits for energy conservation and development of non-oil fuels will be a major issue as House and Senate conferees resume work today on the windfall tax.

Richard Munson, coordinator of the Solar Lobby, noted that the price tag in the bill for encouraging conservation and solar development amounts to just eight weeks of the nation's bill for imported oil.

"This money will not be spent on building the economies of the Middle East or Latin America but on jobs and businesses in the United States," Munson said.

Other groups urging that part of the tax be earmarked for non-oil energy sources included the League of Women Voters, the National Wildlife Federation, the American Gas Association and the Sheet Metal and Air Conditioning Contractors' National Association.

The speakers took their turns at a microphone amplified by a sun-powered system consisting of a two-foot-square collector panel, a storage battery and a converter the size of a breadbox.

The credits were approved by the Senate when it passed its version of the tax but they have not been considered by the House. There is strong resistance by some House conferees, who are members of the Ways and Means Committee, to the credits.

"We are in a life-and-death struggle with the Ways and Means Committee," Packwood said, adding that the battle will have a lasting effect on U.S. energy policy.

The "windfall" tax was proposed by President Carter as part of his program to reduce U.S. reliance on imported oil. The tax — applying not to oil profits but to price increases — would take away some of the billions of dollars that will flow to the oil industry over the next decade because of his decision to phase out federal controls on the price of U.S. crude oil.

Decontrol, which will force up fuel prices, will cost consumers an estimated $1 trillion over the next 11 years. After existing state and federal taxes are deducted, the oil industry would be left with a "windfall" from decontrol of about $440 billion.

Senate and House conferees already have agreed that the windfall tax should take away $227.3 billion — or about 49 percent — of that. But they have yet to

Family-Style Eateries In Italy Discourage Fast Food Chain

ROME (UPI) — American fast food chains have caught on in England, Germany and even France, the reputed citadel of haute cuisine. But definitely not in Italy.

You'll search in vain for golden arches, pizza hutments or even Florence fried fowl in Italy, where eating is not taken lightly.

A big reason is that family-run restaurants still flourish where you can eat as much as you like of as many dishes as you want for one flat price, making Italy one of the last great dining bargains in the Western world.

Such restaurants, not to be confused with pricy establishments that cater to tourists, are an institution in Italy.

They range from tiny places on back streets that seat no more than a couple of dozen customers to huge emporiums that can swallow hundreds of families on a Sunday outing and have room left over. It sometimes takes extra effort to find them, but it's worth it.

There often are no written menus at such places. The fare is what happens to catch the cook's fancy, although each usually has its own special dishes that are always available and can't be matched elsewhere.

A recent weekday lunch at Il Castagneto, one of the largest of family-style eateries in the Rome suburb of Grottaferrata, went on for three hours and nine courses.

They included three of hors d'oeuvres and four different pasta dishes, all of which would have delighted the most demanding gourmand.

Opened 20 years ago as a small country restaurant that served only chicken and the flat noodles known as fettuccine, the restaurant can now handle up to 2,000 diners in several huge rooms and an outdoor garden. The variety of its fare has expanded as well, with a battery of up to a dozen or more chefs — including the owner's wife.

"It's sometimes hard to do this with foreigners," said Pina Blasi, a daughter-in-law who helps run the business, of the family style arrangement in which each customer can try a healthy helping of whatever emerges from the kitchen.

"They sometimes think Italians are trying to pile more on to push the price up. But it costs the same, no matter what you have."

"We all like to eat," says Mrs. Blasi of the large family, whose members can often be spotted sampling food along with the customers. "I've probably gained 20 pounds since I joined the family. We know that if we're happy, the customers will be, too, and that's what has made our business."

Lunch started with crostone, a slab of homemade pork sausage on toast soaked in olive oil and garlic, a traditional appetizer of the Rome area. Then came fried zucchini, eggplant and onions with a delicate batter crust similar to tempura. As a final warm-up there was an offering of baccala, specially prepared codfish that melted in the mouth.

The house's pasta specialty, spaghetti with a sauce of artichokes, ham and cheese, followed. Then large raviolis filled with ricotta cheese and covered with a salmon sauce appeared. There also was schiaffoni con porchini, big hollow noodles with a sauce of fresh tomatoes, herbs and pickled mushrooms. Finally came the traditional spaghetti with white clam sauce.

The main course was baby lamb roasted over an open fire, greaseless and succulent.

New Talks Involving Hussein Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Israeli peace negotiator said Wednesday there have been "a few signals" from Jordan's King Hussein of a renewed interest in negotiations aimed at shaping the future of the West Bank of the Jordan River.

Shmuel Tamir, who also is Israel's justice minister, said Hussein is basically apprehensive of Arab radicals making headway in the region.

"If he does join, the whole peace process will benefit," Tamir told reporters before a meeting with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance.

Hussein has joined virtually all Arab governments in condemning the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty and is boycotting negotiations over the future of the West Bank and its 700,000 Palestinian Arab residents.

But Tamir said Hussein is sending out signals that he would like to demonstrate a pro-American stance — "providing he doesn't risk his life again and be subjected to attack from Syria and possibly Iraq."

These "signals," Tamir said, include Jordan's attempts to open liaison offices on the West Bank and to pay subsidies to Palestinian officials.

Jordan seized control of the area in 1948 and then lost it to Israel in the 1967 Six-Day war. All Arab governments, including Jordan, have declared that the Palestine Liberation Organization has sole authority to determine the future of the area.

But Tamir indicated Hussein might not want to see the West Bank fall to PLO control. In any event, Tamir said, Israel will never agree to an independent Palestinian state in the area.

That, he said, "would be fatal to the future of Israel" and inimical to U.S. interests because it would be a puppet of the Soviet Union.

Egypt has sent its vice president, Mohammed Mubarak, to Washington to meet with U.S. officials. Mubarak met with Vance for about two hours Wednesday.

Sol M. Linowitz, President Carter's special negotiator, plans to return to the Middle East later in the month to try to spur a Palestinian settlement.

Linowitz will stop first in London to meet with Hussein, then will fly to the region for talks with Saudi Arabian, Egyptian and Israeli leaders.

Sources said Linowitz would try to arrange talks with Palestinian representatives as well.

Egyptian-Israeli negotiations on a Palestinian autonomy plan have made little headway.

The Carter administration, meanwhile, has not tried to steer the two sides with its own ideas about Palestinian self-rule on the Israeli-occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza district.

But since the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan, various foreign governments have quietly suggested that the United States exert its influence with Israel to make concessions in the talks.

The Israeli concept of Palestinian autonomy is a limited one in which West Bank and Gaza residents would control local affairs only. The Arab countries, on the other hand, are demanding creation of a Palestinian state.

Egypt Spurns Proposal For Palestinians

By The Associated Press

Egypt Wednesday rejected a proposed Israeli model for a Palestinian self-rule council in the occupied territories, saying it was a rehash of old plans and runs counter to the Camp David agreement.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin told the Israeli Parliament the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan makes Israel more committed than ever against allowing a Palestinian state friendly to the Soviets to be established in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

He said Israel also rejects "creation of institutions that could lead" to a Palestinian state.

The developments pointed up anew the slow movement in the U.S.-Egyptian-Israeli talks over establishing autonomy for the 1.2 million Palestinians of the Israeli-occupied Arab lands.

Working groups of negotiators met for a second day Wednesday in Cairo to try to map plans for election of a home-rule council for the West Bank and Gaza.

Ambassador Ezzat Abdel Latif, Egyptian spokesman, said the latest Israeli model was unacceptable because it limited the Palestinian council to administrative functions.

"Egypt holds that self-rule for the West Bank and Gaza must include legislative, administrative and judicial powers," Egypt's official Middle East News Agency quoted Latif as saying.

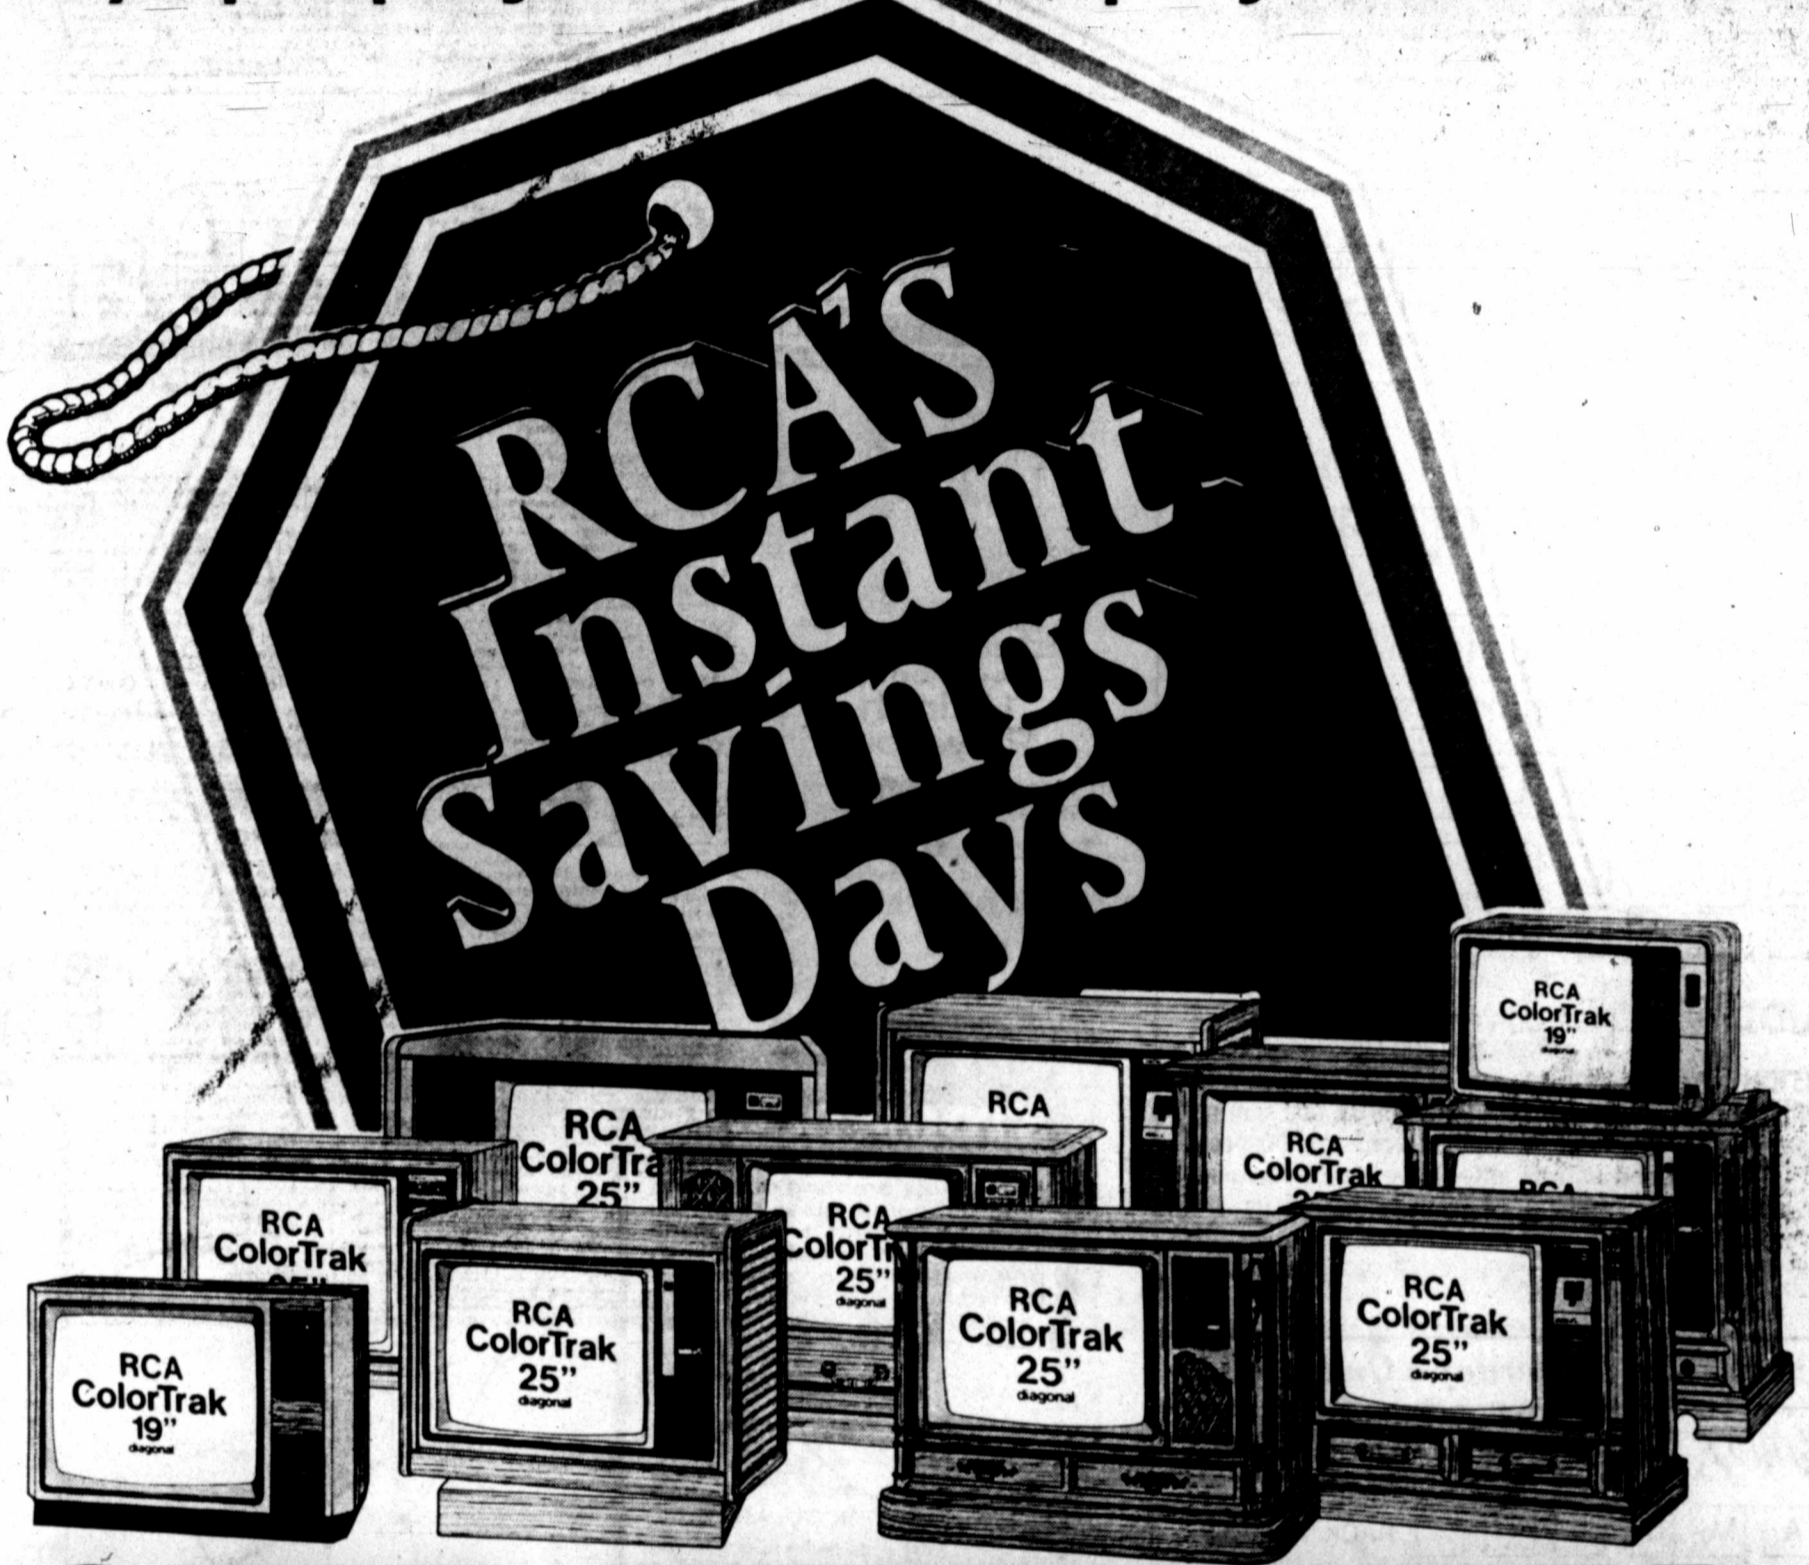

The model was a "step backward" and "contrary" to the Camp David agreements of September 1978, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said later. The Egyptians complained the proposal contained the same ideas embodied in a 26-point autonomy plan originally put forward by Begin and rejected by Egypt.

Israeli spokesman Dan Patir, expressing "puzzlement" and "dismay" over the rejection, told a reporter the model called for an 11-member Palestinian council. The Egyptians are known to believe the council should be larger, giving it more of a legislative form.

Begin, reporting to Parliament on his recent talks in Egypt with President Anwar Sadat, indicated he would reject giving legislative powers to the Palestinians. He said the Camp David accords provide for only an administrative role, not a legislative one, for the council.

Israeli spokesman Patir said the Israeli proposal was open to negotiation.

Retired Ranking GSA Official Implicated In Bribery Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former head of quality control for the General Services Administration's supply division has been named in federal court testimony as the recipient of at least $12,000 in bribes.

The president of Atlas Paint and Varnish Co. of Irvington, N.J., testified last year that his firm paid the GSA official, Roger F. Carroll Jr., $500 a month from 1969 to 1971 in an attempt to win GSA contracts.

Carroll retired from the GSA last September.

In U.S. District Court in Newark,

N.J., Atlas Paint president Dennis Tepperman said payments to Carroll and two other GSA officials were paid through attorney Arthur Lowell to ensure approval of the $5 million worth of paint the company sold to the government each year.

Tepperman's testimony makes Carroll the highest ranking government official to be implicated publicly in the GSA scandal, which has led to 109 convictions of government employees and contractors. The testimony, which took place last November, escaped public attention until now.

In the case, Lowell and a GSA quality control inspector were convicted of conspiracy to defraud the U.S. government through the bribery scheme. A GSA chemist pleaded guilty to the same charge.

Justice Department sources said Carroll was not indicted because a five-year statute of limitations on his alleged participation in the offense had expired.

However, William O'Connor, a federal prosecutor assigned to the Justice Department's GSA task force, said Carroll remains the target of investigations into other GSA abuses.

Carroll, 65, refused to comment about the bribery allegation, referring all questions to his lawyer, Jack Stevens. Stevens said, "Nobody gave Mr. Carroll money, period," but he refused to discuss details of the allegation.

At GSA, Carroll was considered a close associate of GSA's former deputy administrator and friend of Speaker

Thomas P. O'Neill, Robert T. Griffin, who was fired in 1978 by then-GSA chief Jay Solomon. One GSA source described Carroll as a Griffin "satellite."

According to his personnel file, Carroll worked with Griffin as far back as 1950 when they were both employed in Boston by the War Assets Administration, a forerunner of the GSA.

Griffin, now a White House assistant, refused earlier this week to discuss his relationship with Carroll. Gary Hymel, an aide to O'Neill, said the speaker does not know Carroll.

Government sources said Carroll refused to testify before the grand jury that handled the Atlas Paint case, invoking his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination.

In court testimony, Tepperman said he learned about the payoff scheme when he inherited Atlas Paint from his father, who died in 1969. Tepperman's father had hired Lowell, a Newark lawyer, in 1968, and Tepperman said the firm paid Lowell about $250,000 through 1971.

Tepperman was granted immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony. He said he gave monthly payments to Lowell to give to Carroll and the two GSA officials who were found guilty.

Tepperman said the money, usually in $20 bills, was passed to Lowell in plain white envelopes.

Student Coalition Stages Demonstration

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 30 members of the Iranian and the Ethiopian Student Associations and the Howard University Students Association demonstrated a block and a half from the Soviet Embassy Wednesday to protest the presence of Russian forces in Afghanistan.

An. Afghanistan, Walleed Afghani.

said in a lunch hour, street-corner speech that he deplored any outside interference in central Asia.

"We are determined to fight to the last person in Afghanistan," he said. "At the same time, our people will not be fooled by the propaganda of imperialism."

Rules Set On Suspected Cancer-Causing Chemicals In Workplaces

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government on Wednesday set down its first comprehensive set of rules for protecting workers from hundreds of suspected cancer-causing chemicals found in workplaces.

The rules provide for the first time a framework for the quick identification and regulation of about 500 chemicals that are believed to pose health threats to untold numbers of workers who are exposed to the substances on the job.

The new regulations, developed by the Labor Department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration, would replace the current policy of regulating suspected carcinogens on a slow case-by-case basis.

OSHA said the policy is to take effect April 22, more than 2 1/2 years after the agency first proposed a systematic effort of carcinogen regulation. But the rules may be tied up in court by industry groups which oppose them as being scientifically flawed and very costly.

The American Industrial Health Council, a group made up of companies that produce or use chemicals, said the regulations lack "scientific validity" and compliance will cost businesses billions of dollars. The council said it would file a suit in the U.S. Court of Appeals on Friday, when the regulation officially will be issued, in an attempt to change the government's policy.

Organized labor praised the regulations but said it also would challenge them in court for not going far enough to protect workers. The regulations are "an excellent definitive treatment of cancer policy questions, but fall short of our expectations of an action program," said George Taylor, director of the AFL-CIO's occupational safety and health department.

The regulations are designed to accelerate the government's time-consuming pace for issuing rules limiting worker exposure to harmful substances. OSHA said it hoped to regulate 10 substances a year under the new approach, up from two a year currently.

The policy sets down specific rules for determining if a substance is a possible cancer-causing agent, and provides a model regulation for limiting its exposure.

In addition, OSHA will publish at least twice a year a list of 20 substances that it considers prime candidates for regulation.

At a news conference, Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Assistant Secretary Eula Bingham called the rules a "landmark policy."

"I sincerely believe we are about to embark on a course that will profoundly affect the quality of life for hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of American workers," Mrs. Bingham said. She said nearly 400,000 people die of cancer each year and one in four Americans will develop some form of cancer other than skin cancer.

Estimates of how many cases of cancer are caused by occupational exposure vary widely, she said, ranging from industry calculations of between 1 and 5 percent, to a government estimate that 20 to 40 percent of all cancers are attributable to occupational factors.

The National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health reported in October 1977 that a survey indicated one million Americans may be exposed to known cancer-causing chemicals at their workplace. The survey also estimated that another 20 million workers — nearly one in five in the labor force — encounter potentially dangerous pollutants ranging from noise and oil mist to known cancer-causing agents.

In its first nine years of existence, OSHA has issued final regulations for only 20 cancer-causing substances.

Presidential Check-Up Set For Friday

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will get his annual physical examination Friday at the Bethesda, Md., naval hospital, then go by helicopter to his Camp David retreat for a weekend stay, his chief spokesman said Wednesday.

Washington on Sunday for a live appearance on NBC's "Meet the Press" program. He is expected to go back to Camp David after the broadcast.

Powell said Carter's examination would be conducted by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash, who will make a public report on the results, probably Saturday.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: An excellent day to make long-range plans that could give you added income in the days ahead. A time when you can make interesting decisions and get desired results.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Be sure to handle any civic duties left unattended, then follow suggestions of influential persons and get excellent results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Persevere with that new project you started since it can yield fine benefits. Don't jeopardize your position with higher-ups.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Handle regular duties well and then you can take on more responsibilities later. Steer clear of trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Be more supportive of a wise and loyal associate and establish more goodwill between you. Think constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A couple of persons who have been around you for a long time could be of service to you, so take advantage of this. Be wise.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Study regular recreation you engage in and forget those that are not worthwhile. Come to a better understanding with a close tie.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Take time to improve conditions at home. Don't take on new enterprises until you have completed the old ones. Stay healthy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Having a more modern approach in personal dealings makes you more popular now. Sideswipe one who wants to make trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Get rid of obligations early and wisely, even if you have to make only partial payments. Handle business matters wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Know what your greatest aims are and go after them to the exclusion of everything else. Show more loyalty to family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Study your surroundings and make plans for improvement. Think before you speak, or you could find yourself in a lot of trouble.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Confer with experts who can help you gain more of the aims you have in mind. Relax at home tonight and keep out of trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will know how to combine the old, accepted ideas with the new and come up with a whole vista that is practical. Direct education along lines of investigation for best results. Don't neglect religious training early in life.

Firemen's Battle For Pay Hike Generating Teacher Sympathy

By LISA PAIKOWSKI and SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The battle by city firemen for increased wages has drawn sympathy from Lubbock teachers, but the right to collective bargaining appears to have generated little vocal opinion, spokesmen for teacher associations said Wednesday.

Spokesmen for the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association and the Lubbock Educators Association added, however, that their groups have not endorsed the firemen's cause.

The Lubbock Professional Fire Fighters Association Wednesday sent letters to city, county and school employees asking for support in Saturday's election for a 15 percent pay hike and collective bargaining rights.

Glenna Lane, president of the Lubbock Educators Association, said, "Since we are considered public employees, we would have to be sympathetic" with the firemen's pay hike request.

She said that her organization had, in fact, already met with the firemen's association, whose representatives "were allowed to speak" at a recent meeting. "But we have not joined them in any organized effort," Mrs. Lane said. "We didn't endorse them."

Joyce Rickert, president of the Lubbock Classroom Teachers Association, also expressed sympathy with the firemen's cause. "We're also fighting inflation as all employees in the public sector are," she said.

Mrs. Rickert said there has been "a lot of discussion about it (the proposed pay raise) among teachers, but that the decision to support the firemen at the polls will be up to each individual member. She said she does not foresee an endorsement by either teacher group.

Both association presidents said they have heard little or no discussion about the firemen's bid for collective bargaining rights.

Mrs. Lane dismissed collective bargaining rights as having little relation to teachers' concerns because the professional organizations here can "go to the school board" through a consultation agreement formulated in 1972.

But, Mrs. Rickert noted, "We do not have collective bargaining rights." While teacher spokesmen can consult with trustees to present their proposals, teachers do not have the right to bargain or negotiate, she said.

"We present our side to the board and they listen to us. But the decision remains with the school board. This is the only method whereby there is any provision for anything other than individual teacher contact with the board."

She explained that under the Texas Education Code school boards are not required to consult with professional teacher organizations, but Lubbock board members opted to provide that arrangement.

Spokesmen for the teacher groups annually present trustees at school board meetings with their proposal for increases in the local salary increments. The bulk of teachers' pay, however, is set by the state legislature.

City voters go to the polls Saturday, and in anticipation of the election firemen have been mailing letters to everyone in the city who they think would be interested, firemen's spokesman Dick Brightwell explained. "I even got a letter myself," he noted.

Among those the firemen believe should be most interested in the upcoming election are members of the local work force. Brightwell said he advocates collective bargaining laws for all workers.

"I don't think that all of the fire fighters go along with what the big powerful unions do, but we do feel everyone should have the right to speak out and be heard," Brightwell observed.

The letter sent to employees of the school system says, "The Jan. 19 fire fighters pay election could be as important for you as it is for us."

According to the letter, "This marks the first time that any group of Lubbock area public employees has gone to the citizens for a pay increase and for the fight (sic) to meet-and-confer with the administration."

The message to the school board and to state representatives, if we are successful, will be that people of Lubbock are willing to give their public servants reasonable pay and fair treatment. However, if the vote goes against us, it would be reasonable to conclude that the opposite is true; that when the people will not consider even their firefighters for a cost-of-living raise, they are not likely to want their other public employees to be given adequate pay increases."

Farther down in the letter, the firemen pledge their support to teachers. The letter states, "We need your help! We would be the first to support any similar effort by teachers."

The letter sent to city employees is very similar. In that letter, the firemen say they would "support any similar effort" by city departments or groups.

City Manager Larry Cunningham said he considers the letter sent to city workers an insult to them. "It concerns me that the fire fighters would openly state to other city employees that they (the fire fighters) are special people and should be treated in a preferential manner," Cunningham said.

The city manager also expressed concern about the firemen's offer to support any similar effort by other groups of city employees. Cunningham said this statement indicated the firemen's willingness to help city workers unionize.

The Avalanche-Journal asked Brightwell if the fire fighters association is advocating unionization for all public employees. Brightwell said that he could only express a personal opinion, but that he believes "everyone should unite for a common cause."

Brightwell noted, however, that the fire fighters association has not taken an official stance to encourage all public workers to unionize.

Mayor, City Officials Challenge Firemen's Glove Complaint

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The cotton gloves issued to Lubbock firefighters were back in the spotlight Wednesday, but this time city officials were the ones speaking out on the glove issue.

At an afternoon news conference, Mayor Dirk West unveiled a display of more than two dozen types of gloves, which he said are issued to employees in the various city departments. West said he had called the news conference "to get the facts straight" on the gloves issued to city workers.

The Lubbock Firefighters Association has used the cotton gloves as a symbol in their campaign to convince city voters that firemen need collective bargaining rights. Voters will decide on the bargaining rights issue and a 15 percent pay raise requested by firefighters in a special election Saturday.

In recent advertisements, the firefighters have claimed that the gloves issued to them are worthless. They also have charged that firefighters' complaints about the gloves and other equipment have been unanswered by city officials.

However, West charged Wednesday that any complaint the firefighters have about the gloves should not be aimed at the city, but rather at the fire department.

"I don't buy gloves and Larry (Cunningham) doesn't buy gloves," West said. "The firemen specified these gloves."

According to the mayor, individual departments within the city make the decisions regarding what type of gloves or other equipment should be issued to employees in each department. The same is true at the fire department, he added.

Fire Chief Tom Foster, who also was at the news conference, said the fire department began issuing the cotton gloves about 1970. Prior to that time, Foster said, no gloves were provided, and firefighters bought their own.

Even after the fire department began issuing gloves, most firefighters continued to purchase their own gloves, Foster said. "The problem is there's not been a glove developed yet that meets all the needs in firefighting situations," the fire chief explained.

Foster said that he plans to meet with the fire department's safety committee after the special election to study other gloves on the market. A glove that has been researched by the Dallas Fire Department is one that Foster said will be considered.

Gloves weren't the only issue discussed at the mayor's news conference. West also took issue with recent statements by firefighter spokesmen that the city council had used money that could have gone into salary increases for city employees for "pet projects" of council members.

The firefighters have claimed that the council knocked two percent off the city manager's proposal for salary increases and budgeted that money to buy fertilizer for city parks.

But West said the city's parks "have gone begging for years," and many have become little more than "weed patches."

According to West, if the council has had a pet project over the years, it probably has been the fire department. He noted that the city has opened a new fire station, added 30 staff members to the fire department and purchased equipment such as a pumper truck in recent years.

"One of the two largest items in the city budget is the fire department," West said.

CITY'S GLOVE WARDROBE — Lubbock Mayor Dirk West, center, took the firefighters' glove issue a step further Wednesday and charged that firemen requested the controversial gloves they now use. At a news conference, West unveiled a display of the gloves used by employees in various city departments and said the responsibility for selecting the gloves rests with the supervisors in each of those departments. Joining the mayor in the news conference were City Manager Larry Cunningham, at left, and Fire Chief Tom Foster. (Staff Photo by Jim Watkins)

Jury Panel List Increases In 'Witch' Trial

PLAINVIEW (Special) — Attorneys in the murder trial of self-professed witch Loy Stone Wednesday selected three more prospective jurors to a panel from which they will select a jury.

"We got three more today, but I'm not sure how many they interviewed," said Mary Determann, court administrator to 64th District Judge John T. Boyd, who will hear the case. "They could start right away if they get the rest tomorrow (today), but we still don't know for sure."

The three new panelists brings to 28 the number of Hale County residents selected to the board by prosecutor Jimmy Davis and defense attorneys Travis Shelton and James Doores. From that panel, the lawyers will choose a dozen to actually hear the controversial case. Should they fail to get 32 panelists from the current crop of 72 persons, another group of 140 persons will be summoned for questioning, Boyd said.

Stone, 50, and his wife, Louise, 49, are charged with the Halloween 1977 shotgun slaying of Roxanne Casas, a 15 year-old Dimmitt High School sophomore, who died that night after being struck by shotgun fire as she rode in a pickup near the Stones rural Castro County residence. Two of her companions in the truck also were injured in the blast, which the Stones contend they never heard.

The Stones gained some regional notoriety after appearing on an Amarillo television talk show about two weeks before the incident. Following that appearance, the couple had complained to local law officials of "general harassment" by area teen-agers, and Castro County lawmen had chased some teens away from the Stones residence several hours before the shooting incident, according to Castro County police records.

The trial was moved from Dimmitt to Plainview after a state district judge ruled that the Stones would not receive a fair trial in their hometown because of their religious beliefs and racial tensions stirred up by the incident.

Mrs. Stone will be tried on the same charge later. No date has yet been set for her trial.

Mondale Retracts 'Patriotism' Statement In Iowa

By The Associated Press
Vice President Walter F. Mondale said Wednesday the presidential candidates should feel free to say "what they please," even if that means an escalation of campaign debate over the Carter administration's handling of the Iranian and Afghanistan crises.

Returning to Iowa to drum up support for President Carter at the state's precinct caucuses, Mondale was asked about his suggestion that candidates who oppose Carter's Soviet grain embargo are unpatriotic.

"We have never, ever doubted the right of candidates to say what they please," the vice president replied. "We are not questioning anyone's patriotism."

But Mondale also said this is "a time when Americans are very worried about the profoundly serious acts of the Soviet Union" and are impressed by Carter's handling of the crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

Pressed as to whether he believed foreign policy debate at this time could harm national unity, the vice president declared: "In this nation of ours, people have the right to say what they please."

A week ago, Mondale had said some presidential aspirants succumbed to political expediency by speaking out against Carter's move, saying they had forsaken the patriotic option.

The brouhaha that resulted had Sen. Edward M. Kennedy retorting that he didn't need any lectures from the vice president. The two longtime friends seemed to have patched things over by Saturday night, however. Appearing on the same stage in Iowa City, they cracked jokes as Kennedy presented Mondale with a New England Patriot football jersey.

With campaigning for the Monday night Iowa precinct caucuses in its final hours, Mondale once more defended the curtailment of 17 million metric tons of grain as punishment for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

"Most Iowans think the time has come not just to deliver words to the Soviet Union, but actions that hurt," he said.

Mondale said the caucuses, representing the first genuine test of strength among Carter, Kennedy and California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., would be "a very tough fight. It will depend entirely on how many people turn out."

In separate statements, meanwhile, Carter's chief spokesman and campaign manager described Iowa as a "horseshoe."

Asked whether he was prepared for an upset, White House press secretary Jody Powell said, "In politics, you are prepared for any eventuality. I think it's a horseshoe."

At a news conference at the Carter-Mondale Presidential Committee, campaign manager Robert Strauss said the president is in trouble in Iowa. And he confirmed that the White House has sent 30 to 40 staff members to the corn-

President Claims Soviets Surprised By Condemnation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was quoted Wednesday as saying he believes the Soviets "have been surprised" by United Nations disapproval of their military move into Afghanistan.

Meeting Tuesday with an invited group of out-of-town editors and broadcasters, Carter said, "I think the Soviets felt that they could take this action with just a minimal adverse reaction."

The president's remarks were made public by the White House on Wednesday.

Carter told the group that the Soviets "have been surprised, not only by the trade restraint that I have imposed, but also by the overwhelming condemnation voted by the U.N. on Monday. The vote by the U.N. General Assembly followed a Soviet veto of a Security Council resolution calling for withdrawal of foreign troops from Afghanistan."

Brownfield Seeking Meteorological Tower Designation

BROWNFIELD (Special) — There's plenty of wind in West Texas, and city officials here hope to supply part of the city's future power needs with wind someday.

City officials are awaiting word from the U.S. Department of Energy on its application to have the department locate a meteorological tower here that would gather wind data. The 150-foot tower, resembling a radio tower, would have anemometers at three different heights to measure wind velocities for a year.

Dick Fletcher, assistant city manager for Brownfield, explained that if the city should be funded for the meteorological tower the city's chances as a future wind turbine site would be greatly improved.

The Brownfield Municipal Power and Light Co. is one of 45 companies across the nation that have applied to be sites for the meteorological towers. The DOE is expected to fund at least 15 of the applications for the towers and should reach a decision before the end of the month.

ducing state to bolster the president's chances on Monday.

"We were behind 10 days ago," Strauss said of the Iowa contest. "I think we've done a little better since then."

One administration official, requesting anonymity, had said earlier "there's no question" in the Carter camp that Kennedy has "out-organized us" in Iowa.

While Mondale was stating his views on the right of presidential candidates to speak their minds, a group of big-city prosecutors chided the candidates for failing to talk enough about rising crime. And the League of Women Voters sought to get Democratic and Republican candidates committed to debates.

The National District Attorneys Association, concluding a three-day meeting in Washington, bemoaned the lack of political discussion about "an alarming" increase in violent street crime.

"We ask the president and all those who aspire to the presidency to address these issues now and in the campaign ahead," the association said in a letter to Mondale.

The letter said the presidential hopefuls have an obligation to tell the American people how they would deal with "our immediate crime problems."

The League of Women Voters, which brought the nation the Jimmy Carter-Gerald Ford face-offs in 1976, said it had a number of candidates interested in debate.

"We won't announce the names of participating candidates for a week or 10 days, but we do have several who are interested," said Betsy Gutman, spokeswoman for the League's Voter Education Fund.

Ruth Hinerfeld, who heads the fund, said the debates would be designed to precede primary elections in key states, beginning in New Hampshire next month and running through May.

The first is scheduled for Feb. 19 in Manchester, N.H., for Democratic candidates. The rest of the agenda includes debates among Republican hopefuls in New Hampshire on Feb. 20; Democrats, Chicago, March 12 and Republicans on March 13; Democrats in Houston, April 22, and Republicans, April 23; GOP in San Francisco on May 27, and Democrats on the following day.

Six Republicans debated one another in Des Moines on Jan. 5. A Democratic debate scheduled for Jan. 7 was canceled when President Carter withdrew, saying the Iranian crisis required his continued presence at the White House.

Both Kennedy and Brown were irked by Carter's refusal to engage them in debate in Iowa, and both are anxious to accept any invitation for a debate that would include the president.

Whether Carter would take part in the debates scheduled by the league was uncertain.

In an interview with editors released Wednesday, Carter said he could not set a date for venturing out of the White House.

He said any campaign activity in the face of the Soviet move into Afghanistan and the holding of American hostages in Iran would create "a sense of belief among the American people that the intense interest" in these crises "has been decreased."

Strauss predicted that Carter would soon begin campaigning actively, saying the president cannot remain on the sidelines much longer.

"I think that the president, in the next couple of weeks, will be directing himself to this," Strauss said. "There is no intention of the president to remain isolated from active politics."

In another development, Kennedy, campaigning in New Hampshire, said the controversial Seabrook nuclear power plant under construction in that state should be converted to a coal-burning facility.

"It seems to me it would be a very live option," the senator said in revealing he has recommended such a move to the New Hampshire Public Service Commission.

And Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch officially entered the Democratic presidential sweepstakes.

Finch, whose four-year term expires next Tuesday, predicted he would win because he is the only candidate offering strong leadership to solve the nation's problems.

The Democratic Party, meantime, announced a three-month drafting schedule for its 1980 platform. Detroit Mayor Coleman Young, temporary platform committee chairman, said the first hearings would be held in Washington on March 18.

Doctors, Minorities Said Needed On Ailing Hospital's Board

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Lubbock County Hospital District could "create a more favorable cash flow" into financially ailing Health Sciences Center Hospital by including physician and minority representatives on its board of managers, says a member of the Texas Tech School of Medicine faculty.

The people who can do the most for the hospital district in terms of turning financial liabilities into assets are the physicians," believes Dr. Ray Santos, a Lubbock orthopedic surgeon and president of the city's Board of Health.

Unlike the six other hospitals in the city, the Health Sciences board of managers does not include a physician as a member.

Stressing he was not speaking in an official capacity, Santos explained, "Physicians are the people who admit patients to the hospital, and the only revenue that the hospital has is from patient care."

"Certainly if physicians were given an opportunity to have more of an input into the decisions made (at the board level) they would probably be happy to refer private patients to Health Sciences," he continued.

Santos pointed his finger at county commissioners, who appoint the seven-member hospital district board of managers, contending they "have not allowed physicians from the private medical community or the med school staff to be active participants in the major decisions that take place on the board.

Local and Tech med school physicians "feel left out" of the decision-making process at the hospital district, said Santos.

Santos says he also has concluded racial discrimination in the county commissioners court has kept minority representatives off the hospital district board.

"By process of elimination, what else could it be?" asked Santos, who says the minority community has made several recommendations of qualified members to the county commissioners.

Stressing he long has enjoyed good relations with the commissioners, Santos nonetheless charged they "have left all along that they don't need or want minority representation on the (hospital district) board."

Santos acknowledged minorities "are responsible in a way for creating the hospital's economic problems and positive input from them would swing the tide toward a more favorable financial position for the hospital."

A minority representative on the hospital district board would be a channel of communication to the minority population," said Santos.

He cited statistics indicating minority patients are 55 to 60 percent of the patient load at Health Sciences, while the minority population in Lubbock is 35 to 40 percent of the total.

By having (a board member) who directly relates to Mexican-Americans or blacks, we could educate the minorities," said Santos. "We (could tell minority patients) we need them to make a maximum effort to pay whatever they can (to the hospital district). Most people want to pay something," he said.

With an existing board vacancy to be filled today, County Judge Rodrick Shaw denied the commissioners court discriminates against minorities.

Certainly the commissioners court is receptive to minorities," he said. "Minority candidates (for the hospital board) have been considered before and still are under consideration. It wouldn't surprise me at all to have one appointed in the not too distant future," said Shaw.

Santos said he is not interested in a spot on the hospital district board. "I would probably turn it down," he said.

Shaw stressed the principal qualification for a hospital board member is a "real good business background." The court "looks for people with a sound business background and an interest in community affairs," he said.

"We don't want to make an appointment solely on the basis of race, but (a minority representative) would provide a good balance," Shaw acknowledged.

County commissioners "have been reluctant" to appoint a doctor to the county hospital board of managers because of a potential conflict of interest between the medical school and the county hospital, said Shaw.

Any doctor likely to be a candidate for a hospital district board seat also would likely be associated with the medical school, Shaw explained.

Although the Tech med school and Health Sciences Center Hospital are funded separately — by the state and by the county hospital district respectively — shared services and program cutbacks often are negotiated jointly.

A med school physician, who also would serve on the hospital, "would be expected to place the needs of the school ahead of the hospital's," said Shaw.

The hospital district board now includes a physician — the vice president of Health Sciences Center — in a non-voting liaison capacity.

"There is no reason in the world why doctors' ideas are not readily available to board members," stated Shaw.

"With only seven members every profession can't be represented. I do not subscribe to the idea that the only way to get advice (from a segment of the population) is to have them running the place," said the judge.

"They don't have to have the ultimate vote to have a voice."

New Slate Of Officers Assume Posts On Better Business Bureau's Board

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The new year officially began for the Better Business Bureau Wednesday as new directors and officers of the board of directors officially took office.

Beginning the 26th year of operations, the bureau installed C.B. Carter as chairman of the board, Henry Huneke as first vice president, Newt Robison as second vice president and Don Harris as treasurer.

Installed as new members of the board of directors to serve three-year terms were Dale Elms, Fred Gothard, Jim Miller, Jose Ramirez and Larry Young.

Leon Harris, who was chairman of the board for 1979, said hiring Alan Bligh to serve as the bureau's new executive director was the highlight of his year. Bligh began work in August, replacing Malcolm Cleland, who resigned to take a BBB post in Denver.

Other highlights of 1979, Harris noted, included the BBB working with the state attorney general's office in the handling of informal complaints, the 25th anniversary banquet of the South Plains BBB in September, the first arbitrations in four years at the bureau, and aiding Wichita Falls after a tornado struck and itinerant building repair companies came into town.

New chairman Carter echoed Harris' enthusiasm for Bligh as executive director and asked Bligh for his outlook for 1980.

Bligh said one of the most significant programs this year will be increasing arbitration between businesses and consumers.

The bureau also plans to expand its activities outside of Lubbock, Bligh said. The bureau serves an 18-county area and Bligh said he hopes to make it more effective in the outlying areas.

"I have visited with 25 area city halls in the last two months talking about their problems," Bligh said. "I have found the number one problem to be solicitors and peddlers. We are going to help them in drafting ordinances and educating their people so they can cut down on the problems."

New committees in the areas of advertising review, advisory capacities for insurance and educating senior citizens about rip-offs that can affect them, also are being planned, Bligh said.

Bligh said in a later interview that the board of directors is not permitted by

Solon Seeks Re-Election To House

House Speaker Bill Clayton of Springlake has announced he will seek re-election to the District 74 seat he now holds in the Texas House of Representatives.

A member of the House since 1962, Clayton was the first speaker in history to serve three consecutive terms and plans a bid for an unprecedented fourth term.

"Serving as state representative for District 74 and as Speaker of the House of Representatives, I have worked double duty at addressing the needs of the citizens of this area in their dealings with government," Clayton said.

"I have attempted to maintain a direct line of communication with all the people of our seven counties and, as a result, a great many of the problems we have faced have been resolved.

"We have been successful in dealing with short-term problems of energy for agriculture, in helping with improvement of our roads and highways, with providing tax relief for both homeowners and farmers and ranchers" and providing an economic climate that is conducive to attracting new business and industry to Texas, he said.

Clayton added it is important to "see that the strong voice of our area is not diminished in Congress, the State Senate and the House of Representatives," next year when legislators must redraw district boundaries in the state following the 1980 census.

District 74 includes Bailey, Castro, Cochran, Deaf Smith, Lamb, Oldham and Parmer counties.

About 70 percent of the people in the United States live in 2 percent of the total land area of the country.

Margaret's

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: As I write this letter I am so weary I can hardly see, but I cannot sleep. I learned this week that my husband has Parkinson's disease. I would like to read what you have to say about this. Is there much hope for these victims? It is related to circulatory problems in his case, his doctor says. He is 64 and retired. I have almost lost my mind. — Mrs. B.A.

At your request I altered the initials. Parkinson's disease, while unpleasant, is not beyond aid. In its full-blown state, Parkinson's is easy to spot. The sufferer has a trembling while at rest, a slowness and rigidity of movement and a fixed facial expression. Otherwise the person remains alert and fully functioning.

There is no consistent proof of what causes Parkinson's, but circulation problems have been suggested by some authorities.

OK, where does all this leave you? I said things can be done. There are numerous medicines available to help control the symptoms of this illness. Trihexyphenidyl and related drugs have been used successfully for many years. L-dopa and bromocriptine are more recent medicines.

There's much you can do to support your husband at this time and to help him have a productive, happy life. That begins with a good night's rest for yourself and a good chat with his doctor the next day.

Dear Dr. Donohue: If somebody takes thyroxine, what would happen if the dose was increased. I mean, if the doctor said to take one tablet a day, what would happen if that person were to start taking two or three tablets a day? — E.C.

Increasing the amount on your own is a dangerous practice. The thyroxine gland problem. If too much is taken the opposite condition (overactivity) might result — sweats, tremors, weight loss, etc.

A second mistake many patients make is to assume that the dose of medicine that a friend takes is the dose they should take. All doses must be tailored for the individual. Your doctor will adjust your doses of thyroxine (thyroid hormone) on a scientific basis.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 75-year-old woman. Fifty years ago during a pregnancy I was positive for blood sugar. After delivery I became negative. All the intervening years I have been having normal results. Last year when I was in the hospital I was put on a diabetes diet for a short time and then went back to a normal diet. With this intermittent condition would I be classified as a diabetic? Please send me your booklet, "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." — N.N.P.

Diabetes implies an abnormally high blood sugar due to a lack of insulin production by the pancreas. There are times when the blood sugar can be high then revert to normal. This can happen (and frequently does) during pregnancy, when the various hormones produce an antagonism toward the body's insulin. Hence, the blood sugar rises.

While this is not terribly harmful, the blood should be checked at intervals thereafter. Stress, as from a serious illness, can also elevate blood sugar and require special diet, such as the one you got in the hospital.

If the blood sugar returns to normal after the stress has been removed then this is not diabetes. Such people, however, in whom this has happened, should also be checked from time to time to be sure overt diabetes has not developed. The booklet was well-named. Other readers can order it by mailing 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

to mention a few. Sometimes, the eosinophil count is high without there being any detectable cause.

Your doctor is trying to make sure there are no serious conditions causing your eosinophil count to be high.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Can varicose veins run in families? — Mrs. T.S.

They can. In such cases they tend to appear earlier in life.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Please settle this for us. The child's vaccination report has the initials "DPT" on it. I say this stands for diphtheria and my husband says that's not true, although he cannot say what it does stand for. Who's right? — Mrs. T.D.

Your husband is, so far as he goes. The "DPT" stands for three separate words, "diphtheria, pertussis (whooping cough) and tetanus," all three of which are protected against with the DPT vaccine.

Troubled with varicose veins? To make sure you are doing all you can, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Doctor Lists Ways To Improve Sleep

NEW YORK (Special) — If your New Year's resolutions include such things as improving your looks, your productivity and your disposition, you might want to put "sleep better" at the top of your list, says the Better Sleep Council.

"Modern civilization, especially America, has most of us operating on a push-button, automated framework," says the Council, an organization that reports on sleep and sleep research. "We forget that sleep is essentially a natural process and we must work to encourage and allow that natural function to operate. Instead, too many people tend to go to sleep when they want to and get up when they have to."

Many people have taken on habits that are counter-productive to getting a good night's sleep such as watching the late-late show, consuming great quantities of coffee and going on crash diets.

"When our inner rhythm is ignored, it is difficult for it to perform its function," says sleep researcher Dr. Wilse B. Webb, a director of the Council. "But just as it takes discipline in following an exercise and diet program, maintaining a regular sleep pattern requires determination."

Eliminating so-called "bad habits" is difficult because the habits and mannerisms that we have do exist for a good reason, according to Dr. Harry Reis, associate professor of psychology at the University of Rochester.

"Every habit expresses some need or desire of a person and one can't just drop it," says Dr. Reis. "Even those habits that we are not comfortable with or are not anxious for people to know about are 'accepted' by us because we believe at heart that they exist for a good reason."

A person who habitually stays up later than is wise or necessary, falling asleep in a chair or stumbling off to bed in a semi-groggery state may have trouble "allowing" himself to relax, says Dr. Reis. "You have to deliberately decide not to do anything and for many hard-driving ambitious people this is almost unthinkable."

Dr. Reis suggests that people who want to develop a better sense of their inner rhythm of sleep must first become aware of just what they're currently doing that is in conflict.

"When you can focus on your habit and are aware of it, then you can next examine just how deeply ingrained it is," says Dr. Reis. "The depth and intensity of a habit influence how we can change it — whether therapy is needed or simply the desire to do something differently."

Dr. Reis suggests that people focus on what they will gain rather than on what they must give up. "Looking forward to a positive improvement in your life can give you a positive sense of urgency," says Dr. Reis. "The overweight person should look forward to the beauty of a new figure rather than indulge in self-hated and the withdrawal of food as a punishment."

People who want to improve their sleeping habits should first learn everything they can about the process in general and then about their own sleep in particular, suggests the Council.

"A Guide to Better Sleep" has been written for the consumer, based on the latest sleep research, and is being distributed by the Council. The 24-page guide explores some of the basic knowledge about sleep and gives suggestions for helping people better understand their own sleep needs and problems. Copies are available for $1 from The Better Sleep Council, 1270 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10020.

HOMEMADE BREAD — A loaf of bread baked in your own kitchen is always a special treat. This Orange Pecan Honey Bread is full of nutrients, but tastes good, too.

Bread Features Pecans

BY JEANNE LIVELY
Family News Staff

What is nicer than the smell of homemade bread baking in the oven? And what is so enjoyable to eat as a slice of bread made in your own kitchen!

Supplies of Texas pecans and honey are plentiful this year and the cost low. Do indulge!

ORANGE PECAN HONEY BREAD
(Texas Department of Agriculture recipe)
2 tbsps. shortening
1 cup honey
1 egg

1-1/2 tbsps. orange peel, grated
2-1/2 cups flour, sifted
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup orange juice
2-1/2 tsp. baking powder
1/4 cup pecans, chopped

Cream shortening and honey together thoroughly. Add well-beaten egg and grated orange peel. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with orange juice. Add pecans. Bake in greased loaf pan in 325-degree oven for approximately 70 minutes.

Secretaries' Survey Completed

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — A survey of more than 600 professional secretaries who attended a National Secretaries Association convention here indicates that most of those polled like their jobs.

"The survey clearly substantiates our opinion that professional secretaries enjoy what they are doing and welcome new challenges," says NSA president Ann Michele of Albuquerque, N.M. "They're not bogged down at the point of who gets the coffee. They are part of a management team and they realize how valuable they are."

For example, she points out, while 95 percent still type and take shorthand, a growing area of daily activity is business-meeting preparation. A fourth of those surveyed spend part of a typical day helping to prepare meeting presentations such as slides, visuals, graphs and overhead projector transparencies.

Among the daily activities the respondents reported were typing correspondence and reports; making copies of letters and reports; writing letters for the executives with whom they work; filing; arranging meetings; taking shorthand; making travel arrangements, and serving coffee and food at meetings — a function reported by 53 percent.

The poll showed that most enjoyed "writing letters for the boss," with 77 percent responding positively in this area and 29 percent saying that writing letters was the most satisfying activity they handled.

The activities found the least satisfying were filing, making copies of letters and reports, and serving coffee or food at meetings.

Of the secretaries studied, 96 percent said they were proud to be a secretary; 91 percent think they make their executive look good to the rest of the company; 91 percent take pride in keeping the office neat; 90 percent feel they and their executive work as a team; 89 percent feel they are treated fairly; 86 percent consider themselves more of an assistant than a secretary.

As to the future, more than half of all the professional secretaries surveyed would be happy with the same position, but with a higher salary, though 38 percent have hopes for promotion to higher secretarial positions. Only 40 percent of the total polled have aspirations for a non-secretarial position with their present employers.

The study, sponsored by 3M Visual Products Division and the NSA, was conducted by Market Facts, Inc. Average age of those surveyed was 46. Of these, 37 percent had one or more dependent children; 57 percent were married and 19 percent had never married.

Of the group surveyed, 79 percent are college graduates or have had some college, and virtually all were high school graduates.

The average number of years worked in a secretarial position was 20.4 and the average number of years at the current job was 9.7, indicating the professional and career orientation of those surveyed.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I discovered a very good hint last night and could hardly wait until this morning to write you about it.
I was having guests for dinner and had intended to have barbecued brisket (the breast of beef or the part of the breast lying next to the ribs).
Unfortunately I was late getting home and didn't have time to barbecue. Instead, I used my electric knife to cut some steaks (approximately a half inch thick) off the brisket.
Ordinarily a brisket is tough and takes quite awhile to cook and get tender. I took the steaks and poured pure lemon juice over them, adding salt, pepper and garlic to taste. I let them stand for about 30 minutes so the lemon juice would tenderize them.
Then I breaded and fried them until they turned a deep brown on each side.
They came out just as good and as tender as more expensive cuts of meat.
You should have heard the raves — but the best part was the price. — D.W.G.

DEAR HELOISE:
It takes about two months to fill a pad, but it's worth the effort as I'm told patients enjoy it.
If more people would do such things, it would help to eliminate the boredom. — Bertha Wolfe

DEAR HELOISE:
Just yesterday I went to the refrigerator for the remaining half can of chocolate frosting only to find it empty, thanks to a 9-year-old "sweet-freak."
Not having the necessary ingredients for homemade frosting, I grabbed a package of non-dairy whipped cream, added a few melted chocolate chips and frosted away.
That "emergency" led to experiments with other flavors, food coloring, etc.
I was pleased to find such versatility and, best of all, whipped frosting costs far less than regular store-bought frosting.
Also it has fewer calories, a big plus! — Sue Nelson

Engagements

DUDENSING—HOBRAUSCHK SAGERTON (Special) — Mrs. Wallace L. Dudensing has announced the engagement of a daughter, Carol Ann, to Larry David Hobrauschk, son of Mr. and Mrs. V.J. Hobrauschk of Littlefield. The bride-elect is also the daughter of the late Mr. Wallace L. Dudensing.
The bride-elect was graduated from Rule High School and Texas Tech University. The future bridegroom was graduated from Littlefield High School and Texas Tech.
The couple will be married March 29 in Faith Lutheran Church of Sagerton.

Good thinking! It sounds delicious. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
When drying clothes, you should always sort them and dry the heavy things last.
Never put good clothes and lingerie in with heavy, long-drying items if you want to save them from wear due to friction.
It's also easier to grab shirts and blouses out to hang up when they are all dried together. — Barbara Nordling

DEAR HELOISE:
One day not long ago I noticed a smudge of tar on my counter top. After discovering I was out of the kitchen wax made to remove such stains, I tried to think of something I could use to remove it.
I decided to try peanut butter because of the oil base and the fact that it is not abrasive. It worked beautifully.
It also works on floors and does not disturb the shine.
Handy too because it is something we almost always have on hand. — Maxine Boyd

DEAR HELOISE:
I've found another good use for tennis balls besides playing tennis.
Take one and cut a hole in it just large enough to stretch over the doorknob.
Your little ones won't be able to open the door and it also protects the wall behind the door that the knob might mar. — Harriet Cameron Parents are the cleverest people so if you've got a good bringing-up-children hint, send it to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. She can't answer your letter personally but will use the best tips received in her column.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Soniat

The bidding in the box was when Eddie Kantar held the South cards. His two-spade bid was indicative of his style which is to bid when there is any conceivable reason to do so. This time he held five spades, a singleton heart and the jack and it was his turn.

When you bid as Eddie does, you should make it a point to play the cards as well as Eddie does.

He studied the hand for a while and saw that if he could score five trump tricks, one heart and two diamonds he would be home. Then he took dummy's ace of hearts, ruffed a heart, led to dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed another heart, led to dummy's king of diamonds and ruffed a third.
This line of play is called a dummy reversal in that Eddie had managed to reduce his trump length to less than dummy's. He also had six tricks in and was going to get two more to bring home the contract.
Dummy reversal is an important procedure to remember. Normally one prefers to ruff in the hand with fewest trumps, but extra tricks can sometimes be scored by taking advantage of a void or singleton in what would normally be the master hand. Dummy now becomes master and his short suit is used to collect opponents' trumps.

'Sinner' Pays Debt

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — It was 1968 when the gumball machine was stolen from George Rider's coin laundry, an incident little noted at the time and long since forgotten by just about everybody.

But not by the man who took it. Recently, he called the now-retired Rider and said he wanted to make restitution for the theft.

"I thought it was somebody trying to give me the business," said Rider. "I couldn't believe it."

But the man persisted, saying he wanted to know how much he owed. Rider checked with the local Kiwanis Club — which gets part of the proceeds from the gumball machines to use for charity — and told him that $25 ought to cover it.

Two days later, the man mailed Rider a cashier's check, not for $25 but for $118, made out to the Kiwanis Club. In an anonymous letter accompanying the check, the man said he estimated that there was $32 worth of merchandise and money in the machine he stole.

"Thirty-two dollars isn't what it used to be, so I've added 42 percent interest compounded annually for 11 1/2 years to compensate for inflation," the man wrote.

"Perhaps this incident can benefit somebody by serving as testimony to the power of God's holy spirit working in the heart of a sinner," he added.

Caught With His Gun Down

RACINE, Wis. (AP) — For 25 years, Racine County Sheriff Leland Wittke was never without his gun and never had any trouble.

Then one night he was accosted by two muggers in a restaurant parking lot. He reached for his gun and it wasn't there. He had left it at home.

Wittke said he was walking to his car Saturday night when the two men, one of them armed with a knife, approached him and demanded his wallet.

"You'll get my gun," the sheriff told them. But when he reached for it, he realized that he didn't have it.

That's when he decided to fight, and the suspects fled in the scuffle.

"If I'd had my gun I would have put a couple slugs in them," Wittke said. "Twenty-five years I've carried that thing and never had any trouble. And then I leave it home and this happens."

Wired At Half-Staff

KEENE, N.H. (AP) — When the Keene City Council voted that all municipal flags would be lowered in solidarity with the American hostages in Iran, school officials realized they had a problem.

Their flags were all wired to the tops of their poles because vandals often had cut the cords and made off with the flags.

So, school officials simply had the flags wired at half-staff, with the intention to unwire them when the hostages are released.

Hostage Wants To Return

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Peace Corps has postponed a decision on whether a volunteer from New Jersey will get her wish to return to El Salvador where she was held hostage for 10 days last month, an agency spokeswoman said Wednesday.

Deborah Loff, 25, of Succasunna, N.J., returned to the United States shortly before Christmas. She said she wanted to return to the Latin American country to complete the final nine months of her 24-month stint for the volunteer agency.

Mariou Batt, a spokeswoman for the Peace Corps, said the agency decided last week to defer a decision on whether Miss Loff will be sent back.

"The first reason was her safety," Miss Batt said. "The second was based on how effective she could be on her Peace Corps assignment given the high profile she has in the area."

FCC Urged To Start Highway Information System

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department urged the Federal Communications Commission Wednesday to set aside radio air space for possible use in a two-way highway information system for motorists.

The recommendation was submitted in response to an FCC request for comment.

World wheat production is showing a decline of 8.5 percent this year, down nearly to 401 million metric tons. A year ago, world production was at the 438.5 million-ton mark.

ment on a proposed new personal radio service intended to alleviate congestion on mobile radio and citizens band systems.

The department said a portion of the 900 megahertz frequency range should be reserved for a motorist communication system which could provide drivers with information about routes, hazards, accidents, detours, emergency vehicles, gasoline supplies and accommodations.

Drivers also would be able to send information in case they have a mechanical breakdown or other highway emergency.

Live Shorter, Says Hoffman

NEW YORK (AP) — Asked how to make a marriage last, actor Dustin Hoffman responded that the problem lies in longevity.

"Don't lengthen the union, he said, shorten the life span."

Hoffman, in an interview in the current Ladies Home Journal, cited an observation that "when marriages were first invented our life span was only 30 years, so that marriages didn't last more than 10 or 15 years then."

Current life spans of 70 years mean marriages could run 50 years.

"That's a long time," Hoffman said. "So perhaps one of the things you need for marriage to last is a short life span."

Hoffman, 42, is separated from his wife of 10 years.

Trial Set For Governor

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Trial dates have been set for former Gov. John B. Swainson on charges of drunken driving and possession of marijuana, a judge said Wednesday.

GOV. SWAINSON

District Court Judge James M. Justin said the drunk driving case is scheduled for Jan. 25 before District Court Judge Robert E. Biewend in Jackson. The marijuana case is scheduled before Justin on Feb. 14.

Swainson, 54, was arrested on Nov. 16, 1977 by state troopers who said they saw him "driving erratically." State troopers said a marijuana cigarette fell from Swainson's coat pocket later at the Jackson County Jail.

Swainson, who lives in Manchester near Ann Arbor and now runs an antique business, was governor in 1961-62 and later served on the state Supreme Court. He resigned from the court in 1975 after a federal perjury conviction in an alleged bribery conspiracy.

Olga Goes International

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (UPI) — Olga Peekus probably never thought her will would spark an international dispute but an attorney is seeking economic sanctions against the Soviet Union because of it.

Attorney Jack Chilingrian represented two of the heirs, who live in the United States, in a suit seeking to bar the third heir, who lives in Latvia, from collecting his share of the $200,000 estate.

Chilingrian lost the case and now he wants President Carter to impose economic sanctions on the Soviet Union and its satellite states, thus preventing the transfer of money from the United States to Latvia.

"Why should the Soviet relative have the benefit of this money when two other American heirs live in this country, defend it and pay taxes?" asked Chilingrian.

Award Candidates Sought

Applications are now available for the Lubbock Jaycees' Distinguished Service Award competition to recognize the "Outstanding Young Man and Young Woman of Lubbock."

The project is the outgrowth of a Jaycee aim to recognize the service of the individual between the ages of 21 and 36 to his or her community, fellow man or profession.

Some of the specific criteria for selections include personal improvement, financial success, economic innovations, social improvement to major contemporary problems, voluntary service, cultural achievement and religious leadership.

Applications may be picked up in the public information office at City Hall, at the chamber of commerce office or by writing the Lubbock Jaycees, P.O. Box 538, Lubbock 79408. The application deadline is Tuesday.

Final selections will be announced at 2 p.m. Jan. 29 in the council chambers at City Hall.

Former Beatle Held In Tokyo For Possession Of Marijuana

TOKYO (AP) — It was a hard day's night for former Beatle Paul McCartney, jailed on charges of marijuana possession and smuggling after his arrest Thursday at Tokyo's airport. The arrest occurred as McCartney and his rock group, "Wings," arrived for an 11-concert tour of Japan which likely will be canceled.

The 37-year-old ex-Beatle was seized by airport customs officers who said they found 219 grams — 7.7 ounces — of marijuana in a plastic bag in one of the singer's suitcases as he passed through the airport-checkpoint.

He was jailed overnight, authorities said, and would face a Japanese magistrate within 72 hours. McCartney was held without bail but allowed to speak with a lawyer, police said.

If found guilty, he could be sentenced to a maximum of seven years in prison and face a fine of up to the equivalent of $2,000, officials said.

McCartney was quoted by customs officials as having said he "brought some hemp for my smoking." Japanese authorities use the term "hemp" for marijuana.

The singer-composer came to Japan with his wife, Linda, four children and members of his music group "Wings."

Police declined to say whether the rest of McCartney's party had been allowed to enter Japan.

Japanese reporters mobbed the Central Narcotics Bureau in Tokyo where McCartney is being held, but interviews were not allowed. Officials said the former Beatle was being transferred to another jail during the night, but would not say where.

An official of the Health and Welfare Ministry's intelligence section told The Associated Press that McCartney would receive preferential treatment in jail — McCartney, he said, would be fed coffee and bread instead of rice and green tea. "He's not a Japanese, so we cannot treat him like a Japanese," the official said, adding that McCartney would not be released on bail.

The arrest most likely will mean cancellation of the series of concerts in Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka, for which 100,000 tickets were sold, according to the newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun, sponsor of McCartney's visit. "We are very sorry for Japanese music fans," it apologized.

It was McCartney's first visit to Japan since the Beatles toured this island nation at the height of the rock group's success. The music of the Beatles, and of the defunct rock group's individual members — McCartney, John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr — is immensely popular in Japan.

A music commentator, Ichiro Fukuda, said of the incident: "If McCartney himself wanted to hold concerts in Japan, he should have known that Japan has strict narcotics laws."

It was not the first time the singer had been detained on drug charges.

In 1972 McCartney and his wife and "Wings" drummer Denny Seiwell were fined the equivalent of about $1,800 after pleading guilty to smuggling six ounces of marijuana into Sweden. Their Swedish hotel was raided during a "Wings" tour.

One year later, McCartney was fined about $240 after pleading guilty to growing five marijuana plants on his farm in the Scottish Highlands. The plants were discovered when police raided the farm.

In 1975, Linda was arrested in Los Angeles, but charges of marijuana possession were dropped.

Woman Denied Permission To See 13-Year-Old Granddaughter

AUSTIN (AP) — For more than a decade, Louise Dolman has mounted a determined effort to visit the granddaughter she saw so seldom that she never learned to pronounce her name.

Mrs. Dolman, a retired government employee now living in San Antonio, claims her former daughter-in-law has refused to let her see Lise Nicole Dolman, now 13, according to Texas Supreme Court files.

The grandmother took the case to court — without a lawyer — and persuaded a Georgetown jury she should be allowed to visit Lise.

An appeals court, however, ordered a new trial, citing Mrs. Dolman's testimony that his mother is "intolerable" and a "very sick woman."

The Supreme Court Wednesday refused to overturn the appeals court order. It dismissed the appeal for want of jurisdiction.

Court files show Mrs. Dolman's efforts to see the girl included a trip to her granddaughter's elementary school. That May 1977 attempt ended with Mrs. Dolman apparently taking photographs with a fourth-grader she erroneously thought was her granddaughter. Court records show the girl — whose name was Lisa Bruce — did not recognize Mrs. Dolman nor anything the woman was talking about.

Mrs. Dolman said she has not seen Lise since the girl was less than 2 years old.

The appeals court said there were serious questions whether it would be best for the girl to see the grandmother she probably did not remember.

Mrs. Dolman's son — Denver Dolman — was divorced in 1967. His ex-wife — Carolyn Dolman — was awarded custody of Lise. Mrs. Dolman said her efforts to see the girl were rebuffed by her former daughter-in-law. She said her birthday and Christmas gifts to her granddaughter were returned.

The appeals court said the grandmother's right to see the child is "a moral obligation, not a legal one."

Denver Dolman said he would not let his mother visit the girl — even if he and his wife had not been divorced.

"There is considerable support in the record that visitation would not be in the best interests of Lise," the appeals court said.

The Supreme Court action left standing the appeals court order for a new trial.

In other action Wednesday, the Supreme Court:

— Ruled Tarrant County officials did not have to reinstate janitors discharged in December 1976 as part of a two-year, $220,000 economy move by the county.

— Set oral arguments for March 5 on an appeal by Carnation Co., which lost a $100,000 suit in lower courts to a Houston worker who claimed he was wrongfully discharged.

— Ruled that South Texas banker-rancher Clinton Manges and the Duval County Ranch Co. owed $1.2 million in delinquent property taxes. The case was filed by the state of Texas. Duval County and the Duval County Vocational School District. The Benavides and Freer school districts joined the suit as intervenors.

Couple To Be Tried Again Due To Court's Ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed Wednesday the conviction and 20-year prison sentence assessed a man and woman in the death of the woman's young son.

Galveston prosecutor James Hury said the case would be tried again.

Thomas Smith and Betty Franks Smith were charged with injury to a child in the death of Michael Franks, who was approximately 1 1/2 years old.

The boy died of an infection, according to court records. He was dead on arrival at a local hospital.

The indictment alleged the appellants struck and burned the youngster and denied him food and adequate medical attention.

In reversing the conviction, the Criminal Appeals Court said the indictment failed to allege that either the man or woman was the child's parent.

"The statutory duty to provide medical care (and food) to a child is imposed only on the parent of a child," the court said. "The omission to provide medical care for a child would constitute an offense only if committed by the parent. Therefore the parent-child relationship was an essential fact to be proved, and the failure to allege that fact was a fundamental defect."

The appeals court, however, refused to dismiss the case.

It stated, "Parents and non-parents alike may commit the offense of injury to a child by such acts as striking and burning. Therefore the indictment was sufficient to allege the offense of injury to a child by striking and burning, and it is not defective in those respects."

In other action Wednesday, the Court of Criminal Appeals:

• Reversed the involuntary manslaughter conviction of Michael Johnson of Harris County. Johnson, who was 15 at the time, was convicted of the 1975 stabbing death of Chris Barski, 18, and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Johnson's appeal contended he was never served with a summons notifying him the case was to be transferred from juvenile court to state district court, where he would be tried as an adult.

• Affirmed the five-year prison sentence assessed Margaret Medders, who allegedly ran up an unpaid bill of $14,000 at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas.

• Affirmed the Harris County conviction of Wallace Lavigne, who was sentenced to life in prison in the 1974 shooting death of gas station manager Ralph Jacobs during a robbery.

Former NTSU Head Remains Mum, Pleads Fifth 14 Times

AUSTIN (AP) — Former President C.C. "Jitter" Nolen of North Texas State University, who has adopted a closed-mouth policy before the House General Investigating Committee, refused Wednesday to answer questions about a purported scheme to funnel donations into his salary.

Bob Shults, a Houston attorney who aided in the investigation, testified money donated for the purchase of an economic collection wound up in an account used to supplement Nolen's salary. The donation was made by the Mary Potshman Lard Foundation of Fort Worth. Harry Friedman, son of the estate's administrator, said while he was an NTSU student he sought money from the estate to cover half of the purchase price of the collection.

Friedman testified he was told the NTSU foundation had found other money to use for the economics papers. His father, Bayard Friedman, chairman of the board of Fort Worth National Bank, said he told the NTSU Foundation it could use the donation for other purposes.

But Shults said he found a series of transactions indicating $13,769 of the donation went to Nolen's salary supplement fund. The check to the salary fund was written one day after the donation was deposited in the NTSU Foundation and was for the same amount — $13,769. A 1975 check from the private NTSU foundation to the school carried the notation "for president's salary supplementation," Shults said.

He also presented a 1977 memorandum from Jim Reid, director of the foundation, to Nolen, saying the collection had not been paid for.

Shults told reporters the collection was later paid for with university library funds.

Nolen invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination 14 times when asked about the transactions.

Shults said he will also present evidence about five other funds at the university.

Man Sought In Holdup Of Grocery Store

By JACK DOUGLAS, Avalanche-Journal Staff

Police Wednesday night still were looking for a masked, pistol-toting bandit who entered an East 34th Street grocery store shortly after 7 a.m. Wednesday...

from seeing anything but the bandit's brown eyes.

The bandit was further described as muscular, weighing about 200 pounds and wearing khaki pants and black high-top shoes.

The boy, who was the only other witness to the holdup, told police the man ran to the south side of the store, got on a 10-speed bicycle and rode off in a south-east direction.

Hollins said the bandit kept his weapon, possibly a .22-caliber pistol, pointed in the clerk's face throughout the 10-minute-long robbery.

The man reportedly put the money in a brown paper sack, got Hollins's gun from next to the register and snatched up the cigarettes.

The boy, who did not want to be identified, said he entered the store and saw the suspect sitting on a stool behind the register and holding a gun on the clerk.

alarm. Reports indicate the clerk tripped the alarm at 7:11 a.m. and police said they were not notified until 7:16 a.m.

"He didn't come in here to kill me. He just wanted my money," Hollins said.

"When that kid walked in, he got out of here."

Hollins said he was disturbed it took so long for an alarm company to notify police after he had pressed the holdup

"It took that alarm company five minutes to notify the police department... and I don't know why," Hollins said.

'Small Power Systems Review' Slated Jan. 22-24 In Lubbock

Between 200 and 300 solar experts from across the nation are expected to participate in a three-day Small Solar Thermal Power Systems Program Review being held here next week.

work with two-axis parabolic dishes, parabolic troughs and the unique bowl or hemisphere used at Crosbyton instead of the parabolic dish.

"There will be representatives from northern as well as Sunbelt states," he said.

Sponsors of the program, which is held Tuesday through Thursday at the South Park Inn, include the U.S. Department of Energy, the Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) of Pasadena, Calif., Sandia Laboratories of Albuquerque, N.M., and Texas Tech University.

Presenting the keynote address Tuesday will be Dr. Howard S. Coleman, director of the DOE Division of Solar Technology. Luncheon speaker on Wednesday will be Robert Feragan, federal administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration.

A highlight of the meeting will be a field trip to the Crosbyton Solar Energy Project, directed by Dr. John D. Reichert of the Texas Tech electrical engineering faculty.

William A. Owen of JPL is chairman, and he said this will be the first of semi-annual reviews to present results of activities in the small power systems portion of DOE's Solar Thermal Power System Program.

Owen said the meeting will deal with all distributed receiver systems and not with power towers. Participants will discuss

Foster Care Reimbursement Increase Could Affect Child Welfare Budget

By DEBBIE STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

What may have been a good move for foster parents of dependent children in Lubbock County could turn out to be a painful thorn for the county's child welfare budget.

The county Children's Protective Services board Wednesday approved a foster care reimbursement increase which may mean county commissioners will have to approve additional funding to cover the cost.

The commissioners already approved in November an $8,000 transfer from a special fund for non-recurring expenses to cover child welfare operating expenses for December.

The protective services board Wednesday was faced with voting on a reimbursement increase to foster parents and care facilities in the aftermath of a decision by the Texas Legislature to allocate the state more money for that purpose.

Controversy on the decision arose, however, when board Chairman Pete Harland pointed out that although the state is, as of Jan. 1, allowing itself more funds with which to cover the care of dependent children not eligible for federal aid, the state has never been responsible for its share of the duties.

Instead, Harland said, Lubbock County has had to pick up the tab for care of children here who do not qualify for the federal Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Harland told the board that efforts have been made for the past two years to get a bill passed requiring the state to cover care costs for at least 50 percent of the county's children not eligible for the federal money.

However, he said, while the recent state bill on the surface seems to cover 100 percent of the day-care expenses, the addition of four eligibility requirements for aid under the bill will disqualify the majority of children needing the state money.

These children, Harland pointed out, will again be the responsibility of the county, as will the higher reimbursement.

One of the requirements mandates that in order for a child to receive state aid, a petition terminating parental rights must have been filed in court.

One board member estimated that this factor alone means that only about 5 percent of the county's dependent children could receive state aid.

"We're not much better off than we were without the bill," Harland said.

Against his objections, though, board members passed the cost reimbursement increase.

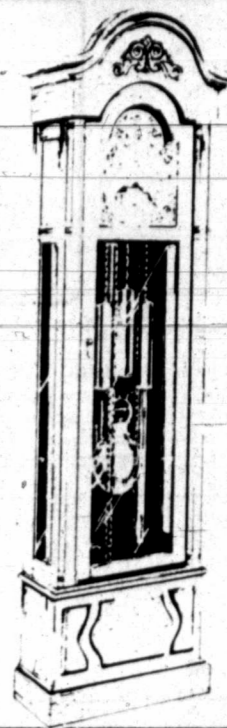

Harland noted that he was not against foster parents and care facilities receiving an increase, but said he opposed going along with the reimbursement hike because it will end up being paid for by the county rather than the state.

General Says SALT Issue Could Help Recruitment Problems

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"Your Air Force is ready and needs to stay ready," Gen. Bennie L. Davis told members of the Downtown Rotary Club at a Wednesday luncheon in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Meeting with the Lubbock press after the noon speech, the head of the Air Force's Air Training Command added that the most sophisticated military hardware is only as effective as the persons operating and maintaining it.

The Air Force, like all other branches of the service, is having difficulty recruiting and retaining quality personnel necessary, Davis said.

But, the year that put the Air Force below its voluntary recruiting goal for the first time also saw a reawakening of public support that could be the answer to more hardware and the personnel to man it.

"SALT II did more to refocus the American Congress' and the American people's attention on the exact state of our defenses than any other single facet over the last 15 years," Davis said.

"Our citizens are coming to appreciate the vital necessity for a strong and responsive military. They're becoming more vocal and more actively involved in assuring that our national defense is strong.

"I believe Americans are beginning to understand that the most fundamental social obligation a nation has to its citizens is to defend them against attack."

His beliefs, gained while "a principal testifier in congressional sessions on manpower and personnel budgets for four years" have been verified by subsequent documentation.

Recent international events and the fragile state of peace around the globe resulted in public reaction, though there has been "a re-emergence of interest in the state of our weapons and force capability" which began showing even before events in Cuba, Iran and Afghanistan.

"The rest of the world must realize that this nation's strength has never diminished, that our people are united in their commitment to traditional American ideals."

Embodiment of those ideals, he said, is military service.

Attracting the personnel necessary to fulfill the public mandate and retaining them in the service while providing even more hardware will, Davis emphasized, "take a lot of dollars."

With the voluntary force concept, the Air Force has to compete with a civilian market offering "half again as much" as the military can in salary.

To compete successfully, the pay and benefits must be enhanced to make military service more attractive in comparison.

Davis likened the service of a military person to his country to that of a Rotarian to his community. Individual achievement for both "takes hard work, concentration and total involvement" and can mean strict obligations or even sacrifices.

The ATC commander spent part of Wednesday afternoon visiting with the personnel at Reese Air Force Base which trains pilots for ATC at the rate of 400 each year.

Before leaving for the undergraduate pilot training base, Davis answered the inevitable question about Reese's future, by saying it is "very secure."

Whiteside To Seek New Education Panel Term

James H. Whiteside of Lubbock announced Thursday his plans to run for reelection in the District 19 race for State Board of Education.

Whiteside, owner of Plains Laundry Company, has been a member of the state board for 10 years. The board, which governs the Texas Education Agency, sets policy for the Texas public school system and appoints the Commissioner of Education.

An advocate of the "back to the basics" movement in education, the Democratic candidate is a strong supporter of the newly-elected Commissioner of Education, Alton Bowen, because of his belief in "strong, sound basic education."

Whiteside also believes in a "strong bilingual education program in kindergarten through third grade," but believes students should be absorbed into the mainstream beyond that grade level. "I believe in a transition program, not a maintenance program," he said.

The state board candidate supports cuts in the TEA payroll, adding that the board has steadily cut personnel by about 81 employees during the past year.

He noted that some of the board proposals he supported and that were advocated by the legislature this year include a return to the semester system of operation from the quarter system and a "hold the line" attitude toward new programs and expenditures.

Whiteside said a return to the semester system mandated for the 1980-81 school year will cut down on paperwork for teachers. "Teachers have so much paperwork now, it's pitiful," he said.

He would like to see an increase in teacher salaries, but only if the public is willing to support a tax increase to obtain raises or if other programs can be cut. He said that many federal and state programs on which "more money is wasted" could be cut.

IN PRODUCTION
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The Sphinx" is now in production in Budapest, Hungary, starring Lesley-Ann Down and Frank Langella. Franklin J. Schaffner is directing scenes set in an Egyptian tomb and other massive sets built at the Mafilm Studios.

He said administrators and teachers are doing "a terrific job for the amount of money they're paid."

Whiteside said that "our schools can be as great as the parents desire and require," adding that programs in the Lubbock school system "are better than average."

He believes in backing teachers, administrators and trustees in their efforts, but said the public must "require excellence" as well.

Whiteside served on the Lubbock board of trustees from 1954 to 1968. He is married and the father of three children, all of whom graduated from Lubbock public schools.

MOTHERS-IN-LAW NEED LOVE, TOO

The mother-in-law joke is dead; long live your mother-in-law. This is one great result of the new role of women who are now far too busy with their own lives to meddle in their children's. Tensions between generations was the genesis of the problem in the first place. Read how the whole in-law problem has been diluted as social changes go their radical ways. THE ENERGY CRISIS: ARE WE REALLY RUNNING ON EMPTY?

Gas lines, brownouts and fuel shortages aside, Americans are still skeptical about the energy crisis. Many blame profit-hungry oil producers. Others point to government interference in the energy business. And still others name decisions that put the environment ahead of energy needs.

The complex issues in the current energy debate are illuminated in Courses by Newspaper's winter series "Energy and the Way We Live." In this thought-provoking series, energy experts weigh the pros and cons of such likely energy sources as solar, nuclear, synthetic fuels and conservation. And Courses by Newspaper also makes it possible to earn college credit in a convenient study program.

As you debate America's energy future, plan to make Courses by Newspaper "must" reading. It's definitely worth the energy.

Young Adult Businessmen and Women for...Delivery of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal

A young adult on a Avalanche-Journal route is a part-time business person. He/She is in business for themselves and will learn fundamentals of good business practice through actual experience.

The Avalanche-Journal carrier buys for wholesale and sells for retail, realizing a gross profit. He learns to operate his business as efficiently as possible to assure maximum profit. The A-J carrier builds his business by giving good prompt delivery service and through the use of good salesmanship.

It is important that he learns how to keep accurate records. The Avalanche-Journal carrier has the responsibility of keeping his accounts receivable in order so he can take care of his obligations promptly.

This early training will be useful to a child through his adult career. Many parents encourage their children to accept the challenge offered an Avalanche-Journal newspaper route.

LUBBOCK AVALANCHE-JOURNAL MORNING-EVENING-SUNDAY

THE SUPERMARKET SHOPPER

By MARTIN SLOANE

The generic "no frills" products are still around! In fact, smart shoppers are trying and buying more of them than ever before.

This has come as quite a surprise to supermarket executives who predicted that these bargain-basement products would disappear months ago.

They saw these plain, black-and-white labeled products as just another supermarket promotion. They were certain they wouldn't last long because the "no frills" products were less profitable to stores than national and house brands.

But these supermarket "experts" didn't consider one important thing: A lot of money-conscious shoppers find "no frills" products perfectly acceptable as substitutes for more expensive brands.

Sure, the "no frills" peas aren't as uniform in color and size. And the "no frills" ketchup isn't as thick. But at prices 20 percent to 30 percent less than national brands, they aren't all that bad either!

Some supermarkets have tried to discourage shoppers from buying these bargains by hiding them in out-of-the-way corners. "No frills" products often seem to be in short supply or are thrown together in disarray.

But despite these tactics, they are still selling well. As a result, the chains that had planned to discontinue their "no frills" products are afraid they will lose customers if they do.

Should "no frills" products have a future? Can there be a permanent place for them on supermarket shelves?

I believe the answer is YES!

In these inflationary times, supermarket shoppers need to have access to the simplest and cheapest varieties of the most commonly used foods and household products.

And that's what "no frills" products should be — the very least expensive products that can be produced. Supermarket house brands don't fill this important need because they often resemble the national brands in quality and appearance.

Many supermarkets have reconciled themselves to keeping "no frills" products on their shelves. They appreciate that for some of their customers the pennies saved are very important.

Some of these stores have moved their "no frills" products out of the corner and put them on the shelves next to similar national and house brands. For the first time, shoppers can easily compare the prices of all three.

Smith's Food King Supermarkets in Salt Lake City have even conducted tastings of "no frills" products to help their customers become more familiar with them.

"No frills" products aren't for everyone. For one thing, they don't offer cash-off coupons and refunds.

But if you haven't experimented with these products, you should consider doing so. You may find some that pleasantly surprise you.

Tips From the Supermarket Shopper

• Start out with "no frills" products that do not involve your taste buds: paper towels, napkins, bath tissue, bleach or detergent. These are the best "no frills" bargains.

• If more than one supermarket in your area offers "no frills" products, try an item or two from each. You will find they are not all alike. Here, too, it pays to shop around.

• Next time you invite some friends over to swap coupons, have a comparison tasting of a few "no frills" products and the corresponding national brands. Be sure your friends don't know which are the bargains and which are the high-priced products.

Panel Head Says Texas Job Discrimination Bad

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Job discrimination against minorities and women in Texas is almost as bad as it was in 1968, and it will take "vigorous" federal enforcement to improve the situation, the head of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission said Wednesday.

Such increased federal enforcement of equal employment opportunity and affirmative action laws must also be augmented by a "national movement" of public and private leaders, said Arthur S. Fleming.

Fleming spoke at a civil rights symposium after the formal release of a new report that painted a dim picture for blacks, Mexican-Americans and women in Texas since 1968.

The report, released by the Texas Advisory Committee to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, shows that minorities and women remain mired in low-paying, low-ranking jobs in the areas of public employment, education, political participation and the administration of justice.

"Given these findings, the Texas Advisory Committee can only conclude that minorities and women have consistently been excluded from the major governing, decision-making and policy-making levels in Texas," said Dr. Denzer Burke, committee vice chairman.

"These conclusions identify very clearly the task that lies ahead," said Fleming, who added that the situation in Texas is "consistent" with the rest of the nation.

squarely on the federal government. "There hasn't been effective enough enforcement on the part of the federal government as there should have been in this area. The laws on the books are good," he said.

He said he is confident more Equal Employment Opportunity Commission officials will be sent to Texas to help improve the situation.

The study of Texas's public employees at all levels showed the federal government was a prime offender. "The pattern is most pronounced for minority females, who are virtually absent from the higher grade levels and have median incomes that are about one-half that of Anglo males," said the report.

Fleming agreed. "The federal government, functioning in its capacity as an employer, has done a very poor job in developing and implementing affirmative action plans."

The study showed — Educational decisions at all levels in Texas are almost exclusively in the hands of Anglo males. "While minority students made up approximately 40 percent of the pupils in Texas, over 97 percent of the superintendents were Anglo males," said the report.

— Anglo males have dominated upwards of 90-100 percent of elected positions at all levels," the report said. Blacks, it continued, have been "virtually excluded," and Mexican-American have been successes confined to predominantly Hispanic counties in South Texas.

Thieves Take Pouches Containing $2 Million

ROME (AP) — Masquerading as mechanics checking a fuel leak, two daring thieves Wednesday stole two pouches from a Swissair jet just before takeoff from Rome's airport and escaped with $2.5 million in cash, police reported. A security officer said the theft was "obviously" an inside job.

The operation at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport took only 10 minutes and was not discovered until the DC-9 jetliner, with 39 passengers aboard, landed in Zurich an hour later.

However, the Rome control tower suspected something was wrong when the pilot, after the plane was airborne, radioed the control tower to make a routine report on the last-minute inspection of his plane, airport sources said.

"The pilot had no idea what was really happening," said a Swissair spokesman in Zurich. "He thought this was just a routine check."

There were several versions of how the theft occurred. By one account, the thieves used a two-way radio to stop the plane for an emergency check of leaking fuel as it taxied down the runway. They then sped to the plane, opened the hold and removed the bags.

"All okay," one of the men reportedly told the pilot over the radio, after depositing the bags in the truck. The pilot, without realizing what had happened, took off for the regular run to Zurich.

Another version said the thieves carried the radio but used hand signals to halt the plane.

"Obviously, they were helped by someone inside," said a Rome airport security officer who did not want to be identified by name.

"They knew what to look for and were familiar with logistical details like the radio frequency of the control tower, the cargo compartment mechanisms and how cars should be driven on runways," he said.

Swiss police were questioning a courier hired to accompany the pouch from Rome, an airline spokesman said. He said he did not know why the courier, a Swiss national, did not hand carry the pouch and instead had it stored in the cargo hold.

The Swissair crew members were also being questioned, Swiss police said.

Asked why the courier did not carry the money himself, a Zurich police spokesman said: "Evidently, the bags were too big to be taken into the passenger compartment."

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pioneer of America has just announced they are going out of the STEREO compact business.

This decision is of course a shock to the stereo industry, but does give you, the consumer, an opportunity to take advantage of a once in a lifetime offer. All of Pioneer's Centrex compact stereos are being closed out not by Edwards Electronics at unheard of low prices. Here are just a few examples.

Tamburo Likely Candidate For Job

By NORVAL POLLARD
Executive Sports Editor
(c) 1980 A-J Publ. Co.

Speculation surfaced Wednesday afternoon that Texas Tech Athletic Director Richard P. (Dick) Tamburo is one of the leading candidates for the Michigan State University athletic director's position, recently vacated by Joe Kearney.

According to the Lansing, Mich. State Journal, a source close to Michigan State — and former Texas Tech — President Cecil Mackey indicated Tuesday that Tamburo, an All-America football player at MSU in the early 1960s, had been mentioned as a possible successor to Kearney.

There were also rumors that MSU was interested in the services of Texas Tech head football coach Rex Dockery, who recently completed his second season as Red Raider mentor, would replace Darryl Rogers.

Rogers, the man responsible for rebuilding the Spartan football program following a two-year NCAA probation, is expected to announce by week's end his intentions to follow Kearney to Arizona

State and take over the scandal-racked Sun Devil football program.

"I haven't been contacted by anyone — officially or unofficially," Tamburo told The Avalanche-Journal Wednesday. "I have not talked to anyone in the state of Michigan today. I don't know anything about it."

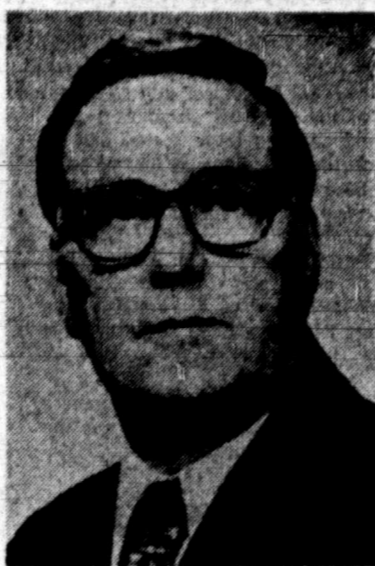

Tamburo, 49, replaced JT King as Tech athletic director on September 1, 1978. Prior to coming to Lubbock, Tamburo was an associate athletic director at the University of Illinois.

When asked if he would consider accepting the Michigan State post if it were offered, Tamburo responded: "I can't say yes or no, because I haven't even thought about it. Really, I have no comment on the matter."

Tuesday, Kenneth Thompson, MSU vice president for operations, announced that the search for a new athletic director to replace Kearney would begin immediately.

Wednesday, the Michigan State athletic council gathered for almost four hours behind closed doors to review the situation at the Big Ten school and submit names to be considered for the athletic director opening. Thompson and members of the athletic council refused to make any comments to reporters following the lengthy meeting.

DICK TAMBURO
Michigan State Interested

Thompson and the MSU athletic council met again for 40 minutes Wednesday night, but no information concerning the situation was released.

Avalanche-Journal sources in Lansing reported late Wednesday that the primary concern of the MSU athletic council the Michigan State presidency in September of last year, was reported out of town and could not be reached for comment by either The Avalanche-Journal or members of the Michigan media. He was to return to Lansing sometime today.

Mackey played an instrumental role in the hiring of Tamburo as Tech's athletic director in the spring of 1978.

While it appeared that either Dr. John Cobb, a member of the Tech physical education department and former chairman of the Tech athletic council, or Charley Thornton, an assistant athletic director at the University of Alabama, would succeed the retiring King as AD, Mackey surprised observers by selecting the virtually unknown Tamburo as the head of the Tech men's athletic department.

Dockery, who has a 10-10-2 career coaching record at Tech, was out of town on a recruiting trip and could not be reached to comment on the situation. Dockery has three years remaining on his current contract.

Other possible candidates for the football coaching duties at Michigan State include Tamburo's old roommate at MSU and former head coach at Arizona State, Frank Kush.

According to A-J sources in Lansing, Kush's name has been mentioned several times as a possible successor to Rogers, but because of the recent scandal at ASU involving Kush while he was head coach and the fact that MSU just ended a painful NCAA probation there has been negative reaction to Kush taking over the MSU program at this time.

was the athletic director vacancy. The council hoped to fill the opening as soon as possible and then find a football coach to replace Rogers immediately thereafter.

An athletic director-football coach "package deal" reportedly has been discussed by the MSU athletic council.

Mackey, who was president at Tech from September, 1976 until he accepted

On June 7, 1978, the Tech Board of Regents officially named Tamburo as Tech's new athletic director.

Tamburo, a native of New Kensington, Pa., was an outstanding center and linebacker for the Spartans. He helped lead MSU to a national championship in 1952.

Former Baltimore Colts and Miami Dolphins quarterback Earl Morrill has also been mentioned as an athletic director candidate.

Insiders at Michigan State expect both the athletic director and head coaching vacancies to be filled by early next week at the latest.

Jim Ferguson Ehlo Tearing 'Em Up

QUITE FRANKLY, NO COLLEGE really wanted to take a chance on Craig Ehlo after he'd graduated from Monterey High School last spring. I mean nobody. Zilch. Nunch. And, to continue putting the pasteboards on the velvet, you can't blame them, either.

Right off the bat, Ehlo, who got the cold shoulder more than a pimple-faced, burred-headed kid at the senior prom, had three distinctive strikes against him. That's the rumor, anyway. Let's examine:

First, he played on a schoolboy basketball team that ran about as often as I do. So, naturally, his speed was questioned by the scouts. Strike one.

Second, Ehlo's physical attributes weren't conducive to hand-to-hand combat under the bucket. At 6-5, and 170 pounds, a sumo wrestler, he wasn't Joe Michalka, the MHS head coach, often referred to Ehlo as "Twiggy". It wasn't a compliment.

And, third, but not least, Ehlo is white. Case closed, your honor.

But just when it appeared Ehlo was destined to spend his college days playing intramural ball with a bunch of gym rats, along came Odessa head coach Ron Mayberry with a scholarship in his hip pocket. Mayberry asked Ehlo to come down to OC for a look-see. (Mayberry admits now it was more a chance for him to look at Ehlo, than Ehlo to look at OC.) Both apparently liked what they saw. It was a match made on the Permian Basin.

End of Chapter I.

NOW FOR THE REST of the story. Mayberry slips the golden Ked on Ehlo's foot and the former MHS standout responds by thumping his nose in the stepsisters' faces. Grimm wouldn't have had it any other way.

To tell the truth, "noted Mayberry, "not too many people thought he could cut it in this league. But if they had a freshman of the year award, he'd win it hands down. He has to be the surprise of the conference. He's something."

As a freshman Ehlo has averaged 14 points a game, hitting 60 per cent of his shots from the field. The seven bucket average might seem low, until realizing that five other OCers are also hitting in double figures. With that kind of team work going around, 14 points is an accomplishment. Ehlo was also named to the all-tournament team at the Navarro JC event. Plus, recently, he hit 25 points against Angelo State.

It seems Twiggy has filled out into quite a piece of cheese cake. And with strawberry topping, too.

WHAT WAS IT ABOUT Ehlo that made Mayberry take a chance while other college scouts were busy burying their heads in the sand? Why give a full ride to a white kid with more strikes against him than Sam Yorty? "I'd like to say I was some kind of mental genius," answered Mayberry. "I'd like to say that, but I can't. Like I said, I had doubts, too. But (Coronado head coach) Barry Armwine and a kid we have here, Kelly Kitchens (from Hereford), both told me that he was a player. So I brought him down on a recruiting trip and I liked what I saw. He was a real find for us."

Give Ehlo another year in the rough and tumble world of JUCO basketball, Mayberry said, and he'll be ready for the "major leagues".

"He is the kind of kid everybody wants," commented Mayberry. "He has size, he can handle the ball and he's well drilled in the fundamentals. And he's still growing, too. He's 6-5 going on 6-6."

Mayberry continued to babble, now almost out of control: "Plus, he can play either guard or forward. And on top of that he's intelligent, has a good attitude and is a hard worker. What else can a coach want?"

About the only thing Mayberry didn't add was that Ehlo is also brave, obedient, trustworthy, proud, true and holds a mid-week devotional in his dorm room every Wednesday night.

EVEN WITH ALL THIS sweetness — which was about enough to give the telephone receiver a couple of Grade A cavities — Ehlo still seemed humble. Or he was working awful hard at it.

"He (Mayberry) said all that about me," laughed Ehlo? "That was nice." Ehlo doesn't mind talking about the disappointment he suffered last year after being snubbed by everybody but his mama. He didn't take the cold shoulder than personal.

"At the time, it upset me," said Ehlo. "But now I know things have worked out for the best. It's really helped me, coming here. I'm getting a lot of exposure and a lot of (major) colleges have watched me play. Like at the Navarro tournament, every big-time school had someone there."

Although rejected by Tech last year ("They didn't even send me a form."), Ehlo says he'd still like to play for the Raiders if given a chance. "I'd really enjoy playing there because it's my hometown," he said.

Unless something "a lot better comes long," Ehlo plans on staying at Odessa for his sophomore year. It would take a hekuva sand storm to move him.

"I've still got a lot to learn," said Ehlo, "and I'm learning it here. It's a lot of fun, too."

And he lived happily...

Top Linemen May Change Positions In Pros

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas' Steve McMichael, Pittsburgh's Hugh Green and North Carolina State's Jim Ritcher, three of the four finalists for the 10th annual Lombardi Award, said Wednesday they may play different positions in the pros.

All three were first- or second-team Associated Press All-American selections at their college positions and played well enough to earn a finalist spot for Thursday night's selection of the nation's top collegiate lineman of 1979.

The Lombardi Award is named in honor of the former Green Bay and Washington coach who died of cancer. Proceeds from the $125-per-plate dinner go to the American Cancer Society for research.

Ritcher, who was the first-team Associated Press All-American center, said he possibly would play defense in the pros.

McMichael, 6-2, 255, said pro scouts had discussed a shift to offensive guard from his defensive tackle position where he earned first-team AP All-America selection.

Green, the only junior among the four finalists, played defensive end for Pittsburgh last season but expects to be a linebacker when he becomes a pro. Green was a first-team AP All-America defensive end. Southern California's Brad Budde, the other finalist for the annual honor, was scheduled to arrive in time for Thursday night's dinner. Budde was a first-team All-America offensive guard.

"I had never played center until I came to North Carolina State," said Ritcher, who earlier won the Outland Trophy as the nation's outstanding interior lineman. "I always wanted to go back to defense. It wouldn't bother me at all."

Ritcher, a native of Hinkley, Ohio, said he was unhappy as a center when first moved to the position. "I wanted to go home," he said. "I'd never thought too much of centers before that."

Green says his future is as a linebacker. "I want to play defensive end in college because I like it up there on the line rushing the quarterback," he said. "But because of my quickness, I'll be an outside linebacker in the pros."

McMichael said he was primarily interested in playing in the pros, anywhere.

Concerning his move to the offensive line, the Freer native said, "It's the same technique, you fire out, lead with your head and use your hands."

Penn State's Bruce Clark was last year's winner.

McCormack To Lead Colts

BALTIMORE (AP) — Mike McCormack, who hopes to minimize the Baltimore Colts' dependency on quarterback Bert Jones, took over Wednesday as head coach of the floundering National Football League team.

The appointment inaugurated the second head coaching stint for McCormack, a longtime NFL assistant who posted a 16-25-1 record with the Philadelphia Eagles, 1973-75.

Persistent shoulder injuries to Jones, considered one of the rising NFL stars until being limited to seven games over the past two seasons, helped grease the skids for the firing of Ted Marchbroda.

Little Edges Teammates For A-J Weekly Honor

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
 Some days you've got it, and some days — well it just isn't there. Meet David Little.

Against the TCU Horned Frogs last Saturday the Texas Tech sophomore was positively uncanny. The Raider cager connected almost at will from the outside to lead Tech to an 84-65 rout over the Frogs.

But against Rice on Tuesday night, Little just couldn't buy a bucket. He was three of 11 from the field against the Owls, after going 12 of 20 against TCU.

Still, Little's totals for the week weren't bad. He scored 37 points and his 26 against the Frogs was the best for a Raider since Geoff Huston jacked in 28 against Baylor last year.

For his work, Little has been named

The Avalanche-Journal Tech Player of the Week. (The A-J will continue to honor a Tech cager once a week for the remainder of the year.)

Little currently leads the Raiders in scoring — averaging 15.5 a contest. But right behind him are Jeff Taylor, 13.9; Kent Williams, 11.4; and Ralph Brewster, 10.8.

The Raiders fell way below their season field goal shooting average against the Owls when they connected on only 23 of 50 efforts for a 46 percent. Still, the Raiders continue to lead the SWC in shooting with a team average of 54.4 percent from the field.

Taylor, who was eight of 13 against Rice, leads the Raiders with a 58.1 average and Ben Hill is next at 57.7 among the Tech regulars.

And with shooters like that, choosing this week's outstanding player was no easy task as Little just barely nosed out a couple of teammates in the balloting.

Leslie Nichols, the Raiders 6-8 junior center, turned in his best performance in a Tech uniform Tuesday night against the Owls. Nichols scored a career high 11 points, set a Tech record for blocked shots in a game with five and hauled down five rebounds as the Raiders nosed Rice 62-59 at the wire.

The big guy from Buffalo, N.Y., was pressed into action when starting center Ralph Brewster got into immediate foul trouble. Afterwards, when Nichols had logged 32 minutes of playing time, Tech coach Gerald Myers could hardly hold back the praise.

"Leslie really showed some confidence out there," said Myers. "He played like he knew what he was doing. Looking back on it," Myers reflected, "he might have been the difference in the game."

Another key in the Raiders heart-stopper against the Owls may have been the play of Taylor, who dumped in 14 points in the second half (and overtime). Against TCU Taylor got into early foul trouble and scored only six points.

And although Little scored only 11 against the Owls, he made four pressure free throws in the final 18 seconds of the game that provided the Raiders with the margin of victory.

"David had an excellent game against TCU," said Myers, "and although he didn't have one of his better games against Rice he did hit those big free throws. So it was an exceptional week for him."

But, as Little explained, making those free throws against the Owls was the least that he could do.

"Those free throws just made up for the way I was shooting from the field," said Little. "Kent and I just couldn't seem to find the range against Rice — but we really got after them on defense in the second half."

The Raiders overcame a 10-point deficit at the intermission to send the game into overtime tied at 49-49 before pulling away in OT.

Tech is now 4-1 in SWC play, only a step behind Arkansas and Texas A&M — both 4-0. On Saturday the Raiders, who've won all six home games this year, will host the Baylor Bears in the Municipal Coliseum.

Transcript Scandals Breed New Profession

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — One ramification of the phony transcript scandal-sweeping college athletics may be beneficial to a brand new and virtually unknown profession — the academic counselors.

An earlier era knew them as "brain coaches," usually an assistant football coach who juggled his on-field duties with riding herd on the grade standing of the athletes.

But in the past few years the brain coach has been replaced by specialists whose only function is to monitor the academic comings and going of student-athletes. Or, in the case of many, their only function is to keep the players eligible.

Revelations at several western universities that athletes received credit for extension or correspondence courses in which they did no work or did not attend has thrown the harsh glare of the spotlight squarely on the academic counselors.

"If a person habitually loses first-strings (to failing grades) he's not going to be in a job long," said one academic counselor. "If you have a strong head football coach and you lose a good player, you might find yourself in charge of housing next week."

Academic counselors work for the athletic department and call the head coach boss. The head coach, naturally eager to keep his job, knows he must win. And he can't win if his players fall victim to grades.

So the counselors keep an almost daily check on the grade standing of the athletes. They try to place problem students in classes with friendly professors, and keep in constant touch with instructors through the campus mail system.

If an athlete has been cutting class, the counselor is to hear about it immediately. If a kid's in trouble in any particular class and the counselor is on the job, the counselor may know of the problems before the athlete.

The biggest problem facing the academic counselor aside from the win-at-all-costs attitude at many institutions is the type of athlete brought in.

"Some of those kids simply have no business at an institution of higher learning," says Prentice Gault, assistant Big Eight commissioner and a former academic counselor at Missouri. "They just do not have what it takes to maintain their grades. When they leave school, they've wasted their time. They'd be better off going into the Army and learning a trade."

"Most academic advisers work for the coaches, and coaches only care about keeping their kids eligible," said Clarence Underwood of Michigan State, president of the National Academic Athletic Advisors Association. "The counselor is the middle man and has no authority."

New Mexico Searching For Athletic Counselor

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — University of New Mexico Athletic Director John Bridgers said Wednesday he is looking for a full-time athletic counselor in an effort to upgrade his department scholastically.

Bridgers came to New Mexico Dec. 5, from Florida State University with a promise that he would have a "department of integrity."

He said he has asked five members of the faculty to serve on a committee to select the counselor, including the dean of admissions and president of the Faculty Senate.

Bridgers said he has received 20 applications for the job and expects more. He said no deadline has been set for the selection process.

UNM's athletic director said the counselor will advise student athletes and monitor their work.

"We are committed to upgrade this department well enough that hopefully we can avoid the things that happened here in the past," Bridgers said. "We are going to insist that our coaches recruit the right kind of student athlete. We are going to look at their athletic ability, of course, but we're also going to recruit the ones who will compete in the classroom as well."

Bridgers said he planned to examine future schedules "and reduce the number of our athletic contests close to and during final examinations."

New Mexico's athletic program has been rocked by a scandal in which law enforcement officers and the NCAA have looked into possible gambling, transcript fixing and grade buying.

Basketball coach Norm Ellenberger has been fired and nine players have been declared ineligible. The school forfeited all its 1979 football wins and one basketball victory.

The school's basketball team had only four players left after the others were declared ineligible.

Clardy Named A-J's Top Schoolboy For Week

By A-J Sports Staff

Trav Clardy put the Monterey Plainsmen on his shoulders and tried to wade across the Dunbar gym Tuesday night.

This time, though, the weight was even too much for the 6-6 Clardy. His knees buckled.

Despite Clardy's 22-point scoring effort, the Plainsmen still fell to the Class AAA Panthers 58-57 in an overtime affair. It was only the fifth loss of the season for MHS, which now stands 17-5 for the year.

"He's the player we count on," commented head coach Joe Michalka. "He really played a fine, fine game for us."

Clardy, this week's Avalanche-Journal's top Class AAAA player, has been doing that all season, though. For the year, Clardy is averaging 22.0 points, along with pulling down 9.9 rebounds—both marks are tops in the area.

Scott Williams of Coronado. Romero scored 11 points in LHS' 56-53 loss to Lamesa, while Williams, one of the top outside shooters on the South Plains, hit 15.

Also nominated for the weekly honor were Raul Romero of Lubbock High and points to lead CHS to a 54-52 win over Amarillo.

Clardy, who Michalka is relying heavily upon to carry MHS' scoring load when the Plainsmen open District 4-AAAA action Friday night against Lubbock, is hitting at a 56 per cent clip so far this year. In the 22 previous Monterey contests, Clardy has put up 347 shots, connecting on 193 tosses.

But more important, Michalka points out, is that Clardy has pulled down 139 defensive rebounds.

"He plays well on both ends of the court," said Michalka. Also drawing praise was Williams, who CHS head coach Barry Arwine calls "the finest shooter I've ever had."

Williams is averaging 17.4 points after 21 games, hitting 154 of 292 shots, mainly from the 15-20 foot range. Plus, he's also connected on 58-80 free shots.

Romero, who drew praise of head coach Craig Wells, is the third leading scorer for the Westerners. In 19 games, Romero has hit for a 10.4 average. Only Oscar Lopez (12.8) and Kirk Colege (11.6) have better scoring averages for LHS.

Conference play gets underway Friday night with Lubbock hosting Monterey and Plainview traveling to Hereford in District 3-AAAA action. Caprock journeys to Pampa and Palo Duro entertain Tascosa. All hoop tilts are set for 7:30 p.m. tipoffs.

Lake View Post Leads Area Class AAA Stars

San Angelo Lake View's Charles Clemens didn't quite live up to his stats Tuesday night, but you can't blame him.

He saw about as much action from the bench as from the floor as his Chiefs dumped on Ozona 82-39. Clemens' 19 points and 12 rebounds were a fine performance under any conditions, but it doesn't match up with his seasonal average.

The 6-5 post man is connecting at a pace of 20.0 points per game, second best on the South Plains, and is pulling down an average of 15 rebounds a game, best in the area.

The leading scorer in this part of the state is Borger post Brett Smith, a 6-4 senior. Smith connected for 20 points against Dimmitt in a 75-46 win, that doesn't quite live up to his 22.1 ppg image.

Pushing him all the way this season has been his running mate guard Chester Williams. Williams, who is averaging 17.4 ppg, hit 17 against Dimmitt and 19 Tuesday night in a loss to Plainview.

Among city schools, the week's high scorer was Dorcas Perkins of the Dunbar girls team. She scored 24 points Friday night in a 51-49 win over Borger then led her team in scoring Tuesday night with 13 points as the Panthers fell to Estacado 45-37.

Among the boys, Preston Davis and John Jones each totaled 32 points in Estacado's last two games. Davis got 15 and Jones 18 in Friday night's 72-71 loss to Lamesa, then Davis had 17 and Jones 14 in Tuesday night's win over Littlefield.

Joy Guyton paced the Matador girls past Dunbar Tuesday night with 18 points in the 45-37 victory.

The best single game of the week was turned in by Brian Templeton of Andrews. He poured in 25 points as the Mustangs ripped Pecos 88-69 to advance their record to 20-2. He is averaging 19.5 points a game.

Franco Harris Shines In Postseason Action

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Franco Harris is a man for post-season.

"No doubt about it. Emotions run a bit higher during the playoffs," says the Pittsburgh Steelers' fullback, who has rushed for more yards and scored more touchdowns in postseason play than anybody in National Football League history.

Big-game incentive aside, Harris isn't the type to enjoy this week's Super Bowl XIV press buildup. He ambled in late for an interview session

Wednesday and said he's been having some stomach trouble.

"I feel pretty good now. I'll just eat some oranges, some California oranges," he said with a slight smile before going to work on a bowl of fruit while more than a dozen reporters sat with him for a round-table discussion.

Harris' statistics speak for themselves.

In postseason play, he has rushed for 1,442 yards, scored 15 touchdowns and piled up six 100-yard games. All of those are NFL records, as well as the 158 yards he gained against Minnesota in Super Bowl IX.

Harris has played in 16 postseason games, and he's been the top ground gainer in 13 of them.

"You can't have the same emotion through 16 regular-season games that you have during three playoff games," he said. "There are special games during the season when emotion runs pretty high. But in the playoffs, you always know that if you don't get past one game, there aren't any more."

Of course, Harris is no regular-season slouch. He's the fourth leading rusher in NFL history, behind only Jimmy Brown, O. J. Simpson and Jim Taylor.

This season, his eighth, Harris rushed for 1,186 yards, his second best season ever. His career total is 8,563 yards.

Might he have a shot at Brown's all-time record of 12,312?

"Oh no," Harris said with a laugh. "That's a long way off. I've been lucky for eight years. I don't know if I'll be lucky for eight more."

Nevertheless, Harris' style is geared to the long haul. Though he's a 6-foot-2, 230-pounder, he's as trim as he was as a rookie, more of a finesse runner than a power runner. He can run over people when the situation is right, but he takes no unnecessary punishment.

FRANCO HARRIS
Tough To Stop In Playoffs

Ram Defender Says Forget Point Spread

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Forget the point spread, Dave Elmendorf says. Forget the records. Forget that the Pittsburgh Steelers have won three Super Bowls while the Los Angeles Rams will be playing their first.

"The game will be decided by how our team matches up with the Steelers, how the two clubs mesh when they come together," said the Rams' defensive back during a break in practice for Sunday's Super Bowl showdown with the Steelers in Pasadena's Rose Bowl.

"I feel we're going to surprise a whole lot of people because we match up very well with them. They have a good running game, but we have a good defense against the run," explained Elmendorf, a safety who has been with the Rams for nine years.

"They have fine receivers and a fine passer, but we have a fine defensive secondary. Their defense is outstanding, but we feel that we're going to be able to run the ball, because we have an outstanding line and running backs."

"You can weigh all sorts of things about the two teams," continued Elmendorf, "but when it comes down to it, the only thing that really counts is how the two match up."

The oddsmakers, who established the Steelers as an 11-point favorite, apparently felt that the running of Franco Harris and the passing of Terry Bradshaw to Lynn Swann and John Stallworth will be too much for the Rams to stop.

Pittsburgh, which went 12-4 in the regular season, then defeated Miami 34-14 and Houston 27-13 in the playoffs, rolled up 477 points and gave up 289 during the 18 games.

The Rams, playing in the weak National Football Conference West Division were 9-7 during the regular season, then stunned Dallas 21-19 in the playoff opener before beating Tampa Bay 9-0 for the Super Bowl berth. They scored 353 points while allowing 328 during all those contests.

While those numbers would appear to give Pittsburgh a big edge in Super Bowl XIV, a set of different numbers muddle the picture. Los Angeles has long dominated the Steelers with a 10-1 series edge against them and the Rams beat Pittsburgh 10-7 in 1978, their most recent meeting.

In that contest, the Rams held Pittsburgh to 59 yards rushing and 115 passing, and intercepted Bradshaw three times. Harris rushed 22 times for just 50 yards.

U.S. May Try To Boycott Moscow Olympics Alone

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has received little encouragement from its allies on the question of boycotting the Moscow Olympics and may decide to try to boycott the games alone, State Department officials said Wednesday.

Western European governments generally are sympathetic to the idea of punishing the Soviet Union for its military intervention in Afghanistan by boycotting the Moscow games, the officials said.

But the allied governments have indicated they fear public opinion would be negative. Allied government officials also say they are uncertain about their ability to enforce an unpopular boycott or the wisdom of trying to do so, said the State Department officials, who asked not to be identified.

Only one country, Saudi Arabia, has pulled out of the Games, and it is widely reported to have done so because of the recent Soviet occupation of Afghanistan. But Olympic officials say the Saudis had given notice last October that they could not send a team to Moscow.

The Carter administration has been waging a public relations campaign for a boycott, composed of a series of statements of "personal opinions" that officials acknowledge have been carefully orchestrated. Last week, Vice President Walter F. Mondale said in Iowa that he thought the games should be moved from Moscow. President Carter's wife, Rosalynn, echoed that view.

On Tuesday, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance told an interviewer that he thought the United States should boycott the Olympics unless the situation in Afghanistan changes by mid-February.

"In hindsight, it was a mistake for us to attend the 1936 Olympics (held in Berlin by Nazi Germany)," Vance said.

Meanwhile, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter insisted that the administration has still not decided about calling for a boycott of the Olympics.

If the administration decides in favor of a boycott, the spokesman said, its "recommendation would be based on the thought that to go forward as if nothing is changed would be to say to the Soviet Union that the invasion carries no penalty."

But he branded as "ridiculous" the statements by Olympic organizers that the games are "above politics."

Robert Paul, public relations director of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said that some 50 to 75 athletes have contacted the USOC in Colorado Springs and "they are 100 percent supportive" of holding the Games.

"There has not been one dissenter," said Paul. "They wish to go to Moscow. They have said 'please keep politics out of the Games.'"

Administration officials note that the government does not have the power to compel a boycott. President Carter would have to urge Americans to boycott the Moscow Olympics and hope public sentiment, coupled with the prestige of his office, would force the U.S. Olympic Committee to agree.

But the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Robert Kane, said Wednesday the government should look for an alternative to a boycott. In a television interview, Kane said a U.S. boycott of the Olympics would be "inappropriate and gauche."

ABC's Season Lead In Nielsen Ratings Going Down The Tube

NEW YORK (AP) — The six shows in CBS' Sunday night lineup and the three from its Friday night schedule were among the 28 highest-rated programs in the week ending Jan. 13, and the performance helped the network to first place in the ratings for the fourth straight week.

ABC, after dipping to third the week before, regained the No. 2 position from NBC. CBS' first-place finish, however, cut ABC's lead in the competition for the season so far to a tenth of a point.

CBS, with six of the week's most-watched shows, compiled a rating of 20.9 to 19.3 for ABC and 17.2 for NBC.

The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.9 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to CBS.

Six of the 10 highest-rated programs in the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s most recent survey were from CBS, including "The Dukes of Hazzard" in first place, "Dallas" second and "60 Minutes" third. "60 Minutes" leads off CBS' Sunday night programming, while the other two are broadcast Friday evening.

The rating for "The Dukes of Hazzard" was 30.5. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 30.5 percent saw at least part of the program.

CBS has mounted its challenge to ABC, last season's runaway winner, largely on the strength of four nights' programming. In addition to winning the competition Friday and Sunday, the network finished No. 1 Monday and Thursday, with the rest of the week going to ABC.

NBC did, however, list two shows in the Top 10. "Little House on the Prairie" in 8th place and "CHiPs" tenth. ABC's Top 10 programs were "Three's Company," tied for fourth place with CBS' "Alice," and "Happy Days" in ninth place.

It was a bad week for specials. Four were among the week's five lowest-rated programs, company that included NBC's "Prime Time Saturday" newsmagazine in 62nd place.

Others at the bottom were "Winter Olympics: The World Comes to America," from ABC, No. 61, an "ABC News Closeup," "Escape from Justice: Nazi War Criminals in America," No. 62, an NBC movie, "Two Minute Warning," 63rd, and NBC's "Live from Studio 8H" concert, No. 64.

The week's 10 highest-rated programs:

"Dukes of Hazzard," with a rating of 30.5 representing 23.3 million homes, "Dallas," 28.7 or 21.9 million, and "60 Minutes," 27.6 or 21.1 million, all CBS; "Alice," CBS, and "Three's Company," ABC, both 27.5 or 21 million; "The Jeffersons," 26.8 or 20.4 million, and "M-A-S-H," 26.7 or 20.3 million, both CBS; "Little House on the Prairie," 25.3 or 19.3 million, ABC; "Happy Days," 25 or 19.1 million, NBC; and "CHiPs," 24.6 or 18.8 million, NBC.

The next 10 shows: "Real People," NBC; "Eight Is Enough," ABC; "House Calls" and "Seizure: The Story of Kathy Morris," both CBS; "One in a Million," "Taxi" and "Fantasy Island," all ABC; "Trapper John, M.D.," CBS, and "Charlie's Angels," ABC, tie, and "Vegas," ABC.

TV Network Names New Programming Chief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Brandon Tartikoff was named NBC's new chief of programming Tuesday, network president Fred Silverman announced.

Tartikoff, who turned 31 last Sunday, is the youngest division president in the network's history. He replaces Mike Weinblatt as president of the NBC Entertainment.

Weinblatt was appointed president of a new NBC division Monday.

Tartikoff came to NBC in 1977 from rival network ABC, where he was a Silverman protege. Silverman was ABC's chief of programming at the time, earning credit for that network's surge to the top in ratings competition.

Tartikoff was brought to NBC as a director of comedy, but was promoted to Vice President of Programs, West Coast when Silverman became president of NBC in 1978.

"He is a young, dynamic aggressive executive who is exceptionally well-rounded in entertainment programming," said Silverman of his new programmer, echoing the description others have used of Silverman himself.

"His expertise in comedy and variety programming in particular will be extremely valuable now that our thrust is in that direction...."

"I met Brandon when I was at ABC and I brought him to ABC programming in Los Angeles in 1976. He joined NBC in 1977 and when I joined NBC in 1978, I was very happy our paths were crossing again."

Silverman also announced a streamlining of the Entertainment Division, shifting its business affairs operation to another department. The Entertainment Division is responsible for advertising and programming.

Tartikoff's headquarters will be in New York, Silverman said.

MR. BILL
NEW YORK (AP) — "The Mr. Bill Show," which originated on "Saturday Night Live," has become a top-selling item on the video tape market. The crude clay figure, his dog Spot and Mr. Sluggo, built up a cult following on the NBC late-night show. It was created by Walter Williams. Segments from "Saturday Night Live" have been packaged into a video cassette by the Video Tape Network. The cassette is listed among the top 10 best sellers.

Movie To Portray Sex Goddess' Rise To Stardom

By JERRY BUCK
 LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clutching the arm of her agent and lover, Marilyn Monroe walks hesitantly down the hall of the mental institution, as a dozen gray-clad women try to touch her.
 She clings tightly to Johnny Hyde, appearing frightened. Her beige knit dress is molded tightly to her body, her golden hair shimmering.
 Constance Forslund is Marilyn Monroe in "This Year's Blonde," one of three two-hour movies due to air in May on NBC under the overall title "Moviola." Lloyd Bridges plays Johnny Hyde.
 The movie, adapted from Garson Kanin's book, "Moviola," traces Miss Monroe's rise from obscurity. The story movie ends before she becomes America's sex goddess.
 Other stories in the NBC series are "The Scarlett O'Hara War," about the search for an actress to play in "Gone With the Wind," and "Silent Lovers," about Greta Garbo's relationship with John Gilbert.

 John Erman is directing all three segments for David L. Wolper-Stan Margulies Productions and Warner Bros. Television.
 Connie Forslund's resemblance to Miss Monroe is striking, not so much in appearance as the way she talks and acts.
 "I think I knew her name when I was growing up," the actress says. "I never saw one of her pictures until I was in college in New York. I had some vision of her as a very glamorous movie star."
 "I did a scene in acting class and the teacher said I had a quality like Marilyn Monroe. Naturally, I wanted to know what it was."
 "Bus Stop" was playing at a theater and I went to see it. I didn't discover what the quality was, but she was wonderful. I still don't know what that quality was."

 The role is the biggest in Miss Forslund's young career. She's been on stage, has made a few guest appearances in TV series, and was in the recent television movie, "The Shining Season."
 "I'm very affected by Marilyn Monroe and what she went through," she says. "I read every book I could find on her and I went back and saw eight of her movies."
 "I feel very moved by her. I feel compassion for her. I think she was brave and strong. She became a major star under pressure and that takes a strong person."
 "It's nice to hear now that I'm like her. But when I finish this role, I want my own identity."
 Miss Forslund was hired for the part after six auditions. "I always had to do the same scene and I came to hate it," she says. "I had to do it yesterday. It's where I met Johnny Hyde. I said those words so many times I didn't know if I could do it again. I thought they would have auditioned me with a more emotional scene. Suppose they found out all I could do was sit in a bar and talk."

 Producer Stan Margulies, the man who brought "Roots" to the home screen, knew Miss Monroe when he was a press agent at 20th Century-Fox, and worked with her on several pictures.
 "To me the most interesting part has been the casting," Margulies says. "John Erman, the director, and I, made an early rule I think has worked out very well. We said the smaller the part the more we should find a lookalike."
 "Vivien Leigh has one line and we found a girl as close as we could get. We found a dead-ringer for a young Lucille Ball, who was in the running for "Gone With the Wind."

 "When it came to Marilyn Monroe we saw a lot of ladies with a strong resemblance to Marilyn. Marilyn is the star of the movie and to simply look like Marilyn is good for one moment. So we had to look for performance."
 "Who has that vulnerability? That's the thing I feel distinguished Marilyn from 300 other starlets. We found it in Connie Forslund. And then, thanks to makeup and hairdressing, she looks more like Marilyn. She has the essence of what made Marilyn great."

George Burns Reaching Pinnacle Of Success At 84

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — George Burns celebrates his 84th birthday this week, confessing that he is the only quintuple-threat man in Hollywood today.
 He is a movie star, TV star, nightclub star, best-selling author and now a recording star. Burns modestly failed to include lover which would, of course, have made him a sextuple-threat man.
 The oldtime vaudeville trouper — whose show biz nadir was a seal act billed as "Captain Betz & Flipper" — lit a cigar at his lunch table at Hillcrest Country Club and beamed contentedly.
 After 60 years as a starving vaudevillian and then straight man for his late wife, Gracie Allen, Burns has finally become a superstar in his own right.
 How come?
 "It's a matter of breaks," Burns said. "I didn't have to become a star until now. With Gracie I wrote the ideas and she did 'em. After Gracie's death I went into show business."
 "Until then I did nothing for 38 years but ask her how her brother was feeling and then straight man for her. She got the laughs."
 "Before Gracie I changed vaudeville acts every time I got fired. One of my acts was so bad I was on a bill that headlined 'Swain's Cats and Rats.'"
 "I followed a lot of animal acts — Pink's Mules, Powers's Elephants, Madame Burkhart and Her Cockatoos. I guess that's why I hooked up with Flipper."
 And how does he account for the affection audiences hold for him these days?

 "It's because I tell the truth," Burns said. "I give my right age. I admit I wear toupees. I admit I go out with young girls. Sometimes I stay home with them for four or five days. It takes that long to teach them to sing harmony."
 Which brought the wily octogenarian around to his favorite subject.
 George has cut his first country-western album, "I Wish I Was Eighteen Again." He is stunned to find it climbing on the music charts.
 In its first week the record made No. 93 on the country charts and now, in its third week, has moved up to No. 53 with a bullet. It's also a crossover hit, No. 84 in the pop charts.
 George warbles his way through such numbers as "Old Bones," "A Real Good Cigar," "Old Dogs, Children and Watermelon Wine." His songs are a far cry from his mumbled golden oldies from the 19th century.
 "I've got the perfect voice for country music," George said, blinking owlishly behind his horn-rimmed glasses.
 "I cut the album in Nashville, where they've got the greatest musicians in the world. I had 32 violins, six guitars, piano, bass and drums along with eight back-up singers. Sinatra don't sing with 32 fiddles. With all that help they didn't need me. They could have used Kenny Rogers."

 "When Sonny Throckmorton took his song (I Wish I Was Eighteen Again) to Mercury Records, they said he was too young to sing it. They said I was the only one old enough. So they came to Las Vegas to ask if I'd do it."
 "I said, 'Get me the tickets. We're flying to Nashville.' And that's how it happened. I bought some country records and listened to those guys sing and I learned something important about country music."
 "Sinatra and Tony Bennett sing as if millions were listening. Country guys sing one-to-one, like only one girl is listening. That's how I sang on my album. They were amazed how fast I did the album, too."

COMPLETE STOCK MARKET INDEX AMEX

Busy Session Sees Mart Dip

NEW YORK (AP) — The second-busiest session in New York Stock Exchange history wound up in a virtual standoff between buyers and sellers Wednesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, up more than 8 points at the outset, was off 3.41 at 865.19 by the close. Other indicators were mixed.

The Dow had climbed nearly 40 points on consistently heavy volume over the preceding seven trading days.

NYSE volume reached 67.7 million shares, a total surpassed only by the 81.62 million that changed hands last Oct. 10 as traders scrambled to react to new credit-tightening moves by the Federal Reserve.

The price of gold reached record highs again, climbing above the $750-an-ounce level only a day after breaking $700. But it closed well below its early peaks.

Other precious metals also were soared in buying attributed to fears of political and currency instability growing out of the tension in Iran and Afghanistan.

Those same concerns have prompted a rush by stocks of companies with natural-resource assets — gold or other metals, timber, and others.

U.S., Soviet Union To Benefit From Gold Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both the Soviet Union and the United States will benefit from soaring gold prices, official and unofficial sources said Wednesday.

Gold traders said the big increase in price Wednesday was due largely to a statement by Treasury Secretary G. William Miller on Tuesday that it wasn't "appropriate" for the government to auction its gold under current conditions.

largest official reserves of gold, and the Soviet Union, a major gold producer, both are said to be benefiting from soaring gold prices.

The latest price. The U.S. holdings, he said, are more than double those of West Germany, which has the next largest total reserves.

"gold remains a substantial and valued reserve for many governments, available for use in times of balance of payments needs, just as the United States has been using its gold holdings."

INVESTORS' GUIDE By BILL DOYLE

Q. Early last October I bought a $10,000 three-month U.S. Treasury bill through my local bank at a cost of $9,739.30. When that T-bill matured on Jan. 3, I told the people at the bank to buy another three month T-bill for me and credit the interest to my account.

Q. What is the difference between U.S. Treasury bills, notes and bonds? A. Treasury bills are discount securities — purchased at a price below face value and redeemed when they mature at face value.

Q. Do 12-month U.S. Treasury bills have the same high yield as six-month T-bills? A. As I write this, the "longest" issue of T-bills now outstanding — owned by investors — is selling in the open market to yield about eight-tenths of 1 percent less than six-month bills.
