

Seven Arrests Give Crime Line Good 1980 Start

CRIME LINE is off to a strong start for the new year, with seven arrests made in five felonies since Jan. 1.

This week, Crime Line is offering rewards totaling $2,500 in seven cases.

A $500 reward is offered in the Jan. 17 armed robbery of Don's Grocery, 914 E. 34th St., in which $524 was taken.

The robber, described as a black male, 22 to 23 years old, 5 feet 11 and weighing approximately 200 pounds, ordered Hollins to hand over the money from the cash register. The man was wearing a rust-colored shirt, khaki pants and high-top black shoes, police.

The robber reportedly left the scene on a 10-speed bicycle. Also taken in the holdup was the victim's .357 magnum pistol, police said.

Crime Line is totally supported by private donations. Anyone desiring to make a tax-deductible contribution to the reward fund should mail it to Crime Line, P.O. Box 2000, Lubbock, 79457.

A $500 reward is also offered in the Jan. 6 armed robbery of Dun-kin' Donuts, 317 University. A total of $111 was taken by a man who walked in the establishment about 7 p.m. and demanded that the female employee turn over all the money.

The robber reportedly told the employee to get down and not to look up or he would shoot her. The robber's means of transportation is not known.

The bandit was wearing a yellow leisure suit and sunglasses, with long black hair, the employee told police. He was 5 feet 3 to 5 feet 6 in height, and he was carrying a blue-steel automatic pistol.

A $300 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of Lonnie Ray Booker, who has been charged with aggravated armed robbery. A warrant for his arrest has been issued by Justice of the Peace Wayne LeCroy.

Booker is described as a black male, 30 years old, 6 feet 2, 225 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes.

A $300 reward is also offered for information leading to the arrest of Teddy Lynn Bolinger, alias Teddy Lynn Anderson, who has been charged with probation violation.

Bolinger is described by police as a white male, 23 years old, 5 feet 6, weighing 180 pounds, with red hair and brown eyes.

Crime Line offers a $300 reward in the Jan. 14 burglary of the home of Jackie Bynum of Lubbock. Bynum told police his apartment was burglarized between 2:20 and 11:55 p.m. Goods valued at $830 were taken in the break-in, police said.

Items taken include a sound movie camera, a sound movie projector, a gold chain, a wedding ring and a piggy bank containing $30. Entry was gained by prying open a window.

A $300 reward is offered in the burglary of the home of Roberto Reyes, 602 Ave. R, in which items valued at $1,710 were taken. The break-in occurred between Jan. 11 and Jan. 14, Reyes told police.

Items taken include an RCA 19-inch black-and-white television, several pieces of furniture and assorted jewelry.

Entry was gained by breaking a window at the south side of the house. The burglar or burglars exited through the rear door, police said. A $300 reward is offered in the $6500 burglary of a residence at 2021 16th St., which occurred between Jan. 3 and Jan. 5.

Missing from the house are a Martin guitar, an Alvarez guitar, a Gibson guitar, a Mandolin guitar, a Music Man amplifier, a Smith-Corona electric typewriter, a Zenith 12-inch color television, a Home Box Office control unit, a stereo turntable, a Sansui amplifier, two stereo speakers, a fishing pole, an Indian blanket and several items of clothing.

Anyone with information concerning any of the previously-mentioned crimes, or any felony crime, is asked to call the Crime Line at 741-1000. Informants may remain anonymous.

Refinery Explosion Rocks Borger

Dreary Day To Repeat Over Area

ANOTHER day of cloudy, dreary weather is on tap for the South Plains and most of the Southwestern part of the country today as a huge bank of clouds refuses to budge from its position across Texas.

Across the South Plains today, the high should creep only into the lower 40s, while tonight's low should be in the upper 20s. Freezing rain and drizzle, which have slicked streets and highways, are expected to continue spreading their misery perhaps until Tuesday.

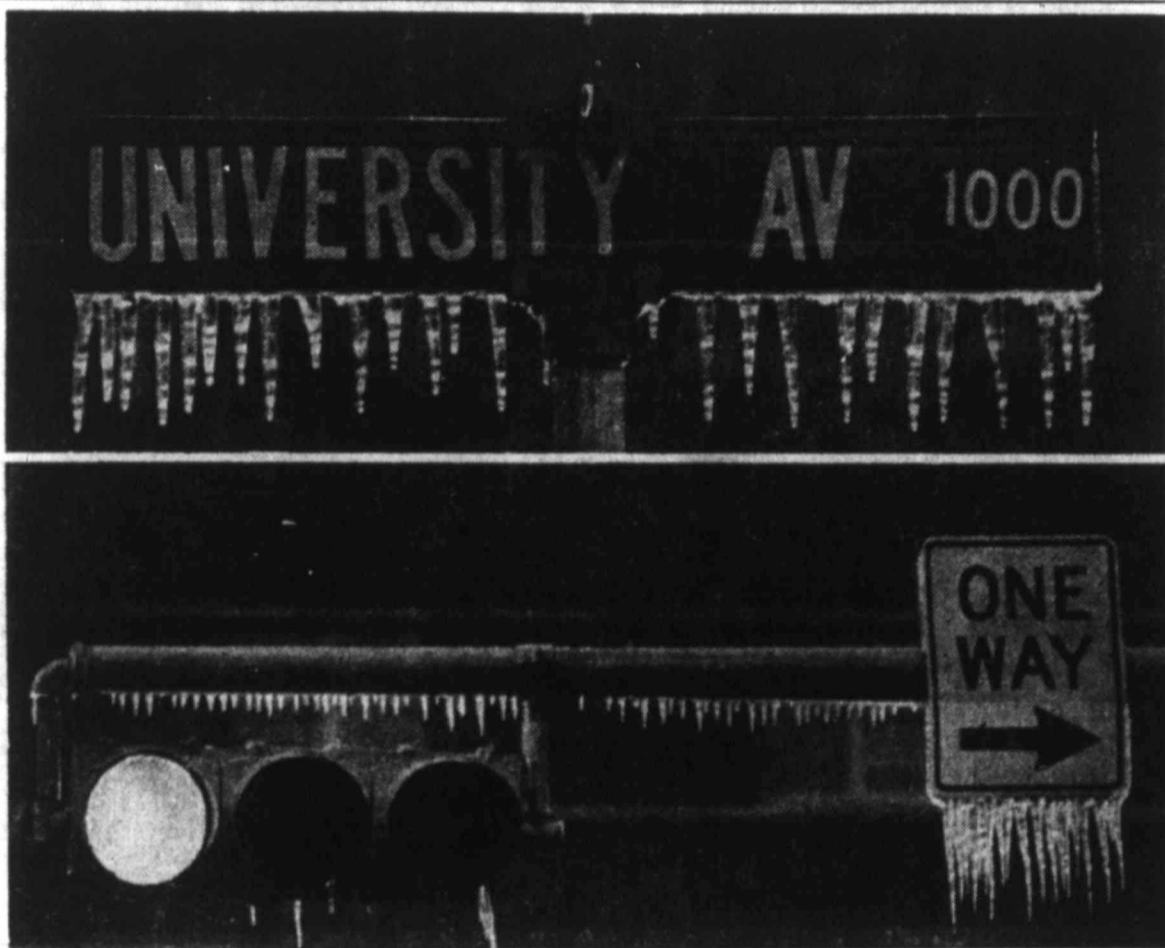

The dense cloudiness blanketing the region is being caused by an intense upper level low pressure system over Southern California, which is influencing a cold front stretching from Louisiana back into the Big Bend region of South Texas. The front is being stalled over the state because of the southwesterly flow of air from the Big Bend area back toward the low.

Widespread rain and snow showers are expected to continue across most of West Texas. No measurable amounts of precipitation had been recorded across the South Plains by late Sunday, although Victoria in South Texas had 2.57 inches of rain courtesy the front. And Longview registered 1.34 inches of rain.

Visibility will remain poor and traveler's advisories will remain in effect for the Texas Panhandle and most of the South Plains because of the clouds and ice.

SURE SIGNS OF WINTER — Lubbock's street and traffic signs told two stories Sunday — one of laws and location, another of the frigid weather that has invaded the area in the past two days. Icicles dripped from stoplights, signs, buildings and even cars Sunday as freezing rain let up only briefly throughout the day. And perhaps the "One Way" sign in the bottom photo indicates the only way the temperature can go after Sunday's high of 34 degrees. Another wet, cold and dreary day is on tap today. (Staff Photos by Milton Adams)

41 Injured, 200 Forced To Flee

BORGER (AP) — Explosions rocked a gasoline refinery and sent flames 300 feet into the air near this Texas Panhandle community Sunday, damaging dozens of nearby homes and businesses and forcing 200 people to flee the area.

At least 34 persons were injured in the explosions that heavily damaged houses in the nearby community of Phillips and shattered windows four miles away in Borger, authorities said.

Tremble And Roar

"There was a big tremble and a roar, it was more like an earthquake," said Ada Westbrook, whose mobile home is located about a mile and a half from the refinery.

"All the stuff on the walls just shot right off and landed on the floor. We opened the door and saw a big ball of fire and black smoke. There are a lot of shook people here... It's just unbelievable," said Mrs. Westbrook.

Dick Robinson, a spokesman for Phillips Petroleum Co. said 29 persons were treated at a nearby hospital for minor injuries and released. Four persons were admitted for treatment, Robinson said, but the seriousness of the injuries was unknown.

Robinson said he was unsure how many Phillips employees were injured. He said all employees had been accounted for.

One person hit in the eye by flying glass was taken to an Amarillo hospital, 40 miles away, said firefighter Timothy Richwine. The trip was slowed by icy roads.

A Red Cross shelter was set up for evacuees at a local junior high school, but officials said residents would be allowed to return to the homes later Sunday.

Lived Through This Before

"Most of the residents have lived through this at least once. A lot of them go to friends or relatives that live in other parts of the city," said Al Hadberg, a spokesman for the Red Cross in Borger.

Officials said the blast roared through two cracking units used to manufacture high octane gasoline at the plant about 8 a.m. CST. A natural gas processing facility adjacent to the plant continued to operate.

Phillips officials had feared the blaze could spread to a third unit before it was brought under control late Sunday morning at the plant located between Borger and Phillips.

200 Feet In The Air

"The flames were 200 feet in the air when I saw them," said Hutchinson County sheriff's deputy Beverly McClure.

A small fire was still burning Sunday afternoon.

"It (the blast) caused a lot of damage in Borger," McClure said. "A lot of glass is blown out of downtown businesses. There has been a lot of glass breakage in Phillips and some collapsing of houses. I

Afghans Call For Holy War

By The Associated Press

MOSLEM revolutionaries rejected conciliation with the Marxist Afghan government Sunday and announced plans to unite rebel factions into a single guerrilla front to fight a holy war against Soviet troops in Afghanistan, according to Iranian state radio report.

An Afghan Islamic Organization official in Tehran said the revolutionaries never would accept offers of negotiation from the Soviet-backed Afghan government in Kabul or end their attempt to rid Afghanistan of Soviet troops, Tehran Radio reported. Most of the Afghan rebel groups have headquarters in either Iran or Pakistan.

"The Afghan revolutionaries' duty is to expel the Soviet forces from Afghanistan through Jihad, (holy war) not through negotiations," the official was quoted as saying.

Discussions are under way, he was quoted as saying, among seven Islamic organizations to form a guerrilla alliance to fight the Soviet troops, which helped bring the government of President Bani

Governor To Tour Tech Campus Today

TEXAS Gov. Bill Clements will tour the Texas Tech University campus and deliver a speech to the Chamber of Commerce today.

Clements will address the chamber at noon while taking a break between visits to various sites on the Texas Tech campus, including the Textile Research Center, the Petroleum Engineering Building and the Ranching Heritage Center.

New Tech president Dr. Lauro Cavazos, who will begin his term in office in April, will be on hand, while Dr. Lawrence Graves, Tech's interim president, will give the governor and overview of the school. The nine members of the school's Board of Regents also are expected to accompany Clements on his tour.

authority to force any action on the Games in Moscow, he said he sent a letter Sunday asking the U.S. Olympic Committee to present his views to the International Olympic Committee, the only group that can move the Games.

"I've sent a message today to the United States Olympic Committee spelling out my position... that the Olympic Games be moved from Moscow to an alternate site, or multiple sites, or postponed, or canceled," the president said.

"If the Soviets do not withdraw their troops immediately from Afghanistan within a month," he said, "I would not support the sending of an American team to the Olympics."

Carter urged that there be permanent winter and summer sites for the Olympics and that the Summer Games be held in their ancient homeland of Greece.

Asked if the United States would be in an isolated spot if other nations do not follow its lead, Carter replied: "Regardless of what other nations do, I would not favor the sending of an American Olympic team to Moscow while the Soviet invasion troops are in Afghanistan."

Carter said 104 nations voted in the United Nations against the Soviet invasion.

(Olympic Board To Consider Boycott, Page 2, Sec. A)

and added: "I would hope as many of them as possible would support the position I just outlined to you."

Carter's statements — made on the NBC News program "Meet the Press" — came just two days after U.S. Olympic

New Technology Prepares Back-To-Wool Movement

By GERRY BURTON

Avalanche-Journal Staff

THERMOSTAT turndown combined with use of shorter wool fibers on the cotton textile system could be the starting point for a back-to-wool movement in the industry.

An even bigger boon would be the wool equivalent of the cotton gin, according to a spokesman for the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech University. Working out new methods and markets for Texas' natural fibers on one side and encouraging the sheep and goat raiser in creating a more marketable product on the other is the main function of the center.

Currently, TRC director James S. Parker and James M. Lambert, who heads the knitting department, are acting in an advisory capacity for the modern technology panel in the Sheep and Goat, Wool and Mohair Exhibit and Hall of Achievement to be dedicated Feb. 7 in the Food and Fiber National Institute.

A lot of the wool and mohair industry's problems with marketing, Parker said, begins with the fleece itself. Appearance directly affects salability.

Conditioning the fleece before sale like the farmer does his cotton at the gin would make wool and mohair more acceptable to manufacturers.

"A manufacturer gets a bale of cotton, opens it and it's ready for use, but wool has to be washed and scoured," Parker noted.

Selling the fleece right off the sheep or goats, he added, is like selling the cotton from the trailer.

By utilizing a wool "gin," the producer could use a valuable byproduct, lanolin, to help pay for the procedure in the same manner a farmer does with his cotton seed at the gin.

A major problem with a part of the sheep industry, Parker emphasized, is the producer's feeling that wool is just something that grows on a sheep's back which has to be cut before the animal can become a meat product.

Many producers put the fiber part of the business at 10 per cent of the income

World Support For Boycott Divided

By United Press International
World reaction to President Carter's call Sunday for a boycott of the summer Olympic Games in Moscow ranged from lukewarm support to outright opposition, with only Egypt immediately agreeing to join an American boycott.

While some governments expressed sympathy with the reasoning behind Carter's action — ostracizing the Soviet Union for its invasion of Afghanistan — for the most part they deferred a final decision to their national Olympic committees.

Carter said he would urge a boycott of the Moscow games unless the Soviet Union withdraws its troops from Afghanistan within a month.

Lord Killanin, the President of the International Olympic Committee, criticized Carter's decision as "hasty" and said it could have "disastrous" consequences for the cause of sport.

In Moscow, the state-run radio reported Carter's announcement without comment but quoted "observers" as saying the move was futile.

"Observers assess Mr. Carter's attempt to exert pressure on the Soviet Union as futile and reflecting Washington's current course to undermine the policy of easing tension and reviving the Cold War," the broadcast said.

Among America's western allies, France responded with the strongest reaction against Carter's proposal.

"Our minister of sport has made France's attitude clear. France will be at Moscow. There is no question of us supporting any boycott. The games are for the competitors, not the politicians," said Claude Collard, president of the French National Olympic and Sports Committee.

A Greek government source said Premier Constantine Caramanlis — who has suggested the games be returned to Greece on a permanent basis — was "against politicization of the Olympic Games. Such a move would threaten an age-old institution."

In an interview at his home in Dublin, Killanin said Carter should have consulted with leaders of the Olympic movement. "He said moving the games from Moscow would be 'legally and technically impossible.'"

But Egyptian Minister of Youth and Sports Abdel Hamid Hassan urged other Arab and Islamic countries to support the U.S. position.

"Any state hosting the Olympic Games actually violates the Olympic ethics as well as the United Nations charter if it attacks a sovereign and independent state," Hassan said of the Soviet invasion.

In Bonn, a government spokesman said West Germany "has great understanding" for Carter's decision, but the country's top sports official said he "deeply" regretted it.

"I deeply regret that this serious issue is played up at this moment," said IOC Chairman Willi Daume. "Moderation and far-sighted action is now more necessary than ever."

The head of the Israeli Olympic Committee said it would defer its decision until the U.S. Olympic Committee has decided whether to boycott the games.

"We will wait to hear what the U.S. Olympic committee decides," said Yitzhak Ofek. "These are decisions which should be made by sports institutions and not governments."

But in Tel Aviv, the wife of imprisoned Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky appealed for an international effort to move the games out of Moscow altogether.

"I think, and I have signals from Moscow, that if Anatoly and others are not released before the Olympic games, the situation is going to be a very great danger," Avital Shcharansky said in an interview with Israel Radio on her husband's 32nd birthday.

Olympic Board To Consider Boycotting Summer Games

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — F. Don Miller, executive director of the United States Olympic Committee, held out hope Sunday that the Soviet Union will stop short of an outright boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

Miller said that while Carter in his televised appearance Sunday set a deadline for the Soviets to pull their troops out of Afghanistan, the president showed that he understood the USOC is the final authority on any decision concerning American involvement in the games.

Miller said the USOC's executive board would study any suggestions from the President and that he hoped to meet with International Olympic Committee President Lord Killanin to discuss Carter's proposals.

"But I think the significant thing," said Miller, "is that the president made it very clear that he recognizes the Olympic movement is part of the private sector."

"He has not come out and said we will boycott the games. He indicates there may be other alternatives that would have the same amount of punishment if the Soviet Union continues with its unwarranted aggressions."

Among Carter's suggestions were the use of an alternate site or multiple sites for the Olympics.

Killanin, however, has said Moscow would be the host for the 1980 Olympics and Miller admitted the IOC's chief executive appeared resolute in his feelings.

"He does, indeed," Miller said. "We talked to him last Friday prior to our visit to the White House (to meet with Secretary of State Cyrus Vance)."

"And at that time he agreed to put us on the agenda and to hear our concerns. I hate to say that anything of that nature (moving the games) is impossible. But it is not possible for the United States to do it alone."

"To bring any pressures many other countries must join in the movement," Miller said he expected to meet with Killanin before the IOC's executive committee meeting on Feb. 10.

The USOC's executive board meeting scheduled for next weekend in Colorado Springs could be a critical one in determining how much support — or lack of it — American Olympic officials might give the President.

"The President has clearly stated that he will give us, in a letter, his concerns as well as a number of options which he asked us to consider," Miller said.

"When our executive board meets we will have the President's letter and it will be given every consideration."

HEARTLINE: I have an uncle who lost all of his savings to a phony stock scheme. He called the police and an attorney. They both said that they would try to find a guy that perpetrated this fraud, but he may never be found. Can you give me any more advice on this matter? — A.R.

ANSWER: When deception has occurred, it is often too late or too costly to get a refund. And the fly-by-night operators do not have permanent addresses.

City and state authorities can levy fines and imprison the culprit if their ordinances and laws empower them to do so. The Federal Trade Commission can bring stern measure to bear.

To have law violators punished is small compensation to the senior citizen who has lost his or her savings. Far better that he or she avoid the pitfalls in the first place.

If your investigation of any promotion scheme convinces you that chicanery is being used, by all means contact and report it to the Better Business Bureau, to the Post Office Department or to the Federal Trade Commission.

Look under Federal Trade Commission in the telephone directories of the following cities for the addresses and telephone numbers of the field offices: Atlanta, Ga.; Honolulu, Hawaii; Boston, Mass.; Cleveland, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Denver, Colo.; New York, NY; Seattle, Wash.; Los Angeles, Cal.; San Francisco, Cal.; Washington, D.C.

Anyone can file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission. As much supporting evidence as possible should accompany the complaint. Mail to: Secretary, Federal Trade Commission, Washington, D.C. 20580. Or phone (202) 523-3383.

HEARTLINE: My ex-husband is retired and drawing Social Security. Also, I might add, is in a very good financial condition. We were divorced several years ago and I received custody of our four children, two of which we adopted. He was ordered to pay me $400 per month for the support of the children as long as they were in my care and under the age of 18.

Since his retirement, he has not paid the support, although the two children still in my care are receiving benefits from his Social Security. Before I consult my attorney about this situation, can you tell me if his Social Security benefits can be attached or if we can have his benefits assigned over to the children in place of the support? — O.P.

ANSWER: The Social Security Handbook published by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare states Future Social Security benefits cannot be assigned. Also, Social Security benefits are not subject to levy, garnishment, or attachment, except in very restricted circumstances, such as the collection of delinquent Federal taxes, or by court order, for child support or alimony cases.

Since your husband is in good financial condition, it would probably be to your advantage to try to get the money from some other of his resources other than Social Security benefits. However, due to the nature of your question, we suggest that you do consult with your attorney and also with a Social Security counselor.

Self-Professed Witch Faces Beginning Of Murder Trial

PLAINVIEW (Special) — After two weeks of tedious jury qualifications, the murder trial of self-professed witch Loy Dean Stone comes to trial today in the 64th District Courtroom of Judge John T. Boyd.

Stone, 50, and his wife, Louise, 49, are accused of the Halloween 1977 shotgun slaying of 15-year-old Roxanne Casas, a Dimmitt High School sophomore who died that night after being struck in the head by a shotgun blast while she was riding in a pickup near the Stones rural Castro County residence.

The Stones claim they never heard the shots that struck down the girl and injured two of her companions. The incident drew widespread attention because the Stones are members of the Church of Arianhu, one of five branches of the Church of Wicca, which refers to its members as witches. No trial date for Mrs. Stone has been set.

Stone's trial was moved from Dimmitt to Plainview after a pre-trial hearing determined that the Stones could not get a fair trial in Dimmitt because of their religious background and because of racial tensions stirred up by the shooting. As Miss Casas' funeral approached and no arrests had been made, members of the Brown Berets converged upon Dimmitt and demanded justice. Stone was arrested the day of the funeral.

The Stones received some regional notoriety by appearing on an Amarillo television station about two weeks before the shooting. Perhaps because of their appearance, they had complained to local law officials about "general harassment" by area teen-agers who began cruising the country near the home. Earlier that Halloween night, Castro County law officers had chased some curious teens away from the Stones residence.

Prosecutor Jimmy Davis and defense attorneys Travis Shelton and James Doores spent two full weeks interviewing prospective jurors for the trial, including almost a week individually talking to Hale County residents in an attempt to locate a panel of 12 from which they could select a final jury of 12. They eventually qualified some 35 persons for the case.

GOP Hopeful Backs Proposed Boycott

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — GOP presidential hopeful George Bush said Sunday he backs President Carter's proposed boycott of the Olympics and other punitive moves against the Soviet Union — except for the embargo on grain sales.

And he favors an economic blockade of Iran, Bush said.

Appearing on CBS' "Face the Nation" one day before the Iowa precinct caucuses, the former ambassador, like most other presidential hopefuls campaigning in the farm state, denounced the embargo as ineffective and inconsistent.

He said Carter halted the shipment of 17 million tons of grain, but allowed the Russians to purchase organic chemicals which are used in fertilizers.

"To do what? To help the Soviets grow grain better," he said. "Now come on, what kind of inconsistent foreign policy is that?"

The president Sunday said he would call for the Olympics to be moved, postponed or canceled if Russian troops do not withdraw from Afghanistan within a month. Bush called for an unconditional withdrawal.

"If a bully brutalizes his neighbor — kicks the heck out of him — and invites people over the next day, people don't go," he said. "There's a certain minimum standard of international behavior."

While reiterating his charge that foreign policy under Carter has been "weak" and "vacillating," Bush said he would support any presidential action against Iran as long as American hostages are being held in Tehran.

Asked if he, as president, would order a unilateral economic boycott, Bush said he would want full information, but "if facts bear out what appears to me to be the case, yes, I would go ahead and do it."

Bush was modest about his prospects in Monday night's GOP caucuses, sticking to his oft-stated position that he will "do better than is expected."

By entering Iowa early and collecting support from much of the Republican Party hierarchy, Bush assembled one of the best political organizations in the state.

While many party leaders regard him as a possible upset victor over front-runner Ronald Reagan, Bush insisted, "Nobody expects me to win." But he acknowledged he will have to defeat Reagan in one of the early primaries if not in Iowa, to have a shot at the nomination.

"He's got to be stopped by me and he's got to be stopped before Illinois or he's got the nomination," Bush said.

NBC Still Plans Coverage Of Summer Olympics

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC is going ahead with its multimillion-dollar plans for covering the 1980 summer Olympics despite President Carter's call Sunday for a boycott of this year's Moscow games.

County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said he would send a telegram to Lord Killanin, head of the International Olympic Committee, offering Los Angeles as an alternate site for the 1980 games.

Endorsing Carter's stand were Peter Ueberroth, president of the 1984 organizing committee, and Paul Ziffren, chairman.

"It's a worldwide crisis, not a matter of politics," Ueberroth said. "Very clearly, any American citizen in a time of crisis, what kind of inconsistent foreign policy is that?"

Ueberroth said he would support any presidential action against Iran as long as American hostages are being held in Tehran.

Asked if he, as president, would order a unilateral economic boycott, Bush said he would want full information, but "if facts bear out what appears to me to be the case, yes, I would go ahead and do it."

Bush was modest about his prospects in Monday night's GOP caucuses, sticking to his oft-stated position that he will "do better than is expected."

By entering Iowa early and collecting support from much of the Republican Party hierarchy, Bush assembled one of the best political organizations in the state.

While many party leaders regard him as a possible upset victor over front-runner Ronald Reagan, Bush insisted, "Nobody expects me to win." But he acknowledged he will have to defeat Reagan in one of the early primaries if not in Iowa, to have a shot at the nomination.

"He's got to be stopped by me and he's got to be stopped before Illinois or he's got the nomination," Bush said.

Committee Supports Boycott

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Top officials of the organizing committee for the 1984 summer Olympic Games in Los Angeles said Sunday they supported President Carter's call for a boycott of this year's Moscow games.

County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said he would send a telegram to Lord Killanin, head of the International Olympic Committee, offering Los Angeles as an alternate site for the 1980 games.

Endorsing Carter's stand were Peter Ueberroth, president of the 1984 organizing committee, and Paul Ziffren, chairman.

"It's a worldwide crisis, not a matter of politics," Ueberroth said. "Very clearly, any American citizen in a time of crisis, what kind of inconsistent foreign policy is that?"

Ueberroth said he would support any presidential action against Iran as long as American hostages are being held in Tehran.

Asked if he, as president, would order a unilateral economic boycott, Bush said he would want full information, but "if facts bear out what appears to me to be the case, yes, I would go ahead and do it."

He said he would have preferred to have avoided a boycott but noted the game had become politically involved as a result of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Carter announced his decision Sunday on television to boycott the games unless the Soviets pull out of Afghanistan next month.

Ueberroth said he does not believe the games will be withdrawn from Moscow because the international committee is committed.

Ziffren said thousands of young people would feel disappointed by a boycott, but added, "naturally our first obligation is to support our country."

Douglas Opinion Gave Americans 'Privacy'

FLAG LOWERED FOR DOUGLAS — The American flag flies at half-staff outside the Supreme Court in Washington following the death of former Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. (AP Laserphoto)

WASHINGTON (AP) — On June 7, 1965, Americans discovered they are endowed with the constitutional right of privacy.

Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, supported by six of his eight colleagues on the nation's highest court, authored a landmark in law called Griswold vs. Connecticut.

It said privacy, a word never mentioned in the Constitution, was entitled to the utmost protection.

The court's decision overturned an ancient state law that had banned the use of contraceptives and giving advice about birth control devices.

Douglas' opinion said the law violated the right of privacy, a right "created by several fundamental constitutional guarantees."

The court's two dissenters accused Douglas of inventing rather than judging, but the court eight years later applied Douglas' doctrine to a woman's right of privacy to legalize abortion.

Most of Douglas' contributions to the development of American law came in his dissenting opinions — many of which he saw become the foundation of subsequent majority decisions.

His expansive views on individual rights were expressed as minority opinions for years before the court took a more activist and liberal turn in the 1960s.

Douglas' early views on legislative reapportionment expressed in a dissenting opinion were much later adopted by Chief Justice Earl Warren and a court majority to establish the one-man, one-vote doctrine.

Douglas, however, was never able to attract a majority vote to his view that obscene materials should not be excluded from the constitutional free-press and free-expression protections.

"Today this court sits as the nation's board of censors," he said in a 1968 obscenity case called Ginsberg vs. New York. "With all respect I do not know of any group in the country less qualified..."

When the court in 1967 ruled that homosexual aliens may be denied admittance to the United States because of their homosexuality — a ruling still in effect — Douglas dissented.

There are more than 17 million tractors at work in the world, according to U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization. Some 12 million are used to North America, Western Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

The court based its 6-3 ruling on the American Psychiatric Association's view that a homosexual is "afflicted with a 'psychopathic personality.'" The APA has since refuted its past findings.

Douglas' dissent called the term "psychopathic personality" a "treacherous one like 'Communist' or in an earlier day 'Bolshevik'."

"It is common knowledge that in this century homosexuals have risen high in our public service — both in Congress and our executive branch — and have served with distinction," he said.

Supreme Court Justice Douglas Remembered Through Writings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are excerpts from some of the most famous and most significant Supreme Court opinions and other writings of the late Justice William O. Douglas.

• Free speech has occupied an exalted position because of the high service it has given our society. Its protection is essential to the very existence of a democracy. The airing of ideas releases pressures which otherwise might become destructive. When ideas compete in the market for acceptance, full and free discussion even of ideas we hate encourages the testing of our prejudices and preconceptions. Full and free discussion keeps a society from becoming stagnant and unprepared for the stresses and strains that work to tear all civilizations apart.

• Running fast-water rivers, or exploring chains of lakes by canoe, hiking ridges, scaling cliffs, traversing a glacier with the aid of ice axes, foraging for foods in the Alpine Basins — these are activities that build character, and they are vital in the American saga.

• Ideas have been the most dangerous forces in the history of mankind.

• The word "revolution" has of course acquired a subversive connotation in modern times. But it has roots that are eminently respectable in American history. This country is the product of revolution. Our very being emphasizes that when grievances pile high and there are no political remedies, the exercise of sovereign powers reverts to the people.

• "Secrecy in government is fundamentally anti-democratic, perpetuating bureaucratic errors. Open debate and discussion of public issues are vital to our national health."

• "The purpose of the Constitution and the Bill of Rights, unlike more recent models promoting a welfare state, was to take the government off the backs of the people."

• "Citizenship, like freedom of speech, press and religion, occupies a preferred position in our written Constitution, because it is a grant absolute in terms. While Congress can prescribe conditions for voluntary expatriation, Congress cannot turn white to black and make any act an act of expatriation."

• "Certainly he who has a long purse will always have a lawyer, while the indigent will be without one. I know of no more invidious discrimination based on poverty."

• "Today this court sits as the nation's board of censors. With all respect I do not know any group in the country less qualified first to know what obscenity is when they see it, and second to have any considered judgment as to what deleterious or beneficial impact of a particular publication may be on minds either young or old."

• "My roots are deep in this prairie (his home in Goose Prairie, Wash.). I am apart of the rhythm of the place — of the mornings just before and after sunrise, when grass, shrubs and trees are bejeweled; of the evenings when the grosbeaks swoop low and feed on insects and the doe deer and porcupine emerge from the woods to visit the clover."

Striking Police Lend Bid To City Council

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — The City Council has called a special meeting Monday to consider the latest contract proposal from police officers who have been on strike 19 days.

The 117 officers and clerical workers in the 140-member International Brotherhood of Police Officers voted unanimously Saturday to accept the latest contract offer provided some changes are made.

Meanwhile, the crime wave that has hit this city of 75,000 since the walkout began Jan. 2 appeared to be on the wane, following a sheriff's department decision to step up patrols and assist the nine non-striking police officers.

"There seems to be less violent-type crime," said Capt. Charles Thompson. "Robberies have dropped since we have the sheriffs. It was a lot quieter this weekend."

Although the striking officers were ordered to return to work by a Superior Court judge last week, process servers have been unable to find the strikers to give them the orders. "As far as I know, no one has been served," Thompson said.

Union officials have said they would appeal the court order. Neither city nor union officials would comment on details of the city's last offer — made through a state mediator — or on the changes union president Dave Peitz said were "necessary if you intend to be competitive in recruiting a higher caliber police officer for this community."

Peitz did say the duration of the proposed contract was an issue, with the officers seeking a three-year pact "as opposed to a shorter-term contract."

Before the city made its new contract proposal Friday, it had offered an 18-month agreement with across-the-board 8 percent raises and an additional 5 percent "performance" increase for officers judged worthy. The top salary for Santa Barbara officers currently is $19,188 a year.

The union, which had vigorously opposed the performance raise concept, had sought pay hikes of 12 percent in the first year and 11 percent in the second two years of a three-year contract. The officers also were trying to regain time-and-a-half pay for overtime, educational programs and other benefits lost in the contract they signed two years ago.

AN EDITORIAL:

Share The Surplus, Governor

GOV. BILL CLEMENTS, whom Lubbock welcomes today, says he wants "to return to the Texas taxpayer" a $600 million to $700 million surplus he thinks the state treasury will accumulate this biennium.

Tax reductions are devoutly to be sought and we hope the governor is right both about the surplus and about getting the Legislature to "return that money" to the taxpayers in a special session he now intends to call either in August or September.

State Comptroller Bob Bullock, however, is among those who think the governor is overly optimistic on both counts.

OUR FORECAST of income from taxes and other sources is also changing—some up, some down," Bullock said in a letter to state Sen. E.L. Short of Tahoka.

He says, for example, that oil and gas taxes will add $646 million to his earlier forecasts but that sales taxes and motor vehicle taxes will bring in $282.9 million less than he had predicted.

His bottom line: "A total of $124.4 million we may expect as 'surplus'...but whether the surplus is $124 million or $324 million, Texas is not living in the banquet years of the 1970s."

We don't know whether Clements or Bullock is right in his projections, but while in Lubbock the governor will see a couple of examples of why the hoped-for state tax cut is going to be difficult.

HE VETOED A badly needed School of Nursing appropriation for Texas Tech last spring.

Of even greater importance and impact is the need for the state to assume its rightful role in paying for the educational costs incurred by the teaching hospitals here and elsewhere in Texas.

Local taxpayers, who built and operate the teaching hospital serving the Tech School of Medicine, should not also have to shoulder alone the teaching costs it incurs. That cost should be borne by all taxpayers of the state because the physicians being educated will serve throughout the state.

So, when you think about it, Governor, the best way to return some of that state "surplus" to the taxpayer is to do so by relieving the local taxpayer of a burden all should be sharing equally.

AN EDITORIAL:

Kennedy Campaign 'In Dark'

WHITE HOUSE operatives are euphorically predicting that the campaign of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is ready to "self-destruct." Today is the day. Iowa is the place. After dark is the time.

The President's supporters say his bandwagon will begin to roll in precinct caucuses there, despite the fact Kennedy has both ex-Sen. Dick Clark and the popular current Iowa Atty. Gen. Tom Iler criss-crossing the state for him.

In Carter's favor, they say, is the time of day the caucuses will be held.

Much of Kennedy's strength is among the elderly and organized labor. Most of Iowa's union folk work in two- and three-shift plants and the elderly don't go out much at night. That means a substantial number of Kennedy supporters won't vote.

NEXT STOP, New Hampshire. A month ago, it was pegged as a Kennedy landslide. Now, the Carter polls show a far closer result in the offing.

The Carter organization already is setting up to call any kind of narrow Kennedy victory a "moral victory" for Carter.

After New Hampshire, the campaign will be in what all the President's men call "Carter Country." They see big wins in Florida, Alabama and Arkansas.

The Kennedy people publicly admit his campaign has been having trouble getting off the ground in the South and say they, too, are looking for moral victories.

This brings the campaign to Illinois, which both sides believe will be the key to who gets the party nod.

The Kennedy camp says that with Mayor Jane Byrne's endorsement and the Cook County machine working for it, Illinois will go for Kennedy. The Carter crowd, though, is talking upset.

A POLL commissioned by WBBM-TV last week backs up this boast. It showed Carter with an astounding 69 percent as opposed to Kennedy's equally astounding 18 percent.

That isn't the whole story, however. With the support of Mayor Byrne and the Cook County machine, Kennedy only managed to win the support of 15 percent of the registered Democrats.

As Carter's corner now plots it, even if Kennedy wins big in New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut and Wisconsin, the President will have enough delegates for a first- or second-ballot convention victory.

It is clear President Carter has been politically reborn by events in Iran and by Kennedy's faltering start, but to start predicting victory before the race begins is premature, to say the least.

JOSEPH SOBRAN:

I.Q. Tests Merely Show Modern Consciousness

WASHINGTON—It isn't often that an article in a scholarly journal provokes death threats.

But that is what happened in 1969 to Arthur Jensen, the Stanford psychologist who contended that intelligence is largely hereditary—and, in effect, that blacks are inherently less intelligent than whites.

Jensen has now published an 800-page book buttressing his original article, but few will read it. For that matter, few read the article in the first place.

But this is nothing new: of all the people who got upset about Darwin, few actually read him. I hope to read Darwin someday, but it's a good bet I won't read Jensen.

What is wrong, really, with Jensen's thesis? Some called him racist, but he was in effect arguing that nature herself is racist. (She certainly seems to be sexist.)

HE WASN'T calling for white supremacy. He was suggesting that we face the facts about the limits of social reform and remedial education programs.

On the face of it, what he says (or what he is said to have said) is plausible enough. Physical traits—height, health, strength—vary among individuals, families, races, species.

Intelligence has a physical basis that may vary, too. Breeders know how to produce intelligent strains of dogs. The notion that nature bestows human intelligence, like her other blessings, without regard to liberal prescriptions is more offensive to liberalism than to common sense.

But there is still plenty of room for doubt. Sociologist Brigitte Berger, who is far from being a doctrinaire liberal, suggests that the 15-point gap between average white and black IQs can be accounted for without reference to heredity.

WHAT IQ tests measure is "modern consciousness"—abstract cognitive skills involving reasoning and planning that aren't highly developed in traditional societies, but are indispensable to success in the capitalist West.

Before World War I many immigrants from Eastern Europe were given IQ tests, from which they were judged, en masse, feeble-minded. But their children went to night school and wound up doctors, economists and philosophers.

Blacks who have poured into Northern cities are likewise, in a sense, newcomers to modernity. It is too early to write them off on the basis of test scores.

What the Jensen affair did show is how many people are ready to jump to conclusions. Some were indecently eager to dismiss all blacks as morons. Physicist William Shockley went around preaching that we should offer dumb people cash incentives to let us sterilize them.

BUT THE other side set no new records for open-mindedness. Jensen and Richard Herrnstein, who basically agreed with him, suffered intense harassment and abuse from student radicals, with the tacit approval of many liberal faculty members.

The hereditary-IQ thesis constituted a violation of the sacred topic of Equality.

Who shall decide when doctors disagree? The races may or may not be roughly equal. But we should be suspicious of those who make up their minds too eagerly, and assert their opinions abusively.

In such a controversy, the side that has the truth probably has it by accident: it has been said that a bigot is a man who has no right to be right, even when he is right.

Those who are really capable of knowing may be few, and they aren't likely to insult people who reasonably and tentatively disagree with them. For too many semi-educated folk, equality is an article of faith masquerading as a scientific conclusion.

WHAT TROUBLES people about Jensen's theory is not only that it seems to derogate blacks, thereby making possible many forms of mischief and neglect. It also implies more general limits on human capacities, suggesting that all of us are more fated than we like to think.

And it's subversive: it threatens the value and livelihood of all those people we pay to "solve" intractable situations we have defined as social "problems."

It's too bad the question of black intelligence ever got so hot, but I suppose it's part of the price we pay for politicizing things that ought to be left to speculation.

Where there are so many private opinions, it is usually a mistake to impose an official doctrine.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Strike Up The Bland

OSKALOOSA, Iowa—A strangely bland Sen. Edward M. Kennedy failed to generate the excitement that his supporters here prayed for from his five-day swing through rural Iowa—a failure that menaces him today in the Iowa Democratic caucus but also clouds his entire challenge to President Carter.

Kennedy's late-starting, smoothly-functioning Iowa organization has nullified Carter's head start in the state's metropolitan areas.

But to counter Carter's advantage planted in rural counties by his 1976 saturation campaign, Kennedy needed a galvanic effect from his swing—to convince county Democrats suspicious of the Eastern seaboard liberal to devote a night in the dead of winter to opposing their party's incumbent President.

Kennedy did not approach that goal. In toning down his delivery to small-town Iowa standards, he became bland. By steering clear of long-held liberal positions, he lost conviction. Amid central Iowa's snows occurred the spectacle of a boring Kennedy campaign for President.

Even so, Kennedy's metropolitan strength, plus lack of enthusiasm for the President, may prevent a Carter runaway; bad country roads might even sneak Kennedy ahead.

But whatever happens here today, Teddy among the Hawkeyes showed he still presents no politically effective rationale for challenging the President.

When Kennedy arrived in Iowa Jan. 7, there were signs that the absent Carter's Iranian-spawned popularity, sustained by Afghanistan, was fading.

Carter operatives confessed sighting a Kennedy resurgence, fueled by two presidential actions: the Iowa debate cancellation and the Soviet grain embargo.

KENNEDY STRATEGISTS concurred, but called for help from their man, United Auto Workers (UAW) political operative Chuck Gifford told a friend that Kennedy had to electrify rural audiences.

Polk County (Des Moines) supervisor Tom Whitney, founder of Iowa's draft Kennedy movement, was more specific about what the candidate must provide to justify challenging the President: vigorous denunciation of Carter's grain embargo, more vigorous positions on Iran and Afghanistan.

The Kennedy swing drew full to overflowing audiences in Carter country. But many were there just to glimpse that glamorous and tragic couple, Ted and Joan Kennedy.

An example: Carroll, a socially conservative German-Catholic town hostile to Kennedy because of Chappaquiddick and abortion. Out of more than 400 who traveled icy highways to see Kennedy, his managers had hoped at least 200 would sign Kennedy pledge cards. The total was 175—pretty good, but possibly not good enough.

HOWEVER, THE real question is whether Kennedy energized those 175 signers to attend caucuses for him. He certainly did not follow Tom Whitney's advice on Iran and Afghanistan.

The senator and his strategists remain paralyzed on how to criticize the President in time of crisis. While telling audiences "we have been lurching from crisis to crisis," Kennedy quickly changed the subject.

Nor did he frontally attack the grain embargo as Carter backers had expected. Kennedy might have been thrown off by public criticism of his stand from an important Iowa supporter, Farmers Union leader Lowell Gose.

On the next morning with prices dropping in reopened commodity exchanges, Kennedy ignored the embargo in his first stop and addressed it but slushily the rest of the day.

What he did say was subdued and conversational, not faintly reminiscent of Kennedy's characteristic stentorian, dramatic style. Criticized for shrillness in early visits to Iowa, he was cautiously restraining himself.

WHEN HE briefly raised his voice in assaulting lack of "respect" for the U.S. today, he stopped abruptly, with this sheepish apology: "I'm getting all exercised here."

Kennedy surely did not represent himself as the liberal alternative to Carter (and did not even mention his famous health care program). But while forsaking the left, he could not embrace positions to Carter's right.

When questioned in Oskaloosa about defense spending, he replied: "Less (spending) is not better. More is not better. Better is better."

Such fence-straddling soured a home builder, a Democratic voter for 30 years looking for a more forceful alternative to Jimmy Carter. He attended Kennedy's Indianapolis stop uncertain whether to support Kennedy or a Republican.

After hearing Kennedy, he is now undecided between George Bush and Howard Baker.

THE MORE frequently heard criticism, against both Carter and Kennedy, in non-militaristic Iowa is inflation.

Pam Heiskov, a 37-year-old farm wife from Knoxville who sells real estate on the side, was concerned that "Kennedy likes too much government" but had not ruled him out.

After hearing Kennedy, she complained that he had not squarely addressed inflation. Mrs. Heiskov probably will not attend her precinct caucus today, one of the voters Kennedy failed to win traveling through Iowa.

JAY HARRIS:

The Next World...

WHAT SORT of world would it be had the U.S. not helped put the skids under the Shah of Iran? What sort of world would it be had we taken a strong stand in Angola, Ethiopia, on SALT II and any number of other things and places? And what sort of world will it be a year from now?

It is the last question which is of concern to today's world. And every American, not to mention millions in the Mideast, Europe, Africa, Asia...

It is no longer a world threatening to get out of control. It is already careening toward the very real possibility of disaster at an ever-increasing rate. But, it's still not too late to change the course of history, the fate of the Free World, of mankind.

THESE THOUGHTS came to mind the past few days as we once again turned back the pages of history, recent history.

There was the Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, in his island exile off Panama, bitterly defending his regime, his years of friendship with the U.S., his status as a ruler, his word against those who would now try him.

"Who are they to try me?" he asked of the Ayatollah Khomeini and his fanatical thugs. "They should be tried first."

And there was Jody Powell, President Carter's chief spokesman, saying in Washington that Iran is a nation "on the verge almost of disintegration...Nothing is the same from one day to the next."

The comment came only days after the President confessed that he had learned more in a week about Russian intentions from the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan than he had in his three years in the White House, if not his life.

AND THERE was the grim spectacle of U.S. newsmen being banished from Iran and Afghanistan as the Iron Curtain dropped on the fate of 50 American hostages and the Russian rape of another victim.

It all was a sad commentary on those who should know better, on both sides, but particularly those in high places of trust and leadership in the U.S.

For those who have read these pages the past few years, and especially the past four or five, much of what has just been recounted should have come as no surprise. The handwriting has been on the wall for those who wished to read its grim message. And the end is not yet in sight.

In the weeks and months ahead, much of what has taken place will seem tame in comparison. Not only is Iran on the brink of absolute anarchy, but it may be only a coup and a heartbeat away from falling prey to the Communists, from within and without.

IT HAS BEEN one year now since the Shah fled his homeland to take up an Odyssey that has touched millions in one way or another.

Today, the Ayatollah Khomeini and a gang of madmen go through the motions of running what once was a key anchor for Western defense in the Mideast, a barrier to Moscow's longtime dream of an access to the warm waters of the Persian Gulf.

Today, the madmen rule, but barely. "Student" terrorists defy Washington and Tehran. Iran's economic lifeblood, oil, has dwindled to a trickle. Thirty percent of all Iranians are out of work. The nation's once proud and finely equipped Army and Air Force are in a shambles. Various tribal ethnic groups are in open revolt.

And although the mobs still march and raise their fists "on cue" as they pay homage to their "Holy Man," the truth is that in the growing despair and confusion that is Iran today, it is the Marxists and fellow leftists who wait in the shadows. In a way, it was planned that way.

IT IS A strange world indeed from the one we knew even a year ago.

But, it was strange then, too, for those who faced the hard facts of history, for those who honestly found fault with Carter administration policies which were playing into the hands of this nation's avowed enemy, for those who wanted only the best for America.

We have no apologies for being critical of President Carter almost from the day he took office for adopting a "human rights" crusade, which however noble in intent, was weak in the hypocritical manner in which it was enforced. The trouble was we were talking to people who had no intention of listening.

It is not enough for the leader of the Free World to admit he is just now learning the true intent of Soviet Communism and its 60-year history of seeking to spread its atheistic doctrine across the world.

The Camelots of the world, by whatever name, all too often are achieved in theory but seldom in reality.

IT IS MOST ironic that some of the Shah's comments in his interview with David Frost say much more than the pious pronouncements of those who fault him.

Take his observation on the United Nations, for instance:

"The United Nations," he said, "has been impotent since the invasion of Hungary. They have been impotent on so many other invasions."

"They have been impotent in the case of 1 1/2 million people who have been slaughtered in Cambodia. They have been impotent against all those boat people, as you call them, refugees from Vietnam. On these things they can't do anything. On a single person, defenseless, for instance like me, then they will be strong."

He could have added Czechoslovakia to the list. And Iran and Afghanistan. And with Marshal Tito ailing, will Yugoslavia be next?

At long last, the American people, if not their leaders, have awakened to the danger they face. The illusions, as well as the delusions, of yesterday are gone, but not forgotten. The question is: What sort of world will it be a year from now? And what are we prepared to do to help shape it?

"DIDN'T THE artist Picasso write a play?" inquires a customer. One, "Desire Caught by the Tail." In 1941, maybe it's a bad translation. Caught by the tail? It's sort of like "Splendor in the Potato Chips" or "Fiddler on the Fire Escape." Or "The Man with the Golden Shinbone."

It's also true that scientists have successfully executed brain surgery on cockroaches.

Dear Joyce: I'm now considering trying to get a student loan but am not sure how to go about it.

— K.C., San Antonio, Texas.
Fortunately, there've been some changes in the federal Guaranteed Student Loan Program — the program any student can use — which makes borrowing a little bit easier than before.

In the early '70s, the GSLP was responsible for $1 billion in loan funds annually; last year the figure rose to $2.8 billion, and this year it may leap to nearly $4 billion, according to Edward A. Fox, president of the Student Loan Marketing Association.

The GSLP loans are made by commercial lenders who voluntarily take part in the program, including banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, colleges and some states. Usually the loans are guaranteed by states or private non-profit guarantee agencies but in some cases are directly insured by the federal government.

Four new aspects of the program have helped boost lending activity:

•Most important, the ceiling has been lifted on the special allowance paid to lenders by the federal government. Although the student borrower never pays more than 7 percent interest, the federal subsidy — now about 9 percent — brings the lenders' yield to 16 percent, the subsidy fluctuates with the money market.

•Most states now have guarantee agencies to run the loan program; this decentralization permits lenders to work with state administrators rather than the Washington bureaucracy, which geographically makes doing business easier.

•Collection procedures have been beefed up, making lenders more willing to participate.

•The Student Loan Marketing Association, also known as Sallie Mae, is now functioning as a bankers' bank. Created by Congress in 1972, Sallie Mae buys 15 to 20 percent of outstanding loans from lenders, providing the capital for them to make fresh loans.

Terms of the Guaranteed Student Loan Program are liveable. You can borrow up to $2,500 per year as an undergraduate, or $5,000 as a graduate student — with a total of $7,500 for undergraduate study, and up to $15,000 for undergraduate and graduate education combined.

The federal government pays the interest while you're in school. When repayment begins, nine to 12 months after graduation, you pay only 7 percent interest. Monthly payments can be as low as $30 with up to 10 years to wipe out your debt.

My next column gives tips on finding a loan.

Teacher Dismissed Following Pot Charge

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Teacher Bill Adams was fired after being charged with possession of marijuana, although he was neither prosecuted nor convicted. These days, he plays violin in a posh restaurant while his union fights for his job.

"All the publicity attached to his arrest would have done great harm to his teaching ability," says Cecil Waldron, assistant superintendent of Lee County schools of Adams' firing.

Waldron maintains that because students are not allowed to have marijuana, teachers shouldn't either, and to keep him on would be tacit approval of marijuana.

Ron Meyer, general counsel for the Florida Teaching Profession-National Education Association, charges the Lee County School Board was unreasonable in firing the 36-year-old Adams.

"We set up a mechanism to prosecute people, and then the school board says, 'Even though we're not trained and competent to adjudicate, we don't like the results of that process so we're going to make our own decision.' It's unreasonable," said Meyer.

The teachers' union has hired attorney Phil Padovano, who last week filed an appeal to the state Board of Education. Being sought are Adams' reinstatement and back pay dating from his April 2 suspension. He was fired last month after 10 years as a music teacher.

Meyer says the union has won several cases in which teachers were fired, including one stemming from an indecent exposure charge and a case in which a teacher fired a shot in self-defense.

"In no case have facts been so favorable to the teacher's case as in the Adams case," Meyer said.

The dispute began in April 1979 after Lee County sheriff's deputies pursuing youths suspected of vandalism at a construction site looked into a greenhouse in Adams' yard. They reported they found 50 marijuana plants inside.

Adams was not at home at the time, but deputies took his wife into custody. When the teacher arrived at police headquarters to check on his wife, he was charged with possession of marijuana.

Prosecutors declined to press charges against the couple.

"The major argument is that the evidence was seized in violation of Fourth Amendment rights — illegal search and seizure," Padovano says of why no charges were pressed.

"Also, they never proved the legal elements of possession — that he knew about its existence, and that he had the ability to control it," Padovano says.

Adams and his wife, who are now divorced, were renting the property last April. Adams has since moved to another home in this resort community of 45,000 people.

A hearing officer for the Professional Practices Council, which has not revoked Adams' teaching license, concluded that because the evidence was illegally obtained, it couldn't be used against Adams.

"It is an extremely interesting question legally," Waldron admits. But the school officials think their decision to fire Adams doesn't have to be tied to court action.

Adams, who reports he's making more money playing the violin than he did as a teacher at Cypress Lake Middle School and High School, says he has received dozens of supporting telephone calls and letters from students and parents.

"I realize this is no longer Bill Adams vs. the State of Florida. This is an issue," he says. "I really believe my right to work is being denied and I'm willing to take whatever steps are necessary to get my job back... I'm also anxious to get back to teaching."

State Education Commissioner Ralph Turlington will name a hearing officer to hear arguments from both sides, then present them to the governor and Cabinet, which comprise the state Board of Education. If they rule against Adams, his attorneys plan to go to federal court.

Ex-Officer, Attorney Vie For Congressional Seat

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Former state Rep. John Porter of Evanston and Glencoe attorney Robert Weinberger face a showdown in a special election Tuesday for the congressional seat vacated by U.S. Rep. Abner Mikva.

Porter, a Republican, in 1978 lost narrowly to Mikva who recently left the office for a seat on the U.S. Court of Appeals.

While Porter has been considered a favorite in this race, his Democratic opponent appears to be gaining support.

"I'd say that with a special election like this, the turnout will be low enough so that John Porter should not rent a house in Washington before the votes are counted," said State Rep. Alan Greiman, D-Skokie.

Presley's Physician Kept 'Poor Records'

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A member of the Tennessee Board of Medical Examiners says Elvis Presley's physician, who lost his license for three months for overprescribing drugs, was a good doctor but kept poor records.

The five-member board voted unanimously to suspend the license of Dr. George Nichopoulos for three months and place him on probation for three years.

"Personally, it's my feeling that there's no evidence that Dr. Nichopoulos was negligent in his care of the patient," Dr. Howard Foreman of Nashville, said at the conclusion of the hearing Saturday.

Foreman, the board secretary, said he didn't like the way the drugs — amphetamines, painkillers and barbiturates — were handled.

"There was absolutely no record kept," he said. "I've come to the conclusion that Dr. Nichopoulos is not a so-called 'bad doctor.' He got careless. I feel very strongly that in no way should this man's license be revoked. This man is too valuable to his community."

lived with a man two months before she married him.

Mrs. Thompson, a 34-year-old veteran of 11 years of teaching in Washburn classrooms, says her return under court order after eight weeks should pose no problems with her students.

"I don't think it'll affect anything with them," she said. "We've got each other's respect."

School officials, however, see things differently. Raymond Timmons, principal of the elementary school in the southwest Missouri town of 250, said some parents have told him they don't want their children in Mrs. Thompson's class.

"Right now there are just a few, but we may have more," Timmons said.

Mrs. Thompson said she had told Timmons she was living with Cal Thompson in nearby Purdy, Mo., and she informed school officials when they were married on Nov. 19. Four days later she received a letter from the school board informing her "of the charge of immorality being brought against you," and suspending her from teaching.

She challenged her suspension and the Missouri law it was based on, saying the law is vague and denies her constitutional guarantees of privacy, free association and due process.

On Friday, U.S. District Court Judge Russell G. Clark ruled in Kansas City that there was no evidence that Mrs. Thompson's conduct made her unfit to teach.

Man Critical After Shooting

NORTH BERGEN, N.J. (AP) — A man who police say shot and fatally wounded his girlfriend and her stepfather before turning the gun on himself lapsed into a coma Sunday, officials said.

James Zampetti, about 30 years old, of North Bergen, shot himself in the head Saturday night after police chased him from a parking lot, police said.

The shootings occurred outside the home of Zampetti's girlfriend, Patty Jane Hecks, also about 30, according to police.

Officers said the woman's stepfather,

John Germain, a 60-year-old florist, was shot in the chest after he attempted to break up a fight between Zampetti and Miss Hecks. Zampetti then shot Miss Hecks twice, once in the head, police said.

Germain was pronounced dead at the scene, and Miss Hecks died later at Palisades General Hospital in North Bergen.

Zampetti was transferred to the Jersey City Medical Center, where he was listed in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care unit, a nursing supervisor said.

U.S. Fears Increase In Mid-East Nuclear Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Middle East, already a tinderbox of rivalry for land and oil, may become infinitely more dangerous in the 1980s because of the proliferation of nuclear weapons, according to a growing consensus of experts.

"This is the area of the world where there is more nuclear technology than anywhere outside of the major powers. And it is one of the most unstable parts of the world. It's horrifying," former British Prime Minister James Callaghan told reporters at a breakfast here recently.

The Carter administration came to power with a three-pronged strategy to prevent nuclear proliferation. But each initiative has, at least partially, failed.

The first initiative was an effort to prevent or delay the advent of plutonium as a commercial fuel in nuclear reactors. The present generation of nuclear reactors uses uranium that has been "enriched" beyond its natural state to sustain a nuclear reaction, but not enough to use in a bomb.

Plutonium is a byproduct of commercial nuclear reactors, but it requires highly sophisticated technology to extract it from the used fuel. Plutonium, once extracted, can be readily used in nuclear weapons.

One State Department official estimated that a nation with access to plutonium would need only about 200 people — such as engineers and machinists — and a rudimentary factory, to make a bomb.

The small amounts of plutonium which now exist in the world are closely guarded by the nuclear powers. But the amount in existence will rise dramatically as the world begins to reprocess spent uranium fuel for use in reactors and in the new generation of "breeder" reactors, which use plutonium fuel and actually create more of it as the reaction continues.

The Carter administration, in a study called the International Nuclear Fuel Cycle Evaluation, hoped to persuade other industrialized nations at least to delay the advent of the plutonium reactor.

Instead, the evaluation group has completed a draft report which sources say argues strongly that plutonium reactors must inevitably come onto the scene in large numbers in the next two decades. The report is due to be made public next month.

"Countries like Japan, France and Germany just see no alternative to plutonium to meet their energy needs," explained one administration official.

But the official, asking not to be identified, said the presence of large quantities of plutonium in world commerce will immeasurably increase the chances of nuclear proliferation.

The second administration initiative was the imposition of penalties against countries which refused to allow international inspection of their nuclear laboratories.

The first country to suffer the penalty was Pakistan; military and economic aid to that country was cut off early last year. But with Soviet troops on the Afghan border, the administration plans to ask Congress for a waiver to allow massive aid to Pakistan.

That makes it more likely that the administration will swallow its misgivings about India's nuclear program and continue to ship fuel to India, despite that country's refusal to allow inspection.

Finally, the administration planned to set an example of superpower restraint in nuclear weapons for the Third World to emulate. The centerpiece was to be the SALT II treaty and a comprehensive test ban treaty. But hopes for either are negligible in the current world climate.

The repercussions of that failure will be felt this summer in Madrid, when the nations which signed the 1968 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty meet to review its first 10 years. They are expected to castigate the superpowers for failing to keep their end of the treaty bargain: superpower progress toward disarmament in return for disavowal of nuclear weapons by smaller countries.

"It's going to be a damn mess," one State Department official said of that conference.

With their non-proliferation effort in disarray, U.S. officials see these countries as the most likely Middle East nations to go nuclear in the 1980s.

Israel: If the Israelis do not already have a bomb, administration officials believe they would quickly put one together. They do not allow inspection of all their nuclear laboratories. Israel may be restrained from testing a bomb by fears that a test would increase its isolation in the world and spur its enemies in the Arab world to develop their own bomb.

Pakistan: Officials believe Pakistan has been having some difficulties in its nuclear program and may still be three years away from exploding a device.

Iraq: Officials say Iraq has an active program of nuclear research, but there is little evidence that it has begun a determined effort to build a bomb. "Iraq wants to be ready to build one quickly if other countries in the region get one," an official said.

Libya: The Libyans, one official said, "are trying to buy a bomb." They have no technological base, but lots of oil money.

Doctors Amputate Leg Of Yugoslav Official

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Doctors amputated the left leg of President Tito Sunday after a circulation blockage "jeopardized life," the official Tanjug news agency announced.

The 87-year-old Yugoslav leader and elder statesman of the non-aligned movement "bore the operation well," said a three-sentence medical immediate post-operative course is normal," Tito's doctors were quoted as saying.

The news agency did not indicate how much of the leg was amputated and an official elaboration was not expected Sunday night. Details of Tito's condition, such as temperature and blood pressure, were also withheld.

The operation was performed about noon local time, or 5 a.m. CST, in a hospital in the northern city of Ljubljana, where Tito had been undergoing treatment for circulation problems in his left leg over the past eight days.

A Tanjug dispatch said: "Today at noon the left leg of President Tito was amputated because of heavy damage to the arteries which brought stoppage of circulation and speeded up devitalization of tissue of the leg and jeopardized life. President Tito took the operation well. The immediate post-operative course is normal." The reference to devitalization of tissue supported earlier reports that doctors feared if they did not operate quickly gangrene poisoning might set in.

Speculation about a possible amputation increased after doctors announced last Monday that surgery performed the day before had failed to correct Tito's ailment.

The announcement followed a week of speculation and rumors over the condition of Tito, who since the 1940s has held this turbulent nation together largely through the force of his own personality.

Belgrade was awash with rumors of troop movements, military alerts and other precautions, although the capital appeared calm. Because of Tito's independent brand of communism and his antagonism toward the Kremlin, his illness had raised speculation about whether the Soviets would take any anti-Yugoslav action if Tito were to die.

Japanese Police Investigate Espionage

TOKYO (AP) — Police made an unprecedented search of Japan's self-defense force headquarters on Sunday for evidence against a retired major general and two officers arrested on suspicion of passing secret information to the Russians.

Police said they seized more than 100 documents and notebooks from the desks and lockers of the two officers, both employees of the defense agency's intelligence division.

First Lt. Eichi Kashii and Warrant Officer Tsunetoshi Oshima were arrested Friday on suspicion of passing classified information to their former superior, retired Maj. Gen. Yukihisa Miyanaga, who in turn allegedly turned the material over to a Soviet contact. Miyanaga was also arrested.

No formal charges have been made against the three men by the Tokyo prosecutors office.

Police, who made their first raid of the defense force offices since the 260,000-strong military force was formed in 1954, reportedly discovered memos recording meetings between the two junior officers and Miyanaga and envelopes used in carrying the stolen documents.

Most of the information allegedly passed to the Russians is thought to concern data about the military situation in China and socialist countries.

However, the Yomiuri Shimbun newspaper reported Sunday that Miyanaga has hinted to police that information about the strategies and stationing of U.S. Forces in Japan and South Korea was also included.

It was suspected that Miyanaga had acted as a "mole" for the Russians in the defense agency for as long as 10 years.

Police said they have a confession from Miyanaga, 58, saying he gave the documents to Col. Yuri Kozlov, an air and military attache at the Soviet embassy and his predecessor, Col. Pyotr I. Ry-balkin. Kozlov left Japan for Moscow Saturday, hours after the spy scandal broke. Embassy officials denied he was involved in the case but refused to allow him to appear voluntarily for police questioning. They said Kozlov was returning to Moscow to visit his seriously ill mother.

According to police, Miyanaga met Kozlov at predetermined spots in Tokyo about once a month where they exchanged identical envelopes carrying the documents and money payments.

The Asahi Shimbun newspaper said Miyanaga told police he was given about $1,680 for himself and $420 for each of the two carriers every time he made a delivery.

It is still not known why Miyanaga, who opened an electric appliance store in Tokyo after his retirement in 1974, allegedly began spying activities. But several Japanese newspapers claimed he was brainwashed while a prisoner of war in Siberia after World War II.

One police source said the Russian-speaking Miyanaga has told investigators only "I did something which couldn't be helped."

However, other news reports said police have had Miyanaga and Kozlov under observation for the past year.

Belligerent Bundy Says Jury Already Convinced Of His Guilt

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A belligerent Theodore R. Bundy says the jury has already made up its mind as opening arguments begin today on charges that he kidnapped and murdered a 12-year-old girl.

Bundy's last jury convicted him on two murder charges and concurred in his death sentences.

That time, the dapper, handsome

Bundy was accused of stalking into a quiet Chi Omega sorority house in Tallahassee and clubbing five sleeping Florida State University coeds. Two, Margaret Bowman and Lisa Levy, both of St. Petersburg, were strangled.

This time, Bundy is accused of killing Kimberly Diane Leach of Lake City in North Florida about 100 miles east of Tallahassee.

Prosecutors say Miss Leach was lured away from school by a stranger, three weeks after the Chi Omega killings.

Her body was left in an abandoned pig sty and was not found for months. A coroner said she died of "an overwhelming, tearing type of injury" to the neck.

Mostly because of the publicity Bundy has received over the past few years, it took 11 days of work by Circuit Judge

Wallace Jopling, prosecutors and defense attorney Victor Africano to seat an Orlando jury.

Bundy, at 33 still looking like the law student he once was in Utah — where he was convicted of attempted kidnapping — exploded with objections on the 10th day.

"Use your mind, judge," Bundy exclaimed. "Look at the people the state struck down — people who didn't know about this case."

Four of the 12 jurors in this trial have daughters or granddaughters near the age of Miss Leach. An alternate, Vickie Kouture, 19, belongs to the same Chi Omega sorority as the Tallahassee victims. But alternates just sit in on trials, and do not take part unless one of the 12 original jurors must be replaced.

Some of the jurors said they knew part of Bundy's past. One, David M. Thomas, knew of the conviction in the sorority killings and even agreed with the death penalty Bundy received.

That conviction and sentencing came in Miami. The trial had been moved there after Circuit Judge Edward D. Cowart decided he could not seat a fair jury in Tallahassee.

It is not yet clear in this trial if Bundy will take an active part in his own defense, as he did in Miami, questioning jurors, grilling witnesses and objecting with fever to moves by the prosecutor. Cowart later commended him and said he would have made a good lawyer. That was after Bundy had been convicted.

Jopling had already moved Bundy's latest trial twice. It never got under way in Lake City, Miss Leach's hometown, before Jopling agreed it would be impossible to seat an impartial jury.

He then moved it into the next county, nestled in a huge bend in the Suwannee River, and set up court in Live Oak, which is smaller and even more rural than Lake City. But people there were also aware of Bundy, and many said they had already formed opinions about him.

After three days of trying, Jopling agreed to defense demands and moved the trial to the Orange County Courthouse in Orlando.

Between court sessions, Bundy is under close guard in the ninth jail he has stayed in since his first arrest, on attempted kidnap charges in Salt Lake City in 1974. He was later convicted.

Bundy, who was born in a home for unwed mothers in Vermont but grew up in Tacoma, Wash., after being adopted, was questioned in as many as 25 unsolved murders of young women after his Utah arrest.

The FBI, which briefly had him on its most-wanted list, once said he was a suspect in as many as 35 slayings — a figure the FBI later said could not be substantiated.

He was charged in one — the strangulation of Caryn Campbell, a Detroit nurse who was on a ski vacation in Aspen, Colo., in the winter of 1975. Bundy, held at different times in two jails in Colorado, escaped on New Year's Eve 1977, and eventually made his way to Tallahassee, hoping to get lost in a campus atmosphere.

A chance encounter with a policeman in Pensacola, Fla., on Feb. 13, 1978, led to his later being charged in the Tallahassee killings.

Sex Slaying Jury Selection To Begin

Rockford, Ill. (UPI) — Local attorneys say defense lawyers for John Wayne Gacy, who goes on trial next week for the sex slayings of 33 boys and young men, may wish they were back in Chicago when they start picking jurors.

Gacy, a 37-year-old building contractor, is charged with more slayings than any single person in U.S. history.

He is accused of luring dozens of young men to his northwest suburban Chicago home, having sex with them, killing them, and burying most of them in a makeshift graveyard in the dirt crawlspace beneath his livingroom floor.

Because of intense publicity in Cook County, jury selection was transferred to Winnebago County and is scheduled to begin next Monday in Rockford, 80 miles northwest of Chicago.

The dozen jurors plus four alternates will be taken back to Chicago for trial — an unprecedented action in Illinois.

War Veteran Questioned In Murders

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A Vietnam veteran charged with killing his wife was being questioned about at least three other murders, police said Sunday.

William Wayne Gilbert, 30, of Los Lunas, was charged Saturday with first-degree murder in the shooting death of Carol V. Gilbert, 30, whose body was found in the kitchen of her home, said District Attorney Tom Esquibel of Los Lunas.

Gilbert, a construction worker, was being held in the Bernalillo County jail.

Police said he was being questioned in the deaths of newlyweds Ken Johnson, 25, and his wife Noel, 21, who were found shot to death in their home Friday morning, and Barbara S. McMullan, 24, an Albuquerque model who disappeared Jan. 8.

Georgia Stevens, public information officer for the Albuquerque Police Department, said Gilbert led officers to Miss McMullan's body.

"She was apparently strangled, but we do not have any medical investigator's report on her," Miss Stevens said. "The body has been removed to the medical investigator's office."

Miss Stevens said Gilbert also talked to police about two other killings, but said the descriptions he gave had to be checked with records.

"One appears to be a woman who was killed around Los Lunas. The other appears to be a killing here in Albuquerque," she said. "But we're not sure. We just don't have enough information yet."

Police would not comment Sunday except to say officers were checking the information Gilbert had given them.

"No new information will be released until Monday," said Operations Supervisor Monda Mena. "They are checking on various leads."

Sgt. Richard Ness of the Albuquerque police violent crimes section said the Johnsons were found in the front bedroom of their home, but officers were not sure if that's where they were killed.

He said there was no evidence of a struggle in the house. Both had been shot several times, Ness said.

"Burglary does not appear to be the motive because there does not appear to be anything missing," he said.

The couple had been dead for several hours before they were found, he said.

Housing Patterns Reflect Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The growth of rural population is illustrated by the nation's housing patterns, reports a new study by the Census Bureau.

According to the study, based on 1977 figures, housing built since 1970, exclusive of actual farm homes, made up 26 percent of the housing stock in rural areas. In cities the figure for homes built since 1970 was 15 percent.

The median value of these newer homes was $51,500 in cities and $44,900 in the countryside.

Farm homes, though, proved considerably older than the non-farm houses sharing the countryside with them. More than half of the farm houses in use had been built before 1940, the study said.

Nationally, the survey listed 82.4 million housing units — homes and apartments — in the United States. Of these, 70 percent were in urban areas and 30 percent in a rural setting.

Cook County Circuit Judge Louis B. Garippo chose Winnebago County for the jury selection site because a defense publicity analysis showed it had less newspaper coverage of the case than five other possible sites.

But when defense attorneys begin questioning the 300 prospective jurors Winnebago County authorities have set aside specifically for the Gacy trial, they may wonder why they left Cook County.

"If I had a choice of choosing a criminal jury in Cook County or Winnebago County, I would beg, steal or borrow to have it chosen in Cook County," said Bruce Erickson, a former assistant Winnebago County public defender.

"Those defense attorneys are going to take one look at the crew cuts and flat tops and wonder, 'What am I doing here?'"

Many Winnebago County residents are actually former Cook County natives who choose to flee the crime and congestion of the metropolitan area.

Several machine tool factories are located in Rockford, the state's second largest city. Farmers also make up a large segment of the county's population.

A factory worker is going to see one thing — queer, fag — and you can talk to him 'til you're blue in the face and he's going to see one thing — Guilty," Erickson said.

"It's so contrary to their lifestyle. We're a pretty fundamentalist, puritan community. Just look at every corner and count the churches."

"Certainly the jurors out here are probably more conservative than they are in a larger, more populous county," said Bob McWilliams, a former Winnebago County assistant state's attorney.

Robert Gemignani, first assistant Winnebago County state's attorney, said he sees no difficulty in choosing an impartial jury in Rockford, although the procedure may mean extra headaches in arranging for Gacy's security.

"These people here are fair," Gemignani said. "But I do think you would get a broader spectrum of individuals in Chicago than here."

McWilliams said many businessmen and professionals may try to avoid Gacy jury duty because they can not afford to be away from work and stay sequestered for six weeks to three months.

Defense attorneys have said they will use an insanity defense if necessary to prove Gacy innocent.

Seminole Clubs Host Day-Long Conference Of District Lions, Lionesses

SEMINOLE (Special) — "I feel considering the weather and the ball game, we had an outstanding turnout and an outstanding Mid-Winter Conference," N.K. Snodgrass, District Governor of Lions International 2-T2 said at the conclusion of the district's annual January confab Sunday.

More than 200 Lions and Lionesses attended the day-long meeting, hosted by the Seminole Noon and Seminole Evening Lions Clubs.

Highlight of the day was then noon luncheon, at which time the fifth annual vest auction brought in $3,000 for Crippled Childrens Camp at Kerrville. "I'm extremely delighted," said Past District Governor Hack Lasater of Slaton, who personally buys the Texas vest and trades for pins at the yearly International Convention to sell here. "In five years we have brought in just over $13,000," and jokingly added, "and that's more money that I made last year!"

Glen Crawford, executive director of Crippled Childrens Camp, was the luncheon speaker, concentrating mainly on the Adult Blind Program at the camp. "Ours is an exemplary program, which has been developed by many years of hard work. People come from all over the world to see how it operates. And this, I feel, speaks well of the Texas Lions."

The Sound Connection of Seminole High School, under the direction of Fred Mays, provided the luncheon entertainment.

Six candidates announced their intentions for District offices for 1980-81, with the elections to come at the District Convention in Levelland May 15-17. Billy R. Fisher of Lubbock Redbud and J.D. McAmis of Lamesa Evening will vie for the one directorship of Crippled Childrens Camp which is available, Jerry Hart of Seagraves and Joe Randolph of Shallowater are candidates for Eye Bank Board of Directors, Ron Betenbough of the Lubbock Club is a Lt. Gov. candidate and Marshall Cooper of Whiteface was nominated for Governor. All candidates must be nominated by their home clubs 30 days prior to the district convention. There are three Eye Bank Director spots still open.

Gov. Snodgrass, a member of the Lubbock Southwest, announced that 2-T2 has been twinned with District 334-B of Japan and that International Understanding Chairman W.C. "Bill" Boone of Lubbock Hub has Clubs interested in twinning with those in this district.

Seminars were conducted for the President and Secretaries as well as the Zone Chairman and Deputy District Governors during the morning activities.

CCC Director Diane Howell of Lubbock Law Enforcement announced that the 73 Clubs of 2-T2 has donated $7,735 to the Kerrville camps already this year and that 8 clubs (New Deal, Levelland Evening, Shallowater, Brownfield Evening, Snyder, Ralls, Olton and Lamesa Evening) have joined the 100 Per Cent Clubs donating $10 per member. The Wilson Club received a special plaque for being 100% for 15 straight years.

Marshall Cooper also reported that $8,212 has been donated to Girlstown, U.S.A. at Whiteface this year in money alone, not counting numerous work projects and improvements made by Lions Clubs. He also passes out 9 life memberships, which raised the total of 138 since the program was launched two years ago. Life memberships went to Arnold Brown, Randall Wright, C.A. Parker and Bill Simon of Levelland, Howard Head of Littlefield, Eugene Kerr of Lubbock Southwest, Jack Hudson and Don Tyler of Lubbock Industrial and Joe B. McDams of Plainview Noon received his second life membership.

Eye Bank Board of Directors announced that March 17-22 would be "White Camp week" in Texas by proclaiming of Gov. Bill Clements, who will make the announcement at a special kickoff banquet in Austin on March 15.

It was also announced that a Levelland Lioness Club will be chartered Saturday Feb. 16.

The top 27 Clubs in the District Contest were also needed. The top five, with point totals are: Lubbock Southwest, 41,000; Levelland Evening, 35,700; Lubbock Redbud, 27,900; Snyder, 27,000; and Lubbock Law Enforcement, 24,800.

The contest runs through March 31.

Reception To Honor Tech Coordinator

M. VaVerne Patrick, Texas Tech University's first travel services coordinator, will be honored at a reception from 2 to 4 p.m. in room 168 of Drane Hall Friday.

Mrs. Patrick will retire Jan. 31 after 26 years of service at the university. Colleagues and other friends are invited.

Mrs. Patrick joined the Texas Tech staff as an assistant cashier. After less than a year she became a bookkeeping machine operator and, after three years, was named supervisor in Accounts Payable.

When she was made coordinator for the Office of Travel Services, she worked alone. After five years, however, the job grew so that additional help was required. The office now has a staff of three with one part-time employee.

Mrs. Patrick said her husband, Jim L. Patrick, who has been employed by Southwest Public Service Co. for 39 years, will retire in February.

The couple has three children, Mrs. Bennie Brigham of Dallas, Mrs. Fred Evans of Lake Ransom Canyon and Diane Patrick of Lubbock.

Short Announces Area Appearances

Sen. E.L. Short, Tahoka Democrat, plans several area appearances this week including accompanying Gov. Bill Clements on a tour today of Texas Tech University.

Short will address American Legion Post 575 at 7 p.m. Tuesday and the Tahoka Rotary Club at noon Thursday.

The senator will accompany a group of solar power experts Wednesday to visit the solar project at Crosbyton.

Short will speak at 7:30 p.m. Friday to the Lubbock Humane Society meeting at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, Room 111.

He also will attend the Seminole Chamber of Commerce banquet Saturday.

Magazine Surveys Party Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of Republican leaders shows most think Ronald Reagan will win their party's presidential nomination but that George Bush is actually the personal favorite of more GOP leaders.

The survey, conducted by the magazine U.S. News & World Report, questioned members of the Republican National Committee and central GOP committees in the states.

It showed that 54 percent of those replying to a question on who would win the nomination chose Reagan. Bush was second with 23 percent, John Connally had 11 percent, Gerald Ford 4 percent, and Howard Baker 3 percent.

But when the question was one of personal preference, Bush was the choice of 39 percent, Reagan had 25 percent, Connally 16 percent, and Baker 6 percent.

In both cases, a small percentage chose other candidates.

South Plains Genealogical Society Plans Workshop

Members of the South Plains Genealogical Society will have a day-long workshop Tuesday at Mahon Library for persons researching family histories.

Society spokesman Chris Gelin said the research assistance program will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Dr. David Murrach, director of the Texas Tech University Southwest Collection, will give a luncheon program speech on "The Cattle Kings of Texas."

Participants are encouraged to bring a sack lunch, Mrs. Gelin said.

Israel Insists Upon Autonomy Plan

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel announced Sunday it will insist that its plan for Palestinian autonomy be the basis for negotiations when talks resume with Egypt later this month, even though Egypt has rejected the proposal.

"There is no breakdown and no crisis" despite Egypt's rejection of the 26-page plan last week, Cabinet Secretary Arieh Naor told reporters. "Everything is going on." Naor refused to say if Israel would modify the proposal, but said it "is on the agenda. It must be discussed and negotiated."

The Israeli proposal calls for limited self-government by Palestinians in the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza Strip, with Palestinians in charge of health, transportation and local budgets. Israel, which captured the areas in the 1967 war, would keep full control over foreign affairs, security and natural resources. Other functions would be subject to Israeli supervision.

Egypt did not present a detailed program, but has insisted that the Palestinians be given broad legislative and executive powers. Egypt also wants Jerusalem included in the autonomy scheme, but Israel has refused, saying the city must remain as the capital of the Jewish state.

Under the Egyptian-Israeli peace pact signed last March, a plan for Palestinian self-rule is to be concluded by May. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat suggested again Saturday that a summit meeting, to include himself, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and President Carter, might be needed to break the deadlock.

In other Middle East developments Sunday:

Israeli authorities said a man shot to death by an Israeli army patrol as he fled into Lebanon was an Arab guerrilla from the Gaza Strip. A military spokesman said the man was wanted by police in connection with bombings in Tel Aviv's outdoor Carmel Market. Soldiers pursued the man into Lebanon from northern Israel and shot him after he opened fire on the patrol, the spokesman said.

In Tel Aviv, Israel's opposition Labor Party reaffirmed Shimon Peres as its leader and candidate for prime minister in 1981. Peres, the former defense minister who lost the 1977 election to Begin, was endorsed by a vote of 457 to 220. His backers engineered the vote a year in advance to head off a drive by former Foreign Minister Yigal Alon to take over the party leadership.

Kuwait's Minister of State Abdul Aziz Hussein said his country has complained to the International Monetary Fund about Egypt's freezing $1 billion in Kuwaiti funds.

Dallas Murder Rate Increases Alarmingly During Past Year

DALLAS (AP) — Mind your manners, watch your step and guard your life in Dallas.

They're dying here — murdered at a bewildering rate.

Friends cut down friends, relatives kill relatives and divorce by pistol has increased at an alarming rate.

Police say 308 persons were murdered here in 1979, a staggering 33 percent jump over the gruesome statistics of a year ago. And the new figures for the city's most murderous year make Dallas the eighth most homicidal city in the nation.

"This right here ain't nothing but Tombstone Territory," said Kay Smith, a 19-year-old resident of one of Dallas' deadliest neighborhoods.

"For a while I was afraid to stick my head out the door, but you get used to it," she told the Dallas Times Herald.

Police say 27 persons were killed last year within blocks of Miss Smith's East Dallas apartment.

It's a neighborhood of low-status workers, many struggling to pay their rent on minimum-wage jobs.

"But the people living around here have no hope. And I don't know what's going to give them hope," said Ernest Wallace, a Sunday school teacher at a nearby church.

"They see how other people live. They see the things that money can buy. They want those things too and they can't get them with a minimum wage," said Wallace.

Bobby Brooks manages the Park South apartments where Miss Smith lives. He said the tension rises and falls there perceptibly.

"Sometimes I can walk through there and I can feel it. Or I come back over here at night and can see it," said Brooks.

Most of the violence at the apartments occurs in the rear of the complex where James Fields, 18, lives. He said residents there call it simply "the back" and that most of them carry guns.

"A lot of killings happen here and we're just trying to survive," said Fields. "This isn't a city street, man. I mean, this is 'the back.' By the time the police get here, it's all over."

The neighborhood may be the deadliest, but no area of this thriving Sunbelt city is immune to the bloody violence.

According to statistics compiled by the Dallas Times Herald, a Dallas resident has a greater chance of being murdered than a resident of New York, Chicago or Detroit.

The seven cities with higher murder rates included Atlanta, St. Louis, Cleveland, New Orleans, Newark, Houston and Miami.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology Prof. Arnold Barnett studied the murder risks in the nation's 50 largest cities.

He said at the current murder rate in Dallas, 36 per 100,000 population, a child born in the city today stands a one in 40 chance of being murdered if he lives here 40 years.

For males, who accounted for 77 percent of the victims in 1979, the chances increase to one in 25. And for blacks, who accounted for 58 percent of the victims last year, the chances soar even higher.

COYOTE TRAPPERS — Coyote trapper Paul Brunson scratches his dog while his brother Perry brushes down a coyote pelt. The brothers say the prices they are getting for the skins will not make them a living. But, a Dallas furrier said fine, full-length coyote coats sell for up to $8,000. (AP Laser-Photo)

Trappers Help Cattle, Sheep Raisers With Coyote Problem

OROGRADE, N.M. (AP) — Paul Brunson, his arms red to the elbows with blood from a coyote he was skinning, paused for a moment to talk about the economics of coyote trapping. "I'm going into the hole because I can't get any more than they're paying right now, said Brunson, 54. Brunson and his brother, Perry, trap coyotes — wily prairie hunters that are the bane of those men who make their livings raising cattle and sheep on windswept Texas rangeland. Early last week, government scientists, environmentalists and representatives of the livestock industry met in Austin for a "summit conference" on the coyote problem in the Lone Star State. The livestock industry places losses to coyotes at approximately $21 million in 1979. The Brunsons represent a partial solution, but the brothers say business isn't good even though coyote coats sell for up to $8,000. Paul checks a line of 110 traps daily along an 80-mile dirt road in this southern New Mexico desert area, near El Paso. Perry says, "During the past few years it's been very profitable. But, coyote skins that last year we were getting $65 to $80 for, this year we're getting $5 to $15. "It's not a profitable occupation anymore to trap these coyotes." Seymour Kafoff, director of a Fort Worth fur shop, says coyote fur is "fashionable," although coyote fur sales "are just a small fraction of the fur business" and "nowhere near" the sales of mink, fox and other animals.

Charles Bifano, a Dallas fur dealer, says, "We were using wolf primarily until it became an endangered species. Then we switched to coyote. "After wolf was put on the endangered species list, coyote became very popular. But the popularity is dwindling because the price has gone up." The Brunson brothers average one coyote a day. Paul says it costs him about $8 a day for gas to run the traps. On top of that, they face additional costs to pay for stolen traps, and coyotes.

They bury the steel traps to hide them from thieves. "We lose quite a few traps to theft," says Paul, "by the time we get a trap, chain and drag we have about $15 into trap — not counting labor." Paul, who boils each trap in a grease-wood concoction to prevent rust, adds, "Those traps belong to me just as much as the shoes on my feet. Ninety-nine out of 100 people who see a trap will steal it — and the coyote too."

The traps have a five and one-half inch jaw and will not break the animal's foot unless the coyote fights it, which it does, says Perry. "This old blue dog I've got — I've caught her several times and she doesn't fight it."

Paul points at a brown hound and says, "I caught that dog today. You can see he's not hurt. I mean he's not even limping."

The traps present little danger to humans. "I've had them snap on my fingers lots of times. But there isn't going to be anybody out there walking around on their fingers," Perry says. A liquid bait is used on the traps. "It stinks real bad," according to Paul, "the worse it smells, the better it will draw them."

Coyotes in the Orogrande area normally feed on rabbits and rats. "But they can wipe out a whole flock of sheep," says Perry. "They're not much of a problem if you keep them down," adds Paul, "but if they get overpopulated and there is not enough food they will start getting things they're not supposed to."

Actor Out Of Hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor James Garner is out of the hospital but still faces a $1.5 million lawsuit for failing to complete "The Rockford Files," the television series just canceled by NBC.

Larry Baum, a spokesman for Baum, said the 52-year-old actor checked out of Cedars-Sinai Hospital on Saturday. He was hospitalized Jan. 16 after he was kicked and beaten by a man and woman following a minor traffic accident. "He was in very good condition when he left," Baum said.

Garner was suffering from a possible concussion, a back injury, several loosened teeth and cuts and bruises. He also was robbed of three gold chains valued at $1,500.

West Los Angeles Police obtained a warrant Friday for a brother and sister who were traced through the license plate on the car involved.

The man was identified only as a 35-year-old Tujunga resident. His sister, in her early 20s, was reported to be from Pasadena.

Meanwhile, Garner has been sued by Universal Studios for $1.5 million in breach of contract for his failure to return to work and complete 12 more "Rockford" episodes.

He has not worked since early November because of a viral infection, sinusitis and ulcers, according to his agent, Meta Rosenberg.

Commonwealth Force Monitors Truce

CAMP FOXTROT, Rhodesia (UPI) — British Army Maj. Tim Purdon watches over 6,000 heavily armed guerrillas in the middle of the Rhodesian bush and hopes for the best.

He and other members of the Commonwealth force monitoring the Rhodesian ceasefire seem to enjoy the task.

Yet a look around Camp Foxtrot, six hours by dirt road from Umtali, the nearest sizeable town, makes it seem a daunting job.

Purdon has to see that 6,000 men whose language he does not speak are properly fed and medically attended. The major hopes fervently they will not get too bored since it is his job to get every one — guerrillas and his 60-man Commonwealth monitoring force — safely through the ceasefire period until elections at the end of February.

The guerrillas are not particularly friendly, an attitude reinforced by the fact they never relinquish their weapons.

All wander the forested, 3-square-mile camp armed to the teeth with Russian AK-47 submachine guns, rifles, lith bayonets, bags full of grenades and bandoliers of ammunition.

The weapons are invariably loaded and stay with the guerrillas whether they are cooking sadza (corn meal) or having a tooth pulled.

"It was quite awkward working over a loaded AK to do a tooth extraction," said Paul Newton, 21, a Royal Navy medical assistant.

Despite offers of organized football games or movies, the guerrillas prefer to keep to themselves and organize their own activities. These consist of hour-long parades at 5:30 a.m. and evenings of political discourses and shouted slogans.

At odd intervals in the day they also group and march around the camps chanting revolutionary marching songs. The sight of several hundred armed, uniformed and deadly serious men bearing down on you can be unnerving.

Purdon and his men, taking their unusual job in their stride, make their headquarters in a war-shattered school, eating and sleeping in windowless classrooms still hung with blackboards scrawled with the alphabet or a map of the world.

In order to "sense any discontent and diffuse it before anything serious happens," as the major put it, they run a 24-hour motorized patrol around the camp's three separate encampments about half a mile apart.

So far there have been few problems. But tact is a watchword.

"I offer medicines and look at anyone if the P.F. (Patriotic Front) doctor wants me to," said Lt. Cmdr. Paul Clarke, a 35-year-old Royal Navy surgeon. "But I don't ever interfere."

Sometimes this comes hard. Clarke found one female guerrilla — there are 300 in the camp — being treated for stom-achache with a saline drip. "I told them, 'Well done,' but suggested she had had enough. If she'd been given the full amount, she really would have had a pain."

The most serious medical problem among the guerrillas so far has been scabies, a skin ailment, and venereal disease. Bad teeth also are prevalent and the small medical team said they had extracted five teeth as soon as the guerrillas overcome their first suspicion and decided to try out the clinic.

Despite the seeming unconcern of this highly professional military monitoring force, a few doubts surface from time to time.

"I hope these fellows win the elections," said medical assistant John Taylor, 24, waving toward the guerrillas. "If they don't, they'll probably take us all out."

Marketing Firm Sues Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Circuit Court judge will hear a suit Thursday demanding $237,000 in payments from Robert Dole, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Alexandria, Va., Circuit Court Judge Albert H. Grenadier set the date last Friday and at the same time turned down a request to freeze $238,555 of Dole's presidential campaign matching funds. He said the situation did not warrant freezing the funds.

"Except for the matching funds, Dole's campaign is bankrupt," attorney Millard F. Ottman Jr. had argued on behalf of the Response Marketing Group, which managed Dole's campaign from March to July last year.

Response Marketing has sued the Kansas Republican for $237,000 it claims he owes for the firm's services. Dole attorney Robert Sparks has denied that Dole's campaign owes the money.

RAID NETS GUNS
TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A raid on a suburban Tampa home netted federal agents 340 snub-nosed machine guns, a Tampa newspaper reported Sunday. The Tampa Tribune said the guns were equipped with silencers and were believed to be destined for sale to South Florida's often-violent drug dealers. Six agents of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms raided the house in a blue collar neighborhood Friday night. The house was occupied only by an 82-year-old woman who wasn't considered a suspect, the newspaper said.

BETSEY CLARK

A THOUGHTFUL DEED IS GUARANTEED TO WARM SOMEBODY'S HEART.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
1980 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦83 ♠AQ107 ♦95 ♣AQJ84
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ ?

A.—Despite the fact that you are vulnerable and could be caught between two strong hands, we recommend that you enter the auction. Since you can support either unbid suit, your hand is well suited for a takeout double. This is perhaps the last chance you have to tell partner that you have something while at a safe level.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦5 ♠A6 ♦A10973 ♣AQJ65
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?

A.—Even though, in terms of high cards, you probably have the best hand at the table, you are proscribed from making a takeout double because you don't hold spades. If you invite partner to name a suit, he will almost surely bid spades, and by the time you convince him that your double was off-shape, you could be too high. A simple overall of two diamonds is enough for the moment. You can introduce your clubs at your next turn if the auction permits.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦83 ♠J9864 ♣AK74 ♦93
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♦ 5 ♦ ?

A.—While your heart length increases your offensive potential and lessens defensive prospects, there is no reason to suppose that your side can make eleven tricks at a heart contract. Even if you have no heart tricks on defense, your two top diamonds suggest that the enemy can't make five clubs. Double. That fifth heart is deceptive—without that, you wouldn't even consider any other action.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦QJ107 ♥6 ♦QJ95 ♣AQ63
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♥ ?
A.—Whatever you do, don't jump to three clubs—that would virtually exclude some other suit contract. The choice here is between one spade or a game-forcing cuebid of two hearts. Our choice would be the cue-bid. We certainly want to play in game somewhere, but partner might expect us to have greater length in the suit if we freely bid spades at the one level.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A10 ♥AQ4 ♦AKQJ10 ♦643
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ 2 ♣ Pass Pass ?

A.—You have a strong hand and must take action. However, as in the previous hand, don't eliminate other options by committing the hand to a diamond contract. Double. That will give partner the opportunity to show a heart suit, where you could make a game opposite as little as a five-card suit headed by the king. If partner bids spades instead, you have enough strength to correct to three diamonds.

Q.6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ103 ♥AJ5 ♦A9842 ♥7
Partner and second hand pass. What is your opening bid?

A.—In order to prepare for any response partner might make, we recommend opening one spade. If partner responds two hearts or two diamonds, you can raise comfortably. If partner responds one trump or two clubs, a rebid of two diamonds is a stand-out. An opening bid of one diamond will leave you awkwardly placed should partner respond two clubs.

CAME UP ROSES

LONDON WNS — At 78, Florence Wright looked back at 60 years of painting during which she never sold a canvas. Undaunted, she headed for the park at Elston Close to try another landscape. At day's end she stepped back to admire her work and fell into the lake. Police rescued her, rushed her to the hospital for treatment and let newspaper reporters have the story. "It was ridiculous, I was not hurt at all, and doctors released me after a quick check-up," said Mrs. Wright. "But the publicity I received sold the canvas, and now I have a dozen more commissions, too."

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

There isn't a housewife in this world who does not like to play "Musical Furniture." It has to be the challenge of adding a table, subtracting a chair, rearranging a piano, or angling a sofa that adds a little spice to the daily, humdrum chores.

No one has to teach a woman how to play it. She's born knowing how. I know, even as a child, I found that by moving my tricycle from the back porch where it was stored to the center of the living room, my Daddy could do three flips in mid-air, touch the ceiling with his knees, and end up in a reverse wishbone in the doorway.

Men do not appreciate the game. Maybe it's because they're not good at it. Bill Milligan in Fairport, N.Y., even put his feelings into a parody of "Home on the Range."

"A home is so strange where the furniture roams,
Where seldom is heard a discouraging word,
And the shins grow more lumpy each day.

How often at night do I stumble and fight,
With that chair rearranged yesterday,
When loudly is heard that disparaging word.

As I kick that chair out of my way,
My husband is not nearly so poetic about it as Bill. He is struck with the absurdity of the game. Why is it a woman cannot lift a grocery bag of garbage from beside the sink to the garbage can by the door — yet can move a 2,000-pound freezer from the utility room to the garage? How come a woman cannot maneuver a simple hook and eye on the back of a blouse, yet can guide a piano through two doorways to come to rest in a niche by the bookcase?

The other night I said, "I bought new pillows today and you know what?"

He dropped his paper. "Tell me you're not going to play Musical Furniture again."

You're right. I'm not going to play Musical Furniture. WE are! I want the sofa bed brought out of the den because it matches the pillows, the living room sofa returned to the family room and the two chairs to the spare room. The picture grouping over the sofa goes into the hallway while the bookcases will have to go on the opposite wall which will, of course, necessitate moving the TV set and the antenna. Oh, and come with me into the bathroom. Do you know that tub has been in the same spot for 20 years?"

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: I am sitting down immediately after dinner and letting the dishes wait in the sink because I want to write to you while the spirit moves me.

My husband just got up from the table and walked away without a word of thanks for the delicious meal I slaved over. I fixed all his favorite dishes.

After I clean up the kitchen I will iron his work pants and shirts, sew a few things and do the countless small chores every wife has to do.

I don't dwell on it, but sometimes I wonder why my husband can't find it in his heart to give me a simple compliment — some word of appreciation. Once I asked him. He replied, "Why should I say anything? You don't thank me for banking my paycheck, do you?"

I guess I don't, but it never occurred to me. Maybe I should. The point of this letter is to remind married people to express their gratitude to one another instead of taking everything for granted. A few words about the clean socks in the drawer or the corned-beef hash could bring back the love light in a pair of eyes. With it or without it, most of us will — Keep On Pluggin' Meedford, Ore.

Dear Pluggin': I'm sure your letter hit lots of people where they live. And now if those husbands and wives who have committed sins of omission will vow to say something TONIGHT, your letter will have made millions of people happier.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a high school student who has been reading you for years. Even though I think you are pretty square, I trust what you say. Please tell me whether or not marijuana is addictive. Some people say yes, others say no. What do YOU say? — Shaker Heights Student

Dear Student: Marijuana does not create physical dependency, like heroin or alcohol. In other words, a person can get off pot without suffering withdrawal symptoms. BUT — and it's a big one — marijuana can be psychologically addictive, which is just as bad. The desire to revisit a dream world can be crippling if the person enjoys it so much he decides he wants to live there.

Dear Ann Landers: Our daughter attended Radcliffe for two years and is now in her second year at the University of Colorado. We own a lovely ski house in the mountains, and several young men have visited us for weekends these past two winters.

I have noticed that the gentlemen from Harvard, Princeton, Yale and Rutgers always bring gifts — a ham, turkey, cheese, etc. They also send thank-you notes, flowers or a token of appreciation for the hospitality. The young men from Denver, Chicago and Kansas City do nothing. (They also arrive empty-handed.)

Would you say Eastern-educated males have better manners than those from the Midwest? — Millie's Mother

Dear Mother: Manners are not a matter of geography. Moreover, Eastern schools do not have a corner on "culture," although some people would like to think so.

Why some kids write thank-you notes and others don't is a mystery. I used to think it was a matter of home training, but my readers have convinced me otherwise.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Alan: "There is an old saying that aces were made to take kings. It is a good saying, but does not always give the ace its best value."

Oswald: "The play of today's hand starts out simply. South ducks the first club, but has to win the second. Then he enters dummy with a spade in order to lead a diamond to his king. If West plunks his ace on that king three notrump is going to breeze in. West will clear his club suit, but won't have any way to get in to make any more club tricks. South will come to his hand with a spade, lose a finesse to East's jack of diamonds, but will wind up with three spades and two tricks in each other suit for the nine he needs.

Alan: "Now look what is going to happen if West holds up his ace. Of course, he should duck without going through any ceremony. South will lead a diamond toward dummy and will have no reason to do anything except play the ten. East will score his jack, lead a third club and watch his partner get in with that ace of diamonds and collect two club tricks to leave South one trick short." (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Hints From Heloise

DEAR FOLKS:
Cleaning the kitchen counter probably is one of those household cleaning chores you do umpty-ump times a day, maybe even more often than anything else.
Whatever you do in that kitchen, it most likely's followed by wiping the counter to get it clean, right?
Now I'm going to let you in on two of my pet fetishes: One is having clean kitchen counters. The other's keeping the fridge and cabinets fingerprint-free.
So, you think your kitchen counter is clean and looks great? Look again! Be sure the light is on in your kitchen, then bend over and inspect that surface closely at eye level.
Yucky, huh?
Most people wipe a counter's surface in a circular motion, and that doesn't cut it. No siree! You miss a lot of dirt that way and what you miss just gets spread around.
If you really want to get that surface clean, pretend you are cleaning a mirror or glass door. Wipe from side to side, being careful to hit every spot. Like painting a house.
Now inspect. Still some left? Do it again.
A little squirt of window cleaner or ammonia and water will make your counter shine.
Here's to housecleaning! — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I was faced with the problem of weevils in my cupboards, so I called my County Extension Home Economist. She gave me the following advice which I have been following religiously.
She said to freeze all grain-based products as well as all spices for at least 24 hours before putting them on a cupboard shelf.
This list includes flour, macaroni products, cake and pancake mixes, cereals, cornmeal, rice, and all spices.
It works.
If you do this, the weevils will never have a chance. I was most grateful to receive her advice and am happy to pass it on. — M.M.M.

DEAR HELOISE:
I once saw in your column a tip on removing a melted plastic bread wrapper from an electric toaster. You guessed it — I need the hint desperately but can't remember what it was.
Will you please repeat the remedy? — Mabel Shockley

DEAR HELOISE:
Yep! Would be delighted to...
Just pour a dab of fingernail polish remover on a piece of cotton. Let the cotton remain on the plastic for 30 seconds or so and start rubbing away.
If the melted plastic doesn't do a disappearing act at first, try again until the stuff dissolves.
But, since fingernail polish remover is a flammable liquid, use caution.
Be sure there are no open flames around and, to be on the safe side, be certain the toaster is cool.
Hope this saves the day! — Heloise

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Can you let me know in some comprehensive way if malaria has been recurring on a chronic basis since I was "bitten" in World War II can be cured? — W.B.M.

Malaria is infection of the red blood cells by the parasite plasmodium. It is transmitted through the bite of an infected mosquito. Man then becomes the "host" and the organism (there are four varieties) develops further in the liver cells. Eventually, the liver cells "seed" the bloodstream and this causes all the malaria symptoms as the red blood cells become damaged.

Relapses are not unusual, but relapses occurring after 30 years are uncommon. In fact, the person tends to develop an immunity to the infecting organism. I might even question whether what you have is malaria.

Relapses mean the infection has not been completely eliminated at the point of origin — the liver. There are effective medicines (chloroquine, primaquine, pyrimethamine, and related drugs) for both the basic liver problem and for the recurring red blood cells phases of the infection.

The major source of infection in this country has traditionally been exposure in tropical areas of the world. Servicemen returning from the South Pacific have been the usual victims. More recently, Vietnam veterans have accounted for increased numbers of cases. Because blood transfusion from infected persons can be infectious, it is wise to disqualify those returnees as donors for a couple of years.

You can inquire about your specific case at a veterans hospital, where there is much military-related experience with this disease. You may need a liver biopsy. Otherwise, you can obtain information from the parasitology branch of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

rarely a problem. Rare, but possible, side effects from such absorption include reduced blood pressure and heart rate and wheezing. Many people use the medicine without problems.

The action of the drug lasts for about 24 hours, so I can see no reason why you should not be able to use the drops earlier in the evening — unless your physician has a specific reason to specify the time. You should certainly check with him before changing the time of use.

Dear Dr. Donohue: How long should you try to get pregnant before you should find out if anything is wrong? My husband and I are in our mid-20s. — F.B.

Generally, after one year of diligent but unsuccessful attempts at conception, the couple (both partners) should seek attention to find any correctable cause of infertility. Many doctors would say two years, depending on the degree of anxiety on the part of the couple.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Could you write an article about broken blood vessels in the eyes? I have had them for about two years on and off. I am a senior citizen and cannot afford to see a doctor about this. — M.S.B.

There are many places in the eye where blood vessels can break. A common and not too serious place is beneath the delicate membrane — the conjunctiva. This covers the surface of the eye and is attached deep under the eyelid. A broken vessel here will leave a bright red streak of blood. This gradually turns yellowish, then completely fades. It is not a serious thing unless it happens repeatedly or is due to an underlying illness.

A more serious blood vessel break is one in the retina at the back of the inner eye itself. This certainly requires an eye doctor's evaluation. Laser beams are used to seal up such a break.

You should not have to go without medical attention. Check with the social security office to see whether you are enrolled for Medicare benefits.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Copies Of Antique Pieces Please Furniture Buyers

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newfeatures

The growing scarcity and costliness of antique furniture have given manufacturers of modern furniture a new market for their products among those who ordinarily would have purchased antiques.

As a result of the unmet demand for authentic, antique furniture, a number of furniture makers have begun producing replicas.

At the recent national furniture market in North Carolina, there were several new collections of replicas.

In a parallel development, at least one industry leader foresees that retailing "previously-owned" furniture could become an important part of the American home-furnishings business.

"Double-digit inflation does make the furniture a consumer has in the home retain its value," said Harley G. Shuford, president of Century Furniture Co.

"Looking down the road, this could become a sizable business. The furniture industry could benefit because, with a trade-in market, more people would be apt to change their home interiors. They would be less worried about buying a new piece of furniture."

At the market, Mersman Table Co. introduced a group of reproductions of tables from its own lines from 1910 to 1940.

The impetus for the new collection came when company officials discovered Mersman tables were selling for hundreds of dollars more than they cost new.

According to Don Vander Horst, company vice president, a price of $400 was reported for a table which sold in the 1930s for $19.95.

"People are looking for security in their homes," he said. "There is more interest in nostalgic furniture styles among young people than among older ones."

Vander Horst added that orders for the reproductions have exceeded company expectations.

Bill Carmichael, vice president of Brandt Cabinet Co., predicted the 22 authentic replicas of antique furniture his firm introduced to retailers at the market would become popular among former buyers of antiques who can no longer afford to buy originals.

Unlike some reproduction collections, this one does not stay within one period or place.

"We had no desire to identify with a single place, such as Kittinger's Williamsburg Collection," he said. "Instead we have replicas from the 1600s to the late 1800s," he noted.

One new furniture group is the Sleepy Hollow Collection by Harden Furniture Co. The collection, which made its debut in April in North Carolina, includes exact reproductions of some furniture in the three Sleepy Hollow restorations, Washington Irving's Sunnyside in Tarrytown, N.Y., Van Cortlandt Manor in Croton and Philipsburg Manor in North Tarrytown.

David F. Harden, president of Harden Furniture, noted that despite the added difficulties in manufacturing replicas — it costs more, takes considerably more time and usually requires payment of a royalty to a museum or restoration — the rewards are great.

"It enhances the rest of the company's furniture and it's something a manufacturer can be proud of," he said.

Harden, Mersman and Brandt join other companies already producing replicas, including Baker with its Charleson collection, Hitchcock Chair Co. with the James River Collection, Hitchcock Mfg. Co.'s American Masterpiece Collection, and Southwood and Council Craftsmen.

Not only furniture makers are taking to authentic reproductions.

The Rockefeller Collection, formerly sold mainly by mail order directly to consumers, was on display at the market. The collection consists of dinnerware, art objects, decorative objects and a few furniture items, all of which were owned by the late Nelson Rockefeller.

William P. Ronan, president of the Rockefeller Collection, former head of the New York Port Authority and a long-time political associate of Rockefeller, was attending the furniture market for the first time.

He noted that scarcity and costliness limit most art objects to museums.

"People are less afraid to use reproductions than costly originals. Not Nelson, of course, who believed in using his treasures in daily life, but the rest of us."

As a newcomer to the furniture industry, what does Ronan think of it?

"You certainly have no trouble finding out what furniture retailers like and don't like," he said. "They are very definite in their opinions."

"For someone who comes from the world of politics, that's very refreshing."

Dear Dr. Donohue: My doctor gave me a prescription for eyedrops for my left eye to be used at bedtime. Would this medicine (Timolol) have any side effects if it is absorbed into the body? Would it be alright to use it earlier in the evening, than at bedtime, since I don't fall asleep right away? — Miss S.W.

Timolol (non-trade name) is a newer drug to lower elevated pressure within the eyes of people with glaucoma. Although most of the action is limited to the eye itself, some of the drug may be absorbed into the body generally. This is

Youth Attend YMCA Meeting On Government

Over 400 youth delegates from Amarillo, Odessa and Lubbock participated in the YMCA Youth and Government District Conference Jan. 12 at Texas Tech University. They are among 5,000 high school delegates from 180 YMCA clubs attending five district conferences across the state. Lubbock was represented by over 200 Ti-Hi-Y and Hi-Y members from its 28 local clubs. Eight hundred delegates from over the state will be selected on merit and performance to attend the YMCA's 33rd Texas Youth and Government Conference in Austin Feb. 28.

There were three programs to choose from at the conference. The legislative delegates wrote and presented bills in hearing committees and a mock congressional session. The judicial section used the six county court rooms and acted as judges, attorneys, witnesses and jurors in a practice trial. The news media section wrote and published a newspaper about the district conference.

Many Lubbock delegates were elected to places of responsibility. Cindy Swanson and Camille Scioli will serve on the governor's cabinet; Annette Morris — Sargent at Arms of the House; Mimi Lee — reading clerk of the Senate.

Kerri Coates and Sherry Alexander are chief justice nominees and Julie Pearson is a candidate for presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals. Karen Mikkelsen, Julie St. Onje, Brenda Jennings, and Kelli Pettit will be appeals attorneys. Martha Odum is the district judge. Barbara Baugh and Renetta Barnett, Betsy Johnson and LaDonna Marks and Dana Platt and Shelly McGill are attorney teams. Suzanne Bulch is the district editor of the newspaper.

For more than 33 years, Texas has supported the program through the YMCA and prior youth and government delegates have written more than 65 bills which were eventually enacted into state law. The program is financed through private contributions and participant fees of youth delegates.

Argentina, Brazil To Market Grain

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Refusals by Argentina and Brazil to limit grain shipments to the Soviet Union over the Afghan crisis are another symbol of Latin America's growing economic nationalism, which is increasingly at odds with U.S. interests.

Both countries, run by right-wing military officers, joined Latin neighbors in calling for withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan. But they balked at promising Washington to block any deal that would replace a 17-million-ton U.S. grain shipment halted by the Carter administration in retaliation for the Soviet intervention.

Argentina expects this year to harvest 12 million tons of sorghum, corn and soybeans that are not yet sold. Brazil will have 1.5 million tons of unsold soybeans. Whether any goes to the Soviets is a matter of conjecture because of ambiguous statements by officials last week after a meeting of grain exporters in Washington.

"Argentina will not go out of its way to offer the Soviet Union more grain," Argentine Grain Board President David Lacroze said. "But if an importer comes looking for it, the question will be decided by Argentine exporters in the light of price, supply, etc. The Argentine government will not distort the natural working of the market."

No special effort

Foreign Minister Ramiro Saraiva Guerreiro of Brazil said: "Brazil will not make a special effort either not to sell to the Soviet Union because of the embargo, or to fill gaps in the market caused by the absence of American exports to that country." He dismissed the embargo as "a preoccupation of the U.S. government."

Washington's embargo effort was its first such anti-Communist initiative since the breakdown of a U.S.-inspired trade boycott against Cuba by hemisphere neighbors in the early 1970s.

A U.S. diplomat here called the responses by Argentina and Brazil "a slap in the face that may or may not sting very long" — depending on whether they really undercut the U.S. sanctions. But behind their attitudes, however ambiguously stated, is a growing defiance of the United States by Latin America's non-Communist leaders.

Resentment Grown

Resentment has grown as successive U.S. administrations failed to satisfy Latin Americans' demands for preferential treatment of their exports, and as the Carter government used economic and diplomatic pressure to push its views on nuclear non-proliferation and human rights.

As a result, Latin leaders struggling to lift their nations' economic fortunes no longer view the United States automatically as the best market for raw materials, the most reliable source of loans and technology, or even an ally in big-power showdowns.

"A country doesn't have friends; it has interests," said the Rio de Janeiro newspaper Jornal do Brasil in backing Brazil's refusal to cooperate fully with the U.S. grain boycott. It attributed the statement to the late U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

U.S. Position Questioned

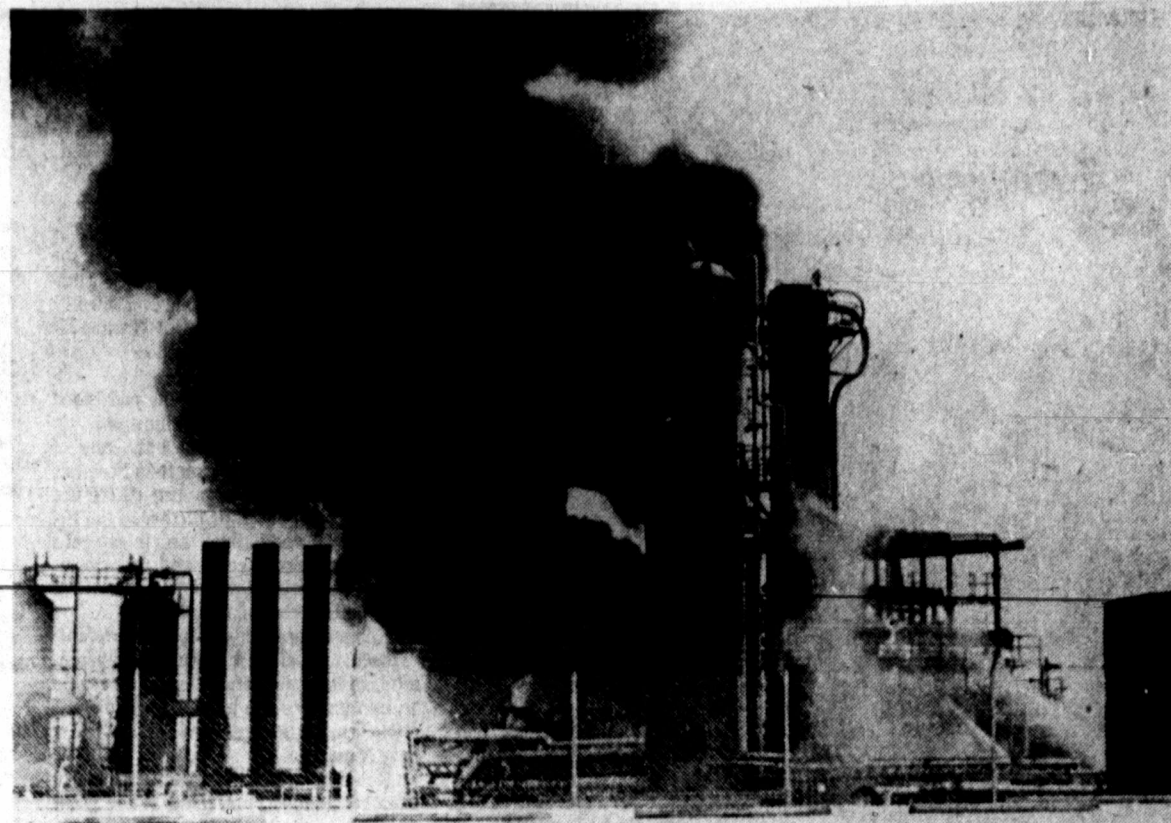

A similar editorial in the Buenos Aires magazine Gente, reflecting official resentment here of Carter's human rights campaign, asked: "Since when is the United States an ally of Argentina?" "Besides fighting subversion," the magazine said in a reference to guerrilla warfare here during the 1970s, "Argentina had to fight against a lack of understanding by other countries, especially the United States."

Washington reduced military aid to Argentina and Brazil to protest alleged human rights violations against left-wing suspects and lobbied unsuccessfully to get both to sign the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty — even to the point of trying to undo a 1975 nuclear cooperation deal between Brazil and West Germany.

Although the United States remains the biggest trade partner of Brazil and Argentina, the latter did $355 million worth of business with the Soviets last year, including $150 million in grain exports. Brazil just announced a nuclear-knowledge-for-oil deal with Iraq, a radical Arab state, and is moving toward formal recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"This is a different hemisphere from 10 to 20 years ago," said a staff member of a U.S. congressman visiting Venezuela. "Today the U.S. is no longer the big brother. The Latin American nations have grown up and rightly want to make their own decisions."

Venezuela uses oil revenue to aid political movements in the Caribbean and Central America seeking a "third alternative" to dependence on the United States or Cuba. It criticized Carter's reinforcement of the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, as a move that increased political tensions in the Caribbean.

REFINERY EXPLOSION — An explosion at 7:45 a.m. Sunday rocked the Phillips Petroleum plant near Borger, damaging or destroying several nearby homes. At least 41 persons were injured, most from flying glass. Some 200 persons were evacuated from the area. The blast knocked out store windows in downtown Borger, two miles away. The plant has been shut down and officials said the fire will be allowed to burn itself out. (AP Laserphoto)

Afghan Rebels Call For Religious War

Government leaders in Iran and Pakistan have expressed fear of Soviet troop movements near their borders, and a Cuban dispatch from Kabul said the Afghan government is worried about attacks from China and Pakistan.

U.S. estimates of Soviet troop strength in Afghanistan have run as high as 100,000.

In an effort to assure the Pakistan government, President Carter said on NBC's "Meet the Press," Sunday the United States would be prepared to use military force to protect Pakistan. He also said he would increase the level of U.S. Naval forces in the northern Indian Ocean-Persian Gulf area.

The United States already has promised to give Pakistan $400 million to shore up its defenses, especially along its 1,200-mile border with Afghanistan.

A dispatch from Kabul by the correspondent for Cuba's Prensa Latina news agency quoted an unnamed Afghan official as saying "strong contingents" of Afghan troops are moving to the border with China because of a possible invasion.

Afghanistan and China share a short, mountainous frontier of about 50 miles at the eastern end of an arm of Afghanistan extending between the Soviet Union and Pakistan.

Prensa Latina quoted the Afghan official as saying, "For several weeks suspicious troop movements have been detected on the Chinese side."

The Cuban dispatch also said Afghan leaders were concerned about a possible attack from Pakistan's northeast border area. It said, "According to official spokesmen, American, British and Chinese advisers are training a contingent of more than 70,000 soldiers (in Pakistan) for an operation against Afghanistan."

Soviet leaders have repeatedly claimed that U.S. and Chinese agents are training Afghan rebels at bases in Pakistan.

Chinese Foreign Minister Huang met with Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq, the Pakistani president and visited Aza Khel, a camp for 6,000 Afghan refugees in Pakistan. Huang reiterated his government's support for the Moslem rebels, and told leaders at the camp, 60 miles from the border with Afghanistan, that China also will assist the 438,000 Afghan refugees believed to be in Pakistan.

Details of the discussions between Huang and Zia were not disclosed.

In an apparent new move toward concentration with the rebels, meanwhile, the Afghan government announced it will change its communist-style, all-red national flag, which has been attacked by Afghanistan's fiercely anti-Communist clergy as a symbol of atheism. The flag was introduced in April 1978 when the country's first Marxist government came to power in a coup.

It was widely believed that green, the traditional color of Islamic pennants, would be part of the new flag's color scheme.

There were fresh indications over the weekend that Soviet troops have a tough fight on their hands with insurgent forces that have been fighting the Afghan government for 20 months.

Defense Department officials in Washington said Afghan Army troops have defected to the side to the rebels, forcing the Soviet Union to commit more troops to the fight. As many as 5,000 Soviet reinforcements may be needed in the northeast section of the country, where fighting is said to be fiercest, the Defense Department officials said.

Airlifts of Soviet troops into Kabul were reported Saturday by American reporters waiting at the airport for a flight to New Delhi, in compliance with a government expulsion order. The reporters also saw tanks and armored personnel carriers rumbling down city streets.

In other developments: —Egypt announced it was considering an Olympic boycott and said it might do so even if Soviet troops march out of Afghanistan, a Sports Ministry official said.

Canada said it was stopping sports exchanges with Russia, but would not withdraw from the Olympics.

—The Pakistan Foreign Ministry announced that foreign ministers of Moslem countries would begin a week-long emergency meeting on Afghanistan in Islamabad, Pakistan, next Sunday.

Wool 'Gin' Gives Fiber New Boost and pay little attention to it. Others, like a New Mexico rancher, improve the fleece and bring fiber up to 35 per cent of the income.

The center, financed about 40 per cent by the state and the rest by private research contracts, is involved with a project to extend the wool market by adapting the longer animal fibers to the cotton system geared to short fibers.

Shortening the animal fibers, by cutting or by six-month shearings, puts wool in the category without a massive and expensive new changeover in machinery.

About 40 manufacturers around the nation already are using threads from cut wool and mohair on cotton system machines.

The center is working now with testing the quality of short wool thread to see how it can be spun with strength necessary for weaving.

A perfect solution to the short wool theory would be the six-month spread of shearing which would give the right length. Tests to ascertain the effect the interval shearing would have on the major sheep product, lambs, showed an eight per cent and more increase in lamb production.

"We do what we can to bring about more use of the three natural fibers to promote natural products," Parker said.

A monthly newsletter detailing research findings is "very factual" in what it contains for readers all over the United States, Europe, South Africa, South America and Asia.

Inquiries have come from all over the world, some from Communist countries.

Wool and cotton, Parker stressed, are the oldest fibers which have now lost a lot of appeal in the synthetic-minded society.

Modern technology working to bring wool back to use will be detailed in the new wool and mohair exhibit at the institute housed in The Museum of Texas Tech University. Cotton was included in the Food and Fiber Institute from the beginning.

Olympic Boycott Proposed

officials met at the White House with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Carter aides to voice their objections to any boycott request.

Robert F. Kane, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee, said after the program that he was pleased with Carter's statement because the president asked that the administration's position be presented to the international committee.

"I was very pleased that he did not advocate a boycott because I think a boycott is a most inappropriate tactic," Kane said.

"A boycott would take us out of the Olympic movement and we would have no voice in deliberations, no part in decision-making," Kane said. "There is a great difference in deciding not to send athletes for a good cause than to undercut the Olympic movement and the organization we belong to, the IOC, which owns the Games."

Asked about the difference between a boycott and not sending a team, Kane said: "This has been difficult to make clear. We don't want to abdicate our position in the IOC. To boycott would take us out of that."

Kane had said earlier that if Carter requested the withdrawal of American athletes, the USOC would immediately poll prospective members of the team. Then, the 86-member USOC executive board would make a decision on whether to enter athletes at Moscow. The United States has until May 19 to say whether it will enter a team in the Moscow Olympics.

The USOC executive board meets for three days beginning Friday in Colorado Springs, Colo. The entire committee will meet in Lake Placid, N.Y., just before Carter is scheduled to open the 1980 Winter Games on Feb. 13.

Asked later if he thought the Olympic Committee would support him, Carter said, "I think so."

He said during the TV interview, "I do not want to inject politics into the Olympics. And I would personally favor the establishment of a permanent Olympics site for both the Summer and Winter Games. In my opinion, the most appropriate permanent site for the summer games would be Greece."

Premier Constantine Caramanlis of Greece has urged for the past three years that the Games be returned permanently to his country.

After next month's Winter Games in Lake Placid — which the Russians are expected to send a team — and the Summer Games in Moscow, the next Olympics are scheduled in 1984.

The 1984 Summer Games are to be held in Los Angeles and the Winter Games are slated for Sarajevo, Yugoslavia.

Embassy Terrorists Deny U.N. Formula

By The Associated Press

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said Sunday he had worked out a formula during his recent trip to Iran that he hoped would lead to the release of American hostages in Tehran. But militants holding the Americans at the U.S. Embassy said they knew nothing of such a formula.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Embassy in Tehran issued a statement emphasizing its "friendly approach" toward Iran and denying its troops in Afghanistan, along the border with Iran, are positioned to strike at major Iranian oil installations.

Tehran radio reported Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini accepted a proposal to amend the new Islamic constitution to permit Sunni Moslems have the same rights as members of Iran's majority Shiite sect. "Personally, I have no objection," Khomeini was quoted as saying.

Waldheim, in New Delhi, India to attend a U.N. conference, told reporters after his arrival: "The important aspect of my visit to Tehran was that we worked out a package, a mechanism, which will hopefully make it possible to release the hostages."

The secretary-general did not elaborate on what he meant by "mechanism." Nor was it clear whether his use of the word "we" referred to his U.N. associates or to Iranian authorities.

Waldheim, who made a New Year's Eve trip to Iran in attempts to gain freedom for the Americans, added: "We have worked out a mechanism ... and I hope this mechanism will make it possible to satisfy the government of Iran and lead to the release of the hostages."

"I am still personally involved in the efforts to find a peaceful solution (to) this very serious problem," Waldheim said, adding that he was in "constant touch" by telephone with Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh.

He said he had no plan to visit Iran again but "if it can lead to a solution of the problem, I would not hesitate to make another trip."

Waldheim met with Ghotbzadeh while in Tehran the first week of January, but Khomeini refused to meet him.

Power Cut By Ice On Conductors

AN ICE build-up on conductors near a Southwestern Public Service substation just west of Lubbock left residents in the northwestern section of the city Sunday afternoon without power for almost three hours.

A 3/4-inch coating of ice on conductors near the company's Carlisle substation five miles west of the city limits, caused two eight-foot crossarms to break about 2:19 p.m. Sunday, said Leonard Houston, a SWPS switching supervisor.

A 10-man crew with four trucks worked to replace the crossarms in 27-degree weather and restored electricity to residents within an area bounded by Fourth Street, Slide Road, Frankford Avenue and Harvard by 5 p.m. — just 10 minutes before the Super Bowl was scheduled to air on national television.

The outage was unrelated to an incident Sunday afternoon in the 5200-block of Eighth Street, where ice accumulations and tree limbs caused power lines in that neighborhood to break.

do not know how many (homes) have been heavily damaged."

Eck Spahich of the Borger News Herald, said officials estimated the damage would soar to millions of dollars at the plant and in the two communities of Phillips and Borger.

He estimated seven or eight homes in Phillips had been heavily damaged.

Waldheim said the hostages' release could not be expected soon, explaining: "It will be a long process one should be fully aware this takes time and we cannot expect an immediate solution of the problem."

In Tehran, a spokesman reached at the embassy by telephone said he has no knowledge of any arrangement worked out between Waldheim and Iranian government officials. The spokesman said that regardless of whatever has been agreed to "nothing would possibly lead to the release of the hostages but the extradition of the ousted shah and the return of his wealth."

Ghotbzadeh and foreign ministry officials were unavailable for comment Sunday night.

The spokesman also denied recent speculation that the setting up of an international commission to investigate the alleged crimes of deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi could speed release of the hostages, who have been held for 78 days.

Since Waldheim's visit, U.N. sources have hinted he was trying to work out such a deal.

In Tehran, evening newspapers carried a Soviet statement criticizing recent U.S. news reports that Soviet troops in Afghanistan pose a threat to the oilfields.

The Russians said no amount of U.S. propaganda could "overpower the fact" that Iran and its northern neighbor are on friendly terms.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ghotbzadeh said earlier this week he was investigating the Soviet presence along the Afghan border and that his country could not ignore a threat.

Tehran radio said Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, as well as Khomeini, agreed on amending the constitution to give Sunnis equal status with the Shiites, whose faith is the state religion. Khomeini said such an amendment must be approved in a referendum, the radio reported.

The development apparently is in response to demands by Iran's ethnic minority groups like the Kurds, the Baluchis and the Turkomans, who are predominantly Sunni Moslems and have been demanding greater autonomy from the central government.

Of Iran's total population of 34 million, 32 million are Shiites and 850,000 are Sunnis.

In another development, Iranian Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moïnfar announced that 153 employees of the state-owned oil company had been purged "for their connections with the previous regime" of the deposed shah, according to Tehran radio monitored in Kuwait and London.

Meanwhile, Los Angeles radio station KMPC said its reporter in Tehran, Alex Paen, was prepared to tape record over the telephone Sunday's Super Bowl game so the hostages in U.S. Embassy in Tehran could hear it.

According to a station spokesman Paen planned to turn over the Super Bowl recording on Monday to the embassy militants, who promised to deliver the tape to the hostages.

In other developments: — Iran recalled its ambassador in Tunis to protest Tunisia's support of the U.S.-sponsored resolution of the U.N. Security Council for the imposition of economic sanctions against Iran, the Kuwaiti newspaper Al Watan reported.

—The Soviet news agency Tass, quoting Tehran radio, reported that a trial opened Sunday in Tabriz for three Air Force officers arrested on charges of organizing recent disorders in the regional capital.

Kennedy Narrowly Defeats Carter In California Straw Vote

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy narrowly defeated President Carter Sunday in a straw vote of California Democratic Party leaders.

The Massachusetts senator won the support of 42 percent of the delegates at the California Democratic Party convention. Carter came in at 39 percent, and California Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was a distant third in his home state with 14 percent.

The actual vote total was Kennedy 622, Carter 583 and Brown 207, with another 59 votes scattered among minor candidates and uncommitted.

Kennedy said in a statement he was "delighted" with the results. "It clearly demonstrates that members of the Democratic party in the nation's largest state are unwilling to accept four more years of current policies and are looking for new leadership in the 1980s," he said.

But Kennedy's victory was not as great as most observers had predicted, and spokesmen for all three candidates claimed victories of one sort or another.

"The people who come to conventions are activists. They're the kind of people who ought to be in Kennedy's back pocket. And yet we fell short by only 39 votes," said state Assemblyman Michael Roos, Carter's California campaign chairman.

"We think it's very significant that the Carter-Mondale campaign made such a great comeback," added Les Francis, national staff director of the Carter campaign.

Brown's chief spokesman, chief of staff Gray Davis, who earlier had said the straw vote was meaningless and a waste of time, also said he was pleased with the result.

"The governor did better than either of his rivals anticipated. We made only a very modest effort. Dick O'Neill (state party chairman) said at the start of the convention we'd be lucky to get 10 percent. We improved on that quite a bit and we're pleased," Davis said.

Former New York Rep. Allard Lowenstein, who led the Kennedy campaign effort, had insisted from the beginning that his candidate was behind, something most observers discounted. When the results came in, Lowenstein again described Kennedy's narrow win as a come-from-behind effort.

"I think the fact that at the height of the international crisis, with this convention heavily weighted with people in political office where the incumbency of the presidency is an additional advantage, the fact that we came out ahead here is something close to a miracle," Lowenstein said.

O'Neill, the state party chairman, who is officially neutral, said after the voting. "I don't know if any of the candidates won," adding that Kennedy's victory "is not as important as if he'd gotten over 50 percent."

In fact, the balloting has no meaning whatsoever, except for the news stories it generated on the eve of Iowa's delegate caucuses, which are the first step toward selection of actual delegates to the Democratic National Convention in August.

California's 306 national convention delegates will be selected in a June 3 primary, and O'Neill said he organized the straw vote only to "liven up" an otherwise routine party platform convention.

Responding to questions about Kennedy's plunge in the polls and predictions late last year that he would beat Carter by margins of two-to-one and three-to-one in the California straw vote, Lowenstein said he thought the real meaning of the balloting is that nobody has the Democratic nomination sewn up.

"What this says is that we're going to have a very long contest, and there's very broad support for Senator Kennedy. This is the first (vote) in the country. It's going to influence a lot of people," Lowenstein said.

But Francis said the Carter campaign "doesn't see this as a critical commentary at all." And Roos added that the more important balloting in California was a straw vote by mail to Democratic Party contributors.

In results announced Saturday, Carter won that mail ballot among about 1,000 Democrats by a margin of 57 percent to 36 percent for Kennedy and 7 percent for Brown.

Mississippi To Inaugurate 58th Governor

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — William Forrest Winter, an intellectual with interests embracing historical research, cultural arts and football, will become Mississippi's 58th governor Tuesday.

Winter, 56, will succeed Gov. Cliff Finch, whose rough-and-tumble populist tactics, lunchbox politics and promises of "more and better paying jobs" offered a sharp contrast to Winter's businesslike approach to government.

As a former lieutenant governor, state treasurer, state tax collector and legislator, Winter campaigned as a government veteran whose knowledge and integrity had stood the test of time.

Although he had lost two previous races for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, Winter won in a landslide last November with pledges to "clean up the mess in Jackson," a reference to a series of federal investigations and audits of state agencies during the Finch administration.

The first selections for posts in his administration have included businessmen, former FBI and Army officials and some experienced personnel from prior administrations.

Winter's inauguration plans symbolized what he called a new direction in politics: there will be no private balls or appointments as civilian colonels for select friends.

The ceremonies will be at the historic Old Capitol because the 77-year-old New Capitol is undergoing a massive renovation. Winter, the first governor to take his oath at the Old Capitol since 1900, has been president of the state Archives and History Trustees and has been active in the Mississippi Historical Society.

Winter decided to make his inauguration "a showcase of the talent in every area of the state, rather than an event focusing on me. It will be a day of pride in our state."

Outstanding Mississippians and former Mississippians from many walks of life have been invited to participate in the two-day celebration that was to begin Monday with a symposium on "Mississippi and the Nation in the 1980s." Panelists include prize-winning authors Eudora Welty and Margaret Walker Alexander.

Dignitaries attending will include Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and presidential aide Bill Simpson, both native Mississippians; the five living former governors; and all present and many former members of the state congressional delegation will attend. A number of other governors have been invited.

The inauguration "gala," replacing the traditional inaugural ball, will be at the state Coliseum on Tuesday night and will feature musical groups and Miss America, Cheryl Prewitt of Ackerman, Miss.

Faster Foreclosure Urged By Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new congressional report urges faster U.S. foreclosure on delinquent apartment building mortgages, saying those in default often continue to reap tax benefits while buildings deteriorate.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development should work with other agencies "to identify causes of delays and alternatives, including legislative remedies if appropriate, for reducing the time periods and federal losses resulting from lengthy foreclosure proceedings."

The report was prepared by the General Accounting Office and released Sunday by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., who has scheduled a Wednesday hearing on the subject.

Houston, Dallas Elect New Officials

By The Associated Press

Houston area voters turned out in meager numbers to fill three Harris County Board of Education seats in an election that still faces a U.S. Justice Department challenge.

Three minority candidates, two blacks and a Mexican-American, were assured of seats on the Dallas City Council on Saturday in an election delayed for nine months by court challenges to the city's method of electing councilmen.

The victory insures the largest minority representation on the 11-member body in Dallas' history.

Justice Department officials asked U.S. District Judge George Cline on Friday to halt the Harris County election.

Government attorney Jeremy Schwartz told candidates to proceed "at their own risk ... the courts may decide to set aside this election."

The government argued that holding the election on the same day as balloting in the predominantly-white suburban school districts discriminated against minority voters.

The department wanted the election held on the same day as the May primary, when more minority voters would be going to the polls.

Cline refused to block the balloting, but Justice Department officials said they would pursue the challenge.

Incumbents Madelyn Griffin and Dan Procter retained their seats on the board and newcomer Carl Burney won a place on the board handily. Mrs. Griffin defeated former Pasadena City Councilman Verne Cox by 75 votes out of the little more than 3,000 ballots cast. Procter defeated David Robinson by about 500 votes.

Albert Luna III, 29, got almost 66 percent of the vote to win the legislative seat vacated by former State Rep. Ben Reyes, who resigned to become the first Mexican-American on the Houston City Council.

Luna's district includes the heavily Mexican-American populated north side of Houston.

Dallas Mayor Robert Folsom easily won re-election although his opponent, cab driver Tom Gibbons, polled a surprising 24 percent of the vote.

"Most of the votes were anti-Folsom votes rather than pro-Gibbons votes," said Gibbons.

"If he says that I'll go along with him, because I have to believe all those votes (received by Gibbons) are negative votes to the mayor," said Folsom.

Incumbent Don Hicks defeated three challengers to his seat on the council and Councilmen Steve Bartlett ran unopposed for one of three at-large posts.

Joe M. Haggard and Fred Blair also had no opposition in their bids for council seats.

Max Goldblatt easily won a council seat; Lee Simpson upset heavily-favored Herschel Brown to win another and Sid Stahl garnered a whopping 72.6 percent of the vote to win a place on the council.

Runoff elections will be held between Robert Medrano and Frank P. Hernandez; Roland Tucker and Patterson Reaves and Mabel White and Elsie Fay Heggins for the three remaining seats.

Candidates Battle For Exposure

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy battled head-to-head Sunday for national television exposure in what was the first big quasi-debate of the 1980 Democratic campaign season. Neither man was bloodied.

Appearing simultaneously before the cameras of competing TV networks, Carter and his principal rival for the Democratic presidential nomination spent 30 minutes responding to questions that occasionally elicited the rudiments of a rather antiseptic, arms-length, two-way debate.

Here's how the competitors, who face each other Monday in Iowa's Democratic caucuses, gave channel-switching voters a taste of sometimes-conflicting positions:

• Carter, on NBC's "Meet the Press," urged that athletes boycott the Moscow Summer Olympics, or move the games to another country, unless Soviet troops are withdrawn from Afghanistan within one month.

Kennedy, appearing on ABC's "Issues and Answers," made light of boycott proposals before learning about Carter's stand. Informed of the president's position during the broadcast, the Massachusetts Democrat decided:

"I will support a boycott of the Olympics. But I want to make it very clear that a grain embargo and a boycott of the Olympics are basically symbols, and symbols are no substitute for an effective policy."

• Predictably, Carter spoke highly of his own policies during his three years in office, saying he feels he has "done everything possible to strengthen our own nation... morally and ethically as well as economically and militarily."

But Kennedy declared, "For the past three years, we've had an American foreign policy that has been lurching from crisis to crisis."

• With Soviet troops in neighboring Afghanistan, Pakistan won pledges of support from both Carter and Kennedy.

Business & Industrial Review

FOR SEWING MACHINE SALES, RENTALS, SERVICES — Susan and R. B. Young of the ABC Sewing Center in Lubbock are pictured calling attention to the "New Dimension" Elna Air Electronic model, said to be the only free arm sewing machine that fits most standard sewing machine cabinets, a flat bed machine that converts to free arm with push-button ease.

ABC Sewing Center Providing Finest In Products, Services

For White, Elna, and now Necchi sales and service, it is the ABC Sewing Center, 3104 34th St.
So very much could be said, and should be said, for the products and service advantages of this center!
In brief, however, the fact is that this home-owned and home-operated firm is thoroughly customer oriented in its every department.
The ABC Sewing Center buys, sells and trades, servicing 11 brands of machines, also maintaining a rental service.
New Models Excel
Specific attention is called to some of the great new machine models stocked, such as the Elna Model 69. It is advertised as the only free arm sewing machine that fits most standard sewing machine cabinets. And this is a big item. Likely it is the last sewing machine you'll ever need!
The "new dimension" Elna Air Electronic is available in three models, with the Air Electronic Portable machines also in three models. It is a new generation of sewing machines!
Free Instruction
Check such features as the most-wanted stitches are built into each. It is a multiple sewing program extended via interchangeable Elna discs supplied as standard equipment with every Elna Super model.

These are exciting new machines! And one year free instruction is given with purchase of every new machine at the ABC Sewing Center.
Established and actively operated by lifelong Lubbock resident Susan Young, the ABC Sewing Center is factory authorized dealer for several leading lines of machines. For White, Elna, Necchi, Brother, Dressmaker and other machines, check ABC first!
Susan, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dennis, is a '66 graduate of Monterey High School and is a '73 graduate of Texas Tech.
Multiple Lines
The above explanation of the Elna models available is indicative of the fine products that are the rule at ABC. Susan is quite enthused about the White line, too, as example, a respected name in sewing machines for over 100 years.
Further Aids Cited
A five-year parts warranty and one-year service guarantee is effective on all reconditioned units.
Parsons cabinets are stocked, adaptable to all brands of machines.
Financing plans are available, together with Visa and Master Charge use.
The ABC Sewing Center is open six days a week: Mondays through Fridays from 9:30 a.m. until 6 p.m., and Saturday closing at 4 p.m.

Twice-a-year free White seminars are conducted in the firm, with home economists from the White factory on hand to bring latest techniques, etc. (One is invited to check regarding the summer seminar.)
More about the White line:
The Model 710 flip-top open arm model with one-step buttonholer is especially recommended. It is stocked and available in portable or cabinet models at ABC.
This top-of-the-line unit is described as "the most versatile sewing machine for today's fabrics" by the White organization, and is the second in White's series of Flip-Top models with extension flaps to convert the sewing machine from a free arm to a flat bed sewing surface at a mere twist of a knob! And as for buttonholing, the user merely dials in the desired stitch and buttonhole length, presses the foot control, and the sewing machine does the rest automatically! This new model features 26 practical stretch and decorative stitches, including 16 forward and reverse moving patterns and the one-step buttonholer!
For full information on this and other great models, for a genuine welcome and appreciation of your inquiries, a visit to the ABC Sewing Center, 3104 34th St., phone 799-0372, is invited and recommended at earliest convenience.

Don Crow Chevrolet Service Staff Prides In Factors Earning Confidence

"Prompt car servicing, a technician staff that invites comparison, pricing policies that make for customer confidence and repeat business... all these are among the factors in which Don Crow Chevrolet's Service Department takes special pride, and understandably so."
"Taking your car to a 'pro' is not just a figure of speech when applied to patronage of the Don Crow Chevrolet Service Department, Loop 289 and Slide Road in Lubbock."
After all, service technicians there have combined total of 172 years experience in the field!
Small wonder that customer satisfaction not only is a motto and pledge but is a reality at the Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc!
Service Special
The trade accorded the Service Department is sincerely noted and appreciated, and a graphic expression of this appreciation is the still-continuing offer of oil and lube job for GM autos at just $9.95! Yes, just $9.95, and this includes up to five quarts of Quaker State HD 30 oil, AC filter, and grease.

"Of course, we welcome your business throughout the department, but we are listing this good price as indicative of the customer-considering operations at Don Crow Chevrolet."
And Don Crow still has some of those sought-after Target engines, with the 350 Target engine priced at just $995, including installation, intake gasket set and labor for Chevrolet passenger cars and light duty pickups. Cost for heavy duty trucks understandably is slightly more.
Service advisors are on the job at 7:30 a.m. at Don Crow to aid in servicing for folks en route to their work. Mini Maid service has long been appreciated gesture, and the firm also affords bus service to and from the South Plains Mall at the customers' convenience!
It all is a part of the "customer satisfaction" image carefully guarded at Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc.
From the service manager to the service advisors and technicians (including five master technicians) at Don Crow Chevrolet, Inc., all take pride in the ultimate in customer service at a price that can be lived with.

"And don't forget Don Crow Chevrolet's invitation to compare costs; we are glad to show you the posted hourly rates and allotted Chevrolet factory time for any job, eliminating any confusion. We are aboveboard in all dealings."
Don Crow believes that it pays you to know all the facts; it pays to know and trust Don Crow Chevrolet!
"When you consider our honesty in dealing, the dedication of a professional staff with true know-how, our reputation for saving for you in dollars and cents, then why consider anything less than Don Crow Chevrolet for your every auto repair need?
All service work is guaranteed 90 days or 4,000 miles on all General Motors parts and accessories.
More than a dozen technicians and three service advisors are on the job.

A & J Blind, Shade Shop Posts Limited-Time Price Reductions

There's a special sale underway at A & J Blind & Shade Shop, 1917 19th St., phone 762-4013!

Price reductions during the sale have been arranged on woven woods and mini blinds. Isn't this a thoughtful gesture at this particular time when one is planning the home's readiness for spring and summer, and when recovering economically from the fall and holiday demands?

Very Price Conscious
A & J Blind & Shade Shop not only takes pride in its quality and selection, but owner Julius Ysasaga likes to save money for his customers whenever possible.

Draperies are available, together with custom shutters; and shades... and repair services on blinds and shades, also. Venetian blind repair is a specialty.

Free Estimates
For whatever need at A & J Blind & Shade Shop, 1917 19th St., one is invited to call now for free estimates that are gladly given.

When one can secure famous-brand lines at the low sale prices, from a firm that places the emphasis on value throughout the year, then it would seem that now is a very good time to act, and save.

The shop continuously has the greatest variety in window shades one could imagine, with over 50 colors in beautiful fabrics and patterns.

The brand names at A & J are familiar and respected (such as Kirsch, with its quality unquestioned).

It is home improvement time... it is savings time... it is A & J Blind & Shade time, too, we believe you'll agree! Don't overlook the special sale underway. Select now and save.

FOR BEAUTIFICATION, SAVINGS — Margie Ysasaga, daughter of A & J Blind & Shade Shop owner Julius Ysasaga, calls attention to some of the quality items there, also disclosing some limited-time specials.

Wade Boot Shop, Formerly 'Lusk's', Carries On Tradition Of Excellence

It is a new name... but same location and same fine service!

It is Wade Boot Shop, formerly Lusk's Boot Shop, standard of excellence for over 30 years, at 3019 34th St., phone 763-4438.

Charlie Wade has been owner of the time-honored shop since 1977, and the new name correctly reflects this ownership. The shop was established back in 1948 by the late Willie Lusk, and the present owner carries on the traditions of quality and guaranteed satisfaction in every transaction, also taking pride in a staff "second to none."

Wade Boot Shop not only excels in custom-made boots but also specializes in (and invites) boot and shoe repair.

Repair Specialist
Ocie Franklin, marking about 22 years boot and shoe repair in Lubbock, is now with the Wade firm, devoting his time exclusively to repair.

"Next day" service on repairs can be depended upon, with "same day" service on Saturdays!

It is not by happenstance that finest handmade boots are custom made at Wade Boot Shop.

Long On Experience
The staff includes Joe McNelly, with 35 years experience; Evelyn Green, 30 years; Butch Jeffcoat, 20 years (all working with the late Willie Lusk); and newer staff member, Diane Flanagan, also a bootmaker with exceptional ability.

The "Lusk" name on a boot for decades has stood for unquestioned quality, and Wade, a 15-year Lubbock resident, assures continued value and fine workmanship.

Selection is enabled from materials to meet the preference of anyone, it is evident. Select from elk, brushed pig, calf, bull hide, sea turtle, water buffalo, pig skin, kangaroo, nylon, elephant, shark, lizard, snake, ostrich, alligator, ant eater and even eel, as example!

About six to eight weeks completion is norm for one's personalized pair of boots, and this is considered quite a good time when the meticulous care and craftsmanship in their construction is recognized. One cannot help but admire the attention to detail, the knowledge of bootmaking and the genuine interest in customer satisfaction by the devoted staff of experts at Wade Boot Shop, only facility of its type in the region.

So... Whether the need is the finest boot or if seeking shoe and boot repairs as a real dollar-stretcher, Wade Boot Shop fills the bill.

And don't forget the one-day service on boots and shoe repair every Saturday. "May we accommodate you with one or more of our several services at Wade Boot Shop, home owned and operated, at 3019 34th St."

In these and other needs, American Equipment and Trailer, Inc., with over a quarter century service record, is the firm on which to depend. American Equipment and Trailer, Inc., at 3707 Quirt Ave. in Lubbock and at 610 N. Grand in Amarillo, and at 1400 West Overland Trail in Abilene, prides in its large line-up of equipment, with every item bearing a well-known and respected name.

Included are Koenig service bodies, Galion dump bodies, Midwest farm bodies, Tulsa winches, Wilson livestock and grain trailers, Great Dane refrigerated trailers, Clement dump bodies, Bendix-Westinghouse air brake equipment, Michigan and Pryor gasoline tanks, tank installation kits, Auto Crane, Dur-a-Lift, and more.

New items and lines are added in a continuous program of anticipating and meeting today's and tomorrow's needs.

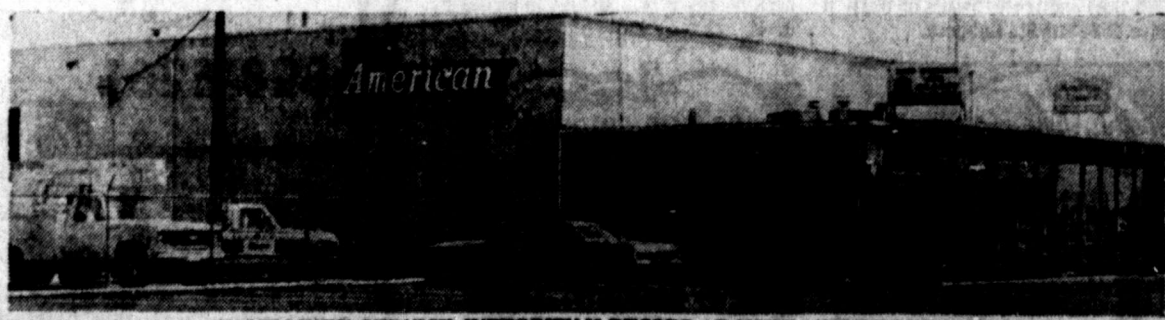

Of course, American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., can help one with special requirements, too.

Starting from modest beginnings, American Equipment & Trailer, Inc., has grown and served in an ever-expanding program. It began with the idea of having trailer equipment of all kinds for all size trucks, from pickups to diesels. The firm started with a few good lines and built up its stock until now it can say it is the largest trailer service facility in the entire Panhandle-South Plains region.

The Lubbock facility is modern in every respect, built to afford exceptional service. The 12,000 sq. ft. building has multiple double-bay drive-through shop, parts department and spacious showrooms, and is located on eight acres of land.

"We are proud of our customer list, appreciating the opportunities of years past, looking forward to continuation of these opportunities and privileges for seasons to come. We appreciate your visits at any of our facilities; come on out or call us when in need of any product or service we can render. Our service department, remember, has seven double bays and long drive-through large enough to accommodate the largest tractor-trailer made."

Johnie Johnson Exxon Aiding Every-Season Car Performance

"For safety and driving ease, for assuring that your auto can meet the demands of the season, for economy in preventative maintenance and repairs, your car deserves no less than the attention of Johnie Johnson's Exxon, 34th Street at Knoxville Avenue!"

Wheel alignment, balanced tires, properly functioning brakes, a tune-up by experts... any or all these likely are a present need for your own auto. The importance of each cannot be underestimated. For the safety and comfort of every driver and passenger.

Johnie Johnson is a specialist at each of the above operations, and he invites consideration of both the workmanship and pricing at the Johnie Johnson Exxon.

Prices Appeal
Regular wheel alignment price there is a sensible $12.50 (set caster, camber, toe-in) plus needed parts.

Balancing of all four wheels is just $15.

Disc brake jobs are $78.20. And a tune-up is just $35. All tune-ups are done right at the facility, with Johnson on the job to assure finest service and customer appreciation.

Before opening his own business about two years ago, Johnson marked over two decades of related experience, including a 17-year stint as front end specialist and more recently as service manager of a downtown Lubbock firm. He knows front end work as probably few in the area.

For Better Ride
He knows that alignment problems cause tire wear, that vibration comes from out-of-balance tires. He can recognize the problem and do something about it, effectively and honestly.

Other features of Johnie Johnson Exxon, phone 795-5942, include:

Optical Store And Boutique Stresses New Location, 'Just One Door South'

"Don't you like the new convenience afforded by the new location of The Optical Store and Boutique?"

"Yes, response has been most gratifying to our move into a new home. Formerly familiar at 5202 Slide Road, this "Our Boutique is Unique" firm has moved just one door south, to 5204 Slide Road, into larger and easier departmentalized quarters.

Maintains Own Lab
This is just one of the several factors that place The Optical Store and Boutique at the forefront in its field. For example, with its own lab, the firm can act SUGGESTS, OFFERS EXPERT CARE — Johnie Johnson, long-recognized front-end specialist, serves at his 34th Street Johnie's Exxon where tune-ups, alignment and brake work receive expert attention.

Atlas tires and batteries; Exxon air filters and transmission oil change, two vital areas adding long life for the car.

Shocks, mufflers and tail pipes. Numerous accessories, plus the expert shop work.

A state inspection station, Johnie

Johnson is open long hours six days a week, closed Sundays.

Really huge access and parking aprons make "pulling into Johnie's" most convenient; and not only is this convenience to be appreciated, but the entire facility is attractive, clean and thoroughly geared to efficiency in customer service.

most speedily and efficiently. One-day service on many prescriptions is enabled.

Probably best known for its fashion frames, The Optical Store and Boutique serves in many other ways, each of which has met with gratifying response.

There is the video that is utilized in frame selection.

And another department enables purchase of live houseplants that are stocked!

It all is a part of the firm's appreciation of its friends and customers and its dedication to finest service possible.

New video tape equipment has been installed to enable one to be photographed with the various frames, then the tape is played back through a color television set to enable one to see exactly how the frames look upon him or her!

Doesn't this make sense? "We at The Optical Store & Boutique think so, and we believe we are the first optical company in Lubbock to offer this brand new innovation to optical dispensing.

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near The Optical Store & Boutique.

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

(1) Children should have an eye examination annually.

(2) Adults should take the same step every two years.

(3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended.

(4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefiting.

"(We want to see you keep your frames in good repair; and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!)

Enviably Frame Selection
"And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) The Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Vertical Hollow Shaft Motors, Compressors Stocked By Smith

Compressors for every need... these are just some of the key products and services of W.M. Smith Electric Co. Smith is authorized master distributor for the Campbell Hausfeld line of compressors and accessories. In related aids, the full line of parts is stocked; full service is afforded; and the firm also serves as a Campbell Hausfeld warranty station.

What a benefit to industry... of any size, of many types.

"You can depend upon W.M. Smith Electric Co., 1911 Clovis Road, in Lubbock, long servicing industry throughout West Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

The Lubbock branch of the Dallas-based company was established way back in 1952, and the growth of the firm here reflects the quality and demand of the service offered.

AMONG COMPRESSORS FOR EVERY NEED — FROM SMITH

Other Products, Service

Smith is distributor for the complete overhead traveling bridge cranes manufactured and marketed under the trade name of SECO.

The firm is a major distributor for crane and hoist components and parts bearing the distinguished trademarks of Dresser Industries, Detroit, Wright, Demag and David Round.

Smith is authorized distributor for the revolutionary Singl/Screw compressors from Chicago Pneumatic.

The entire Chicago Pneumatic Equipment Division compressor line is available including spread from the 40 hp 230/460 volt 3 phase, 3550 rpm motor to the big model 1160, a 250 hp 460 volt, 3 phase, 1775 rpm motor.

Sales and service for all makes of hoists is another key segment of the business.

Motors

W.M. Smith Electric is distributor for three major lines of electric motors: General Electric, U.S., and Baldor, in all sizes, and for Louis Allis and other lines.

Furthermore, the firm has parts for everything it sells, offering service on everything sold, also.

A staff of qualified mechanics and trouble shooters is maintained at all times.

Wire-in and installation of irrigation motors is another area-appreciated service provided by the company.

Pick-up and delivery is provided, and service men are on call day or night, facilities on the shop enable prompt attention and repair in any emergency need.

Vertical hollow shaft motors from LeRoy Somer are now available and stocked.

NOT JUST ANOTHER

"Uncommon still in the technology of air compression" is the record of Chicago Pneumatic that has built its Equipment Division on innovation and excellence in industrial air compressors. From its first steam-powered unit, built over 70 years ago, to today's revolutionary Singl/Screw, these have been the Division's primary commitment. Advantages of this new compressor line include simplicity, balanced pressures, low friction, efficient oil flow without a pump, lower operating temperature, no gear to pay for or maintain, new low in quiet operation.

"Let W.M. Smith give full details and help you in your own personalized compressor needs."

Among the many products and services afforded are air compressors by Campbell Hausfeld and Gardner-Denver. They are available in both tank mounted and stationary type, and new or rebuilt ones are stocked up to 160 hp.

Smith rebuilds all makes of compressors, from the smallest to largest.

Not just another "standard" motor, its features include higher thrust capacity, drip-proof enclosure with ventilating openings designed to minimize entry of rain and particles so that this type of motor is suitable for outside applications in relatively dry climates or sheltered locations.

End brackets are rigid grey iron castings machined with precision; the stator is of welded construction and consists of electric steel laminations, heat treated to improve interlaminar insulation and to reduce iron losses.

The stator winding is carried out with synthetic enamel covered wire, with the stator wire fully insulated from the core and between phases to give a true Class F system.

Consider the other superior features, too, that include 1.15 service factor, robust welded steel frame, heavy construction (compare weights), cooler motor, large double-gasketed conduit box for easy and safe connections, permanently installed lifting lugs, and extremely quiet operation.

"All of these features give you greater hp output and longer motor life" is the observation and promise of Smith Electric and Leroy-Somer.

Select from sizes of 75 hp to 200 hp, with units kept in stock at W.M. Smith Electric Co., 1911 Clovis Road.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My wife and I want to establish a fund for the education of a new grandson. We would add $1,000 each year, until he is 18. Following the advice in your column, we would have this set up in "gift to minors act" form, with his father as custodian.

Would you recommend we put the money into a bond mutual fund, with good dividends but no growth? Or would you suggest we put it into a common stock mutual fund, with low dividends and maybe some growth?

I owned three common stock mutual funds between 1965 and 1975 and didn't do well at all. I would have done better with a savings account at 5 or 5.25 percent interest.

A. Despite your unhappy experience, my recommendation would be for a growth mutual fund — one which invests in stocks which are expected to grow in market value.

Not all mutual funds did badly from 1965 through 1975. Many performed quite well. You have to remember that the stock market in general was no world-beater in the 1970s. The prices of many stocks are still below the highs they reached during the "go-go era" of the late 1960s.

Meanwhile, the earnings and dividends of most stocks have gone upward. As a result, stock prices — in relation to their earnings and dividends — now have to be counted as being low on a historic basis.

While this doesn't mean that stock prices are certain to go up in the years ahead, it does indicate that an upward move in the market is more likely now than it was 10 years ago.

For a steady investment in a young child's education fund, a mutual fund which invests in good common stocks just seems to be a sensible thing. Because you have some experience with mutual funds, I'm sure you'll pick a "no-load" fund on which there is no commission charge.

Q. Somebody told me that Federal Farm Credit Bank (FFCB) bonds pay at least 1 percent more interest than six-month savings certificates. Is this true? Can you tell me how FFCB works?

A. There have been times when FFCB bonds due in six months have paid 1 percent more interest than six-month savings certificates and six-month U.S. Treasury bills. The latter two have the same yields.

As I write this, however, the difference is yield — in favor of FFCB bonds — is closer to one-quarter of 1 percent.

The "FFCB Consolidated System" securities — better known as FFCB bonds — have been issued since 1977. They come in the form of discount notes, with maturities of from five to 270 days, and bonds maturing in six months, nine months or longer.

There are 37 Farm Credit Banks — 12 Federal Land Banks, 12 Federal Intermediate Credit Banks and 13 Banks for Cooperatives. They were created by acts of Congress dating back to 1917.

For details on their operations and FFCB bonds write to the Fiscal Agency for Farm Credit Banks, 90 William Street, New York, N.Y. 10038. Ask for the booklet, "An Investor's Guide to Farm Credit Securities."

Q. My father is 69 and in super health. He has $300,000 in bank certificates of deposit paying an average of 13.4 percent, a pension of $1,500 a month and a $100,000 house all paid for.

He has been advised by a $100 a year investment service to take his money out of the bank and to get into the stock market. Does this make any sense to you?

A. None, whatsoever. Your father is in great physical and financial shape to enjoy his retirement. He's probably in much better financial shape than the clown who is putting out that "investment service."

Do your dad a favor, by insisting that he put that $100 a year to better use — such as greens fees or fishing tackle. + + +

Child Care Tax Credit Now Available

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the eighth in a series of tax tip articles provided by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants.)

Over the past year, there has been an increase in the number of working mothers and single-parent families. Consequently, the cost of child care has had a significant bearing on the family budget.

A tax credit is now available to parents who pay someone to watch their children while they work. The child care tax credit enables parents to cut their taxes by $400 for one child and $800 for two or more children.

Computing the credit is not difficult. Figure 20 percent of the first $2,000 spent during the year on child care for one child. For two or more, figure 20 percent of the first $4,000 spent.

The "Child Care Credit," officially titled the Credit for Child and Dependent Care expenses, has two major uses. Although most claimants are parents of small children, the credit is also available to working persons who must pay for care of a disabled spouse or other dependent.

To qualify for the credit, you must: have maintained a household with one child under 15 years of age or a disabled dependent; have paid the expenses to enable you to be gainfully employed; file a joint return if married; and have made the child care payments to persons other than your spouse or person you can claim as your dependent. You may use payments you made to relatives who are not your dependents, even if they lived in your home.

Taxpayers making child care payments and working part-time or attending school full-time are also entitled to the child care credit. However, one of the parents must be working at the time.

These and other questions concerning your 1979 tax return will be answered in the Taxpayer Education program. This public service course, jointly-sponsored by the Lubbock Chapter of the Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Internal Revenue Service will be offered Feb. 12 and 14, 7-10 p.m.

More than 30 CPAs will volunteer their time to assist taxpayers during a two-night informal program, which provides both instruction and question-and-answer sessions. The course is available to the public at a charge of $1 per person to cover administrative costs.

To register for the Taxpayer Education program, simply fill out the registration form below. Money and registration form must be mailed by Jan. 28, 1980.

Classes in Lubbock will be held at Lubbock High School, Atkins Junior High School, Evans Junior High School, Smiley Wilson Junior High School and L. Slaton Junior High School.

Other locations include: Roosevelt School, Plainview School, Littlefield High School and Floydada High School.

Early Version Of Painting Sold

BIRMINGHAM, Mich. (AP) — An early version of the 19th century Frederic Edwin Church painting "Icebergs," was sold at auction for $225,000, an auction firm says.

The larger, and more famous rendering of "Icebergs," was sold last October for $2.5 million, the largest sum ever paid for a painting by an American artist and the third highest for any painting.

The smaller painting, sold Saturday at a Birmingham art auction, had been owned by Church's great-grandson, who lives in Birmingham.

Dave Stalker, a partner in the Stalker and Boos art gallery which handled the auction and consulted with the heir on the sale, said "it seemed like a good time to sell it."

An unidentified Bloomfield Hills, Mich., businessman just starting an art collection bought the painting using a pre-arranged signal with the auctioneer. Two bidders at the art gallery competed with three others connected by telephone hook-up from New York, Las Vegas, Nev., and Los Angeles.

Stalker said the buyer remained anonymous because of concern for the security of the painting.

The sale of the painting went about as expected, Stalker said. The work had been appraised for $50,000 two years ago, but he said there were estimates it would bring from $200,000 to $400,000.

The smaller "Icebergs" was painted between 1859 and 1861, said David Huntington, a University of Michigan art history professor.

According to Huntington, "It's sort of a preview of the final work. Church used it to test his ideas. It's a very important stage in the process."

The smaller work has two shipwrecks, whereas the larger version has only one, Huntington said.

COST OF RURAL LIVING

The cost of living in a rural area is about 20 percent less than in a metropolis, but individual incomes are 20 percent lower too, according to The Conference Board. Rural residents do not spend as much as their big-city counterparts on housing, local taxes and public services. But the places where they live offer considerably fewer and less varied job opportunities.

Former Imprisoned Missionary Dies At 80

CHICAGO (AP) — The Rev. Harold William Rigney, an American missionary who spent four years in a Red Chinese prison during the mid-1950s, was eulogized as a man who made a life of service.

Rigney died last Wednesday in suburban Evanston Hospital. He was 80.

In 1951, Rigney was arrested while serving as rector of the Fu Jen Catholic University in Peking by the new Chinese Communist government and charged with being an American spy.

He and 41 other Americans were released in 1955 after a nationwide letter-writing campaign begun in Chicago by the Back of the Yards Council, a civic organization.

Rigney's time in prison was recounted in his book, "Four Years in a Red Hell."

At a funeral Saturday, Joseph Meegan, director of the Back of the Yards Council, recalled that Rigney went to China at the age of 51 because "the suffering of the Chinese people was immense at that time."

With the support of former U.S. Rep. John W. McCormack, then House majority leader, and the Roman Catholic Archdiocese in Chicago, Meegan began the campaign that eventually led to a meeting with U. Alexis Johnson, the U.S. representative to the negotiating sessions with the Chinese being held in 1955 in Geneva, Switzerland.

Rigney, a Chicago native, received a doctorate from the University of Chicago School of Divinity and was ordained in 1937. He was commissioned a chaplain in the U.S. Army during World War II.

SUPERMARKETS BOYCOTTED

MONTEBELLO, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez, marking the first anniversary of the UFW's strike against California and Arizona lettuce growers, has announced a boycott of the Lucky Stores supermarket chain. During a Saturday protest of about 150 farm workers outside one of the markets here, Chavez said Lucky had been selected since it and its subsidiaries such as Gemco were the only California stores still carrying Red Coach lettuce. Red Coach is the label of lettuce produced by Bruce Church Inc., the is the largest of eight companies yet to reach agreement with the UFW.

Exxon plans record energy investments in 1980.

This year, Exxon plans to invest more than $6.6 billion worldwide in new energy projects.

Most of the money ($6.1 billion) will be spent to find, develop and distribute new supplies of oil and natural gas.

The remainder of more than $500 million will be spent to provide additional energy from other sources, such as coal and uranium.

For the past ten years, Exxon's worldwide energy investments have totaled 1½ times as much as its profits.

Exxon's outlook is for steadily growing expenditures in the years ahead.

'Curtain' Claims Fourth Title

Super Steelers Rock Rams

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — It was a different kind of Super Bowl for Terry Bradshaw and the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Oh, nothing so serious as the outcome. The Steelers won the National Football League championship game, beating off a determined Los Angeles challenge 31-19 as Bradshaw shattered two passing records while firing a pair of touchdown bombs to Lynn Swann and John Stallworth.

It was an unprecedented fourth Super Bowl crown for the Steelers, but Bradshaw said it was the first one he really worried about.

"I couldn't shake the thought of losing," the quarterback said. "And I couldn't sleep last night. It was the first time that's happened to me."

Finally, Bradshaw began thinking positively, just in time.

"I decided we'd win 28-7 and Benny Cunningham would be the hero," he said.

Only one part of the prediction paid off, but it was the important one — the Steelers victory. "It was the most satisfying Super Bowl," said Bradshaw, named the game's most valuable player for the second straight year. "We had a chance to set some history and we did it."

The team history was a fourth championship and the personal history were Super Bowl records for career yardage and touchdowns. Bradshaw hit Swann with a 47-yarder and busted the game open with a 73-yard pass play to Stallworth that brought Pittsburgh from behind in the fourth quarter.

"The TD to Swann was a delayed blitz," the quarterback said. "I didn't see the catch. I only heard the crowd."

"We had a chance for an interception on Swann's catch," said Los Angeles coach Ray Malavasi, recalling how the Pittsburgh receiver had made an acrobatic catch between two defenders.

But the play of the game was the 73-yarder to Stallworth.

"That was against a prevent defense on third down," Bradshaw said. "It was a hook and go from the slot. All we've run off that play all year is a hook and slide."

The Steelers had put in the wrinkle last week, and Bradshaw wasn't happy with it until Sunday. "It's a funny thing," he said. "I ran it eight times in practice and it didn't work at all."

Defensive back Eddie Brown took the responsibility for Stallworth's catch. "I just blew it," he said. "I should have gone in the middle, but I took the outside receiver instead of the inside. I played it like we had five defensive backs, but we had six. I should have been there."

Malavasi agreed. "We had an audible busted on that one," he said.

The two long passes were the difference as the Steelers wore down the persistent Rams. But it was no simple task and Bradshaw's pregame jitters proved justified.

Derided as 11-point underdogs, Los Angeles played inspired football and led 19-17 as the fourth quarter began. What's more, by then Bradshaw was operating without Swann, who was knocked out on a crushing hit by cornerback Pat Thomas in the third period.

But the veteran Pittsburgh quarterback would not be denied. On the Steelers' first possession of the final quarter, he faced a third-and-8 at his own 27-yard line.

The Steelers sent Stallworth on a fly pattern down the middle of the field and Bradshaw led his man perfectly. The fleet wide receiver simply outspurred cornerback Thomas and caught the ball easily, dashing into the end zone with the touchdown that put Pittsburgh in front 24-19.

Now Vince Ferragamo, the gallant young quarterback of the Rams, who was starting only his eighth professional game, tried to bring his team back. Passes of 24 yards to Preston Dennard and 15 to Billy Waddy had the Rams on the move at the Pittsburgh 32 as the capacity Rose Bowl crowd of 103,985 roared in excitement.

But the bubble burst for the youngster, who inherited the starting job in a sea of midseason injuries, on the next play. He pressed his luck, trying for one more pass, and it was one too many.

Middle linebacker Jack Lambert intercepted for the Steelers and Bradshaw went back to work.

Again he launched a long pass for Stallworth, who gathered in the 45-yard pitch, carrying Pittsburgh to the Los Angeles 23. It was Stallworth's third catch of the day and pushed his yardage total to 121.

Bradshaw finished just 9 yards short of the single-game passing record of 318 he established last year, when Pittsburgh defeated Dallas 35-31.

Terry Bradshaw: Man Of The Hour

Bradshaw Wins MVP

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw, voted Sunday the Super Bowl's Most Valuable Player a second consecutive year, termed it "My most satisfying Super Bowl."

Only Bart Starr, former Green Bay quarterback and the Packers' current coach, had won two MVP awards. He did it in the first two Super Bowls, before the game had its name or its roman numerals.

Bradshaw said of his fourth Super Bowl victory: "I felt more pressure. We were playing in the Los Angeles area and hadn't beaten them (the Rams). I thought about the Rams for two weeks."

Although Chuck Noll-coached Steelers teams had lost to Los Angeles three times without a victory in past years, this time the victory went to Pittsburgh, 31-19.

Bradshaw, who receives an automobile from a national sports magazine along with the award, said he felt the three big plays were touchdown passes to Lynn Swann and John Stallworth and another bomb to Stallworth that set up the game's final touchdown.

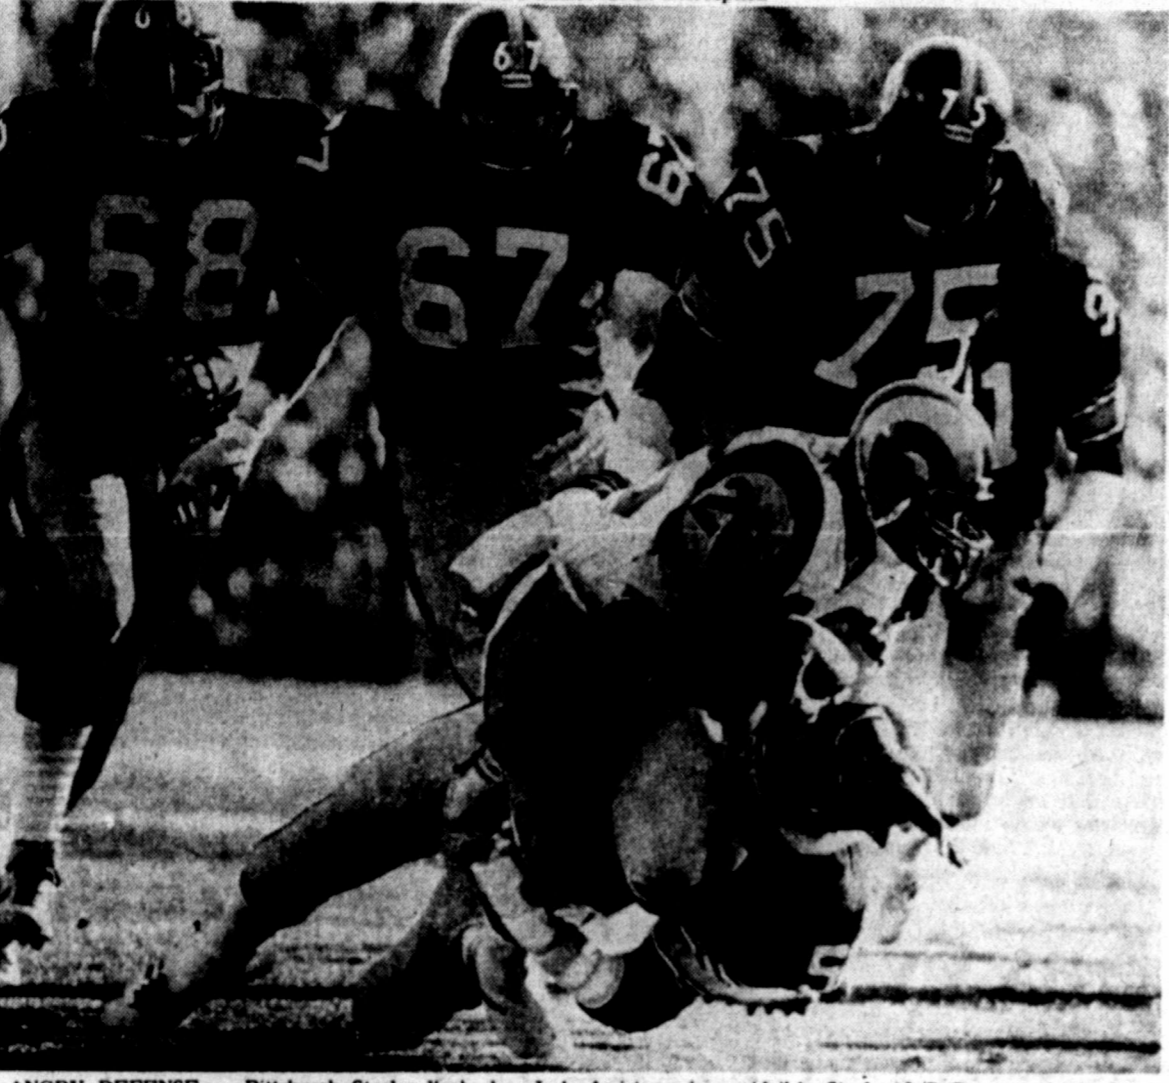

Bradshaw said of his award: "I was surprised to get the MVP, usually it doesn't go to someone who throws three interceptions."

But he set a pair of records with two touchdown passes that gave him nine for his Super Bowl career — one better than the mark held by Roger Staubach of Dallas. And he amassed 309 passing yards Sunday, pushing his lifetime Super Bowl total to 932 — another record.

Asked if he thought this was Pittsburgh's finest team, he answered quickly. "I would say it has to be. Everybody was shooting for us."

Asked if he had any plans of retirement, Bradshaw answered only. "I'm going to take three months off and search myself. I'll get down to the ranch and get away from people. I'll think about football and how much it means to me."

"I'm really excited about this game, but never so glad a game was over."

Jeff Mitchell Conquers Phoenix Competition

PHOENIX (AP) — Jeff Mitchell won it in a walk, scoring by four big strokes Sunday in the $300,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

If it hadn't been easy, it may not have happened at all, said Mitchell, of Lubbock.

"I had two strokes at the turn and then birdied No. 10 and nobody really got close. If somebody had been right on my heels, I don't know if I could have won it or not. I really don't know if my nerves would have stood it."

"I was just lucky that it didn't happen."

And it didn't. No one really threatened the young man who was scoring his first victory in four years of PGA tour activity.

"It just seemed like it was supposed to happen," he said after finishing a 4-under-par 67 with a birdie putt on the final hole, a stroke that nailed it down and — finally — coaxed a smile to the blank, poker-face he'd worn all day.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "When I hit it in the fairway on the 18th, I knew I had it then. Nothing was sure until then. Anything could have happened. But when I got it in the fairway on the 18th, it was like this rush came over me. What a feeling."

Mitchell, 25, won the $54,000 first prize — which compares with the $38,032 he won all of last year — with a 272 total.

Mitchell started in front, never trailed, had a two-shot margin at the turn and led by a minimum of three shots in his stroll through the bright, warm desert sunshine over the back nine.

Rik Massengale, once one of the game's brighter young prospects but in a deep slump for the past 2½ seasons, burst out of the pack with a brilliant, six-under-par 65 and came from six strokes back to claim second at 276 — his best finish since winning the Bob Hope Desert Classic three years ago.

"When I started out, I had no hope of getting into second, just hoping maybe I could shoot 68 or 69," Massengale said.

"But I kept looking at the leader board and everybody kept backing up and I kept making birdies and, boy, am I loving it."

He won $32,400, more than surpassing the $29,377 he won in the last two full seasons combined.

Mike Sullivan, a non-winner who finished second in the Hope last week, was third alone this time at 277 after a closing 69. That pushed his winnings for the past two weeks to $44,600, more than he won all of last year.

Tom Kite, Jack Renner, Charles

Coody, Rod Curl and Bill Rogers were next at 278. Kite came from well back with a 66. Rogers shot 68, Renner 69 and Coody and Curl matched 70s. None, however, really got into title contention.

Hubert Green, who started the day as the only man within three strokes of the leader, had the best shot at the eventual winner, but drifted back with a 73 that put him at 279.

Defending champion Ben Crenshaw never really got in contention. He shot a closing 68 for 279.

Mitchell started the day with a single shot lead over Green and three over the rest of the field. He birdied two holes on the front side and stretched that to two strokes at the turn.

And that was all he needed. He birdied the 10th and led by a minimum of three the rest of the way, finally breaking into a broad smile when a 20-foot birdie putt found the cup for a finishing flourish on the 72nd hole.

Carter's Deadline Threatens Games

NEW YORK (AP)—The question remains: will the United States participate in the Moscow Olympics? And after President Carter's statement Sunday, that appeared to be the only question aside from whether the Soviets would pull their troops out of Afghanistan.

Carter asked the U.S. Olympic Committee to go to the International Olympic Committee, which owns the Olympics, and ask the IOC to move the Summer Games out of Moscow, postpone them or cancel them. If those moves fail, as they almost certainly will, Carter asked the USOC not to send a team.

At least the USOC now has some time to work on the problem, mainly because Carter did not use the word boycott. That raises the question: when is a boycott not a boycott?

The dictionary defines boycott as "to combine against (a person, employer, a group of persons, or a nation) in a policy of nonintercourse for economic or political reasons." An example: to take your ball and bat and go home. But in this case, as far as the IOC is concerned, Carter did not declare a boycott.

Robert J. Kane of Ithaca, N.Y., president of the USOC, explained that there is a difference in declaring an official boycott of the Olympics and in simply not sending a team.

Julian Roosevelt of New York, U.S. member of the IOC, agreed. "That's a very important point, a very important distinction," he said.

Any member nation of the IOC may decide for whatever reason not to field a team in a given event or a given set of games. But, as Kane said, "A boycott (at this time) would take us out of the Olympic Movement and we would have no voice in deliberations, no part in decision-making, no chance to watch and see if world tension might be calmed."

Kane was asked what chance the USOC had of getting the IOC to move the Games out of Moscow or have them postponed or canceled.

"It doesn't appear to be very good right now," he replied. "But we have some time, some flexibility now. A boycott wouldn't have given us any flexibility. We have a chance to assess the world situation and see what is coming about. We have a chance to talk with other nations and get some allies in this."

Carter set a deadline of a month, but he still gave the USOC some breathing room. For one thing, no nation has to formally accept the invitation to the Moscow Games until May 19 and doesn't have to make final entries until July. The USOC meets next weekend and the full IOC meets in Lake Placid just before the Winter Games in February. It is at that time that the Americans will try to convince other nations that they shouldn't play games in the backyard of someone who is invading another country.

But Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said flatly last week that "the Games cannot be moved or canceled." He pointed out that "the Olympics belong just as much to the East as to the West." And he said, "No one is obliged to send athletes to the Olympic Games."

Asked if he would favor U.S. participation in the Olympics if the Soviets do not withdraw from Afghanistan, Carter replied: "No, neither I nor the American people would support the sending of an American team to Moscow with Soviet troops in Afghanistan."

"I've sent a message today (Sunday) to the United States Olympic Committee spelling out my position — that unless the Soviets withdraw their troops within a month from Afghanistan that the Olympic Games be moved from Moscow to an alternate site, or multiple sites, or postponed, or canceled."

"If the Soviets do not withdraw their troops immediately from Afghanistan within a month, I would not support the sending of an American team to the Olympics. It is very important for the world to realize how serious a threat the Soviet's invasion of Afghanistan is."

Carter's pronouncement came only two days after U.S. Olympic officials met at the White House with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and Carter aides to voice their objections to any boycott request by the administration.

After the more than two-hour meeting, Kane said that if Carter requested the withdrawal of American athletes, the USOC would immediately poll prospective members of the team. Then, the 86-member USOC Executive Board would make a decision on whether to enter athletes at Moscow.

The USOC Executive Board meets for three days beginning Friday in Colorado Springs, Colo. The IOC will meet Feb. 10-12 in Lake Placid, the day before Carter is scheduled to open the Winter Games.

Since the Carter administration began raising trial balloons on the possibility of a U.S. Olympic boycott, there has been increasing Congressional, public and, lately, athlete support for a position of either boycotting the Moscow Games or moving them to another site.

Carter said Sunday "I do not want to inject politics into the Olympics. And I would personally favor the establishment of a permanent Olympics site for both the Summer and Winter Games. In my opinion, the most appropriate permanent site for the Summer Games would be Greece."

"This will be my own position and I have asked the U.S. Olympic Committee to take this position to the International Olympic Committee and I would hope that as many nations as possible would support this basic position."

Carter said that 104 nations voted in the United Nations against the Soviet invasion and called for an immediate withdrawal and, "I would hope as many of them as possible would support the position I just outlined to you."

Asked if the United States would be put in an isolated position without inflicting much damage to the Soviet position if he did not receive the support, Carter replied: "Regardless of what other nations do, I would not favor the sending of an American Olympic team to Moscow while the Soviet invasion troops are in Afghanistan."

U.S. Athletes Differ In Opinions

By The Associated Press

American athletes and Olympic officials were sharply divided in their opinions of President Carter's call Sunday to move, postpone or cancel the Moscow Summer Olympics if the Soviet Union does not remove its forces from Afghanistan within a month.

Many voiced support for the president, who made his statement on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"We're Americans first and athletes second," said Lee Palles, the United States' eighth-ranked decathlon competitor. "I pretty much support the president. But I would really appreciate it if they move the games to another site, even if they have to delay it a year."

Four-time Olympic gold medalist Al Oerter, a 43-year-old discus thrower, said: "I think now is the time to put aside personal considerations and stand behind the president."

But others were disappointed that after long, arduous training, they might not get to compete.

"I don't think he should demand, ask or even think of doing something like this," said Phil Gruppaldi, an Olympic silver medalist in weightlifting in 1972, now a physical education teacher in Belleville, N.J. "The Olympics come along every four years. I've worked long and hard for this opportunity... It's very disheartening, and if I make the team I might just get on a plane and go on my own. I don't expect to get into another Olympics."

Franklin Jacobs, the American record-holder in the high jump, said: "Since I took up the high jump in 1977, my major objective has been to win a gold medal in the Olympics... there have been many nights when I have dreamed of myself standing on the victory stand with the gold medal draped around my neck."

But Jacobs was among 14 track and field athletes who signed a petition over the weekend favoring moving the games.

"What the Russians did in Afghanistan wasn't right, and I know President Carter has to come up with a forceful response," he said.

Others were angry that Carter had asked athletes to make a stand for the nation while the U.S. does not subsidize their training.

"Carter said 'we' are going to boycott the Olympics," said Anita DeFrantz, a bronze medalist in rowing in the 1976 Olympics who took a leave from her law practice to train for this year's events. "I don't understand the 'we.' Where was he when I was out there freezing... I rowed all of last year except when the river was frozen."

Julian Roosevelt of New York, the American representative on the International Olympic Committee, said, "It disturbs me a great deal that politicians and our so-called leaders in Washington must so openly admit defeat in their own bailiwick — politically, diplomatically, economically and militarily... and call upon the Olympic Movement, which has been a force for good in the world for over 80 years through two World Wars, to pull their fat out of the fire."

In other arenas, opinion seemed more favorable to Carter's position. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said he supported a boycott of the Olympics. "But I want to make it very clear that a grain embargo and a boycott of the Olympics are basically symbols, and symbols are no substitute for an effective foreign policy." Canada's minister of fitness and amateur sports, Steve Paproski, announced Saturday that his country was ending an amateur sports agreement with the Soviet Union, which provided for meets in swimming, diving, judo and gymnastics.

And there was another approach — "I have looked at the alternatives — boycott, postponement, cancellation — and I think our best move is to go over there and beat the pants off the Russians," said Craig Virgin, a long-distance runner.

Roosevelt said the president had done "a tremendous disservice to the athletes. It undermines their training. We're playing right into their (the Soviets') hands, while they continue with their training. I think they're sitting over there laughing up their sleeves at us."

Vladimir Bukovsky, an exiled Soviet dissident, said from London that participating in the Olympics in Moscow would provide the Soviets with currency they would use for further military ventures. "I wonder whether any Games in the world are worth a single human life," Bukovsky said.

Rams Retain Pride Despite Bowl Defeat

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams didn't earn a Super Bowl championship's ring Sunday, but defensive end Jack Youngblood felt they earned something more important.

"If anybody calls us dogs any more, I wish they'd do it to my face," said Youngblood, who, despite a hairline fracture of his left leg, played in the Rams' 31-19 Super Bowl XIV loss to Pittsburgh Sunday.

"I think we earned respect. I think people saw that we can play anybody, any time."

The Rams, whose 9-7 mark was the worst record of any team in the National Football League playoffs, went into the Super Bowl as 11-point underdogs. They lost by 12. But they led Pittsburgh for most of three quarters and part of the fourth, until a 73-yard touchdown pass play from quarterback Terry Bradshaw to John Stallworth put the Steelers ahead 24-19.

A Pittsburgh interception of Rams quarterback Vince Ferragamo later in the final period, and a pass interference call on Los Angeles cornerback Pat Thomas ended the Los Angeles hopes.

"I think we played well," said Rams coach Ray Malavasi. "We led three quarters and into the fourth, then they got a couple of big plays on us to turn the game around."

Ferragamo, making only his eighth professional start, completed 15 of 25 pass attempts for 212 yards, however, after the Rams had lost their first Super Bowl appearance, he dwelled on the crucial interception he threw.

Los Angeles cornerback Rod Perry looked like the goat of the game since Bradshaw completed one touchdown pass to Lynn Swann and another long gain to Stallworth over his coverage.

"They have those two great receivers, and it's just difficult to cover them," said Perry. "On the pass to Swann, I jumped, but just didn't get high enough. On the Stallworth touchdown, there was a bust in our coverage. I was supposed to get help and I didn't."

The other Rams' cornerback, Thomas, would say only of the official's call against him that set up the Steelers' final score: "It was sorry."

Although most of the Los Angeles players were exhausted, they were proud of the way they had played.

"We went out and played as well as we could play, as hard as we could," said safety Dave Elmendorf. "And that's really what it's all about."

Running back Wendell Tyler, who gained 60 yards on 17 carries, was the only Rams player who had any criticism of the Steelers.

"It surprised me that after they tackle you, they throw you back and maul you," he said. "I don't really see any need for that."

Steelers' Savvy Wins Super Bowl

The performance earned Bradshaw the game's Most Valuable Player Award for the second consecutive year, making him only the second man in Super Bowl history to win the honor a second time. Bart Starr of Green Bay was voted MVP honors in each of the first two Super Bowls.

The touchdown catches by Swann and Stallworth were the third for each of the two brilliant Steelers' receivers in his career. That set still another Super Bowl mark.

For three periods, this game — one of the most exciting in the history of the contest — belonged to the underdog Rams, a lame-duck team that was often booed through the season and came into this final game as a distinct longshot against the awesome Steelers.

They held a 13-10 halftime lead and fans sitting through a spectacular half-time show that seemed to set the Rose Bowl into a huge Roman candle wondered if the magic could continue in the second half. But for thousands of the fans who had taken the long journey from Pittsburgh bringing their black-and-gold hats and jackets, the halftime had to be an upsetting interlude as they waited to see if indeed the Steelers could come back.

Poll Selects Fouts Best

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Dan Fouts, the record-setting quarterback of the San Diego Chargers, has been selected the 1979 Player of the Year in the National Football League by a panel of NFL experts and the editors of Football Digest.

Others honored were: Dick Vermeil, Philadelphia, coach of the year; Fouts, best quarterback; John Hannah, New England, best offensive lineman; John Jefferson, San Diego, best receiver; Earl Campbell, Houston, best running back; Lee Roy Selmon, Tampa Bay, best defensive lineman; Randy Gradisher, Denver, best linebacker; Lemar Parrish, Washington, best defensive back; and Rich Mauti, New Orleans, best special teams player.

The magazine also selected running back Otis Anderson of St. Louis as the offensive rookie of the year and linebacker Jim Haslett of Buffalo as the defensive rookie of the year.

The Rams' halftime lead came on Corral's second field goal of the game, a 45-yarder that was just three yards short of the Super Bowl record set by Stan Stenerud of Kansas City in 1970.

That three-pointer was set up by Dave Elmendorf's interception — only the second thrown by Bradshaw in a Super Bowl.

Bradshaw, working on first down at his own 38, had plenty of time and threw for Swann. But Elmendorf — the Rams' all-time interception leader with 27 — settled in front of the pass, picked it off, and returned it to the Steelers' 39 to set up the field goal.

The inspired first-half play seemed to awaken a legion of Los Angeles fans, who were all but swallowed up in the sea of gold-and-black that enveloped the Rose Bowl. Rams fans, tentative at first, were cheering for their team by halftime.

Rooney Refuses To Gloat

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Venerable Art Rooney could not gloat over Pittsburgh's fourth Super Bowl victory Sunday — he had too much sympathy in his 78-year-old heart for the losers.

"I know how they felt, because I went so many years myself in frustration," the white-haired chairman of the board said after his Steelers had beaten the Los Angeles Rams 31-19 in the Rose Bowl.

"They played a wonderful game, those boys from Los Angeles," said Rooney, who will be 79 in six days. "They should be proud. Just as I am proud of my boys. These are the most gentlemanly fellows I have ever had. None of them ever gets fat-headed."

The colorful Rooney, who purchased the Pittsburgh franchise in 1933 for $12,000 which friends say he won at a race-track, went 41 years before he saw his team win a National Football League championship.

The Steelers won their first title in 1974, repeated in 1975 and came back to win again last year.

Rooney, son of a Pittsburgh saloon-keeper, lives in a house he has occupied for 40 years. He was designated to toss the opening coin before Sunday's game.

"I don't know why they selected me," he said, almost apologetically. "It was all right when George Halas did it last year. But it was a surprise when they picked me."

He was driven into the stadium in an open antique automobile and taken off in a golf cart after swapping pleasantries with Georgia Rosenbloom, owner and president of the Rams since the death last year off her husband, Carroll.

The unpretentious Steeler owner, who wears thick glasses, puffed constantly on a cigar but moved crisply from the field to his position on the roof of the Rose Bowl stadium.

"That referee kept my coin," he said, appearing to be a little ill at ease. "I have asked Jack Hand (an assistant to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle) to get it back for me."

Halas used a $20 gold piece last year, but Rooney was equipped with a large commemorative medal inscribed Super Bowl VI. The mintage has not caught up with the times.

Rooney has delegated direction of the club to his sons, Dan and Art Jr., and personally does not interfere with operations.

"I never go into the lockerroom if I can help it," he said. "That's for the players and coaches."

That has been an unusual sound to the ears of the Rams, who are moving down the freeway to Anaheim next season.

At the start, the Steelers jumped in front with an impressive 11-play drive capped by Matt Bahr's 41-yard field goal.

The big play of the march was a 32-yard pass over the middle from Bradshaw to Harris.

The Rams came right back after Bahr's kickoff blew short and gave Los Angeles the ball on its own 41. On second down, Wendell Tyler drove 39 yards down the left side to the Pittsburgh 14.

Lawrence McCutcheon picked up 12 yards over the next three plays for a first down at the 2, and Cullen Bryant ran into the end zone — giving the Rams the lead.

The Steelers' Larry Anderson, who set a Super Bowl record by returning three kickoffs 115 yards in the first half alone, dashed 45 yards after the Bryant touchdown, and Pittsburgh cashed in on a nine-play drive capped by Harris' 11-yard plunge into the end zone.

But again the Rams came right back. Ferragamo looked brilliant on passes of 11 yards to Tyler and 16 to McCutcheon. Then, a 20-yard pass interference call against Pittsburgh's Donnie Shell kept the Rams in business and set the stage for Corral's first field goal, a 31-yarder which tied the score at 10-10 halfway through the second quarter.

No Super Bowl has ever been tied at halftime. Thanks to Elmendorf's interception and Corral's second field goal, that pattern continued Sunday.

But the Steelers have never lost a Super Bowl, either, and — thanks to Bradshaw's second-half magic — that pattern continued as well.

Decker, Hereford Run Ahead Of Plans

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Coach Bob Decker wasn't just listening to himself talk when he commented, "I think we've got a shot (at the District 4-AAAA title). I really believe that."

The only thing is: Decker expected Hereford to mount a charge in the second half of conference play, not the first go-round.

"Our best chance is in the second half," noted Decker. "That's when we have our best schedule."

And, Decker added, the Whitefaces still need a little more time to "get the football out of our system. We have a lot of kids that played football that are playing basketball, too. They need some more time to work. That's why I like our chances in the second half, more so, let's say, than in the first half."

But a strange thing happened to Hereford on its way to the final four games of the year. On Friday night, the Whitefaces upped and pulled the rug out from under Plainview, a team some loop coaches felt might challenge pre-district favorite Monterey for the crown. Hereford won the affair, in the HHS gym, 52-48.

The win leaves the Decker-coached crew with a 1-0 conference mark and atop the District 4-AAAA, along with Monterey, a 70-50 winner over Lubbock High.

But the perfect mark will have to fall beside the court Tuesday night since Monterey and Hereford square off in a battle of the unbeaten. The contest, set for a 7:30 p.m. start, takes place in the Plainsmen gym.

Also on tap for Tuesday night in conference play is another key matchup, pitting Coronado and Plainview. The contest opens loop play for Coronado. And Plainview, well, Plainview needs a win if it hopes to stay just one game back of the Monterey-Hereford winner.

For most of the season, the Whitefaces have been led by Darrel Polk, a 6-5 center. Polk is currently averaging 13 points a game, third best in the league. Joe Walker is the only other Face in double figures with a 10.7 mark. "We're starting to come around," continued Decker. "Just give us some more time and we'll be all right."

Up in District 3-AAAA, Palo Duro and Pampa are moving toward a key encounter. Both opened conference play with wins Friday night. (Pampa over Caprock 77-73 and Palo Duro over Tascosa 70-56.) The two teams, the only respectable outfits in the district, will meet Friday night in Amarillo in a game that should decide the first-half champion.

One of the best races in years in District 5-AAAA is gradually shaping up. It appeared earlier in the season that Midland was by far the class of the field. But a 66-59 loss to Central last week has changed some peoples' thinking. Midland now finds itself in a tie with Permian, both at 4-1, for the lead.

Balance Shows In AAA Races

By RUSS PARSONS

District 1-AAA opened its boys' basketball play Friday night and, if you didn't believe the loop coaches when they said how tight the race would be, take a look at the first night's results.

One game will suffice. Borger, 23-2 and ranked third in the state, beat Levelland, at 6-10, the worst team in the league, by only eight points, 66-58.

Toss in a couple more cliffhangers: Canyon edging Dunbar 58-55 in Lubbock and Estacado hanging on to a 77-67 win over Dumas in Lubbock, and it looks like

Johnson's Long Shot Helps Sonics To Win

By The Associated Press
"We just were patient," said Coach Lenny Wilkens of the Seattle SuperSonics in the winners' dressing room.

"These games take a real bite out of you," said Coach Bill Fitch of the Boston Celtics. "It's like losing 10 games at once."

The SuperSonics ended a National Basketball Association duel of giants Sunday with a 108-106 victory in double overtime over the Celtics before a packed crowd of 15,320 at Boston Garden and a national television audience.

The Sonics forced overtime as Dennis Johnson hit on a three-point jump shot from the corner as the regulation final buzzer sounded.

Asked why the Celtics did not foul Johnson before he got the shot away, thereby giving up only a possible two points, Fitch said:

"We wanted to foul; we planned on fouling, but we couldn't get to the ball in time. It was a physical error, not a mental one."

Veteran guard Gus Williams scored 12 of his game-high 29 points in the two overtime periods as the Sonics handed Boston only its third loss in 23 home games this season.

Williams outdueled Boston sharpshooter Chris Ford in the two extra sessions.

Ford hit for five three-point field goals in the second overtime.

Johnson finished with 19 points and 11 rebounds, including the game-winning shot.

Wilkens said he was satisfied with the way his team played.

goals in leading Boston with 26 points. His last bomb came at the final buzzer ending the second overtime.

Ford, who triggered Boston's comeback from an eight-point deficit with a pair of long shots, put the Celtics ahead with a 22-footer good for another three points 97-95 with 17 seconds remaining in the first overtime. However, just six seconds later, Williams forced a second overtime by tying the score 97-97 with a turnaround jump shot from the top of the key.

Williams put Seattle in front to stay with two free throws in the opening seconds of the second overtime. Johnson followed with a layup, and Boston was unable to get closer than two points the rest of the way.

Bucks 89, Blazers 88
Brian Winters sank a 20-foot jump shot from the top of the key with four seconds to play, lifting the Milwaukee Bucks to a 89-88 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Marques Johnson and rookie Sidney Moncrief scored 19 points apiece with Moncrief hitting all but five of his in the second half as the Bucks broke a three-game losing streak.

Ron Brewer scored eight points in the last 4:52 for the Blazers, and his baseline jump shot gave Portland an 88-83 lead with 2:16 left.

However, the Bucks countered with a three-point goal by Dave Meyers with 1:15 left.

The Bucks missed a chance to tie when Moncrief, fouled by Bob Gross in a rebound scramble under the Milwaukee basket with 36 seconds left, sank only one of two free throws.

However, Moncrief made amends by deflecting a layup attempt by the Blazers' Kermit Washington. Moncrief came up with a loose ball and the Bucks called time with 16 seconds left.

Winters followed with his decisive shot and Brewer, who also finished with 19 points, missed a long jump shot as time expired.

Tech Lucky To File Wins... Pressure Mounts On Aggies

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

In the final analysis, all that matters is under what heading you can file the game away: W or L.

And the Red Raiders notched a couple for the W column this week and in the process ran their Southwest Conference mark to 5-1—behind only Texas A & M and Arkansas.

But the Raiders, with little more than the bat of an eye, could have emerged from last week's cage wars with a 3-3 league mark.

On Tuesday the Raiders nipped Rice 62-59 in overtime and on Saturday they tripped the Baylor Bears 69-67 in the final seconds. And in both games it was some clutch free-throw shooting by sophomore David Little that provided the margin of victory.

Little, although he didn't pile up the point totals he has at times this year, emerged as an iceman during the Raiders' two wins last week. Against Rice he was four-of-four at the line in the final 18 seconds and against the Bears he hit both ends of a one-and-one with 10 seconds remaining to cinch the win.

The Raiders get a little time off to recuperate this week—but beginning Saturday it's back to the grind. The Raiders are idle until Saturday when they travel to Dallas to tangle with the troubled SMU Mustangs in Moody Coliseum. The Ponies, after a loss to TCU Saturday, are 1-5 in league play.

On the Tuesday following the SMU contest, Tech will close out the first half of SWC action with their biggest test yet—Arkansas. The Raiders will stand either 6-1 or 5-2 going into the tilt, while the Hogs could be no worse than 5-2 and possibly 7-0 when the two meet in the Municipal Coliseum on Jan. 28.

But first, the Raiders must concentrate on SMU. Twice last week, Tech proved that the opposition's record can mean very little. Both Baylor and Rice boast only one SWC win apiece, yet both came within seconds of beating the Raiders in Tech's own backyard.

"I hate to have to say all the same things again," said Tech coach Gerald Myers, after the Raiders' win over Baylor. "but this game was just so much like the Rice game. Again, we were fortunate to win."

To put it plainly, the Raider cagers have been awfully unpredictable thus far in the season. Although they proved last week that they can play on an even level with the league's lower division teams, they also proved that they can stay with the leaders step for step.

Remember that Tech defeated the Texas Longhorns on the road, and lost to the Aggies only in the final moments of a heated battle in G. Rollie White Coliseum.

But what has marked the Raiders in conference action so far has been a remarkable balance. And that was never illustrated more clearly than on Saturday night.

All five starters finished in double figures and only six points separated Tech's high point man from the rest of the starters.

Kent Williams, who hit a big bucket against Baylor to tie the game at 67-67, and Ben Hill led the way with 16 points each. Ralph Brewster added 15 points and seven rebounds. Little had 12 tallies and Taylor added 10.

The Raiders' early-season shooting has cooled off a bit in the last two games but Tech still leads the conference in field goal percentage. Against the Bears they connected on 49 percent of their efforts. More importantly, they were 13 of 24 in the second half.

"The game could've gone either way," admitted Myers of the Baylor tilt, "but I'm not taking anything away from our guys. They kept their poise at the end and enabled us to win it."

Texas A&M and Arkansas battle Tuesday night in College Station for the undisputed Southwest Conference basketball leadership, and Razorback coach Eddie Sutton says the pressure "ought to be on them."

Both teams are 5-0, with the Aggies cruising past Rice 84-65 Saturday night in Houston while Arkansas had to pull off a minor miracle to get past Houston 60-57 before a packed house in Barnhill Arena in Fayetteville.

"In 20 years of coaching, not many wins have given me a bigger thrill. It was an unbelievable comeback," Sutton said after the Hogs rallied from a 45-31 deficit with just 12 minutes remaining.

The Cougars soon lost three top players to fouls, and Arkansas took a close win.

Arkansas forward Greg Skulman added, "I'm still trying to figure out how we came back to win." It was the third straight year Arkansas has beaten Houston in Fayetteville after trailing at the half.

"We could get beat by anyone, I can assure you of that, but I believe at the end, Arkansas and Texas A&M will be in it," Sutton said.

"Tuesday night, the pressure ought to be on them (Texas A&M) though. It's their home game. We'll get to play them in Barnhill later."

In other SWC games Saturday, Texas Tech remained a half game off the pace with a 5-1 record by beating Baylor 69-67 before 9,519 screaming fans in Lubbock and Texas Christian won its first road game in more than three years, shocking Southern Methodist 92-89 in a televised game at Dallas.

Tech benefited from a charging call against Baylor's Pat Nunley as the Bears worked for a final shot with 10 seconds to play and the score tied 67-67.

Tech's David Little made both free throws, and the Red Raiders then double teamed Baylor star Terry Teagle. The Bears went to 6-8 center Julio Gallardo for a desperation 30-foot shot at the buzzer, and Tech had the win.

"That last call could have gone either way. There were a lot of close calls. I hated it and our players hated it, but that's basketball," Baylor coach Jim Haller said.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth was ecstatic about the performance by his Horned Frogs, who hit 61.3 percent of their field goal efforts. They led by as much as 14 points, with freshman Darrell Browder scoring 24 and sophomore Eric Summers 21.

Houston, which saw a 21-point halftime lead vanish into a loss a year ago at Arkansas, led 33-22 at intermission Saturday.

The Hogs outscored Houston 29-11 in the final 12 minutes, as the Cougars lost their top shooter, Larry Rogers; best ball handler, Rob Williams; and top rebounder, Marshall Sauls, to fouls.

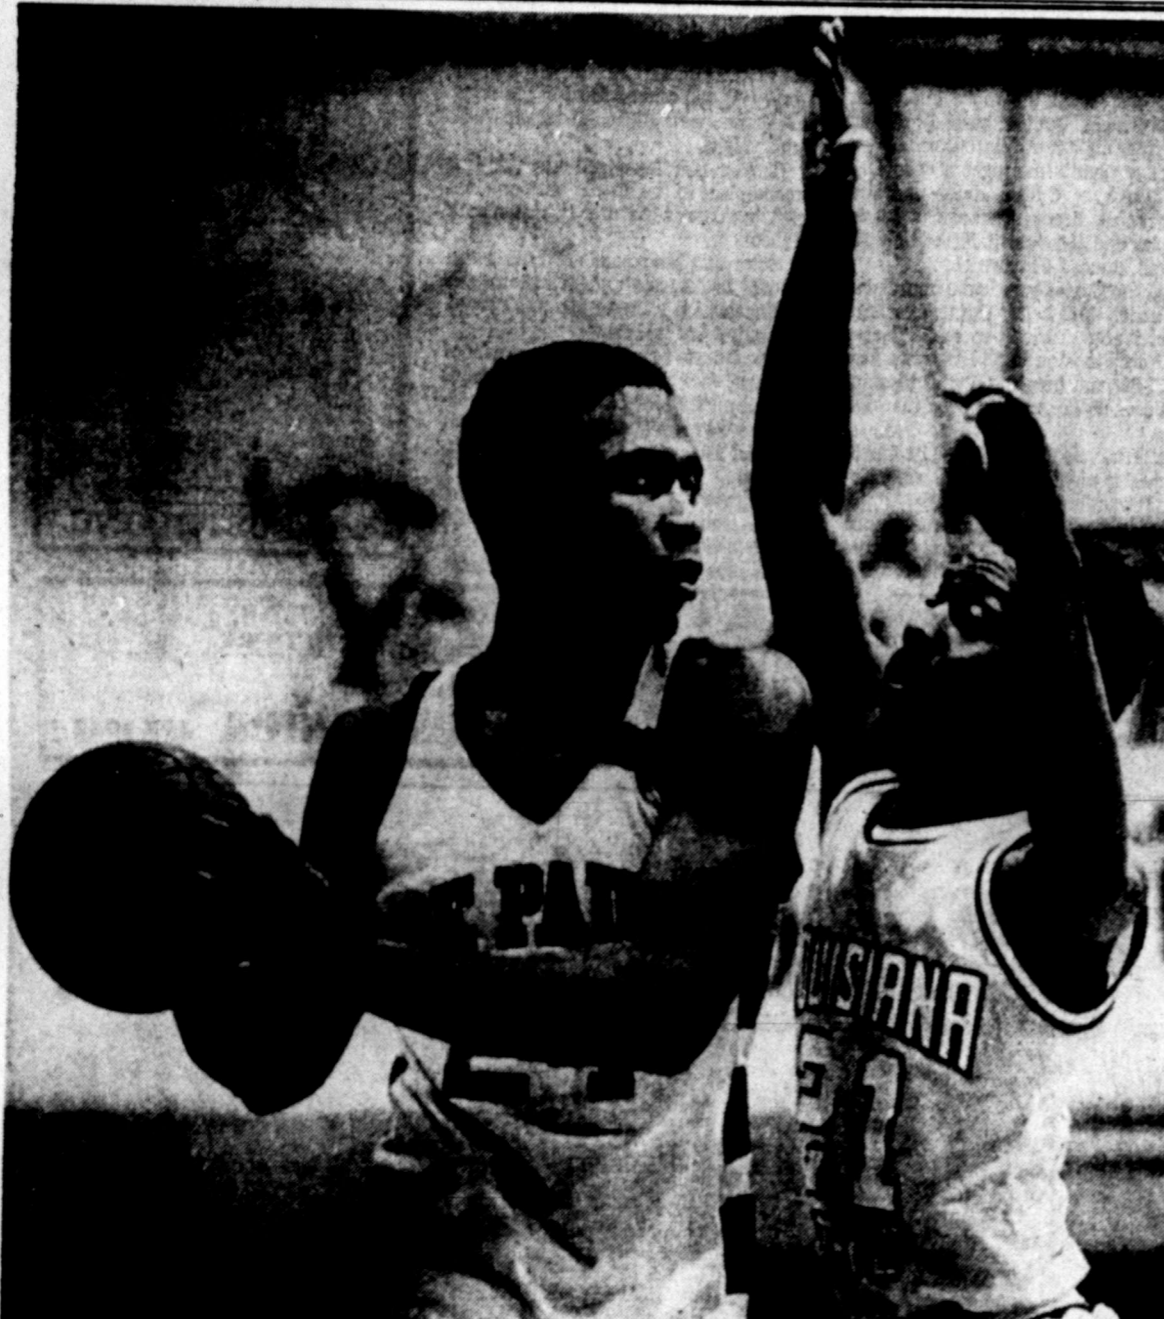

While Arkansas is at A&M, Texas (3-2) visits Baylor (1-4) in a TV game Tuesday night, Houston (2-3) is at TCU (1-5) and SMU (1-5) is at Rice (1-4).

Aguirre Paces DePaul's Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Ray Meyer, coach of DePaul's No. 1 Blue Demons, grabbed the statistic sheet Sunday and said, "What more do you want from a player," after his team had defeated 14th-ranked Louisiana State 78-73 in a nationally televised game.

The player in question was sophomore Mark Aguirre, who had been selected the game's most valuable player by the television broadcasting crew.

"He scored 31 points and he made 13 of 14 free throws. That tells me something," said Meyer. "For a guy to get 14 free throw attempts, he has to be doing something out there."

Meyer was somewhat surprised that

LSU made such a run at the Blue Demons although the Tigers lost Durand Macklin, their leading scorer, with a severe ankle sprain in the first minute of the game.

"You have to give them credit, but I wonder how many points (DeWayne) Scales would have scored if Macklin had been playing."

Scales kept the Tigers in the running by nailing 18 of his 26 points in the second half. Several times DePaul was on the verge of blowing the game open, but failed.

"I'm just happy to win," said Meyer. "We rose to the occasion. We've played to the level of our competition all year and LSU is a good team," said Meyer. "They scouted us against Lamar and Lamar killed us on the boards. I guess they thought they'd also kill us on the boards. But our guys came to play and played well in spots."

LSU Coach Dale Brown saw the game as a blessing in disguise.

"We only got five free throws to their 37. We made nine more field goals than they did and we still had a chance to win the game in the final 50 seconds," said Brown. "That's despite losing our leading scorer and rebounder and having two guys with four fouls in the second half."

"I think this might be a psychological advantage if we have to play DePaul again," Brown continued. "And not in their gym, which has to be one of the worst in the country."

The victory was DePaul's 15th and enabled the Blue Demons to remain the nation's only unbeaten major college team. LSU dropped to 11-4.

Hot-Shooting Terps Triumph

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Albert King poured in 28 points Sunday as Maryland's hot-shooting Terrapins retained possession of first place in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball race with a 92-86 victory over 9th-ranked North Carolina.

King, Buck Williams, who scored 19 points, and Ernest Graham, who added 17, teamed up to control the offensive boards and shut off the inside lanes to North Carolina. The Terps, now 5-1 in the ACC, also got excellent play from guard Greg Manning, who threw in 16 points.

The Tar Heels, unable to penetrate the tight Maryland zone, got 24 points from Mike O'Koren, who hit on his five long-range shots early in the game as the lead changed hands five times before the Terps drew away to a 40-31 halftime margin. James Worthy, who was forced to leave the game with an ankle injury, scored 13, while Al Wood added 17.

Clemson Slays Giant, Cavaliers; Upsets Abound

By The Associated Press

When you're playing basketball against Virginia, it's best to get Ralph Sampson out of the game as quickly as possible — by hook or by foul.

"We tried to make Sampson play against the ball," said Clemson coach Bill Foster. "When you have a big fellow playing against you, you have to go after him and make him play the ball more. That was one of our strategies."

The Tigers got the freshman sensation into early foul trouble and Sampson had to sit out the last 13 minutes of the first half. Sampson didn't play too much in the second half, either, fouling out with some nine minutes to go in the game.

Considerably weakened by the loss of their 7-foot-4 center, the 12th-ranked Cavaliers suffered a shocking 88-68 loss to the 18th-ranked Tigers.

Sampson only played 14 minutes in all, scoring 10 points and collecting seven rebounds, as the Tigers recorded their third impressive Atlantic Coast Conference victory in two weeks. Previously, they had pulled off upsets over Duke and North Carolina.

"The thing that I liked best was the fact that we played good defense for 40 minutes," said Foster. "Overall, our passing on offense was excellent — particularly their zone, and that enabled us to get good shots. But the defense kept us in it during the first half when we couldn't get the shots to drop."

Upsets continued to shred the Top Twenty, with No. 2 Ohio State, No. 3 Syracuse, No. 11 Purdue and No. 13 Iowa also losing Saturday. Ohio State was beaten by Michigan 75-74 in overtime; Syracuse lost a 68-67 heartbreaker to Old Dominion; Purdue dropped a 67-61 decision to Minnesota and Iowa was beaten 75-67 by Michigan State.

Elsewhere, No. 4 Oregon State beat Washington 89-84; No. 5 Duke stopped No. 16 North Carolina State 67-56; No. 6 Kentucky routed Vanderbilt 106-90; No. 7 Louisville defeated Tulane 76-59; No. 8 Notre Dame turned back UCLA 80-73; No. 10 St. John's edged Georgetown 71-69; No. 14 Louisiana State nipped No. 20 Tennessee 75-74; No. 15 Missouri trimmed Oklahoma State 69-64; No. 18

Brigham Young routed Colorado State 104-82 and No. Indiana defeated Northwestern 81-72.

Sunday, top-ranked DePaul moved past Louisiana State 78-73 as forward Mark Aguirre scored 31 points.

With Sampson out of the way for the most part, Clemson had a relatively clear shot at the boards and outbounded Virginia 46-37. John Campbell and Larry Nance collected a dozen rebounds apiece for the Tigers and teamed up for 42 points.

"Clemson played awfully well and Campbell did a heck of a job," said Virginia coach Terry Holland. "Timing is going to be very important in the Atlantic Coast Conference this year. It's going to be tough for anybody to put three wins together against league competition. Ten wins will win it (the regular season title) and nine might put you up there for a coin toss (for a first-round bye in the ACC playoffs)."

Thad Garner scored four of his 19 points in overtime to help Michigan beat Ohio State. The defeat was the first in six Big Ten games for the Buckeyes.

"We didn't have anything to worry about," Garner said. "They were the No. 2 team in the nation and we knew we could go out and just have some fun. We had nothing to lose."

Reserve Michigan guard Mark Lozier, who scored all three of his points — including the game's final point on a free throw — added, "I haven't been to church in a while, but I'm going tomorrow."

Old Dominion overcame an 11-point deficit in the last 4½ minutes to beat Syracuse. The Monarchs finally won the game on Bobby Vaughn's tip-in basket at the buzzer following three other frantic shots.

"Our press worked well during the last eight minutes of the game," said Old Dominion Coach Paul Webb. "We upset and rattled Syracuse, causing turnovers which we took advantage of by scoring."

Trent Tucker scored 19 points and Darryl Mitchell hit two clutch free throws with 17 seconds left, leading Minnesota over Purdue.

"It was a day of vindication for this team," said Minnesota's Kevin McHale, referring to a 75-70 overtime loss to Ohio State last week.

Kevin Smith scored a career-high 23 points to pace Michigan State's conquest of Iowa. Ronnie Lester, the Hawkeyes star guard, played for the first time since injuring his knee in a Christmas tournament and obviously was hampered, scoring only two points.

Ray Blume, Mark Radford and Dwayne Allen made clutch field goals in the final 31 seconds to help Oregon State beat Washington. Vince Taylor scored 18 points and Gene Banks grabbed 18 rebounds to pace Duke over North Carolina State. Duke's final 11-point margin was the closest the Wolfpack managed to come after the game's first nine minutes.

Kyle Macy scored 18 points to lead Kentucky over Vanderbilt. Darrell Griffith contributed 10 points in a 13-5 Louisville spurt early in the second half, propelling the Cardinals over Tulane. Kelly Tripucka scored 17 points in the second half after a scoreless first half to lead Notre Dame past UCLA.

Reggie Carter's three-point play in the last five seconds lifted St. John's over Georgetown. LSU beat Tennessee as DeWayne Scates scored 22 points and Durand Macklin added 21. Curtis Berry had 17 points and made two important free throws in the final three minutes to lead Missouri over Oklahoma.

Fred Roberts scored 21 points and Danny Ainge 18 as Brigham Young crushed Colorado State. Isiah Thomas scored a season-high 28 points to pace Indiana over Northwestern.

"That was a great performance by Isiah," said Northwestern Coach Rich Falk. "And he makes everyone he plays with look that much better. That's why he's so great."

Reds' Wagner Anxious For New Decade

CINCINNATI (AP) — What can the Cincinnati Reds do for an encore? In the 1970s, the team won six division championships, two National League titles and a pair of World Series crowns.

Reds' president Dick Wagner wants to match that record, pennant for pennant, in the '80s.

"It's a decade that will be hard to beat, but that's our goal," Wagner said. "I sometimes wonder if we really appreciate the great teams we've had here the last 10 years, and the accomplishments of those teams.

"We're on top, and we intend to stay there. We won the division last year and I feel we'll do it again this year."

Wagner said he accepts the '80s as a challenge to the team. But he's been telling fans at winter booster banquets that the new decade is a challenge for them, too.

"I don't mean I'm challenging the fans," he explained. "But it will be a challenge for them. The fans must try to understand what we are doing. We are trying to phase the club down in age. It takes time and it isn't easy."

That meant losing free agent Fred Norman, who may have a couple of good years left in his left arm. It also may mean the Reds won't sign free agent second baseman Joe Morgan, who is still without a team because of two mediocre seasons past.

When Pete Rose left, the Reds found Ray Knight. They're hoping newcomer Ron Oester might fill in at second base if Morgan is gone, and maybe that a lively young arm on a young pitcher like Frank Pastore can fill Norman's shoes.

"It's more difficult now to balance a ball club the way you'd like," Wagner said, referring to the free agent system. "This winter there were a couple of deals I would like to have made that we didn't make."

"The free-agent system and the way contracts are handled has changed all that. But you have to meet the system and work with it." Wagner has said he won't become heavily involved in free agency.

"In age, we'll be just about where we were in 1975. The average age will be about 28 or 29."

Wagner said with spring training only about five weeks away, he feels "like a war horse getting ready for another battle."

"I'm anxious, sure. And I'm optimistic. I think everyone in the organization is."

Movie Raises Political Questions

LONDON (AP) — "The Outsider," an American-made movie that takes a hard look at the trouble in Northern Ireland, has won critical acclaim in Britain, while stirring controversy over Britain's role in the strife-torn province.

Major theater chains and a government-funded film festival have rejected the movie, a thriller that shows British soldiers torturing a half-blind Roman Catholic boy with electrodes then smashing his fingers with a metal tray.

The low-budget — $2.8 million — movie also shows the almost exclusively Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army guerrillas cold-bloodedly executing a Protestant magistrate and blowing up innocent women on the streets of Belfast.

But the idea of their troops torturing kids is not a view many Britons have of what the Army is supposed to be doing in Northern Ireland, or why it has lost 327 men killed and thousands wounded there since 1971, the worst casualties of any campaign since the Korean War.

The movie raises political and moral questions about the 10-year-old conflict in Northern Ireland, one of the most sensitive issues in Britain.

Some critics have hailed the movie, directed by Paris-based American Tony Luraschi, as the first to show the brutal realities of the conflict.

The IRA's Provisional wing is fighting to end British rule in the Protestant-dominated province and reunite it with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic. The million-strong Protestants bitterly oppose that.

Nigel Andrews wrote in the Financial Times: "The film is a breakthrough ... in tackling the Irish question, and it's the first time a determined and intelligent force has invaded a long-standing cinematic no-go area."

Northern Ireland-born Alexander Walker said in London's Evening Standard: "Luraschi's is the first serious contribution to the Ulster debate since the crisis broke 10 years ago."

Some others dismiss "The Outsider" as pro-IRA. But Irish critic John Boland noted in Dublin's left wing Hibernia newsweekly that "it's likely to offend the Provisional IRA at least as much as the British Army because what is depicted in grizzly convincing fashion is a squalid little war where people's lives are casually expendable."

A London Film Festival panel turned down "The Outsider" in November on "aesthetic, not political, grounds."

The movie is the 40-year-old Luraschi's first feature, and is based on an unpublished novel by Colin Leinster.

It tells the story of an idealistic young Irish-American Vietnam veteran from Detroit who joins the IRA, hooked on romanticized notions of the patriot game, and winds up disillusioned and betrayed by his family and comrades.

It's a somber movie, but it captures the gritty pallor and gut-wrenching tension of Belfast's Roman Catholic ghettos, where the IRA is based.

The hero, Michael Flaherty, is played by a young American actor, Craig Wasson. The only big name in the film is Stirling Hayden, who plays Flaherty's grandfather. The rest of the cast is composed of well-known Irish and English players.

Luraschi, who also wrote the screenplay, said, "I didn't make it to give a predigested ideology to the viewer. The film, in one sense, is about manipulation."

CBS Radio Program To Focus On Young People

NEW YORK (AP) — For nearly as long as he's talked to children as TV's "Captain Kangaroo," Bob Keeshan has talked about them, too, with the recurring message, "Our attitudes toward young people are in need of improvement."

"People tell me all the time," Keeshan says, "It's tough to be a kid today. And it is difficult to be a child today, but it was difficult to be a child 60 or 70 years ago, too. Kids just weren't a priority then, nor are they today."

Keeshan has fought that circumstance for a quarter-century now, on the air as "Captain Kangaroo" and in person before broadcasters, educators, parents, anyone interested enough to listen. Beginning Monday, Keeshan takes the cause to the CBS Radio Network with "The Subject is Young People."

"It's definitely not a how-to-parent program," says Keeshan, bearded for the winter with "Captain Kangaroo" in a break in production. "I want to reach all people who affect how children live, even those who don't have kids of their own but vote for the school board or maybe work in a day care center."

The four-minute weekday feature will cover a range of material. "I'll be able to examine topics such as new legislation affecting young people, names children like and those they don't, a young person's view of a news event, how kids feel about their parents' absence from home and how the traveling parent responds, and why some museums and certain apartment buildings ban children," Keeshan says.

"We've got to do it with humor, we've got to do it entertainingly," he says, "and perhaps when we're through, we've warmed them up a little in their attitude toward young people."

Keeshan uses the description "young people" for a reason: "We'll talk about infants, as well as people in graduate school."

Bob Keeshan began his TV career as a network page boy in New York, and before long was on-camera as Clarabelle the Clown on "The Howdy Doody Show." He spent five years in that role, did a TV show called "Time for Fun," and a year later, in 1954, created a character called Tinker the Toymaker for a show called "Tinker's Workshop."

Keeshan created "Captain Kangaroo" in 1955, and CBS picked up the program that October. It's been there, five mornings a week, without interruption, since.

Beyond his on-air work, Keeshan developed the CBS Workshop on Children's Television in 1978, in an effort to improve the quality of TV aimed at young viewers.

"As for very young people," he says, "well, I've been thinking about them for better than a quarter of a century. I guess I feel a certain advocacy, but there's a danger in that."

"You can become very grim about a subject as an advocate, and if that happens, I'll hear the clicks all over the country. It's not a problem with 'Captain Kangaroo.' We know we share an interest with our audience."

"But on the radio, I'm on an all-news station here. Top 40 someplace else, golden oldies, gospel, country-western, whatever format you can think of, I'm going to have people in the audience who aren't interested in kids, who don't even like kids. I've got to try to get all of them to listen."

Billboard Pun Angers Feminist Groups

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The billboard shows a shapely female in short shorts posing on her knees and elbows below the words, "Bring Us Your Can."

And a recycling company says it has no intention of canning the sign despite protests by feminist groups.

"It's a play on words. It's a pun, and it's delivering a message to people to go out and recycle," said I.M. Molever, president of the recycling firm, Re-Cy-Co.

The National Organization for Women and the Tucson Women's Commission want the sign taken down.

"I don't see the correlation between the human body and recycling things, Janet Hulnick, a NOW member, said at a Saturday news conference. "It's just degrading to people."

The woman who posed for the picture, Linda Lannuti, says she's quite proud of the billboard.

She is a vice-president of Re-Cy-Co.

PBS Movie Details Agony Of Cancer With Help Of Dying Woman

BOSTON (AP)— Joan Robinson died of cancer. She died after 22 months of pain and drugs and operations. She died on camera.

Mrs. Robinson was 41 when a tumor was found in her ovaries. The cancer was advanced. She knew she was terminally ill, but as a writer, she saw a story she wanted to tell.

Too weak to write about her agonies, she asked a film producer friend, Mary Feldhaus-Weber, to make a movie of her ebbing life. With the help of her husband and her doctors, she fought cancer and lost — on television.

From the time she was diagnosed to the night she died at University Hospital in Boston, the cameras stayed with her.

The result is "Joan Robinson: One Woman's Story," a 2 1/2-hour program being shown tonight on most stations affiliated with the Public Broadcasting Service.

It is a harrowing, often gruesome picture of the indignities, frustrations and occasional rewards in the process of death.

Because the program is so graphic and deals so directly with death, the producers supplied a half-hour follow-up program. Some stations around the country produced their own programs, featuring cancer specialists and relatives of cancer patients.

In Seattle, station KCTS plans to flash a call-in number on the screen during the program and use the questions raised in the calls during a program for lowering "One Woman's Story."

Early in the program, Mrs. Robinson, who had worked for Seventeen magazine, explained why she was willing to surrender her privacy to die on camera.

"It's a challenge," she said. "It gives me something to do. It's a form of communication. It appeals to that professional aspect of me.

"It also appeals to the part of me that wants to have part of me go after I'm dead. It appeals to that part of me that wants to do something worthwhile for others, and maybe this will be."

When they had finished, the crew had recorded more than 100,000 feet of film, 50 hours of videotape, 100 hours of sound and 2,000 still photographs. Although Mrs. Robinson died four years ago, the program was delayed until the filmmakers obtained financing.

The director, Mrs. Feldhaus-Weber, is a co-founder of Red Cloud Productions in Cambridge, Mass., an independent film company founded in 1974.

"There are no words to describe how difficult this has been," said Mrs. Feldhaus-Weber. "There's no question that this is the hardest, most difficult thing that has been demanded of my life."

buoy her spirits, to ease her discomfort, to maintain their house and to obtain answers from her physician, Peter Mozdern.

The dialogue ranges from humdrum to agonizingly intense. There was, for example, this exchange between the Robinsons:

Eric: "Obviously, sooner or later, and rather sooner than later, the damn thing is going to kill you."

Joan: "I don't want it to."

Eric: "Saying you don't want it to isn't dealing with the situation. It's got to happen."

Joan: "The thing that distresses me is that there have been periods when I have been closer to accepting it than I am now, and maybe it's because I'm feeling pretty well now."

Eric: "Probably it's going to progress. It will be a miracle if it doesn't. Miracles don't happen everyday."

Joan: "But I want one."

then she decides, "I feel I have fought this thing as far as I could, so I'm not going to stop here."

Mrs. Robinson died of cancer on Aug. 14, 1975. The camera followed her labored breathing and finally, from the hospital corridor, watched her quiet end.

In her last days, she wrote a message that her husband read over her grave. She called the disease the greatest challenge of her life. And she concluded:

"I still, obviously, would rather not have cancer, but my own experience with it has had positives as well as negatives. It is not necessarily the immediate, dread death sentence we think of when we hear 'cancer.' I still have my death to look ahead to, and I hope it will be without too much pain and fear, and I hope I'll be able to have reached the stage of acceptance and peace."

Today's FOCUS

Former Beatle Frustrated, Nervous

TOKYO (UPI) — Paul McCartney's manager said Sunday the former Beatle is "frustrated" and nervous over "what's going to happen" following his arrest for trying to smuggle marijuana into Japan.

Manager Harvey Goldsmith said McCartney's lawyer visited the singer on Saturday and told me that he was frustrated because he did not know what's going to happen.

McCartney, 37, has spent four nights at a detention center in Tokyo after being taken "into custody Wednesday for allegedly smuggling 7.7 ounces of marijuana into Japan."

He was arrested by narcotics officials upon arrival at the new Narita International Airport 40 miles east of Tokyo for a concert tour with his Wings rock music group.

Goldsmith said all group members except McCartney and his family have left Tokyo either for the United States or Britain. Eleven scheduled concerts have been canceled and on Saturday the tour's sponsors began refunding tickets.

An official at the detention center of the Tokyo Metropolitan Police Department said McCartney "appeared to be calm though he looked nervous when he was waiting to attend a court hearing Friday."

In the brief hearing at the Tokyo District Court Friday, Judge Tokyo Matsuo agreed to the prosecution's demand for a 10-day detention of the rock star.

Officials at the Tokyo District Prosecutor's office said no decision on whether to indict the Briton would be made before Monday.

Japan's control on narcotics is especially tight, and McCartney faces a maximum jail term of seven years if convicted on smuggling charges. Those convicted of possessing drugs face a maximum term of five years in prison.

However, sources in the prosecutor's office said they "did not rule out" the possibility that McCartney might be deported and declared persona non grata in Japan.

A major Japanese sports newspaper quoted McCartney's lawyer, Tasuku Matsuo, as saying the singer has offered to pay an estimated $835,000 in damages caused by the cancellation of the Wings tour.

Matsuo could not be reached for comment immediately.

Jobless Police Dog Gets Home

AVELLA, Pa. (UPI) — Max, a jobless police dog living under a death sentence, was turned on one cop and mauled another officer's daughter, has been given a reprieve.

Max spent five fruitful years sniffing out "trouble makers for the Pittsburgh Police Department with officer Harry Scanlon."

Then 10 months ago Scanlon was assigned to desk duty and Max was out of a job.

The city decided to give the 90-pound German shepherd to the suburban South Park Township police force, where he lasted about a week before he was "tired" for gashing an officer's face.

Max's next assignment took him to suburban Brentwood, where he was to work with patrolman James Fox. That, however, came to an end about two weeks ago when he mauled fox's 12-year-old daughter.

Max was sent to death row.

But when Sandy and Pete Grubich heard about the veteran lawdog's plight, they offered to give him a home on their farm near Avella, about 20 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

"We're animal lovers," said Mrs. Grubich, who also has five guard dogs. "That's why we couldn't stand the thought of them putting Max to sleep."

"Those people who had him before didn't give him a chance," Max's new owner said. "They didn't give the poor dog enough time to acquaint himself to his new surroundings."

Mrs. Grubich said family members, including two teenage children, would keep their distance for awhile.

"You have to talk to the dog and let him know who he's supposed to protect, what he's allowed to do and what he's not allowed to do," she said.
