

President Calls Inflation Top Priority

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, outlining a modest array of new initiatives for the election-year Congress, asserted Monday that "restraining inflation remains my highest domestic priority."

The fate of the SALT II treaty has been in doubt since the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan, which led Carter to embargo grain shipments to the Russians and halt sales of high-technology equipment.

Termining inflation "our most serious economic problem," the president said he saw "hope for a gradual reduction in the inflation rate" through public and private restraint and longer-term efforts to deal with the underlying causes.

— A new program to educate and train disadvantaged young people so they can hold meaningful jobs.

— A renewal of general revenue sharing.

— Reorganization of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission and implementation of "our nation's first comprehensive nuclear energy program."

Clovis Records Being Checked

By FRANK STANLEY A-J Correspondent CLOVIS, N.M. — An investigation of suspected mishandling of Clovis city finances has been launched by the New Mexico state auditor's office and the county district attorney, it was announced by city officials here Monday.

Youth Tells Of Threat To Shoot

By JOHNNY HOLMES Avalanche-Journal Staff PLAINVIEW — A witness in the murder trial of self-avowed witch Loy Stone of Dimmitt testified Monday he heard "a woman's voice" order several Dimmitt teen-agers to "get the hell" away from the Stone's residence Halloween night 1977, or she would shoot them.

Stone, 50, a member of the Church of Ariahnu, which refers to its followers as witches, and his wife, Louise, 49, are charged with the Halloween 1977 slaying of the Miss Casas, then a sophomore at Dimmitt High School. No trial date for Mrs. Stone has yet been set.

Sandoval, now an airman in the U.S. Air Force and then a junior at Dimmitt High, told the court he was in a car with four other friends that twice drove out to the Stones' residence. The second time, the carload of youths was leading a pickup owned by Miss Casas' grandfather and carrying Miss Casas and four friends.

Defense attorney Travis Shelton produced a written statement Sandoval had given shortly after the incident in which he made no mention of the shadows and the figure, and pressed Sandoval as to why he had omitted that portion. "I was real scared because someone had gotten shot," he said. "I'm still scared."

Sandoval testified the teen-agers had gone out to the Stones' house because they "heard rumors in school the Stones did crazy things on Halloween night and

Giant Icebreaker To Try Rescue

SEATTLE (AP) — The Polar Star, one of the United States' two most powerful icebreakers, will try to free a South Korean cargo ship trapped in the Bering Sea by ice since Jan. 13, a Coast Guard spokesman said Monday.

City commissioners Monday also accepted a leave of absence for City Manager Darrel Kreighbaum and Assistant City Manager Cleve Teague.

Mayor Chick Taylor Jr. said the city was being investigated for "a substantial misappropriation or misuse of public funds." He added that the City Commission was briefed on the situation by Curry County District Attorney Bill Bonem Friday night in a special closed session.

Bonem told us that we had a problem with city finances and the city audit," Taylor said. Bonem reportedly spent Thursday and Friday reporting to the state auditor in Santa Fe on the results of an investigation of city records begun by the district attorney's office in early December.

Deputy Director of Finance and Administration Lupe Sanchez and his assistant, Jim Macias, arrived in Clovis late Monday to begin the investigation.

The mayor said part of the problem is a result of the city's computer records being "in such a mess that there is no place for the auditor to start or to obtain a balance."

The city commission has appointed Bob Bright as acting city manager. Bright is Clovis city planner and heads the building inspection department.

Throughout the afternoon, Clements repeatedly said that financial problems at teaching hospitals and shortages of nurses are not unique to Lubbock and at one point said, "Every teaching hospital in Texas is in trouble."

He agreed that Lubbock had some unique problems, although he did not specify what they were, but he summed up his opinion on the issue by saying, "Most of these problems are not unique to Lubbock but a common disease among medical schools."

He said it was a classic example of what "the people want and don't want and they don't want their municipal employees in a union."

Clements refused to say yes or no to whether he would approve legislative funding for Tech's School of Nursing in the next biennium. He used his line item veto power last year to eliminate state money for the nursing school.

He did say there is a chance for nursing school money in the next session, however, noting, "We all live in hope. Certainly there is a chance." But he added that the matter "has to be studied carefully in the context of the medical school and teaching hospital as a whole."

Med School, Hospital Problems Not Unique, Gov. Clements Says

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY and BOB CAMPBELL Avalanche-Journal Staff GOV. BILL Clements, who toured Texas Tech University Monday, did not appear overly sympathetic to local financial concerns at the county hospital or to the area's shortage of nurses, saying these problems are not unique to Lubbock.

Higher Tuition Coming The Republican governor said he expects legislation in the 1981 session to include higher tuition rates and stronger auditing procedures at all state colleges and universities.

And at a Chamber of Commerce noon luncheon, the governor applauded Lubbock's rejection Saturday of collective bargaining rights for firemen, saying, "I wish I'd been here to vote with you."

He said it was a classic example of what "the people want and don't want and they don't want their municipal employees in a union."

Clements refused to say yes or no to whether he would approve legislative funding for Tech's School of Nursing in the next biennium. He used his line item veto power last year to eliminate state money for the nursing school.

He did say there is a chance for nursing school money in the next session, however, noting, "We all live in hope. Certainly there is a chance." But he added that the matter "has to be studied carefully in the context of the medical school and teaching hospital as a whole."

Clements said he is aware of a nursing shortage across the state. "I have an absolute conviction of the need for nurses," he said, but explained that the question is not whether a shortage exists, but rather if Lubbock needs a nursing school "at this time."

Testimony Presented At Utility Hearing

A-J Austin Bureau AUSTIN—Dual service by Lubbock Power & Light Co. and Southwestern Public Service Co. has made utility officials "more responsive" to customers, Carroll McDonald of LP&L, told the Public Utilities Commission Monday.

McDonald's testimony and cross-examination filled the first day of hearings by the PUC in the Lubbock utility's request for "dual certification" to allow it to offer service in recently annexed southwestern areas of Lubbock, which have been served in the past by South Plains Electric Cooperative.

McDonald argued the city utility should be allowed to serve all areas of Lubbock.

However, South Plains' attorney, Dale Johnson argued that duplication of facilities "just has to cost more" and is "a waste of our natural resources."

Lubbock can't get any revenues from facilities which duplicate those of the cop. Johnson argued.

"We're not going to realize any revenues from their customers, and they're not going to realize any revenue from ours," McDonald agreed.

Johnson attacked efforts to introduce a survey by LP&L of potential customers in The Meadows subdivision, charging "the whole survey is hearsay to us."

Bush, Reagan In Virtual Tie

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — President Carter swept past Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in Iowa, Monday night, trouncing the Democratic challenger in a keynote presidential campaign victory that his spokesman said would show the world that Americans support him.

Carter called it a vote of confidence and said it was particularly welcome in "these difficult times" of crises in Iran and Afghanistan.

The president was running ahead of Kennedy by a margin of nearly two-to-one in neighborhood political meetings that apportioned Iowa's Democratic presidential nominating votes.

In Republican competition, former United Nations Ambassador George Bush narrowly led Ronald Reagan, the pollsters' favorite. Bush claimed his showing was a victory, whatever the final count.

Bush set out to establish himself as the man most likely to beat the favored Reagan in the presidential primary elections, and he said he had achieved that goal.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee was running third in the Republican pre-caucus vote, former Texas Gov. John B. Connally was fourth. But Bush and Reagan were far ahead of all the rest.

The Democratic caucuses in the 2,531 Iowa precincts apportioned county convention delegates among the candidates. It was the first step in the process that will assign Iowa's nominating votes, and the ratios set Monday night apply all the way to the national convention.

With 1,168 precincts reporting, Carter had 59 percent of the delegates, Kennedy 32 percent, with nine percent uncommitted.

In victory, Carter and his spokesmen blended politics and foreign policy. "It sends a message overseas and at home," White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said in Des Moines. "They can count on the American people supporting him."

"It's a good start," he added. Carter said in Washington that he regretted he hadn't been able to campaign himself. His managers said he hoped to go vote hunting soon, but would stay at the White House so long as he deems it necessary in order to deal with foreign crises.

Kennedy conceded the second ever for a member of his fabled political family — and said, as he congratulated Carter, that he would beat him in contests to come. He said he now needs a few more delegates than Carter does to win the Democratic nomination, but there's a long way to go "and we're going to get them."

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary, blamed the defeat on what he said was the nation's preoccupation with foreign policy problems, centering on the American hostages in Tehran and the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Southwick said Kennedy will compete for delegates in all 50 states, but added, "It's an uphill battle." The only other defeat in the Kennedy clan was Sen. Robert Kennedy's defeat in 1960.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for today predicts rain for the Gulf Coast states, and cool to cold temperatures over most of the nation. (AP Laserphoto)

Winds Expected To Chill Area

Another cold front expected to move into West Texas before dawn today should have only a slight impact on an already frozen Lubbock vicinity.

Although a layer of ice coating the South Plains began melting away Monday afternoon, a 20 percent chance for rain early this morning and near-freezing temperatures will offer little relief from the icy conditions.

The mercury climbed to 41 Monday in the wake of an earlier front, but today's system only is expected to allow the mercury to rise into the 30s before plunging into the upper teens tonight.

Today's cold temperatures may seem even colder to most West Texas residents as northeasterly winds gusting from 15 to 25 mph will create a wind chill factor of about 4 degrees.

Warmer conditions are expected by Wednesday with a high in the upper 40s.

The Braniff Promise.

We hereby promise to make every effort to give the best airline service in the world.

Braniff sincerely believes that service industries—airlines included—have allowed their performance to deteriorate seriously. We want to take a stand against that trend.

That's why we're making a promise to do everything possible to provide the best airline service in the world.

Obviously, this is an ambitious goal. But we're no stranger to a difficult task.

Only 15 years ago Braniff was a small carrier. Today we fly between 75 cities all over the U.S. and the world.

We expect to perform a similar feat in the area of service. We promise to do everything we can to give you, not just good service, the best.

And when you make promises like these, you'd better be better.

1. We promise to knock ourselves out to be the world's friendliest, most professional airline personnel.

The rapid growth in air travel may have overwhelmed some airlines. Our people intend to go right on being friendly and professional. Because that's the kind of people we hire and train. For example, we screen 160 candidates for every flight attendant job we offer. Then we give them an intensive 5½ week course. And to keep them sharp we retrain them every year. The result is people who have the skill to do a good job and the confidence to be friendly.

2. We promise to provide frequent schedules throughout the U.S. and to Europe, Asia, Mexico and South America.

Only Braniff serves over 50 major cities in the U.S., 15 principal cities and capitals in South America and Mexico, 5 of the most important cities in Europe, and 5 in the Pacific and Far East. And because of its remarkable hub-and-spoke design, our system often provides the fastest service between many of the regions and countries we serve.

3. We promise to do everything we can to run an on-time airline.

Braniff now has a good on-time record. Of course, we'd like to have a 100% on-time record. We can't. No airline can. Here's some of what we do to minimize delays: We provide standby aircraft to replace delayed equipment. We're expanding our terminals to expedite arrivals. We keep schedules realistic by revising them to reflect wind and seasonal changes. And we use aviation's most advanced computer to generate flight plans that avoid potential delays.

4. We promise to provide quick, accurate ticket purchase and check-in.

Braniff has now linked all our airport ticket counters to a new computer that lets you pick up your ticket, check in and get your seat assignment all in one operation. And when you're taking a connecting flight, with Braniff's Connect Check-In you only have to check in once. And we've created Braniff's Advance Seat Assignment, so you can select your seat when you make your reservation by phone.

5. We promise to handle your bags with care and deliver them promptly.

You fly to save time. So the last thing you need is to waste time waiting for your bags. That's why we have luggage service teams assigned by zone for faster delivery at even the most distant gates in our big terminals. And why we have special expeditors to insure delivery of "connects" no matter how far they have to travel through the airport.

6. We promise to serve some of the best food you've ever eaten on any airline.

Our meals are prepared from fresh food. We buy the food at its source in markets all over the world and fly it—still fresh—throughout our system. And there's another reason our food is better—variety. We prepare dishes based on the cuisine of the many nations we fly to.

7. We promise to fly young, beautifully decorated airplanes.

Braniff's fleet is one of the youngest of any major airline in domestic or international service. In the U.S. we fly young Boeing 727-200s. Across the Atlantic or Pacific we fly young Boeing 747 jumbos and, the newest of the new, the Boeing 747SP. All these airplanes have exciting colors and bold designs to look at on the outside, soft restful colors, Halston wardrobes and most have real leather seats to enjoy on the inside.

8. We promise to fly airplanes you can depend on.

We've built our fleet on what we consider to be the two most dependable aircraft in commercial aviation today—the Boeing 727 and the Boeing 747. Both aircraft have a brilliant record of performance with us. And this year we'll be adding even more of them to our fleet, including the most advanced 747 in the sky—the Boeing 747SP.

In the most recent survey published by the Airline Passengers Association, the 727 and the 747 were chosen as the preferred airplane for short and long-distance flights respectively. So they're not only the airplanes we prefer to fly. They're the airplanes frequent travelers want to fly on, too.

9. We promise to offer bargain vacation fares to every Braniff city.

We can save you up to 50% on international fares including our new budget fares in the Pacific. And we can save you up to 40% domestically. And to some destinations we can save you even more. For example, we have standby fares to Britain and Europe that can save you up to 60%.

10. We promise to answer our phones and provide information promptly.

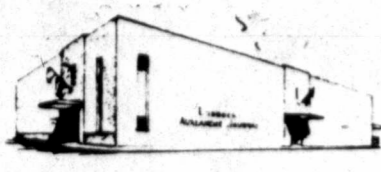

Braniff has just installed the most advanced telephone reservations and information system in the airline business. It has increased by a full 30% the number of calls we can handle at a given time. So for schedules, fares or other information on 7,500 flights between 15,000 city pairs, flown by 70 different airlines, in 107 countries, around the clock, call 800-492-4300.

We better be better.

AN EDITORIAL:

Iran's Blind Man's Bluff

THE EXPULSION of all American newsmen from Iran adds only one more mark against the crumbling regime of the Ayatollah Khomeini and the motley assortment of thugs who have brought the nation to the brink of anarchy.

THE ORDER follows a long series of clashes between U.S. newsmen and the new Iranian government.
In the past, some 23 Western reporters whose news accounts angered someone in Tehran have been sent packing.

And although British, French and West German reporters are being allowed to remain "for the time being," the Iranian government left no doubt but that if what was printed or said displeased it, then they too would be banned.

Long ago, the "religious" nut who heads
Iran, more or less, closed down any freedom of the press in Iran's own media, even to the jailing of some newsmen felt to be unsympathetic to his bloody regime.

Already under heavy censorship, the latest move only drops the curtain of secrecy and bloody intrigue more fully across the fate of 50 American citizens.

And while we haven't always agreed with the emphasis placed on certain facets of the "student" militants at the U.S. Embassy and certainly not with giving the Iranians a worldwide showcase for their propaganda and hatred, at least that was a free decision U.S. newsmen and readers and listeners could make for themselves.

THE charge: Essentially the same as that made in Iran, being accused of biased reporting and "interference in the country's internal affairs."

NOW, THE Iron Curtain drops tighter.
And the fate of American citizens behind it, even if Iranian style, may also dim.

The foreign (American) journalists have been missing our kind cooperation and freedom we have given them. Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council said in a statement after a three-hour meeting.

It should be obvious to those in Washington who helped precipitate the Iranian debacle in the first place and who have taken their good old time in getting tough that such pussy-footing tactics aren't working.

They have used this against our revolution and we are going to expel all American correspondents, effective immediately."

Will the hostages be the next "sacrificial lambs" to the Ayatollah Khomeini's brand of

Candidate Picture Undistorted

A FORMAT has emerged after months of unsuccessful experiments with joint appearances of presidential candidates that affords voters a unique opportunity to compare both the style and substance of the contenders.

alphabetical order, of course, may be enlightening if not instructive.
Rep. John Anderson of Illinois offered himself as a man who marches to a different drummer, rejecting both conservative dogma and politically popular rhetoric.

All of the participating politicians were able to present a fairly complete, accurate and undistorted picture of their character and personality as well as their positions on a wide range of issues at the GOP Candidates Forum in Des Moines.

Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee has a folksy style which unfortunately for him is not especially memorable.

As a result, those who followed the proceedings in person, on television or radio could accomplish in two hours what otherwise would require weeks of travel costing thousands of dollars.

Former UN Amb. George Bush emerged as a distinguished, capable and professional manager, both likeable and believable.

Last year, campaign organizers sought to provide a similar opportunity by inducing candidates to make joint appearances at social events.

FORMER TEX. Gov. John Connally, the most eloquent orator in the field, was prevented by the forum's time limitations from taking full advantage of his rhetorical ability.

DERISIVELY BUT accurately labeled "cat shows," those unsatisfying forums typically allowed each candidate 5-10 minutes to recite his basic speech.

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois provided a humorous delivery of rapid-fire, unshakable views on every issue.

There were few opportunities for questions or side-by-side comparison. Furthermore, the party atmosphere mitigated against any serious assessment of those seeking the country's highest office.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas offered a dazzling display of the rapier-sharp wit that is legendary among political insiders. His casuistic one-liners are a delight, but hardly an asset sufficient to propel a man into the White House.

But the more serious forum sponsored by the Des Moines Register and Tribune Company was a strikingly successful venture, allowing each candidate to be his quintessential self.

Former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan refused to appear and clearly suffered by his absence.

A capsule review of their performances, in

Let us hope Philip Crane was wrong when he predicted: "I doubt if we're going to see this happen again in the campaign." The country could be well served by similar presentations in other states during the coming months.

DONALD F. GRAFF

More Than One Opinion
On Surgery Can't 'Hurt'

WASHINGTON—There are some people who don't have to be told anything twice, and there are others who ought to be.

The campaign, making heavy use of radio and television spot announcements, stresses the ease of obtaining second opinions. To start with, patients are urged to discuss the situation frankly with their own physicians.

They are the millions of Americans who undergo non-emergency surgery every year, too many of whom may be doing so without first getting a second opinion as to the necessity of an operation.

And if it is necessary to turn elsewhere for guidance on physicians willing to give second opinions, it is available via a toll-free hotline.

It's not that a second professional evaluation of an individual's medical condition is difficult to obtain. It's simply that most prospective surgical patients aren't informed as to the advisability of further consultation or don't bother to seek it.

The number is 1 (800) 638-6833, except in Maryland where it is 1 (800) 492-6603.

In an effort to remedy that situation, the federal Home Care Financing Administration is launching a nationwide campaign to alert the public to the importance of second opinions and how to go about getting same.

A call could well be worth it. There is nothing to lose and possibly much to gain.

THE GOAL, of course, is to reduce unnecessary surgery, which evidence suggests accounts for a sizeable and costly proportion of the more than 20 million operations performed annually on in-patients in U.S. hospitals.

BOTH POLITICIANS and football players often engage in bruising battles whose outcome isn't certain until the final minutes of the contest. The superstars in both fields are nationally known celebrities.

With so many similarities, it probably was inevitable that pro football and pro politics would meet —and that's exactly what occurred in Los Angeles, the Super Bowl host, on Jan. 19, the eve of the championship contest.

The Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee sponsored a $500-per-plate fund-raising party designed to attract political leaders and well-heeled GOP donors as well as owners, coaches and players from the National Football League.

THE CO-HOSTS were Republican senators from the two states that produced last year's Super Bowl participants: Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, representing the Dallas Cowboys, and Sen. H.
John Heinz III of Pennsylvania, representing the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Los Angeles party, expected to raise $100,000, was being coordinated by Washington political consultant Brad O'Leary, who last year raised $150,000 at an equally impressive event—a party in the Palm Springs, Calif. back yard of former President Gerald R. Ford.

Writer Traces History, Sees Soviet Hand In Iran Crisis

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
With the dilemma in Iran, we can reflect on events in the time spectrum of one year ago and as far back as 1943. The tragedy is we failed to react as a nation a year ago when the seeds of revolution in Iran were being sown.

Slaton Reader Cites Points For Parochial Education

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
As a parent, an educator (in public and parochial systems) and a concerned citizen, I issue my objection to not only the content but also the tone of the article on "Parochial Education" as it appeared in your Jan. 6 edition.

No one denies the allure of oil to all modern nations. Historically, Iran is a strategic keystone in a notoriously unstable area of the world. Because that country has been backward in so many ways other than those being demonstrated today, given the opportunity to light the fuse, present Iranian leaders are igniting an international time bomb that bodes nothing but a ruinous course of action from which this present world can never recover.

Maybe it's because parents have been pushed out and replaced with the judicial process or because educators have been silenced by bureaucratic and political administrators, or informational textbooks have been replaced by glorified funny books or total quality has deteriorated to the point where the total test scores of high school and college graduates continue to decline.

Looking ahead to expanding its toehold on newly emerging Third-World nations, Russia realized it must have control of sufficient amounts of oil and ports for handling goods in exchange for that precious commodity. In addition, Russia knew it must feed its new converts; this meant acquiring better methods of farming, notably using the sophisticated equipment envisioned, the Kremlin needed fertilizers to guarantee bumper crops in the face of droughts, worn-out land, and severe winters.

Maybe they pay their taxes to support public education and choose to dig deeper for tuition because they believe that parochial education is a value. Maybe they should be encouraged by the media for exercising their freedom of choice in selecting what they believe is best for their children.

The Dead Sea contains those natural fertilizers, and to reach them Russia set in motion the time clock 35 years ago. Now that dream is within reach. Khomeini is Russia's best stooge for getting what the Bear wants. For years the Kremlin has orchestrated this revolution. Yet, the Iranians believe the Russians to be their best friends. Iran is now a perfect carbon copy of Russia's complete disregard for human rights. Strange bedfellows, these atheistic manipulators!

This country was founded on the principle that competition served to generate the best. Without parochial education parents would be faced with a public educational monopoly of mediocre quality.

Already Afghanistan, Pakistan, Syria, Iraq and certain African Islamic nations are in the Russian camp. To the uninformed, look at your atlas. Only Israel stands in the way for a complete takeover by the Russians. That is why we, as friends of Israel, must be dealt with by Russia through Iranian revolutionary figures who are espousing this "Hate America" campaign.

Therefore, parochial education should be praised for its persistence to challenge public education and all society to greater heights.

We must stand firm in this crisis, for we are perceived in that part of the world as being weak. Of course we're not, but the perception engendered by the past foreign policy amateurism is as damaging as if we were.

Dallas Reader Cites Japan's Purchases Of Iranian Oil

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
In reselling Iranian oil to our allies the Japanese will completely circumvent our efforts to get West Europeans and others to join us in boycotting Iran's oil. Such "loyalty" is about par for the course for nations whom we aid.

He Fears U.S. Involvement In Costly Mideast War

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
George Washington was right when he said we should stay out of foreign entanglements. However much sympathy I may have for the people of Afghanistan it doesn't reach the point to where it should lead to war in their behalf. The quicker America abandons the idea of policing the world the better off it will be. Also, I will not shed too many tears if the Russian bear moves into Iran.

As long as we station our armed forces in Korea,
the Japanese, knowing we'll handle their defense, are free of the huge military debts which will burden Americans for many generations to come.
Have they no gratitude at all?

Suppose we are entirely cut off from Middle Eastern oil. We will see our domestic production increase almost overnight. However, we will go through a period of adjustment such that we will think we are going from riches to rags.

He Wonders Where Term Marxism Got Its Start

Editor, Avalanche-Journal:
I just wondered when the term "Marxist" came into being. Who decided that Marxist should replace the word "Communist"? Could it have been the national news media? What's the difference?
Could it have been done to try to soften the impact of Godless, ruthless Communism?

Perhaps the better phrase would be "From Cav-ar to cornbread." Thank Heaven there will be plenty of cornbread.

Bob Madison, Midland

No one in the United States should starve when we have a surplus of wheat, corn, cotton and many other products. Of course a complete cut-off of foreign oil would cause a lot of unemployment in centers like Detroit. Some of the unemployed would be employed in the coal fields.

Many would be employed in building dams that would furnish electric power (just watch how quick electric cars will appear on the streets when gasoline is rationed to our domestic production).

Most of us think more highly of gasoline than we do of holy water but if we go to war over gasoline we will indeed be sorrowful when the casualty lists begin to come in.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Pay As You Go

DALLAS—Okay, class, let's review what we've learned from the past two years of galloping inflation.

Pull out a dollar bill (if you've managed to squirrel one away someplace) and take a good look at it.

Never mind, for the moment, that it's a poor, pitiful thing these days, that skyrocketing prices have nibbled away almost half of it. It's all we have to work with, so let's press on.

Everybody knows that dollars represent money, and money is what we use to buy things, right?

Not as many as we used to, maybe, but no supermarket checker will let you carry your groceries out to your car until you leave a goodly chunk of it behind in his cash register.

BUT LATELY, money has taken on a new dimension: We've had to add it to our shopping list, too.

And this comes as something of a bitter shock to most of us. We grew up thinking money was something you earned, or had given to you on birthdays and Christmas, or wangled out of Pop as an allowance.

The idea of actually buying it, like a pound of butter or a new record album, never crossed our minds.

That was for the fancy folks who knew their way around banks and who could build empires on something called "creative financing."

We couldn't, as IBM did a couple of weeks ago, hit up the Saudi Arabian government for $300 million at 10.8 percent. (And then promptly raised its prices.)

WHEN WE peasants wanted to buy a house or an automobile on time, we just strolled into any old bank and signed on for monthly payments at five percent.

We were actually buying money back then, too, but we didn't think of it that way.

We do now. We think about it quite a lot, in fact, especially if we're looking for a mortgage, or some other kind of long-term loan.

And we're finding out that bankers aren't exactly displaying their dollars out there on the counter for us to browse through, either.

Money has become a hot item and, like all scarce commodities, expensive. With interest rates floating between 12 and 18 percent, you can't afford to walk in and pick up the first pile of dollars that strike your fancy.

YOU HAVE to shop around for it, the way you scrounge for the best deal on a car or a house.

And many would-be buyers are finding their friendly neighborhood banker has just sold the last loan package on the shelf. He may have a few left in the back room, but at interest rates you'd have to sell the children to pay for.

There's still a lot of money out there.

Too much, according to the economists who fret over the M-1 and M-2 money supplies, but with inflation ballooning from four percent to almost 15 in the past couple of years, it's beginning to be priced out of the average borrower's reach.

Families who've managed to scrape up the down payment for a house (the average price of which is now more than $50,000) are still renting because they can't afford the 13-percent mortgage rates.

PEOPLE ARE still driving the old family jalopy because money for automobile loans is just as expensive.

One housewife, whose husband is a well-paid executive, puts it this way: "I always thought money was something to spend. The idea that you have to buy it, and worry about what it costs the way you do about the price of hamburger, is something I just can't get used to."

Neither can the rest of us.

Next thing you know, they'll be telling us credit cards are really money, too, and whaddya know,
I guess they are.

Pass It On:

HERE'S TO Walter Diemer—clink!—the fellow who invented bubble gum. He worked as a cost accountant for the Frank H. Fleeer Corporation. This comes up because a client asks why all the old-timey bubble gum was pink. It was the only safe color Diemer had on hand, that's why.

You know those quaint competitions staged just for the fun of it? Like frog jumping, watermelon seed spitting and hot pepper eating? Why doesn't somebody set up a bubble gum blowing contest wherein the only contestants would be men with full beards?

Just as homeless cats roam the metropolitan alleys of this country, so rhesus monkeys roam the cities of India. Difference is the monkeys forage in troupes of as many as 70 per, scavenging for cooked food. Leave your kitchen window open there and you get a houseful.

Q. Does frequent shaving make my beard grow faster?
A. No, sir, that's not the good news. The good news is it toughens up the skin so you don't wrinkle as readily as you otherwise might. It's common knowledge that a woman typically gets little lines around the mouth at an earlier age than does a man. His shaving is said to get the credit for that.

Q. What was the first English dictionary?
A. "The Table Alphabetical of Hard Words" by Robert Cawdrey. In 1604, Cawdrey could spell all right for the time.

Q. Whose picture has turned up most often on the cover of TV Guide?
A. Lucille Ball's.

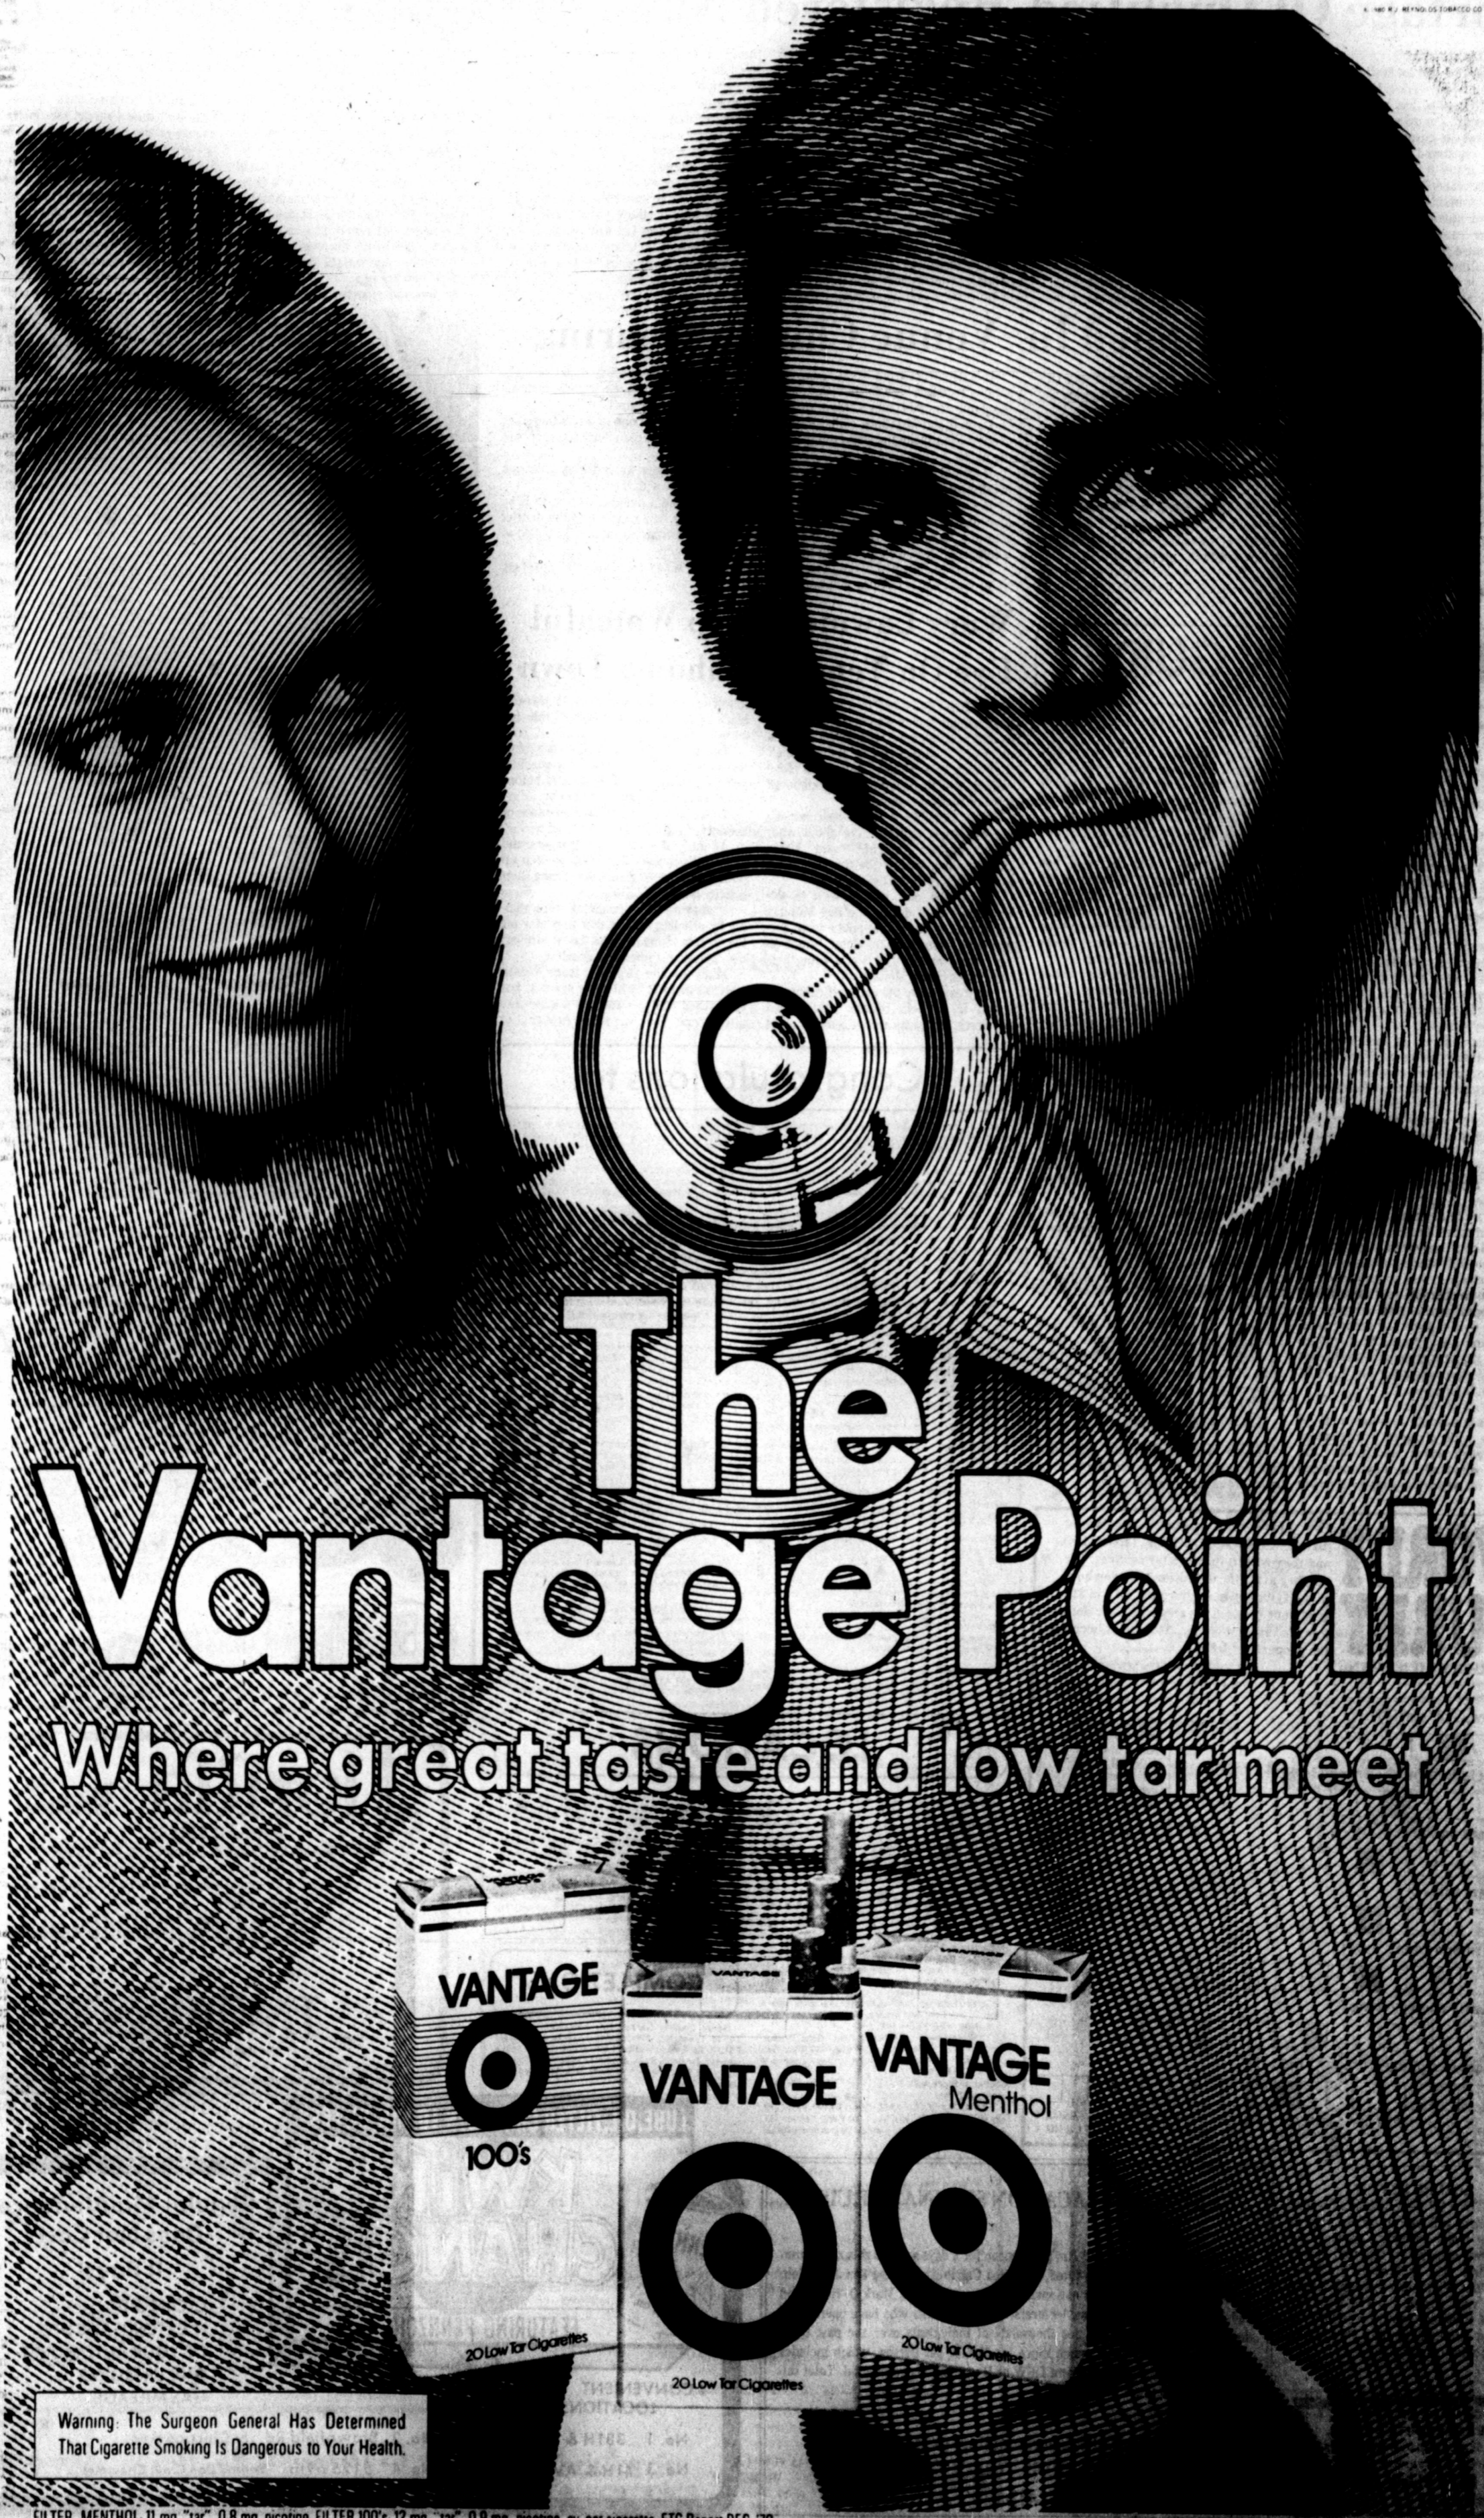

Q. Is it true that every American man who has won the Nobel Prize for literature has been an alcoholic suicide?
A. Would do as well to say that all but two—Pearl Buck and Saul Bellow—have been so described by that uniquely gifted writer John Cheever.

They were Sinclair Lewis, Eugene O'Neill, William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway and John Steinbeck. Although their bottles have taken up more room on the shelves than their books, their bottles are empty but their books are not.

The Minister of Education in the Fuji Islands

Shortage Of Qualified Registered Nurses Plaguing Hospital

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

For the past few weeks, Health Sciences Center Hospital has been getting just what it needs — more patients.

But now that the hospital is filling up, a shortage of registered nurses at Health Sciences has made it necessary for the hospital to occasionally turn paying patients away. Administrator Jake Henry Jr. told board members that the hospital's intensive care unit is a particular problem because they can't seem to carry enough qualified RNs.

"And ICU is a money maker," Henry added. Henry also told the board that he expects increased usage of the hospital's dialysis facilities upon the completion of nurse training at South Plains Dialysis Center.

The teaching hospital had an average of 142 patients in the hospital during the week ending Jan. 11 and 145 patients the week ending Jan. 18. Hospital officials continue to advertise for registered nurses to fill the staffing gaps.

Things aren't necessarily better at Health Sciences Center Hospital, but they don't appear to have gotten any worse over the past month, according to Monday morning's financial report.

The first full report issued since the takeover of Henry and finance director Charlie Trimble Jr. indicates the teaching hospital is still losing money. But hospital officials are biding their time until business office workers complete a conversion to a new computer system, which they hope will be the answer to many billing and subsequent cash problems.

Neither Trimble or Henry has been at the hospital long enough to effect any noticeable financial changes, having started at the first of the year. Trimble reported to the Lubbock County Hospital District financial committee this morning that their major concern now is to implement data processing and accounting controls before and after the conversion, scheduled this Saturday.

Trimble reported there may be some problems with the hospital's cash flow, a source of major concern during the hospital's tight money period, until the conversion is completely ironed out. But Trimble assured committee members that his employees would not let it slide.

The hospital district's accounts receivable total — those patient bills still not paid — passed the $10 million mark over the new year, thanks to losses from the teaching hospital as well as Emergency Medical Services.

However, hospital district officials still hope to collect about half of that through a collection agency and in-house billing follow-up. Finance committee chairman C. Wayne Smith said about $4 million had already been turned over to the collection agency, producing returns of several thousand dollars.

That $10 million figure is the result of an accrual accounting system, which records all losses from the day the hospital opened in February 1978. District officials charged off about $1.5 million in bad debts last year, but don't want to charge off any more until the results of the 1979 audit are in.

The hospital reportedly is holding its own in terms of available cash, maintaining about $200,000 in the bank, in addition to certificates of deposit.

Trimble reported that finance committee members should see relatively no change in the cash balance over the next few months, but that liabilities to Texas Tech University (for utility costs under negotiation) and the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare (also under negotiation) will continue to increase.

The Board of Managers for the hospital district was scheduled to meet at 1:30 p.m. today in the Marshall Pennington Board Room at the teaching hospital.

More Testimony Slated In Venue Change Hearing

At least two more witnesses are expected to testify this morning before 99th District Court Judge Thomas L. Clinton decides whether the murder trial of Maurice Eugene Dancy will be moved from Lubbock County Court.

Dancy, 19, of 2824 24th St. is accused of the Aug. 21, 1979, beating death of Texas Tech University graduate student Claude Ventry Bridges.

Bridges, 31, was found at his 2824 23rd St. residence by one of his professors. The professor had gone to Bridges' home after the education student failed to attend a crucial doctoral examination.

Defense counsel Tom Cannon and Mary Anne Wiley contend that because of the amount of publicity given the killing and Dancy's arrest the following night, a fair and impartial jury cannot be seated. Opposing the motion for a change of venue are Criminal District Attorney John T. Montford and his first assistant, Jim Bob Darnell.

Cannon and Miss Wiley called a dozen witnesses Monday in support of their request the trial be moved. Among the witnesses were Texas Tech University professors and representatives of the local media.

In a departure from usual venue change hearings, Cannon and Miss Wiley brought a video tape machine so that Clinton can view the television news accounts of the alleged murder and Dancy's arrest, rather than simply read transcripts.

Darnell and Montford called four witnesses Monday afternoon and two more are expected to take the stand today before the attorneys make their final arguments to the judge.

If Clinton denies the venue change, jury selection will begin immediately following the disposition of other defense motions filed in connection with the case.

Before the hearing started Monday, Clinton overruled a defense motion to have Montford removed as co-prosecutor in the case. Cannon had argued that the district attorney "took an active part in the investigation" and that Montford may be called as a defense witness to testify about the search of Dancy's home.

Clinton also denied a "gag order" request by Miss Wiley concerning the coverage of the change of venue proceedings.

Wary Lawmen Keep Watchful Eye On Tense Oklahoma Town

IDABEL, Okla. (AP) — Lawmen and townspeople warily watched and listened as darkness fell here Monday following a night of "shooting, rioting and burning" that left two people dead and four wounded in this southeastern Oklahoma town of 10,000 residents.

"The situation is very tense and we are extremely apprehensive about what might happen tonight," said Larry Bowles, an inspector for the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation.

About the only people seen in the downtown area during the day Monday were state troopers and police from surrounding communities. Some shopkeepers were armed and some kept their businesses closed Monday.

Approximately 140 extra officers were called in to help restore order when hundreds of blacks rioted Sunday night following the slaying of a 15-year-old black youth near a private club for whites.

The rioters set fire to the club, shot out store windows, ripped up gasoline pumps and vandalized businesses before order was restored about midnight.

There was no immediate estimate of the cost of the damage.

At dusk Monday, state troopers and local officers were beginning to step up patrols after resting and minimizing their activity during the afternoon.

It appeared that residents were abiding by official requests that they stay off the streets Monday night. Local officials decided against imposing a curfew.

Many of the deputies from distant counties had left by Monday evening, but specialized units — such as a state mobile crime lab — were brought in

Q — Many times I noticed in your column that children do not have to pay income tax. I was considering transferring some of our stocks and bonds to our children's names, so that no tax would have to be paid on the dividends and interest.

I called the Internal Revenue Service to make sure and was told this is not so. The person I spoke to at the IRS said you were wrong in writing that children do not have to pay income tax. Can you check this, again?

A. Wait a minute now. This column never said what you say it did.

It has been pointed out here that a child, or any other single person under age 65, does not have to file a federal income tax return until his or her income reaches a certain level.

The dollar amount of that level has been jacked over the years. For 1979 — the year most of us are concerned about, as we get ready to file tax returns — it was $3,300.

Q. Some responsible persons have told me that bank accounts may be "frozen" within 18 months and that only a very small amount of the money in each account — such as 1 percent — will be able to be withdrawn.

Personally, I find such a thing almost unbelievable. Could such a horror story be true?

A. If you put the prefix "ir" in front of "responsible," you'll come up with the correct description of those "persons."

There are always scaremongers around. Sometimes they spread these and other horror stories just to pass the time of day. Some of them do it for personal profit — by selling newsletters to a gullible public.

It's not going to happen.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

Q. — Is it possible to obtain a list of companies with dividend reinvestment plans, through which stockholders can use their dividends to buy additional shares? If so, where can such a list be obtained? I would also like the addresses of the companies.

A. You can obtain a list of more than 600 companies whose stocks are listed on the New York Stock Exchange which have dividend reinvestment plans by writing to Public Relations Department, New York Stock Exchange, 11 Wall St., New York, N.Y. 10035.

The American Stock Exchange has not put together a list of its listed stocks with dividend reinvestment plan. Nor have any of the "regional" exchanges around the country. And there's no such list available for over-the-counter stocks — those not listed on any exchange.

Even the NYSE list is a bare bones thing — giving only the names of the companies. PMF Research Co., P.O. Box 424, Kenilworth, Ill. 60043, publishes "The Dividend Reinvestment Handbook" — with a price tag of $18.50 — listing the 600 plus NYSE stocks, addresses and some other information.

Q. — Many times I noticed in your column that children do not have to pay income tax. I was considering transferring some of our stocks and bonds to our children's names, so that no tax would have to be paid on the dividends and interest.

I called the Internal Revenue Service to make sure and was told this is not so. The person I spoke to at the IRS said you were wrong in writing that children do not have to pay income tax. Can you check this, again?

A. Wait a minute now. This column never said what you say it did.

It has been pointed out here that a child, or any other single person under age 65, does not have to file a federal income tax return until his or her income reaches a certain level.

The dollar amount of that level has been jacked over the years. For 1979 — the year most of us are concerned about, as we get ready to file tax returns — it was $3,300.

Also, a child who is claimed as a dependent on his or her parents' tax return has taxable dividends, interest or other does not have to file a federal tax return. The $1,000 number — also new for 1979 — is figured as part of the $3,300 total income figure in determining whether or not the child must file a federal return.

This column has often stressed that parents who shift stocks, bonds or other assets into children's names to dodge taxes can get into big trouble with the IRS.

The proper way to give securities to youngsters is to register the securities in "gift to minors act" form. When you do that, both the securities and the income the securities produce belong to the child as irrevocable gifts.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's a goody for all those hunters and campers out there.

When making stew or soup, make a little more than you're going to use. Fill a one-pound coffee can three-fourths full and freeze. Of course, label it as to contents.

The day you leave, it's always hectic getting things ready to go and setting up once you are there. What I do is pack all my assorted "soup cans" in a box. By dinner time they're thawed. I build a fire, put the cans on a grate and heat.

Everyone has their own can of stew — hobo style!

Our hunting guests always are amazed at how easily and quickly I can prepare a good hot meal. It's great for clean-up too as the cans get tossed and there are only the large soup spoons to wash.

Fun for all!

Keep up the good work, 'cause you sure make mine easier each day. Love — JoAnn "Hobo Stew"

DEAR HELOISE:

I've found a good way to make buttermilk and mayonnaise salad dressing really smooth:

I use a two-cup glass measuring cup, putting a cup of buttermilk in first, adding a packet of buttermilk dressing mix, then filling to the two-cup line with mayonnaise (best way to measure it). Then I put one beater in my portable mixer and beat smooth on low speed right in the cup.

Easy to pour into a container for storage too. — Mrs. J.L. Maddux

Read your hint and thought: Whoops! Beat that mixture in a 2-cup measuring cup and you'll have buttermilk sky, ceiling, and goodness know what 'cause it will splatter like crazy."

But we tested your tip and, sure as Davy Crockett's shootin', it works like a charm. And no extra bowl to wash!

But, for goodness sakes, folks, make sure that the one beater is turned on to low. That's important! — Hugs, Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Some of us still like to use starch to put crispness and newness in blouses, scarves, pillowcases, etc.

But spray starches are expensive and do not last very long.

I buy the half gallon bottle of liquid starch. I mix one cup of starch with one pint of water, put it in my quart-size sprayer and use it as spray starch. I add a few drops of perfume or cologne too.

It works great, goes a long way and saves money too. — Mrs. W. Meinschein

DEAR HELOISE:

I faithfully read your column and find many good ideas in it.

I play tennis at least one a week and always wind up with rough skin. What I do now is put some baby oil in my bath water. Presto! The rough skin vanishes. — Anne Glenister.

This column is written for and by you, the homemaker, so send your favorite hint to Heloise, 235 E. 45th St., New York, N.Y. 10017. Sorry she can't answer your letter personally but she will use the best hints in her column.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am interested in finding out all I can about a rather rare mental disorder called "conversion hysteria." I don't seem to be able to find much in the medical books.

A member of my family has had this diagnosis made and I would like some brief reference to go on. — Mrs. B.W.

Conversion hysteria is a neurotic illness in which psychological problems are translated into physical complaints. It can take many forms, from abdominal complaints to paralysis, even blindness. It is an illness that requires psychiatric treatment. This family member should not be ridiculed because a physical cause of his symptoms cannot be found.

There are almost endless varieties and degrees of such conditions. I once had a patient confide to me that he developed abdominal symptoms after calling in to his boss, telling him (untruthfully) that he had stomach flu.

In his recent book, Dr. Henry Kissinger relates an interesting anecdote regarding his famous secret trip to China several years ago. To protect the secrecy he was to feign a stomachache, which would provide a cover for his mysterious two-day disappearance. On the plane headed toward his destination, he recalls, he, indeed, did develop a stomachache.

Psychologists might describe these as mild and harmless forms of conversion hysteria. For others they can represent a serious and debilitating psychological illness.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is the cholesterol found in eggs any worse than that found in other food? In other words, should I just flat out stop eating eggs? My cholesterol test shows I am normal. I am 57 and never had a sick day in my life, but all I read about eggs gives me worry. — F.F.

If you are 57, never had a sick day in your life and your cholesterol level is in normal range, you should have no diet concerns. You must have been doing a lot of right things up to now. To your question: Cholesterol is the same no matter where you find it. Eggs simply contain more of it per ounce than other foods. Blood fats and their sources are discussed further in the booklet, "How to Control Cholesterol Sensibly." To order a copy mail 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have recently read about a medical technique called "plasmapheresis." I believe it involves taking poisons out of the blood with a machine, then returning the blood to the patient. Can you explain or comment? — B.S.W.

Plasmapheresis is a relatively new and remarkable medical procedure that holds out much hope for the future in a number of certain diseases.

It is particularly useful in removing unwanted substances, such as certain antibodies, from blood plasma by simply removing the plasma, then returning the rest of the blood. The whole blood is removed and placed in a centrifuge (which whirls it around rapidly) until the plasma is separated. Since antibodies are contained in plasma, removing it removes them.

This technique has been used in some ailments involving "autoimmune" problems — those in which the body creates antibodies against its own tissue. An example — myasthenia gravis.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I had my teenager in for an examination because he has always been overweight. We thought it might be a gland problem, which I've heard can be a root cause. After the examination, the doctor said, no, his glands are all fine. He said he just eats too much and doesn't get enough exercise. On his report he said his fat was "endogenous." What did that mean? — Mrs. F.K.

It means that the fat is from overeating and underexercising.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please print this letter on behalf of the thousands of kids across the country who are newspaper carriers?

I never appreciated them until my own son took on a paper route. He carries 60 papers seven days a week and has to make his rounds regardless of the weather. We live in Aberdeen, S.D., and it can range anywhere from 103 degrees in the summer to 30 below zero in the winter.

On Sundays, the boy must make several trips to his collection point because the papers are very heavy, and he can't carry even half of them at one time.

People never think of tipping their paper carrier. Why? My son carries a paper that costs $3.80 for four weeks. Not one person has ever given him $4.00 and said, "Keep the change." These same folks wouldn't dream of tipping a waitress or a barmaid or the grocery carry-out boys.

Carriers have to pay for their papers in advance. You wouldn't believe the trouble my son has when it comes to getting paid. He sometimes must go back three or four times to get his money.

I know this letter is too long, but please print as much of it as you can. A lot of kids will thank you. — Had My Say

Dear Had: I printed every word of your letter. The carrier boys (and girls) deserve to have their case put before the public. I know of no job that is better for teaching discipline, promoting maturity and giving a young person real-life business experience.

Dear Ann Landers: I got into a discussion with the girls at work about sleeping habits. I happened to mention that I always wear underpants to bed. Everyone was shocked. They said they had never heard of a married woman sleeping in underpants. (I have been married for 18 years.)

Am I eccentric, crazy or "hung-up" — as they all seem to think? I never gave this matter any thought until it came up in this morning's conversation. Do you have any statistics on how many married women sleep in underpants? Please respond to — Oddball In Ohio

Dear Ohio: I have never heard of any surveys on this subject, but it is a safe assumption that most women (single and married) do not sleep in underpants. Those who do are not necessarily wacky, however. It is probably a habit acquired in childhood.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 15-year-old girl whose eyes are swollen from crying. Last week my 18-year-old brother got into a big fight with my father and was thrown out of the house. He went to live with my aunt on the other side of town.

My father says I can't go to my aunt's when my brother is there. I have to check first. I love my brother and want to see him. Mom is no help. She is scared of Dad, like everybody else. Please tell me what to do. — Little Sis

Dear Sis: No matter what the problem is between your father and brother, you should not be involved in the punishment. Ask your guidance counselor or favorite teacher to phone your father or write him a note. You need an adult in your corner. Good luck, honey.

CONFIDENTIAL to Settle It, Please: Any child who is old enough to read should have the privilege of opening his own mail. It's a matter of personal dignity. Respect a child's privacy if you want him to respect yours.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611, enclosing 50 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Still Problem

AUSTIN (Special) — Kate looked out the window to the sandbox in the backyard where little Cody was playing.

The child, small for his four years, peered intently through his thick glasses, but nevertheless the sand he scooped up with his shovel missed the pail he was aiming for as often as it went in. Losing interest, he listlessly surveyed his surroundings.

A tear trickled down Kate's cheek as she thought of her dreams for her baby before he was born. Now, the prospect of even being able to toilet-train Cody looked dim. And though Kate knew she wasn't responsible for her ignorance, she still felt to blame for Cody's condition, because it was her behavior which had caused it.

When Kate had found out she was pregnant, her husband and she had shared a bottle of champagne that night to celebrate. Further celebrations with friends and family followed on subsequent weekends, not to mention parties and holidays later on.

Cody was born with fetal alcohol syndrome (FAS), the most common identifiable birth defect after Down's syndrome and spina bifida, and the only one which is totally preventable. There has never been a baby with FAS born to a mother who did not drink during pregnancy.

But Kate didn't know she should have curbed her drinking during pregnancy. Only recently has FAS been identified and publicized. This week has been designated as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome Awareness Week in Texas in a memorandum by Gov. William P. Clements — the first time such a week has been observed in the state. Rita Clements, the governor's wife, is honorary chairperson for the event.

Not until 1973 did researchers give the name fetal alcohol syndrome to a pattern of physical, mental and behavioral problems they observed in infants born to women who drank too much during pregnancy. FAS symptoms may include lowered birth weight, slowed growth after birth, a small head, facial irregularities, heart defects, joint and limb irregularities and mental retardation. Behavioral symptoms such as hyperactivity, extreme nervousness and short attention spans are also common. Some FAS infants are born with all of the above characteristics, while others display only some less severe aspects of the syndrome. (Certain experts believe, for instance, that alcohol may be a major cause of minimal brain dysfunction and hyperactivity, from which 5-10 percent of the school-aged population suffers.)

Even now, pregnant women may not find out the information on drinking and pregnancy they need to know. Dr. Roger W. Perry of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at the Texas Tech University School of Medicine has observed that sometimes even generally well-informed obstetricians either lack knowledge of current research and findings on alcoholism and pregnancy and who can be affected, and for some reason or another they do not believe current claims being made.

One dangerous misconception is to think that only alcoholic mothers place their unborn babies at risk. It is a matter of degrees of risk.

No one knows yet just how much alcohol is "too much," and the National Council on Alcoholism recommends that expectant mothers not drink at all. The National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism says that if an expectant mother does drink, she should limit herself to no more than two 12-ounce beers, two 5-ounce glasses of wine or two ounces of hard liquor on any occasion.

Two pregnant women, exposing their unborn babies to the same amount of alcohol may affect them differently. Genetic influences may be at work — weaknesses that make a particular fetus more susceptible. In addition, whether the alcohol was consumed all at once or spread over a period of time may be significant. Occasional binge drinking is believed more detrimental than daily or near-daily consumption at low levels.

At what point in the pregnancy the alcohol was consumed may also be critical. Excessive alcohol consumed during the early part of pregnancy may produce malformations, but during the latter stages is more likely to result in retarded growth.

For further information about FAS or about other alcohol programs, contact your local council on alcoholism (look under "Alcoholism" in the Yellow Pages) or the Texas Commission on Alcoholism, 8th Floor, Sam Houston Building, Austin, Texas 78701, (512)-475-2577.

Expert play includes all sorts of fancy squeezes, end-plays and coups, but most of the time it merely indicates what is known as proper technique. Thus, when Houston expert Dr. Harold Rockaway played today's hand his opponents did not realize that when he made the normal notrump game he had scored some nice points out of a possible 12.

There was nothing to the play. Harold took East's king of hearts with the ace at trick one and promptly cashed the ace, king and queen of clubs. Then he led dummy's jack of diamonds and let it ride. West took his queen and was caught in an end play at that early point in the play. He made his best escape try by leading the six of hearts, but this gave declarer a trick with the 10.

At this stage of the proceedings Harold could have made an overtrick by cashing out everything but spades and throwing West in with the diamond king, but he was not looking at all the cards. Instead, he tried a second diamond finesse and made just three.

Why was this a very good score? Most declarers failed to cash three clubs before attacking diamonds. This left West with an out card in clubs and a later out card in diamonds after the second finesse lost and those declarers were down one.

Cattle Futures Close Lower On Exchange

By Reuters
 CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 112 to 150 points lower on sales of 25,386 lots Monday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. June and August were down the daily limit level with sellers over. All months posted limit losses during the session.

Active selling reflected the bearishly construed cattle on feed report Friday and further weakness in cash beef at noon. All aspects of the cattle report were negative. Also noted was the steady to lower live market despite reduced receipts. Light profit taking lifted most months slightly at the close.

Deliveries total 327 thus far. Wholesale beef was unchanged to off 1 at 98 1/2 cents f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to off $2.50 with the best top $67.50 per hundredweight at Indianapolis. Slaughter was 114,000 head. About 12,450 head are expected today at the major markets.

Feeder cattle futures closed the daily limit of 150 lower in all months with sellers over. September, October and November posted new season lows on the break. Sales totaled 2,219 contracts.

Active selling was encouraged by the bearishly construed cattle on feed report Friday which indicated heavier than expected placements and numbers on feed. Further weakness in the cash beef market at noon and easier live prices were also noted.

There have been 321 deliveries thus far. Cash feeders were steady to off $3 with the best top $110 per hundredweight at San Antonio. Receipts at the major terminals are expected to total 1,900 head.

Hog futures closed 97 lower to 10 higher on sales of 6,285 cars. June paced the decline with only December up.

Futures fell back from midsession gains on spillover selling from the cattle and belly pits. The negative cold storage report and cattle on feed influenced trade in those contracts. Scale down support reflected steady to higher live prices, reduced receipts and firmer cash ham prices at noon.

Wholesale hams were up 1 to 3 at 66 to 68 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were steady to up $1 with the best top $39.50 per hundredweight at Peoria. Kill was 362,000 head. The major markets are expecting about 31,000 head today.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 40 to 192 lower on sales of 4,478 lots. March led the decline after February, March and July were off the 200 limit before the close.

Futures retreated from midsession highs following the easier tone to cash bellies at noon and lack of follow through on the bulge. Much of the selling during the session reflected the negative cold storage report, continued heavy movements into storage and reduced bacon slings.

Wholesale bacon was unchanged to off 1 at 32 1/2 to 37 cents a pound, f.o.b. river.

Farmers Plan To Boost Plantings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers have indicated they intend to plant 3.9 percent more corn this spring than they did in 1979 when they went on to harvest a record grain crop, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Officials also said farmers intended to boost plantings of sorghum, barley and some other crops this year. But they indicated there would only be a slight increase in soybeans, and reductions in oats and some other crops.

But the department's Crop Reporting Board, which released the annual survey of farmers' planting intentions, cautioned that the poll was made around Jan. 1, with most questionnaires filled out and mailed prior to President Carter's announcement that he was suspending grain sales to the Soviet Union.

"No attempt has been made to adjust or interpret any changes in reported intentions (of farmers) caused by the suspension action," the report said.

Department officials last week said much the same thing in advance of the report's release, explaining that many farmers may have had second thoughts after Carter announced an embargo on delivery of 17 million metric tons of corn and wheat the Soviets had been expected to get this year.

The administration announced last fall that corn and other feedgrain producers would not have to set aside part of their cropland from production in 1980 — as they did the past two years — to qualify for federal price supports.

But that was when the Soviet Union still was being counted on as a major customer in 1979-80 and beyond.

Since Carter's embargo action, officials have said they are thinking about some type of diversion program for 1980 grain crops. Under such a program, farmers could be paid for reducing acreages and thus help reduce a buildup in stocks that otherwise might result because of the loss of the Soviet market.

Officials say, however, that no final decision on that action has been made.

A revised survey will be made later this spring and will be released on April 17. It is expected to reflect changes in farmers' plans following Carter's embargo action and any subsequent changes in federal programs.

The Jan. 1 survey of about 20,000 farmers in major producing states showed that corn producers in 34 states — which last year accounted for 98.2 percent of the total acreage — indicated they will plant 81.6 million acres, up from 78.6 million last year.

Other crops covered in the survey and farmers' intended acreages, included:

- Upland cotton, 13.8 million acres, unchanged from last year. The 15 states surveyed had 98.9 percent of last year's acreage.
- Sorghum, 15.9 million acres, up 5.3 percent from 15.1 million last year in 23 states surveyed. Those accounted for 97.9 percent of the 1979 acreage.
- Soybeans, 70.7 million acres, up 0.1 percent from about 70.6 million last year. It covered 27 states accounting for 98.7 percent of the 1979 soybean plantings.
- Last month, the USDA said winter wheat plantings last fall for the 1980 harvest totaled about 56.8 million acres, an increase of 9 percent from 51.9 million planted for the 1979 harvest.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

DIRECTORS OF THE PLAINS COTTON Growers, Inc., based at Lubbock, have begun preparations for what some believe is the inevitable day when the U.S. Department of Agriculture seeks to institute a cotton reserve program.

But after almost two hours of discussion here last week the board declined to take a firm stand, either "pro or con."

Instead, following a recommendation of an ad hoc study committee headed by vice president Gary Ivey of Ralls, the board approved a motion to "take no position at this time, retain and enlarge the study committee, and be ready to act when more details of administration thinking on a reserve program become known."

Although it is uncertain what an administration cotton reserve proposal would involve, PCG officials said, the board's deliberations were based on the assumption that such a program would be structured along the lines of the current seed and food grain reserve.

"THE RELEASE AND CALL PRICES that would apply in a cotton reserve program are only two of the many things that we will need to know before we can realistically assess the impact on High Plains cotton producers," Ivey said.

Other prime considerations, he said, will include program interest rates, storage payments, the circumstances under which initial terms of the reserve could be changed, whether price determination procedures would be equitable to High Plains cotton types, and whether there would be a set-aside requirement to guard against a multi-year buildup of stocks.

Comments from some board members centered around contentions that a properly administered reserve program could offer producers a less costly way to hold cotton for higher prices in times of oversupply.

On the other side were those who fear that the existence of a reserve program would be used by the administration as an excuse for not preventing surplus production, and that consumer interests and other political considerations ultimately would supersede producer interests in the making of program decisions.

Some say a cotton reserve also would have international implications, an important element in that export outlets normally account for around 65 to 80 percent of the market movement of the High Plains crop.

THE CATTLE ON FEED REPORT RELEASED last Friday "shows graphically why we've had a weak market the past few weeks," says Bob Price, market economist for the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.

But the cattle we have marketed since the data was gathered probably are "more important," he adds.

Comparing the number of heavy cattle on feed (those weighing more than 1,100 pounds) with a year ago, Price says a 29 percent increase "shows just what everybody had known all along — we have a backlog of big cattle."

But he says many of those cattle have been moved within the last week, with 83,000 head marketed in the Texas-Oklahoma-New Mexico region, the second biggest weekly volume on record.

Large numbers of heavy cattle hit in January. Price says, because of unusually good grazing conditions last year and excellent feeding weather this winter. This caused a title slated for February marketing to be finished in January.

"They're not overfat or overfinished like those typically associated with 'hold-back' cattle," says Price. "They're just unusually heavy. Choice, Yield 3 type animals."

The bright side of this, he adds, "is that it takes pressure off the numbers to be marketed in February and March."

The USDA report showed 8,454,000 head on feed in the seven major feeding states on Jan. 1, up 2 percent from the previous month but 8 percent less than a year earlier. In Texas, 1,970,000 were on feed, down 1 percent from a month earlier and 1 percent less than a year ago. The High Plains count was 1,482,000 head, down from 1,568,000 a year earlier.

LATE, HECTIC SPECULATIVE AND TRADE buying boosted cotton futures Monday to final gains of 35 to 103 points in traded contracts.

Estimated volume was 13,050 lots. The new crop months posted the largest gains and the July-December spread narrowed to 565 points, down from 603 on Friday and 637 last Thursday.

Earlier local sellers turned buyers along with the trade before the market closed 10 minutes early ahead of the USDA planting intentions report, floor brokers said.

Mike discounts in the Lubbock spot quotations were narrowed 100 points for 3.3-3.4 and 50 points for both 3.0-3.2 and 2.7-2.9.

Telcot trading totaled a sluggish 6,820 bales as offerings and demand slackened. The cotton brought an average price of 54.14 cents, an average over the loan of 1,181 points.

THE PLANTING INTENTIONS REPORT encountered varying interpretations but generally appeared to have been construed as neutral to possibly somewhat bearish. There are those who say the report doesn't mean much now, citing confused conditions following the grain embargo which was announced on shipments to the Soviet Union after the survey was completed.

Upland cotton intentions in the surveyed states — which accounted for 98.9 percent of the total 1979 acreage — at 13,775,300 acres, virtually unchanged from the 13,758,300 acres planted in those states last year.

Contrary to earlier reports, the USDA included North Carolina, where plantings last year were 46,000 acres, in the survey. The report didn't include New Mexico, where plantings last year were 153,000 acres, or Pima cotton, which had plantings in 1979 of 90,000 acres.

Cotton intentions in Texas were pegged at 7.6 million acres, down only 100,000 from last year. Sorghum intentions in Texas were up 200,000 acres at 5.2 million and corn intentions were up 300,000 at 1.7 million.

WHATEVER COTTON MARKET IMPLICATIONS might be in the report, some sources said, might — at least near-term — be somewhat on the bearish side, although there were inclinations elsewhere to disregard the survey results.

The reasoning in some quarters was that cotton prices have climbed since the survey was taken and much uncertainty at the same time has been injected into the feed grains markets, pertinent to cotton plantings in the Southwest, by the grain embargo.

The rationalization in these circles is that whatever validity, if any, the report might have would be that it is a "base" and that cotton plantings — as matters stand at the moment — might, if anything, be larger.

But of course a lot of things can happen before planting time.

Sources at the Chicago Board of Trade said the planting intentions report was regarded as basically neutral for corn, soybeans and wheat.

Actor 'High' On MGM's 'The Formula'

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The sign on the door of George C. Scott's dressing room-moble home issued the warning: "Do Not Knock." However, the star admitted a reporter and seemed reasonably benign.

It was a gray day on a location in the residential Cheviot Hills for "The Formula," MGM's new movie about the alleged power of oil companies to destroy a method for making cheap fuel. Steve Shagan ("Save the Tiger") is producing from his own novel and script. John Avildsen ("Rocky") is directing.

"I haven't been this high on a movie for a long time," Scott commented, adding with a degree of delight, "It's going to make people very angry."

"People are going to realize what the oil cartels have done to this country. This isn't just fiction. It is well documented; Shagan is very knowledgeable on the subject."

"It's enough to make even a conservative like me believe that the only answer is nationalization of the oil industry. I say that with great reluctance, because I truly am a conservative independent. Not partisan; I stumble over partisanship. But I definitely have an ingrained conservatism."

"The Formula," he explained, took the form of "a detective story that shows how extensive and corrosive the vast oil industry can be." He plays a Los Angeles police lieutenant seeking the killer of a fellow officer. His quest leads him to Germany and the Nazi past and finally to oil tycoon Adam Steiffel, the villain of the piece. He is played by Marlon Brando.

Brando was scheduled to work 11 days, reportedly for his usual stipend of $3 million. However, he needed more time to work on the role and he granted a couple of extra days, gratis.

Scott was still raving about Brando.

"He's original, brilliant, witty — I never realized what a great sense of humor he has," said Scott. "I was delighted to work with him; we see eye-to-eye on many things."

"I had met him once, years ago; I knew his sister Jocelyn quite well, having worked with her. Marlon I knew only casually. We played chess together and got along quite well, even though we work differently."

"Marlon is reflective and slow and deliberate. I like to push along, get things done. He rewrote his part four times, driving John (Avildsen) and Steve (Shagan) out of their minds."

"But he's worth it all. He has created a major villain — charming, funny, expansive. He is a totally original talent. Singlehandedly he revolutionized film acting."

"The Formula" is Scott's first film in nine months, the last having been the still unreleased "The Changeling." He co-starred with wife Trish Van Devere in the Canadian-made ghost story, which he said was being re-edited. The Scotts maintain a home in Connecticut but are looking for another one here "so we don't have to support the Bel-Air Hotel."

Scott will be staying on after "The Formula" to direct a television movie based on the life of the legendary baseball pitcher Leroy Satchel Paige. Lou Gossett will play the role.

"I'm an old baseball nut," Scott admitted, "and I'm doing it because I love sports. Also I don't think the public fully realizes what black athletes have contributed."

"I was supposed to meet Paige at Lou's house. A meeting had been set up but, but Satch never arrived. He had just arrived, met up with some old friends and went out on the town. And he's 75 or 80 years old, nobody really knows."

Biographical Producer Makes Edward VIII Movie

NEW YORK (AP) — With "Notorious Woman — The Life of George Sand," "Sarah Bernhardt" and "Henry VIII and His Six Wives" to his credit, filmmaker Waris Hussein is something of an expert on the dramatized biography.

He puts that reputation to test with his latest production, "Edward and Mrs. Simpson," a film more difficult than the others for its near-contemporary setting.

It's the story of Edward VIII, the British king who abdicated in 1936 to marry Wallis Simpson, an American divorcee.

Hussein calls "Edward and Mrs. Simpson" "a sort of political thriller" — the British people weren't told of the relationship until 11 days before the abdication, Dec. 11, 1936.

"I have done the lives of a number of historical figures," says Hussein, 41, who was born in India and raised in England. "They were all separated from the present by two or more generations, and then, you can take a certain amount of dramatic license."

"In this case, I had to be very careful, first of all because a number of the principal characters are still alive.

"As a director," he says, "I was creating a world that I would ultimately be responsible for, and with something like this, there are always people out there ready to haul you up to answer for it."

"Edward and Mrs. Simpson," as it turned out, was a critical and popular success in Britain. It begins a six-week run in this country Wednesday evening on the Mobil Showcase Network, composed of 56 stations in 55 markets.

The Mobil Showcase Network is a sort of counterpart to the oil company's involvement in public TV as underwriter of the "Masterpiece Theater" series, now in its ninth season.

Mobil's aim with the specially constructed network of independent, affiliated and public television stations was to reach 70 percent of the country's TV-equipped homes.

Previous Mobile Showcase Network presentations were "Edward the King," "Between the Wars," "When Havoc Struck" and "Those Who Dared."

Hussein, whose dramatization of Frederick Raphael's "The Glittering Prizes" aired on public television in this country early in 1978, says his objective with "Edward and Mrs. Simpson" was "not just to tell the story, historically, but to tell something about these two totally disparate people from two totally different worlds, and what their relationship meant to them and the British royalty."

"Wallis Simpson actually thought she was going to marry the King of England," the director says. "She was surprised, and a lot of people in England were made to realize the precarious position of the monarchy."

Research for "Edward and Mrs. Simpson" was extensive, and Hussein says painstaking attention was given to detail. "For instance," he says, "his intimate friends called him 'David.' But the moment they came into the public eye, they would call him 'Sir.'"

In addition, the director says, considerable attention was given to finding performers who physically resembled the leading characters. Edward Fox ultimately was cast as the king, and Cynthia Harris as Mrs. Simpson.

Hussein, currently at work on a motion picture, "The Fan," to star Lauren Bacall, says despite the need to seek

"roots in reality" with a film like "Edward and Mrs. Simpson," the director must be allowed some latitude.

"Edward VIII found Buckingham Palace claustrophobic," Hussein says in illustration, "and I wanted to echo his feeling that the openness of Fort Belvedere, his escape, was more to his liking."

"In filming scenes set inside the palace, I ignored the great, glittering rooms for the dark and oppressive wood-paneled chambers."

Department Stalls Newspaper Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's new antitrust chief said Monday legislation limiting newspaper ownership in some circumstances might be constitutional but the department is "not yet prepared" to recommend it.

Sanford M. Litvack, testifying before the oversight subcommittee of the House Small Business Committee, said he "would have grave concerns about the constitutionality" of any such law.

Litvack said the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press "might well preclude" any restriction on the ability of a corporation to establish a new newspaper in a town of its choosing.

He added, however, "such considerations might not extend to restrictions on the purchase of an existing newspaper, particularly when that newspaper is a monopoly newspaper."

In such circumstances, he said, the legislation "might be more defensible" as a means of preserving a diversity of points of view.

Litvack said the number of daily newspapers owned by chains has nearly doubled in the past two decades — from 552 in 1960 to 1,095 in 1978.

Sassy, Seductive Rock Vocalist Offers Exciting Rox Performance

By WILLIAM D. KERNS
A-J Entertainment Editor

Despite being forced to play before a rather dead audience — an audience perhaps drained by the day's Super Bowl excitement and the drudgery of watching a boring front band called Nice Guys — vocalist Pat Benatar, the tiny singer with the big voice, offered an extremely exciting and oftentimes involving hour of rock and roll Sunday night at Rox.

Combining sass and seduction, sarcasm and sincerity, the Chrystalis recording artist displayed an admirable stage presence while playing down her sexual priming in favor of sincere and biting vocals.

Indeed, if one was to judge only by the advance photographs and biography mailed out by her record company, the obvious reaction would be here is a talented little singer trying to sell a few extra records through her sexual attraction. But the pictures don't do her justice and neither does the image. Though she was wearing a rather skimpy outfit (covered by a jacket), and though it was hard for the chauvinists in the audience to refrain from occasionally noticing that little quiver in her thigh muscles when she slammed her foot down on the stage, she seemed more inclined on selling her songs than her body.

Miss Benatar knew how to draw every ounce of emotion from her lyrics, making "So Sincere" all the more effective by biting off the lyrics in snapping, sarcastic notes — making it obvious she was aware of the character's insincerity — and issuing warnings to individual audience members with her "don't you mess around with me" line in her smash hit, "Heartbreaker."

Professionalism was apparent from the very first when, instead of opening with a hit and milking the applause, she and her very fine band opted to offer a trio of songs, one segueing into the other, with similar themes. With drummer Myron Grombacher already hyper beyond relief, she started with "If You Think You Know How To Love Me." This song blended right into the aforementioned excellent rendition of "So Sincere," which in turn melted into a dynamite version of "I Need A Lover." The latter song was one of the highlights of the young year at the Rox, with lead guitarist Neil Geraldo and rhythm guitarist Scott Sheets — both making unique contributions, then joining with Miss Benatar and bassist Roger Capps for a bit of rock choreography as the music built in intensity.

Mind you, many might say the moment lacked spontaneity, that it was too planned. So be it. It was exciting all the same, and the visuals complimented the sound in terrific fashion.

With "Heartbreaker" already a proven hit, Miss Benatar is now receiving air-play with "My Clone Sleeps Alone," a bit of social commentary which argues against the loss of feeling which goes hand in hand with a reduction in individualism. But the song almost became a protest on stage, as the vocalist made it into a cause, almost begging the listeners to take note of the possible effects of progress.

But she also knew how to play the role of tough girl, thrusting her small frame at the drum kit during "Heartbreaker" and offering a new song perhaps titled "Best Shot" which has hit written all over it. This tune alone seemed an indication the fiery singer will indeed stick around.

Though she excelled at bludgeoning rock, like the nasty "No You Don't" dedicated to the Ayatollah "and anyone else who's treated you like (expletive)," Pat Benatar cannot hide the fact she possesses a trained voice and not a small portion of finesse. The arrangement of "In The Heat Of The Night," so sultry and so moving, is a case in point as she and her band worked together and punctuated the lyrics with intelligent musical phrasing and pauses.

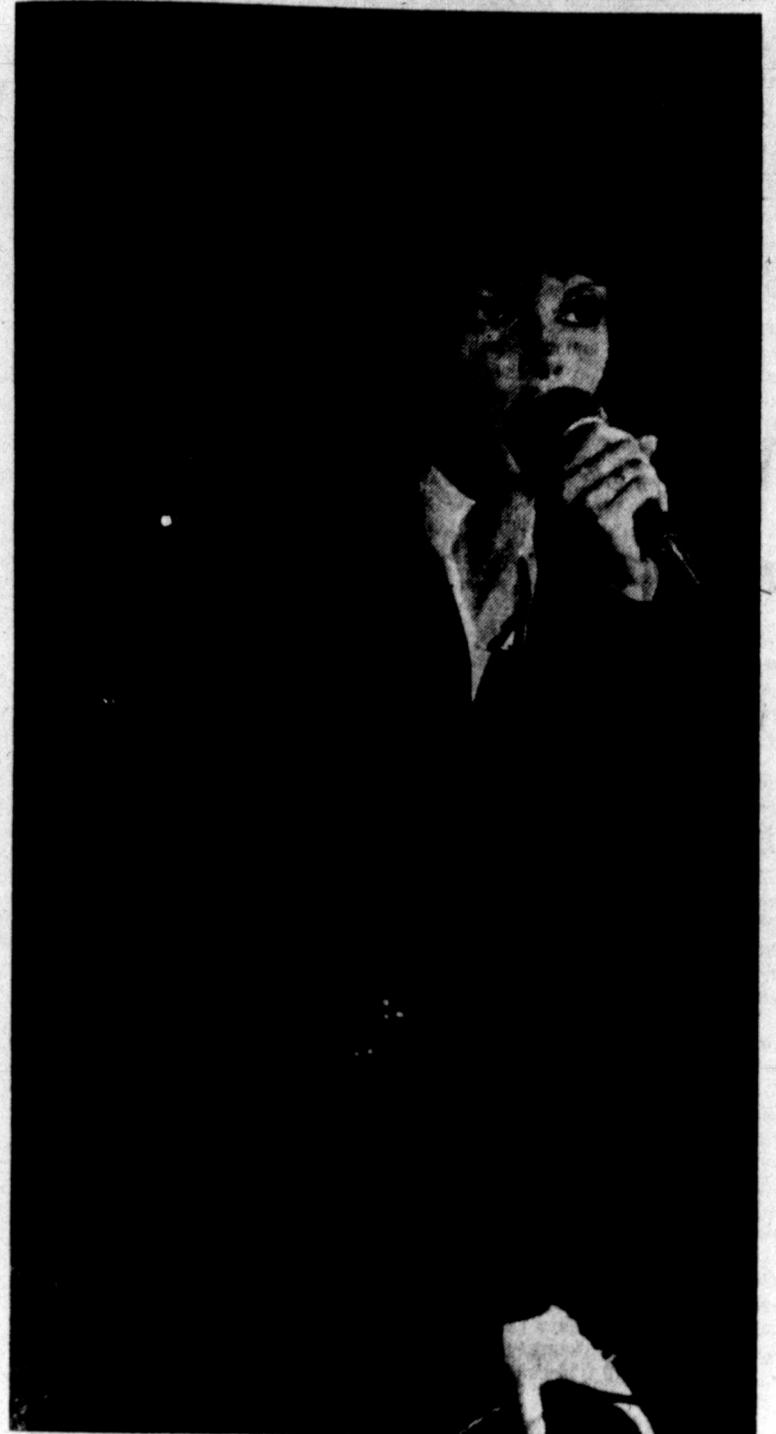

This was her best moment, almost theatrical in nature, and, while she'd already proven she could rock out with emotionalism dominating vocal purity, one was even more impressed with the way she could manipulate the crowd by abruptly cutting off a note which seemed as though it would last an eternity and then exit with the spotlights capturing her in pouting profile.

Mind you, the show had its faults, one being the rather short set. Though Miss Benatar and her musicians came back for two one-song encores — the first an entertaining Rascals number, the latter a rather anticlimactic '50s tune — the fact remains her first set lasted only 45 minutes. The band also seemed too concerned with its visual appearance at times: there was a lot of dancing and clowning around. Drummer Grombacher, last seen pounding for rocker Rick Derringer, was the most obvious — climbing his kit and dancing, but not impressing all that much with his musical skills.

There's little at a rock concert more boring than drum solos these days anyway, and his was the show's lowest point.

But Geraldo, Sheets and Capps, all of whom played on Miss Benatar's album, were impressive and still managed to express sincerity, caring and skill. No doubt, the longer the band plays together, the hotter it's going to get. Despite the flaws, Pat Benatar's concert remained a fine night of rock and roll.

Minister Endorses Rally Against Klan

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Ben Chavis, the recently paroled leader of the Wilmington 10, called a news conference Monday to endorse a planned Feb. 2 demonstration in Greensboro, N.C., against the Ku Klux Klan.

He said 500 to 1,000 people from the Washington area will be among 20,000 outsiders expected to be in Greensboro for the demonstration.

He said the event "will not only protest Klan activity, but the rise of the Klan mentality in this country."

The Wilmington 10 were nine black men and one white woman convicted in the 1971 firebombing of a grocery store. Chavis was the last to be released.

Technology Export Licenses Revoked

WASHINGTON (AP) — In yet another action aimed at penalizing the Soviet Union for its military involvement in Afghanistan, the Carter administration on Monday revoked the first export licenses in its effort to block high-technology shipments to the Soviets.

The licenses for spare computer parts for a Soviet truck plant were revoked by the Commerce Department, which earlier this month suspended all export licenses for the Soviets pending review of U.S. policy on trade with the communist country.

Commerce Secretary Philip M. Klutznick said the licenses for computer ware were revoked because trucks produced at the Soviet's Kama River plant "have been used in Afghanistan in support of the Soviet military invasion."

The trade decision followed President Carter's threat on Sunday to call for a boycott of the Olympics unless Soviet troops are withdrawn from Afghanistan by Feb. 20 or the games are moved from Moscow or postponed.

And it occurred as a disgruntled Commerce Department trade employee, Lawrence J. Brady, told a news conference that he was resigning over the department's handling of the Soviet trade issue.

He alleged that Commerce officials were studying what amounted to "a blanket exemption" for high-technology items that would allow the export of almost any U.S. goods that the Soviets needed.

Commerce Department spokesman Ernest Lotito denied Brady's charges, saying, "His main point seems to be this department is trying to subvert the president's policy. The Commerce Department and its secretary wholeheartedly support the president's action."

Robert Amdur, spokesman for the Commerce Department's international trade division, said two licenses were involved in Monday's revocation order and the value of the goods was about $80,000.

Amdur also said he did not know how the decision would affect several pending license applications, which Commerce officials said in November were being held up because of allegations that the agency was not following its own review procedures properly.

The number of the pending applications or the value of the goods involved was not immediately known, Amdur said.

The Soviet plant, which produces light-weight trucks and eight-cylinder engines, was begun in the early 1970s with U.S. help on the Kama River in the Ural Mountains of northeastern Russia.

Failure Charged

Brady, former acting director and now deputy director of the Office of Export Administration, has charged that the department "has failed to adequately protect the national security interests of the United States" in its approval of export licenses for the Soviet plant and for other so-called "controlled countries."

An internal Commerce investigation concluded in December, however, that "no compliance action is warranted."

"The decision by the U.S. government to license certain equipment and technology for use in the Kama project was based on the assumption that the end use of the Kama products was essentially civilian," the division's report said.

However, it added: "It was recognized that vehicles produced at Kama could also be used by the Soviet military."

Latest In Series

The revocation of licenses was the latest in a series of steps taken since Carter said in a nationally televised speech on Jan. 4 that the United States could not "do business as usual" with the Soviets because of their "callous violation of international law" in Afghanistan.

The actions have all but stopped U.S. trade with the Soviet Union, which last year bought more than $3.4 billion worth of U.S. agricultural and manufactured goods.

Carter Wins In Iowa Vote

F. Kennedy's loss in Oregon in his bid for the 1968 Democratic presidential nomination.

Turnout Blamed

Steve Johnson, spokesman for the Kennedy campaign in Iowa, said an unprecedented turnout of voters at the caucuses led to the president's landslide margin.

In New York, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown, who gained only scattered votes in Iowa after casting his lot with the uncommitted, said Kennedy's challenge was failing and claimed he would be the major rival to Carter in the coming primaries.

Republicans voted their candidate preferences in a straw poll, and elected precinct delegates without binding them to candidates.

With 561 precincts tallied, the Republican count read this way:

Bush 7,288, or 32 percent

Reagan 6,713, or 29 percent

Baker 3,558

(nationally 2,225)

Rep. Philip Crane of Illinois 1,445

Rep. John B. Anderson of Illinois 969

Uncommitted 400

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas 361

"We worked harder," said Bush, who spent more time campaigning in Iowa than any of his rivals. "I believe it's a victory, no matter what the votes are."

He said he had gained momentum, had dealt a bad beating to Baker and Connally and had emerged from the field as Reagan's prime rival.

community, which is adjacent to the plant and sits on the north edge of Borger, were evacuated at the height of the fire.

They were allowed to return late Sunday, but many of them chose to stay with friends or in motels rather than spend the night in windowless homes in 28-degree freezing rains.

Ada Westbrook, who lives in a mobile home about a mile and a half from the refinery, said: "We opened the door and saw a big ball of fire and black smoke."

Firemen from Borger got the fire under control about noon Sunday, but decided to let another small fire burn through the night.

"A fire like that is so devastating that if there were any clues as to what caused it, they're all gone now. Our main concern is just to get an itemized statement of what we need to get our operation back in order," said Norman Berkley, a plant official.

He said he could not predict when plant operation could resume.

Customers in Chicago, Denver, St. Louis and several Texas cities will be affected by the interruption in gasoline refining, Berkley said.

The explosions were said to have begun in cracking units 22 and 23. Two persons were killed and 13 were injured Oct. 25 while a leaking gas line in unit 22 was being repaired.

STANDS FIRM — Anita Bryant, actress-singer and religious crusader, displays a variety of emotions as she speaks with reporters Monday about the effects of her controversial stance in the gay rights issue in Florida. Concerned Mother Convictions Cause Crusader To Speak Out

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CONTROVERSIAL entertainer and religious crusader Anita Bryant told reporters here Monday she has no qualifications for conducting her well-publicized battle against gay rights, except as a concerned mother and as one called by God to help defeat the push for such rights.

Mrs. Bryant, in town for a Monday night concert at the Civic Center, also said that despite the toll taken on her career and personal life because of her crusade several years ago, she "would not change my stand or convictions."

During an afternoon news conference, Mrs. Bryant said she has "never professed to be anything but just a sinner saved by God's grace."

Cast Into Limelight

She added she "wasn't the one who asked for the publicity" surrounding her fight, but that members of the gay community cast her efforts into the limelight.

Mrs. Bryant said she felt at the time of the battle over the legal rights of gays in Dade County, Fla., that "somehow God has raised me up" to speak out on the issue.

The controversy that constantly surrounds Mrs. Bryant's public appearances also was apparent in Lubbock, when two members of the local National Organization for Women, who had joined reporters at the press conference, were asked by concert promoters to leave.

Escorted From Meeting

Prior to Mrs. Bryant's appearance, a security guard escorted the two women; who were not members of the media, out of the conference room.

When questioned about the incident, the former Miss America said she was not aware of the problem and that she had made no rule concerning the presence of NOW members at the press conference.

But, she said, if the women had come for "ulterior motives," she would not have wanted them in the press room.

Concert promoter Melanie Barrier said she had requested the NOW members leave "because of shortness of time," and asked that only media representatives be allowed to stay.

Mrs. Bryant said she does not know whether the controversy associated with her name helps or damages her image, but said she has "suffered greatly" because of her vocal attack on gay rights.

She said she still is blacklisted by the major television networks, but that she recently appeared on an entertainment special about the '70s at the request of Dick Clark.

Mrs. Bryant said she is devoting less time to public appearances and more time to her Anita Bryant Ministries. Fishers of Men booking agency, and the establishment and operations of counseling centers for homosexuals.

She said her anti-gay rights crusade had damaged her career financially, noting that while she once had been a top convention entertainer, after the crusade she received only two offers to work conventions.

She said it has been difficult "taking a fee for the testimony" she professes in her concerts, but that her family has adjusted to it.

Mrs. Bryant said she feels she has "the support of the the majority of Americans out there." She said that a Good Housekeeping Magazine poll listing her as one of the most admired women in the country "was not so much a vote for Anita Bryant, the person, but for standing for my convictions."

Mrs. Bryant said that people need "to take on more responsibility and that she "could never go back to being apathetic."

Toll Hits 222 As Colombian Bleachers Fall

SINCELEJO, Colombia (AP) — The death toll in the collapse of wooden bleachers at a bullfight festival rose to 222 Monday, as dozens of hospitalized victims died of their injuries, state police reported.

More than 500 persons were injured in the tragedy, Sunday, and police said nearly 200 remain in serious condition.

A festival official blamed the collapse on overcrowding and rain.

"Such overcrowding of the stands had never been seen," said Hector Tamara, president of the annual festival at Colombia's largest bullring, located in this city of 100,000 persons, about 200 miles north of Bogotá.

Tamara said eight of the stands collapsed.

"There is a capacity for 333 persons, but each one surely had about 400. The rain also helped cause the tragedy because the ground softened and the wooden supports slipped," he said in a radio interview.

Almost all stores in the city closed for three days of mourning, and about 100 of the victims were buried Monday. Police said all the bodies had been recovered.

The municipal government appointed an investigating team of engineers and architects to determine the cause of the tragedy.

The bleachers, an upward extension of the grandstand, were supported by long beams sunk into the ground. Officials said the beams gave way under the weight of the crowd.

An estimated 400,000 fans had packed the ring for the festival, Sunday. As the tragedy occurred, they were wildly cheering scores of boys and men in the ring who were running from several bulls before the start of a bullfight.

Some eyewitnesses said, in reports broadcast from the scene, that the stands began to fall backwards when the people in them rushed toward the rear of the wooden structures to seek shelter under an aluminum roof when a torrential rain began falling on the crowd.

"In 30 seconds the stands crashed down like a castle of cards... Some bodies were almost buried by the boards, others were completely buried by the ruins and some people were trampled in the human stampede," said a newsmen on the scene.

the other utilities serving the city, he said.

Iranian Says Soviets Endanger Frontiers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
FOREIGN MINISTER

Sadeq Ghotbzadeh said Monday that Iran's "own borders are in danger" because of the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan.

A broadcast tape of the Super Bowl football game was delivered, meanwhile, to the occupied U.S. Embassy for listening by the American hostages in the 79th day of their captivity.

Ghotbzadeh, a candidate in Friday's presidential election, said Iran was "ready to render every assistance for putting an end to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan... We condemn the Soviet danger to Iran and in order to safeguard the interests of our country we should take decisive action on the Soviet threat because now our borders are in danger," he was quoted by the official Pars news agency.

Might Aid Guerrillas

Ghotbzadeh did not specify what kind of aid would be offered but hinted that Iran would offer support to the Afghan Moslem guerrillas who are resisting the Soviet troops sent into the neighboring Central Asian country in late December.

He also said Iran was in the "claws" of Soviet communism and American imperialism and that it must develop a different kind of political system that would serve as a model for the developing world.

He made the remarks in a presidential campaign speech broadcast on Tehran radio and monitored in London.

Ghotbzadeh's remarks came a day after the Soviet Embassy in Tehran issued a statement emphasizing the Kremlin's "friendly approach" to Iran. The statement, carried in Tehran newspapers, also denied what it called propaganda reported by U.S. news organizations that Soviet troops in Afghanistan posed any threat to Iran.

Through Embassy Gates

American radio reporter Alex Paen, of KMPC in Los Angeles, passed the Islamic militants taped cassettes of the game through the embassy's iron gates after receiving assurances that they would be given to the estimated 50 hostages.

"I've been told several times they would play the tapes for the hostages, and the students have kept their word in the past," said Paen, who has been in Tehran for two months. In December, he delivered some three million Christmas cards sent to the Americans from the United States.

The tape of Sunday's game, in which the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Los Angeles Rams 31-19, was fed to Paen by telephone earlier in the day from the Los Angeles station. Commercial and half-time events were deleted, he said.

Paen was granted special permission to stay in Iran and deliver the tape, although American reporters were ordered out of Iran last week. Paen, who plans to return home, Tuesday, said he had also delivered several letters and Christmas cards and a personal message from the wife of one of the hostages, who was not identified by name.

From Clerical Visit

The arrangements for making a taped broadcast available to the hostages came out of the Christmas Eve visit to the embassy by three American clergymen. At the time, the clergymen said, some of the Americans asked them what was going on in the National Football League.

In other developments:

— Two ministers from Houston, the Revs. Don Lee Everett and Bobby Mills, said they were still waiting, after spending a week in Tehran, to meet with Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the American hostages. Iranian officials had told them they were trying to arrange meetings before the ministers leave for home on Thursday, Everett told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from New York.

— Israeli military sources said several dozen Iranian volunteers had entered south Lebanon to join Palestinian forces there.

No Appropriations 'Good News' Spread By Gov. Clements

and which uses the county teaching hospital for its students), stressed the need for some type of "stable sources of support for primary teaching hospitals," saying that they are "our lifeline to teaching."

The governor rested his chin on his tightly interlocked fingers and leaned on his elbows as he sat listening to Lockwood's outline of needs for the medical school and teaching hospital, and afterwards Clements agreed, "I think you do have a recognizable problem here."

But he stressed, "It does not lend itself to a simplistic approach."

When Lockwood discussed the need for adequate faculty to teach medical students at the three Health Sciences Center sites (Lubbock, El Paso and Amarillo) he noted that local community physicians also help in the clinical teaching.

"That last item is very important," Clements interjected. "Use those local doctors. They like it, the community likes it and it's cost effective."

Clements took notes often during his tour as school officials continued to ply him with statistics and summaries and he sometimes stopped the administrators to ask very specific questions about operations.

"Explain to me the nebulous line of authority between the Tech president and the medical school," Clements said.

Stone Trial Testimony Commences

we got curious."

"I heard they were supposed to kill a black cat and rub blood on themselves," he said, adding that the Stones' residence was "peaceful" when the car rolled past the first time, about 7:30 p.m., approximately an hour before the shooting occurred.

Maria Trevino, a 17-year-old Dimmitt High School senior, the first witness called in the trial, testified she saw "a man come from behind a bush" at the Stones' residence as she sat in the pickup with Miss Casas. "He stood a few feet in front of the pickup. He was wearing a gold shirt, and I had never seen anyone that big, but I couldn't distinguish his face."

Miss Trevino said she couldn't make out the man's face because the lights in the pickup had been turned off as the vehicle pulled into the driveway of the Stones house.

"We turned in the driveway because we thought they (the boys in the car) were going to turn around and we wanted to turn around first," she said. "We only sat there a minute before Carlos Garza, another occupant of the pickup, pushed me down on the floorboard. I don't remember seeing or hearing anything after that."

Windows Shattered

"We knew something had happened because Roxanne was full of blood," she continued. She also said that, as they drove back to town at speeds up to 80 mph, she noticed the back windshield and the right window of the pickup had been shattered.

Rolando Trevino, 19, Maria's brother, and another occupant of the car, testified that the carload of young men had met the pickup north of Dimmitt and agreed to show them where the Stones lived.

"We told them to follow us to the Stones' house," Trevino said. "We didn't stop. We just slowed down and showed them which one it was. I stuck my hand out the window and pointed."

A seven-woman, five-man all-white jury was selected early Monday from a panel of 35 Hale County residents. Jury selection in the case took two weeks, as attorneys on both sides carefully questioned prospective jurors in an attempt to uncover any bias about witches. None of the attorneys say the Stone's religious background will become a major issue in the case, other than to identify the motive for the teens driving past the house that night.

to interim president Dr. Lawrence Graves, who responded that it wasn't nebulous at all but a direct line of authority.

Clements, who has a strong business background, then questioned, "Is that a black line (of authority) or a dotted line (on the organizational chart)?"

"A black line," Graves said, explaining that Health Science Center vice president Lockwood reports directly to the Tech president.

Clements seemed impressed when Graves told him Tech reduced its state paid employees by 6.2 percent in 1979.

"We're pretty proud of that," Graves said, to which the governor immediately responded, "You should be. That's marvelous."

A slide presentation explained how Texas Tech has cut its energy consumption and costs despite rising fuel rates and Clements said the energy cuts were "very impressive."

Impressed With Enrollment

Clements also seemed impressed with enrollment statistics which show that 70 percent of all Tech students are Texans and that they come from all areas of the state, not just the West Texas region although 44 percent are from surrounding counties.

The governor said the enrollment reports show an "amazing distribution" of students and that it means, "Texas Tech is no longer a local or regional institution" but truly a multi-purpose state university "that joins the ranks of such schools as Texas A&M and the University of Texas."

Also at the chamber luncheon, the governor said the United States must make a stand against the Soviet Union in the Middle East "or we are going to pay a horrible price for our vacillation."

The former deputy secretary of defense under President Ford said one option the United States has in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is to put a naval blockade around Cuba.

"Tit for tat," Clements said. "I think they would back off from the confrontation because it doesn't fit into their plan."

Criticizing President Carter on several fronts, Clements said the "first step" toward resolving American problems abroad "shall be to replace Mr. Carter."

Chickens "Coming Home"

"The enormous mistake he has made in his foreign policy — those chickens are coming home to roost," Clements said.

Clements also called for increased production as a solution to the problem of decreased energy supplies, saying, "We must turn loose and unfetter the oil and gas industry and the coal industry and let them go to work."

"Mr. Carter's program of conservation is no program at all," he added.

The governor told The Avalanche-Journal he has no preference between Texas Republican presidential candidates George Bush and John Connally.

He refused to speculate on whether Connally, who leads Bush by a substantial margin in recent state polls, will have to beat the former CIA director handily in the May primary in order to maintain his campaign momentum.

Informed sources said the government was trying to stop a wave of gold smuggling by profiteers who apparently were out to cash in on the gold price spiral in world markets.

Clements, Mexican Governor To Meet

AUSTIN (UPI) — Gov. Alfonso Martinez Dominguez of the Mexican state of Nuevo Leon will visit Gov. Bill Clements today for an hour-long discussion of problems confronting the two border states.

Martinez Dominguez is the first of four Mexican border state governors expected to visit the Texas Capitol at Clements' invitation. The Texas governor last summer and fall visited the four Mexican state capitals to initiate discussions of problems such as drug smuggling, illegal aliens, and trade between Mexico and the U.S., particularly sales of oil and gas by Mexico to Texas and other U.S. customers.

Clements, a Republican, has enlisted the aide of one of the state's best known Democrats to host the Mexican entourage.

Lady Bird Johnson will give Martinez Dominguez and his group a guided tour of the Lyndon B. Johnson Library on the University of Texas campus during their day-long stay in Texas.

The Mexican group is scheduled to arrive at 10 a.m. by private aircraft, and will be formally welcomed to Texas in ceremonies in the House chamber about 10:45.

Clements then will lead his guests on a tour of the Capitol building.

Brush Trucks To Be Provided Year-Round

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

More than a year since brush pickup fell under the City Council's tax-cutting ax, city officials are meeting residents halfway in the disposal of brush and large items.

A program of leaving brush trucks at nine fire stations for the disposal of Christmas trees proved so successful, the program is being tried on a year-round basis.

Sanitation Superintendent Max Cunningham said the trucks will be located at fire stations at 17th Street and Utica Avenue, East 48th Street and Quirt Avenue and 79th Street and Slide Road. A fourth truck will be placed at the pump station at 29th Drive and the Brownfield Highway.

Residents can bring brush, water heaters, boxes, furniture, or other items which have been clogging city alleys since brush pickup was eliminated to the open trucks, Cunningham said.

Sanitation route supervisors will check the trucks and have them emptied when they are full, he said.

Cunningham said each of the nine trucks used about two weeks around

Christmas had to be emptied at least three times, with one emptied four five times.

The idea of the self-service brush trucks, which originated with Public Services Director Denzel Percifull, is to provide residents a place to put their brush and large items without making a trip to the landfill, Cunningham said.

Placing the trucks at various locations around town costs the city "a whole lot less" than a full-scale brush pickup program, he said.

Instead of reinstatement of the program, Cunningham said the complete solution to the brush pickup problem lies with "full citizen participation."

"At one time we had beautiful alleys," he said. And, although the alleys are "not as bad as we would expect," Cunningham admits they are "unsightly in a lot of places."

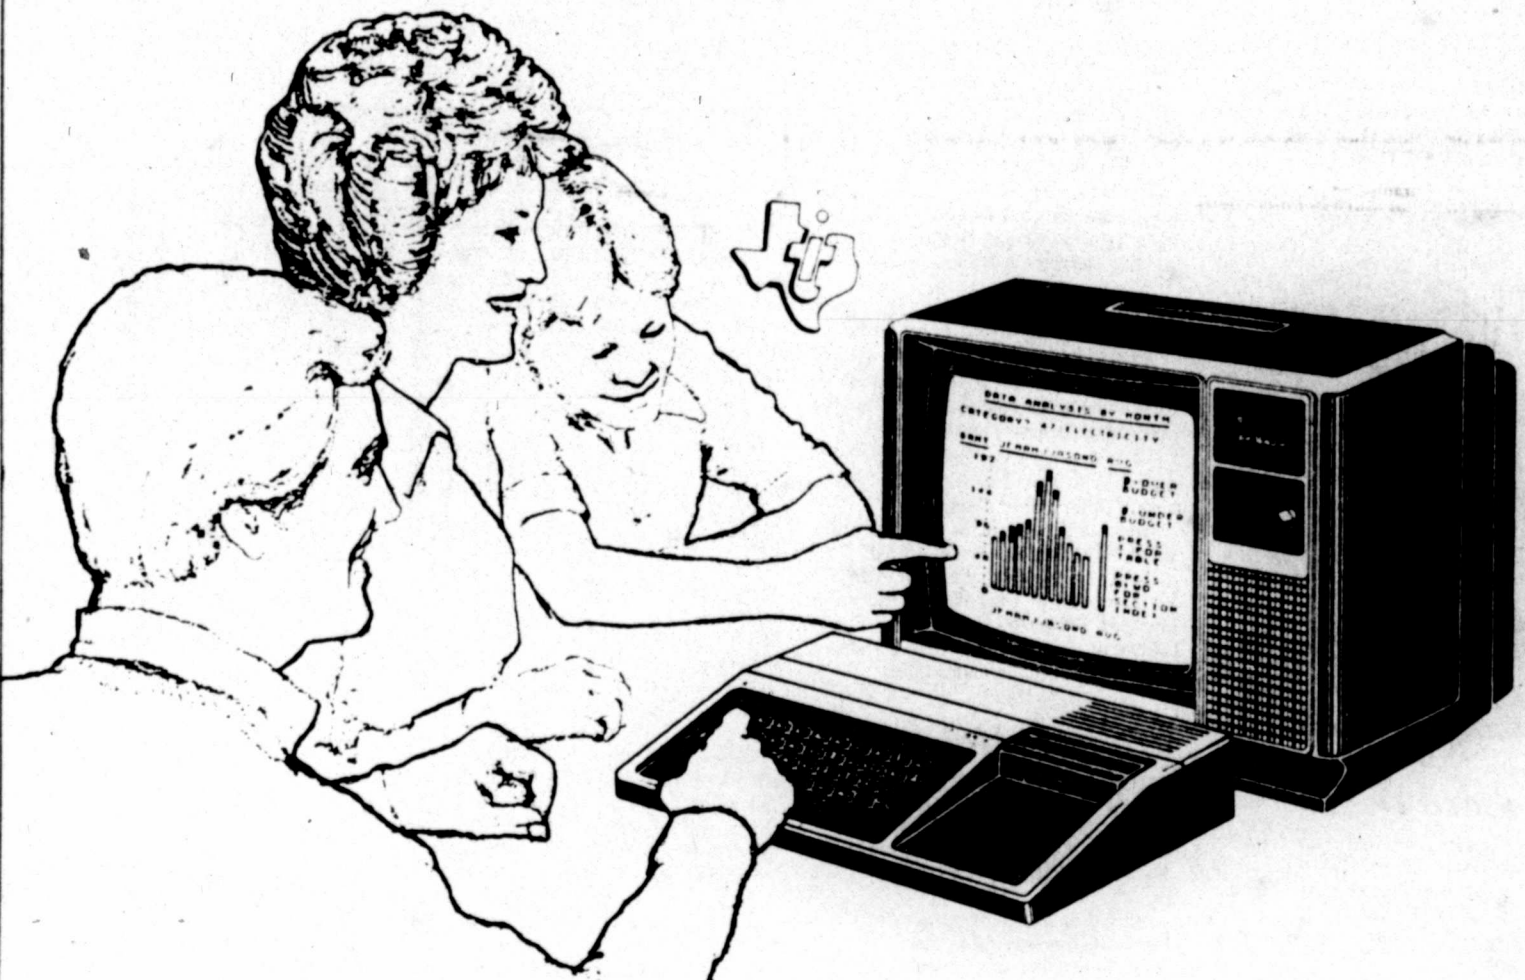

"People themselves have to decide to take care of the alleys," he said.

That includes cutting up brush to three-foot lengths so it can be placed in dumpsters and hauling large items either to the brush trucks or to the landfill, which those who pay a monthly garbage charge can use free.

LCC Downs Trinity 69-68

By ERIC GALE
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Former Marquette University coach Al McGuire had a pet name for close basketball games, contests that allowed for little or no breathing room: white knucklers.

Lubbock Christian College coach Larry Hays has another name, by no means a pet, for such games involving his Chaparrals: "near disaster."
For better than half their game against Trinity University Monday night in the fieldhouse, the Chaparrals played in the absence of both intensity and foul-plagued center Kevin Wharton, but refused to buckle under and defeated the Tigers 69-68.

In a game that scraped the skins off the Chaps and much of the patience from Hays, LCC hit 72 percent of its field-goal attempts in the second half to erase a 41-33 halftime deficit and gain its second victory in three Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association outings. LCC is 11-12 overall.

"We played terrible in the first 10 minutes of the game," said Hays, finding no one to argue the point. "We tried to take ourselves completely out of the ball game. Our guards weren't playing any defense at all."

Wharton also played very little defense, but only because the 6-6 senior post was tagged with his third personal foul after just seven and a half minutes of action. With Wharton confined to the bench, LCC fell from a 10-9 lead into a 21-12 hole in the space of four minutes.

Trinity exploited open areas around the key for 15-22 foot jump-shots. Guard Mark Taylor scored 12 of his 15 first-half points from that vicinity.

The situation so distressed Hays that he yanked his remaining four starters —

Keith Gardner, Marshall Smith, Bruce Carver and Bill McGee — in favor of reserves Rick Murdock, Keith Money, Larry Holt and Gary Norris, with 6:38 to play in the half and LCC trailing 25-16. They joined Wharton's replacement, Jim Steensma.

"The problem in the first half is that with Wharton out, the rest of the guys don't think they can play," Hays said.

MHS Battles Hereford Tonight

By JIM FERGUSON

Monterey will face its toughest test of the young District 4-AAAA basketball season tonight when it hosts Hereford.

Both teams enter the conference encounter, set for 7:30 p.m. in the MHS, with perfect 1-0 marks. The Plainsmen opened the loop season by knocking off Lubbock High 70-50. Meanwhile, Hereford surprised Plainview 52-48.

In other Class AAAA action tonight, Coronado opens its loop season with a visit to Plainview. Also, the Monterey girls (2-0) entertain Hereford (1-1) and the Coronado fens (1-1) travel to Plainview (2-1). Both girls games are set to tip off at 6 p.m.

"Hereford's coming along," commented MHS head coach Joe Michalka. "They'll be ready to play."

The Plainsmen, 18-5 for the season, have won 18 straight district encounters, dating back to the end of the 1977 season.

On the other hand, Hereford, led by 6-5 center Darrel Polk, is turning into one of the surprise teams of the area. The Whitefaces, not expected to mount much of a challenge, are now 9-13 for the year. "We're starting to come around," commented HHS coach Bob Decker. "Just give us some more time and we'll be all right."

"We're starting to come around," commented HHS coach Bob Decker. "Just give us some more time and we'll be all right."

Along with Polk, who is currently hitting at 13.0 points a game, the Whitefaces are also led by forward Joe Walker, a 10.7 scorer.

Trav Clardy, MHS's 6-6 center and leading scorer, enters the game as the top rebounder and point producer in the area. The senior is currently averaging 22.0 points a game and 10.0 rebounds.

Coronado coach Barry Armwine will be looking for his first loop win of the season tonight against Plainview, a team he expects that will still challenge for the conference crown.

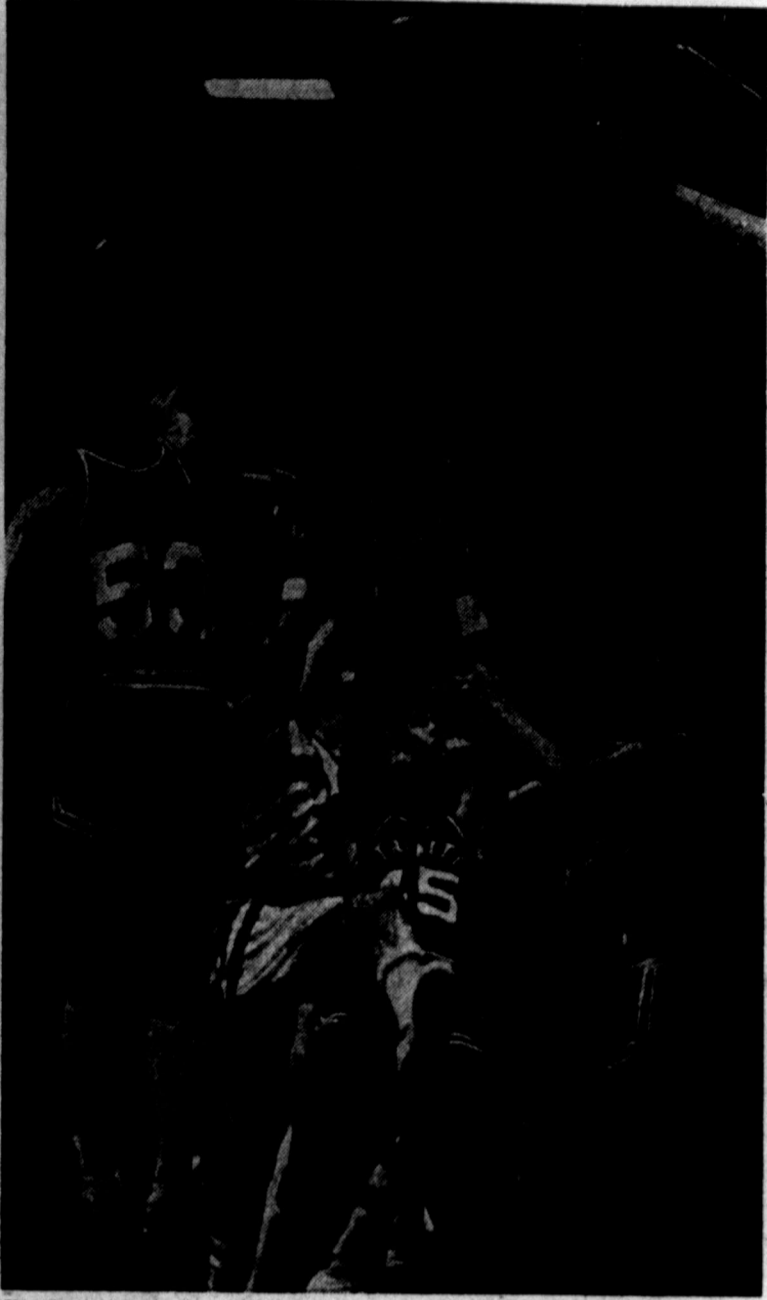

"I thought they looked a little uptight against Hereford," said Armwine. "That probably had to do with the fact it was the first district game. But I know one thing: they'll play us a heckuva game. They always do."

On the first night of district play, Coronado took the evening off.

"I don't think that (the night off) hurt," said Armwine. "We needed the rest."

Scott Williams, another one of the top scorers on the South Plains, will bring his 17.0 average into the contest. He will be

Birth Of A Fan

IT IS DEFINITELY AN EVENT. No, it's bigger than that. The Super Bowl has become an American institution. Some folks suggest that it has surpassed every day on the calendar except Christmas in national import.

And if folks exchanged presents on the mighty day, maybe even Christmas would stand in its shadow.

Wow!
I don't know if I would rank it that high but there's no avoiding the phenomena we call the Super Bowl. A man is judged by the scores, names and plays he can remember of Super Bowls past.

Personally, I can trace my heritage to Super Bowl III. Remember that one? Joe Namath led the young New York Jets to a spine-tingling 16-7 victory over the more mature and established Baltimore Colts.

But even more than Namath's brilliant performance that day, I remember Colts wide receiver Jimmy Orr all alone in the end zone. No one was within miles of him, but QB Earl Morrall never saw him and the haughty Colts went down to defeat.

That was Super Bowl III, but it ranks No. 1 with me. Sure, a lot of folks still talk about Bart Starr and his glory days in Super Bowls I and II. But those are, at best, dim recollections for me.

BESIDES, WHEN GREEN BAY WON the first two championships between the old NFL and AFL no one had yet dreamed up the term Super Bowl. Back then it was just a football game — even if it was the championship game — and the world didn't have to stop turning so it could be played.

Reportedly, over 2,200 working media types spent the week in Southern California gearing up for the Mighty One with an endless series of press conferences that left no stone unturned in pumping the great game.

And the actual football game itself?
Well, No. XIV turned out just about the way it was expected. Terry Bradshaw was awesome (as expected), throwing one touchdown bomb after another and the Steelers rolled to a 31-19 win over Los Angeles.

Sure, the Rams played their hearts out and nobody was slighting them after it was over. And, as was also expected, Bradshaw was humble beyond words in his post-game comments and drove away in the MVP's brand new car — great gas, too.

Really, I didn't care one way or the other about who won the Super-Doooper this year. For me it was just another ballgame — for shame, for shame.

But the game did hold something special for me — something bigger than Bradshaw, Lynn Swann or John Stallworth.

Super Bowl XIV marked the birth of my son's interest in sports. For the longest time, I'd been worrying about this.

I COME HOME LATE AT NIGHT, wake the little man up and throw the sports section down in his lap. Nothing — no reaction. So I'd read to him of the feats of Red Raiders, Razorbacks and Rambelles.

Still nothing. Once he belched, and my heart leaped, but Willis rolled over and went back to sleep.

Maybe, someone suggested, he just didn't like sports. But I didn't listen to that kind of talk. Why torture yourself?

I mean if you worry about all the things that can go wrong, you'll go crazy. What if he grew up and wanted to be a fireman and wear cotton gloves? I shuddered at the thought.

The only glove for him would be a first baseman's — a catcher's mitt would also do just fine.

I'd pleaded, cajoled, whispered. Nothing seemed to work until the Super Bowl.

He smiled from ear to ear when Jimmy the Greek announced smugly that

Kissinger Believes Boycott Not Enough

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Henry Kissinger said Monday President Carter's call for moving, postponing or canceling the Olympic Games is not adequate to deal with Soviet expansion, but the former secretary of state added that he did not disagree with Carter's move.

"There are no gimmicks, no withdrawals from Olympic Games, no individual measures that are going to solve the problem" of Soviet expansion, Kissinger said at a fund-raising breakfast for House Minority Leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz.

"I don't want this to be construed as disagreeing with what the president is doing, but that is not an adequate answer for what we are facing," said Kissinger.

Former Tech Golfer Gets Big Win Under Belt

HITS IRON SHOT — Jeff Mitchell hits an iron shot during Sunday's action on the 18th green. Mitchell was on his way to winning the $300,000 Phoenix Open golf tournament. (AP Laserphoto)

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

There have been plenty of times in Jeff Mitchell's budding golf career when he simply turned in his score, cleaned off his shoes, showered and left once the tournament was over.

After all, if you don't finish with the leaders, who wants to talk to you anyway? Maybe your wife — but that's about it.

All of that changed on Sunday when Mitchell, a former Texas Tech golfer and Lubbock resident, played the golf of his young life. His closing round of 67 gave him a 12-under 272 in the Phoenix Open, a four stroke victory and a check good for $54,000.

And along with that came the attention that goes with being a champion.

"It was over an hour before he got out of the press room," reported Mitchell's wife Chris. "And by the time he called me he was just emotionally drained. Really, he didn't sound that excited."

After a while though, the consequences of his first PGA win sank in on Mitchell.

"He called back about one or two in

"When you're at the bottom," Mitchell told the reporters after his win, "it's difficult to go anywhere."

Now that he has that first tourney win under his belt, things are looking a lot brighter for Mitchell.

"I'm in the Tournament of Champions," he said, "and the Masters and I'm in the PGA. And there's no more (qualifying rounds on) Mondays."

"I can even start buying my plane tickets in advance," he added. "I'll know I'm in the tournament and I can play where I want to."

Obviously, Mitchell has a whole new lease on life.

"It just takes so much pressure off of him," said his wife Chris. "He can relax and play — and have fun. It just means so much not having to qualify every week."

And the money, well that's nice too. But it's not the most important thing.

"The biggest thing is getting to play in the Masters," said Mrs. Mitchell. "That's been a dream of ours for so long. The money is just incidental — that's not really important."

"He's made plenty for us to live on," she says proudly of her husband.

Last year, Mitchell earned $38,032 on the tour. According to his wife, the ex-Raider's expenses ran about $25,000. Still, he came home with some pretty fair change — more so than your average 25-year old junior executive.

"He was making enough," says the former Chris McDonald, a 1973 Monterey graduate. "We didn't have to struggle — but we didn't have any extra either."

The Mitchell's have a little extra now. Mitchell, in San Diego this week to compete in the Andy Williams Open, will take next week off to visit Hawaii.

"My wife is working now," he said. "We figured some one had to make a living. But after the baby comes (Chris is due in May) she'll be able to come out here (on the tour) with me."

Actually, Mitchell's wife says she's working because she got bored with the entire PGA scene.

"To me, the tour is a little boring," she said. "So I like to come home, work makes me feel useful. I didn't feel useful on the tour."

"I went on the tour with him for about seven months when we were first married and about four months last year," she added.

After San Diego, Mitchell and his wife plan to spend a couple weeks in Hawaii where he'll play in the tournament. But that's not a new development.

"We've been planning that for a long time," she said, "because he finished in the top 25 their last year — so we knew he wouldn't have to qualify."

"Then, after the baby comes," she says, "I'll go back on the tour with him. I want him to know his child."

If Mitchell continues to play like he did in the Phoenix Open — plenty of children will get to know him. He was the featured golfer on the CBS broadcast Saturday and Sunday.

"That was the first time I got to see him on television," said his wife. "Because the other times I've been with him, I called everybody I knew on Saturday and told them to watch."

"I was real nervous Saturday," she adds, "but I felt real confident on Sunday. I just knew he was going to win."

And Jeff didn't let the little lady down.

SWC Finds Out Who's No. 1 Tonight

By The Associated Press

Texas A&M and Arkansas battle tonight in College Station for the undisputed Southwest Conference basketball leadership, and Razorback coach Eddie Sutton says the pressure "ought to be on them."

Both teams are 5-0, with the Aggies cruising past Rice 84-65 Saturday night in Houston while Arkansas had to pull off a minor miracle to get past Houston 60-57 before a packed house in Barnhill Arena in Fayetteville.

"In 20 years of coaching, not many wins have given me a bigger thrill. It was an unbelievable comeback," Sutton said after the Hogs rallied from a 45-31 deficit with just 12 minutes remaining.

The Cougars soon lost three top players to fouls, and Arkansas took a close win.

Arkansas forward Greg Skulman added, "I'm still trying to figure out how we came back to win." It was the third straight year Arkansas has beaten Houston in Fayetteville after trailing at the half.

"We could get beat by anyone. I can assure you of that, but I believe at the end, Arkansas and Texas A&M will be in it," Sutton said.

"Tonight, the pressure ought to be on them (Texas A&M) though. It's their home game. We'll get to play them in Barnhill later."

In other SWC games Saturday, Texas Tech remained a half game off the pace with a 5-1 record by beating Baylor 69-67 before 9,519 screaming fans in Lubbock and Texas Christian won its first road game in more than three years, shocking Southern Methodist 92-89 in a televised game at Dallas.

Tech benefited from a charging call against Baylor's Pat Nunley as the Bears worked for a final shot with 10 seconds to play and the score tied 67-67.

TCU coach Jim Killingsworth was ecstatic about the performance by his Horned Frogs, who hit 61.3 percent of their field goal efforts. They led by as much as 14 points, with freshman Darrell Browder scoring 24 and sophomore Eric Summers 21.

Houston, which saw a 21-point time lead vanish into a loss a year ago, Arkansas, led 33-22 at intermission Sunday.

The Hogs outscored Houston 20-12 in the final 12 minutes, as the Cougars lost their top shooter, Larry Rogers, best ball handler, Rob Williams, and top rebounder, Marshall Sauls, to fouls.

While Arkansas is at A&M, Texas (3-2) visits Baylor (1-4) in a TV game Tuesday night, Houston (2-3) is at TCU (1-5) and SMU (1-5) is at Rice (1-4).

Panthers Aim For Comeback; EHS Starts Tough Schedule

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The District 1-AAA season is only one game old, but already Dunbar coach Joe McWilliams finds himself with his back to a wall.

His Panthers dropped their loop opener to Canyon Friday night. To make matters worse, the loss came at home.

"That was probably one of the games we needed to win," McWilliams said. "We need to win all of our games at home and one or two on the road to stay in this thing."

"Now we have to keep fighting really. We're not out of it. Nobody is with just one loss. I see a definite possibility at the end of the season of a three or four team tie. I think everybody's going to lose at least one."

Levelland coach Don Abbot has to be hoping so too. His Lobos, Dunbar's opponent tonight in Lubbock, dropped their opener too. Friday they fell to Borger, the district favorite, 66-58.

"This is a must game for both of us," McWilliams said. "Both of us lost our openers and both of us lost them at home."

The city's other Class AAA coach, J.J. Wood at Estacado, is in a different boat entirely. His Matadors beat Dumas 77-67 Friday night in their conference opener.

And since the Demons, now 11-6 on the year, were supposed to be among the top teams in the district, Estacado's right up among the big boys.

Of course that's really no surprise. Estacado lost to district favorite Borger by only one point at the Snyder Tournament and defeated another league tough boy, Canyon (now 16-7) 66-52 in the Caprock tourney.

But now they'll be playing for real money. Tonight the Mats travel north to face Canyon and Friday night they'll host Borger.

"This is a big week for us," said Wood. "This really is definitely the biggest week of the season, at least so far."

"That doesn't mean that the other two weeks (of the first half of the district season) are any easier. It's just that after this week we'll be able to see what's going on."

Having beaten Canyon once fairly soundly and facing Friday night's big game with Borger, it's possible that Estacado could look past tonight's game. But Wood doesn't think so.

"I really haven't sensed that in my players or in myself," he said. "I don't think we're looking to the Borger game. Canyon's got too good a team to do that."

"They've got a good point in that (Bill) Grubley, an outside shooter in Kendall Walling and that (Mike) Sluder kid is out front. He's a good ballplayer."

"I think that when you beat somebody like that, you go out on the court not as apprehensive maybe as you would otherwise. You know how they play and you know what to expect."

In the other District 1-AAA game, Dumas travels to Borger.

In girls' action, Dunbar hosts Levelland. The Panther girls are in tough shape right now also. They've already lost two district games and have yet to play Dumas, ranked second in the state.

Levelland, on the other hand, is 2-1 in loop play. Overall, Dunbar is 9-11 and the Lobos 13-9.

Estacado, also 1-2 in loop play and 10-8 overall, travels to Canyon. The Canyon girls are 2-1 and 13-11.

In the other district game, Borger, 0-3 and 6-15, tries its luck against the awesome Demons. Dumas now stands 3-6 in loop play (wins over Canyon, Estacado and Levelland) and 19-1 overall.

In District 2-AAA boys' play, 149-Pecos hosts 13-8 Ft. Stockton and 8FF hosts 12-8 Ector. District leader Andrews (21-2 overall) takes a night off.

In 3-AAA, 6-14 Sweetwater travels to 17-4 Snyder for the Tigers' first district game. 10-6 Lake View hits the road to 11-8 Brownfield and 14-5 Lamesa (co-favorites with Snyder) takes the night off.

In 3-AAA girls' action, Sweetwater and Snyder, the only two undefeated teams in the league, face off tonight in Snyder. The Sweetwater girls are 3-0 in loop play and 18-3 overall, Snyder is 2-0 and 14-7. In the other district game, 16-5 Lake View is at 6-10 Brownfield.

Seminole Boys, Slaton Girls Seek To Maintain Leads In Districts

By RICHARD DAY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The second half of the district basketball races begins tonight, and though the leaders at the end of the first round streaked impressively to the top, they must now start from a clean slate against tough foes who are out to dethrone them.

The Seminole boys and the Slaton girls appear to be the top Class AA teams in the area. The Indians cruised through the first half of the District 5-AA campaign with a perfect 7-0 record and stand 16-5 this season, while the Tigerettes did the same against the girls in 5-AA and have a 22-2 record overall.

Both teams are defending state champions so they have great traditions to live up to, but it looks as though they are both doing a good job of it.

"We've got a pretty good bunch this season," Seminole coach Lee Caffey said of his Indians, which returned only two starters from last year's team.

This year the Indians have five seniors as compared to nine last season. Three seniors start along with two juniors. Two additional juniors and one sophomore make up the remainder of the squad.

"The team is really coming on because it's a hustling, hard-working group of kids with excellent attitudes," Caffey said.

Seminole starts the second round tonight against its toughest district competition — Denver City — and will host Post Friday evening.

Sam Nichols' Tigerettes are led by two-time all-state selection Cindy Robinson, but the coach says it is the team's desire to excel and ability to play well together that keeps it on top.

Denver City, Lubbock Cooper and Post, Slaton's opponent tonight, are expected to be the top contenders trying to take the district title away from the Tigerettes.

In Class A, Hale Center and New Deal, both members of District 4-A, look like the top boys' and girls' teams, respectively, in the area. Both teams carry 18-2 records this season and have spotless 8-0 records in district competition.

"Our quickness and depth have been helping us all season long, but lately our defense has come around," said Hale Center coach Steve Butler. "We have three players who have come off the bench to bolster our attack all season long."

Junior Ashmore, who is averaging 25 points per game, is the leader of the Owl attack, but inside strength from Terry James and Robert Smith, and leadership from sparkplug W.H. Johnson, make the Hale Center team a well-rounded one.

Shallowater, which hosts the Owls tonight, and Petersburg are the two teams expected to give Hale Center the most trouble in District 4-A — which uses a round-robin format leading to a four-team season-ending tournament to determine its champion.

The New Deal Lionettes lead the girls' standings in District 4-A, but must play away from home against Petersburg and Lorenzo this week. Coach Judy Bowman credits the team's success to good all-round play and senior leadership.

Petersburg and Lorenzo pose an immediate threat, but Miss Bowman is more worried with Hale Center and Ralls.

Despite her team's perfect mark in district action, Miss Bowman said, "it's a long way until the end of district plays, considering our round-robin schedule."

Vickie Teal is the team's leading scorer and rebounder, averaging 26 points per game and 15 rebounds. Miss Bowman also has praise for the senior leadership provided by Lisa Augin and Lucrecia Schropshire.

The Sands Mustangs, who use a two-team attack, have a 21-2 season record and are 3-0 in District 9-B competition. The Mustangs appear to be the top Class B boys' team in the area.

On the feminine side of the Class B area races, three-time state champion Nazareth, which has a 25-2 record, looks tough again.

Sands has two more games left in the first round of district competition and their toughest game of the year, according to coach Stan Pulliam, will be played tonight at Klondike.

"If we win tonight, we'll wrap up the first-half title, but if we lose, it'll be a three-way tie for first place," Pulliam declared.

Dawson, along with Klondike, would be the other team in the first-place deadlock should the Mustangs lose.

All-South Plains selection David Long, who is averaging 18 points and 12 rebounds per game this season, is the Sands floor leader, but the Mustangs have had eight different players scoring in double figures this season. The team is by no means dominated by one player.

As a team, the Mustangs are shooting at a 54 percent clip from the floor.

The Nazareth girls, who begin their district schedule tonight against Valley, have their work cut out according to coach Joe Lombard.

"This should be our toughest and most important game of the season tonight," Lombard said. "Our kids have worked extra hard this season. We have a well-balanced scoring attack, with four starters scoring in double figures, and we have also excelled on defense."

Several teams look to be in the driver's seat as the second half of district play begins, but as balanced as the area districts are, it would not be wise to bet too much cash on any of them.

BROWDER SWC'S TOP PLAYER
DALLAS (UPI) — Darrell Browder, who helped Texas Christian University pick up its first road win in 42 tries against Southern Methodist last Saturday, was named Monday as the Southwest Conference player of the week.

Browder, a 6-2 freshman guard, scored a season-high 24 points against SMU in a 92-89 triumph, hitting 10 of 17 shots from the field and all free throw attempts.

the Rams would win it. In fact, he laughed from deep down in his belly. The kid knew a fool when he saw one.

WHEN THE GREEK ANNOUNCED THAT, although the Rams would win it, Terry Bradshaw was the most dominating player in the history of the game — he rolled his eyes and shook his head.

"What about Jimmy Brown, Gale Sayers, Bart Starr, Paul Hornung, Bobby Layne and Sammy Baugh's?"

The kid knew his football.

So we relaxed on the couch and suffered through the rest of The NFL Today pre-game show. And when the game finally got started, Willis was all eyes.

We sat there, bottles in hand and soaked it all up. When the Steelers elected to try an onside kick early in the game he just shook his head and passed me the peanuts.

"Cocky," he said with authority, "just too cocky."

LIKE A TRUE FAN, he decided the halftime was a good time for sleep. But Willis came back for the start of the second half a dyed-in-the-wool Steeler fan.

Okay, so I don't particularly care for the Steel Curtain myself — but I was just glad to see him taking sides. After all, a true fan has to root for somebody, even if it is the bad guys.

I cried and he laughed when Stallworth hauled in that 73-yard beauty that sank the Rams. That was the ball game and it marked the emergence of a real sports fan.

And nobody in the Pittsburgh locker room celebrated the win more heartily than did the little man on the couch.

Of course, he'd been pretty excited all day long. Sunday was his birthday and — Super Bowl aside — that ranks pretty high with him.

Yes, sir, he received his baptism into sports. At three weeks old, he's a true fan.

The Monterey girls, fresh off an easy 86-41 win over Lubbock High, are only a couple of wins away from clinching the first-half loop title. The Plainsmen need a victory over Hereford tonight and another win against Coronado Friday to claim the title outright.

The Coronado and Plainview girls will be playing elimination derby tonight. Both teams enter the 8 p.m. contest with one loss under its belt. And that means another loss would all but eliminate either team from the first-half chase. Coronado desperately needs a win to force a showdown with Monterey.

Both Lubbock High teams take the night off.

MVP Bradshaw To Keep Playing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Terry Bradshaw, citing reasons of health, said Monday he would return next season as quarterback of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

And he said that Vince Ferragamo should be the starting quarterback for the Los Angeles Rams.

"I know I talked about retiring after the game," Bradshaw said, reflecting back on interviews after the Steelers' 31-19 triumph Sunday over the Rams. "But later on I had a meeting with Jack Lambert and Joe Greene," he said with a laugh. "and, considering how important my health is to me I am definitely going to play for the Pittsburgh Steelers next year and have officially ended all thoughts of retiring."

Bradshaw, who joined former Green Bay Packers quarterback Bart Starr as the only two-time winner of the Most Valuable Player award in the Super Bowl, completed 14 of 21 passes against the Rams for 309 yards (only nine yards short of the record he set in his MVP performance in 1979) and two touchdowns. The TDs were bombs covering 47 yards to Lynn Swann only 2:48 into the third period and 73 yards to John Stallworth at 2:56 of the fourth quarter.

And after the Steelers had become the only four-time winners of the Super Bowl, Bradshaw spoke about quitting. But Monday, he said he spoke that way only because he was so weary.

"I was tired. You know, sometimes after a game you go either up or down, even when you win," Bradshaw said. "I went down. Yeah, I've talked about retiring and it is going to take three or four months for me to get juiced up again. It's a very draining season. Very demanding. There's the playoffs. The Super Bowl. All of that takes a toll on you."

"Right now I'm just tired of football."

He also acknowledged that it was more difficult to get up for this Super Bowl game than it was for the Steelers' first championship appearance, when they beat Minnesota 16-6 in 1975.

"Like anyone, I think success takes away something. With the success this football team has had, if the challenge isn't there, if you don't have goals, then it loses its edge. So it gets a little more demanding. You have to reach way down in yourself and say, 'One more year.'

"But I love this game. It's really a lot of fun to play — but it certainly has its wear and tear."

Bradshaw said that Ferragamo deserved to be ranked as the Rams' No. 1 quarterback when their training camp opens next summer. "He should be the starter and (Pat) Haden should be the one to have to earn his job back," he said.

Haden was the Rams' starter until midseason, when a broken finger sidelined him. "I know Haden was No. 1 — but Ferragamo got the Rams to the Super Bowl. If I was (Rams coach Ray) Malavasi, I would tell Haden he had to beat out Ferragamo."

When asked at separate news conferences Monday whether the Steelers now qualified as a dynasty, both Bradshaw and coach Chuck Noll declined to affix that label — although each had a hard time avoiding doing so.

"Dynasty? Isn't that someplace you eat?" Noll joked. Then he added: "The facts speak for themselves."

And Bradshaw observed: "I'd never say the Steelers are a dynasty. I honestly have never felt we were. I honestly doubt that I ever will think that we are. I think we're an awfully good football team. But we're not a dynasty. There are too many good football teams in the National Football League to allow you to continue to dominate."

"We won four Super Bowls in six years. But Dallas is a great football team. I think the Rams are a great football team. Houston is knocking at the door year in, year out. New England has the talent but just hasn't been able to put it together yet. So there are a lot of great football teams, so I don't think the Steelers are a dynasty."

But when pressed for the definition of a dynasty, Bradshaw grinned and said: "Winning the Super Bowl four times in six years."

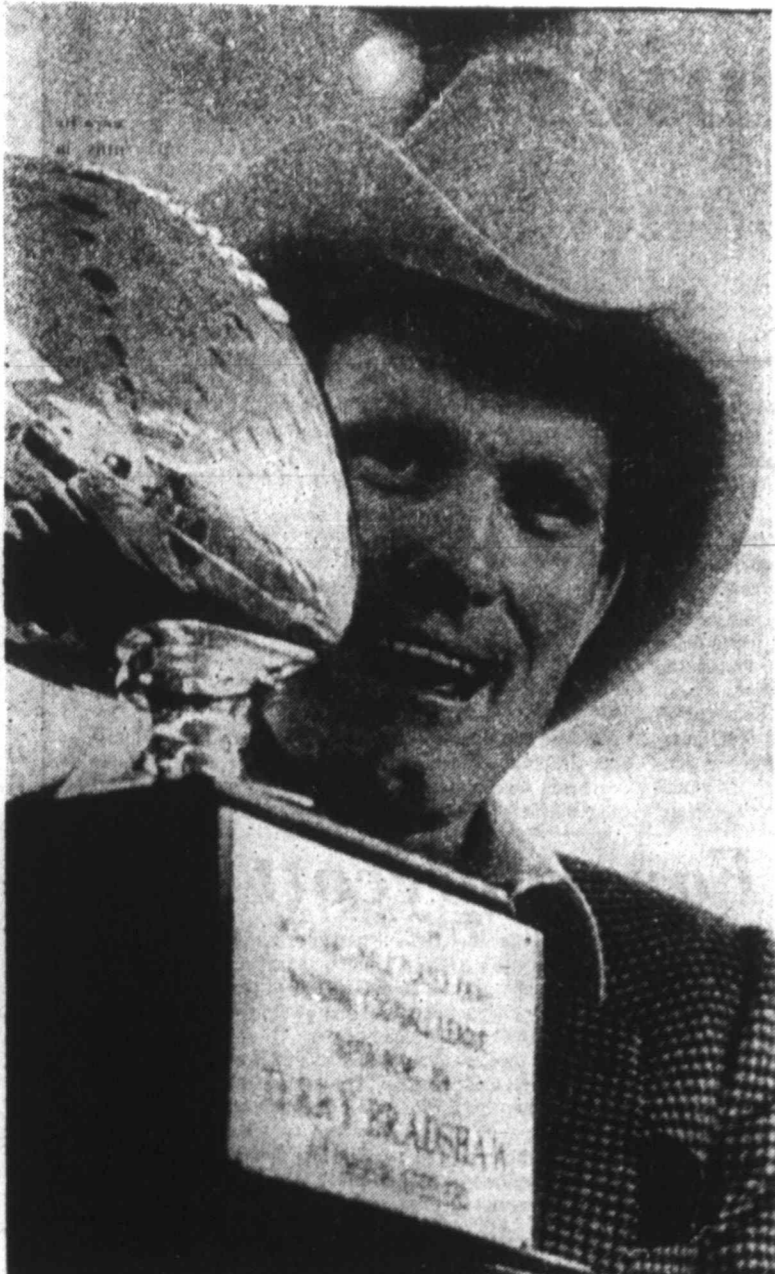

Rowdy Fans Irk Police At Game

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — In the wake of 115 Super Bowl-related arrests, Pasadena police said Monday they will re-evaluate their low-profile law enforcement approach for the National Football League championship game which will return to the Rose Bowl in 1983.

"For lack of a better term, the crowd could only be described as rowdy," Pasadena police spokesman Rocky McAlister said of Sunday's Super Bowl through. "It was bad enough to warrant re-evaluation of our enforcement policies for the 1983 game."

City police wanted to keep a low profile as part of the city's intended "good host" image, McAlister said. But the 115 arrests for everything from ticket scalping to one case of grand theft auto filled the jail, he said.

"There were a lot of drunk and disorderly arrests," McAlister added. "We tried to arrest as many people we saw committing crimes as we could, but with all the purse-snatching and stealing of wallets, it's a very difficult job to do."

Steelers Leave With Spoils

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers went home Monday with a well-padded, grey wooden box that made it well worth the trip.

"We did the job. We did what we had to do, and now I've got all season to heal up," guard Sam Davis said as he admired the box containing the Super Bowl trophy that the Steelers won Sunday by beating the Los Angeles Rams 31-19.

"We were hurting a lot more than people realize, and I'm just glad we got through it," added the 35-year-old Davis, who played a strong game despite a hamstring muscle pull that had hampered him in practice.

"We'll come back next year and see if we can do it again. I know I'd like to do it again. I'm greedy."

Their appetite for Super Bowl titles aside, Davis and 23 other black players on the Steelers' squad chose to donate $500 each of their Super Bowl winnings to the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I approached each of them individually about it and without hesitation, each of them said yes," said Bill Nunn, the Steelers' assistant director of player personnel and the man who organized the $12,000 gift.

The All-Pro members of the squad, including Super Bowl MVP Terry Bradshaw, left here for Hawaii to play in the Pro Bowl. The other Steeler players and their families flew back to Pittsburgh.

With them on the plane went a wooden box containing one piece of precious metal that money can't buy.

"We've got a good thing going and we've got to keep it going," said Joe Greene.

"For this year, for now, we're the best," said safety Don Shell, who spent Monday morning strolling in the California sunshine with his wife.

"But next year, we start over and go from there."

Rams Eying Super Bowl XV

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Beaten in Super Bowl XIV, the Los Angeles Rams already are thinking of Super Bowl XV in New Orleans and possibly even another shot at the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"We didn't get it this time, but we'll get another shot at it," said Los Angeles coach Ray Malavasi, whose Rams lost 31-19 to the Steelers in Sunday's Super Bowl.

"We just have to go to work on next year and come back trying," said defensive tackle Larry Brooks, who helped the Rams' defense hold Pittsburgh running back Franco Harris to 46 yards on 20 carries and the entire Steelers' running corps to 84 rushing yards.

"We certainly didn't lose our poise," said Brooks. "While we wanted to win, playing them as tough as we did certainly can't hurt our confidence."

"Pittsburgh was one or two plays better," said offensive tackle Doug France. "But we proved we can play football with anybody, and we know we can beat anybody. Congratulations to them, but we'll be back, that's for sure."

Vince Ferragamo, the young Rams quarterback who completed 15 of 25 passes for 212 yards while making only his eighth National Football League start, said: "This is a young team, and I think we learned a lot by playing the Steelers in the Super Bowl."

"We knew we had a good chance to beat them when we were ahead late in the game, and if it hadn't been for a couple of big plays that went their way, we could have beaten them," continued Ferragamo, who got the Rams' starting job when Pat Haden was sidelined with a broken finger during the season.

"We'll get another chance; this team will play in other Super Bowls... and it would be nice to get another chance at Pittsburgh."

"We weren't as bad a team as everybody thought we were," said Los Angeles linebacker Jack Reynolds. "The game could have gone the other way. Next time, maybe it will."

"We proved that we can play with anybody, anywhere," said defensive end Jack Youngblood, who played against the Steelers despite a hairline fracture in his lower left leg that he suffered three weeks ago. "Our time will come."

The Rams, who will play next season in their new home at Anaheim Stadium, ended one lingering disappointment just by making it to the Super Bowl. One of the NFL's best teams during the late 1960s and throughout the 1970s, the Rams were playing in only their first Super Bowl.

After the loss to Pittsburgh, they received some words of consolation from a man who is intimately familiar with enduring the same kind of disappointment.

"I know how they felt, because I went so many years myself in frustration," said Steelers' owner Art Rooney, who waited 41 years before his team won the first of its four NFL championships.

Indiana Swim Coach Wants New Pool

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Indiana University's swimming team has never lost in its home Royer Pool, but Coach Doc Counsilman says the 19-year-old facility was "almost obsolete" when it was built, and he wants a new indoor pool.

The problem, says Counsilman, is that Royer Pool measures only 25 yards long, while most national and international competition these days is done in 50-meter pools.

"There is such a demand for aquatic facilities today, it wouldn't make much sense not building a new pool," said

Counsilman, who has coached Indiana to 19 straight Big Ten swimming championships. "You simply need more than one pool, especially at a large university."

Indiana won its 100th consecutive home meet last week but faces a big challenge against visiting Michigan on Friday.

Counsilman's swimmers won six straight NCAA championships from 1968-73 and notched 140 consecutive dual meet victories — a string broken last year by Southern Methodist. The Hoosiers also lost at Iowa this year, but Counsilman shows little concern.

"We could have been national champs if we had our people back," he said, referring to four top swimmers who dropped out of school to represent their native countries in the Olympics.

"We could have kept them all if we had a 50-meter pool," Counsilman said. "They are training for the Olympics in 50-meter pools. We should have them back next year."

The four are Mark Kerry of Australia, ranked No. 1 in the world in the backstroke; Brazilians Djan Madruga, among the best in the world in freestyle, medley and backstroke, and Romulo Arantes, rated third in the backstroke; and Canadian Claus Bredschneider, a world-class butterfly competitor.

Counsilman, two-time coach of the U.S. Olympic swimming team, said the lack of an adequate indoor facility also makes recruiting difficult.

"We do recruit, but we are competing against schools with 50-meter pools. Even small colleges go to 50-meter pools. That makes recruiting tough."

He estimated a new, "decent" facility would cost at least $6 million, and said, "We've reminded them (the IU administration) of our needs."

Counsilman still relishes his own accomplishment of last September, when at age 58 he became the oldest person to swim the English Channel.

"As a coach, you're always telling you boys how they have to be tough. Then, you're not always sure you can be tough yourself. It's so much easier to say 'Keep going' when it hurts. This was a good test of yourself. I think the boys feel I understand competition and getting up for something."

Norman Calls Pact 'Ridiculous'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Fred Norman admits that the money he made as a free agent was "ridiculous," but he adds, "that's the way things are going in baseball and I'm more than happy to accept my hunk."

Norman's hunk comes from the Montreal Expos, who obtained his services through the free agent re-entry draft.

For 6½ seasons, Norman had been getting pay checks from the Cincinnati Reds, but the 39-year-old left-hander played last season without signing a contract.

He is getting $450,000 for two years with Montreal with another $250,000 the third year at Montreal's discretion. In addition, Norman was given a $125,000 bonus for signing and will get an additional $25,000 bonus each year if he makes 50 appearances or pitches 180 innings. Norman is 100-98 for his major league career, and was 11-13 last season with a 3.65 earned run average.

Norman disputed claims that he wanted to leave Cincinnati, but he admitted he felt it was time for him to move on.

"I felt I was deteriorating," Norman said in an interview with the Dayton Daily News. "I'll admit I had more problems last year than in other years. No consistency. Oh, I won my 11 games, but everything was starting to get away from me. I no longer had a feeling that I was part of the club. More than likely, a change will help me."

Norman hasn't talked with Montreal manager Dick Williams, but he's sure that the Expos plan to use him.

"They wouldn't pay that money and not use me," Norman said. "I'd guess they'll make me a spot starter and a bullpener. Whatever they want..."

"Probably, it depends on how other people work out. Woodie Fryman is on the last year of his contract. They tell me they'll try to get Ross Grimsley back in form, but if he doesn't work out, maybe I'll be one of the left-handed starters."

Norman is puzzled over Cincinnati's posture in the free-agent market. The National League club has not signed anyone in the history of the draft.

"Let's face it, the Reds haven't helped themselves the past couple of years," Norman said. "They put up a lot of talk, but no action. They draft them, but don't sign them. To me, they are merely putting up a front, trying to fool the fans. And you can't fool them."

Boxer's Death Could Hurt Program

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The death of a Kentucky boy in a West Virginia boxing tournament could deal a severe setback to amateur boxing in the state, says an Amateur Athletic Union official.

"It sets the boxing program back years. When parents see something like this, they'll no doubt think twice before allowing their sons to enter a program," said Gary Toney, AAU state boxing chairman.

"It could have a tremendous effect on the boxers this state produces in the future," he said. Harlan Hoosier, a 13-year-old Beauty, Ky., eighth grader, died Friday from head injuries he received while boxing, according to an autopsy.

Hoosier wore no protective headgear in a three-day tournament sponsored by the Lenore Boosters Club. He won one of the three-round fights each night of the tournament, but never lived to receive his award.

The boxing show was sanctioned by the West Virginia Boxing Commission, but recognized safety rules apparently were not enforced, said Toney.

"He should have had no choice to wear it (the headgear) or not," said Toney. "The boy should have worn the headgear or been disqualified."

Officials said that immediately after the hard-fought final bout the 71-pound youth complained of headaches. He was hospitalized, and died several hours later. An autopsy showed he had received severe bruises to his brain.

Jack Jude, a Kentucky boxing manager, described Hoosier as "one of the best."

Jude said Hoosier declined to wear headgear, telling the people who were with him that "he didn't need it, that this was a championship fight and he was going to win it."

A West Virginia state Golden Gloves organizer, Boone County Sheriff John Protan, said he has long urged the state boxing commission to require protective headgear even for novice adults.

"Quite a few use them now, but it should be required for all but the most experienced boxers. I've been trying to get a law requiring it for all boxers, and making it optional for open heavyweights in the Golden Gloves," Protan said.

1980 Summer Olympics Committee Reaffirms Intention To Hold Games In Moscow

By The Associated Press

"The Olympics will go on," a top official of the Moscow Olympics Organizing Committee said Monday — and South Africa, a country outlawed from the Games, agreed that they should.

"We have given a guarantee to carry on the games in accordance with the Olympic charter and we will do so," said Vladimir I. Popov, first deputy chairman of the organizing committee. He spoke in reaction to President Carter's call for moving the games from Moscow, postponing them or canceling them if Soviet troops aren't removed from Afghanistan within a month.

The president also said on U.S. television Sunday that if his conditions are not met and the Games remain in Moscow, he favors American athletes not participating.

Vadim Zagladin, a senior official of the Soviet Community Party Central Committee, said in a French television interview that the Soviet Union had no intention of opposing the Winter Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., and that "sports and politics are two different things."

South Africa agreed with Zagladin's assessment.

"Even if a person condemns the Russian invasion (of Afghanistan) the Carter proposal remains directly in conflict with the spirit and principle of the Olympic Games," said Rudolph Opperman, president of the South Africa Olympic and National Games Association.

Saying he expected many South Africans were pleased because "our greatest sporting enemy" was being censured for its political actions, Opperman added:

"But this does not alter the principle of the Olympics. Just as South Africa's expulsion from the Olympic movement because of our country's (racial) policies should not have been approved, a boycott of the Games because of Russian's actions should also not be approved."

Man-in-the-street reaction in the Soviet Union followed the line that politics and sports do not mix.

"I don't think he (Carter) was thinking when he was talking," said a factory superintendent from Brest while shopping at an Olympic souvenir shop in Moscow. He refused to give his name.

"I don't see any relation between Soviet troops in Afghanistan and the Olympics," said another shopper, who also refused to give her name. "We do not want war. And besides, I think the Olympic Games will be held in Moscow in any case."

"The IOC cannot move the Games from Moscow," Monique Berlioux, a director of the International Olympic Committee, said in Paris. "The IOC has signed a contract with the city and there is no reason that it should be broken."

Berlioux said that American athletes are very important to the Olympics but they are not the only athletes in the world. She also indicated that an American boycott could lead to a rethinking about Los Angeles as the site for the 1984 Summer Games.

IOC President Lord Killanin said in Dublin that Carter's action was a "hasty decision" and that it is technically and legally impossible to switch the Games from Moscow.

At IOC headquarters in Lausanne, it was announced that Killanin had ordered the U.S. Olympic Committee to make an official report at Lake Placid next month of its negotiations with the White House following Carter's action.

Henry Kissinger, former secretary of state under presidents Ford and Nixon, said in Phoenix, Ariz., he didn't disagree with Carter's move but added, "There are no gimmicks, no withdrawals from Olympic games, no individual measures that are going to solve the problem" of Soviet expansion.

In an angry reaction to Carter's call, Rude Pravo, the central organ of the ruling Czechoslovak Communist Party, wrote, "The idea of smashing the Olympics has evidently filled the U.S. government with enthusiasm."

"The Moscow Olympics no doubt will be a presentation of the Soviet way of life, an opportunity for the international public to get acquainted with nowadays' life in the Soviet Union, with the way the First State of Socialism looks and lives."

"And that is the last thing the Carter Administration wants in the present situation."

But some Czechoslovak dissidents, through a letter published in the Times of London, said that the Soviet Union would make an "impressive host." But the letter added, "The Olympic flag at the Berlin stadium (in 1936) was an insult to thousands. The same flag at Moscow will be an insult to millions."

Meanwhile, Popov said the American demand for admission tickets to Olympic events was growing and that talks are being held about increasing the current allotment of 218,000 tickets for American visitors.

Poll Results Show Americans Narrowly Favor Boycott

NEW YORK (AP) — Amer 10.4 narrowly favor the United States pulling out of the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow due to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, the Associated Press NBC-News poll says.

While the margin in favor of withdrawal is small, the public overwhelmingly backs efforts to move the Olympics out of Moscow, the poll found.

The poll was conducted Thursday and Friday, before President Carter announced on Sunday that he was asking the U.S.

On the direct question of whether the United States should refuse to compete in the Moscow Games, public opinion is split. Forty-nine percent of those who know of the Afghanistan situation said the United States should not participate in the Moscow Games. But 41 percent disagreed. Ten percent of the 1,595 adults interviewed across the country by telephone were undecided.

After the Soviets moved thousands of troops into Afghanistan in late December, Carter announced a series of actions against the U.S.S.R., including a partial embargo on shipments of grain, an embargo on computers and other high-technology items and consideration of withdrawal from the Summer Olympic Games in Moscow.

Overall, Americans back President Carter's efforts to deal with the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. But they still don't think Carter has been tough enough in dealing with the Soviets.

About two-thirds — 66 percent — of the Americans who have heard of the Afghanistan crisis favored moving the Games out of Moscow. Twenty-six percent opposed such a move and 8 percent were undecided.

Such a move has been discussed by various officials in the United States and elsewhere, but Olympic officials say a shift is not possible because of the massive logistics of the Games.

Those who favor withdrawal argue the Soviets must be punished for the Afghanistan intervention and that withdrawal of the U.S. team would be a severe blow to the international prestige the Soviets hoped to win through hosting the Games. Opponents to withdrawal argue that the Olympics must be kept above politics.

Asked directly about the Afghanistan crisis, 9 percent of those questioned said they had not heard of it. That's down from 45 percent in the mid-December AP-NBC News survey. Forty-four percent gave him an "only fair" rating last week, compared to 41 percent last month. Sixteen percent rated his efforts poor, up from 12 percent. Two percent each month were not sure.

New York Bobsled Duo Leads Competition For Lake Placid

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Howard Siler of Brushton, N.Y., and Brent Rushlaw of nearby Saranac Lake continued to turn in the fastest times Monday in trials for the U.S. Olympic two-man bobsled team.

Siler, a 34-year-old insurance salesman, and brakeman Jeff Joy of Malone, N.Y., drove to the top of the best time over the 1,600-meter long track, 1 minute 4.31 seconds. Siler also had times of 1:04.33 and 1:05.14 to remain in first place in the trials after 10 heats with an aggregate of 10:46.89.

Rushlaw, a 28-year-old restaurant employee, was second overall with a total of 10:52.35. He had times Monday of 1:04.79, 1:04.41 and 1:04.32.

The 23 sleds which entered two-man trials will be pored to 12 after two more heats Tuesday. Drivers will count their best eight runs out of 12 toward the cut. Two teams eventually will be chosen to represent the United States in the Olympics beginning Feb. 12.

Bill Renton of the U.S. Navy, a native of Marionville, Pa., and the top four-man driver turning out for the Olympic team, stood third after 10 heats with a total of 10:55.04. He had heats Monday of 1:04.79, 1:05.06 and 1:05.35. Wade Whitney of Keene Valley, N.Y., was fourth with 10:57.68 on heats of 1:05.48, 1:05.43 and 1:05.87 Monday, followed by Sandy Kellin of Phoenix, Ariz., with 1:05.64, 1:05.61 and 1:05.79 for a 10:58.34 total.

Siler's fastest run of the day was well off his best time of 1:03.95 in the trials, and his final run was only the fourth time in 10 heats he has been over 1:05.

"That was an utter survival ride," Siler-er. "It was squirrely and I was hitting the walls all the way down. We had on a wide set of runners, and it was too cold for them."

Chaparrals Take Trinity

"This has been happening all year. 'It looks like they say to themselves, 'Oh, we're in trouble now.' It's the first time since before Christmas break that I put five different people into the game at once."

Those "different people" achieved different results.

Murdock, who finished with 12 points, and Money, sparked a mini-comeback that brought the lead down to 25-21, and then Gardner returned to score two big baskets down the stretch.

As a result, LCC trailed 41-34 at halftime.

"Those five guys (the subs) went out and knocked heads," Hays said. "They played defense and got us back in the ball game."

The Chaps, their starting lineup restored in the second half, edged into a 51-51 tie on Carver's lay-in with 11:52 remaining.

By then, Wharton already had his fourth foul and finally was disqualified with 1:48 left after having played only 17 minutes and scoring five points. Gardner, also in foul trouble, did not score in the second half.

But LCC, playing aggressively at both ends of the floor, built a 64-59 lead on another Carver lay-up with exactly 5:00 left. The well-disciplined Tigers, however, exercised patience and again pulled into a tie, 64-64, on Walter Gordon's 18-footer with 3:56 to go.

Carver scored four of LCC's next, and final, five points, the big basket being a lay-in of a missed Wharton free throw with 2:51 left for a 67-64 advantage.

Trailing by that score, Trinity melted 45 seconds off the clock only to have Gordon miss a 8-footer with 1:23 to go.

Twenty seconds later, Carver scored the decisive points on a pair of free tosses that enabled LCC to withstand two quick Trinity baskets within the final 27 seconds.

Carver scored 16 points to pace LCC, while Taylor had 17 to lead the Tigers.

Westerners Score Soccer Victories

The Lubbock High School girls' soccer team used a direct-kick goal by Melissa Marshall Monday afternoon to blank Monterey 1-0.

Lubbock High's girls are now 3-1 in competition among city schools. Monterey's record fell to 0-3.

In boys' action, Barry Wizeorsk scored twice and Tran Quan and Gabriel Duran each scored one goal apiece to lead the Westerners to a 4-2 victory over the Monterey boys.

The win evened Lubbock High's record at 2-2. Monterey is now 0-3.

LCC Women Beat Trinity University

The Lubbock Christian College women's team coasted to a 57-47 victory over Trinity University Monday night in the fieldhouse.

The Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association win jumped the Lady Chaps' record to 2-2, 4-10 overall. Trinity dropped to 1-2, 3-7 overall.

Each of 12 Lady Chaps played at least seven minutes in the contest and nine of them scored. Sherry Williams and Cindy Nix scored 14 points apiece and were joined in double figures by Darla Lynch with 13.

LCC overcame a 24-23 halftime deficit en route to the win. Terri Hailey led Trinity with 27 points.

Tech Women Play At Angelo State

The next home game for the Raiders will be Monday. The Raiders host Wayland Baptist College at 5 p.m. in the Municipal Coliseum.

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — Spanish lightweight boxer Santiago Gonzalez Monzon, 22, was reported in a coma today after suffering a brutal beating in a bout against his countryman Jose Garcia Requena here Saturday night, doctors said.

Tech Women Play At Angelo State

The Texas Tech women's basketball team will be looking for its 15th victory of the 1979-80 season at 7:30 tonight when the Red Raiders take on the Angelo State Ramblers in San Angelo.

The Red Raiders stand 14-5 following weekend wins over Central State of Oklahoma and Texas Women's University in the first Tech women's invitational. Tech's first victory this season was a 64-41 decision over the Ramblers, who are currently 9-5. Angelo State defeated Abilene Christian Saturday 79-77.

MOB Coaches Meet Tonight

A meeting of Monterey Optimist Basketball (MOB) coaches will be held tonight at First Federal Savings and Loan, 3845 50th Street, at 7.

All persons who filled out applications to coach a MOB team should attend. Third-fourth grade coaches will be given their team rosters at that time, and coaches in the two older divisions will receive information pertinent to tryouts and the drafts.

A record number of players enrolled in the program, officials said, a shortage of coaches has resulted. Burt Pettig, MOB president, urges any persons interested in coaching a MOB team to attend tonight's meeting, or to call 795-9689 today.

Tryouts for the seventh-eighth grade division have been rescheduled from Feb. 2 at Atkins to Saturday at Wilson Junior High.

The MOB season will kick off Feb. 18.

Iran Airliner Crashes

All 124 Persons Aboard Feared Dead

KUWAIT (AP) — An Iran Air Boeing 727 carrying 124 persons crashed into the mountains Monday as it approached Tehran on a flight from Mashhad and it was feared all aboard were killed, Tehran Radio reported.

In a broadcast monitored here, Iran's official Pars news agency said search teams found the burning wreckage of the three-jet craft in heavy fog and deep snow in mountainous terrain 18 miles north of Tehran.

The report said six bodies were recovered, no survivors were found, and poor weather was hampering search operations.

There were no reports of any foreigners being aboard the craft and it was believed most of the 116 passengers were Moslem pilgrims returning to Tehran from a visit to shrines in the holy city of Mashhad, about 500 miles to the east. The plane had a crew of eight, according to the broadcasts.

Iranian civil aviation authorities said Flight 291 left Mashhad at 5:40 p.m. and air traffic controllers at Tehran's Mehrabad airport lost contact with the plane 15 minutes before it was to land.

Tehran Radio said search parties found the still-burning wreckage about four hours later.

It said roads leading to the site near a resort area were clogged with motorists and Revolutionary Guards were ordered in to assist the rescue teams.

Iranian air traffic controllers had been on strike for about six hours earlier Monday, resulting in cancellation of more than 100 domestic flights. They resumed work before noon local time, well before the missing flight was due to take off.

Increase In Aid To Egypt Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration will propose a large increase in military aid to Egypt, including sophisticated F-16 aircraft, as part of a program to beef up anti-Soviet regimes in the Middle East, U.S. officials said Monday.

The State Department also said a military assistance program for Pakistan will be delayed briefly while it is coordinated with aid from other countries, including some in Western Europe.

The U.S. offer to Pakistan is for $400 million over two years. A State Department spokesman, while not confirming that figure, said that the level of U.S. aid will stand despite the comment of Pakistani President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq describing the package as "peanuts."

The spokesman confirmed that there will be a delay in the program for Pakistan and it will not be included in the overall aid request that the administration is sending to Congress later this week.

Asked about the possibility the United States may be repeating in Pakistan the mistake it made in Iran by arming an unpopular authoritarian regime, a spokesman said, "We believe there is a wide consensus in Pakistan that the country needs external help to resist possible aggression."

Officials said the Egyptian program — amounting to $1.1 billion over two years — will be unveiled when the president sends his budget to Congress.

Officials confirmed that the package will include F-16 fighters, perhaps as many as 80. The fighter-bombers are the first-line light-weight fighter for NATO, and in addition to being a highly effective interceptor can carry about five tons of bombs and rockets.

Officials also said the Egyptian package will include modern American tanks and the latest generation of air defense radar.

The Egyptian aid package, involving about $500 million for the first year, represents a sharp jump from the current level which averages about $100 million per year over a projected five-year period.

Israeli Ambassador Ephraim Evron is scheduled to meet Assistant Secretary of State Harold Saunders Tuesday and Israeli sources said Evron will protest the U.S. decision to send Egypt the latest generation of fighter aircraft.

Israel has bought 75 F-16s and is scheduled to take official possession of the first seven aircraft on Jan. 31.

Israel is not object of the principle of Egypt getting sufficient U.S. military aid," an Israeli source said. "We do object to the sophisticated level of the weapons. Look what happened in Iran. If the same thing should happen in Egypt, Israel would be facing a heavily armed enemy, and Israel would have lost the qualitative edge that has permitted her to survive in the past."

Military Aid Request For Pakistan Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration has decided to postpone giving Congress its military aid request for Pakistan because it has yet to reach agreement with the Asian country on the amount of aid, the State Department said Monday.

The postponement comes less than a week after Pakistani President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq said he was "terribly disappointed" at a figure of $400 million that had been mentioned by the administration as the amount of American aid.

He called that "peanuts" and said it would not provide Pakistan with the security it needs in the aftermath of the movement of Soviet troops into neighboring Afghanistan.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the postponement does not mean the United States has abandoned its plan to send aid. President Carter, in his State of the Union message, described aiding Pakistan as "the first order of business" for the returning Congress.

A senior administration official, briefing reporters at the White House, said the aid request would be sent to Capitol Hill "in the very near future."

He said Pakistan had been informed that "we are moving expeditiously." However, the official said, "to make U.S. aid more effective "we want to couple it with other contributions."

The administration and Pakistan have yet to agree on the size and the contents of the package, spokesman Hodding Carter said.

Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Secretary of State Cyrus Vance had postponed giving details of the aid package to a closed-door meeting of the committee.

Church said that submission of the legislation to aid Pakistan "will be deferred for a short period of time to permit further consultation with Pakistan and with other nations which have also been examining the possibility of aid to Pakistan."

Vance is reporting to the committee on the overall situation in Southwest Asia, including the threat posed to Pakistan and other nations by the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan. He was also to discuss the U.S. hostages held by Iran.

In conversations with reporters last week Zia did not name a figure that would satisfy him, but he indicated it would have to be much greater than $400 million.

"Pakistan will not buy its security with $400 million," Zia said.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, said he thinks the aid request might be delayed a week or two by the Foreign Relations Committee because Pakistan wants to meet with other nations in the region on details of the new defense relationship.

Muskie, a member of the committee, said Pakistan wants to see "what the real commitment is, what happens down the road in this relationship."
