

Progress Reported In Grim Human Rights Arena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Human rights were repressed all around the world in 1979. Dictatorships, of the left and right, practiced torture and cracked down on dissent, according to a State Department report. But, here and there, freedom took a step forward.

In two Warsaw Bloc countries, Poland and Hungary, internal controls were eased. In Argentina, the incidence of people seized without explanation dropped sharply and may be near an end. In Egypt, liberalization moved ahead under President Anwar Sadat.

These are among the findings in the State Department's annual human rights report, submitted Tuesday to Congress. For the first time, all 154 countries were surveyed.

The 854-page document is a catalogue of massive violations. Only a few, such as the seizure of an estimated 50 American diplomats in Iran, are well-known. For the most part, the victims are faceless to the world at large.

The abuses are set down in dry, bureaucratic language.

In Czechoslovakia, "overt opposition in any field is punished."

In Ethiopia, "it still appears likely that the government tortures political and military prisoners to extract information or confessions."

In Iran, "several thousand persons remain in custody for political reasons."

In Libya, "detainees in criminal and security cases reportedly are frequently beaten during interrogation."

In South Africa, "the governing reality of life... is apartheid."

In Vietnam, "deprivation of adequate medical and nutritional care for political prisoners and prisoners of conscience over extended periods has resulted in acute suffering, permanent physical impairment and death in numerous reported incidents."

The report is sharply critical of the Soviet Union, estimating the number of political prisoners at 2,000 to 10,000. The government, it says, "recognizes no right to any opinion or behavior it chooses to regard as deviant."

The world's other major Communist country, China, gets a mixed review. Since Chairman Mao Tse-tung's death in 1976, "movement in the direction of greater freedoms" is reported. There is some tolerance of dissent and a livelier press.

"But the reforms have not yet broken the entrenched patterns of harassment, arbitrary arrest and harsh punishment for political dissent," the report said.

Countries are not compared one to another or to their own past records.

But in the case of Cambodia, the report writers were moved to make the flat statement that "nowhere in the world are human rights more beleaguered."

Life in North Korea, another Communist regime, is described as "perhaps the most highly regimented and controlled in the world today."

Iran appears to be a case of one repressive regime succeeding another. The fall of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi led to dissolution of the SAVAK secret police and the freeing of political prisoners.

But under Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's rule, more than 700 executions were carried out, thousands of Iranians fled the country and vigilante groups were allowed to take actions.

DOG LADY — Betty Clough holds one of the 28 dogs she keeps at her trailer while others mill about. The dogs have forced her husband to move into a nearby shed and file a

Dog Pack Stands Between Couple Married 24 Years

PETERSBURG, Del. (AP) — David and Betty Clough celebrated their 24th wedding anniversary Tuesday, separated by a six-foot fence and 28 barking dogs.

Clough, 70, recently left his wife and moved into a shed 50 feet away because he could no longer stand to live in the trailer she shares with the dogs.

And he has filed a petition asking the Court of Chancery to order removal of some of the dogs so he can move back in with his wife.

"I'd just like a little peace and quiet," he said. "That trailer was not built to stand 28 dogs."

Standing a few feet away behind the fence that surrounds her trailer, Mrs. Clough, 55, waved her ever-present corn cob pipe and shouted above the barking din. "This is society's fault. Some people don't want dogs. They don't give a darn about them. They're mean to them."

Gesturing at the pack leaping and yelping at her feet, she added: "All these dogs are ones that people have thrown out to die."

Mrs. Clough, once known as the "Dog Lady of Wilmington," fled Delaware's largest city and moved here last summer after trouble with her neighbors over the dogs — which then numbered 33.

At the time, court officials thought the move to the country was a good one. "Apparently it was a mistake," said Chancellor William Marvel.

The Cloughs now face a lawsuit by their neighbors, Thomas A. Boyd, 71, his 56-year-old wife, Florence, and her 78-year-old mother, Anna McCormack. They charge the dogs make their lives miserable and have worsened Florence Boyd's cancer.

A group of dog lovers has tried to help out by building the fence, having the dogs spayed and donating dog food, Clough said. All of Mrs. Clough's dogs appear healthy and well cared for.

But Clough said the group is meddling in his marriage by making it easier for Mrs. Clough to keep her dogs.

Members of the group are "very devoted canine sympathizers who have made strenuous efforts to save stray dogs and... induced Mrs. Clough to take them in regardless of our health and comfort," his handwritten court petition said.

Meanwhile, he sees his wife only from afar. The closest they get to each other is when he calls her to the fence three times a day to give her meals that he cooks on a wood stove in his shed.

Mrs. Clough said she would be happy to see some of her dogs placed in good homes — but not all of them.

"If they take my dogs away, I'm going with them. I wouldn't stay down here if it weren't for these dogs," she said.

She began calling out their names. "Butch, Tippy, Mabel, Michelle, Phoebe, Tiger, Mangy, Marge, Johnny..."

Her husband watched and shook his head. "This is no way to spend our wedding anniversary."

Complaints, Ideas Heard By Planners

By RAYNIE HARDESTY and JOHNNY HOLMES
Avalanche-Journal Staff

LACK OF minority representation on the Chamber of Commerce's Committee 80 was the focus of complaints by a dozen East Lubbock residents Tuesday at Dunbar High School, while more than 40 residents at Evans Junior High said the city's transportation problems should be a prominent concern in the next decade.

The meetings were two of several held across the city by civic leaders wanting public suggestions on developing goals for the city in the 1980s.

But, during heated discussion at the Dunbar meeting, George Scott, Texas Tech associate director of student life and an East Lubbock resident, emphasized that the people who make the goals are as important as the goals.

"There should have been more sensitivity in the selection of the committees," Scott said, glancing through a tabloid outlining the nine Chamber of Commerce committees comprising Committee 80. "I think there are only three minorities on the whole committee. This proves we don't have equal access to the political system here."

"You can't get the people, excited about this when things that were high priorities 10 years ago still haven't been done," Scott continued. "In that slide show (shown at the meeting), we saw the Canyon Lakes waterfall but we don't see our end where the weeds are everywhere and nothing has been done. And we still haven't seen any action on a grade separation at 34th Street and Quirt Avenue which was a top priority 10 years ago."

Bernie Bass, one of the committee's leaders, said Scott's objections and suggestions were "very well taken," and told the dozen audience members. "It's not too late for more input from the minorities or anyone" in the committees.

Representatives from most of the individual committees made short presentations after Bass presented a 10-minute slide show outlining Committee 80's proposed goals.

"We don't have the power to implement any of these goals even if we wanted to," Bass said. "That's up to our elected officials. We just want to have a list on the record, something to refer to and work with."

At Evans Junior High in south Lubbock, residents and city officials attending the meeting agreed that Lubbock's inadequate transportation contributed to the city's other problems.

Lee Stafford, a member of the chamber's transportation committee, told residents that the only major transportation development planned for Lubbock within the next decade is construction of Interstate 27.

He said that project, which includes Lubbock's entire freeway system, should cost about $100 million. Stafford stressed, however, that construction of the interstate must be contracted by 1984

Carter Plea To Register Women Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Draft watchers at the Pentagon and on Capitol Hill say they think President Carter will ask Congress for authority to register women for the military, but he may not make the request right away.

Although nobody knows for certain, many experts are guessing that Carter will satisfy those who favor registering women by eventually sending Congress a bill asking for such authority. He already has the power to direct young men to register.

Asking for authority to register women would transfer the burden for a final decision to Congress.

But House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill has predicted Congress will reject any effort to force women to register for the draft and members of House and Senate military committees also have voiced their opposition.

Air Force and Navy officials said Tuesday there is no military need to include women in draft registration and that it would cost more money and be less effective to operate the armed services with equal numbers of men and women.

Carter, who announced his plans to renew registration in his State of the Union speech, said last weekend that he has made up his mind about registering women. But at a White House party Monday night, the president contradicted himself and denied he has made a decision.

Afghan Rebel Units Claimed Rallying

Russian Reports Confirm New Upsurge

By The Associated Press

ANTI-COMMUNIST rebels, showing better organization and equipped with heavy weapons, have launched new attacks against Soviet troops in northeast Afghanistan's remote Badakhshan province, inflicting casualties on the Soviet units there, Western diplomatic sources in India reported Tuesday.

The Soviet news agency Tass confirmed an upsurge in attacks since last weekend in Badakhshan and two other eastern provinces, Nangarhar and Paktia, but its report did not mention Soviet troops, saying instead that Afghan soldiers were "liquidating" the "bandit gangs."

The Tass report also described the enemy as "well-armed," indicating that the ragtag contingents of Moslem tribesmen of just a few weeks ago may be giving way to a better coordinated rebel force.

Fire Strikes In Kabul

In the Afghan capital of Kabul, some 100 shops burned in a major fire early Sunday, Western diplomats in New Delhi reported. They said reports spread in Kabul that the fire may have been set to cover up a looting spree by Soviet soldiers.

In other developments:

— Tass denied as "monstrous misinformation" reports by the Christian Science Monitor and Newsweek magazine that Soviet-led Afghan troops last April massacred more than 1,000 men in an eastern Afghan village where inhabitants were accused of helping the rebels.

Saudi Arabian Help Seen

— U.S. National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski ended two days of talks with Saudi officials in Riyadh, Saudi Arabia, and diplomatic sources there said the oil-rich kingdom is expected to help the United States finance a major program of military and economic aid for Pakistan as a result of the Soviet intervention in neighboring Afghanistan.

— In a new reprisal for the Afghan operation, the U.S. Commerce Department blocked further shipments of phosphates, used for fertilizers, to the Soviet Union.

— After talks in Paris, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt issued a statement calling the Afghan intervention "unacceptable," demanding that the Soviets pull out and saying East-West detente "would not withstand another shock of the same order."

Crude Price Hike Proposed

— An anti-Communist Afghan militant, Zia Khan Nassry, told a news conference in Geneva he has proposed to Arab oil states that they raise oil prices by $1 a barrel to raise $2 billion in military aid for the rebels, fellow Moslems, in Afghanistan. Nassry identified himself as chairman of the Afghan Islamic National Revolutionary Council.

— Afghan leader Babrak Karmal marked the anniversary of the birth of the prophet Mohammed with an amnesty for 448 persons condemned to death, the Soviet news agency Tass reported. The article, datelined Kabul, said the Islamic holiday was "widely observed" in Afghanistan. Tass said Karmal and other government leaders met with heads of the largest Shiite and Sunni mosques in Kabul and promised to uphold the freedom of religion. The dispatch did not say whether those granted amnesty were under the Karmal or previous regimes.

— The Iranian news agency Pars, quoting the Afghan Islamic Society in Zahedan, said the governor of Joveyn town-ship in the Afghan province of Farah had joined the Moslem rebel group and brought with him weapons and military equipment. The agency also said that after a series of revolutionary operations in Do Qaleh village in Farah province, six government supporters were arrested and executed following a trial in the Shar court of the Afghan Islamic Society.

Rebels armed with captured mortars and possibly with howitzers have been fighting Soviet troops in Badakhshan province, said the Western sources in New Delhi, who asked not to be identified.

Gasohol Panel Draws Throng

By DEBBIE STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

IF TESTIMONY given at a special Senate committee hearing on gasohol here Tuesday is an indication, the only problem with production of the alcohol-fuel in the state is the lack of it.

More than 350 area farmers and ranchers were in attendance at the session, the third of its kind in the state to give the public information about gasohol production and relay comments back to the Legislature.

Serving on the committee are Sens. E.L. Short of Tahoka, Glenn Kothmann of San Antonio, Bob Price of Pampa, John Traeger of Seguin and Raul Longoria of McAllen. Longoria, who is serving as committee chairman, was not present at the hearing Tuesday.

Fuel Making Appearance

Alcohol production for use in gasohol became legal during the last legislative session, and several South Plains service stations are beginning to introduce the fuel to area consumers.

Arthur Wylie of Swifty Distributors, who brought gasohol to Floydada residents in November, told the committee his sales of a mixture of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent distilled alcohol have been brisk, and customers have been satisfied.

He said the distributorship is testing gasohol in a 1980 vehicle, which will be driven for 50,000 miles before the engine is taken apart to check for wear, carbon buildup or other damage.

Wylie, whose alcohol supplier is located in Decatur, Ill., said the Illinois firm has told him no new customers will be accepted until new production begins, possibly as late as mid-1981.

Hardly Making Dent

He said there is not enough fuel alcohol produced in the United States now to make a dent in the nation's gasoline market.

"And every gallon we produce is one less gallon we have to get from OPEC (Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries)," he added.

Wylie called for the removal of state taxes on the fuel as a financial incentive to producers because "the market is there."

Dave Fellers, president of the Texas Oil Marketers Association, told those attending the hearing that there is very little fuel alcohol available in Texas today, and that distributors in the Midwest have contracted all of their product until July.

Clayton Gets Opponent For Speaker's Office

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, formally announced Tuesday he will attempt to unseat Speaker Bill Clayton in 1981 and blamed Clayton for a "scandalous" legislative session last year.

Bryant, 32, told a news conference Clayton had spent taxpayers' money extravagantly and was responsible for a session devoted chiefly to special interest bills.

Clayton is seeking an unprecedented fourth term as speaker. He says he subsequently will retire from the legislature and either run for a state office or devote full time to his farming and banking interests.

"I say it is time to put our children's future ahead of lobby boondoggles," Bryant told a news conference.

He said he had "absolutely solid" pledges of support from 62 incumbent representatives — including 16 from House members who also have signed pledge cards for Clayton.

"I've counted votes so many times in the past that I know who's flaky and who's not," he said. Bryant said he knows of another 11 representatives who are inclined to vote for him but fear to make a concrete pledge. He said candidates in 100 House races have "pledged their firm support" for him.

Clayton has claimed as many as 100 pledges for a fourth term.

The House elects its speaker, or presiding officer, on opening day of a legislative session by majority vote of the 150 members.

Early vote counts can change as legislators pass through the primary and general elections.

Bryant is in his third two-year term as a legislator. He calls himself a moderate but welcomed a newspaper's comment that his brand of politics was "the new conservatism."

Hermit's Murder Trial Headed Toward Jury

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (AP) — The case of Ronald Bristlewolf, a desert hermit accused of killing two gold hunters and a fellow recluse when they strayed too close to his hovel, was headed toward a jury Tuesday.

Bristlewolf, 44, who had his name legally changed from Ronald Gress in 1973, has pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity in the June 1978 slayings of the three, whose bodies were found 150 yards from Bristlewolf's dug-out home in the Black Rock Desert.

Attorneys for both sides were delivering final arguments in State District Court in Winnemucca, after which the jury was to begin deliberations.

During two weeks of testimony, Bristlewolf was described as a paranoid schizophrenic who had threatened others with a gun when they stepped too close to his home, situated near the Nevada-Oregon state line about 120 miles northwest of Winnemucca.

But psychiatrists testifying for the prosecution said the defendant was sane and knew he had committed a crime. Psychiatrist Lynn Gerow of Reno said Bristlewolf's schizophrenia was in remission and had been since 1968.

The prosecution earlier presented five witnesses who said Bristlewolf chased them away with a gun when they approached the two cluttered rooms in which he lived beneath the desert.

One, a Bureau of Land Management agent, said he went to Bristlewolf to tell him he was trespassing on public land. The witness said Bristlewolf refused to discuss it, telling the agent, "I'd rather shoot than talk about it."

The bodies of Pete Cachenauf, 75, Richard Weese, 40, and his 31-year-old wife, Judy, were found June 24, 1978, at the Pinto Hot Springs near Bristlewolf's hovel.

A pathologist testified that the Weeses, who lived in Longmont, Colo., had been dead seven to nine days when their bodies were found and that Cachenauf was shot about two days after the couple.

A criminologist said the .30-30 slug removed from Cachenauf was from one of Bristlewolf's guns. The bullets that killed the Weeses were too badly corroded to match with Bristlewolf's gun, but a shell casing found near Mrs. Weese's body came from the rifle, he said.

The Weeses were in the area looking for a lost cache of gold shown on a map passed down from Weese's father.

Cachenauf, a desert prospector and trapper, knew Bristlewolf and often came to the hot springs to soak his feet.

Bristlewolf was arrested the day after the bodies were found following a brief flight on a three-wheel motorcycle.

A defense psychiatrist pointed out that Bristlewolf had continued to tend his garden while the bodies of the victims lay a few yards away in the desert sun. He said the lack of concern about hiding the bodies indicated Bristlewolf did not know what he had done.

In what special prosecutor Mills Lane had predicted would be "a battle of the shrinks," psychiatrists outlined Bristlewolf's previous mental history, which included three stays at mental hospitals in Oregon in the 1960s, ending in 1968.

After that, the Army veteran and former Oregon potato farmer fled to the desert. He once told an acquaintance, "This itinerant life is an ideal life."

He became known to people who saw him in the desert as a man with a voracious appetite that earned him the nickname "Straightgut." There were reports he would pick up dead animals along the highway for food.

A fellow desert resident, Jim Cole, said Bristlewolf did not like to use the gun to kill animals to eat, but was a "crack shot who never seemed to miss."

Career Seminar Set At Dunbar-Struggs

A career seminar for students considering cooperative education programs in the Lubbock public schools is scheduled for today in the Struggs cafeteria of the Dunbar-Struggs High School complex.

Students and their parents will have the opportunity to learn about various careers and to hear business people in the community discuss careers available.

Slated for discussion are the demands of different careers, pay scale and fringe benefits, broad descriptions of occupations, educational requirements and the outlook for jobs on the local level.

The opening session begins at 8:30 a.m. with an orientation by Priscilla Sims, chairwoman of the Home Economics Cooperative Education advisory committee.

Career sessions, which will cover food industries, environmental services, child care industries, clothing industries and home furnishing industries will follow throughout the morning.

Also included in the seminar are personnel sessions following the career sessions. Presenters will discuss how to get jobs through private and public employment offices and company personnel offices.

A general session on how to keep a job will top off the morning's activities.

The seminar, entitled "Opportunities Unlimited," is sponsored by the Home Economics Cooperative classes of the Lubbock public schools.

Putting Probe In Perspective

THE LATEST charges of political wrongdoing in the nation's capital, no matter the final outcome, won't do anything to enhance the public's view of politicians or government.

And in that respect, the whole episode is most regrettable.

Played up as the biggest public corruption probe since Watergate, the whole affair will revive memories of that unhappy period in the midst of a presidential election year when attention should be centered on more immediate issues.

Over the weekend, it was announced that FBI undercover agents, posing as bribe-paying Arab businessmen, have for two years been investigating a U.S. Senator, six Congressmen, and 13 state officials.

EACH OF THOSE persons, of course, is entitled to his day in court.

But, the mere fact that such an investigation has been underway and that the FBI claims it has satisfied itself of the validity of its charges, via hidden cameras and other means, nevertheless can't help but affect the public's image of those in government service.

The allegations cover a wide spectrum of so-called wrongdoings by various officials, ranging from influence peddling to other charges. Most of those named either issued denials of involvement or refused to talk to newsmen.

AN EDITORIAL:

States Show 'em How To...

WHILE FEDERAL officials maintain a tumble and mumble approach to energy conservation, innovative state governments are implementing meaningful measures to save scarce fuels.

Despite a widely hailed leadership change several months ago, the Department of Energy offers little indication that it is ready or willing to provide the nation with the guidance necessary to deal with a profound energy crisis.

DOE's most recent display of incompetence and mismanagement was its announcement of a gasoline conservation plan for 1980.

The ceiling for gasoline use during the first three months of this year has been pegged at 6.8 million barrels per day—exactly what some of its own analysts expect motorists to consume in the normal course of business without any federal restrictions.

SOME STATES can consume more gasoline in the first quarter of 1980 than they did in January, February and March of 1979, using the DOE guidelines.

In contrast, the National Governors' Association has prepared an impressive compilation of energy-conservation initiatives being undertaken by various state governments.

State employees in Iowa, for example, who agree to use mass transportation for commuting receive direct subsidies from the state in the form of monthly passes. Almost

As we noted, the legal aspects of the latest bombshell to hit the nation's capital will be fought out in the courts.

In the meantime, while we would hope that there will be a speedy disposition of the FBI's charges—and that means public trials within the next few months—we also question making the whole thing too much of a political issue.

WHILE IT MIGHT be easy for GOP candidates to take note of the allegations, we feel that first those named are entitled to their day in court. Secondly, and more important, we feel the Republicans have ample ammunition at almost every level of government without getting involved in the latest incident.

If the GOP can't "place the blame, or smoking gun" if you please, in the proper place for the nation's ills, at home and abroad, then the party has no business in the role of the loyal opposition.

President Carter and his people have made enough errors in judgment—from a vacillating and naive foreign policy to double digit inflation—to give the American people an ample choice in the upcoming elections.

In brief, while the FBI probe obviously has opened up an alleged Pandora's Box, it is one best kept in the courts and out of the political spectrum, at least for the moment.

half of those participating previously were drivers of single-occupant autos.

In Colorado, the Public Utility Commission has approved a time-of-day rate schedule for industrial users, encouraging off-peak use through lower rates. A cut in peak-load requirements allows a reduction in generating capacity.

A tax credit of 55 percent, up to $3,000, on the cost of newly installed solar-heating systems has been enacted into law by the California legislature.

ON THE OTHER hand, the conservation advice given to the states by DOE and the administration generally has been limited to encouraging implementation of plans to cope with short-term crises.

That approach, NGA notes, is limited to management shortages rather than conserving fuel.

Furthermore, the governors, not DOE, deserve credit for conceiving and implementing odd even sales, minimum and maximum purchases, weekend closings and other emergency measures required during the gasoline shortfall last spring.

Northeastern governors and legislatures continue to pretend there is no energy problem, an approach that protects insecure politicians from the risks involved in making unpopular decisions.

But in handling the crisis, the states surely are faring no worse than DOE.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Soviets Run Away With Hypocrisy Competition

WASHINGTON—As the campaign to boycott the Moscow Olympics gathers steam, the plant that such a move would "politicize" the games is still abroad in the land, though less audible than it used to be.

Actually it is holding the Olympics in Moscow—rather than boycotting them—that is the true act of "politicization." The Soviets have been angling for years to host the games, as a symbol of legitimacy in the community of nations.

For the U.S. to help confer such legitimacy on them as they stand athwart the carcass of Afghanistan would be a "political" act, indeed—of the most abysmal kind.

AS PREVIOUSLY noted in this space, the Communists have always sought to exploit the Olympics as a propaganda showcase, and in many respects they have succeeded. Professional athletes, biased judges, and the like.

These, however, are not the only instances of politicization in recent years. Political considerations have been continually brought to bear on the conduct of the games, both by the International Olympic Committee and by the member nations.

Consider the cases of South Africa and Rhodesia, both of which have been banned from recent games. South Africa has been kept out of the Olympics for a decade, even though it was a founding member of the IOC.

Rhodesia has been blocked since 1968, when the Mexican government refused to issue visas to its athletes. The West German government did the same in 1972 reportedly under pressure from the British Labour government.

INTERESTINGLY ENOUGH, when Rhodesia was still under British rule in 1960 and 1964, it was permitted to compete in the Olympics.

Needless to remark, the objection lodged against South Africa and Rhodesia is that they are undemocratic and discriminatory, and should thus be isolated from the world community.

By any standard, South Africa and Rhodesia are freer and more humane than the USSR, Communist Cuba, mainland China, and countless other Marxist despotisms.

YET THESE anti-Communist, pro-Western states are barred from the Olympics, while the Communist nations are welcomed in with open arms.

Add the fact that South Africa and Rhodesia are not invading anybody—while the Soviets and Cubans wage aggression around the world—and the hypocrisy is even more apparent.

All of this is politics, pure and simple—on grounds selected by the left-wing ideologues.

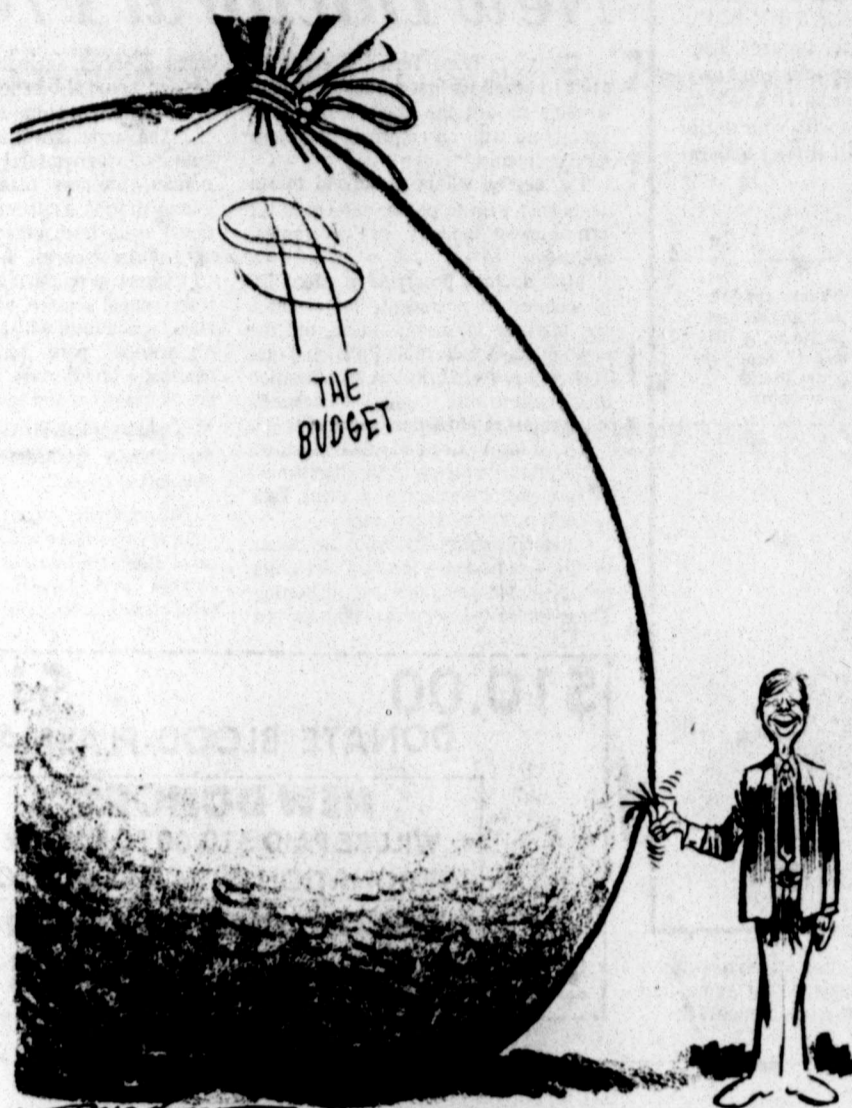

Like the IOC decision to prevent Taiwan from competing under its own name and flag because of pressure from the Chinese Communists (and U.S. State Department), the banning of Rhodesia and South Africa is yet another instance of the Olympics being exploited by the Marxist and their allies, as the West looks on in silent acquiescence.

AGAINST THAT backdrop, the suggestion that a U.S. boycott of this summer's Olympics would "politicize" the games is grimly laughable.

The more accurate formulation would be that a failure to boycott, or to move the games, would stamp the Olympics indelibly as a propaganda forum for the Kremlin and other Marxist states to do with as they please.

It is hard to imagine anything that would more certainly "politicize" the games, or guarantee their quick demise as a lofty celebration of pure sport.

Lubbock Reader Defends Words, Thoughts In Song

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: After more years in this city than I care to divulge, I am still amazed at the reaction of some of its citizens.

After requesting Larry Gatlin's "Midnight Choir" on KLLL I was told it was so controversial and they had so many complaints that the disc jockey wasn't sure it could be played. But, he says, "I'll try." Wow! This is one of the most touching songs being played today. For those who are unfamiliar, let me give a brief description.

The winos make their nightly jaunt to the city mission to get their bowl of soup for sustenance. But before getting it they willingly participate in the nightly services at the mission and are "Saved for the third time this week." Can't you picture it? They don't feel "obligated" they just want to accommodate the place if they receive the rewards.

As the service and the soup are finished they go down the alley to their only friends and share a bottle of stolen wine—the thing that means the most to them. Then at midnight they raise their voices in harmony by asking God "Will there be Mogen David in Heaven? If there's not, who the hell wants to go?"

Larry Gatlin and his brothers were religious entertainers in Odessa before moving on to bigger things. They have never moved away from that background and if people would listen to the record that is most evident. For, as they close, Larry says "I do." Then later says "My brothers and I do," meaning they want to go to Heaven, and add, "I hope all of you do, too."

Every city across America of any size has its congregate of winos who meet in different places, not always alleys. They have not been dealt all of the good things of life that others have.

But as a church-going city that is building bigger and better temples to ourselves, or for whatever reason, we close our eyes and ears to the real problems. Perhaps this attitude will be the demise of organized religion. And if we have forgotten that our being here on earth is to help our fellow man, then maybe organized religion has lost its way. I would not find it impossible to think that Larry Gatlin's sensitive song did take birth in the city from whence he came.

Thanks to KLLL, they played the record for me and since I protested to the station by saying it was a part of Americana that we can't close our eyes to and should be offering our help to, he obligingly played Larry's introduction to the song which is on the album.

If anyone out there is a protester about his song, beat a path to the person you know who is lonely and or needs your help. That will cure your self-righteousness in a hurry.

Reference Books On World History Offers Perspective

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Referring to Jay Harris's column "The Dim Past" in The A-J, Jan. 31, which begins with the following paragraph:

"A sizable segment of the American voting public has no personal recollection of some of the momentous events which have shaped recent history and their lives..." and continues with percentages and statistics on present-day voters' acquaintance with history, may I suggest the following books for a review of the events.

First, "The Glory and the Dream" by William Manchester. It covers trends, events and political history from 1932-72; an easily readable, almost entertaining and yet profound account of those 50 years.

Ted White's "In Search of History" is classified as a biography. It covers 30 or more years of history leading to present days; David Halberstam's "The Powers That Be" makes one aware of the influences behind events and gives exceptional insight into the Vietnam War period. For the thoughtful and philosophic, I suggest "The Presidential Character" by James Henry Barber. A book presaging the great depression is "Seeds of Revolt" by Mauritz Hallgren. Stories by Studs Lonergan give a graphic idea of the early depression years.

For one who has lived through these years, these books have helped put influences and events into perspective.

Local Doctor In Answer To One-Opinion Thought

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: Misleading and overly simplistic! This is my reaction to Donald Graf's column "More Than One Opinion on Surgery Can't Hurt" (Jan. 22). I'll explain my reaction.

I had been seeing a very nice lady in my office. She and her husband had been trying to have a baby for several years. She came to me to find out what the problem was. After doing a number of tests on her and her spouse, I recommended a minor surgical operation to be done as part of an infertility evaluation. The couple agreed, and she was scheduled for surgery.

She called my office the next day to tell me that her medical insurance company insisted on a "second opinion" for elective surgery.

She chose another physician and made an appointment for her second opinion. The other doctor said to her, "Look, honey, you're just trying too hard! Why not wait a few years? You don't need surgery."

A patient called me in an agitated state. After a number of calls to her insurance company, the company suggested that she obtain a third opinion. The third doctor agreed that surgery was, indeed, indicated, and she had it done.

If patients will choose well trained and well qualified, board certified physicians, who have a good reputation, and with whom they feel comfortable asking questions, the need for second, third and fourth opinions will be largely eliminated.

Denver City Woman Says Reds Planned It This Way

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: There has never been any reason for an intelligent person to believe that Russia would do differently than she is doing.

When President Roosevelt extended diplomatic recognition to Joseph Stalin's bloody regime, he set in motion one of the greatest blood baths known to civilized man and the end is not yet. Ever since that fatal date, the pro-Russia crowd has been in the driver's seat in our own government.

We sacrificed our men in Japanese prisons during World War II to defeat Germany first and thereby save Russia; we gave Russia Germany's heavy industrial machinery, her railroads, coal mines and rich agricultural lands, yet Germany had not attacked us.

We helped enslave thousands, or more accurately, millions, to Russia after the war.

When that great keeper of the peace, the UN was organized, we saw to it that Russia got three votes to one for the United States in the General Assembly. We have made long-term, low-interest rate loans, sold grain on credit, built great truck factories and done many other things to help Russia at great cost to the American people.

We have signed treaty after treaty with Russia, knowing that she would not keep them. We have cut back our own defense programs in the face of Russia's ever-expanding military power. Detente was nothing more than surrender and I am inclined to believe that all this did not occur by accident but by design.

Having been outspoken against Communism for at least 35 live years, I have heard many refugees from the "Worker's Paradise" say that if the U.S. did not support their masters, the people would rise up and overthrow them. As these refugees put it, our aid to their masters tightened the rope around their (the slaves') necks.

Petersburg Man Shudders To Think Of Carter Again

Editor, Avalanche-Journal: I noticed in President Carter's State of the Union address that he made reference to controlling inflation and keeping America strong.

I shudder to think what our condition will be if he is re-elected and does as poor a job on these two things in his next term as he has in the last 3. I hope the American people will be wise enough in 1980 to elect someone as President who does not need constant on-the-job training.

Don Hegi, Rt. 2, Petersburg

JAY HARRIS:

The Real World...

ONE OF THE ironies of this year's Presidential campaign is that events out of the hands of those seeking the top office may decide who gets it.

And while much history will be recorded before the nominating conventions and November's general election, in some ways the handwriting may already be on the wall.

Thus far, President Carter has benefited from a policy of seeking to save the nation, if not the Free World, from the very bugaboos his past mistakes have helped create.

In effect, Mr. Carter is being given a "second chance," one which he doesn't deserve. As a result, world events, the voters' short memory and a divided opposition may play into his hands.

AS WE HEAD into the first turn in the Presidential Sweepstakes, how many people remember what Mr. Carter's major objectives were when he took office?

After he and his family walked down Pennsylvania Avenue that cold, blustery day, Jimmy Who from Georgia cited unemployment, not inflation, as the nation's major domestic issue.

Along the way, he pledged to slash the military budget by $5 billion to $7 billion annually, cut arms sales abroad, complete work on SALT II, balance the budget by 1981 and free Americans from their "inordinate fear of Communism."

He also was going to reduce federal agencies from 1,900 to 200, revamp the White House staff to a manageable size and set up a working arrangement with Congress. On the side, he was going to emphasize "human rights" as a basic foreign policy of the United States and keep most of 600 other campaign promises. He said the American people should hold him accountable if he didn't.

IF IT WEREN'T so tragic, former President Ford, and a lot of Americans would be laughing up their sleeves these days.

Let's take a look at the record.

Mr. Carter can point with pride to one of his objectives. Unemployment is now in the 6 percent range from 8 percent where it was when it took office. He took a bold step in saving the Mideast Peace talks at Camp David and has brought about closer relations with the NATO countries.

There were some other successes, but not many. And whatever else his faults, Mr. Carter can't be penalized for adhering to his basic beliefs in family life, religion and man's inherent goodness.

BUT, IN THE real world of domestic politics and foreign affairs, Mr. Carter comes off, even in his recent pronouncements, as a man who is a dreamer, not a realist, at best sincere but inept, at worst a babe lost in the woods.

The fact is that where we had about 5 percent inflation when he took office, we now have 13 percent and no relief in sight.

The cost of almost everything, especially the basics such as food, housing, borrowing money and, of course, energy is skyrocketing.

The dollar has been in the doldrums for months. We are perceived by much of the world as weak and vacillating.

Mr. Carter's heralded "human rights" crusade, enunciated for the most part by former UN Ambassador Young, came off as a double standard and hypocritical, blamed in part for helping put the skids under the Shah and thus paving the way for much of today's troubles. In brief, as evidenced by the polls, his administration as of last October was a shambles.

SO, HOW DOES one explain the fact that today the President enjoys high ratings in those same polls, if not the confidence of the people?

A major reason, of course, is the historic fact that American voters always have been reluctant to "change horses in the middle of the stream," especially when that stream is being muddied by international turmoil.

Another factor, at least in this year's campaign, is that no one single GOP candidate has emerged to challenge the President. The truth of the matter is that Sen. Ted Kennedy at one point seemed to be Mr. Carter's greatest nemesis, not the Republicans.

And this says something which the GOP faithful should heed. When the primaries are over and a slate is finally chosen at Detroit in July, then all Republicans must unite behind that ticket or forget it.

This is particularly so for former Calif. Gov. Ronald Reagan's followers. It is no secret that diehard Reaganites gave only lukewarm or no backing to President Ford in 1976. Such "loyalty" is idiocy if the GOP ever hopes to recapture the White House.

LAST WEEK in Georgia, former Texas Gov. John Connally allowed as how he felt that sooner or later, the chickens would come home to leave egg on Mr. Carter's face.

The foreign situation, Connally argues, will not sustain the President throughout the campaign. The people also will weigh Mr. Carter's position as it applies to inflation, the sagging dollar and other issues as well as "his hypocritical foreign policy," the Texan says.

It is inconceivable that the Iranian hostage thing could drag on many more weeks before the American people demand that something be done. The hostages themselves are due some sort of consideration.

And, long before the November election, if not the summer conventions, the real intent of the Soviets in Afghanistan will come to the front. And Mr. Carter will have to put some sort of teeth in what Connally and others have termed his "idle threat" to use military force in the Persian Gulf.

In brief, while the President has played a masterful game of politics thus far, the issues he is playing with still demand answers. And that, in the final analysis, will not only decide the Presidency but perhaps the nation's fate for the 1980s, if not longer.

Screening Sought For Rare Disease

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff
 A baby born with hypothyroidism could end up mentally retarded unless physicians catch the problem in time.

Catching the problem is the thrust of a statewide screening program to be administered to all infants born in Texas. A Health Sciences Center physician explained the problems of the thyroid condition and the benefits of the screening at a news conference Thursday.

Dr. Surrendra Varma explained that if the condition is not detected within the first three months of life, irreversible brain damage may cripple the infant. The screening program, signed into law in 1977 through the efforts of Varma, then State Sen. Kent Hance and city councilman Alan Henry, is geared at reaching the more than 4,700 potential victims of hypothyroidism.

Although the legislation creating the program was passed several years ago, the operation was funded only through the last legislative session.

Once the condition is detected, treatment is fairly simple—a daily oral dose of thyroid hormone, which must be taken throughout the patient's life.

But a positive reaction in the screening (a simple blood test) is not a diagnosis. Confirmation tests from across the western and Panhandle sections of the state will be done at the laboratory of the Texas Tech medical school and will be reviewed by Varma, associate professor and associate chairman of pediatrics.

Varma is a pediatric endocrinologist with a major interest in thyroid research.

Varma displayed a book containing photographs of children retarded by a lack of thyroid hormone, stressing that these results can be avoided through the proper screening. Alaska, Idaho, Montana, New York, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Washington and now Texas require the screening by law in all hospitals.

Of the approximately 1 million children screened since the programs first started in 1974, 280 cases of hypothyroidism have been detected and treated. "If you do it effectively, you can start treatment within two to three weeks," Varma said. "Treatment, begun in time, will prevent or greatly lessen the mental and physical retardation resulting from the condition."

The Ashmolean Museum at Oxford was founded in 1683. It is the oldest in Britain.

Suspect In 'Hidden Camera' Hold-Up Convicted Of Robbery

By KAY BELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Cecilia Munoz Richardson, one of two persons photographed by a "Crime Eye" hidden camera during a convenience store hold-up last year, was convicted of aggravated robbery Tuesday afternoon and sentenced to 65 years in prison.

Jurors hearing the one day of testimony in 137th District Court deliberated 35 minutes before returning with the guilty verdict, although evidence revealed that the 25-year-old defendant did not actually threaten the store manager with a knife during the Sept. 3, 1979, heist.

However, the manager, Martha Scott, said the defendant did beat her before $180 cash was taken from the store registers and that Mrs. Richardson supplied her companion with the knife used during the aggravated robbery. Under Texas law, a person is considered a party to a crime and held equally responsible for the criminal act if he aids in the commission of the offense.

Mrs. Richardson's companion during the robbery of the 802 Ave. Q 7-Eleven store, Valton Donnell Lewis, was convicted of aggravated robbery in November last year and assessed a life prison term.

Jurors deliberating Mrs. Richardson's punishment took 90 minutes to return with the 65-year term for her.

Prosecutors Hollis Browning and Clint Averitte had sought a 99-year sentence for the defendant, who was not eligible for probation because of a March 1977 theft conviction and eight-year probation term she received then.

Among the pieces of evidence the five-woman, seven-man panel considered in Mrs. Richardson's trial was an 11-photograph sequence of the robbery filmed by the hidden camera.

The photographs, one of which showed Mrs. Richardson removing cash from one of the store's registers while the knife-wielding Lewis stood nearby, did not play as large a part in Mrs. Richardson's trial as they did in Lewis' last year.

Instead, Browning and Clint Averitte relied mainly on Mrs. Scott's eyewitness testimony, which defense counsel Byron Chappell tried to break during cross-examination.

Mrs. Scott told the jury that Mrs. Richardson and Lewis had come into the store about half an hour before the robbery and that a brief argument had erupted when Mrs. Richardson tried to shoplift a burrito.

The store manager said that after exchanging words with the couple, they left and returned about five minutes later.

Upon re-entering the store, Mrs. Scott said, Mrs. Richardson began "cussing and raving and said they were going to beat me up."

Mrs. Richardson and her companion then began throwing items across the counter at Mrs. Scott, the manager said, and when she reached for a phone to call the police, the man jerked the phone from her hand, ripping the receiver from the telephone. He handed the disconnected receiver to Mrs. Richardson, who then used the receiver to beat her, Mrs. Scott said.

Mrs. Scott told the panel she was able to reach a pay phone in the back of the store but said the bandits followed her and continued the beating.

It was then, Mrs. Scott said, the male bandit got the knife from Mrs. Richardson and said, "Let's get all the money."

She told the jury the robbers ran from the store when a police car drove up outside.

Although defense counsel Byron Chappell tried to shake Mrs. Scott's identification of Mrs. Richardson, the manager emphatically told the attorney, "That (Mrs. Richardson's) face is written in my mind."

Chappell also suggested that Mrs. Richardson acted drunk, but Mrs. Scott said, "Well, no, sir — just acted crazy."

Mrs. Scott was the first witness to testify this morning. The jury hearing Mrs. Richardson's case was seated late Monday afternoon, after Judge Robert C. Wright denied a defense motion to have the trial moved from Lubbock County.

Gray Panther Speaks Up For Guidelines On Natural Gas Cutoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — A Gray Panther, who also is a nurse, testified Tuesday that old people could die before they are able to complain about cut-offs of natural gas to their homes.

Charlotte Flynn of Austin spoke at a Texas Railroad Commission hearing on guidelines proposed by the U.S. Department of Energy for use by state regulatory agencies.

The guidelines recommend advance notice of service cut-offs and a ban on halting gas service in cases where it might cause health problems.

Spokesmen for several gas companies told Lee Allen Everett, hearing examiner, that the commission should not adopt the guidelines for use in Texas. They said their companies use "flexible" practices that allow persons who cannot pay their bills an opportunity to discuss the matter with the company.

Several also said they already provide notification of possible service curtailment. Customers then can come in to talk about the bills, they said.

But Mrs. Flynn said elderly persons often cannot get out of their homes.

"A lot of older people live alone and could not make people aware of their problems," she said. "I don't think they would be talking to the gas company before they would die. You'd find out about it after they died."

Current commission rules for unincorporated areas do not make special provisions for the ill or elderly. Texas cities set rules for utility companies within their boundaries.

Tom James, director of public utilities for Dallas, spoke against the proposed guidelines.

"Utility companies should not be converted into welfare agencies," he said. "It is certain the costs to all customers would increase. There's no other way."

the costs have to go to other customers."

Robert Laczko, Austin district vice president for Southern Union Gas, said it would be difficult to determine which customers' health would be endangered by service termination.

"There are questions as to who would make such a determination and how it would be done. There are probably even questions as to what may be hazardous — one person's discomfort might well be a health hazard to another," he said.

Carter 'Upset' Over Energy Bill Tie-Ups

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter was described by congressional leaders Tuesday as being "quite upset" over the slow pace of major pieces of energy legislation tied up in disagreements between the House and Senate.

In a weekly White House meeting with House and Senate leaders, Carter urged quick action by Congress on the pending "windfall profits" tax, synthetic fuels and energy mobilization board proposals, participants said.

"He expressed disappointment at the pace of the conference committees," Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. said. Almost all of the meeting was devoted to Carter's efforts to prod Congress to move quickly on the energy legislation, first proposed last summer, participants said.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said the president was particularly concerned about congressional inability to agree on a "windfall" tax on oil industry revenues resulting from the decontrol of crude oil prices.

Without an additional tax, the oil companies would take in an estimated $450 billion from 1980 through 1990.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My wife and I are both retired. We own some stock and bonds and have just received some more from the estates of her mother and my mother.

My wife, however, is afraid to invest in stocks. I think she is afraid we may have another stock market crash — such as in 1929. Even though we have good income from pension and Social Security, she does not want to spend money except for vacation trips. She wants to keep at least $10,000 in our savings account.

My father was a customer man on Wall Street, so I am in favor of stocks. How can I teach my wife that stocks are good investments?

A. Start by showing her how each of the stocks you own has performed — in both market price and dividend payout — since they were purchased. Assuming the stocks you own are good ones, you should be able to prove to her that the part of your family nestegg which is in stocks did better than the part kept in a straight savings account.

If you haven't kept records on this, go to the public library and get year-by-year figures on your stocks' prices and dividends from the Standard & Poor's or Moody's reference manuals. You might even find that an interesting way to spend some time on these winter days.

Again assuming that the stocks you own are solid and suitable investments for retirement, you should be able to convince your wife to hold on to what you have.

But, if you're thinking about buying more stocks, I'm on your wife's side. Between pensions, Social Security, dividend and interest income, you two seem to be in great financial shape. Why not enjoy your retirement — by taking more of those vacation trips?

That's what my blue-eyed finance officer and I plan to do, come retirement time.

One last point. These days, it makes no sense to keep $10,000 in a straight savings account at 5.25 or 5.5 percent. Most of that money could be earning about 13 percent in a money market mutual fund.

Q. I have a few "Freedom Shares" purchased in 1969 and 1970. Can I redeem them at any bank? Are they still earning interest? If so, how much?

A. Freedom Shares — U.S. Savings Notes which were sold only in combination with Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds from, say, 1967 through June, 1970 — can be redeemed at any bank or other institution designated as a "qualified paying agent" by the U.S. Bureau of the Public Debt.

Milk is a food, not a beverage. It should be consumed slowly — not gulped as a thirst quencher.

Man Setting Record Sitting In Pudding

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI) — Disc jockey Steve Gibbons hopes to raise money for handicapped children by sitting in a tub of pudding.

No one has ever done it before, so no matter how long Gibbons remains in the goo, it will be a record.

The paunchy morning personality from KRNT radio in Des Moines planned to lower himself into 30 gallons of vanilla pudding at 5 p.m. Tuesday to begin the record try, sponsored by the Guinness Book of World Records.

Vanilla was chosen in a poll of listeners taken on Gibbon's program.

Gibbons said he hopes to raise enough money to buy at least 25 wheelchairs for Camp Sunnyside, a camp for handicapped children.

"People are tired of being hit up for bucks," Gibbons said. "We thought this was a novel way of doing it and the idea clicked."

Guinness' rules allow Gibbons to take a five-minute break from the pudding every hour.

ABC Tops Ratings; Season's TV Race Heats Up

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC finished No. 1 in the networks' prime-time ratings competition for the first time in seven weeks, and pulled even with CBS in their race for first place for the season to date.

ABC's triumph in the week ending Feb. 3 came despite the fact CBS listed six of the 10 highest-rated shows, and NBC had two. CBS' newsmagazine "60 Minutes," the top show for the season so far, was No. 1 for the week.

Figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed "60 Minutes" with a rating of 29.2, to 28.8 for the runner-up, ABC's "Three's Company."

Nielsen says that means of all the TV-equipped homes in the country, 29.2 percent saw at least part of "60 Minutes."

CBS slipped past ABC in the season's ratings a week ago, after winning the weekly competition six straight times. The two networks ended the most recent Nielsen survey tied.

ABC's strength in the most recent check was through the middle — few big winners and few big losers.

NBC, on the other, had its best week in some time, with "Real People" No. 4 in the ratings, and "Little House on the Prairie" 10th.

Through the Top 20, CBS had nine shows, ABC seven and NBC four. ABC had eight of the next 10.

NBC's rating for the week was 19, its highest in a month, to CBS' 20.2 and ABC's 20.7. The networks say that means in an average prime-time minute during the week, 20.7 percent of the homes in the country with television were tuned to ABC.

ABC's attempt to revive "Battlestar Galactica" as "Galactica: 1980" was not particularly successful. The show was No. 44 for the week. NBC's miniseries, "The Martian Chronicles," likewise stumbled in the ratings. Part II was No. 34 for the week, and the conclusion was 42nd.

NBC and CBS each had two of the week's five lowest-rated programs. NBC's "Siegfried and Roy" was No. 63, followed by "Stone" on ABC, a CBS movie, "The Driver," NBC's "Prime Time Saturday," and "Featherstone Nest" on CBS.

The week's Top 10 programs: "60 Minutes," with a rating of 29.2 representing 22.3 million homes. CBS: "Three's Company," 28.8 or 22 million. ABC: "Dallas," 28.6 or 21.8 million. CBS: "Real People," 27.9 or 21.3 million. NBC: "Dukes of Hazzard," 27.7 or 21.1 million. "M-A-S-H," 27.3 or 20.8 million, and "House Calls," 26.9 or 20.5 million, all CBS: "Eight is Enough," 26.4 or 20.1 million. ABC, and "Alice," CBS, and "Little House on the Prairie," NBC, both 26 or 19.8 million.

The next 10 shows: "The Jeffersons," CBS; "Taxi," ABC;

PLATFORM CAPSIZES
PORT LAVACA (AP) — An oil drilling platform being towed into the Gulf of Mexico rolled over and capsized early Tuesday, seriously injuring two of the 42 persons aboard, the Coast Guard reported. Five other persons were injured less seriously, but everyone was accounted for, officials said. It was not known what caused the rig to roll over.

French, West Germans Display Tough Stance Against Soviets

PARIS (UPI) — France and West Germany Tuesday closed ranks behind President Carter's get-tough foreign policy, demanding a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan and warning any further Soviet thrusts should be met by a unified Western alliance.

"Detente could not resist new shock of this kind," said French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt.

The statement contained no specific retaliation against the Soviet Union, such as the grain and technology export embargo decreed by President Carter.

But diplomats said unless Moscow withdraws from Afghanistan soon, France and West Germany would be forced to join the U.S.-initiated boycott of the summer Olympics in Moscow and possibly take other steps.

The statement — said by officials to be the toughest condemnation on record of any Soviet military initiative by Paris and Bonn — came at the conclusion of a three-day summit meeting at Elysee Palace.

Until Tuesday, France and West Germany had responded cautiously to the Soviet invasion in contrast to the stern attitude displayed by the United States and Britain. The low-key approach apparently reflected hope for a promised Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan would come soon enough to defuse the crisis.

Noting Moscow's promises have yet to be fulfilled, Giscard d'Estaing and Schmidt said, "it is necessary that these statements be turned into facts."

Photographer Gunned Down In Mugging

NEW YORK (AP) — A 27-year-old free-lance photographer for Time magazine was killed early Tuesday in his Greenwich Village neighborhood when he aided a teen-aged mugging victim, police said.

Keating, described by his superior at Time as a sensitive, gentle and almost shy man, was shot once in the back of the head after he spotted the gunmen beating Schwab because he refused to hand over a pair of roller skates.

The photographer was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital where he died about 30 minutes after the 1:45 a.m. mugging. Schwab, who refused to be interviewed, received minor bruises and scratches.

Suspected Marijuana Found In Bags

A 20-year-old Lubbock man was arrested shortly before noon Tuesday on suspicion of felony possession of marijuana, police said.

The man, driving a 1974 Lincoln Continental, was pulled over by officers for speeding about 11:25 a.m. in the 2700-block of Quirt Avenue, reports indicate.

A radio check revealed a warrant for the arrest of the man had been issued for failure to appear in court on a previous traffic violation.

Officers began a routine inventory of personal property in the man's car, before it was to be impounded. A paper sack containing 15 bags of a substance believed to be marijuana was found in the trunk of the vehicle, reports indicate.

The man then told the arresting officers he was test-driving the car, and that it belonged to a used car dealer.

The substance in the bags was taken to a Department of Public Safety laboratory for analysis, police said.

In other activity, an 11-year-old city girl told police three other youths assaulted her near her East Lubbock home about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The girl said two other girls held her on the ground while a boy attempted to remove her clothes, police said. One of the girl's foster parents arrived at the scene and took the victim home, reports indicate.

An 18-year-old Slaton woman told police another woman fired two shots in her direction after threatening to kill her about 11 p.m. Monday.

The woman said she was sitting in her car at an apartment complex on East 28th Street when the other woman approached her and told her to get out of the car. When the victim refused, the other woman said she had a gun and would use it to kill the victim.

Bula Citizens To Voice FM Road Opinions Today

MULESHOE (Special) — About 50 Bula citizens at a public hearing here today are expected to oppose the construction of a proposed farm road to be located one mile west of their community.

Residents say they want to know why the original plan for the road, which had it traveling through Bula, was scrapped for a plan to have the road bypass the small farming community in southeast Bailey County.

The hearing, which will be conducted by officials from the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation office in Lubbock, is scheduled to begin at 1:30 p.m. at the Bailey County Courthouse here. Bailey County commissioners also will attend the meeting.

Originally, the proposed road was to begin at FM 298 and travel south through Bula. But it was decided instead that the road would start at FM 298 and travel south to FM 54, one mile west of the small farming community. The new road would be about eight miles long.

Bula farmer Dale Thompson said those attending the meeting hope to find out who was responsible and why it was decided to move the proposed road to the west.

"We think that having the road go into Bula would be cheaper because it would be flat and straight and not curved like the west road. Basically, we just think the originally designated road is the better one. We think the east road will help the most people and do the most good in the long run," he said. State officials said the purpose of the meeting is to give interested citizens the opportunity to ask questions and express their views on the proposed project. Highway engineers also will answer questions concerning the design, the state's relocation assistance program and right of way acquisition.

Attorney General Says Lubbock May Withhold Reservoir Plans

AUSTIN — Attorney General Mark White has issued an opinion that the City of Lubbock may withhold information on plans, locations and estimates on a proposed reservoir project, under provisions of the Open Records Act.

White, who issued the opinion Tuesday at the request of Lubbock City Attorney John C. Ross Jr., said that information on the project could be withheld from the public if it was still the basis for "good faith" negotiations regarding the purchase by the city of real property.

Ross explained Tuesday that he had received a written request from a Lubbock resident for the information addressed in the opinion but that the information is exempted from public disclosure according to the Open Records Act.

Soil, Water Conservation Plan Enters Public Comment Stage

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drawn-out process for overhauling federal programs to conserve two of the nation's basic resources, soil and water, is entering a phase that is certain to prompt spirited discussions in the months ahead.

The Agriculture Department has announced final draft documents that will be used in gathering public comment on implementing the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977, commonly referred to as RCA by USDA officials and conservationists.

Parts of the draft report were issued last fall, including a lengthy inventory and information about the U.S. land system.

Subsequently, through speeches and other information, it became clear that the project would involve the consideration of various "themes" or "strategies" that might be used to improve federal conservation programs.

The law requires USDA to submit its first report to the president and Congress this year and then to provide Congress with annual evaluation reports. The entire process then must be repeated in 1985.

A major thrust of the law and the RCA process is to provide a continual updated plan of how to manage in the best way possible the problem of land and water conservation through the next half century.

"The present form of soil and water conservation programs in the United States had its roots in the 1930s," a summary of the draft report says. "The pattern established then — a flexible program based on the voluntary cooperation of land users — has changed but little for more than 40 years."

But questions about the future of U.S. land and its capability of providing enough food and fiber for Americans and foreign customers have been raised. Other concerns include the loss of prime farmland to non-agricultural use, and the decline in water quality.

Today there are 34 programs related to soil and water conservation in agencies of the Agriculture Department alone. Some 2,950 local conservation districts exist, established under various state laws.

Thus, Congress "decided it was time for a fresh look" at the accomplishments, shortcomings and effectiveness of "this many-faceted, decentralized" conservation effort.

The draft documents are open for public scrutiny at local offices of USDA's Soil Conservation Service and its Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Eighteen public meetings have been scheduled around the country next month to gather comments, and written views may be submitted on the draft reports, postmarked no later than March 28. To: USDA RCA-Response Analysis Center, P.O. Box 888, Athens, Ga., 30603.

Seven strategies or alternatives for conservation are included in the draft plan, none of which has been fully analyzed at this time as to possible impact or effectiveness.

The seven alternative strategies listed in the draft report included:

- Redirecting Present Conservation Programs.
- State Leadership.
- States would assume the primary responsibility for planning and carrying out soil and water conservation programs, subject to USDA Approval.
- Federal grants would be available "to cover the cost of conservation activities that are in the best interest of the nation as a whole but are beyond the land user's economic interest and the interest or financial resources of the state and local governments."

Farmers would be required "to apply certain conservation measures to their land in accordance with USDA standards to qualify for benefits of commodity price support programs, low-interest loans, cost-sharing program and crop insurance."

—Regional Resource Project Approach.

Resources of USDA would be directed "toward the more urgent and chronic" problems, using federal, state and local funds and personnel "to address resource problems unique to a region."

Federal participation "would be available only for programs that contribute to meeting proposed objectives for soil and water conservation." New legislative authority would be needed in some cases.

—Regulatory Emphasis.

Using backup regulatory authorities at the local, state and national level as an emphasis, the goal would be to carry out a national soil and water conservation program that would include "a strong conservation assistance program" that would offer incentives to accomplish the job.

Regulations phased in over a period of 20 years, with the help of USDA grants and guidance, states would require that land users meet certain federally-approved standards.

—Conservation Performance Bonus.

Land users who voluntarily carry out conservation projects would be offered special incentives, including higher price supports for commodities and other benefits.

—Natural Resources Contracts.

The federal government would offer to buy conservation results from farmers. For example, through natural resources contracts, the government would pay a farmer "a flat price per ton of soil saved for each year in which the erosion reduction was actually accomplished."

Farmers would bear the costs of solving their conservation problems and then get the payments for saving soil and water.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

U. S. AGRICULTURAL POLICY FACES a "major identity crisis" as a result of the Soviet grain embargo, a commodity export executive said this week.

Richard J. Goodman, vice president for government relations of Continental Grain Co., told the Fargo, N. D., Farm Forum that "the time ahead is dangerous."

"If the embargo does not advance established foreign policy objectives, there will be those who say that the export controls were not broad enough," he said.

On the other hand, he added, "if the embargo is deemed effective, then its further use as an instrument of foreign policy will be most inviting."

If the embargo doesn't result in a "serious shorting of the Soviet grain supply," Goodman said, then it "obviously will not have been worthwhile."

Even if the embargo is partially effective, he said, "the question will still remain whether — of the range of options available to the administration — a grain and oilseed embargo was the necessary choice."

CITING A BLURRED MARKET PICTURE as a result of the embargo, Goodman pointed out that "carriers projected for both wheat and feed grains at the end of this marketing year have increased."

During the past few weeks, he said, the outlook has changed from full free production to one of possible acreage diversion this year and set-aside requirements next year and beyond.

"The possibility of such production controls will increase if importing countries react to the grain embargo by stepping up protection and capitalization of their domestic agriculture for greater self-sufficiency," he said. "The problem is further compounded if other exporting nations gain trade advantages as a result of the grain embargo."

Goodman pointed to the entry of the federal government into the grain business once more through recent actions by the Commodity Credit Corp. on wheat and corn.

"We must reconcile ourselves to this fact and recognize that in these circumstances the CCC can control market prices," he said, "if farmers elect not to sell grain stocks at release or call levels of the farmer-held reserve."

THE CCC WILL BE ABLE TO SELL for export on a government-to-government basis such stocks, when it chooses, should such sales be perceived as furthering the nation's foreign policy objectives, he said.

Looking to the future, Goodman said debate over the further role of the federal government in agriculture should come to a head later in the year.

"Once the idea becomes widespread that agriculture is not only a key economic asset but one which can be manipulated for foreign policy or domestic considerations," he said, "we will then face the overriding question of who is going to run what in agriculture and for what purpose."

Meanwhile, Joseph Halow, president of the North American Export Grain Association, said in a speech at Minneapolis that world confidence in the United States as a dependable supplier of grain will be diminished as a result of the embargo on shipments to the U.S.S.R.

"If the United States is to regain the world's confidence, Halow said, "it will take years of impeccable export performance."

THE EMBARGO COULD SLOW OR STOP investments in grain export facilities and could signal a return to "an agricultural system based on rigid government controls and the need to support farmer income through outlays from the U. S. Treasury," he said.

Halow said the Soviets never again will depend on the United States for grain imports to the extent they have in the past. He predicted that the Eastern European nations also would attempt to decrease their dependence on U. S. agricultural products.

Although grain prices have not declined precipitously as a result of the embargo, Halow said they will be affected in the long term.

As other grain exporters make up some of the supplies that the U.S.S.R. would have purchased from the United States, he said, their stocks may become seriously depleted.

"When other countries consider their (1980) planting intentions and their stocks are depleted, they will certainly go all out," he said. "We, on the other hand, faced with large reserve stocks, which we know must come back into the market at some time, will be forced to consider acreage reductions."

LATE SELLING BROKE A LIMIT RISE in cotton futures Tuesday after a 40-minute trading halt to match buy and sell orders.

Estimated volume was 13,000 lots. Buy order allocations of spot March until almost noon delayed opening of the balance of the market before trading was suspended for a time in the afternoon until 15 minutes before the close.

At the close, nearby ranged 134 points higher to 115 points lower after having been locked up the 200-point limit most of the day. Strong commission house buying early rocketed prices in nearby past 90 cents.

Floor brokers said the market reopened following the afternoon suspension with a call, in compliance with exchange rules, amid heavy commission house profit taking influenced by fears that the exchange might impose trading restrictions in the spot March contract.

Open interest going into the session, reflecting what happened Monday, stood at another new all-time high of 55,609 lots, up 896 from the previous day. But spot March was off 461 lots at 15.877 and May was off 86 at 16.898.

The trading suspension and allocation procedures, some sources said, may have resulted in some distortions in market differences. Spot March moved ahead of May for the first time on an inverted settlement premium of 26 points.

SPECULATIVE LONG HOLDINGS AT THE END of last week were at 75.3 percent, figures released Tuesday revealed, up 2.4 percent from a week earlier. The speculative short positions were at 39.9 percent, down 1.3 percent.

Thus, speculators were 35.4 percent net long. Some analysts said the heavy concentration of speculative longs might not be enough reason to sell the market but added that it might be a reason for extreme caution.

Trade longs were at 16.3 percent, down 1.1 percent, and short hedges were at 51.8 percent, up 2.6 percent.

The "A" Index of the Cotton Outlook of Liverpool, which has been quoted only nominally every day since Jan. 29, Tuesday morning was 97.90N cents, basis strict middling 1 1/16 inches, c.i.f. North ern Europe. This, up 100 points from Monday, was a record high.

Cotton futures at New York now have set new contract highs in nearby months for six successive trading days. The bases across the belt Tuesday weakened 100 points at Phoenix, widened again in the Texas markets, strengthened 50 points at Montgomery, and were unchanged elsewhere.

Trading on Telcot, after an early splash of vigor on the lower physical price offerings, settled into somewhat of a routine pattern and finished the day with a volume of 15,512 bales, an average price of 55.83 cents, and an average over the loan of 1.446 points.

Telcot price quotes were up 50 points. One firm has accounted for the big end of the buying the past two days.

GRAIN FUTURES

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices finally topped Tuesday under the weight of three days of heavy commercial selling and commission house buying, taking soybean futures prices lower as well.

"We've had three days of heavy commercial selling of wheat. Today is the fourth day," said one veteran trader.

"The public can only buy so much wheat until the canopie tps."

Traders said background news that Mexico had postponed and possibly canceled tenders for corn and sorghum added to the price-depressing news in the market.

Mexico reportedly had been tendering for 100,000 metric tons of U.S. corn and 650,000 metric tons of sorghum. In addition, the Soviet Union reportedly plans to buy 1 million metric tons of Argentine grains and oilseeds to substitute for embargoed U.S. commodities.

Local traders were big sellers in the soybean pit, where prices fell the most.

At the close, soybeans were 4 1/2 to 8 cents lower, March $6.75; wheat was 6 1/2 to 9 1/2 cents lower, March $4.71; corn was 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents lower, March $2.77 1/4; and oats were 3/4 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher, March $1.50.

Iraqi Trio Arrested In Iran Pipe Blasts

By The Associated Press
Explosions slightly damaged six oil pipelines in southwestern Iran's oil-rich Khuzestan province, Tehran Radio reported Tuesday. It was the eighth such incident in the past few days.

The radio also reported three Iraqis were arrested Sunday on charges of subversive acts in the region. It said the Iraqis carried 10,000 rounds of ammunition and had more in a hidden cache.

A day after formally assuming Iran's presidency, Abolhassan Bani Sadr was appointed chairman of Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council, the radio said in a broadcast monitored in London.

It said his selection was subject to approval by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who on Monday officiated at the presidential ceremony and gave Bani Sadr his approval. Bani Sadr's appointment as head of the council appeared to be a further sign that he was consolidating his leadership position.

Bani Sadr's selection as council chairman was announced by council spokesman Hassan Habibi, who said the appointment was proposed at the council's latest meeting.

In other developments:

— A delegation of 50 Americans was to leave for Iran to meet with the Islamic militants who have been holding approximately 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Tuesday was their 94th day in captivity.

— Oil Minister Ali Akbar Moinefar announced a delegation of Iranians would go to Moscow in the near future to review agreements on oil exports to the Soviet Union, the radio said. It quoted Moinefar as saying the delegation would hold preliminary talks to prepare a meeting between Iranian and Soviet officials but did not say when they would be held.

— Bani Sadr pledged never to give in to force as a means of resolving differences between the central government and the autonomy-seeking Kurdish minority in northwestern Iran. He said he had personally intervened in peace talks between the government and the Kurds "to put the thing back in order" and end sporadic clashes in the region that have plagued Iranian leaders in Tehran over the past year.

— Calm was reported in Kurdistan for the second day following nearly a week of bloody fighting that left at least 50 persons dead and scores wounded.

The pipeline explosions Monday night started a fire that blazed for eight hours, the radio said. The broadcast, monitored in Kuwait, said the explosions occurred about seven miles from the provincial town of Aghajari, which is in the center of Iran's main oil-producing region about 400 miles south of Tehran. It is also 100 miles north of the Kharg Island oil port on the Persian Gulf. Iran's principal tanker terminal.

In a later broadcast, the radio termed the damage minor, said it had been repaired and that the pipelines were functioning. The explosions raised to eight the total of pipeline incidents in the province in the past four days.

Oil industry sources said it was difficult to assess the impact of the explosions on Iran's oil industry because it was not known if the blasts damaged main pipelines running to Kharg Island or merely feeder lines. Damages to a main line could be "a major situation," said an industry source in New York.

For the past nine months, autonomy-seeking Arabs who form the majority of the province's population have been carrying out sabotage attacks against oil installations.

News that three Iraqis had been arrested by Iranian authorities came in an earlier broadcast.

It said the three were arrested Sunday in Khuzestan, which is bordered on the west by Iraq, with 10,000 rounds of ammunition in their possession. They admitted having hidden another 18,000 rounds on the highway between Ahwaz and Abadan, the radio said.

Reagan Describes His Age As Asset

By The Associated Press
Touring New Hampshire Tuesday on the eve of his 69th birthday, Ronald Reagan boasted that his age is an asset and that debate among the GOP presidential rivals would help voters determine "where we differ."

As if to demonstrate his resilience, Reagan criss-crossed the state by bus, darted into the streets to greet the people and showed no hesitation to talk about his age.

"The question is, 'Would my age be a factor against me in the campaign?'" Reagan told a Plaistow, N.H., high school audience. "I don't think the number of years are very important as long as you retain your faculties, your physical abilities and so forth. I think I have."

Plans To Debate
"Then," he quickly added, "along with age goes experience, and hopefully you've acquired some common sense along the way."

Reagan said he now favors a debate with his rivals.

"I'll be debating" in New Hampshire, he said. Reagan said he at first opposed the idea because he felt it would prove divisive to the Republican party.

Now, he said, he feels people have a right to see the Republican candidates to find out "if we differ, where we differ."

Gaining On Connally
James Lake, Reagan's campaign spokesman, said the candidate definitely will take part in a debate to be sponsored on Feb. 20 by the League of Women Voters in Manchester, N.H.

While the former California governor sought support in the New Hampshire primary on Feb. 26, his campaign lieutenants released figures showing that Reagan was closing in on John Connally as the top fund-raiser among presidential candidates.

In a report submitted to the Federal Election Commission in Washington, Reagan's campaign disclosed that it raised more than $7 million in 1979. That total put Reagan in second place behind Connally among presidential campaign fund-raisers. The former Texas governor, who has refused to accept federal campaign matching funds, has raised roughly $9 million so far.

Baker Complains
The FEC report said Reagan raised $4,418,826 in private contributions during the last quarter of 1979, and spent just over $4 million during the same period. Reagan reported having $554,574 cash on hand at the end of the year.

Elsewhere, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee complained about the length of time required for presidential campaigning. And George Bush was endorsed by William Ruckelshaus, the former assistant attorney general who became a victim of the so-called "Saturday

Drilling Rig Capsizes; 42 Rescued

PORT LAVACA (UPI) — An offshore oil drilling rig being towed to a new site capsized in the Gulf of Mexico early Tuesday, apparently because a tow line broke and the rig's load shifted. All 42 persons aboard were rescued.

Coast Guard spokesmen said the Topper 1 jacking rig, owned by Zapata Offshore Inc. of Houston, rolled over in 54 feet of water 7 miles off Matagorda Peninsula about 2:45 a.m. CST.

Coast Guard spokesman Joe Gibson in New Orleans said it appeared a tow line from one of three towboats had snapped, causing the rig's load to shift and the rig to capsize.

The towboats pulled all 42 persons who had been aboard from winter-chilled waters. Seven men were hurt. One with a broken ankle and a second with a back injury were taken by helicopter to Port Lavaca Hospital 40 miles to the northwest.

"It happened very fast, within 30 minutes," said oil field consultant Jack S. Jones of Corpus Christi, who uttered the broken ankle. "We took on water and the rig turned over, upside down."

"It just capsized and came up on one corner, resting on the bottom of the sea with the derrick lying sideways. Everybody was cool, calm and collected. They've abandoned ship drills frequently. Everybody knew what they were doing."

One of four Coast Guard helicopter pilots who flew to the scene from Corpus Christi and Houston said the rig remained partially visible.

"It appeared to be on its side and there was quite a bit of structure still showing," said Lt. David Marks of Houston.

Galveston Coast Guard spokesman Laurel McMarlin said the weather at the time of the accident was "very, very moderate," with winds of about 6 mph out of the southeast and seas of 3 to 5 feet.

McMarlin said the company put a two-man work crew back aboard the partially sunken platform before sunrise and a Coast Guard crew from Corpus Christi planned inspections.

Port Lavaca Hospital spokesman Sam Ramirez said Buel Meredith, a Zapata employee, was in stable condition with his back injury. Jones said he had been told Meredith's back injury, which caused some leg numbness, was not serious.

"He got caught between a piece of equipment that rolled and pinned him on the deck," Jones said.

A jacking rig is a barge-like platform with cranked legs that is towed onto a drilling site and anchored, after which its legs are cranked down and the platform jacked up for oil and gas exploration drilling.

Jones said that when the accident occurred the triangular rig was being towed from Block 484 to Block 408, where it was to drill a wildcat petroleum exploration well.

Complaints, Ideas Heard By Planners

or 1985 to qualify for federal and state funding.

The federal government is expected to pay 90 percent of the interstate construction costs, with the state government picking up the remaining 10 percent.

One resident, however, asked Committee 80 representatives, "Where is the imagination in providing transportation? It looks like there could be a more creative way to handle our traffic and transportation system, rather than spending millions of dollars and tying ourselves to miles of concrete," said Bob Ford.

Ford recommended the city improve its mass transportation system and provide incentives for the private sector to carpool and to establish downtown housing districts.

Dr. Ernst Kiesling, chairman of Tech's civil engineering department, also spoke in favor of development of more housing in the downtown area.

"There appears to be enough open space in the downtown area that such a project could be done very tastefully," Kiesling said.

While other residents questioned the success of most mass transit systems across the country, Kiesling noted, "We have always had a choice of transportation, but I have an uneasy feeling many of these choices are going to be taken away from us."

Stafford also suggested that gas price increases are incentives for increased mass transportation.

An Evans Junior High School parent, who said she lived outside Loop 289, recommended that the city conduct a study "to see who would use the bus."

The woman said that a bus previously had been scheduled to stop near Evans Junior High about 3:20 p.m. each day but that the children were not dismissed from school until 3:25 p.m. She said a bus no longer stops near the school but added, "I would still use the bus if it came by at the right time."

She said she now has to use her car to pick up her child after school.

Kiesling and other residents also spoke in support of revitalizing Lubbock's downtown district. Dorman Igo, a member of the Planning and Zoning Commission, told the gathering that the traffic situation "makes it difficult to get cars downtown."

Igo said several pluses for the downtown area included recent development of the Lubbock branch of South Plains College and new facilities built by First National Bank and Lubbock National Bank. He said the city is striving to upgrade and build new buildings in the downtown area.

At Hutchinson Junior High in central Lubbock, 45 residents said the primary goals of the city in the 80s should be the quality of life and solutions to the energy problem.

away from our members and consumers to be redistributed to alcohol producers in the Midwest states," he said. The only solution he pointed out is for Texas to produce enough of its own alcohol to ensure that it gets its share of unleaded gasoline to mix with the alcohol for gasohol production.

Charles Russell of Worldwide Construction Services in Wichita, Kan., which is just beginning to draw up plans for several firms interested in alcohol-distilling plants, explained that several marketable items are yielded during the alcohol refining process.

These byproducts include the dry grain left after moisture is removed for alcohol production and carbon dioxide, which can be captured for sale.

You'll be amazed at how viable an investment this can be," he said.

Area residents learned at the hearing that efforts are being made to cut red tape in applying for the necessary Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission permit to produce gasohol.

Commission executive director Sherman McBeath said the state application is one of the simplest TABC forms to complete, saying "it only takes about 10 minutes."

The state production permit, which costs the applicant $100, must be obtained along with the permit from the Federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for alcohol plant construction.

McBeath said a farmer or rancher can operate a distillery to produce alcohol for other than human consumption on any leased or owned property under his control.

Also speaking at the hearing was Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms representative Herschel Stewart, who explained that the federal permit is free to the applicant but that a distiller's bond must be obtained.

Stewart said that if production is under 2,500 gallons a year, the bond costs $100.

To compute the cost for a larger capacity, Stewart said the applicant should multiply $21 by the estimated 15-day production.

Stewart said that new legislation, if passed, will do away with the distiller's bond for small-scale producers.

Among others testifying was Texas Railroad Commissioner Jim Nugent, who urged Texans to find a feasible fuel source through gasohol to preserve Texas natural resources.

He again criticized the federal government and what he calls a Northeastern power bloc for trying to "rig the game" to get Texas natural gas for less than fair market value. This claim has been a major point in Nugent's campaign to seek a full term on the railroad commission.

Alaska Solons Mull Trial Marriages

JUNEAU (AP) — Alaska would be the first state to permit renewable trial marriages under a bill introduced Tuesday in the legislature.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Mike Beirne, R-Anchorage, would allow couples to get married for a specific period agreed on by the man and woman in advance.

The "marriage contract" would automatically expire when the period is up unless both members agree to renew the pact.

"If married people don't want to renew their vows, then they shouldn't be married," said Beirne.

Beirne said he introduced the measure in recognition of the many unmarried Alaskans living together because they feel traditional marriage does not meet their needs.

"This would increase the options available to the people," Beirne said.

Prior to tying the knot, couples would be required to write an agreement outlining the disposition of assets.

Aid To Pakistan By Arabs Urged

RIYADH, Saudi Arabia (UPI) — National security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski proposed Tuesday that Arab nations lend financial assistance to Pakistan to help counter the threat posed by Soviet troops in Afghanistan, Western diplomatic sources said.

The proposal, made during two days of talks with Saudi leaders, was a new tack by Brzezinski in the face of Arab resistance to President Carter's concept of an American security umbrella for the Middle East, the sources said.

Brzezinski flew to Riyadh Monday from Pakistan and left Saudi Arabia Tuesday for the United States.

The Washington Post, in a report from Riyadh, said an Iranian jet fighter buzzed the U.S. Air Force 807 carrying Brzezinski and his party as the plane flew over the Gulf of Oman.

anyone wanted to offer a prayer and a girl rose from her desk and recited what the teacher described as "more of a poem than a prayer."

In the past decade, Leyden and other schools had observed a "minute of silence" each morning, as ordered by the legislature.

William Longridge, superintendent of the Beverly school system north of Boston, said he hoped for a quick constitutional test and ordered his teachers to ignore the law.

"The law raises some serious constitutional questions," Longridge said. "And it has been butchered in the legislature so much that it is now unworkable."

"You can imagine what would happen when you ask for a 5-year-old to say prayers. In junior high school, the law would be a farce and in senior high school, you get some real problems with students identifying with either the group that left (the classroom, not wanting to pray) or the group that stayed."

The Newton school committee formally voted to delay implementation of the law until its constitutionality has been tested in court.

In Boston, headmasters at some high schools avoided the law. At Boston English High, students were sent to class without the usual homeroom session — where prayers would be said.

Silent meditation substituted for spoken prayer in some high schools.

Some school administrators said it wouldn't be feasible to allow students in the corridors while others prayed in class.

The state Education Department was on record as demanding that schools comply with the law, although the agency's officials — including Commissioner Gregory Anrig — opposed the measure when it was being debated in the legislature.

Revived School Prayer Due Test

BOSTON (AP) — Students prayed out loud in some Massachusetts schools for the first time in eight years Tuesday, but the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts vowed to take the issue back to the courts.

A new state law that took effect Tuesday allows teachers to ask for student that the law be suspended and eventually ruled illegal.

Students led prayers in the rural hamlet of Leyden, in western Massachusetts, where voluntary prayer was specifically prohibited by a 1972 court order.

At 8:45 a.m., Pearl Rhodes asked her students at Leyden Elementary School if

Some Inmates Credited With Aiding Guards

SANTA FE (AP) — While more bodies were hunted in the still smoldering ruins of the New Mexico State Penitentiary, a state official said Tuesday many of the prisoners risked their lives to save hostages from the atrocities inflicted on some inmates.

Furthermore, Felix Rodriguez, deputy secretary of criminal justice, said many of the convicts trapped in the weekend rioting should not have been there in the first place.

After revising the death count several times, officials said Tuesday at least 36 inmates died — some of overdoes of drugs — in the 36-hour reign of terror, the most savage prison riot of modern times in this country.

Inmates said a convict execution squad armed with blowtorches and axes killed some prisoners in a cellblock that held men identified as informants before state police and National Guardsmen moved in Sunday afternoon.

The murders, torture and mutilations ended when state police and National Guardsmen moved in Sunday afternoon.

Dr. James Weston, state medical examiner, said some of the bodies examined by his staff had been mutilated, but he could not determine scientifically whether inmates had been tortured.

He confirmed that one inmate had been decapitated and that another arrived with a rod through his head. He said he thought both incidents occurred after death.

AT&T Posts $5.67 Billion In Earnings For Record Annual Profit

NEW YORK (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. said Tuesday it earned a record $5.67 billion in 1979, the largest annual profit ever reported by a company.

The telephone company — the biggest corporation in the world based on assets of more than $100 billion — said earnings rose 7.6 percent from the $5.27 billion it reported for 1978.

At the same time, an AT&T subsidiary sold a new bond issue with a record 12.7 percent yield to investors.

No other AAA-rated Bell system issue had ever yielded more than 11.47 percent. The high cost to the company reflected the rapid rise in long-term interest rates this year.

AT&T Chairman Charles L. Brown said revenues increased at a slower rate than expenses in 1979. He again called for Congressional action to redefine the competitive boundaries of the nation's communications industries.

AT&T, which once had a monopoly on nationwide long-distance service, has seen several companies make limited entries into that field. The telephone company also faces competition in the sale of telephones and other equipment to its customers.

The Turks surrendered Jerusalem to the British in 1917, during World War I.

year by any company other than AT&T was the $4.3 billion earned by Exxon last year on revenues of $84.4 billion.

Bond issues by AT&T subsidiaries are closely watched because the company comes to the market frequently with issues generally rated triple-A — the safest rating.

The new record yield was set on $175 million of bonds issued by Ohio Bell Telephone Co. They mature in 40 years and have a face coupon of 12 1/2 percent. Underwriters said the securities were offered to the public at a price of 99.414 to yield 12.7 percent. That means a $1,000 bond will cost $994.14.

The old record for a Bell issue was set Jan. 14 by Southwestern Bell. Since then, interest rates on long-term bonds have risen sharply. Short-term interest rates have risen by a smaller amount and remain below the records set last October and November.

The new Bell issue was won by a syndicate of underwriters led by Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc., Goldman, Sachs & Co., E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc., Kidder, Peabody & Co. Inc., Lehman Brothers, Kuhn Loeb Inc., Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. Inc., Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., and Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. The cost to the company will be 12.81 percent, with the difference representing the underwriting fee.

AT&T said its profit report reflected the likelihood that a California Public Utilities Commission order will be implemented and that Pacific Telephone, an AT&T subsidiary, will lose federal tax benefits as a result.

As a result, income applicable to common shares was reduced by $96.99 million, or 14 cents a share, in 1979 and by $72.33 million, or 11 cents a share, in 1978.

CAREERS

By JOYCE LAIN KENNEDY

Dear Joyce: I am interested in preservation of the environment but not in wildlife management or pollution. Who restores landmarks and other old buildings?

—J.M.M., Philadelphia, Pa.

Historic preservation is a small field that once focused on historians and architects: now it requires specialists in many areas — law, landscape architecture, planning administration, real estate and anthropology. Generalists who know how to tap public and private support money also are employed.

If you'd like a list of college and university degree programs from the National Trust for Historic Preservation, enclose a stamped self-addressed, long white envelope with your request to me. Ask for "Preservation and Higher Education." The offer ends April 1, 1980.

Dear Joyce: Is welding a good career to get into?

—T.K., San Antonio

Yes, welders can earn good pay and their services are in demand. By 1990, the Labor Department expects their numbers to have increased by one-third. 35,000 job openings are expected each year on the average throughout the decade.

"Consider a Career in Welding" is an eight-page booklet from the American Welding Society. The pay figures in it are out-of-date, but there's a good overview of the occupation. To receive a single copy, send your postcard request to me. Ask for "Welder." The offer ends April 1, 1980.

Dear Joyce: I would like to know about a job selling for several companies where I could be my own boss.

—M.J., Memphis, Tenn.

Manufacturers' agents represent two or more manufacturers on a commission basis. While the work can provide an excellent livelihood, it is not a practical choice for new graduates — you have to know how to sell, be able to run a business and be prepared to wait several years to operate in the black.

A career packet is available from the Manufacturers' Agents National Association, which includes a career booklet and a copy of the organization's magazine. To obtain, enclose a gummed, self-addressed mailing label with your request to me. Ask for "Mfg. Agents." The offer ends May 1, 1980.

Dear Joyce: What are job prospects like for tool-and-die makers? Where's the best place to look for a job?

—A.L., Montgomery, Ala.

The National Tool Die and Precision Machining Association says there is a chronic shortage of tool-and-die makers. The organization is trying to boost their numbers through pre-apprenticeship and pre-employment training programs, which have been offered since 1964. The programs have a dazzling 100 percent placement rate for those who finish them. The public Job Service, listed in the state government section of phone directories, can give you more information about the programs.

READER NOTE: Send requests for booklets described in today's column to Joyce Lain Kennedy, Box 1812, Rockville, Md. 20850.

Investors Often Find Tax Laws Complex

(Eighth In A Series)
 By RAY DeCRANE

It's a hard way to reduce your income tax, but if you had some investments that went sour last year and resulted in actual losses, you can claim the loss on your tax return.

A simple rule of thumb for stock market investments is that 100 percent of short-term gains are taxable and 100 percent of short-term losses are deductible. Where transactions are long-term, 50 percent of the loss is deductible, but only 40 percent of the gain is taxable.

A transaction is short-term when the sale is made within a year or less from the date of purchase. To qualify for a long-term transaction, the security must have been held for longer than a year before being sold. A year and a day is sufficient time to meet the holding requirement.

From the aforementioned rules, it is easy to see why tax-conscious investors attempt to make their losses short-term and their gains long-term. But even this would be an oversimplification of the tax rules.

When a variety of transactions have been made within the year, they must be separated into short-term and long-term transactions. Separate accountings are made within each group.

First, short-term gains are offset against short-term losses, finally arriving at a net gain or loss position within the group.

The same procedure is followed with long-term transactions, ultimately arriving at either a gain or loss position within the group.

Now it is time to combine the short-term position with the long-term position.

If there are gains in each category, 40 percent of the long-term gains are added to the total short-term gains. The full amount is then taxable.

Should there be losses in each group, 100 percent of the short-term loss, to a limit of $3,000, is deducted from ordinary income. If there is more than $3,000 in short-term losses in one year, the excess beyond the $3,000 is carried forward to future years until it is all exhausted.

When there are net long-term losses, they are worth only 50 cents on the dollar in offsetting ordinary income. It takes $2 in long-term losses to cancel out $1 in regular income.

With the $3,000 loss limitation also applying to long-term losses, once $6,000 in long-term losses is applied at the 50 percent reduction to ordinary income, any losses remaining beyond the $6,000 are carried forward to next year.

Tomas Garza Makes Bid For City Council Seat

Local attorney Tomas Garza Monday became the first candidate to announce his plans to run for the Place 2 seat on the city council.

The Place 2 post currently is held by Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan, who already has filed as a candidate for state representative in District 75-A.

Garza, a Mexican-American, formerly served as an attorney in the recent suit contesting Lubbock's at-large method of electing city council members. In that suit, which is currently under appeal, minority plaintiffs claimed that Mexican-American and black candidates have not had a chance to be elected to the council.

At a news conference, Garza acknowledged that no minority candidate had ever been elected to the city council here, but said that his chances are good to win the post. Garza said he has "faith" in the citizens of Lubbock that they will look at a candidate's qualifications rather than just his race.

Garza said that Lubbock will face its share of problems in the future and that members of the council must be prepared to foresee any problems and properly resolve them for the benefit of all citizens.

"Such future planning will require our city council to be broad-minded, flexible, willing to listen to experts and aggressive as well as innovative and creative," Garza said.

The attorney noted that Lubbock's population is made up of many different people, including Texas Tech students, Mexican-Americans, blacks, the elderly, property owners and businessmen.

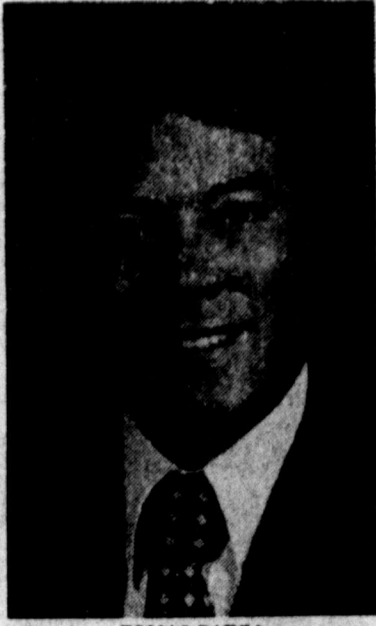

"The ability of our city councilmen or women to deal with all the people of the City of Lubbock will depend on their knowledge of these people and their circumstances," Garza said.

According to Garza, he has spent the past several years working for the betterment of the city and its people. He noted that he has served on the boards for Guadalupe-Parkway neighborhood centers, public responsibility committee for the Lubbock Mental Health-Mental Retardation Board and the Community Services Commission and Permits and Licenses Appeals Board for the city.

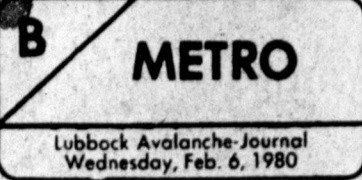

"Now I wish to serve the City of Lubbock in a larger and more meaningful manner, that is as a city councilman," Garza said.

The 35-year-old Garza is married and has two children.

Sex Discrimination Fact-Finding Talks Aborted By EEOC

DENVER CITY (Special) — Two fact-finding conferences, scheduled by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission of El Paso on discrimination cases filed against the Denver City Police Department, have been cancelled.

City officials here learned that the conferences concerning Carol Metts and Joyce Gist and their sex discrimination charges against the police department, originally scheduled for today at the Yoakum County Courthouse in Plains, would not be held.

In the notification from the EEOC, no reason was given for the cancellations, but the letter stated that the "commission would notify each party when scheduling for fact-finding has been made."

Mrs. Gist and Miss Metts are former employees of the police department.

Mrs. Gist's charge stems from her dismissal from the police department on Nov. 5, 1979 and another charge concerns her removal from a newly created sergeant's position on the force.

Miss Metts charge stems from her dismissal as police dispatcher.

MURDER SUSPECT ARRESTED
SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A 31-year-old man was arrested Tuesday in the death of a 68-year-old retiree who ignored frequent advice from neighbors to keep his apartment door shut. A police source said robbery may have been the motive. Police charged Alfred Gremlion with second-degree murder in the death of Charles Yentz, who lived alone. The body was found Monday evening. Yentz had been stabbed and beaten, authorities said.

'Mr. Sheep And Goat Raiser' Named Honoree For Hall Of Achievement

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A man still known as "Mr. Sheep and Goat Raiser" a dozen years after his death has been named honoree for the Sheep and Goat, Wool and Mohair Exhibit and Hall of Achievement to be dedicated Thursday in the Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement.

The late Fred Earwood of Sonora was the overwhelming choice of the industry for the honor.

In Lubbock to help honor his longtime friend will be former Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

At 5 p.m. Briscoe will cut a wool and mohair ribbon to open an exhibit and hall at The Museum of Texas Tech University where the institute is housed.

Then, at a 7 p.m. Taste of Texas dinner and style show in Lubbock Memorial Civic Center, Briscoe will pay brief tribute to Earwood for his many years of outstanding contributions to the sheep and goat industry.

Earwood, a native of Kimble County, was chosen for his tireless leadership in the industry, from the pens to the legislative halls.

"The influence of his tried and true methods continues as a living monument to a man who did not seek leadership but was so often drafted for front line duty," a 1969 tribute read in Sheep and Goat Raiser magazine.

The section dedicated to Earwood listed the heritage he had left — "improved wool and mohair, improved breeding practices, greater market demand, soil and range conservation, producer graded products, improved grading and judging standards, wider youth education and participation, world-wide market reports, better organization for governmental purposes and public education on the livestock industry."

After World War II Earwood was the only person the sheep and goat raisers would trust to evaluate Turkish wool bought by this country so Germany would not get it. Through Earwood's efforts and fleece by fleece inspection for grading, the massive purchase did not glut the market and ruin the domestic producer.

In 1970, an excerpt from the magazine article was included in the Congressional record by U.S. Rep. O. C. Fisher, terming Earwood "most unforgettable and irreplaceable" as well as the best friend the growers ever had.

His honors in the industry were many and a Fred Earwood Award is presented annually to an outstanding person in the sheep and goat industry in Texas.

His choice for the institute's new sheep and goat hall of achievement came "partly due to the quality of stock he produced... even more so due to the kind of human being he was," according to John A. Anderson, executive director of the institute.

Tickets for the Taste of Texas Dinner may be obtained from Sears and Hemphill Wells in South Plains Mall as well as from Anderson at (806) 747-1643.

Grand opening ceremonies at the institute are free of charge. Tickets to the dinner and style show will not be available at the door.

LAST MINUTE DETAIL—John Anderson, executive director of the Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement, assembles a "two drop, hot bolt sheep shearing machine" powered by kerosene. Heartline

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions and solve problems. If you have a question or a problem not answered in these columns, write Heartline, 114 E. Dayton St., West Alexandria, Ohio 45221. You will receive a prompt reply, but you must include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. The most useful replies will be printed in this column.

HEARTLINE: I am going to apply soon for Social Security disability benefits. A friend told me that there are several requirements that anyone filing for disability benefits must meet first. Can you tell me what these requirements are? — M.M.

ANSWER: There are four basic requirements which must be met to be eligible to draw Social Security disability benefits:

1. You must be fully insured under Social Security. This means that you must already have earned the necessary number of quarters for regular retirement. You can check with your Social Security office to see if you have earned the necessary number of quarters.

2. You must have at least 20 quarters of covered earnings under Social Security in 40 consecutive calendar quarters ending in the quarter in which your disability began. In other words, you must have worked five years of the 10-year period immediately preceding your disability.

3. You must have supporting objective medical evidence showing that your disability will prevent you from doing any substantial, gainful work.

4. Your disability must be expected to last (or has lasted) for at least one full year or be expected to result in death.

HEARTLINE: I noticed in your column last week that you mentioned that the Department of HEW had launched a campaign to encourage people who are facing surgery of a non-emergency type to get a second medical opinion. I will be facing such a surgery later this year and wondered if there was any printed material on the subject available or any other type of information about this campaign. I have not at this time gotten a second opinion, but I am considering it. — H.W.

ANSWER: The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has initiated a program to encourage citizens to seek second opinions before undergoing non-emergency surgery. It is part of an effort to expand patients' knowledge about surgery and to help contain rising health care costs.

They have a pamphlet that is available to the general public on the subject of second opinion. It can be obtained free by writing Surgery, Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HCFA), Washington, DC 20201.

This program encourages citizens, particularly those who are Medicare/Medicaid beneficiaries to seek second medical opinions before undergoing non-emergency surgery. It is a part of a larger effort to expand patients' knowledge about surgery and its alternatives and to contain rising health costs. The Health Care Financing Administration launched the first phase of an information campaign to inform Medicare beneficiaries in September 1978 of the value of a second opinion and asked State Medicaid agencies to also encourage Medicaid beneficiaries to seek second opinions.

The second phase of the campaign, launched in November 1979, urges all adults to seek second opinions when faced with non-emergency surgery.

Patients who want second opinions on non-emergency surgery can ask their physicians for the name of another doctor, can select another physician on their own, or can obtain the name of another physician from county medical societies. Additionally, HEW has arranged for patients to find referral doctors — through local Social Security offices, Medicaid offices and by dialing a toll-free number, 1-800-638-6833 (in Maryland, 1-800-492-6603). All three sources will give patients the number of their nearest referral center. Operators answering the toll-free number will also furnish on request copies of a brochure explaining the second opinion program.

Republicans Enter Legislative Race

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Two Republican candidates barely beat the filing deadline late Monday to enter the previously uncontested race for state representative in District 76, which covers Hale and Swisher counties and a portion of Lubbock County.

John Kirchoff and David Howard, both of Plainview, mailed their filing papers Monday to place their names on the ballot for the May 3 Republican primary. The winner of that primary will face Democratic incumbent James E. "Pete" Laney of Hale Center.

The 29-year-old Kirchoff, who is involved in the real estate business in Plainview, said he decided to enter the legislative race at the last minute after a number of people had approached him about running. He is the Republican committeeman for the 30th Senatorial District.

Kirchoff who described Laney as "a heck of a nice guy," said it is time for a change. "And I think I can do a good job," Kirchoff added.

"I have some ideas that I would like to interject into the system," Kirchoff said, "and the only way to do that is to get into the system."

According to Kirchoff, there are very few areas in which he plans to take issue with Laney's voting record. However, he said there were some areas in which Laney failed to take a stand that concerned voters in the district. Kirchoff said he would elaborate later in the campaign.

Howard, 31, is a teacher at Ash Elementary School in Plainview. In a news release announcing his candidacy, Howard said he believes the incumbent "is tired of the office and has run for the last time."

Included in Howard's campaign platform is a promise to reduce state spending by eliminating duplicated services. He also said he would maintain the freedom of the teaching profession by defending the state's right-to-work laws.

"As state representative, I would strive to represent both the rural and urban areas of this district and respect their interdependence," Howard said.

Freight Corporation To Hold Reception

Airborne Freight Corp., which has opened an office at the Lubbock International Airport, will host a reception honoring its station manager, C. Jack Sanderson, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday at the Hilton Inn.

Airborne Freight Corp. is the second largest air freight forwarder in the world, with overnight service to or from any major city or suburb in the United States.

Airborne flies twice daily to and from Dallas and Lubbock, with connections to Midland-Odessa each day. The firm offers pick-up and service in all cities, with a special service for small express-type packages and envelopes.

Increased demand for overnight services to West Texas necessitated the move to Lubbock, according to Sanderson.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: Three months ago my wife was raped. The man was caught by the police and is now in custody, awaiting trial. Since that hideous experience my wife identifies any kind of sexual contact with rape.

I know she has gone through hell so I've been extremely patient and understanding. But I'm afraid if she continues to refuse to have sex with me much longer our marriage is finished.

We are in our early 30s, too young to rule out the physical pleasures of the marital agreement. At least, this is my opinion. What's yours? Can you help? — A Married Celibate In Arlington

Dear Friend: You know by this time that rape is the most traumatic of experiences. Yet thousands of women who have been raped do recover from the psychological damage and resume a normal sex life.

Often intensive therapy is needed — expert counseling by someone skilled in the field. I hope your wife is working with a therapist so that she can re-enter the world she knew before the nightmare. If not, she should be.

Dear Ann Landers: My girl friend showed up last night looking as if she had spent a month lolling on a beach in Hawaii. Actually, I had seen her only a week earlier, and she was as white as a lily. With great delight she told me she had been to a sun-tan parlor. "Five visits and it's a new me!" she squealed. (I admit she looked very glamorous and healthy.)

I had never heard of a sun-tan parlor and asked her to tell me about it. The price, she said, was $40 for 20 sessions. One minute in a tanning booth is equivalent to an hour in the sun. "Nothing to it," she assured me. "I undress put on protective goggles, and stand inside a booth lined with metal that reflects the rays from the fluorescent sun lamp."

Ann, please, tell me if this is 100 percent safe. — Doubting Thomas

Dear Tom: I checked with three distinguished dermatologists. They were unanimous in their condemnation of sun-tanning parlors. One said, "It's extremely risky. I'm against it." Another: "Too much exposure to the sun or ultraviolet light can cause skin cancer." The third said, "Women pay a high price for their sun tans, whether from Old Sol or a lamp. It may take 15 years or more before a lovely 'sun-kissed' face suddenly looks like a catcher's mitt. But eventually it will happen."

Dear Ann Landers: My problem might not seem important at first glance, but it means a lot to me. The question: Should I carpet my front stairway?

I have been told carpeting on stairs may be hazardous — that women can catch their heels on the edges, and we would be financially liable. Do you know of any statistics on this? Please help us decide. Your word will be final. — Des Moines

Dear D.M.: Logic tells me that smooth carpeting (not the shaggy kind) would make a staircase safer. I would wager that more people slip on polished stairs than on carpeted ones.

CONFIDENTIAL to Explain It Please: Jonathan Swift said it best. "Good manners is the art of making people comfortable. Whoever makes the fewest people uncomfortable has the best manners."

How young is too young for a child to learn about sex? That's just one thing you'll find in Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex." For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611. Copyright 1980 Field Enterprises, Inc.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

At one time, I read a hint in your column about a method for cleaning the mesh part of a playpen.

Could you please reprint this? It's one hint that will never grow old as long as people keep having babies and keep passing equipment down to the next one. Thank you — Mrs. L. Ritola

One of the best methods we have in our files is to mix up a solution of detergent, water and household bleach.

Hold a bath towel in one hand and a sponge or medium soft bristled brush in the other.

Dip the sponge in the suds with your right hand and hold the bath towel on the other side of the mesh with your left hand.

The purpose of the towel, you see, is to keep the mesh from moving as you scrub. You can get it much cleaner this way.

Then, take the playpen outside or to a basement drain, turn it upside down and wash down the sides with a garden hose.

Another method one dear man used was to take the playpen to the car wash. According to him, the hot sudsy water and spray did a terrific job.

But be careful in doing this if the mesh is "getting old."

I'm told the mesh part of some playpens can be removed. It can then just be tossed into the washing machine along with a few towels.

Should the mesh be midwived, by chance, you will need to add bleach to the water. (Follow directions on the bottle.) In that case, make sure whatever you wash with the mesh, such as a few towels, is completely colorfast.

So, take your pick, gals, as to the method you would like to use to get those playpens looking great. You'll save a bundle in the process. At any rate, thank goodness for "hand-me-downs!" — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Before using an onion, put it in the freezer for five minutes or so. Yesterday, I grated a large onion, using the side of the grater with the smallest holes and I never shed a tear! — Katherine Forbes

Just don't forget and leave it in the freezer too long or you'll have mush when it thaws.

Did you know that if you keep onions in the fridge, you also won't cry when using them. Keeping them cold seems to help. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Should the lock on your car door, etc., become difficult to turn and you decide to oil it, or the key, don't!

As a locksmith's wife, I know that oil collects dust, gets thick and sticky and

Local Program Needs Foster Parents

Child abuse and neglect may well be the saddest and most dangerous of the social ills facing our community today.

Child abuse is a cycle — abused children are very likely to become abusive parents; abusive parents usually wre abused children. The cycle not only keeps child abuse going, it causes it to grow and multiply with each successive generation. Somehow, we must break this cycle.

Each month, children in this community must be removed from their homes to prevent their being abused or neglected. If there are not foster homes in which to place these children, not only does the abuse continue, but the cycle continues.

The foster care program of the Texas Department of Human Resources (TDHR) is dealing with both phases of the problem. By placing children temporarily in foster homes, the agency shoulders its immediate responsibility of protecting the children. By removing the child from an abusing situation and working with the family, the agency works in a preventative capacity, attempting to stop the child abuse cycle.

But it's not just TDHR's responsibility. It's the responsibility of the community and us as individuals. We can't turn our backs on the problem. We can't leave it to someone else.

Right now, there are not enough foster homes in this area to meet the needs of abused and neglected children. More foster homes are desperately needed. You can help. You can open up your home and your heart to a child. You can become a foster parent. Do it for the kids.

And for a clearer picture, here are some facts about foster homes:

— The Texas Department of Human Resources (TDHR) has, by law, the responsibility and the authority to remove children from their homes when life-endangering situations exist. When it's necessary to do so, these children are generally placed temporarily with families within the community while TDHR works to resolve the problems that led to abuse and/or neglect, so that the children may eventually return to their homes.

— There were 2,000 valid cases of child abuse and neglect in Lubbock County in 1979.

— In 1979, 210 children were placed in foster homes in Lubbock County.

— There are currently 44 foster homes in the Lubbock area. At least 20 more homes are urgently needed.

— All potential foster parents are carefully screened by TDHR workers to ensure that all the care, attention and love a child needs will be provided.

— Foster parents receive at least 15 hours of formal training each year, and other counseling and help from TDHR.

— Foster parents may specify the age, sex and race of children they will care for.

— Foster parents must meet specific fire, health and safety requirements.

— Foster parents are compensated at a rate of $6 per day for children nine years old and less, and $7 per day for children 10 to 17-years-old. Medicaid covers medical and dental expenses.

— Foster care placement may be for as short a time as two or three days, or for as long as six months.

Six volunteers will be awarded special recognition for outstanding service. The Auxiliary ended the year with 251 adult members and 39 junior volunteers working a total of 25,374 hours. In addition, 25 Junior League members gave 784 volunteer hours and 40 hospital chaplains served 1,066 hours. Those auxiliary members serving the highest number of hours are: 1,000 hours: Nita Hibler, Florence Highsmith, Joy Watson and Patsy Whipple. 750 hours: Betty Bradford. 500 hours: Joy Allison, Lolita Bell, Noreen Benford, Jane Lawrence, Nell's Leathers, Mary Mills, Fran Nelson and Rayma Patterson. Julie Edwards, Ruthie Johnson, Sharon Reed and Suzanne Stephens of the Junior League each served 100 hours. Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception will be held. All family and friends of the volunteers and the general public are invited.

To keep cut flowers longer, trim stems on an angle with a knife under running water, remove all leaves that will be below the water level and place in tepid water.

By DALE SINGER
ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Margaret loves to teach.

She has taught in public schools for 10 years, has a doctorate in education and even teaches swimming during the summer.

But Margaret wants to leave her job for one in the business world because she cannot make enough money in the classroom.

Margaret — who does not want her real name used because she does not want her school district to know she is looking for other career opportunities — was one of 10 teachers in this summer's Career Alternatives for Educators workshop at St. Louis University.

Ellen Harshman, the director of career planning and placement for the university, said all the teachers in her workshop have contracts to teach in the upcoming school year. But they want jobs elsewhere, for various reasons, and many of them don't know how to start looking for one.

"Most of the problem for teachers is that they feel they don't have the right skills," said Harshman, a former fourth-grade teacher who went into counseling.

"They have the skills, but don't know how to get started. You can get technical skills, but what's going to make or break you is people skills. Most teachers have good communication and management skills — They just don't realize they have them."

The six-week course introduces the teachers to the opportunities available, the work or educational background they will need and the job-finding techniques they can use.

Harshman left elementary education because she was tired of a career that was so child-centered. For Margaret, who is unmarried and living with her family at age 32, money was the deciding factor.

"When you've taught 10 years and you are unable to buy a home, that says something," she said. "It doesn't say I'm a bad money manager. I really think I manage my money well."

"I love teaching. That's not the problem. In fact, when I look for another job, it will be something dealing with people. It will be some form of teaching, just within the business world."

Harshman started the course when many teachers attended her other job-oriented workshops. The problem usually is not unemployment but disenchantment.

"They're tired," she said. "They're burned-out. Maybe they weren't really happy to begin with. I had a young woman who described teaching as using her up. She was giving all the time, and that was OK. But she wanted more out of a career."

Harshman said after some teachers look at what the business world has to offer, they look more favorably on education as a career. Salaries may be lower, but they are paid on a nine-month basis, she said, and teachers may have more freedom to use their time the way they wish.

"I think some teachers are beginning to think they are supposed to be dissatisfied," she said. "They get the feeling that if they like teaching, they're not typical."

The job market in education has fluctuated greatly in recent years. There are problems now in the distribution of teachers, Harshman said, but a real shortage in numbers could develop soon.

But for teachers who are unhappy in their current job, there are a lot of opportunities available. The workshop helps them find the right approach and the right attitude.

"Some people have come in so concerned with their liabilities, they didn't concentrate on what they can do. You have to get them thinking so they can look positively at themselves."

"I had one woman who came in saying, 'All right, I know businesses are looking for women — here I am. Which big company should I call?' They have to be more realistic than that. To get some real skills. Everybody wants you when you have skills."

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: I complained to my doctor about eye irritation and he said I had conjunctivitis. He asked at the time if I had any body pains. I didn't, but six months later I do. I made another appointment and told him about the pains and he said I had Reiter's syndrome. Exactly what is this? — Mr. E.T.

Reiter's syndrome is a strange assortment of problems, four usually. Not all four have to be present for Reiter's diagnosis to be made. They are arthritis, conjunctivitis, inflammation of the urethra

(the urinary outlet) and skin rashes. You had two signs. Others may follow.

Why the problems occur together is not known, but they do frequently enough for doctors to distinguish them with the name "syndrome."

Many patients with Reiter's syndrome have another factor in common — a certain characteristic of their white blood cells. This can be determined by special laboratory tests. If present, it is further convincing evidence of Reiter's syndrome.

The arthritis is treated with the usual anti-inflammation drugs. Often, the conductivitis needs no treatment, but if the iris of the eye is involved, then steroids have to be used. The rash usually clears up on its own.

The urethra matter is watched for. If there is inflammation there, it can be treated with tetracycline. Your doctor has probably already alerted you to the possibility of urethral inflammation.

The outlook for Reiter's syndrome is usually excellent.

the small structure on top of the testicles. This may cause mild pain. Such pain usually subsides in short order.

Occasionally, a small mass of sperm may form, called a sperm granuloma. This may cause pain and have to be removed. As in any operation, an infection may occur.

Vasectomy is a safe procedure. Potency is not affected and production of male hormones is not altered.

You can lose weight if you really want to! The booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and without gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

South's goose was cooked to a turn. He had to cash three diamonds right away and had no squeeze.

Now see what would have happened if East hadn't led that diamond. South would have cashed all spades and the last high club. East would have been forced to unguard diamonds or hearts and the slam would make.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

It's hard to remember when my husband and I became "hard to buy for."

One day we were getting underwear and books and the next we were getting cats in tennis shoes, little monkeys that danced themselves off the table, and a kangaroo with string coming out of his navel.

There doesn't seem to be an end to all the cleverness. We have fought through tissue only to find a best-selling book printed on toilet paper, an Elvis statue that revolves and plays "Love Me Tender," and a swizzle stick of a girl who, when submerged in a drink, loses her outer layer of clothes.

The first time one of my children bought me a whale pillow with varying sizes of fish down his throat that you could pull out until you got to Jonah, he said, "You don't have one, do you?"

I assured him I didn't.

Then he said, "I wanted to get you something you wouldn't buy for yourself."

I assured him I wouldn't.

He took that as a sign of enthusiasm and ever since then I have received nothing from him that has not lived in the sea.

There are octopus finger puppets, ashtrays made of shells (we don't smoke), coral toothbrush holders, and a shark's mouth with a hook in it that holds your car keys.

A walk through our house is like a trip to the zoo. Animals tend to drift in and out of public favor. We've gone from adorable alligators (who crack nuts) to cute bears, to performing monkeys, to winsome unicorns, to regal reindeer, to lovable mice, to grinning cats. This year it was pigs.

We have wooden pig cutting boards, ceramic pigs that hold salt and pepper, pigs in groups that play instruments, glass pigs shaped like pitchers, pigs shaped like pencils, pigs that hold cookies and grow plants, and corn husk pigs that have a Christmas wreath around their necks — not to mention painted pigs that hold hands around the shower curtain.

My husband and I have discussed this. We don't know when we appeared to our children to have everything in this world — except something to dust. One theory is they figured we're too old to be anything but spectators. Another is in the few precious years left, we should lose our practicality and play it for laughs.

My birthday is in two weeks. I NEED a black evening handbag.

It'll be shaped like a pig.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My granddaughter brought her five-month-old daughter home for the family to see for the first time. The baby is fine and healthy, but her ears protrude. One is worse than the other.

I am very distressed and feel something can and should be done. The family seems oblivious to the whole thing and I don't want to mention it. — Mrs. W.G.

Ears protrude usually because of a lack of natural support from the underlying cartilage. Plastic surgery can correct this, but it is best to delay until the ear has had sufficient time to develop. What appears prominent in a five-month old may not be so prominent in a five-year-old. Age five is soon enough to discuss this. If you have noticed this it is a good bet that the child's parents have also. Let them handle it. Female hair styles usually camouflage such harmless defects.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Are there any side effects from a vasectomy? I have heard some stories. Please clear the matter up for me. — N.C.

The complications from a vasectomy (severing or tying off of the male sperm delivery tubes) are few and usually minor. There may be some discomfort for a few days after the operation. Some men may have congestion of the epididymis.

Railroad Panel Head Opens Campaign

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Texas Railroad Commission Chairman John Poerner opened his re-election campaign Tuesday with a swing through West Texas, hurling charges that his Democratic primary opponent, State Rep. Buddy Temple of Diboll, would have "built-in and inescapable" conflicts of interest, if elected.

Poerner, 47, a 1978 appointee to the commission who was elected to serve out the remainder of an unexpired term later that year, criticized Temple for his interests in Temple-Eastex Corp. in a 9 a.m. news conference at the Hilton Inn.

T.I.M.E.-DC's Revenues Climb Six Percent Higher

Hugh C. Shurtleff, president of T.I.M.E.-DC Inc., has announced that revenues for 1979 were $188,086,000, an increase of six percent over the $177,074,000 for 1978.

Net earnings were $1,701,000, equal to 45 cents per share after a deduction of preferred dividends of $532,000. Earnings for 1978 were $4,044,000, or $1.21 per share, after assuming full conversion of the convertible preferred stock.

Fourth quarter revenues were $47,686,000, which represented an increase of five percent over the $45,430,000 reported for the same period in 1978.

Net earnings for the quarter were $459,000, compared to $936,000 for the same quarter in 1978.

Earnings in 1979 were adversely affected because of the business slowdown and resultant reduction in truck tonnage, according to Shurtleff.

In addition, the 10-day teamsters' strike and industry defensive shut-down of operations which occurred at the beginning of the second quarter had a significant adverse effect on earnings.

Gains on sales of property and equipment were less for the year 1979 than for the year 1978. The gains after tax effect were $252,000 for 1979, compared to $1,067,000 in 1978. Gains after tax effect were $56,000 for the fourth quarter of 1979 and a loss of $20,000 in the 1978 quarter.

interests from those of the Railroad Commission," Poerner, an attorney and former state representative from Hondo, said. "The use of regulated motor carriers, trains, production of oil and gas on millions of acres of timberland and setting a price on natural gas in the areas of their manufacturing are just a few."

Temple, 37, is board chairman of Exter Investment Co., which has bank and real estate holdings throughout the state, and is on the boards of nine other companies and financial institutions, including Temple-Eastex, a Time-Life subsidiary that has timber, wood processing, mortgage lending and manufacturing operations over the state.

Temple — Arthur "Buddy" Temple III — is the son of Time Inc. board vice chairman Arthur Temple Jr.

Poerner said today that he supported a bill pushed by Temple in the past legislative session to change the name of the Railroad Commission, but since has changed his mind.

The unsuccessful bill would change its name to the Texas Commission on Energy and Transportation, but Poerner said the agency "will again have a role in the railroad industry" in coming years.

As part of his platform, Poerner is proposing "bullet train" passenger service between Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio and Houston.

Referring to the increasing costs of operating motor vehicles, he said, "I think we need the railroads more today than when we gave them land to lay tracks across Texas."

Poerner said Railroad Commission relations with the federal Department of Energy have improved greatly since the replacement of James Schlesinger by Texan Charles Duncan as secretary.

He said the commission should encourage the development of more energy sources, including the vast coal reserves in the state, adding, "The only way we're going to survive as a nation is to use all the sources of energy available to us to free ourselves from the shackles of foreign oil."

Poerner will serve a full six-year term on the three-man commission if he is re-elected.

He was appointed to replace the retiring Jim Langdon, and he defeated former commissioner Jerry Sadler in a run-off election.

He was named chairman last year.

What Does It Take?

COLLEGE BASKETBALL COACHES whose teams make it over the magic 20-win mark during a single season are a lot like new armed services recruits — neither has to worry about job security for the next few years.

Yes, job security is the least of a successful college cage coach's worries. A 20-win season usually brings contract extension, pay raise, post-season honors and legend status. To the victor belongs the spoils.

As with everything in this crazy world of sports, there is always an exception to the rule. The exception to the reward-follows-success rule in coaching? — Texas Tech women's basketball coach Gay Benson.

Mrs. Benson's Red Raiders were thwarted in the attempt to nail down their 20th win of the 1979-80 season Monday night against Texas A&M. The Aggies turned back the Raiders 66-64. The Tech women are now 19-7, ranked third in Texas among AIAW Division I schools and appear to be one of two schools with any chance of challenging the University of Texas women for a berth in the national AIAW tournament. That 20th victory is inevitable, though.

How has Mrs. Benson been rewarded for her team's outstanding performance this season? She was fired, banished from Tech. For reasons that remain unknown and may never be divulged, Mrs. Benson was more or less notified in early December that her contract would not be renewed following the end of the 1979-80 season.

MRS. BENSON WAS JUSTIFIED in her shock at the decision. Her players expressed dismay and anger when the rumors were officially confirmed.

It is interesting to note the adversity under which Mrs. Benson and her team members have had to perform. It is even more noteworthy to consider the almost perfect success the Red Raiders have achieved since the bombshell was dropped six weeks ago.

When Mrs. Benson's dismissal was made official Dec. 19, the Red Raiders were 8-5. At the time, the young Tech cagers vowed to win the remainder of their contests as a vote of confidence for their fallen leader. That vow has almost completely been upheld.

The Red Raiders have won 12 of 14 games since that day. The two losses came on the road to Oklahoma State in mid-January and Monday night to A&M. Anyway, 12-2 is nothing to sneer at. It would have been different if the Raiders had pulled up 5-9.

And those accusations that Mrs. Benson caused dissension on the club with her coaching methods have proven to be false. The team is as closely knit as any you'd wish to see. These women know the meaning of team effort.

Another point, Mrs. Benson, who has been coaching the Tech women for three seasons, has one of the youngest major college teams in the nation. Three of the Tech starting five — center Pam Stone, guard Vicki Lee and forward Gwen McCray — are freshmen! Another starter, forward Lynn Webb, is a sophomore. This group of youngsters has enjoyed more success already than many college basketball players will ever know, yet they are a team of the future.

IF MRS. BENSON DOES in fact take another coaching job next season, misses Stone, Lee and Webb have indicated they will follow. The attitude of the team since the firing has been, "Wherever she (Mrs. Benson) goes, we'll follow." The words are more than just a threat.

Although there have been no new developments since Mrs. Benson was fired, the matter has not totally been forgotten. The Tech Board of Regents meets Friday, and it has been reported that the board will review the firing, the reasons for the firing and the way the entire situation was handled.

"Yes, we are concerned," stated board chairman Robert Pfluger. "Anytime there is adverse publicity that affects Texas Tech, we are concerned."

Pfluger could not comment what action the board might take in the matter, but he made it clear he and his fellow regents are aware of the situation and that must be taken to mean the regents will at least spend some time reviewing Mrs. Benson's dismissal.

I think anyone who is familiar with the situation and the manner in which it was released to the public would agree the entire chain of events should be reviewed.

WHAT THE STRUGGLING WOMEN'S athletic department at Tech needs to understand is that they not only stand to lose a coach out of the deal, but an entire team. The players have let their intentions be known.

And it appears the women's basketball program at Tech is the most successful of any women's program. It has solid roots. Any exodus of players will not only hurt the basketball program's future, but the entire women's program at Tech. It's a consequence that maybe hasn't been fully considered.

Nineteen wins and seven losses. A record good enough to get many men's college basketball teams into post-season action. Obviously, it's not good enough to be rehired at Texas Tech.

Wallace Oozes Optimism

By RUSS PARSONS

Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
Most coaches would regard stepping into a job at a school which had won two games in two years with about the same enthusiasm they would have stepping into a den of rattlesnakes.

Not Kenneth Wallace.
Maybe it's just a habit he picked up as a 5-foot-10, 155-pound all-Southwest Conference defensive back at Texas Tech University, but Wallace is an incurable optimist.

He may need an extra large dose of positive thinking in his first year as head football coach at Dunbar High School. The Panthers have posted a 2-18 record over the past couple seasons and finished last in the District I-AAA campaign both years.

Lubbock Independent School District athletic director Pete Ragus made the announcement Tuesday that Wallace had been selected to replace Van Jefferson as the man in charge of the Panther football program. Jefferson resigned Jan. 15 after five seasons at the Dunbar helm.

The 28-year-old Wallace, who quarterbacked Estacado High School to a 1968 state championship as a junior, was named to the all-city and all-district teams both his junior and senior years.

At Texas Tech, he was a three-year letterman as a defensive back and was picked as one of the best in the conference his senior season.

Despite the fact he's been associated with the Estacado silver and blue for so long, Wallace says he still has close ties with Dunbar, his new home.

"I graduated from Estacado, but I went to Dunbar for one year and my two brothers and all of my relatives went to Dunbar," Wallace declared Tuesday afternoon.

"Shoot, at one time or another I've gone to every school in town — high school or junior high, really."

Dunbar was 5-4-1 in 1977, but suffered back-to-back 1-9 seasons in 1978 and 1979. Those records mean little to the scrappy Wallace.

"I think we can get something going right now," Wallace said. "They (Dunbar) had a lot of young kids last year who got a lot of playing time. They also had an excellent bunch of young kids in junior high this year."

"I think we can be competitive right away. We'll still be a young team, but we'll still be competitive."

Wallace contends that Dunbar's great tradition will come through.

"I look at it from this point of view — Dunbar has always been competitive," offered Wallace. "The last couple of seasons they (Dunbar) had key injuries to key people. That can really turn a program around."

"But I think if we can get the kids who live in the Dunbar district to come out, we'll have a good team. The key is in the younger people. There are some really talented young players."

And what about facing the Matadors again?

"Dunbar has always been a great opponent for Estacado," said Wallace with a smile. "That's just a real good intracity rivalry. You know, we were just about dead even going into our game with them my junior year, but ended up beating them 28-0."

"Then the next year, when we had almost our whole state championship team back, we went in there and we beat them by about 10-0, but they beat us on everything but the scoreboard."

Wallace, who has been an assistant coach at Coronado High School since 1975, begins his official coaching duties at Dunbar Monday.

DePaul Keeps Top Ranking

By The Associated Press

DePaul's Ray Meyer and Maryland's Lefty Driesell have been playing a waiting game and it's finally starting to pay off — at least in The Associated Press college basketball poll.

Meyer waited more than 37 years to reach the No. 1 spot, and now that he's there, it appears he's planning to stay for a while.

Meyer's unbeaten Blue Demons were tabbed No. 1 on all 59 ballots and collected a perfect score of 1,180 points from a national committee of sports writers and broadcasters Tuesday to easily outdistance runner-up Syracuse. The vote also marked the third consecutive week DePaul, 19-0, has been the unanimous selection of the board and fourth week overall it has been ranked No. 1.

"There's no monkey on our back anymore," Meyer said after last week's victories over Creighton and North Texas State.

It wasn't on Maryland's back either last week.

The up-and-coming Terps, No. 12 a week ago, jumped into the No. 7 spot this week with 844 points. The surprising leaders of the tough Atlantic Coast Conference posted victories over conference rivals Virginia and Duke in action last week, boosting their record to 16-3.

But it was the victory over Duke, a 101-82 blowout, that Driesell had waited for.

"I've been coaching for 25 years and this was one of the best games a team of mine has ever played," he said.

The remainder of the Top 20 is basically the same as last week, although it has been scrambled.

Syracuse, ranked fourth last week when it posted triumphs over Temple and Providence, replaced Oregon State in the No. 2 position with 1,066 points.

Louisville, ranked No. 7 for the past three weeks, leaped into the No. 3 spot with this week with 1,001 points.

It's the highest ranking the Cardinals have held this season and came just one day after their thrilling 76-71 victory over St. John's on national television.

LHS Drops Heartbreaker

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff
It was supposed to be a walkover, one of those games where head coach Joe Michalka leans back in a folding chair, eats Ju-Ju Bees and Milk Duds until his tummy aches and watches the Monterey Plainsmen roll up another big win over Lubbock High.

That's what was supposed to happen—but it didn't.
Oh, Michalka got an upset stomach, all right. But Ju-Jus weren't the reason why. Not this time.

Lubbock High, using a sagging defense that shut down big men Trav Clardy, Gary Hodges and Ian Hyslop to a total of 11 points, took the Plainsmen to an overtime period before falling 39-35. Craig Wells called it Lubbock's "best game of the season." Not too many disagree with that understatement, especially Michalka.

"You've got to give Lubbock credit, a lot of it," said Michalka. "They just played so well... real well. They caused us to lose our poise and get careless." Particularly, at the end.

Monterey, which ran its District 4-AAAA consecutive winning streak to 23 straight, held a five-point lead (31-25) with 55 ticks left on the clock. It appeared the Plainsmen had a shoe-in for their first win in second-half action. But Lubbock thought otherwise.

Oscar Lopez, the only Westerners in double figures for the night with 10 points, hit a dive-bomber to cut MHS' lead to three points (31-28). On the in-bounds play, Jeff Manley fouled Clardy, sending the usual free-throw shooting ace to the line. However, Clardy missed the front-end shot. But teammate Greg Thomason pulled down the rebound, following the miss.

Nineteen seconds later, however, Manley stole the ball from Thomason, dribbled the length of the floor and laid in an easy two points. It was 31-30 with 21 seconds remaining.

An intentional foul by Kirk Cole on Clardy with 13 seconds left sent the MHS big man to the line again. And again he hit iron instead of net on both shots.

On the battle for the rebound, Manley was fouled by Hodges. Manley, given about five minutes to dry the sweat off his palms after Michalka called a pair of timeouts, hit the first try to tie the score at 31-31, but missed the clincher.

Hyslop pulled down the rebound and started a would-be fast break. But under the bucket, Monterey failed to connect on three attempted shots, sending the game into the extra period.

"I was proud, very proud of the way we came back," said Wells. "That took a lot of pride on their (his players) part."
In the fifth period, though, Steve Wooten hit two field goals and four free shots to clinch the win for Monterey. The Westerners could counter with only two Lopez freebies and a Manley layup at the buzzer.

It was the eighth time Monterey has played an overtime game this year; the third time in conference play. The Plainsmen have now won six of the OT contests.

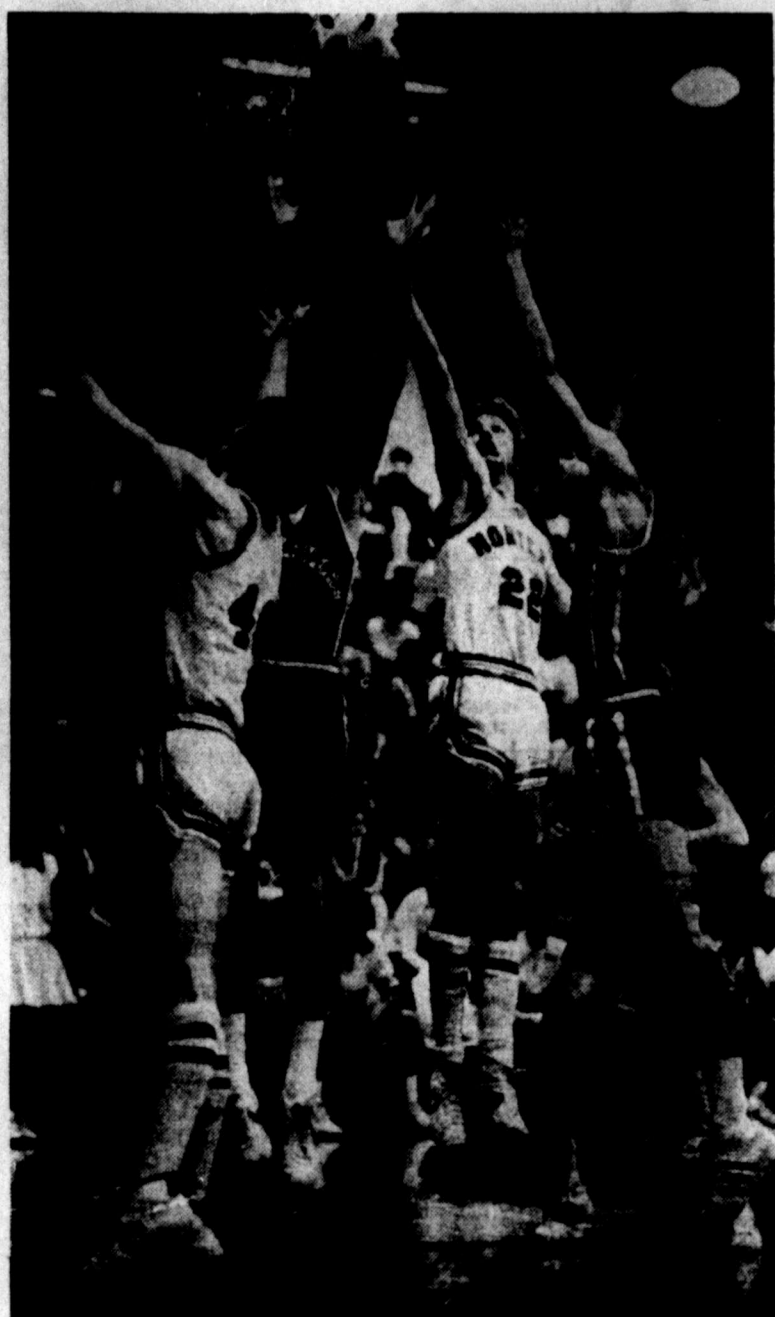

"I'm not sure that the best team tonight had the most points," noted Wells. "It's tough to play 32 minutes of good basketball against the best team in district and be denied like that. But Monterey is the class of the district. They (Monterey) knew what to do in the overtime and they did it."

Defense highlighted the early portion of the game. In the first quarter, Monterey held a 7-2 lead and at half, LHS led 13-9 after MHS scored only two points in the second period. During the third stanza, Thomason scored all 10 of MHS' points to keep the Plainsmen in the game.

"We knew we had to slow it up against them," said Wells. "That's what we wanted to do. And I thought we did it."

Dumas Takes Seesaw Contest From Matadors

DUMAS (Special) - Estacado outscored Dumas 44-36 from the field, but lost 63-57 Tuesday night in a see-saw District 1-AAA basketball game.

Dumas outshot the Matadors 27-13 from the free throw line to make up the difference. Estacado was whistled for nine more fouls than the Demons (28-19) and three Matador starters, James Barnett, Preston Davis and John Jones, fouled out.

But Estacado's real problem was the first period. The Mats trailed 11-4 at the end of it and had to hustle to keep the game close. Estacado led 22-21 at the end of the half and then trailed by only three, 39-36, at the end of the third period. Randy Davis scored 17 and Tom Butler 15 to pace the winners, now 13-9 and 1-0 in the second half of district play. Estacado, now 17-10 and 0-1, got 16 points from Davis and 12 from Barnett.

In the junior varsity game, Dumas won 63-51.

Estacado Girls Fall To Demons

DUMAS (Special) - Three girls scored in double figures as Dumas, now 23-2 on the year, defeated Estacado 72-32 in a District 1-AAA girls' game.

Sherril Hagler had 19, Tammy Taylor 16 and Trisha Fortenberry 14 as the Demons struggled to keep pace with Canyon in the district second-half chase. Dumas is now 2-1 in the second half of loop play, having lost to still undefeated Canyon.

2 in the second half and 12-11 overall with the loss. The Mats could muster only one double-figure scorer as Stephanie Peoples tallied 12.

Dumas led only 16-9 at the end of the first period, but steadily pulled away from Estacado, leading 30-18 at the half and 53-25 at the end of three.

Estacado next hosts Canyon Friday night while Dumas plays Borger and hopes for an Eagle loss.

Lady Plainsmen Rout LHS 81-22

The Monterey girls kept their District 4-AAAA leading record intact Tuesday night, beating cross-town rival Lubbock High by a score of 81-22.

The win was the Lady Plainsmen's 25th of the year against two losses and put them on top of the district race with a perfect 6-0 record.

The Ethridge sisters led the way for Monterey, as Kamie was the game's high scorer with 21 and Kriss added 14. Barbara Ragus also had 14 for the Lady Plainsmen.

There was no doubt of a winner in the opening quarter as Monterey burst out to a 28-0 lead. The Lady Plainsmen increased the lead in every quarter enroute to the 81-22 rout.

Both games were dominated from start to finish by the Eagles with the Eagle boys claiming a 60-35 win and the LCHS girls winning 62-40.

In the boys' game, LCHS jumped out to a 20-9 first quarter lead, stretched that to 33-19 at the half and cruised in for the win. Shawn Williams pumped in 22 markers to pace the LCHS romp and teammate Shawn Bowe added 16.

Ed Connors led CTK with 14 points. The Trojans finish the year with a 13-9 record while LCHS is now 20-4.

In the girls' game LCHS jumped out to a 15-0 first quarter margin and held the Trojan girls in check the rest of the way. At the half, the Lady Eagles owned a whopping 31-8 lead.

CTK scored 32 points in the second half but it was too little, too late. Brendell Baker led LCHS with 19 points and was the only Eagle player in double figures. The Lady Eagles are now 20-6.

JEFF TAYLOR
A-J Player Of The Week

Tech's Taylor Shirks Publicity

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

If Jeff Taylor could give an interview the way he plays defense or drives to the hoop, he might be the most publicized player on the Texas Tech basketball team.

But Taylor's not a talker, he's a doer. And he lets his actions on the court speak for themselves. Off the court, well, he'd just as soon let one of his teammates do the jabbering.

"Ask him about his family," said Tech assistant coach Rob Evans, "maybe he'll loosen up. Or talk about his teammates — but it's hard to get Jeffrey to talk about himself."

Neither produced overwhelming results, but a quick glance at Taylor's statistics will prove plenty. He's second in the team in scoring with a 13.1 per game average. He's also hauled down 76 rebounds and dished out 41 assists this year.

Monday, against the Aggies, Taylor led the Raiders in scoring with 13 points and held A&M's high-scoring David Britton to only six points. Against TCU Saturday, Taylor had 11 points and five rebounds.

In addition, Taylor held the Frogs' Darrell Browder to a measly two points. The Raiders won both games to stretch their Southwest Conference record to 7-4 and Taylor is The Avalanche-Journal player of the week.

But everybody always knew that Taylor could score. With his quickness and leaping ability, putting the ball in the hole just seemed a natural trait for Taylor. But this year, the Hobbs, N.M. sophomore has added another trademark.

Taylor has become a defensive standout for the Raiders.

"A guy with his kind of physical ability can be a great defensive player," Tech coach Gerald Myers said of Taylor. "You have to want to play defense though, and you have to know how to play it."

"Jeff's developed a lot of pride in his defense," added Myers. "I think he's the best defensive guard in the conference right now."

But the Tech coach isn't taking anything away from Taylor's offensive capabilities either.

"He's a great offensive player," said Myers, "and he can play on both ends of the court. I think that's the sign of a complete player."

Taylor admits that he was surprised at the way defense is emphasized at Tech.

"I knew it was important," he said quietly. "But I didn't know they would stress it like they do here. I just don't want anybody coming down and scoring a lot of points on me."

Against A&M, Taylor's defense had Britton shook up to the point where he could hit only three of 12 shots in the game and threw the ball away three times down the stretch run.

"He was trying to force it," said Taylor. "He should've been trying to go inside but he was going up in the air and throwing it away."

On the offensive end, Taylor uses his quickness and leaping ability to try and go to the bucket.

"I want to go to the basket," he admitted, "but I try and make the defense work — just try to catch them standing up."

Although he's small by basketball standards at 6-4, Taylor leads the team in blocked shots with 22 and is second in dunks with 11. He picked up his latest stuff shot against the Aggies but it wasn't one of his patented 360-degree whirlybirds.

It was just a good, old-fashioned "pull back your ears and slam it through the rim" job.

"I thought Britton was closer to me than he was," explained Taylor, "I didn't want to take any chances."

And Taylor's not taking any chances with a prediction of the Raiders' future. Thursday the Raiders will be in Houston to face the Rice Owls and Taylor says that Tech is in good shape.

"We've just got to be at our best every time we play," he said. "We've got more confidence in our defense now — we've just got to play that defense."

With Taylor taking charge, right now the Raiders are mixing just the right blend of defense and offense to be a legitimate SWC contender. But don't try talk to him about it.

LCC Chaparrals Take UTEP Doubleheader

EL PASO (Special) — Lubbock Christian College opened its 1980 baseball season with a bang Tuesday, sweeping Texas-El Paso in a doubleheader.

The Chaparrals, who were worried about their pitching, found nothing to worry about Tuesday. UTEP got only 10 hits in the afternoon.

Wrestling Card On For Tonight

A double "death match" main event will highlight tonight's wrestling card at Fair Park Coliseum, according to promoter Nick Roberts.

First, El Gran Marcus and Ricky Romero square off in a "Mexican" death match. Then, following the Romero-Marcus bout, The Lawman and Don Slaton team up to take on Killer Brooks in a "Texas" death match. According to Roberts, neither match will be stopped for any reason, there's no time limit, no count outside the ring, falls do not count, and no disqualification. The winner is the wrestler that can answer the final bell. Also, the winner of the Romero-Marcus match gets one minute in the ring with the loser following the bout without a referee.

Ali, Kenyan President Discuss Carter's Proposal

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Muhammad Ali, previously a presidential envoy who hadn't met a president, put some diplomatic power back into his trouble-prone African tour Tuesday when he conferred with President Daniel Arap Moi and top members of the Kenyan government.

Moi invited Ali to the official mansion for 20 minutes of what a U.S. spokesman labeled serious discussions. Ali is on a five-nation tour to win support for President Carter's proposal to stay away from the Moscow Olympics.

Vice President Mwai Kibaki, Foreign Minister Robert Ouko and Attorney General Charles Njonjo sat in on the talks, giving Ali a welcome bestowed on few except heads of state.

"I feel at home," Ali was reported to have told Moi. At a picture-taking session in Moi's rose garden, Ali playfully took Moi's gold-and-ivory presidential baton and raised it in a salute. Moi was surprised but smiled.

Earlier, U.S. officials had expressed doubt they would be able to arrange the session with Moi, partly because some Kenyans felt it improper for the president to meet a boxer.

Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere refused to see Ali in Dar es Salaam on Sunday.

Kenya has said it will stay away from Moscow, but Tanzania was believed likely to go.

Before meeting Moi, Ali played down his anger at President Carter over U.S.

contacts with South Africa, blaming State Department advisers who had failed to inform him about the issues.

"I am in 100 percent agreement with President Carter," Ali told reporters after meeting Kenyan sports officials.

Ali was startled Sunday when Tanzanian reporters demanded to know why Africa should stay away from the Moscow Olympics when the United States had refused to join Africa in an anti-South Africa boycott of the 1976 Mon-triel Games.

Ali said Tuesday he agreed with black Africans that the United States should break trade and other links with South Africa.

But he said he would continue his tour to protest Soviet military action in Afghanistan, and would report African complaints to Carter when he returned to Washington.

"I am not representing the wrongs, the evils that America may have done,"

Ali said. "I felt ashamed to be confronted with such facts."

Ali told his audience he believed the detention of American hostages in Iran is wrong and never would have been sanctioned by the Prophet Mohammed.

"I don't believe the Prophet Mohammed, if he were here, would say, 'Hold the hostages,'" Ali said. "I don't think the Prophet Mohammed would let his followers act so violent and crazy."

Razorbacks, Aggies Head For SWC Battle

By United Press International
The Southwest Conference race, at least the part that deals with the championship, starts over again tonight.

Arkansas and Texas A&M will spend the rest of the week trying to do their part in staying on top of the SWC chase and if they both manage to do that it will set up the climactic game of the season next Monday night.

That will be the evening that A&M calls on Arkansas with, perhaps, the league title on the line.

The Aggies' loss to Texas Tech last Monday night in Lubbock left A&M and Arkansas deadlocked with 9-1 records and left Razorbacks coach Eddie Sutton with a brighter outlook on life.

"But we just can't take anything for granted," said Sutton. "We have a tough road trip to go on and we have to take care of our own business. But now our fate is in our own hands."

The Southwest Conference has a split schedule here in the middle of the week — a somewhat unorthodox arrangement for the league.

Texas A&M will be at home Wednesday night against SMU (4-7) and Texas (6-5) will visit TCU (2-9).

On Thursday night Arkansas takes on Baylor (4-7) in Waco and Texas Tech (7-4) will visit Rice (2-8).

"We just have to get home and try to play better," said A&M coach Shelby Metcalf. "We didn't play as well against Tech as we have been playing. Tech deserved to win the game. They played better than we did."

The Houston Cougars get to rest during the middle portion of the week, which is probably just fine with Houston.

Dunbar Loses Big Man Match

CANYON (Special) — Dunbar's game with Canyon Tuesday night was highlighted by the predicted showdown between two big men.

Dunbar has been paced all year by post Stanley Whitfield while Canyon's big man is Bill Gruhikey. Both scored 18 points and both fouled out.

But Canyon had more support and took a 67-60 win in the District I-AAA showdown.

Tech as we have been playing. Tech deserved to win the game. They played better than we did."

The Panthers managed to stay close through most of the game, trailing by only four at the end of the first half and the end of the third period. But Canyon outscored the Panthers 21-18 down the stretch to take the win.

The loss drops Dunbar to 0-6 in district play, 0-1 in the second half. Overall, the Panthers are 10-15. Canyon, on the other hand, is 4-2 (1-0) and 19-9.

Panther Girls Lose To Canyon

CANYON (Special) — Teri Mayfield, Cindy Maddox and Gayla Fincher combined for 52 points as Canyon poured it on Dunbar, taking a 72-56 District I-AAA victory.

The win keeps the Eagle girls undefeated in conference play with a 3-0 mark after already having beaten first-half champion Dumas.

Dunbar falls to 1-2 and 11-14.

Miss Fincher scored 19 to lead all Canyon scorers while Miss Maddox chipped in 17 more and Miss Maddox 15.

Lisa Cavell and Dorcas Perkins scored 18 each to lead Dunbar. Cynthia Hardaway added 12.

Canyon ended any suspense the game might hold in a hurry, jumping to a 16-9 first-period lead and then expanding it steadily.

The Eagles led 35-26 at the end of the half and 59-34 by the time the fourth period rolled around.

In addition to Gruhikey's 18, Canyon's Kendall Walling and David Harbin pumped in 12 each and Mike Studer 10.

Helping out Whitfield and Dunbar were Gary Shipman (who also scored 18 points) and Barry Pillow, who tallied 10.

The Panthers managed to stay close through most of the game, trailing by only four at the end of the first half and the end of the third period. But Canyon outscored the Panthers 21-18 down the stretch to take the win.

YOUTHFUL SPIRIT — Although Tuesday's snowstorm in Waterloo, Iowa meant headaches for drivers and backaches for shovelers, it was fun for these four Waterloo youngsters on their way to school. Neophyte Newsman Cracks Security To Gain Access To Nuclear Facility

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A reporter who got himself hired as a guard at the Three Mile Island nuclear plant later gained entry through an unlocked door to the sensitive control room, his newspaper reported Tuesday in an article the plant's operators tried to suppress.

The Guide, a Harrisburg area weekly, printed copyright stories about the exploits of cub reporter Robert Kapler following a court battle in which Metropolitan Edison Co. tried to block publication.

"TMI it's a Paradise Island for the saboteur," said one headline. "I waltz in to unlocked control room of Unit 2," said another.

Kapler said he was hired as an unarmed watchman, a low-level guard who is not supposed to have access to the control room. Armed guards, who have a higher security clearance, do have such access.

Unit 2 is the facility severely damaged last March in the worst accident in the history of U.S. commercial nuclear power. Its control room is where vital reactor functions are still maintained.

The Guide published photographs by Kapler identified as the interior of the control room and an unlocked control room door, with the knob missing so that a piece of rope was used to pull it open.

The photos were taken, the Guide said, with a concealed Minox spy camera — "the kind the CIA uses."

The newspaper also detailed what it claimed was laxity in the plant security operation, which allowed Kapler to get a job as a security guard with bogus identification and apparently without having his background checked.

Sandy Polon, a spokesman for Metropolitan Edison Co., declined comment on the newspaper articles as did the contractor that supplies the company with guards, Gregg Security Co.

The stories have thrust the Guide into international attention. The 26-year-old Kapler, who had never worked for a newspaper before the Guide hired him in November, has been interviewed on national television and the newspaper has received a deluge of phone calls from around the United States and Canada.

"We had to give him a raise," said Guide editor Richard Halverson, the paper's only other full-time news staffer. Kapler's weekly pay jumped from $239 to $250.

Metropolitan Edison had sought an injunction Monday from Dauphin County Court Judge John C. Dowling, claiming the stories would hurt national security. Dowling refused, saying publication should be permitted under constitutional guarantees of a free press.

Kapler reported in his articles that the plant goes to great lengths to protect against outside threats, even carefully logging the numbers of airplanes that get too close.

But he said it "is doing little to protect vital areas from potentially hazardous inside forces — like saboteurs."

He told of making his way unchallenged to the door of the control room.

"I pull on a piece of knotted clothesline rope where a doorknob should be and step inside a room covered wall-to-wall, floor-to-ceiling, with panels of instruments," Kapler wrote.

He said he encountered two control room operators and other workers, but was not noticed until one of the operators casually looked at him.

"Howyadoin'? I say in a friendly voice. He looks away and sighs, 'Not bad,'" said the story.

Kapler said he used another man's birth certificate to get a job with Gregg Security and worked as a guard at the plant from Jan. 2 to Jan. 19.

BLINDY LAUGHS — Theodore Bundy reacts with laughter and applause, during his murder trial in Orlando, Fla., when the state's expert witness on hypnotism remarked that it would take three days to teach hypnotism to a doctor, but four days to teach a lawyer. "for obvious reasons." (AP Laserphoto)

Official Opposes Releasing Evidence In Bribery Trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti met with House leaders Tuesday and indicated his department will oppose giving evidence in the FBI's political corruption probe to congressional investigators.

Civiletti proposed the meeting with congressional leaders concerned about the FBI investigation, in which eight members of Congress have been implicated.

Following the session, the attorney general said he had told the congressmen that the Justice Department will present to the House ethics committee Wednesday "the position of the department on preserving the integrity of the investigation and ... the role of the ethics committee."

Asked three times if that meant he will refuse to turn over videotapes and other evidence implicating congressmen, Civiletti replied: "I will make no further comment."

But Justice Department officials said they traditionally have negotiated with committees to brief them on cases but have declined to turn over documents and other evidence until the criminal cases are closed.

Civiletti said Philip Heymann, assistant attorney general in charge of the department's criminal division, will present the Justice Department's position to the House Ethics Committee on Wednesday morning. The statement might be given in public.

On Monday, ethics committees of both the House and Senate met to discuss reports that members of Congress were implicated in the FBI investigation. The chairman of the Senate ethics panel informally asked Civiletti for Justice Department help with its own investigation.

The Senate panel met again Tuesday and its chairman, Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., said he hoped committee members would receive a briefing from Justice Department officials.

Before Civiletti's meeting with House members, Heflin quoted the attorney general as saying it was possible that congressional and Justice Department investigations could be conducted simultaneously.

But late in the day, Heflin said he had no word on whether the Justice Department would cooperate with an investigation by the Senate committee.

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., a member of the committee, said he hoped the lone senator implicated so far in the investigation, Harrison A. Williams Jr., would agree to appear before the panel.

"Either it can be explained or it can't," Helms said. "I would hope he would appear voluntarily."

During Tuesday's meeting, Civiletti said he described to the House leaders the processes of the FBI investigation "without identifying names or specific cases."

The meeting with congressional leaders followed by several hours Civiletti's appearance before a Senate subcommittee where he ran into criticism because of the leak that led to publication of details of the FBI investigation.

Sources have said FBI undercover men posed as aides to a wealthy Arab sheik willing to buy favors from congressmen and other public officials.

In all, some 20 public officials and 10 businessmen and lawyers have been implicated, sources say. Undercover agents paid out almost $500,000 in cash, but sources said fewer than half the officials actually took money. Some transactions were videotaped by the FBI agents.

Besides state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, sources say subjects of the FBI investigation include Williams, D-N.J., and Reps. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y.; Frank Thompson Jr., D-N.J.; Michael O. Myers, D-Pa.;

Raymond F. Lederer, D-Pa.; John W. Jenrette, D-S.C.; John P. Murtha, D-Pa., and Richard Kelly, R-Fla.

Most of them have denied any wrongdoing.

In addition, a source close to the investigation has said a ninth member of Congress may be involved in the case.

But this source, who asked not to be named, said that at this time the ninth member does not appear to be the subject of further scrutiny, unlike the seven House members and one senator whose names became public over the weekend.

A source said Tuesday that "the cases of those eight will be presented to grand juries."

Civiletti, in his appearance before a House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday, ran into criticism from senators upset about news accounts of the FBI investigation.

"Reputations have been irreparably damaged," said Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev.

Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., told Civiletti: "The basic question here is that without any presentation to a grand jury, without any indictments, this is all out here in full view. Does it not make a fair trial very difficult?"

Later, Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, D-Ill., called for an investigation of FBI procedures and charged the Justice Department with "trying to harass and entrap innocent citizens, and ... play games with the U.S. Senate."

Stevenson, a former chairman of the Senate Ethics Committee, said that in many cases "the FBI had no basis concluding that they were anything but the most upright and conscientious of public servants."

Civiletti said he shares the Senate's concern about leaks that led to revelation of the investigation and that is why he ordered an "intensive investigation" to determine the source of the news accounts.

PEOPLE PLACES THINGS

Eisenhowers Relocate

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — David and Julie Nixon Eisenhower have moved from southern California to a 100-year-old renovated carriage house in suburban Chester County.

Eisenhower, grandson of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, said Monday he and his wife, daughter of former President Richard M. Nixon, moved to be near their families.

His parents, John and Barbara Eisenhower, live in nearby Valley Forge, while Julie's parents will move to New York from Southern California on Saturday.

"We both have books to finish," David said. He's writing one about his grandfather. Julie's book is about her mother, Pat.

Patients Given Own Records

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — Most of his colleagues don't do it, nor do they approve of it. But Dr. Hugh Schade gives his 5,000 patients the only complete copy of their medical records.

As a result, he says, many of them better understand their illnesses and treatments.

Schade, at age 48, has been a family doctor for 17 years.

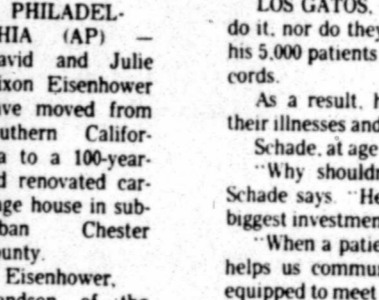

"Why shouldn't a patient keep his medical record?" Schade says. "He has the greatest need for it. He has the biggest investment in his own health."

When a patient has full access to his medical record, it helps us communicate freely. Then, the patient is better equipped to meet his responsibility to himself."

Schade keeps only a brief record in note form about each of his patients. He requires them to sign a form accepting responsibility for the records because a state law says doctors are the records' legal owners.

His patients have lost their records only a few times. In those instances, the record was easily reconstructed by asking the patient questions based on his notes, he says.

"Medical records have been known to get lost in doctors' offices, too," Schade says.

Candidacy Is Joke

RENO, Nev. (AP) — If elected, he will take bribes and other forms of graft, raise taxes, and vote for the Equal Rights Amendment "if the girls will fool around with me."

Fred Copeland Jr., a 39-year-old used car salesman who calls himself "Flaky Fred," says his candidacy is designed "to show what a joke the political system is."

He adds that he has nothing but respect for the incumbent. But, he says, "if the other idiots can run for office, so can I."

Disc Jockey Fired

BERLIN, Ohio (AP) — A disc jockey who lived in self-imposed confinement at his station for 50 days, in sympathy with the American hostages in Iran, has been fired.

Station WOBL said DJ Scott Miller, who also was program director, was fired because of unspecified "serious violations of station policy" that had nothing to do with his hostage demonstration.

Miller, 26, has not been available for comment since he packed up and left the station Monday.

Miller ended his 50-day ordeal a week ago, saying he'd continue to work on behalf of the hostages, had some speaking engagements planned, and that the proceeds from a patriotic song he wrote during the confinement would go to help the hostages and their families.

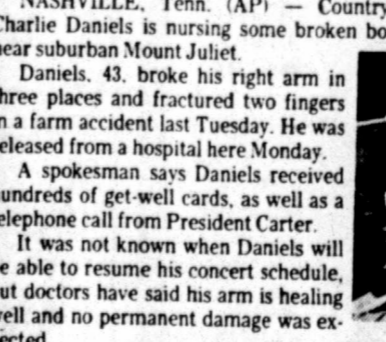

Musician's Arm Healing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Country-rock musician Charlie Daniels is nursing some broken bones at his farm near suburban Mount Juliet.

Daniels, 43, broke his right arm in three places and fractured two fingers in a farm accident last Tuesday. He was released from a hospital here Monday.

A spokesman says Daniels received hundreds of get-well cards, as well as a telephone call from President Carter.

It was not known when Daniels will be able to resume his concert schedule, but doctors have said his arm is healing well and no permanent damage was expected.

Suit May Be Resolved

DALLAS (AP) — A 2-year-old, $4.3 million libel and slander suit between country singer Jimmy Dean and his brother may come to an end Wednesday, Dean's attorney said.

The suit was filed in March 1978 by Don Dean, Jimmy's brother and former partner in Dallas-based Jimmy Dean Sausage Co., Inc. Sources said singer Dean has agreed to pay an unspecified settlement sum to his brother.

Dallas attorney Jim Cowles said a settlement was possible, but declined to be specific, saying only, "The case, in all probability, will be resolved."

Ray Besing, who represents Don Dean, also declined to discuss the case.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders has set a hearing on the matter for this morning.

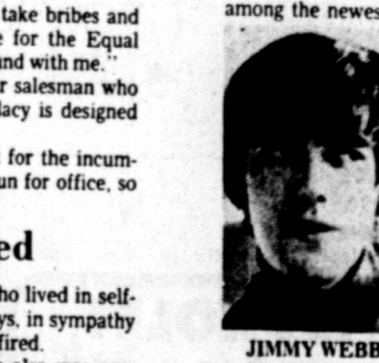

The suit grew out of comments allegedly made by Jimmy Dean during radio and newspaper interviews on a bitter family dispute over Dallas-based Jimmy Dean Meat Co. Inc.

Composer In Hall Of Fame

ELK CITY, Okla. (AP) — Composer Jimmy Webb is among the newest members of the Western Oklahoma Hall of Fame. Webb, 33, has written such songs as "By The Time I Get To Phoenix," "Wichita Lineman," "Galveston," "Up, Up and Away," and "MacArthur Park."

He was born in Elk City but has lived in a 22-room Hollywood mansion since he was 21.

Others inducted Monday Night included Walter Merrick, a Sayre rancher. He's the only person whose quarter horses have won the All America Futurity, the world's richest horse race, more than once.

Suspect Hides Above Heads

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A burglary suspect briefly went over the heads of dozens of policemen while awaiting interrogation at City Hall.

Eddie David Locke was unattended in a holding cubicle Monday and crawled into the room's false ceiling, officers said. He moved around noisily for several minutes as dozens of employees tried to guess where he'd come down.

A ladder was provided and Locke finally climbed down — to be met by a crowd that had gathered to watch. He threw up his hands and announced, "I'm the maintenance man. Boy do you have bugs up there!"

Locke was taken back into custody immediately.

Director Defends Film

NEW YORK (AP) — Director William Friedkin defended his film "Cruising" after a pre-release screening in New York. "I think that the vast majority of gay people are not against this film," Friedkin said Monday night. The movie portrays a killer preying on homosexuals.

Outside the theater, about 30 gay men and women gathered to repeat protests that started last summer during the making of the movie. They feel it distorts the way they live and could lead to violence against them.

"The film never intends to show what gay life is about," said Friedkin. "I think gay people are more in danger of the kind of totalitarianism that would want to ban the film, than anything else," he said.

In the film, Al Pacino plays an undercover policeman assigned to investigate murders in which the victims are homosexual. Friedkin said the killer is not necessarily gay and that most of the violence in the film is perpetrated by heterosexuals.

Yugoslav Official Improves

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The general health of President Josip Broz Tito is further improving following amputation of his left leg, doctors reported Tuesday. The statement was distributed by the official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug.

The 87-year-old Tito, recovering in a hospital in Ljubljana, is said to be performing some of his regular duties while undergoing rehabilitation.

Doctors removed the leg Jan. 20 after failing to relieve circulatory blockage.
