

Children Hide After Mother, Friend Stabbed

WOODLAWN, Md. (AP) — A 9-year-old boy and his 2-year-old sister hid in an upstairs bedroom for almost two days after their mother and her boyfriend were stabbed to death, police said Friday.

The woman's estranged husband surrendered to police and was charged with murder Friday in the brutal slayings at a townhouse here, Baltimore County authorities said.

One officer compared the scene to "a chapter in 'Helter Skelter,'" referring to the account of the Charles Manson cult murders in California.

The victims, Gregory A. Blount, 31, of Baltimore and Mary G. Simmons, 25, of Woodlawn, had numerous stab wounds and the home was splattered with blood from top to bottom," said Baltimore County Police Lt. Robert Frame.

Larry Barradenton Simmons, 30, of Columbia, the woman's estranged husband, surrendered to Howard County police early Friday and was held without bond.

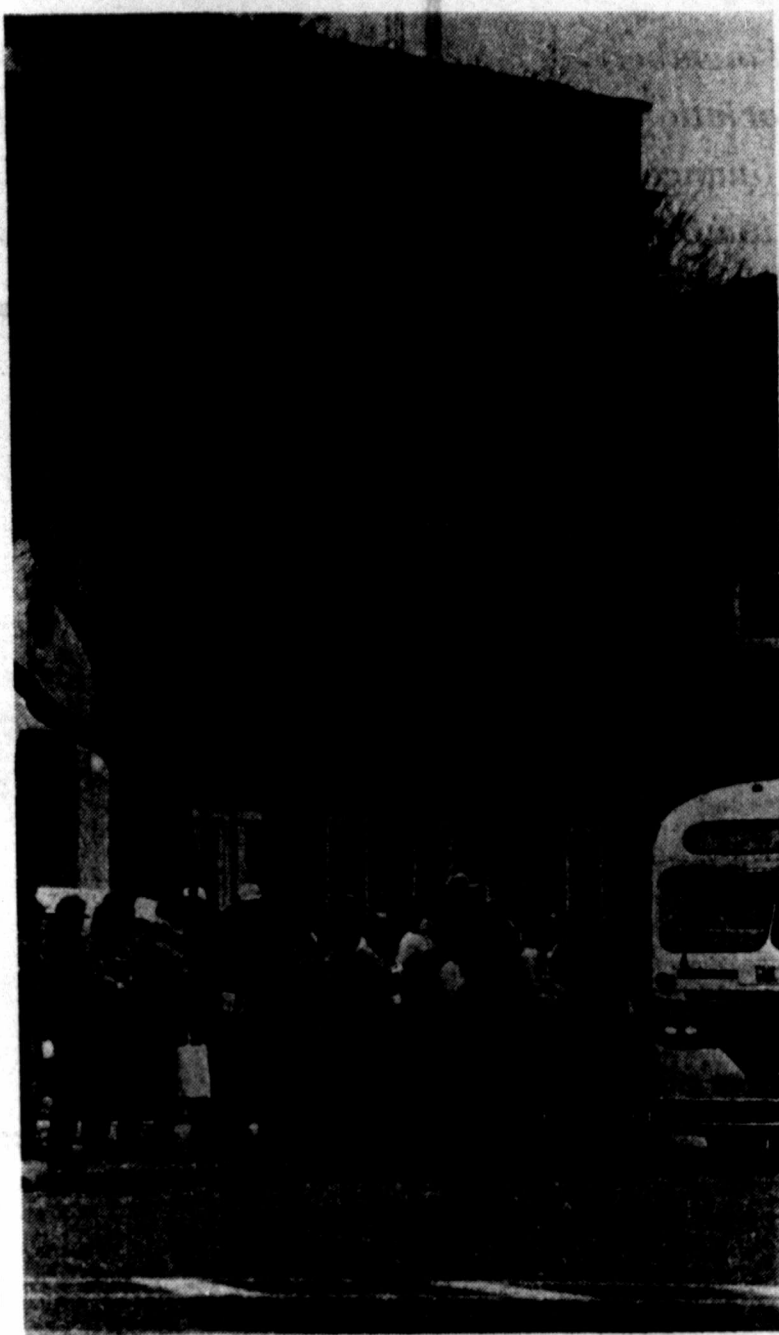

The children, "afraid by what they saw," stayed in their bedroom from early Wednesday morning until Thursday afternoon when neighbors alerted police, Frame added.

The boy, Darren, lowered his sister, Tampa, out the window of the two-story townhouse Thursday afternoon to the outstretched arms of children playing nearby, police said.

It was then that neighbors realized something was wrong and called police, Frame said.

Frame said Mrs. Simmons was found in an upstairs bedroom with an extension phone, where she had apparently fled their to call police. He said she had locked the door, but the killer had knocked it down.

Police said the two children were in a room near the bathroom. When police came, the door to the room was wide open.

BUNDLED FOR THE BUS — The winter storm that drove temperatures in Lubbock and the South Plains into the low 20s with chilling 25 mph West Texas winds, also served to drive Texas Tech students to the various bus routes on campus to avoid an icy dash across the campus. (Staff Photo by Milton Adams)

DASHING THROUGH THE COLD — Texas Tech students did very little walking on campus Friday, choosing short dashes from warm buildings to bus to car instead. This trio of Tech coeds made a dash for the safety of a nearby car, trying to spend as little time as possible in the 20-degree air and 25 mph winds that chilled the city Friday. Trappers Association To Hold Fur Sale At Roaring Springs

ROARING SPRINGS (Special) — The Caprock Trappers Association will hold its March 1 fur sale in the Roaring Springs High School gymnasium.

Pelts of fur bearers can be sold at the session, according to CTA member Preston Mynatt who announced that special permission had been obtained from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department in Austin.

State law forbids possession of such pelts for sale after Feb. 5, but they may be sold at the March 1 fur sale if dried.

"Anyone coming to the sale with a green or undried fur will be arrested," Mynatt said.

All hides of fur bearers — raccoon, badger, fox, opossum, skunk and ring-tailed cat — must be taken during the

Dec. 1 to Jan. 31 season. Bobcat and coyote, not designated as fur bearing, may be trapped through March 15.

Mynatt urges trappers to bring their furs the afternoon and evening of Feb. 29 to expedite the sale which will last all day.

Planes Collide, Narrowly Miss Hotel

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two small planes collided in mid-air and crashed Friday near Los Angeles International Airport, narrowly missing a 650-room hotel. At least three people were reported killed in the 2 p.m. collision and at least six on the ground were injured, authorities said. Two of those injured had "very serious" burns, said a spokeswoman for Centinela Valley Hospital. An unknown number of people were taken to nearby hospitals, the El Segundo Fire Department said. Their condition was not immediately known. Nor was it known how many people were aboard the two planes.

One of the planes lost a wing and crashed on busy Sepulveda Boulevard in front of the Hacienda Hotel, said airport spokeswoman Virginia Black.

Debbie Meeks, director of sales and marketing for the Hacienda, said the hotel was not hit by the plane, and "it doesn't appear it struck any other vehicles in the road." She said the largest piece of the wreckage "was completely charred."

The other plane came down a half-mile south of Imperial Highway near Sepulveda, Miss Black said.

In that crash, six employees of C.L. Peck Contractor were injured when struck by parts of the plane. They were working in the vicinity of what is to be a new facility for Hughes Aircraft. No Hughes employees were hurt, said a Hughes spokesman at the scene.

According to Bob Smith, superintendent for the contractor, two of his employees were hurt "quite seriously." All were taken to Daniel Freeman hospital. Their identities were not immediately available.

for at least half a mile. Spokesman Al Garvis of the Federal Aviation Administration office in Los Angeles said the two single-engine planes were not going to or from Los Angeles International.

"They were not under our traffic control at the time," Garvis said. "They were probably flying visually."

"They were both small planes, not commercial," said Miss Black.

"I was looking out the window and noticed the debris falling from the sky," said Ray Cunningham, who works near the hotel.

Mary Strobel, an office worker in a nearby building, said she saw pieces of metal drifting down to the ground. "We heard a crash like a boom and we looked outside and there was a big puff of smoke," Miss Strobel said. "Then we saw all these pieces of gold and silver and blue debris falling out of the air. There were three different puffs of smoke like seeing fireworks go off and afterwards there were little concentrations of smoke."

Stuart Ledsam, a salesman, said he was about a block away from the hotel when he heard a noise and saw the planes collide.

"It was just a noise. I can't describe it, maybe I'll dream about it," said Ledsam, who said he is a private pilot.

THE EXCELSIOR
YOUR WINDOW TO THE WORLD

INSPIRED BY LOVE... FOR YOUR VALENTINE

For over three hundred years, the menfolk of many European villages have symbolized their love and affection with the carving and giving of a love spoon. The giving of a love spoon was an indication that a man desired to court a particular young maiden. Of course the love spoon is symbolic. For instance, a heart means "my heart is yours." Spoons with a twisted stem mean "as the tree has grown, so has my love." Double spoons denote togetherness, and the key indicates the key to one's heart.

Each love spoon is hand-carved and initialed by its creator. The perfect way to say "I love you!" $12.00 to $85.00

Mrs. Judge Admits Alcoholism

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Carol Judge, divorced this week from Gov. Thomas L. Judge, has publicly acknowledged she is an alcoholic and said that "with God's help" she will never resume drinking.

Mrs. Judge, describing herself as a recovered alcoholic, spoke of her battle with the disease after court papers in connection with the divorce disclosed her problem.

In a statement released by her lawyers, the 38-year-old mother of two young boys said she came to realize in 1973 that she had developed a dependence on alcohol and subsequently spent nine weeks at Heartview, an alcoholism treatment center at Mandan, N.D.

"I emerged from the program recovered from this destructive illness, but fully aware of the fact that an alcoholic is never 'cured' but only controlled."

"I have never resumed the use of alcohol," she said. "My motto is, 'Trust in God and live one day at a time.'"

Oldest Aardvark Dies

MIAMI (AP) — Bronx the Aardvark seemed to be just another snowbird retiree when he arrived in Miami 10 years ago. The Bronx Zoo had sent him south to live out his golden years in a warm, sunny climate.

The experts figured the 14-year-old aardvark probably had a couple quiet retirement years left in sunny South Florida before going on to aardvark heaven.

But the gray-haired senior had plenty of life — and love — left. By the time he died of pneumonia last month, Bronx had sired 16 baby aardvarks and left another aardvark girlfriend in a family way.

He was like an aggressive old man toward women," said Bill Zeigler, curator at the Crandon Park Zoo. "He was very romantically inclined."

Bronx, found curled up in his hollow log Jan. 16, died at age 24, a species longevity record in captivity for aardvarks — a burrowing nocturnal African mammal that feeds on ants and termites.

"We're going to miss him. Zoologically, he was our most famous resident," Zeigler said.

Zeigler said Bronx didn't like people much. He slept during the day. But he was a real tiger at night.

Zeigler said Bronx mated with three different females. He once had all three pregnant at the same time.

His progeny made money for the zoo, which sold and traded the young aardvarks around the country. Aardvarks are worth about $3,000 each, Zeigler said.

"Well, this puts us out of the aardvark business," he said.

Benefit Helps Cancer Patient

LUDLOW, Mass. (AP) — While Judy Dubour was in Boston undergoing chemotherapy, back home in Ludlow more than 2,000 people were joining the 14-year-old's battle against cancer.

They attended a benefit supper and auction Thursday night that an organizer said raised more than $5,000 for the girl's medical fund.

An autographed Bo Derek T-shirt went for $35, paid by two teenagers who pooled their funds and said they'd take turns wearing the shirt featuring the movie star's picture.

Four other people paid $25 each for the shirts signed by Mrs. Derek while she was filming in Bennington, Vt., last week.

Miss Dubour's father Gerald said doctors believe they have the cancer halted. And as he looked over the people who'd come to help his daughter, he said: "How do you put this kind of feeling into words?"

Proposed CIA Charter Would Allow Spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed charter governing U.S. spy agencies, introduced Friday in the Senate, would allow domestic spying on Americans and let the CIA keep its secrets more secret.

Only a handful of congressmen would act as the public's monitor of spying activities.

The bill would free the CIA of some restraints but would ensure that "no more could any intelligence agency conceivably be out of control," said a prime sponsor, Sen. Walter D. Huddleston, D-Ky.

The charter legislation demanded by President Carter in his State of the Union message last month was first proposed as a way to curb CIA abuses which came to light in the mid-1970s.

However, the bill introduced Friday, at a time of crises in Iran and Afghanistan, is heavy with provisions that Carter and many members of Congress say are needed to help the CIA do a better job of predicting future troublespots.

Carter praised Huddleston and his Senate Intelligence subcommittee Friday, saying tough negotiations between the panel and the White House had led to

Congressmen Ask For FBI Apology

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-four members of Congress called on the FBI Friday to apologize publicly to Arabs throughout the world for perpetuating "an unjust stereotype" by having its agents pose as rich Arab sheiks and businessmen.

The lawmakers said they were not criticizing the merits of the FBI political corruption investigation that has implicated eight congressmen.

But, in letters to President Carter, Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti and FBI Director William H. Webster, they said, "The fact that FBI agents posed as 'Arabs' so as to expedite their investigation is deplorable."

"We find this insensitive choice of ethnicity to be abusive in spirit and intent, to perpetuate an unjust stereotype and to nurture an already firmly established negative prejudice," the lawmakers wrote.

"For far too long our country and our people have suffered from ethnic slurs," they said.

Calling the FBI investigation another example of such prejudice, the members requested "a public apology for the further disparagement of the Arab community in this country as well as throughout the world."

Snowplow 'Jinx' Wanted

RUSSELLVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Mayor Lon Russell's plan to outfit Mother Nature fell apart when about 3 inches of snow fell in the area.

Russell had urged the Russellville City Council to purchase a snowplow, saying he hoped the vehicle would be a jinx against winter storms of the past three years.

"It (the jinx) didn't work, did it," Russell said Friday after Thursday's snowfall. "Don't I wish we had the snowplow."

The snowfall Thursday night was the first hard snow of the winter in the area.

The council recently approved advertising for a snowplow and is to consider bids on Feb. 14. Snowplows are uncommon in Arkansas because of normally mild winter weather.

Goldwater To Wear Cast

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater's right leg will be in a knee-length cast when he makes appearances in his home state of Arizona over the Lincoln's Birthday holiday next week.

The cast is necessary because of an inflamed Achilles tendon, according to the announcement by his office on Thursday.

The 71-year-old Republican is seeking re-election.

Mortality Reminder Given

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Robert O'Neil was appointed president of the University of Wisconsin last month, but somebody in the mail room hadn't heard about it.

O'Neil, who officially took over on Feb. 1, told members of the Board of Regents about what he called "a humbling and timely reminder of my mortality" as he wound up his first report to them Friday.

"I want to close on a modest note," said O'Neil, former vice president of the University of Indiana University in Bloomington. "There's a grave danger as one is thrust into a position of such visibility that one may lose perspective and humility."

Man Refuses To Ship Engine

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Willis Shurts was at the end of the assembly line, where a gleaming Caterpillar diesel engine sat ready for shipment. But Shurts wouldn't ship it — at least not until he was threatened with being fired. The engine's destination: Moscow.

"The farmers are being asked to give up their income by not selling grain to the Russians," said Shurts. "Our athletes are being asked to give up possibly the chance of a lifetime to go to the Summer (Olympic) Games, and yet we're not asking Caterpillar to give up anything."

Shurts is married and has a 7-year-old son. He said he could not risk losing his job, though he feels strongly that the Caterpillar Tractor Co. should not be exporting heavy equipment to Moscow in light of the Soviet troop presence in Afghanistan.

"At least I tried to prevent what I believe is wrong," he said of the Tuesday incident.

"Any kind of heavy equipment can be used for military application," he said. "Even if it's building roads, transport is one of the key elements of military operation."

State Says Brothers Killed Potential Witnesses In Burglary Investigation

EBENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — David and Norman Johnston killed five people — and tried to kill their own nephew — in an attempt to silence potential witnesses in a burglary investigation, the state charged Friday.

"The net ... began to close around them," special prosecutor William Lamb said in opening arguments. "They couldn't stand it."

David Johnston, 32, and Norman Johnston, 29, are charged with five murders and one attempted murder each. The shootings came in August 1978, as federal and state grand juries were probing an alleged Johnson family burglary operation in southeastern Pennsylvania and nearby Maryland and Delaware.

The ring allegedly netted more than $1 million in stolen tractors, cigarettes and other goods.

"All these killings were with one purpose in mind — to silence witnesses," Lamb told the jury in the heavily guarded Cambria County courthouse.

The defendants' brother, Bruce Johnston Sr., 41, of Elkton, Md., the alleged leader of the burglary ring, is charged in the same five slayings plus one more. He will be tried separately.

Bruce Johnston Jr., 20, is scheduled to testify against his uncles. He was cooperating with the burglary investigation when he was ambushed on Aug. 30, 1978.

The defendants allegedly were paid $15,000 by Bruce Johnston Sr. to silence his son.

Bruce Jr. survived eight bullet wounds in the chest and head. The ambush killed his 15-year-old fiancée, Robin Miller.

Describing that killing, Chester County Assistant District Attorney Dolores Troiani said, "The force of the bullets pushed Bruce around and back. He looked over at Robin and saw blood rushing from her chin."

Miss Troiani said the prosecution will rely heavily on the testimony of two confessed killers — Leslie Dale, 32, and Richard Mitchell, 37 — who linked the Johnston brothers to the slayings.

Miss Troiani charged that Mitchell and Norman Johnston dug a large hole at a game preserve near Chadds Ford, Pa., on Aug. 16 to hold three people who would be killed that night.

She alleged that Wayne Sampson, 20, Dwayne Lincoln, 17, and James Johnston, 18, were led up a dark road to a spot near the hole. They were shot and dumped into the grave after Bruce Sr. removed their shoes and emptied their pockets, Miss Troiani charged.

Another victim, David Sampson, 24, allegedly was shot to death on Aug. 21, 1978, at a landfill near Lancaster, Pa. His body is believed buried beneath garbage and debris but has never been found.

In the defense's opening statements, Larry Goldberg, attorney for Norman Johnston, denied a motive could be established for the slayings.

Goldberg alleged that two key prosecution witnesses fabricated their story about the slayings while staying in adjoining cells at the Chester County Farm Prison.

Goldberg further attacked the credibility of the upcoming witnesses by saying, "The whole district attorney's case is tainted with deals."

Lamb said the state probably will call more than 100 witnesses, including mothers of the victims.

London Police Battle Abortion Demonstrators

WOMEN PROTEST — Police carry a struggling demonstrator away outside the House of Commons in London Friday as thousands of women clashed with police. The women were protesting against a bill that would tighten the nation's 13-year-old liberal abortion laws. (AP Laserphoto)

LONDON (AP) — Police battled thousands of protesting women outside the House of Commons where legislators argued on Friday over tightening the nation's 13-year-old liberal abortion laws.

Police called in reinforcements and forced a path through the hundreds of demonstrators who tried to block traffic outside the building.

A doorman was bitten on the hand when parliamentary officials evicted from the public gallery a group of young women who unfurled a banner declaring: "Women will not obey your bill," and interrupted the emotion-charged debate with shouts of: "A woman's right to choose."

A battle erupted when demonstrators who had gathered outside the nearby City Hall marched on the Houses of Parliament when news of the evictions spread.

Women with children in their arms were carried along in the melee. Police formed a chain to stop the demonstrators who, led by feminist organizations, forced their way into the building. Three women were arrested inside the House, police reported. There were more arrests outside.

Legislators, debating restrictions which doctors say could halve the number of legal abortions performed in Britain, looked out windows of the Commons at women waving their fists and shouting: "Not the church, not the state, we must decide our fate."

The bill would tighten the criteria used to determine when abortion is allowed, and would cut the time limit for abortions from 28 to 20 weeks.

The measure, the most determined move yet to curb laws under which 1.4 million abortions have been performed since 1967, is strongly opposed by doctors and women's organizations, and deeply divides the Commons across traditional party lines. Public opinion polls have shown a majority of Britons oppose new restrictions on abortion.

Inside the building legislators conducted a five-hour debate of the final stage of the bill, which last summer passed its initial stages more than 2-1 in favor. But with 70 amendments put forward, the bill looked likely to be "talked out" of becoming law.

Unless it gets to a vote in a second session next Friday, it stands slim chance of being allocated more time. So it appeared that unless a redraft with a compromise 24-week abortion limit favored by Health Secretary Gerard Vaughan is made by next week, it would be filibustered or voted down.

The British Medical Association, the doctors' trade union, estimates the bill could halve legal abortions, which totaled 142,000 last year.

The bill would outlaw financial links between pregnancy counseling services and private abortion clinics and tighten the "social" criteria for abortion.

Put forward by John Corrie, a 44-year-old Scottish lawmaker from the ruling Conservative Party, the bill says there must "serious" risk — instead of the current "risk" — of injury to a woman's physical or mental health, "substantially" greater than that of abortion.

Tory baronet Sir Bernard Braine declared Britain has become a nation with "abortion on demand."

David Ennals, health minister in the previous Labor government, referring to allegations of "murder" of unborn children, retorted the proposed curbs will drive desperate women to dangerous, backstreet practitioners. "This new bill is likely to promote murder," he said. The issue of late abortions — with reformers recalling reports of aborted fetuses crying during brief struggles for life — dominated Friday's debate.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher who, official sources said, was not prepared to allow more time for argument, has kept out of debates on abortion-restrictions. This has angered feminists, who say the 53-year-old mother of twins favors restrictions but does not want to alienate them on this issue.

Britain was among the first Western nations to liberalize abortion laws, but the new restrictions would, at least on paper, make legal abortion more difficult to obtain here than in many other non-Catholic countries.

Firm Begins New Battle To Acquire Company

LONDON (AP) — British General Electric Co. on Friday began a new round in its battle with Racal Electronics Ltd. to acquire ailing electronics giant Decca Ltd. by sweetening its bid to 97.9 million pounds.

The English pound is currently worth about $2.30, making the offer worth about $225.17 million.

The announcement came one day after Racal responded to GEC's initial offer by raising its bid to 91.4 million pounds, or about $210.2 million topping GEC's initial bid which was worth the equivalent of $189.7 million.

Racal's Board of Directors planned to meet "with a view to considering an increase in its offer," but made no announcement Friday.

Prior to the bidding contest, Decca's board of directors had recommended accepting Racal Electronics initial offer at 66.5 million pounds, or about $152 million.

GEC's latest offer for Decca involves cash payment or exchange of stock for convertible loans issues of GEC.

GEC also said that it will support Decca's already published intention to retain as many employees as possible after completing the sale of its Decca record unit to Polygram, a West German-Dutch conglomerate.

Decca Ltd. is not connected with the Decca record label in the United States. GEC is not affiliated with the American company, General Electric Co.

Decca announced separately Friday that it had reached agreement to sell its 50 percent share in two holding compa-

China Launches New Attack On Human Rights Movement

PEKING (AP) — China's leading legislators have launched a new attack on the nation's tiny human rights movement and said the closing of Peking's "democracy wall" has eliminated some destabilizing elements, a newspaper said Friday.

A story appearing in the People's Daily on two days of discussions by the standing committee of the National People's Congress said members reported that the closing of the wall in December had been applauded by people everywhere in China.

For more than a year, the wall had been a forum for complaints and criticisms for anyone feeling wronged and for human rights activists who said they were not trying to attack the government, but to offer constructive ideas.

A new site was opened for posting wall posters, but regulations on registration of poster writers have discouraged new activity.

The People's Daily said committee members warned: "There is a small minority so-called 'democratic faction' that opposes socialism and the leadership of the Communist Party. Raising such banners as 'democracy' and 'human rights,' they often engage in trouble-making and sabotage. We cannot relax our vigilance against these kinds of people."

The paper said the committee was discussing senior Vice Premier Deng Xiaoping's report on the present situation and tasks. While not all of the report has been made public, Chinese and diplomatic sources have said Deng wants restrictions on China's guaranteed right of free speech, including wall posters, to avoid turmoil.

The paper said the legislators re-

Sunken Coast Guard Cutter Described As 'Finest Ship Ever'

HUGS FLAG — Lt. Commander G.J. Sepel, commanding officer of the Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn, is shown Friday hugging the last flag to fly aboard the ship that was sunk after a collision with an oil tanker in Tampa Bay. The flag was presented to him at the memorial services for the 23 men that were lost. (AP Laserphoto)

GALVESTON (AP) — The Coast Guard cutter Blackthorn, that sank quickly Jan. 28 near Tampa, Fla., with a loss of 23 lives, was described at a memorial service Friday as the finest ship that ever sailed.

Lt. Cmdr. G.S. Sepel, the buoy tender's commanding officer, said his men got tired of his saying the Blackthorn was the best ship on which he had ever sailed.

"I kept repeating it, I meant it, and I repeat it here today," Sepel said.

The Blackthorn had been stationed in Galveston since 1976 and the memorial service here drew a standing room only assembly at the Moody Memorial First United Methodist Church.

Survivors and families of the dead and missing occupied 15 rows in front of a huge anchor, the only floral tribute.

After Sepel's brief tribute to his crew, Rear Adm. Paul A. Yost, Coast Guard district commander from New Orleans, presented him with the last flag to fly aboard the Blackthorn.

"Keep this flag in remembrance of the finest ship that ever sailed," Yost said.

Adm. J.B. Hayes, Coast Guard commandant from Washington, said the 23 dead and missing gave their lives to God and their nation while serving missions of saving lives and property at sea.

Hayes read a message from U.S. Department of Transportation Secretary Neil Goldschmidt joined in "extending our sincere sympathies."

"The accident that took the lives of your comrades reminds the public of the risks taken each day by gallant men and women of the Coast Guard," Goldschmidt said.

Rear Adm. R.W. Trower, Coast Guard chief of chaplains, said there are risks, hazards, fear and loneliness in serving at sea.

"We're coming through this tragedy only because of the things we believe in, hope for and die for," Trower said.

Sepel read the 100th psalm and thanked all those in attendance.

"It means a lot," he said.

"If I had about 10 hours I couldn't tell and express thanks to all the people who have come to our assistance, not just on the night of the rescue but afterwards throughout these past difficult days. I couldn't begin to list them and I wouldn't want to for fear of forgetting someone," he said.

The Blackthorn sank within minutes after it collided with the oil tanker S.S. Capricorn in Tampa Bay.

Coast Guard officials say the loss of 23 crewmen made the accident the worst peacetime collision in Coast Guard history.

Twenty-seven survivors were pulled from the water, the crew of a shrimp boat was credited with rescuing 22 of the sailors. The bodies of nine Blackthorn crewmen have been recovered, 14 others are still missing.

The cutter had left Tampa and was Heard Warning, Crewman Testifies

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Warnings blasted from an oil tanker's whistle a full minute or two before the ship and a Coast Guard cutter collided in Tampa Bay, killing 23 sailors, a tanker crewman testified Friday.

Peter Hulsebosch Jr., 21, of a Tampa suburb, told investigators that he and fellow seamen aboard the S.S. Capricorn heard two blasts, then heard the universal maritime signal of four or more blasts of whistle. He said the signals were from the Capricorn.

"All of us heard four blasts, with one continuous blast after that," he said. "Shortly after that, we felt a vibration of the ship."

He said it was "maybe 60 seconds or two minutes" after the warning signal that the vibration was felt.

He said he didn't know it was a collision, but that the vibration was stronger than that of the tanker's engines switching from forward to reverse.

"Our first ideas were that we'd run aground," he said during the eighth day of a federal investigation of the Jan. 28 collision between the Capricorn and the Coast Guard buoy tender Blackthorn. Several Coast Guardsmen testified earlier that they did not recall hearing the danger warning.

Hulsebosch, in his room when the collision occurred, said he stuck his head out a porthole, first looking forward then back.

"As I turned my head aft, I saw a vessel coming around the stern on our starboard quarter. All I could see was yellow and white lights. As I was looking over, she started to capsize," he said.

Hulsebosch, classified as an able-bodied seaman, said he had been posted on the Capricorn's bow about an hour before the collision.

fore the collision. He said the 605-foot tanker had been anchored and that the massive anchor was secured before the vessel got under way for the Tampa port.

The Blackthorn sank after being ripped open by the Capricorn's anchor, earlier witnesses testified.

Tuesday through Thursday in the school district administration building annex.

Teachers will spend 15 hours of their own time learning techniques involving the use of crayons, water colors, poster paints, finger paints, colored chalk and modeling clay.

Simple craft skills also will be demonstrated so that teachers can learn to work with paper, paste and other materials to achieve three-dimensional effects.

The workshop, sponsored by Binney & Smith, Inc., manufacturers of Crayola crayons, will be conducted by Pat Huddleston, an art consultant for the firm.

NINE FOUND GUILTY

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Nine people who demonstrated against the Trident nuclear submarine have been found guilty of trespassing. Sentencing was set for March 12. A jury in St. Louis County returned the verdicts Thursday. It recommended jail terms of up to 30 days and fines to be set by the judge. The nine, including two Roman Catholic nuns, were among about 150 people who staged a protest Oct. 29.

Mondale Makes Last Minute Plea To Supporters

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Vice President Walter F. Mondale, seeking to rally the troops behind President Carter, warned Friday that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's backers are giving "everything they've got" to win this weekend's Democratic Party caucuses in Maine.

Mondale, the chief Carter campaign surrogate who stumped extensively for his president in Iowa, told Democrats they must turn out in droves for the town caucuses. "because if they do, President Carter is going to win."

Mondale carried that message Friday from Augusta, to Waterville, to Presque Isle in the far north. At every stop, he cautioned that even though polls say the president has overwhelming support in the state, that support won't be translated into delegates unless there is a big turnout at the caucuses.

The political meetings this weekend will trigger Maine's two-step process of selecting 22 delegates to the Democratic National Convention in August. The final step will take place when the party holds its state convention on May 16-17.

Addressing a large crowd at an American Legion hall in Augusta, Mondale said, "The surveys show that this state overwhelmingly supports President Carter, but it doesn't count unless you go to the caucuses."

A poll published Friday by the Bangor Daily News said Carter is the preferred candidate among registered Democrats in Maine. It said the president leads Kennedy by 19 percentage points.

Mondale, however, said "this is going to be a very, very close race. They are contesting it with everything they've got."

Appearing at the Maine Statehouse, Mondale urged 50 state legislators who endorsed Carter to telephone their local radio stations with the word.

"We couldn't ask for better news," he said. "We couldn't ask for finer support at this crucial moment."

The Carter camp has indicated it feels the better the turnout on Sunday, the better the president's chances.

Carter's campaign strategists here are hoping for the kind of mass turnout that marked the Iowa Democratic caucuses on Jan. 21, which saw the president overwhelm Kennedy by 59 percent to 31 percent margin.

While Mondale was playing the familiar role of Carter surrogate, Kennedy was making a pitch for support in Puerto Rico's March 16 Democratic primary.

In an address to his campaign workers in San Juan, the Massachusetts senator declared: "Puerto Rico has not been a matter of priority in the Carter administration."

Kennedy planned to return to Maine Saturday and Sunday to rally his supporters. The senator's Maine organization claimed 1,000 door-to-door canvassers would be at work during the weekend, seeking to get out the Kennedy vote.

Gov. Joseph Brennan forecast victory for Kennedy on Friday, saying "I think he will come in first."

Meanwhile, California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who registered a no-show in Iowa after asking his supporters to vote as uncommitted at the precinct caucuses, planned a sweep across the state on Saturday.

The Brown camp plans to bring in approximately 100 students from Boston to help get out the vote, said the governor's campaign chairman, Tom Quinn. "For us, it's not bad," he said, "referring to the Kennedy plan for hundreds of campaigners.

In another development, Rosalynn Carter, appearing at a fund-raising breakfast in San Francisco, said her husband was back in Washington "handling the rapidly changing international crisis."

The first lady gave no details, but told some 1,400 Democrats that Carter was "doing everything humanly possible to obtain the safe return of the hostages from Iran."

As Mrs. Carter was concluding her remarks, a handful of anti-draft demonstrators protested loudly outside the hotel.

"To hell with the draft! Our enemy is here at home!" said some of the placards carried by a crowd protesting Carter's announcement of plans to seek legislation providing for the registration of young men and women for the draft.

The newspaper poll published Friday said Carter was preferred by 52.4 percent of the registered Democrats, Kennedy, by 33.4 percent and Brown with 5.1 percent. Nine percent of those responding to the poll said they "don't know."

Among the Republicans presidential candidates, former United Nations ambassador George Bush was most preferred by registered Republicans responding to the poll.

It said Bush had the backing of 29.5 percent of those polled, while Ronald Reagan was second with 23.5 percent. Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee was third with 13.7 percent. Former Texas Gov. John Connally garnered 8.3 percent, and other GOP hopefuls polled less than 1 percent.

The Bangor Daily News said its statewide poll was conducted by the University of Maine's Social Science Research Institute, and that it was based on random telephone interviews with 600 adults between Jan. 7 and Feb. 5.

On the GOP campaign trail, there were these developments:

• Former U.N. Ambassador George

Bush shrugged off a telephoned bomb threat in Manchester, N.H., telling some 1,500 high school students that "politics isn't easy."

• Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan told a Montgomery, Ala., news conference he feels the Soviet Union's leaders are convinced that a nuclear war with the United States "is not only possible, or survivable, but winnable."

Newspaper Says Police Know Who Killed Actor Bob Crane

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Police believe they know who killed actor Bob Crane here 19 months ago but are unable to get county help to extradite the suspect from outside the state, a newspaper said Friday.

"We believe we have physical evidence to link the No. 1 suspect to the scene ... and have enough information, based on probable cause, for an arrest," police Lt. Ron Dean told the Scottsdale Progress.

With help from federal and local law enforcement agencies and an Arizona criminal psychiatrist, police say they are certain their top suspect killed Crane, the newspaper said. Police refuse to disclose further information about the suspect except to say the person lives outside Arizona and was not part of a conspiracy.

However, Scottsdale police need county and state help in obtaining a criminal complaint, arrest warrant and extradition.

The Maricopa County attorney's office remains adamant against this course of action in the belief Scottsdale authorities don't have enough evidence to warrant extradition, the newspaper said. Larry Turoff of the county attorney's office declined to specify what type of evidence Scottsdale police still lack.

Crane, star of the popular television series "Hogan's Heroes," was bludgeoned to death in a hotel where he was staying while playing at a local dinner theater.

If an arrest were made, Dean said, police could "obtain more evidence" that otherwise "we couldn't have access to." For example, he said, they would be able to check the suspect's fingerprints.

The Progress said it learned of several new developments in the case:

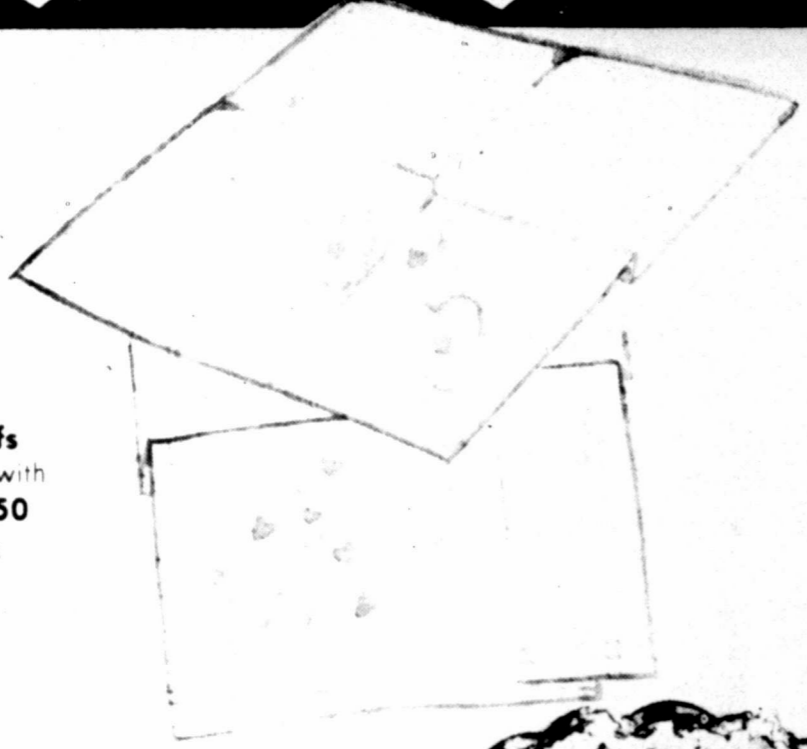

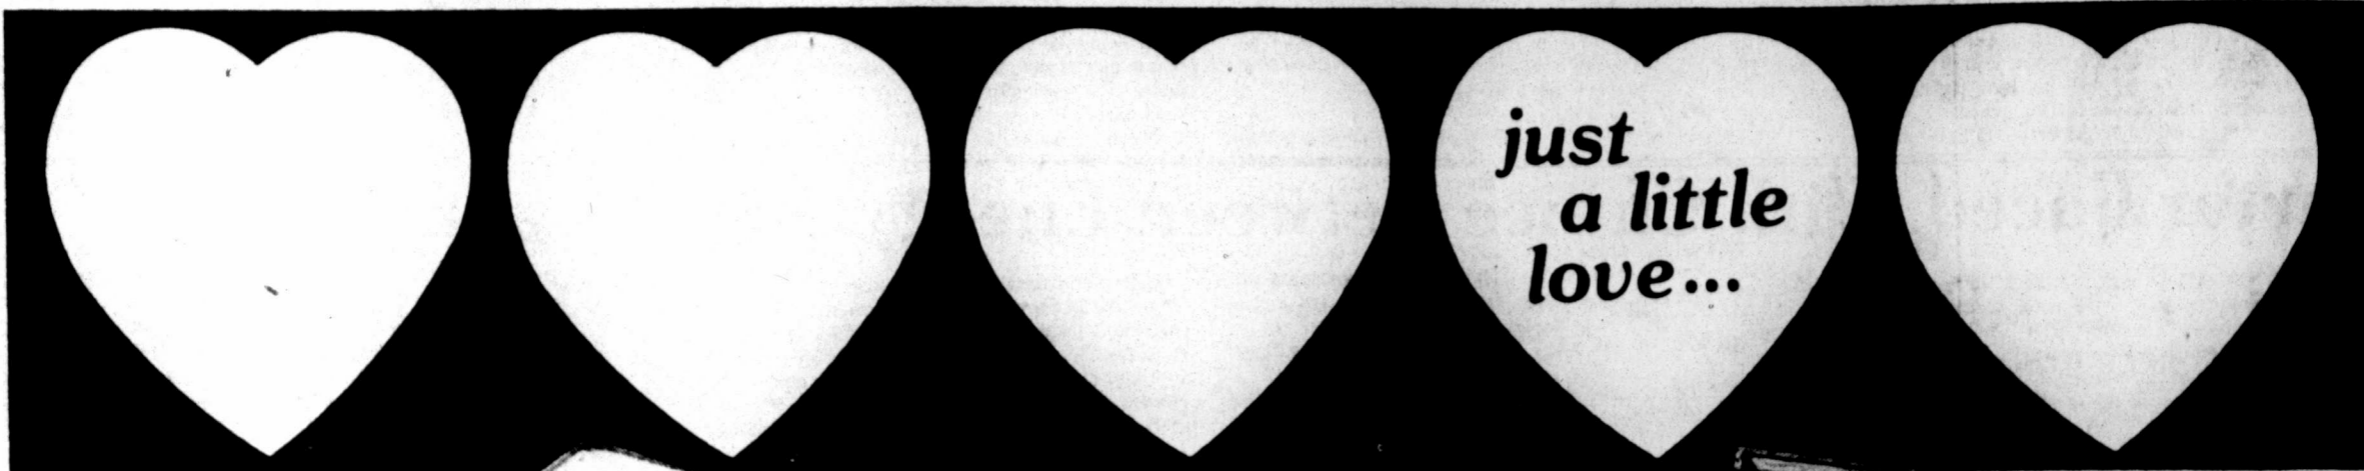

- A federal agency, which police would not identify, recently provided investigators here with a "psychological autopsy," or profile of Crane's character.

- An Arizona criminal psychiatrist, not named, recently developed a motive for the murder.

- As recently as last month, an investigator interviewed law enforcement personnel and two witnesses who live in Los Angeles "to update some facts."

- Police again searched unsuccessfully for the murder weapon in recently drained irrigation canals.

- The only item missing from Crane's hotel apartment was a photo album apparently containing photographs of his visit here. Dean said a witness saw it in Crane's room on June 28, 1978, the day before the murder. Police say Crane could have given the album to someone.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann: Recently a teenage boy wrote you to say the respect he showed to girls was not appreciated. Instead, the girls he knew seemed to prefer boys who treated them shabbily. You suggested that he look for "higher-grade" girls.

I am a psychotherapist. Many of my clients are women who repeatedly get involved in unhappy love relationships. Far from being "low grade," they suffer from low self-esteem. They cannot relate to men who treat them decently because they don't believe they deserve it.

These women dismiss the good men as "creeps" or "jerks" because it's too difficult to sustain a good relationship with them.

Such problems are deep-seated and, in my opinion, therapy is the most effective way to deal with them. Please publish this letter. Ann: These women need help and understanding — Judith M., M. Ed. Counseling, Montreal, Quebec

Dear Judith: I agree. Here it is — with an added word from me about psychotherapy. I repeatedly suggest "professional help" knowing full well that the chances for success on the first try are no better than 50-50. For this reason I urge readers who need help not to give up if the first therapist or counselor doesn't do the job. I urge them to try a second or third. I hope they listen.

Dear Ann: I am a busy woman with two children and a father who cannot seem to leave me alone.

Every day he drops in for coffee, seemingly unaware that I may have other plans. He is retired now and thinks I have nothing better to do than spend hours playing board games and cards with him.

Mother works all day, and my father has no one but me to see. I love him very much but he is wearing out his welcome. Could you please give me some suggestions? — Miserable In Michigan

Dear Miserable: I was surprised when you mentioned your mother. I had assumed your father was a lonely widower.

Once a pattern of this type has been established it's hard to break, but break it you must, or your father will become increasingly dependent on you for entertainment.

Can you take a temporary part-time job or become involved in volunteer work outside the home — just long enough to break the cycle? If this is not feasible, you must somehow screw up the courage to tell your father: "No more dropping in unexpectedly." Let him know he must phone first to learn if it is convenient. And if it isn't convenient, you must tell him so.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to take a crack at "Rockford, Illinois" who complained about his wife, the mother of six children (including twins four months old).

Listen, Lummoxx, unless you provide your wife with adequate help, she will flap her lid or fly the coop. You then can go back to your mother, who will have your supper on the table promptly at 6:00 p.m., get the laundry caught up, sew on your shirt buttons and bake bread every day. Better shape up pronto, or your wife will be the one who ships out — Been There In Florida

Dear Florida: "Lummoxx's" letter set some kind of record for angry responses.

Thank you for sending one tame enough to print.

Don't get burned by a "line" that's too hot to handle. Play it cool with Ann Landers' guide to "Necking and Petting."

Woman Competes In Contest

Kathy Wright will vie for the crown of "Mrs. Texas 1980" against 50 other Texas women on Feb. 17 at the Shamrock Hilton in Houston.

Mrs. Wright was more than just a little surprised to learn she was chosen because she had not applied as a contestant.

Nursing Homes Offer 'Good News'

COLLEGE STATION — There's "good news" for grown children faced with the problems of elderly parents who need nursing-home care, says a family life education specialist.

High-quality institutional care creates many positive "building blocks" in the foundation of family relationships for many grown children and their elderly parents, says Vivian Blair.

Mrs. Blair is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Citing a study by the University of Southern California Andrus Gerontology Center, she says recent findings "provide good news for many families.

Their research addressed the problem when it was first faced by such families, and it looked at the outcome.

"Often grown children facing such a problem are consumed with anguish and guilt once they are forced to seek nursing home care for an elderly parent or other relative," Mrs. Blair explains.

They may have a sense of failure and begin to think of themselves as cruel and even as criminal.

And now for the good news in detail.

Researchers found that in 70 percent of the families, relationships between the generations continued to be close — and in some cases, improved," Mrs. Blair says.

Hints From Heloise

PRETTY HOWDY!

Now today I'm just going to give you a little tidbit of information to store away for the time when some major decisions are going to have to be made concerning redecorating your home.

Wallcoverings have become popular once again, and the colors and designs on the market these days are simply fantastic. Such easy-care and so simple to put up, that it's just downright hard to resist the temptation to redecorate even when it's not necessary.

Hubby probably is sitting on pins and needles right now for the little woman is getting ideas about changing things around, but I'm really telling you all this so that when and if the time does come, you'll know what to buy.

This information comes from a well-known wallpapering company. They tell us that if the room being papered is small, it's not wise to purchase a pattern with large repeats — closes in the room, you know.

Light background colors with a small scaled-down design make the walls seem farther apart, thus giving the room a larger appearance.

Stripes running up and down give the impression that the ceiling is higher. Colorful plaids, small-scale geometrics and all-over florals can unify a room that has a lot of windows and doors, or a recessed wall.

A bold pattern will help to "furnish" a sparsely furnished room.

So, luvs, clip this little doozy or file it in the back of your mind for that "dream house" that's just around the bend. — Hugs, Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE:

Life is pretty much like meat loaf — it's as good or as bad as what you put in it. — Virginia Ross

DEAR HELOISE:

After having a new vinyl floor laid in my kitchen, there were several scrap pieces left over.

Hating to see even an inch of the expensive stuff go to waste, I used an old place mat for a pattern and cut six new place mats plus six coasters out of the scraps.

My family laughed at first, but now it's the family joke to say, "We're eating off the floor."

Needless to say, they match the decor perfectly and are easily wiped clean. — Linda Stegner

DEAR HELOISE:

I bought a new pair of white jeans and, believe it or not, the fastener on the front is starting to rust.

Is there any way I can stop the fastener from rusting further and ruining my pants?

I doubt whether it would do any good to take them back. — Carol

You might try just that — taking them back. I've found that most department stores and manufacturers are cooperative when a defect in their merchandise has been found.

There's no harm in at least trying — right?

But if you're hesitant to return them, try rubbing the rust off the metal fastener with a piece of steel wool and then coat it with several layers of clear fingernail polish, or some oil-based paint, being careful not to get it on the fabric, naturally.

This may need to be repeated from time to time after the pants are washed but it should at least curb the advancement of the rust. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

What can I do with a comforter that keeps slipping off the bed? I made a cotton cover for it but it didn't solve the problem.

Would appreciate it very much if you could help. — Ms. L.S.

Tack a strip of thin foam rubber across the middle of the underside of the comforter so it won't show. Don't make the strip too permanent, though, as you may want to remove it for cleaning, etc. You shouldn't have to chase that comforter ever again. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

Hopefully, this hint may help someone else who is handicapped.

My husband lost his right arm and it was hard for him to attend to his personal grooming with one hand.

I washed out empty pull-top liquid detergent containers with before-shave lotion, after-shave lotion and hair oil.

Now he can use whatever he needs easily. — Ruby

COUPLE HONORED — Mr. and Mrs. B.P. Ashley will celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary today with a reception in Bender Terrace Nursing Home hosted by their children. Louie Ashley of San Angelo; Mrs. H.W. Deats of Abilen and Mrs. C.E. McNeill of Lubbock. Ashley and the former Mary Ellner Honea were married Feb. 9, 1913 in San Angelo. Ashley is a past grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias Lodge of Texas. The couple has seven grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

New Energy Study Shows Home Improvements

Lubbock homeowners are making energy-saving improvements on their homes and the trend is for more homeowners to do the actual work on these projects themselves.

These are two of the facts uncovered by a summer 1979 study done by the Lubbock Home Energy Program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, according to a recent tabulation of that survey.

During the period of March 1, 1978, to August 31, 1979, this program reached over 26,000 families with information on ways to save energy and alternate sources of energy, the report states. Several community-wide seminars were offered as part of this program.

The survey to ascertain the effectiveness of the program was taken by telephone during July of 1979. The sample included 400 people who had participated in the program's seminars or who had received printed information from the service. Another part of the sample was 100 persons from the general public selected at random who had not had contact with the state program.

The survey revealed that many area residents thought their homes were "somewhat energy efficient" or "very energy efficient." Eight out of ten, however, were "still very concerned about energy conservation," the report said.

Although the majority of those contacted identified the Extension Service as the major source of information about energy conservation, some persons said other sources of information were the utility companies, clubs, and Texas Tech University.

The survey showed that about one-third of those polled said they had done some of the energy-saving work on their homes. Most usual improvements included caulking and weatherstripping, landscaping, using more efficient window treatments, and changing basic patterns of energy usage.

That more persons are now doing the work on such improvements themselves was one of the outstanding measurable results of the program, the report said. While at its beginning about 60 percent of the work was being done by contractors and 40 percent by individual homeowners, at the end of this period those statistics were exactly reversed.

In some cases, the need for improvements were identified but the work not completed. Reasons given for not following through with their completion included "not having the money needed for the tasks, lack of economic 'payoff' for their spending, and not having the time to do the job themselves."

The coordinator for the Lubbock Energy Program was Jane W. Cohen who resigned in August to return to advanced studies at Tech. The Lubbock Energy Extension Program is now making a major effort to help small businesses with energy conservation. However, families wanting more information about home energy saving projects, may contact Linda Pittman, Lubbock County Extension Agent, at 301 County Office Building or by calling her at 763-5351.

To Your Good Health

By PAUL DONOHUE, M.D.
Dear Dr. Donohue: Please tell me what causes a navel cyst in an infant. How can it be treated? — Mrs. C.E.D.

I'd have to know more about the specific cyst in order to answer this properly. I can suggest causes to investigate.

One form of navel cyst is called urachal (u-RAY-kul) cyst. It is a remnant from fetal development. During this period, a channel connects the bladder to the navel. It gradually becomes a fibrous cord. A cyst may form at the navel end. Urine may drain from the bladder through the navel if the channel does not close completely. The treatment is to remove the structure, which ends the problem.

A common cause of navel cyst is an umbilical hernia. That is a protrusion of abdominal contents (such as a bit of intestine) through a weakness in the navel. Treatment of a hernia depends on its size and the age of the child. Some can be watched to see if they correct themselves. Others require surgery.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is a stricture in the gullet or throat the same as a hiatal hernia? How is each treated? Sometimes, when I eat, my food won't go down. — B.F.

They are different conditions. First, hiatal hernia. The muscular tube that allows food to pass from the mouth to the stomach opening is the esophagus (or gullet). In order to enter the stomach the tube must pass through a muscular wall — the diaphragm, which separates the abdominal and chest compartments. A hiatal hernia is bulging of a bit of the stomach upward alongside the gullet at the point of the opening.

A stricture is, as the name implies, a narrowing of the esophagus tube itself. That can occur anywhere along the tube and there can be a number of causes for it. The swallowing of corrosive material (such as lye) can cause it.

The treatment for stricture is different than that for a hiatal hernia. I discussed stricture treatment in a recent article. Briefly it involves either physical dilation or surgery to enlarge the passageway. Hiatal hernia is most often treated conservatively (without surgery) unless the hernia is large. Treatment for hiatal hernia involves many things the patient can do for himself — elevation of the head of the bed at night, antacids, etc. You will find this discussed in greater detail in the booklet you asked for. Hiatal Hernia: Eight Ways to Combat It. Other readers can order a copy by mailing 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is the difference between first and second degree burns, and what is the approved treatment for either kind? — B.S.

DEADLINES

Any information for a daily edition must be in our office two days in advance of publication.

Sunday edition deadlines are 5 p.m. the preceding Tuesday for articles with pictures and noon the preceding Wednesday for articles only. Only Friday and Saturday weddings will appear on Sunday; wedding announcements must run within five days of the event.

Engagement announcements must be submitted at least five weeks prior to the wedding date.

The degree of burn indicates the depth of injury. A first degree burn means the outermost part of the skin (epidermis) has been damaged. The skin is reddened and there may be mild swelling. In a second degree burn the deeper skin (dermis) is affected. Blisters usually appear. In a third degree burn, the tissue below the skin (subcutaneous) has been injured — a serious burn, indeed.

Treatment depends on the degree. For a small first degree burn, immersing the burned area in cold (not ice) water relieves pain. A dry dressing may be used. The same is true for a second degree burn. This kind of burn provides its own cover (the blister). Do not puncture the blister. The area must be kept clean, however, and one should get medical advice.

Third degree or extensive first and second degree burns require some form of prompt professional treatment. The American Red Cross has a very worthwhile book, "Advanced First Aid and Emergency Care." It is published by Doubleday and Co. You can inquire at a bookstore. It's good to have a book of this kind readily available in the home.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Does a woman have to experience an orgasm to get pregnant? — Mrs. M.J.

No.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Writer Illustrates Tragic Consequences For Teenage Runaways

By JOHN IAMS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Sandy Johnson is not your usual junior high and high school assembly speaker. She appears before the student groups with a team of rehabilitated teenage prostitutes who tell their stories — the reality of drugs, Johns, pimps, jail and beatings.

Not the fancy dreams of becoming high-fashion models or movie stars. The school appearances are part of Johnson's personal crusade to stem the tide of teenage runaways, currently 600,000 to 1 million a year.

Ninety percent return home within three days. The others are easy game for the predators that haunt the underside of every large city.

A newspaper story Oct. 3, 1977, marked the beginning of Johnson's quest to help stamp out teenage prostitution. It said:

"The first time Veronica Brunson was arrested she was 11 years old. The charge was prostitution. Before another year passed, the police, unaware of her real age, arrested her 11 more times for prostitution."

"At the age of 12, Veronica was dead — killed in a mysterious plunge from the 10th floor of a shabby midtown hotel."

"I wanted to do something because I was shocked that this 12-year-old girl died horribly and it wasn't even being given a full-scale investigation."

Instead she wrote a novel of preteen and teenage prostitution, based on the Brunson girl's death, a death police listed as a "CUPPI" — Circumstances Undetermined Pending Police Investigation. Veronica's death remains unsolved.

Johnson's research for her book included walking the streets of New York's Times Square area. She posed as a prostitute along with decoy policemen and the police department's pimp squad.

During those dangerous latenight strolls, she interviewed hundreds of teenage streetwalkers. She gained their confidence enough to paint a vivid, ugly portrait of the vicious exploitation of children.

Her novel, "The CUPPI" (Delecorie Press, $8.95) describes the life and death of Frederika Charles, a teenage runaway who falls prey to a smooth-talking pimp who leads her down the torturous path of drugs and pornography. Eventually she dies as Veronica did, flung from a hotel window.

Freddie's death symbolizes the fate awaiting hundreds of teenagers who flee their families and head for big cities to seek fame and fortune.

"I found that children who turn into prostitutes come from homes where they were mistreated, where there was child abuse and where there was over-disciplining," Johnson said in an interview.

"One example was the teenager, a 12-year-old blond, pigtailed girl from the Midwest, who was driven home from a babysitting job by a neighbor who was a judge. On the way, the judge kissed her on the lips and fondled her under her sweater. In tears, she told her parents. Instead of sympathy and understanding, her mother slapped her face and her father demanded to know what she had done to seduce the judge.

"The pimp recognizes the lost, confused and frightened kids," Johnson said. "The pimp comes across as a caring, protective person. But once a kid gets into a pimp's car, it's all over. The kid will be drugged, seduced and put on the street."

"Police hands are virtually tied in dealing with runaway prostitutes.

"The worst problem is that female runaways come into the city and get involved with pimps and, quite often, the pimp will woo them, then have them work in a massage parlor against their will," said Sgt. George Trapp of the New York City Police department pimp squad.

From there, it's only a step away from the streets, or "the stroll," in police parlance.

To keep them there, some small-time pimps resort to violence.

"More sophisticated procurers form a love relationship, a gradual process," Trapp said.

"There is no way we can find this out. By then, girls have already been introduced to a life of prostitution."

For Trapp and his men, "the big problem is to get to the runaway before the pimp. They have no food, no money and no place to stay. The pimp talks to her, finds out where she is from, what her dreams are, etc.

"Finally," Trapp said, "the day comes and he says, 'if you love me, you will work the streets.'"

Sometimes older hookers help the young victims. The legendary prostitute "with a heart of gold" exists, Trapp said, but "certainly not to the customer."

"But they will contact my men when they spot a runaway or young inexperienced prostitute who is in trouble with a pimp."

"We couldn't exist without these street people. We get tremendous results. But to do it, we have to talk to them, gain their trust and their cooperation."

Johnson's goal is to "create a loud enough public outcry to get tougher legislation and to create rehabilitation centers so kids have some alternative."

"If going back home is not feasible, then we have to have more kinds of crisis centers to get them off the streets until we can find something better."

To the potential runaway, she says this: "Don't head for the city, rather get to a crisis center, a place where you can talk your problems out."

"If you think you're going to be discovered by some talent scout for the movies or modeling, think again. You'll be discovered all right, but by a smooth-talking pimp who knows just who you are."

Western religious life. He said that he regards Jesus as one of the five incarnations of God. He also said that he has felt at home in mosques, synagogues, temples and all kinds of churches because, he explained, he sees all people as God's creations. He said there are many links between his beliefs and the transcendental movement represented in American literature by Emerson and Thoreau.

During his hour with the Tech students and professors, Swami Bhashyananda told many stories to illustrate his points. He said the pursuit of inner peace is a basic tenet of his faith, and by his quiet and gentle manner of teaching and patiently responding to questions, demonstrated that it is his way of meeting life situations.

In addition to this meeting, the swami also conducted an open seminar Friday at the Lubbock Universalist-Unitarian Church.

He described life in the society's monastery as one of meditation, reading and attending to jobs such as maintenance of the property and the building of a new monastery. Their day begins as early as 4:30 or 5 a.m., when residents gather for chanting the Vedas (ancient Hindu hymns and rituals) and for meditation. A similar period is set aside for devotions at the end of the day, he said.

The swami said he finds it difficult to understand the competition between segments and among denominations in

Visiting Swami Addresses Tech Students, Faculty

By CONNIE CHAPMAN
Family News Staff

In dialogue with several students and faculty members of the Department of Biblical Literature of Texas Tech University Thursday, Swami Bhashyananda of the Vivekandana Society of Chicago emphasized that all religious people of the world worship the same God, although they may call Him by different names.

He said that although his particular brand of religion originating in India may sound new and "foreign," his society has actually been in the United States since 1893, when a swami came to an exhibition held in Chicago to be represented among the spectrum of religions of the world.

He said that there are now 17 centers in the United States, at each of which a swami, or teacher, is in residence. Other cities in this country have groups which a swami like Bhashyananda visits periodically.

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby
and Alan Sontag

This is your workhorse bid. It can be made with any distribution and almost any high-card strength.

You don't open one of a suit when your hand meets all requirements for a bid in notrump or is strong enough so you can afford to open with a strong forcing bid. At the minimum end of the spectrum you normally require at least 11 HCP (one point more than your fair share of high cards).

With that 11 HCP you only open when you have a six-card suit or good five-card suit and not always then.

With 12 HCP, pass with 4-3-3-3 and open most of the time with any other distribution.

With 13 HCP you are a full king above average. You should only pass with 4-3-3-3 distribution and very seldom then.

Get up to 14 HCP and you have the equivalent of an ace above average. You can't afford not to open.

Choice of Suit

When you have a two-suit (two suits of five cards or more), you open the higher ranking if they are equal in length and the longer if they are unequal. With just one five-card suit, you open that suit. With no five-card suit you always have a choice.

The Utility Club

Suppose you pick up S-A-Q x x H-K x x D-J x x C-A x x. In the early days of contract this hand presented no problem. You opened one spade with your good four-card spade suit. Somehow or other even those early players found this start led to trouble. You got to all sorts of bad game contracts. Around 1923 the young experts of that day started opening these hands with one club and the three-card club opening had arrived.

Note that this club bid is not forcing. If you use it regularly you can expect to be left in it once every couple of years. You can expect to find yourself raised to two or three considerably more often, but in such circumstances your partner is going to have at least four clubs to help you.

We will devote next Saturday's article to the whole problem of the choice of suit when you don't have one of five cards.

Professional Prodigies Find Risking Lives 'Easy To Swallow'

By TOM TIEDE
QUEBEC (NEA) — When Michel Lotito was a French schoolboy he used to amuse people by allowing himself to be brutalized. Chums would hit him on the nape of the neck with baseball bats, or run him through with needles. It was all grand, if somewhat bizarre, sport. Everyone involved had a lot of laughs.
 Now grown up, Lotito is still being tortured.

But not just for laughs anymore. These days he does it for money. Lotito is a professional prodigy, one of a growing number of superlative performers who often risk their lives — or demonstrate the impossible — for a living. Audiences now pay Lotito so they can throw darts into his back, light matches under his fingernails, and pinch the skin of his arms with pliers.
 And when that kind of thing flags, Lotitto may encore by eating a bicycle—all of it, including the drive chain. Especially the drive chain, actually. Lotito says bicycles themselves are rather ordinary fare, all those spokes and sprockets. But the chains, ah, when they are greased "they have a taste!"

 Admittedly, not everyone finds it easy to swallow Lotito's act. But the market for such curiosities is definitely on the increase. Lotito gets nearly $1,000 a day, plus expenses, for abusing himself. Hundreds of other prodigies now earn just as much for hiring out as human bombs, human torches and so forth.

Many of the performers are hired out of Quebec, where a showman named Guy St-Laurent operates one of the world's largest booking agencies for the strange. St-Laurent, a one time hypnotist himself, says his stable of daredevils and illusionists can do everything from wrestle helicopters to live without air.
 Examples:

•Ceric, the human torch. He is a 42-year-old baker who climbs on a platform, soaks himself with gasoline, and lights a match. He is completely engulfed in 700-degree flames for nearly a minute, and then he jumps to safety in a tub of water.

•William Klein, the human computer. He is a former nuclear mathematician who is said to be able to beat a computer in extracting a 73 root from a 500 digit number. The computer takes 3 minutes to do it. Klein takes 2 minutes and 42 seconds.

•Guy Coudoux, whose specialty is not breathing. He claims to have the ability to climb into an airtight box and remain inside for up to six hours. For those who doubt the box is airtight, he then is immersed underwater for another 60 minutes.

•Yvon Yva, a shaman. St-Laurent says this mystic is the only man ever to undergo an appendectomy while wide awake. He can also hypnotize animals. Some years ago, while flying in a helicopter, he reportedly put 12 people on the ground to sleep.

And speaking of helicopters, one of St-Laurent's prodigies wrestles them with his teeth. John Massis, a 210-pound mailman, attaches one end of a rope to a chopper and the other to his choppers—and so prevents the helicopter from taking off. He can also pull the dead weight of a 130-ton wagon in this manner.

Who wants to see someone pull a wagon with his teeth? St-Laurent says his primary clients are corporations and social clubs:

HUMAN DART BOARD — Michel Lotito gets paid nearly $1,000 per day to allow audiences to throw darts into his back and light matches under his fingernails. For an encore he eats a bicycle. (NEA Photo)

Prayer On North Carolina Map Reason Behind Court Battle

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A federal appeals court was told Friday that allowing a prayer to be printed on a North Carolina highway map could open the floodgates to prayers on all manner of government publications.
 "If we permit this, we may somewhere down the line have to deal with a Trinitarian prayer, a Baptist prayer and so on," attorney Michael K. Curtis told the 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.
 Curtis was arguing on behalf of two North Carolina residents who sought to stop the state from printing a "Motorists' Prayer" on millions of North Carolina road maps.
 Assistant North Carolina Attorney General Jane R. Thompson said the courts have frequently ruled that many religious symbols can be used without interfering with the separation of church and state.
 "This is an innocuous non-denominational prayer almost hidden away on the map," she said. "I don't think anyone could argue that it significantly advances religion."

 The plaintiffs, Lawrence C. Roush and Mary G. P. Hall, contended the prayer violates constitutional requirements for separation of church and state.
 U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree ruled against them in March 1979, finding that the prayer had a secular purpose and did not constitute excessive entanglement of the state in religion.
 He called the suit "constitutional nit-picking."
 Curtis argued before the three-member appeals panel that his main concern was that the prayer was an opening wedge for more flagrant violations.

TV Show Deals With Concert Tragedy

CINCINNATI (AP) — Next week's episode of the television comedy series "WKRP In Cincinnati" has a sober side — the theme is the Dec. 3 tragedy in which 11 people died in a crush outside Riverfront Coliseum before a concert by the rock group, The Who.

Actor Richard Sanders, who plays newsman Les Nessman, said he and other cast members had a tough time doing the episode, which is scheduled to be shown on CBS Monday night.

The show begins with WKRP staffers making arrangements to go to a concert. In the second half, Sanders said, the characters are numbed by what they see there.

In the real incident, the 11 people were killed when a crowd pressed through the doors to get to unreserved seats. "We felt we had an objective in mind," Sanders said. "We wanted to have people learn a lesson from what happened, to perhaps get the concept of open seating outlawed."

"By means of demonstrating what happens in one city, other cities will become conscious of the dangers," Sanders said. Sanders admits the cast knew it was taking a risk going with a "non-comic" theme for one show.

Painter J.M.W. Turner died in 1851.

DENIES ALLEGATIONS — Actress Bo Derek denies at a press conference in Hollywood Thursday that the presence of her husband, John Derek, on the set of her current film, "A Change of Seasons," led to the firing of director Noel Black (AP Laserphoto)

Star Denies Husband Caused Recent Firing

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bo Derek, movieland's sex symbol for the 1980s, denied at a news conference Thursday that she and her husband had forced the firing of the director of her latest picture.

She insisted her husband, John Derek, didn't intrude on the filming of "A Change of Seasons" in New England as had been widely reported.

"John and I are always together," she said. "But he was on the set very rarely. Derek is credited with masterminding his wife's success in the movie, '10,' which created a rage for her beaded cornrow hairstyle. She wore her hair loose Thursday.

Mrs. Derek, 23, arrived with "Change of Seasons" producer Martin Ransohoff, who said he had fired director Noel Black because of "artistic differences."

"Neither John nor Bo was responsible," he said. "I had not discussed the replacement with them."

Published reports from the film's location in Vermont had Derek fighting with Black over camera angles used to photograph Mrs. Derek in the film, which stars Shirley MacLaine and Anthony Hopkins.

Derek, 53, a photographer and former actor, was not at the news conference and his wife said he was busy working on "some magazine assignments."

Veteran Hollywood reporters said they hadn't seen such interest in a star's press conference since Marilyn Monroe announced her divorce from Joe DiMaggio.

"Bo!" shouted one reporter, "with the things happening in Afghanistan and Iran, how come Bo Derek can fill a room to talk about the firing of a director?"

"It's sad," said Mrs. Derek. "I think the world has its priorities mixed up."

Noel Black, reached at his home, declined to comment on the Dereks.

"The only one who can take a director off a picture is the producer, and Noel's what happened," he said.

Asked if he and Derek had battled, Black said, "Listen, I'm just going fishing."

Boston Book Shop Moving Location

BOSTON (AP) — The Brattle Book Shop, destroyed when fire burned its 400,000 books last week, will begin moving into a new location near its old home Saturday.

The shop, one of America's oldest antiquarian book stores, will move into a former furniture store just a few feet from its former location.

Mayor Kevin H. White and owner George Gloss planned to launch the move with a news conference at the West Street building.

JET CRASHES

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A British Royal Air Force pilot and his navigator were killed when their Buccaneer Mark 2-B jet crashed on the Nellis Air Force Gunnery Range in the Nevada desert. The two were among 150 RAF officers taking part in combat exercises in which planes maneuver at high speeds and low altitudes.

Blazers Pay High Price For Nets' Rookie Natt

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Two starters on Portland's 1977 National Basketball Association title team were sent packing Friday as the Blazers shipped forward Maurice Lucas to New Jersey and guard Lionel Hollins to Philadelphia.

The roster shakeup, which brought Nets' rookie forward Calvin Natt to the Blazers, had been anticipated for several weeks because both Lucas and Hollins are after bigger contracts.

Both also had seen their playing time diminish drastically this season. Ironically, Hollins had been elected Blazer team captain by his teammates this season. Lucas was the team captain last year.

The trade leaves Bob Gross, Dave Twardzik and Larry Steele as the only players left from the '77 title team.

The 6-foot-9 Lucas, once considered the epitome of a power forward, had two years remaining on a contract that reportedly pays him $800,000 per year. He had demanded prior to the start of this season that the Blazers either renegotiate his contract or trade him.

"I don't think there's any question in my mind that as of now, Calvin Natt helps our team much more than Maurice Lucas has been helping us," said Blazers' coach Jack Ramsay.

"I'm disappointed in losing Maurice Lucas in respect to the fine play that he's given us in Portland," Ramsay added. "I'm sorry it did not work out for him and the team, but that's the way things are in professional sports."

The deal sending the 26-year-old Hollins to Philadelphia was announced just four hours after the Lucas-Natt trade was revealed. The 76ers had been looking for another guard since an attempt to sign Pete Maravich failed. Maravich wound up playing for Philadelphia's top Eastern Conference rival, the Boston Celtics.

Hollins, a 6-foot-4 guard from Arizona State in his fifth NBA season, was playing out the option year of his five-year contract that reportedly pays him $150,000 per year. Philadelphia sources said Hollins was expected to ask for twice that much in any new deal.

Hollins' agent, Larry Fleisher, had met with 76er officials in recent days to try to reach an agreement on a new contract. In exchange for Hollins, the Blazers picked up Cleveland's first-round draft choice this year and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Portland had to give New Jersey two first-round draft choices and Lucas in exchange for Natt, a promising 6-6 player coveted by the Blazers since he joined the NBA. "I think we have one of the bright stars of the future in the NBA," Ramsay said. "I think the addition of Calvin gives us probably the best forward corps we could possibly have."

With Kermit Washington, Jim Brewer — and the injured Mychal Thompson expected to return next season — the Blazers considered Lucas expendable, especially in light of his intense desire to have his contract renegotiated.

The 28-year-old Lucas has four more years to go on a deal that reportedly pays him $600,000 a season. He also has been openly campaigning for a trade after falling into disfavor with coach Jack Ramsay.

Portland has coveted Natt for quite some time. Back in October, before Natt established himself as one of the best small forwards in the league and before Lucas' value had apparently slipped, the two teams were close to a deal that would have sent the rookie and a No. 1 pick to Portland for Lucas.

Natt, 23, New Jersey's top pick in the 1979 draft from tiny Northeast Louisiana, had been the Nets' best player this season. The 6-6 son of a minister, nicknamed "Rugged," was the Nets' second leading scorer, averaging 19.7 points, and their leading rebounder with 9.8 a game. "This is the toughest deal we've ever had to make," Nets General Manager Charlie Theokas said. "We're losing a bona fide, certified player. He's a great rookie and an outstanding person."

LCC Men Look To End Skid

The Lubbock Christian College basketball team, which has traded a six-game winning streak for a three-game losing string all in the space of one week, returns to action against Tarleton State at 8 o'clock tonight in Stephenville.

The Chaps have lost to McMurry, Sul Ross and Mary College (N.D.) since last Saturday and now own a 14-15 record.

Coach Larry Hays is concerned about the morale and mental state of his team, particularly after its loss to Mary College 64-63 at the buzzer Thursday night.

"We've got to go back to basics, and everybody's got to get back in it rather than just a few," he said. "If this (Mary game) doesn't get us to the point of playing for our lives, I don't know what will. I hope our players realize the fix they're in and meet the challenge."

The Chaps are 4-3 in Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association action, including conference victories over Tarleton and Monday night's opponent, Trinity. The latter game will be played in San Antonio.

As for the Chaps' possibility of folding, Hays said, "We've got too many good people to do that. Kevin Wharton has pride and he'll do everything he can. I mention his name first because he's a senior, but you can go right down the line and find people that care."

LCC is ranked fifth in the Dunkel ratings, which determine the top six teams and qualifiers for the NIAA District 8 post-season tournament in March. That poll, however, was taken prior to the Chaps' three straight losses.

"We know it's just as easy to come back to the top as it is to go to the bottom," Hays said. "I know we're going to try."

The LCC women's team, 4-2 in the TIAA and 6-12 overall, also returns to action today with a game against the Tarleton women directly preceding the men's contest.

Coach Dave Simpson's squad lost to Tarleton 79-57 earlier in the season.

TIAA Honors Chap Cager

Sherry Williams of Lubbock Christian College was named the Texas Independent Athletic Association's athlete of the week Friday.

Miss Williams, a 5-11 post on the Chaparrals women's basketball team, is only the third LCC athlete to receive this honor.

She was honored for her 21-point, 14-rebound performance in a 66-50 win over Sul Ross State at home Monday night.

In that game, she connected on eight of 17 field goal attempts and five of six free throw shots.

The LCC women's basketball team is now 4-2 in TIAA play and 6-12 overall. Tonight they travel to Tarleton State in Stephenville for another contest.

City Students To Be Dismissed Early

Lubbock public school students will be dismissed from classes at 2 p.m. Monday so that teachers may participate in special education in-service meetings.
Students also will be released early on March 10 for another in-service workshop in special education.
Senate Bill 350, passed during the last state legislative session, mandated that all teachers receive at least seven hours of in-service training in education for the handicapped and "hard to teach."
The meetings are designed to help teachers to know what to expect from special education students who have been mainstreamed into the regular classroom and to instruct the teachers in techniques to be used in working with such students.

On Monday, teachers will meet at designated schools from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m. for the workshop that will feature audiovisual presentations, including a film and speakers.
Follow-up sessions prior to the March meeting will include after-school meetings at each individual school building.

Health Board, Restaurants Eager To Resolve Ordinance Debate

By MARY ALICE ROBBINS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Members of the City Health Board and the Lubbock Restaurant Association still don't see eye-to-eye on the exact wording of a proposed food service sanitation ordinance, which has been under consideration here for more than a year.

However, at Friday's meeting of the health board, both groups expressed their eagerness to resolve the problems that have held up passage of the ordinance.

LRA representatives Priscilla Sims and Bob York met with the health board to discuss the proposed ordinance. And they brought along a few changes for the board's consideration.

City Health Director Marjorie Orr has proposed that the city adopt the Rules on Food Service Sanitation passed by the Texas Board of Health in 1977. Those rules deal specifically with food service establishments, Dr. Orr explained. She said that regulations for other food-related businesses could be dealt with in future city ordinances.

Mrs. Sims, who serves as president of the LRA, said her organization is in agreement with the proposed implementation of the state rules. But the restaurant owners want to clarify some of the wording and definitions included in those regulations.

One of the changes sought by the restaurant owners deals with the portion of the ordinance covering older restaurants. The ordinance allows a restaurant owner to keep equipment that does not meet the current standards as long as the equipment meets the requirements of earlier codes and passes a health inspection.

If the restaurant owner sells his business, however, the new owner would have to bring the equipment up to the current standards. And members of the restaurant association said that's where the rub comes in.

According to York, the current wording of the proposed ordinance puts an administrative agency in control over the sale of 50 percent of the food service establishments in Lubbock. He maintained that many restaurant owners or the owners of hotels and motels with cafes could not sell their businesses if the future owners were faced with the major expense of installing all new equipment.

Both Mrs. Sims and York argued that the wording dealing with any change of ownership should be deleted from the regulations.

But Dr. Orr noted that the same requirement already exists in the current food sanitation ordinance. "I think it's a good idea to bring these places up to date," she told the board.

Another change sought by the LRA has to do with the requirements for waste containers at local restaurants. The ordinance would require all waste containers to have "tight-fitting" lids.

York pointed out that the dumpsters and waste containers are owned by private waste disposal firms and not the restaurants. He questioned why the restaurant owners should receive demerits for the condition of equipment owned by other individuals.

"I understand the problem," York said, "but I don't want the enforcement placed on me." He said the city should consider removing the permits of the waste disposal companies if they do not bring their equipment up to standards.

The restaurant association also proposed changes in the portion of the ordinance dealing with exposed construction, but those proposals were not discussed at Friday's meeting. What the LRA is seeking is the inclusion of certain definitions of studs, joists and exposed construction covered by the rules, Mrs. Sims said.

Most of the proposed changes submitted by the LRA dealt with the same objections raised by the restaurant owners when the city council first considered the proposed food sanitation ordinance last year.

Health Board Chairman Ray Santos told the restaurant owners that he did not want to rehash the board's past experience in seeking passage of the ordinance. "We don't want to go through a debate over semantics and words," Dr. Santos said.

He asked Dr. Orr to review the changes submitted by the LRA and to report her recommendations back to the board in the near future. He said that a review of Dr. Orr's findings would form the basis of the health board's recommendation to the council on the ordinance.

Members Of 'Committee 80' Accused Of Ignoring Feelings Of Residents

By TRAVIS BROWN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Members of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's Committee 80 were accused Thursday night of being unconcerned about the needs of Lubbock residents, particularly of women and minorities.

About 50 people gathered at Lubbock High School in the last of a series of town hall meetings to discuss goals for the city in the coming decade.

Most comments at the meeting centered around improving Lubbock's image throughout the rest of the state and the country.

But one woman remarked, "It seems like everybody on the committee is more interested in what people outside of Lubbock think than with the feelings of the people in Lubbock."

Dr. Robert Rouse of the chamber's economy committee responded, "That's the purpose of this meeting."

Several persons also criticized the committee for having so few minorities represented.

"On this committee I see eight white males, no females and no minorities presenting these goals to the city," a woman said. "I hope you will include us in your future activities."

During the meeting, Roger Key of the Spirit of Lubbock Committee said the chamber plans to distribute pamphlets and bumper stickers to promote Lubbock.

"But bumper stickers aren't going to accomplish a thing," a member of the audience said. "It's going to take something more in depth than bumper stickers to convince people in Houston, San Antonio and Austin that we're not that much different than they are."

A committee member added that the chamber is considering hiring a public relations firm to promote the city, and a member of the audience suggested the city buy radio time in other large cities to promote Lubbock.

Another man suggested, "How do we get Dirk West on the Tonight Show?"

Byrnie Bass, vice chairman of Committee 80, suggested with tongue in cheek that the chamber might not want to advertise Lubbock too much. "Let them think this is a city of street fights and bad restaurants. Let them think this: we don't want to attract a crowd."

Despite criticism leveled at the chamber committee, the meeting ended with the audience expressing its thanks to committee members and applauding them for their efforts.

And Bass admitted after the meeting that some of the residents had legitimate gripes.

"Let's face it, people don't come to these things unless they are dissatisfied," he said. Bass added that he will work to see that more women and minorities be included in chamber activities.

Bass said he believed that one of the major concerns expressed both at Thursday night's meeting and at gatherings held across the city Tuesday was for improved health care for the elderly and the poor.

Two More Candidates File For Council Spot

Interest in the Lubbock City Council races picked up Friday, with two more candidates filing for the Place 4 spot on the council.

The necessary filing papers were submitted to the city secretary's office by 40-year-old Raul Sanchez, director of the Mexican-American Chamber of Commerce here, and 18-year-old Ziggy Godowick, a freshman architecture major at Texas Tech University.

COMPLETE STOCKS ON NYSE, AMEX

Stocks' Rise Continues

NEW YORK (AP) — Energy stocks continued their runaway rise Friday as the market capped off its fifth straight advancing week with a sharp gain.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial jumped 10.16 to 895.65, moving within striking distance of its 1979 peak of 897.61 reached last Oct. 5. The average rose 14.25 for the week, bringing its gain over the past five weeks to 66.89 points.

Several other indicators established record highs for the third day in a row.

New York Stock Exchange volume totaled 57.86 million shares, against 57.69 million the week before.

The market's early-1980 rally has been fueled by what analysts are calling a "natural-resources mania" as traders look for hedges against inflation.

By the end of January, the NYSE reported Friday, the surge in prices had pushed the market value of all its listed common and preferred stocks over $1 trillion for the first time, and it has gone still higher since.

Friday's standout performers were issues with energy interests in the Uinta County, Wyo. area — site of a gas well being drilled by Standard Oil of Indiana that has stirred intense speculative interest on Wall Street.

Indiana Standard said Friday that, while it was encouraged by tests to date, considerable further work would be needed to get a final reading on commercial prospects in the area.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials was up 2.08 at 133.70, and S&P's 500-stock composite index gained 1.67 to 117.95.

Stock traders have showed little inclination to wait, however. Indiana Standard shares, which stood two weeks ago at 87 1/2, climbed 4 1/2 to 108 1/4 as of the 4 p.m. close in New York.

Dow Chemical, which has a stake in the same well and interests in other nearby properties, picked up 5 1/4 to 38 1/4 for the day's biggest percentage gain among Big Board stocks.

Among other partners in the well, Gulf Oil gained 3 1/4 to 47 1/4 and Union Pacific added 4 1/4 to 96 1/4.

Elsewhere in the energy group, Texaco gained 1 1/4 to 40 1/4 and led the active list on turnover of more than 1.17 million shares; Mobil gained 1 1/4 to 63 1/4, Exxon 2 1/4 to 66 1/4, and Mountain Fuel Supply 3 1/4 to 37 1/4.

The story was much the same at the American Stock Exchange, where eight of the 10 most active issues were energy stocks. Houston Oil & Minerals climbed 1 1/4 to 31 1/4, Imperial Oil 2 1/4 to 43, and McCulloch Oil 1 to 14 1/4.

While such natural-resource issues boomed, many other stock groups continued to lag. The daily tally on the NYSE showed gainers outnumbering losers by a relatively narrow 4-3 margin.

The NYSE's composite index gained 88 to 67.37, the Amex market value index 4.54 to 288.79, and the NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market 1.48 to 165.25, as all three of those indicators posted new highs.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials was up 2.08 at 133.70, and S&P's 500-stock composite index gained 1.67 to 117.95.

Federal Reserve Announces Rise In Nation's Basic Money Supply

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's basic money supply rose by $1.6 billion, the Federal Reserve announced Friday, using its new definition, M1A. M1A, nearly the same as the old M1, consists of currency in circulation and checking accounts at commercial banks. It rose to a seasonally adjusted average of $373.1 billion in the week ended Jan. 30 from $371.5 billion in the previous week. A broader money-supply measure called M1B, which is M1A plus checking-like deposits at all depository institutions, stood at a seasonally adjusted average of $389.3 billion during the reporting week, an increase of $1.4 billion from $387.9 billion in the previous week, the Federal Reserve said. For the latest four weeks, M1A averaged $372.6 billion, a 5.1 percent rate of increase from 13 weeks ago. M1B averaged $389.1 billion in the four-week period, a 5.6 percent rate of gain in the statistical quarter. Robert Sinche, economist at Bear Stearns & Co., said the new numbers indicate that the Fed's policy of monetary restraint "seems to be working. Total reserves have been stable to down a bit." The Fed's announced aim since October has been to prevent burgeoning reserves as a way to slow the growth of the nation's basic money supply and thereby dampen inflation. Too rapid a growth in the money supply aggravates inflation by putting more money into circulation than the nation's output of goods and services can absorb.

Sinche also said the rate of growth in the money supply for the four-week period was not excessive, but noted that it was hard to assess the significance of the numbers "because there is no historical data to compare them to." The Federal Reserve this week stopped using its old measures of the money supply such as M1 and M2 in reporting weekly money supply data. The Fed also this week switched its weekly reporting day from Thursday to Friday. Other monetary indicators for the week ended Wednesday, Jan. 30 included: The average rate paid by major banks on large certificates of deposits rose slightly to 13.41 percent from 13.4 percent the previous week. Member bank borrowings from the Federal Reserve System averaged $686 million, down from $1.73 billion. The Fed reduced its holdings of government securities by $629 million. Federal funds, the interest rate on short-term loans of uncommitted reserve funds among banks, averaged 12.8 percent, down from 13.54 percent the previous week. The three-month Treasury bill rate averaged 12.09 percent, down from 12.21 percent. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York reported commercial and industrial loans at the nation's major banks rose $23 million in the week ended Jan. 30, compared with a drop of $152 million a week before and brought the total to $152.3 billion.

Expert Says U.S. Must Create Product Demand

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The United States must create an international demand for more U.S. products if it hopes to stop paying more than it gets back on world markets, a trade expert said Friday. Bartering a bushel of grain for a barrel of oil is nonsensical because it doesn't have one in ten billion chances of working, said Dr. Clayton Yeutter, an assistant U.S. Agriculture Secretary for international affairs under former Presidents Nixon and Ford. Yeutter, president of the Chicago Mercantile Exchange, spoke at a seminar on "U.S. Agri-Business and the Energy-Rich Nations." He predicted in an interview that the United States could favorably tip its imbalance of payments by reducing its dependency on foreign oil and by aggressively selling more U.S. products on world markets. Yeutter said solutions to the oil dependency problem were finding alternate energy sources and "the only way to break any cartel — find alternate sources outside the cartel or develop substitute products, such as nuclear, coal, gasohol or whatever." He said industry, with help from government, then should follow agriculture's example in pursuing "a more aggressive export program."

Yeutter, who also has served on trade missions to other nations, said agriculture learned years ago of its domestic limitations and consequently adopted aggressive trade attitudes that industry might follow. The government can help stimulate exports, said Yeutter, by softening the tax load on investors and industry. "We've had it too easy in the U.S. with its big domestic market for industrial products. We sat back and said, 'Nah, that's too complex' or 'We don't want to deal with the language problem.' But that domestic market is not that excellent any more." "We simply can't afford to solve our balance of payments problems through the continued devaluation of the dollar. There's been a massive transfer of the world's wealth to the oil-producing nations and we cannot continue where we are without a tremendous sacrifice in our standard of living, which most of us have experienced already." "We're going to have to start beating on doors around the world. We're going to have to start designing our products to appeal to people in other nations. We've got to master languages. To bring our import bill down, we've got to bring our export levels up." "There's no reason we can't turn it around by 1990," Yeutter said.

Billions In Duties Reported At Ports

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York-New Jersey port collected more than $2.5 billion in duties and assessments last year to again lead the nation in total customs last year, Dennis T. Snyder, regional commissioner of customs announced Friday. Los Angeles was the only other billion-dollar collector, totaling $1.07 billion for 1979, he said. The figures were up slightly compared to 1978. Plain Clothes Officers To Patrol Riding Bicycles HOUSTON (AP) — A police chief hopes plain clothes officers patrolling the streets on bicycles will cut down on the residential and business burglaries. "I want these burglars to be paranoid as hell when they come in the city," said West University Place Police Chief Frank Robinson. He said he hopes the plan will surprise burglars watching for police cars and added the first officer to make an arrest will receive a steak dinner.

The New York collection total includes revenues from Albany, N.Y., Newark, N.J., and Kennedy Airport as well as the city's seaport. Other leading collection areas and their 1979 totals: Detroit, $425 million; San Francisco, $382 million; New Orleans, $374 million; Philadelphia, $369 million; Boston, $328 million; Chicago, $298 million. Also, Baltimore, $297 million; Seattle, $296 million; Houston, $270 million; Buffalo, $157 million, and Tampa, $153 million. SECT MEMBER FINED DENVER (AP) — A member of a fundamentalist Christian sect has been fined $200 for brandishing a 10-foot spearlike pole at Hare Krishna members soliciting donations at Stapleton International Airport. Stanley Baker of Aurora, a member of Lovingway United Pentecostal Church, told District Judge John Brooks Jr. at Thursday's hearing that he did not have the money to pay the fine. Brooks gave him one week to come up with the money.

Dollar Strong In Most Markets; Gold Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold was mixed Friday, rising in New York and London but dropping sharply in Zurich. The U.S. dollar was stronger against all major currencies except the Canadian dollar on currency markets. Gold fell $14 from Thursday's close to $688.50 an ounce in Zurich, but advanced $5 in London to $697.50. As Thursday's hopes for a speedy release of the U.S. hostages in Tehran began to wane, gold for February delivery climbed $5 to $694.50 on New York's Commodity Exchange Inc. and rose $2 to $692 in late Republic National Bank C. New York dealings. In a speech in New York, French Prime Minister Raymond Barre said "attempts to exclude gold from the world monetary system" already "have failed," and foreign governments "won't give up" gold as a monetary reserve asset. While the United States has pressed for a gradual reduction in the international monetary role of gold and has been steadily auctioning off its gold holdings, Barre said governments "would be well advised to keep the gold they have rather than selling it for the fun of it." Currency markets were very quiet Friday, with one New York trader saying "people were just sitting there in the middle of the morning, twiddling their thumbs." The dollar advanced to 241.70 Japanese yen in New York after closing earlier in Tokyo at 240.825 yen. On Thursday, the dollar was quoted at 240.12 yen in New York and 240.10 yen in Tokyo. The British pound, weakened by labor woes, was quoted at $2.2995 in New York and $2.2960 in London, against $2.3025 in New York and $2.3005 in London Thursday. New York dollar rates at 4 p.m. EST included: 1.7395 West German marks, up from 1.7382 Thursday; 4.0773 French francs, up from 4.0683; 1.6185 Swiss francs, up from 1.6135; and 1.1588 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1590. Late dollar rates in Europe were: Frankfurt, 1.7411 marks, up from 1.7376; Zurich, 1.61975 Swiss francs, up from 1.6080; Paris, 4.0790 French francs, up from 4.0695; Amsterdam, 1.9225 Dutch guilders, up from 1.9165; and Milan, 807.00 Italian lire, up from 805.95.

CONCORD HOUSE. 3 days only FRIDAY-AND SATURDAY, 9 to 5:30 SUNDAY, 12 to 5:30 FEBRUARY 8, 9, & 10th. SALE Oriental Rug Showing. A large selection of handmade Oriental and Persian Rugs (new and old). Kerman-Kashan-Tabriz-Ardebil-Suk-Saruk. Good handmade Persian Rugs are recognized as one of the finest investments on today's market. You will appreciate these values! Concord House is proud to present this fabulous showing and sale. Oriental rugs and carpets have been protected for centuries and the rugs and carpets produced today are the same in almost every respect as those produced 500 years ago. The best known and most beautiful rugs come from Persia but there also excellent pieces that come from China, Afghanistan, Turkey, Pakistan, India and Romania. There are other countries in Asia and Africa who produce handmade rugs, but we do not have enough space here to enumerate all of them. All these rugs are made of wool. There are exceptions such as some of the Persian Qum that are made of pure silk. One may ask why is a hand made oriental rug or carpet the most prized and sought after of all floor coverings? The main reasons are: 1) An oriental rug, being entirely hand made, has a guaranteed durability, even accidental damage can be repaired without decreasing the rug's value. This cannot be said of a machine made rug which once damaged, loses its value. 2) The decorative value of an oriental rug is undeniable it greatly enhances a room and creates an immediate impression of friendly warmth on entering it. 3) Provided it is used with care, the value of an oriental rug increases year by year. It is a safe investment and can be turned into ready cash at any time. It is sometimes believed that oriental rugs and carpets are very expensive items. This is not so. We have many fine pieces that sell under $500.00. A brief summary of our rugs and carpets, and their characteristics, is as follows: Persians: The finest pieces come from the towns such as Isfahan, Qum, Kashan, Tabriz and Kerman. In addition there are the nomadic rugs of coarse weave such as Hamadan, Shiraz, Abadeh, Afshar and Belouch. We also have Kelims which have no pile, which come in colorful, geometric designs. Chinese: The thickest pile of all carpets and rugs. They are very luxurious and come in embossed, Aubusson, Floral and Peking designs. Pakistani: Specialties in Bokhara and Afghan designs and in excellent copies of Persian design. Considerably less expensive than Persian rugs. Afghan: In well known elephant foot designs in red and gold. Useful for offices and hallways. Other designs are also produced. Indian: Mainly heavy pile. Produced with beautiful pastel backgrounds in Floral, Aubusson or Chinese Peking designs. Turkish: Made of wool, silk and artificial silk. Some rugs rival those of Persia in quality and design. Reasonably priced. Romanian: mainly copies of Persian designs, but we also have large carpets with the Aubusson design made in wool supplied from England. Extremely good value at very low prices.
