Farm Building Meeting Is Held At Plainview

County Agent Sam Logan, Lonnie Arnold, Ray Carter and W. L. Key, members of the county board, were in Plainview last Thursday attending a meeting of state and county officials in regard to farm building.

The main discussion was the construction of buildings for storage of farm products. Due to recent priority rulings, construction has been limited to actual needs. Buildings for storage of grains and other products of the farm are given first call, and as much as $1,000 worth of material can be purchased for this type of construction. For other buildings the amount is $500. These amounts include all necessary preliminary expense, such as plans, transportation of material, carpenters, or any expense for constructing the building.

Mr. Logan explained that if a farmer did his own work on the building of a granary or storage house, the carpenter charge would not have to be deducted from the amount of lumber he could buy.

Due to lack of storage at terminals, farmers are asked to take steps now for the handling of grain storage. Very little, if any, roofing iron will be available for buildings, it was stated, but other materials will have to be used. Cooperative storage is suggested as very economical. Some of the farm agencies can furnish information on this system of storage.

Civilian Service On Railroads To Be Maintained

There have been rumors recently that people wishing to take vacation trips to western or mountain states could not do so because this class of traffic had been stopped on both railroad and bus lines, due to war demands. However, the Santa Fe through its Department of Public Relations, issued the following statement Tuesday:

All-out war has imposed a great and growing traffic load upon American railroads. Movements of troops and war materials must have first call. But western travelers can do much to help maintain regular civilian rail transportation by doing any one or all of these things:

Make reservations in advance; purchase tickets at the same time, if possible.

If reservations must be cancelled, do so promptly, thus releasing space for others.

Travel is heaviest during July and August, on weekends and holidays—pick other months and days whenever convenient.

Consult passenger representatives for advice on travel problems.

This is the advice of T. B. Gallaher, Chicago, passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fe System Lines, who declared: "Nothing has been or will be permitted to interfere with the utilization of any Santa Fe facility required to win the war. Subject always to this prime obligation, however, we will make every effort to maintain regular and efficient service for civilian travel to, from, or in California and the Southwest."

For the present, he said, and within the limits of war-time vacations, one is as free as ever to enjoy most of the infinitely varied attractions of California, the ranches and resorts of Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona, and other attractions throughout the Santa Fe territory.

PHYSICAL FITNESS PROGRAM

Fire wardens, auxiliary police, Red Cross Motor Corps, Home Guard, and all other local defense units should participate in the statewide physical fitness program, Dr. D. K. Brace, University of Texas professor and director of the program, urges.

Joe Damon returned to Muleshoe last week after an eight-day visit in Oklahoma. He spent several days with his mother at Comanche, and also visited at other points in the state.

Year's Supply Of Fish Expected

Muleshoe should be well stocked with fish, since nine local fishermen have been out for several days with the intention of bringing in a year's supply. The party left Muleshoe last Wednesday and Thursday, going to points along the Colorado River near Austin.

Those making the trip were Roy Jordan, Pat Bobo, Lefty McWilliams, O'Neil Rockey, Walter Moeller, J. C. Smith, Connie Gup-ton, Buford Butts and Jim Cox.

The adventure became too strenuous for five of the expedition, however, and they returned home Sunday, two of them suffering from a severe attack of bellhurltumor.

Victory Council Set Up To Aid Com'unications

Determined to lend a helping hand in the nation's war efforts, thirty of Bailey county's leading farm men and women have pledged themselves to set up a human chain of communication in order that emergency news may be put in the hands of every man, woman and child in the shortest possible time.

The plan was ordered into effect by the president, according to County Agent Sam Logan, and is being carried out in every agricultural county in the nation. In Bailey county, the Land Use Planning Committee, headed by H. E. Schuster, has assumed this responsibility, and in doing so has changed its name to the Agricultural Victory Council.

In short, the plan is similar to the air raid system set up in the cities. The A. V. Council represents at least one man and one woman in each school district. This group is known as community leaders and each in every district has divided its community into neighborhoods, representing from 15 to 40 families each and has appointed neighborhood leaders—one man and one woman in each neighborhood. The job assigned to these community leaders is to see that all emergency news and information reaches the group of families they represent.

Eastern Part Of County Hit By Grasshoppers

It appears now from reports made to and surveys made by County Agent Sam Logan that there is a grasshopper infestation covering the entire eastern portion of Bailey county. The degree of infestation varies from light to moderately heavy and the hoppers are still so small that many farm operators may not have noticed them yet.

The hopper present in most of the fields is the material for the Mexican migratory variety and are a small, dark-colored insect, which is one of the hardest species to poison because of their flight habits. Since it is some forty days from the time the eggs hatch before the grasshopper reaches the mature stage with wings, farmers have a fair chance to poison them in the next few weeks.

The Federal Grasshopper Program has approved Bailey county as an infested area. Material for the mixing of the bait has been ordered and should be available within a few days. The only cast of the mixture to the farmers is a maximum charge of 25 cents per sack wet basis. Farmers are expected to furnish the sacks and to receive the bait at the mixing station, and sign for it. Additional information will be released as soon as bait material is received.

Red Cross workers met every day last week. Two more machines were added, and one worker brought her electric machine. About ten clubs in the county are helping in this work, and by June 1, some 1,400 garments and other articles will have been completed. This does not include knitting.

We wish to express our thanks to the county clubs and others for the help given in this work. —Reporter.

MINEOLA FISHERMAN HAS FUN AS SEASON OPENS

J. C. McGoethlin had a lot of fun the opening day of the fishing season, reports the Wood County Record of Mineola.

First he caught a five-pound bass. Then, with a fly rod, he hooked a nine-pound grackle that according to all the evidence put up one whale of a fight.

The evidence is McGoethlin's broken fly rod.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Vardeman and family have returned from a vacation trip to Brownwood and other points in Texas.

Local Students Poster Winners

Four eighth grade students of the Muleshoe schools were named as winners in a fire prevention poster contest Monday by the State Fire Insurance Department. The posters were submitted during Fire Prevention Week in a statewide contest.

Working on the posters in pairs, Margaret Ann Johnson and Ernestine Gatlin received blue ribbons for their excellent work, as did Neil DeShazo and Juanelo Buchanan. Posters were received by the department from several hundred students over the state.

Restrictions On Shipment Of Grain In Effect

The association of American railroads announces that shipments of grain to all markets will be restricted beginning May 20 because of congested storage facilities.

The action was taken on recommendation of grain storage committees composed of milling and trade representatives, terminal operators, the railroads, and agents of the Agriculture Department.

"For the present," the announcement said, "only grain intended for storage will be affected by this restriction. Grain shipped to any market for sale will be handled as usual, but cars will not be provided for grain to be stored unless assurance can be given that they will be unloaded promptly at destination."

The handling of this year's grain crop is a problem of storage and not of transportation. They will care for the movement of every bushel of grain which can be unloaded promptly.

"The limit is in grain storage space, already nearly filled with the carry-over from previous crops. The restriction now being put into effect upon the recommendation of the grain storage committees is to prevent freight cars being tied up for storage of grain or any other commodity, and to keep them liquid and available for the nation's war transportation movements."

Announce More Loan Programs

Texas grain sorghum, rye and barley growers will have a loan program again this year.

Loan rate for farm-stored rye grading No. 2 or better will be 60 cents per bushel at all locations. Barley loan rates, on farm-storage basis, will be 55 cents per bushel for No. 1, 54 cents for No. 2, 52 cents for No. 3, 49 cents for No. 4, and 45 cents for No. 5. Rates on grain sorghum on same type storage, will be 55, 53, 50 and 45 cents per bushel respectively. Mixed barley and grain sorghum rates will be 2 cents per bushel less.

If grain is stored in warehouses, storage charges must be paid in advance, otherwise a reduction of 7 cents per bushel will be made from the loan rate, P. C. Colgin, state AAA commodity loan specialist, announced.

SANTA FE CARLOADINGS

The Santa Fe System carloadings for the week ending May 16, 1942, were 21,213 compared with 22,671 for the same week in 1941. Received from connections were 9,673 compared with 7,312 for the same week in 1941. The total cars moved were 30,886 compared with 29,963 for the same week in 1941. The Santa Fe handled a total of 30,954 cars during the preceding week of this year.

CHINA IS EXHIBITED

Pine china made from Texas clays in University of Texas ceramics laboratories was one of the featured exhibits at the University student show May 8.

Miss Ida Jane Woolley, who was graduated from Muleshoe high school last Friday night, has returned to her home at Stephenville, where she is manufacturer of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gilbreath.

TRAIN WOMEN FOR AIR

Demand for women in aircraft industries has prompted the University of Texas to set up a defense course for women. The 15-week, non-tuition course, to be given as part of the university's engineering, science and management defense training program, will start early in June.

Sugar Ration No Trouble To Local Grocers

Muleshoe grocers are experiencing little trouble in handling sugar ration stamps, a survey made Tuesday afternoon discloses.

"It appears," one grocer commented, "that folks in this area understand just what they are supposed to do in regard to the rationing. As a result, we have encountered practically no difficulties in handling the stamps."

Each grocer admitted, however, that some customers still do not understand that each stamp is valid only for a designated period of time—two weeks. When the period of validity has expired on a stamp it is worthless to the holder of the book, or anyone else.

One grocer said one of his customers had tried to purchase brown sugar after receiving her ration of white sugar. It was purely a case of misunderstanding, however, and after the merchant explained that the rationing regulations applied to all types of sugar, the customer was satisfied.

A few customers forget to bring their books when coming after sugar, but all have taken it good-naturedly when the grocer or his clerks explain that the sugar cannot be passed across the counter until the stamps are torn out and turned in.

There have been a few instances of customers laboring under the impression that the ration stamps themselves pay for the sugar they buy. But as the arguments have existed from this, it is evident that such opinions are offered more in mock seriousness than anything else.

All customers and grocers alike agree, however, that the inauguration of the sugar rationing program gives each local grocer an important role on the civilian front.

He is entrusted with duties to perform that are possibly more important and extensive than anyone else in the program, with the exception of the local rationing boards.

The most important things for the customer to remember when buying sugar are:

1. The stamp is valid only for the period for which it is issued and cannot be used afterwards.
2. That the grocer cannot, under any circumstances, sell more sugar than that provided for in the regulations.
3. That the stamps must be torn out of the war ration books in the grocer's presence.

Patriotism To Be Theme Of Annual Cowboy Reunion

STAMFORD, Tex., May 11.—There will be no shortage, rationing, or priorities on entertainment or patriotism when the 12th annual Texas Cowboy Reunion is held here July 2, 3 and 4. In fact, every effort will be put forth to make this year's show even bigger than in past performances.

Arena shows, staged twice daily and breath-taking in their bigness, are only a part of the panorama. Old fashioned dances, held each night of the reunion, furnish relaxation for the real cowboys and ranch hands as well as the "drugstore cowboys" who enjoy swooping to the tune of "Little Brown Jug" and other square dance and folk dance tunes. Popular bands entertain modern dancers in the sponsors' pavilion nightly.

TRAIN WOMEN FOR AIR

Demand for women in aircraft industries has prompted the University of Texas to set up a defense course for women. The 15-week, non-tuition course, to be given as part of the university's engineering, science and management defense training program, will start early in June.

EASTERN STAR TO INSTALL

The Eastern Star will hold public installation of officers on June 1, at the Masonic Hall. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Judges Named For NYA Safety Poster Contest

AUSTIN, Tex. — Names of three judges for the statewide NYA safety poster contest being conducted in connection with the current National Youth Administration campaign to save man-power for war production have been announced by J. C. Kellam state youth administrator.

Those making up the judging committee, all of Austin, are Geo. Clarke, managing director, Texas Safety Association; Homer Garrison, director, Department of Public Safety; and Walter T. Rolfe, chairman, Department of Architecture, University of Texas.

"With thousands of youths who have obtained work experience on NYA war work projects gaining jobs in war industries, it is essential that each youth leaving the NYA program for private employment realizes the importance of safe practices and accident prevention," Kellam said. "Slow-ups or shut-downs caused by accidents must be held at a minimum, if American industry is to produce at a maximum."

"To this end the NYA, which has always stressed safety in all types of work operations, is now sponsoring an eight-week campaign to save man-power for war production. Feature of the campaign is a contest to select the NYA project with the best safety record, first on a statewide basis, then nationally. The poster contest is another competition highlighting the campaign."

Posters will be judged on the basis of their general effectiveness in promoting accident prevention and safe habits, rather than on artistic quality. Any youth now gaining work experience through the NYA program may submit one or more entries in the poster contest.

All posters will be exhibited in NYA War Work Shops and at safety rallies conducted by the NYA and cooperating industrial plants.

TUESDAY NIGHT'S RAIN WELCOMED BY PLANTERS

Rain Tuesday night, amounting to between one-fourth and one-half inch, was welcome over the county for planting. Winds the past two weeks had dried out the top moisture, and many farmers had delayed planting of cotton and grain.

Last Thursday morning came near being a record of some kind when thin ice was reported on stock troughs in this section. No damage to growing vegetables or flowers was reported.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to take this means of expressing our sincere appreciation and thanks for the kindness and acts of sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our sister. Also for the beautiful floral offerings.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME

Fire completely started from an oil stove, completely destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Hurst last Friday afternoon. Only a few items were saved, as a strong wind was blowing which carried the flames through the house before anything could be done to save it.

A street lamp that can light a longer stretch of roadway has resulted from defense priorities on metals. The great demand for aluminum forced industrial engineers to find a substitute metal for street light reflectors. They developed a silver-coated glass reflector inside a steel hood that was as good as the aluminum one in all respects, and in some ways better.

To speed war production only two types of bicycles—one for men, the other for women—will be manufactured from now on.

Rider of Buck Diver

THE STORY SO FAR: Buck Hart, the sheriff's brother, Jim Tellow, and Pete Tolman, alleged rustlers, had been "grazed" — shot in the back. Lee Hart is believed to have tried a shot from the back at Cal Terry in retaliation.

Terry had his answer. He had found out what he had come to learn. "You will have to count me out," he told the No. By Joe messenger, and rose to go.

"That's no way to talk, Cal," his host reproved. "I want you to know exactly where I stand. You can tell the others too. I haven't been given a square deal, and I don't like it. All over this country I'm suspected of being at the bottom of this. I'm telling you now that if there's any more monkeying with the cards I leave the table."

He turned and walked out. It had come on to rain, a soft, fine rain that had not drenched. The mountains were no longer visible, and the foothills were vague and shadowy. Calhoun Terry had untied his slicker from the saddle and put it on.

Terry descended a long slope at a walk, forded a trickle of a stream winding down the draw, and put his mount at the slope. The rim above was fringed with aspens, and back of these rose a small grove of aspens. A bullet whistled past him. There was a puff of smoke from the aspens. Terry swung his horse swiftly and raced for the wild cherries on the bluffing of the little creek he had just left. There was another shot. A slug tore through the arm of the slicker he was wearing. After this, three seconds later, two more explosions sounded. But before the echo of the last had died away Calhoun was in the bed of the stream, crouched behind a screen of wild cherry tangle. He had freed the horse and let it wander down the draw, but not before he had withdrawn the rifle from its boot.

His gaze swept the slope, to make sure the enemies were not circling the hillside for a flank attack. For there were at least two of them. The first two shots were from a rifle, the others from a revolver. There was something strange about this. Before he had the revolver had waited until Calhoun was practically out of range. Nor had Calhoun seen the bullets strike on the hillside.

While the foreman waited there came to him news on the breeze. Back of the rim and out of sight a man was riding from the aspens. He heard the swish of bushes and the clink of a hoof against rock. A vague, distant rumor told Terry that the horseman was still going. There might be two of them. He could not tell that.

Terry did not intend to come into the open, nor did he mean to wait there for a possible rear attack. He slipped along the bed of the little stream, and remained behind the Leading animal, he came to the end of the draw and circled a hill, taking care not to let himself be seen by anyone who might still be watching from the aspens. He mounted, but still kept to the low country until he had made a circuit which brought him back of and below the grove from which the shots had come.

This had taken time. Twenty-five minutes or half an hour, Calhoun guessed. He tied the horse and began a slow approach to the rock rim. Before he left he meant to find out all that could be learned about this attempt on his life.

Darkness was beginning to fall. He found the tracks of two horses — but the sign of them where they had come in and again where they had left. A few moments later he came on a discovery that shocked him. The body of a man lay face down on the mud formed by last year's leaves. To his back a paper was pinned. On it was written, "This is what happens to rustlers."

The body was still warm, though the heart had ceased to beat an hour ago. Calhoun turned it over. The man was Black Yeager, a notorious bad man, the first one to be shot at the meeting in Denver. He had been shot twice. One bullet had torn into his stomach. A second had struck him between the eyes. Evidently the revolvers had been used at close quarters, for there were powder marks on the face. Yeager's rifle lay beside him, still clutched in one hand.

Terry tried to reconstruct the scene. Two men had ridden into the aspen clump together. They had dismounted and tied their horses. Whether they had been quarreling, or whether there was an old animosity between them, he did not know. At least there had been no open enmity which would have prevented them from aiding each other on this ride.

To guess the details of what followed was not possible. Yeager had taken two shots at him. The empty shells showed that. Had the other man protested? There had been hardly time for an exchange of words after Black had fired. Moreover, the dead man's face was a witness to the contrary. Fixed on it was a look of shocked surprise, as if the impact of his companion's slugs was entirely unexpected. It smelled to high heaven of treachery. Yeager had been killed by an accomplice. But why? The Diamond Reverser B foreman read again the message on the paper. The meaning of it was perfectly plain. Terry knew the cattleman's association had stock detectives living among the settlers and gathering information. Ellison had admitted as much when Terry's name had come up for voting at the Windsor Hotel in Denver. Some one of these spies must be the assassin.

Terry left the body where he found it and rode to the ranch. He wrote a note to Lane Carey and sent it by a messenger. About eleven o'clock Jim Wong woke him. "Two men want to see boss," the Chinaman said.

Ellen was playing a game of checkers with her father. Usually he could beat her, but after two or three games in the evening he would get sleepy and relax his vigilance. He frowned, made a move and considered it without lifting his fingers. "All right," he said, removing his hand. Ellen promptly took three men. "Hold on! Wait a minute!" Lane Carey protested. The shiny face of Jim Budd appeared in the doorway. "Man to see you, Mista Carey," he drawled. "Brought this here note."

Carey drew a sheet of paper from the envelope. He spent so much time reading it that his daughter grew curious. "More trouble," he said. "Ellen read two or three lines of the letter, then turned back to the signature. "From Calhoun Terry," she murmured, surprised.

I am writing from the ranch (the girl read). If possible, will you come here at once? An hour ago I found the body of Black Yeager about four miles from my house. He had been killed shortly before under very peculiar circumstances. While he was firing at me from ambush a companion of his shot him at close quarters. Please withhold judgment until you realize the facts.

If Jeff Brand is within reach will you bring him with you? He may be able to get a clue as to who the killer is from studying the situation. Until you have seen me, better not discuss this with any others.

"Do you think it's safe to go, father?" she asked. "Let me go with you."

"No," he vetoed. "You'll stay right here."

"I don't like to have you go alone. It may be a trap. Maybe the letter isn't from Mr. Terry."

"It's on Diamond Reverser B stationery. And I'm not expecting to go alone. Jeff Brand will be with me."

"Will Jeff go? He may think this is a plot to trap him."

"Well, you would have to rope and hog-tie him to keep him away. I thought you knew Jeff."

"Let's have the messenger in here where we can see him in the light," Ellen suggested. "You ought to make sure the letter is from Mr. Terry."

"A good idea."

The man who had brought the letter was a Diamond Reverser B cowboy called Slim. Both of the Careys knew him. He said that Calhoun Terry himself had put the letter in his hand. Slim had no idea what was written in it. But the boss had

...Electricity is too important a public service to encourage or invite curtailment when it is unnecessary...

J. A. Krug
Chief of the Power Branch of the Materials Division of the War Production Board

When you save rubber or sugar, tin and lead, they accumulate for war production...

BUT...

When you curtail your use of electricity none of it is saved so long as sufficient capacity is here to serve you.

Curtailment now simply means shutting down a power plant.

That's like telling a farmer not to milk his cows so as to save milk!

It is impossible to accurately predict future developments in war production. However, there is at present in this section of the country an ample supply of electricity, not only for war projects, but also for our industries, commercial establishments and homes. This result of hard work, careful planning in future, and sound engineering, under a can business management.

If and when a power shortage comes this section of the country, we will be the first to know about it, and we will cooperate to the fullest in urging our customers to conserve electricity so that additional demands for new war purposes can be met.
