Embassy looted, burned; Staff escapes safely

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) - Some 2,000 Libyans sacked the U.S. Embassy in Tripoli and set fire to the four-story building but the embassy staff

The State Department filed a strong protest with the Libyan government and implied that it was responsible for the attack.

It was the second attack on an American embassy in a Moslem country in response to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's campaign to end U.S. influence in the Islamic world. On Nov. 21, a mob burned the embassy in Islamabad, Pakistan, killing two U.S. Marines and two Pakistani staff Charge d'Affaires William Eagleton's wife said about a dozen staff members were working in the Tripoli embassy at midmorning Sunday when a group of demonstrators arrived "quietly chanting." She said the staff "immediately locked up," and several male officials went to the Green Square, a central plaza several blocks away, where they "saw a large mob. They got back to the embassy and within five minutes the mobs Consul Vincent Principe said the Libyans began "banging on the door and made it known to us they wanted to get inside. We just thought it pru-

The Americans fled through a back door and took refuge in their homes. Only one Libyan policeman was on duty in front of the embassy at the time, and Libyan officials ignored appeals from the embassy for reinforcements, the State Department said in Washington. The embassy's Marine guard was withdrawn from Tripoli some time ago at the request of the Libyan government, the department said.

The State Department said the mob apparently used two-by-fours to break through the front door while some of the demonstrators climbed up to a second-floor balcony. JANA, the official Libyan news agency, said the mob burned an American flag and effigies of President Carter and the deposed shah of Iran. U.S. officials said there was serious fire damage to the consular section on the first floor and damage also on the second floor.

State Department officials in Washington said the attack on the building set off an automatic tear-gas security system. JANA charged that the embassy staff "fired toxic gases believed to be used only by the military, confirming that the embassy's employees are military personnel." It claimed the gas seriously injured several students.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said the U.S. government protested the "inadequate and unresponsive" security protection.

Asked whether the attack had the backing of the Libyan government, he replied: "Libya is not a country in which demonstrations and other public manifestations happen in the same way in which they happen in this

JANA said the Libyan government protested the embassy's use of gas. Mrs. Eagleton said police reinforcements arrived after the mob scattered. "but we have protection now at the embassy and our houses." The State Department said Libyan firemen extinguished the fires.

Col. Moammar Khadafy, the head of the Libyan government, in an interview with Italian journalist Oriana Fallaci published Sunday, expressed strong support for Khomeini in his confrontation with the United States. He said if the United States attacked Iran, "we would not remain neutral. Iranians are our brothers.'

However, he said he would try to persuade the Iranians to release the 50 Americans held hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Following the attack on the U.S. Embassy in Pakistan, the State Department advised Americans in Libya and 10 other Moslem countries whose presence there was not essential to leave. Twelve of the 26 embassy dependents in Tripoli left last week, and the other 14 were to leave today. There are 2,500 to 3,000 Americans in Libya, which supplies about 10 per cent of the foreign oil the United States imports. Although Khadafy's relations with the United States are usually stormy and he has nationalized the Libyan holdings of most Western oil companies, he still allows American and other foreign experts to work in the oil industry under Libyan supervision.

Choi accepts draft, will run for caretaker post

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) - Acting President Choi Kyu-hah today accepted a draft to be a candidate in the election to choose a caretaker successor to assassinated President Park Chung-hee. The martial law command announced the court martial of Park's assassin will begin Tuesday.

Choi, whose election was virtually assured, said it was his "historic mission" to preserve constitutional government in South Korea.

Nearly one-third of the members of the electoral college, which will choose Park's successor without debate, signed a letter recommending Choi as the best candidate "to lead the nation in settling the current political situation in accordance with the aspirations of the majority of the

Choi, 60, who was premier under Park, is expected to be the only candidate for president when the 2,560member electoral college meets Thursday. The draft letter was signed by 827 members and Choi needs only

1,281, a majority, to win. Choi has said the next president should not serve out the remaining five years of Park's term, but should oversee a revision of the constitution and prepare the country for a presidential election

U.S. Navy personnel attacked near San Juan

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) - Terrorist gunmen ambushed a busload of U.S. Navy personnel on their way to work near San Juan this morning, killing two servicemen and wounding eight others, Navy officials reported.

It was the first fatal terror attack against the U.S. military in Puerto Rico in nearly a decade. In March 1970, A U.S. serviceman was gunned down in San Juan in what terrorists said was retaliation for the death of a student during a riot at the University of Puerto Rico. Since then, pro-independence violence has been limited to attacks on property. By mid-morning, nobody had claimed responsibility for today's attack.

The Navy said names of the dead and wounded were being withheld until next-of-kin could be notified.

The attack occurred at 6: 20 a.m. (4: 20 CST) as the servicemen were riding to work at a naval communications facility in Toa Baja, 10 miles west of San Juan on Puerto Rico's north coast, in a yellow school bus with Navy markings, said Lt. Steve Chesser, public affairs officer at the Navy's Roosevelt Roads Naval

He said none of those on the Navy bus was armed. Police said the attackers abandoned their vehicle, a white van; not far from the scene of the attack, and apparently fled on foot. Police forces spread out through the area in search of the fleeing terrorists, a police spokesman said. Small pro-independence groups have bombed federal facilities and branches of mainland banks in the past, but such attacks have usually occurred in the hours between midnight and dawn, and there had been no injuries until today.

The FALN - Armed Forces for National Liberation - also has staged bombing attacks in the United States. Some of the pro-independence groups had vowed vengeance for the death of Angel Rodriguez Cristobal, who was found dead in his cell at a federal prison in Tallahassee, Fla., three weeks ago. Prison authorities said he apparently

Threat to try hostages renewed

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The shah's move to Texas brought new threats to put the American hostages on trial as Iranians voted in a referendum to approve Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's new Islamic constitution.

Tehran Radio announced the Revolutionary Council has set up a center for national mobilization to carry out Khomeini's orders to create a people's army ready for battle against

The government radio also said Iran will ask the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to abandon the dollar as the currency for the international oil trade medium of payment and instead use a "basket" of strong currencies.

Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the shah's flight Sunday from a New York hospital to an Air Force base outside San Antonio was part of "a plot against our revolution. If the United States decides to continue the crisis...the trial of the spies here will begin.

"If the shah leaves the United States for another country, we will try the hostages," said a spokesman for the students holding the 50 Americans who on Sunday began their fifth week of captivity in the U.S. Embassy.

Another of the militants said the shah's move from New York to Texas was "another trick taken by the CIA to protect the shah. But everyone in the world knows he cannot be protected against the will of God and the will of the people."

The embassy occupiers also said that one of the hostages had confessed to being a CIA spy, and that Charge d'Affaires L. Bruce Laingen and two senior aides being held separately at the Foreign Ministry were "proved to be" spies and must be kept and guarded carefully.

Laingen and his aides happened to be at the Foreign Ministry when the students occupied the embassy on Nov. 4 and demanded that the U.S. government return Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Iran for trial. Ghotbzadeh said last week that the three diplomats could leave the country if they could get to the airport safely, but he reversed this after the students at the embassy complained.

The shah arrived in the United States from Mexico Oct. 22. He underwent treatment for cancer and gall stones in New York and is to recuperate for an indefinite period in Texas.

Egypt has offered the shah asylum, and Egyptian officials said they believed the deposed monarch was likely to remain in the United States for several more weeks. U.S. officials said nothing about the shah's eventual destination. President Carter, asked whether the shah might be offered permanent U.S. asylum, said, "I cannot answer that now cent of the electorate approved Khomeini's plan to set up an Islamic republic. Today and Sunday, the voters completed the change from the monarchy by voting on a constitution making Iran a theocratic state with Khomeini as the nation's leader for Although overwhelming approval was expected in the two-day vote, middle-of-the-road and leftist political parties boycotted the referendum because the 78-year-old Khomeini would become supreme political leader without the electoral approval of the people

The Kurdish, Arab, Baluchi and Turkomen minorities also joined the boycott because the constitution failed to recognize their demands for autonomy. Most of the minorities are Sunni Moslems. Khomeini and most other Iranians are Shiite Moslems.

The U.N. Security Council scheduled another session on the U.S.-Iranian crisis this afternoon. During the first two sessions Saturday and Sun-

U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said he expected a resolution now being drafted to be adopted by mid-week. U.S. Ambassador Donald McHenry predicted action by the Council today or Tuesday.

Shah 'in hiding' at Texas base

By GREG THOMPSON

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - The desposed shah of Iran rested at a secret location somewhere on Lackland Air Force base today, where he was placed under the protection of the U.S. military for the first time since the Iranian crisis erupted.

The surprise, pre-dawn transfer from New York Sunday was aimed at providing "a secure convalescent facility" for the ailing shah until the U.S. government finds him a place to live, White House Press Secretary Jody Powell said.

However, several hours after being given a fourth-floor ward at Lackland's Wilford Hall Air Force Hospital, the shah was later moved out of the hospital to another location on the base, a top Lackland source confirmed.

Officials would not give a reason for the move, and would not comment on speculation it was for security reasons. The nine-story hospital is located on the fringe of the base and in clear view of a busy highway.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, 60, went to New York's Cornell Medical Center Oct. 22 for treatment of lymph cancer and for gallbladder surgery. A mob of Moslem militants holding 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran has demanded the return of the exiled monarch to Iran.

The shah's transfer places him under guard of a U.S. military force for the first time since the seizure of the U.S. Embassy, and offers more security in any future move the shah may make from here. In Iran, Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh said the move does not affect the hostages one way or the other.

Officials at Lackland, where airmen and officers learn basic training, refused to discuss any details of the shah's arrival. They barred all reporters and photographers from the base, using the presence of guard dogs to encourage the mass departures after the order was given.

Extra guards were added throughout the base and hospital areas. Officials also said FBI agents were helping with security.

Hospital visitors were still allowed Sunday, but were screened twice before allowed in the hospital lobby. Guards recorded the license plate numbers of all vehicles entering the

Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Texas, who visited the shah briefly in the sealed-off hospital ward, said, "The security is as tight as it could be under any circumstances.'

Lackland is normally an open base because it has no landing strip or strategic weapons storage, officials said. The shah arrived at adjacent Kelly Air Force Base about 8:25 a.m. in a "VIP plane" from a government fleet at the disposal of President Carter, said Lackland spokesman Joe McAnally.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Walter Ramsey said American taxpayers will not be footing the bill for the hospital stay.

'The shah will be billed in accordance with Department of Defense procedure. He will pay for his stay," said Ramsey, who added that such "procedure" also would include a bill for the flight from New York. Asked later about reports of the shah's move out of the hospital, Ramsey said, "All I can say is that he is on the base."

Government officials, at the request of the shah's spokesmen, have refused to offer any hint of his physical condition. But three reporters managed Sunday morning to enter the hospital and talked to patients who said the shah walked into the hospital unassisted.

Gonzalez, who welcomed the shah to his congressional district in a 15minute visit Sunday afternoon, said, "To me, he looked fine from the standpoint of physical composure. He wasn't in bed, but was standing and sitting while he talked.

Button poll shows Kennedy, Carter even — one for each

By MARGY McCAY

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) - If you took a popularity poll based on campaign buttons at the Linn County Democratic Central Committee meeting, President Jimmy Carter and Sen. Edward Kennedy would fin-

When the 40 committee members met in the basement of the Farmers State Bank last week, there was one green and white Carter button proudly displayed by Carter's campaign co-ordinator - and a single blue Kennedy pin on the chest of the local Kennedy director.

"I think Democrats in Linn County are playing it pretty close to the vest," said committee chairman Ed West. That also seems to apply in Precinct 20, a middle-class neighborhood in Cedar Rapids. 'Right now I'm undecided between Carter and (California Gov. Edmund

G.) Brown," said 62-year-old Clem Carney. "But unless Brown shows a lot more strength, I'll back Carter again. Carney will have a chance to voice his opinions Jan. 21, when Democrats in Precinct 20 hold their neighborhood caucus. Precinct 20 is one of Iowa's 2,531 political precincts, whose meetings next year offer the first test of strength for presidential candidates In 1976, they catapulted the nearly unknown Jimmy Carter into the position of a serious contender.

Caucus participants elect delegates to the county and state conventions, which send delegates to the national conventions Carney was one of the 10 delegates from Precinct 20 in 1976.

'I was for Frank Church to start with, but the Carter thing became so strong," he said. "This time around? Well, I got to thinking about it, and I wasn't really happy with Carter's dealing with social problems. But I admire his integrity, his forthrightness and his honesty.

"Then I thought I could go with Kennedy, because I admire his viewpoints on treatment of the elderly and the poor — the social issues. But now I think he's got too big a weight hanging around his neck," he said, refusing to elaborate.

Kennedy has been to Cedar Rapids once, and another trip is planned for Sunday. Neither Brown nor Carter has been to Iowa's second-largest city, although Monica McFadden, Carter's local campaign director, said the president will visit before the caucuses.

Sniper's rifle sold at public auction

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - A rifle used by a sniper who shot at least 30 persons watching a parade last spring, including two women who were killed, was sold at a public auction Sunday

"This gun might actually become part of history," said the buyer, H.R. Ferguson. "I think that any weapon that's associated with something infamous is going to increase in value. I wouldn't have bought it if I didn't think there was someone else who would buy it again. The AR-15, semi-automatic, .233-caliber rifle went for $485 and included two blood-stained magazines to hold the ammunition. A Bible the killer apparently read went for $15. The goods were the personal belongings of Ira Attebery, who opened fire on the crowds at a Fiesta parade April 27.

'Many people wanted to know if they could buy something with a bullet hole in it," said Trudy Gross, wife of attorney Steven Gross who handled the auction for the estate of the psychologically troubled Attebery, 64.

There also was private acknowledgment here that the demonstrations could undercut President Carter's statement last Wednesday that U.S. demands for release of the hostages have broad support in the Moslem

Nonetheless, the protestors generally have made a distinction between the Iranian revolution, which they support, and the seizure of American hostages at Tehran. The demonstration in Tripoli came after a statement by Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy the previous week that he favors release of those hostages.

U.S. officials also say they are pleased with the broad-based support for the U.S. position at the United Nations

Spokesman Carter declined to link Sunday's events in Libya with the Iranian crisis. But the Carter administration has long been aware of the close relationship between Khadafy and Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

According to sources with ties to the U.S. intelligence community, Khadafy helped finance Khomeini's campaign against the Shah of Iran during Khomeini's Paris exile in 1978. There also have been reports that, during the same year, a number of Khomeini's top aides traveled to Tripoli for strategy sessions with Libyan au-

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) - About 150 mourners have said goodbye to the Marx Brothers comedy team and its last survivor, Zeppo, who died of lung cancer, at the age of 78.

After appearing in the first five films made by the prothers in the early 1930s, Zeppo broke from his four older brothers to become one of the nation's biggest theatrical agents.

We are really marking two funerals today, not one," Rabbi Joseph Hurwitz told the mourners at the memorial service Sunday. "We're marking the final passing of one of America's greatest institutions, the Marx Brothers, and the passing of Zeppo Marx

Among those attending the services at a local funeral home were Frank Sinatra and his wife, Barbara, who was Zeppo's second wife, former baseball manager Leo Durocher, actor William Demarest, and Groucho Marx's longtime companion Erin Fleming.

Even so, my hunter's optimism can see a blessing in the gloom. Any kind of artificial euphoria is dangerous, for a man survives only by recognizing reality and dealing with it on its own terms. Just as an individual who's drunk or hopped up is a candidate for personal disaster, so is the nation which thinks natural law and ancient wisdom can be repealed by technolo-

The shah's memoirs blame Carter

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON - In memoirs that may never be published, the deposed shah of Iran blames Jimmy Carter for pressuring him to make concessions that cost his throne and brought Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini to power. Then the president insured Khomeini's triumph, the shah charges bitterly, by blocking the Iranian armed forces from seizing control of the country. Highlights from the suppressed memoirs have been confided to us by family members who said the shah, as a form of therapy, had poured his frustrations into writing about the events that had caused his downfall. They identified ex-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger as the one who had persuaded the shah not to publish his memoirs.

Here, nevertheless, is the shah's version of the cataclysmic events in-

In the last year of his reign, the shah was under constant pressure from Washington to relax his grip on the country. The U.S. embassy persuaded him that, as a prerequisite for better relations with President Carter, he should dismiss his SAVAK chief, Gen. Nematollah Nassiri. The head of the dreaded secret police, accordingly, was fired on June 6,

Under continuing U.S. pressure, the shah also released hundreds of political prisoners and eased press censorhip. Instead of mollifying his enemies, he contends, these moves convinced them that he was weakening. They were encouraged to heighten their opposition with massive Hill's bully boys are at the service of Guyana Prime Minister Forbes Burnham, and may have been responsible for the killing of a Jesuit priest last summer at a rally in Georgetown, the Guyanese capital. Informed sources say it's unlikely that Burnham would agree to extradite his supporter.

But other sources suspect the extradition attempt may have been dropped because of pressure from another quarter - the Central Intelligence Agency. Burnham rose to power 15 years ago with the help of the CIA, and though, like the shah of Iran, he's widely regarded as a corrupt dictator, he's OUR dictator. That may be why his sidekick Hill is enjoying a holiday from U.S. justice.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Postmaster General William F. Bolger says private companies seeking authorization to deliver the mail only want to do so in lucrative areas.

Testifying before a House committee Tuesday, Bolger said the government's monopoly on mail delivery is 'essential to the continued vitality of the postal system." He said that "a universal postal system depends on large mail volumes. It could not run well if significant volumes of letter mail were taken away by private delivery firms providing cheaper but very selective services in the most profitable area.

promised a 30 percent return on their money in 90 days.

The newspaper quoted unidentified sources as saying businesssmen and lawyers "from western Massachusetts and other states" invested an estimated $14 million to $18 million during the alleged scheme's four years of operation.

Longmeadow police Sgt. John Donaldson said Thursday that police were told by Ryan's office that Cohn was wanted for questioning. Donaldson said he understood Cohn was sought in connection with an investigation into "some missing money and a land

The Morning Union quoted one attorney - who said he was asked to invest in the plan but declined - as

"He (the deal's organizer) would ask for an amount of money, say $25,000, which he said he would invest in land and promise a 30 percent return in 90 days. From what I under stand he would then give the person $32,000 in 90 days and almost invariably the person would reinvest the money and add more money to it."

According to Springfield Detective Capt. James F. Williams, in a classic pyramid scheme the money for that first payment would come from the initial fee paid by a second investor.

As new investors enter the pyramid, the person running the deal is able to keep money floating until the amount of the 90-day payoffs exceeds available money, Williams said.

FTC member, Sen. Heflin argue over agency's power

WASHINGTON (AP) - A senator and a member of the Federal Trade Commission disagreed recently over whether Congress has given the agency the power to order breakups of businesses involved in antitrust

The difference came over a proposal by Sen. Howell Heflin that would make it clear to the FTC that it has no power to order divestitures under the section of law which established the Divestitures occur when companies are ordered to sell operations they obtain through what is determined to be monopoly power.

'Congress never intended that the FTC would have the remedy of divestiture of monopolies," Heflin, D-Ala., said at a hearing on his proposal.

'Congress never conferred authority upon the FTC to dismember industries or to break up companies because of monopolization," he said. Heflin said exercise of this authority usurps the will of Congress expressed as long ago as 1914. Robert Pitofsky, a commission member and former law professor, disputed this.

'The law has been authoritatively interpreted by the courts to grant the FTC power to impose structural relief (order divestitures). It is untenable to contend that this is a power that the current commission usurped by an overreaching interpretation of its statute," Pitofsky said.

He cited Supreme Court approval of this power in a 1966 case and said several FTC divestiture orders have been appealed through federal courts. with the commission action upheld.

Pitofsky said the Heflin amendment "has enormous implications" for antitrust enforcement. It "would assure by law that in many monopoly cases effective remedies would not be imposed - at least not by the FTC,"

Although Heflin would allow the commission to issue orders against monopolistic conduct, its ban on divestiture orders would remove a major sanction, the FTC member

"Purely conduct remedies may be absolutely futile in a situation where a monopolist has illegally driven out of business all remaining competitors,"

The amendment is one of a series of congressional moves aimed at stripping the FTC of some of its powers.

Chukar hunting toughest challenge offered sportsmen in desert wastes

By EARL GUSTKEY The Los Angeles Times

Meet the chukar. He's the toughest, willest, most exasperating and most cussed little bird in the West.

He's caused more sprained ankles and wrists, more tumbles, more bloodied shins, more heart attacks and heartaches, more than any game bird in California.

Biologists classify the chukar as an upland game bird. To many, he's the impossible game.

It's not that the chukar itself is so tough. It's that this partridge doesn't live in pear trees. Rather, it favors the lava-fanged ridges and arroyos of the Mojave Desert high country, and getting a shot at one involves scrambling through rocks, brush and cac-

Hunting the chukar in his habitat is like taking on Rommel in the desert. Just the other day, an ambulance went screaming into the canyons of the Mojave's China Lake Naval Weapons Center in California.

SAID A GUARD at one gate: "Looks like another hunter going into chukar country is coming out feet first."

He was almost right; it was a man who, due to exhaustion, had an adverse reaction to medication and passed out while climbing rugged country after chukar (pronounced chucker).

Of course, there are chukar hunters and there are chukar hunters. Says Bob Paxton, a devotee from Ridgecrest, Calif.:

"The chukar demands more of a hunter than any game bird I know of. If you're not in shape, forget it. He'll even tear up your new boots. He's tough because his habitat is tough."

AFTER SIX HOURS of climbing and stumbling over jagged lava at China Lake recently, another veteran chukar hunter, Bob Chapman of Inyo-Kern, Calif., took off his boots and looked at their soles. The hard rubber had been ripped in several areas. So had the leather.

"I figure I have maybe 20 chukar outings left in these boots," he said, ruefully. "If those little birds don't wear me out, they'll tear my boots to pieces."

In 1976, a man walked into a California Department of Fish and Game office and asked for the name of a good chukar hunter. He'd hunted all over the world, he said, and wanted a crack at chukar.

"We asked the guy if he was sure he was in good enough shape and he got a little testy," recalled Ralph Young. Fish and Game information officer. "He-started telling us about all the mountains he'd climbed in Afghanistan after mountain shee. So we set him up with John Massey, the best chukar hunter in the department.

"JOHN CALLED US the next day and said that by midmorning the guy's hands were bloody, he had holes in his pants, he'd dropped his shotgun several times and he was disheveled, depressed and discouraged."

Massey: "The guy took some terrific spills and somersaults. And he put some nasty dents in his Belgian shotgun. He just wasn't in the shape he thought he was."

But to experienced chukar chasers, the hunt is well worth the perspiration and shoe leather. Bob Paxton: "I stuff them with apples and oranges, dip them in Shake and Bake, wrap them in bacon and bake them. They're really good eating."

"Cleo's actin" birdy, 's said Tom Chapman. Cleo, a German shorthair pointer, was nimbly exploring a lava pile, sniffing the ground and air, tail twitching.

CHAPMAN HAD his .12 gauge Remington automatic shotgun at the ready but Cleo didn't flush any chukar. She gave her master a glance that seemed to mean: "Sorry, false alarm," and moved on.

Chapman and his son in law.

Chapman and his son-in-law, Dennis Hollingsworth, were hunting a remote plateau on the China Lake

Meet the chukar. He's the toughest, willest, most exasperating and most cussed little game bird in the West.

Naval Weapons Center. The elevation was close to 6,000 feet. The air had been bitingly cold at dawn, but at 7 the plateau was awash in the morning light and the temperature was surging toward the 80s.

The terrain was rabbitbrush, buckwheat, bitterbrush, Joshua and juniper trees, and iron-hard lava, much of it splashed with bright yellow-orangegreen-red patches of lichen. Mt. Whitney loomed on the horizon, 9 miles north.

The strategy: Chapman was hunting ridge tops and Hollingsworth was down below, a quarter to a half-mile away, moving in the same direction.

away, moving in the same direction.
"If we jump some up here, they'll try to head down the canyon, toward Dennis," Chapman said.

IT WAS GOOD chukar habitat, near an unmapped water guzzler. Chapman, 67, has hunted chukar in the mountains near Ridgecrest since 1954, the state's first season. This, he said, was one of his favorite spots.

Generally, hunters find chukars holed up in rock crevices in mornings and evenings. If they want water during the day, they move on the ground and can frequently be flushed from brush.

"Tuk-tuk-tuk-tuk-tuk ..." Chukars talking.

"Hear that?" Chapman said.
"You'd think that'd be a fatal weakness for chukars, the fact that they talk so much to each other trouble is, in a rocky canyon, the sound bounces all over and it's hard to tell where it's coming from."

CHAPMAN SCANNED a tiny clearing in a clump of buckwheat. "Look here," he said pointing at fresh chukar droppings. "The birds huddle at night. This was a roost last night."

Chapman was momentarily distracted by the sight of four wild horses, appearing a half-mile away on the horizon. A magnificent roan stallion led three bedraggled-looking mares quickly away.

Then suddenly: "WHIRRRRR!"

About a dozen chukars exploded out of buckwheat brush, 30 feet from Chapman, heading down the canyon. By the time Chapman raised his shotgun, they were out of range Down below, Hollingsworth had rounded a bend and was out of the view of the birds.

"Damn," he muttered. "That's an example of how you have to pay attention when you're hunting chukar. If I'd been lookin' for birds instead of horses, I'd have got off a shot.

A HALF—HOUR LATER, Chapman was walking along a ridge, telling a reporter why Finnish Sako rifles are the best in the world, when he heard a noise behind him.

He turned and was startled to see Cleo holding a rigid point on some thick brush. Then: "WHIRRRRR!" About 20 chukar flew madly down the canyon. Cleo had found them 70 yards from Chapman, out of range.

"Oh, no," Chapman wailed. "We walked right by them. I hadn't even noticed Cleo was out of sight." She was probably on that point two or three minutes while we were gabbing away."

That incident started Chapman talking about a chukar hunting no-no: talking.

"THE BEST CHUKAR hunting technique is to hunt in pairs, one guy on a ridge, the other guy down below. You shouldn't walk around together, talking. You should be studying your dog and constantly be expecting to jump chukar. You have to be quick, because they jump and are gone in a hurry. They usually startle you ...

that's why they're hard to hit."

Meanwhile, Hollingsworth, of Walnut Creek, Calif., had taken three shots down below, at a different covey With binorculars, Chapman took a look. "He's got a bird down and can't find it. Let's take Cleo down there."

Hollingsworth: "I've got two down and can't find either one. Chapman:
"Find the bird, Ceo."

Cleo found one in five minutes, but not the second one. A 30-minute search was in vain. "He probably hit the ground, recovered and ran off," Chapman said.

"He could be a half-mile from here."

BY MIDMORNING two other hunting parties were in the area. Chapman and Hollingsworth watched two hunters on a ridge blast five or six shots at a covey without a hit.

"I never laugh at a guy whomisses a chukar," he said. "It's tougher than it looks. One time in 1964 I was hunting here with the national junior trapshooting champion. A covey flew out of the rocks overhead. He got off three shots at maybe 15 to 20 yards range and missed all three."

By 10 a.m., Chapman and Hollingsworth had covered about five or six miles of ridges, plateaus and canyons. It was hot. Water breaks were frequent. Hollingsworth had two birds, Chapman none. They decided to head toward a guzzler. The theory: chukar would be moving toward water.

Chapman, 67, a retired Naval Weapons Center safety officer, hadn't sat down once. He hunts deer in the white mountains, climbs desert mountains looking for chukar and backpacks into the High Sierra to fish for brook trout at remote French and Gable lakes.

"THESE CHUKAR keep me in shape," he said. "You know, I've never in 25 years out here seen a smoker with a chukar limit."

About a half-mile from the guzzler, on flat ground, Cleo spooked a fat chukar from some rabbitbrush It cried its distress call, "Tew-weet!" as it took off. Beating its wings madly, it stayed only a yard above ground. Chapman shot and missed. The chukar glided over the edge of a ridge and out of sight.

But minutes later, Chapman got a bird. A half-dozen exploded out of brush and this time his bead was true. A chukar dropped like a stone.

A half-hour later, at Chapman's pickup truck, Hollingsworth massaged his feet. "This is really tough hunting," he said. "What's the limit on these things, six? Man, a guy who gets a limit of these birds has earned it"

In 1928, the Department of Fish and Game bought 10 chukars from a game bird dealer in Calcutta, India. From the group, the department began raising chukars at its Yountville game farm. In 1933, the department began planting the birds in high desert areas.

THE BIRDS SURVIVED, but just barely. The problem, upland game biologists learned, was that farmraised birds are so tame they are vulnerable to predators like bobcats, coyotes, Cooper's hawks and great horned owls.

"By the early 1950s, we were wildtrapping birds that were doing well in some areas and transporting them to areas where they weren't doing well," said Harold Harper, Fish and Game's upland game supervisor.

"We had our first hunting season in 1954. A lot of people were afraid the birds would be slaughtered. But after that first season, our game wardens said: 'You could have, a year-round season and it wouldn't hurt those birds."

Now, California's season lasts from October to January. About 25,000 hunters take from 60,000 to 80,000 per year. Chukar numbers are considered healthy throughout their habitat in California.

ALTHOUGH THERE is good hunting on many public land areas of the high desert, some of the best is at the China Lake Naval Weapons Center. The base is open to public hunting for two weekends each season.

"We hold it to 750 vehicles per weekend," a spokesman said. "This year we had 4,672 letters of application for first-weekend passes, and 3, 427 applications for the second weekend."

In its native habitat, India-Pakistan-Afghanistan, the chukar is found at elevations from 4,000 to 16,000 feet. In California, it has flourished in high desert rocky dreas, and has a special liking for lava. Its principal food source are seeds from desert weed grasses, particularly cheat grass.

Chukar are distinguished by their red beaks, and brown-black-white bands on their breasts. They have black masks across the eyes and a soft, gray-blue coloration elsewhere. Males can stand 13 inches tall and weigh 24 ounces.

CHUKARS NEST in ground depression, scratched out under sage. Monogamous, they mate after a courtship dance, in which the male performs a waltz. Females lay 10 to 20 eggs.

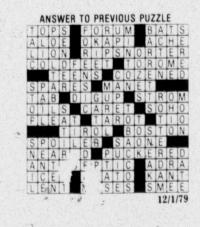

Like quail, chukar will fly only when flushed by predators or hunters. Their heavy, firm bodies are equipped with relatively small wings. Generally, they're not found in areas where they can't fly downhill.

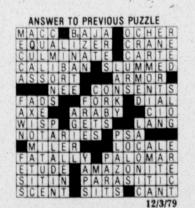

Tom Chapman: "Most of the time, after you've flushed a covey, they scatter. Then they start calling each other. They regroup, then head for the highest point in the area."

That analysis reminded Chapman of his favorite chukar story, a tale illustrating the frustrations of being a chukar addict:

"One time I was with a friend out here and we spotted some birds on top of a peak. We started climbing. It took an hour of tough, hard climbing. We got to the top, exhausted. The birds weren't there. Then we heard them 'em: "Tuk-tuk-tuk-tuk...'

"We looked down, and there they were. They'd walked down-probably went right by us — while we were going up. My friend turned to me and said: 'That's why there'll always be chukars.'"

Changing investment habits hurting industry

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Barring some unspeakable cataclysm, the stock market is likely to recover, but in order for it to happen just about all important investor categories must change their habits.

Those habits have taken them far afield and into other investments during the past decade, leaving the popular stock market averages no higher than they were at the beginning of the decade.

During that time the country's gross national product, or output of goods and services, doubled in size, at least when counted in current (inflated) dollars, the same dollars which measure stock prices.

The money went elsewhere: into debt securities, money market mutual funds, pension fund reserves, real estate, gold and silver and various collectibles, including art. A good deal of it was simply spent. The percentage of household financial assets invested in equities fell from 38.8 percent in 1972 to just 23.9 percent this year. Individuals became disillusioned, lost their faith in the future, avoided risk.

Something of the sort might have happened with private pension funds, happened with private pension funds, too. In 1972 they had nearly 74 percent of their financial assets in equities; this year the percentage dropped to just over 54.

Figures compiled by Merrill Lynch

Figures compiled by Merrill Lynch show the same pattern with state and local retirement funds. In 1972 they were 27.5 percent invested in stocks, compared with 22.2 percent this year.

the same pattern, falling from an 11.6 percent investment position in 1972 to 9.7 percent this year. Other insurers, including the liability companies, fell from 32 to 15.5.

from 32 to 15.5.

Even the mutual funds, which thrived on stocks for two decades after World War II, began to change their pattern. Their 1972 figure was 84.4 percent; this year they are down to 73.2, the lowest ever.

Foreigners have behaved the same way, in spite of the hoopla about the United States being the last outpost of private enterprise, a haven for foreign funds. Their figure was 19.9 percent in 1972, 12.2 in 1979.

What happened? Inflation, for one thing. It cut into corporate returns on investment, and it helped make debt securities competitive. As inflation settled in, that is, so did high interest rates.

Inflation also helped destroy the belief that things simply got better and better in the post-war industrial world. With inflation raging, all types of investor sought security elsewhere. Risk became too risky.

With low-risk debt securities offering returns greater than could be expected in stocks, it was entirely reasonable and logical that money should flow in their direction. Even mutual funds, so long associated with stocks, regrouped as vehicles for investments in debt securities.

A large percentage of investors undoubtedly decided also that no type of paper was worth the risk, and so they went into metals and other commodities, and into direct rather than stock ownership of properties.

And so as the decade ends the stock market averages are stuck roughly where they were when it began. True, some relatively small, newer firms have attracted plenty of money, but the averages state the generality.

And the averages, it appears safe to say, can't go anywhere until the factors underlying the generality change. That is to say, when inflation and interest rates fall and the future looks more stable.

Memoirs of a non-hostile invasion from North Ireland

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN AP Special Correspondent

RIDGEFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Paul, my Irish nephew, writes that he has lost the baseball he brought home with him just as his playmates in South Armagh were getting the hang of the game.

I wonder what became of that baseball. It must have been a strange sight on an Irish road or sticking out of a trout steam like a rock with red seams. *

Perhaps the British army threw a collision mat over it and blew it up in one of those controlled explosions that break windows for miles around. They might have mistaken it for a grenade. Things get pretty tense in his section of Ulster. They call it "The Murder Triangle," because in the past decade Catholics and Protestants have been murdering, maiming and burning each other out and more than 60 British soldiers have died in the vicinity.

STILL, PAUL rarely spoke of "The Troubles." He had just turned 14 when he came to spend the summer with us, his first trip away from the violence-saturated green countryside around Crossmaglen, except for a school trip to Liverpool.

He loved America from the start, although not unreservedly. He loved hamburgers, vanilla ice cream, steak barbecued on the charcoal grill, Pepsi-Cola, fig Newtons and french fries, which of course he called "chips." He loved the New York Yankees, ghost stories and all jokes, especially Irish jokes, like the one about the IRA men denied admission to heaven but telling St. Peter: "We didn't want in, but you've got three minutes to get out."

He couldn't abide pizza, hot dogs, baked maccaroni and, thank God, lobster. He had mixed feelings about American football and, watching a pro game on TV, couldn't understand why the Dallas Cowboys wore "steel helmets."

PAUL WORSHIPPED weekly at the shrine of Mork and Mindy and loved almost everything else on TV from game shows to commercials. With a dozen channels to chose from, instead of only three at home, he could sit for hours, motionless and pop-eyed as one of those stone figures on a medieval Celtic cross.

But after supper he sometimes abandoned the tube to take a walk along the road, something no one ever does after dark in his part of Ireland. He even went fishing several times by moonlight in our little lake, although I can't remember him catching anything beyond a welt of mosquito bites.

Like most of the Irish I know, Paul couldn't swim. He took-lessons but got nowhere: one of the few failures recorded by the town's lifeguards. Now I know why a whole cottage industry has grown up around those cable knit Irish sweaters that they say were used to identify, from the stitching pattern, the bodies of fishermen washed up off the Aran Islands.

They say that war brutalizes people, but in a decade of covering wars around the world I have rarely found this to be so. Paul was gentle and easy going, like those Israeli families I met living in the kibbutzes under constant attack up on the Golan Heights or the Montagnard tribes in Vietnam's central highlands. He got along fine with the neighborhood kids, who didn't seem to notice his nasal Ulster brogue as much as we did and taught him enough baseball to experience the boyhood panic of breaking a window.

PAUL WAS 4 years old when the Irish troubles resumed. He has lived with the horror all his life, just three doors down from a house that had been hit by rockets intended for the British army barracks, growing up with the beat of helicopters overhead, once the soldiers gave up using the booby-trapped roads. Occasionally, not more than two or three times, something on TV would remind him of what life every day back there was like.

"We have a drill at school," he said one day, in conversation as casual as his world of violence. "If there is a bomb in a car on the road anywhere, the master (the principal) blows his whistle and we all run out of the school. If there is shooting, he blows the whistle twice, and we crouch down by the stone wall. When the whistle blows three times, we return to class."

That was it. There was nothing more to the story. Just another routine happening at school, like a fire drill or an assembly not nearly as memorable as the day he got "six of the best," six cracks across the palm from the master's ruler for cutting up in class, probably telling one of his jokes to a seatmate.

The film "Odd Man Out," about an

IRA man on the run in Belfast, held his attention on TV one night, but it was just an exciting yarn happening to someone else. He didn't relate to it at all. Yet a shootout on a Kojak rerun suddenly reminded him that he and a friend had almost got caught in a crossfire along the road one day after school. They were on their way to a crossroads store to buy milk, when "some of the lads" came out of the woods and the soldiers must have seen them. Shooting broke out and he and his friend — they must have been 9 or 10 then — were trapped between their house and the shop. They got down in a ditch and waited until the shooting stopped. Paul couldn't remember how long, but it was dark when he got home. Without the milk. either. He remembered that more than the shots.

"HOW DO YOU like America?" people always asked him.

"Not half bad," he always replied, which in Ulster is a high compli-

One day I took him to visit the Danbury News-Times plant. It was the only time Paul ever alluded to the Irish political situation. Steve Collins, who runs the editorial page, gave him a gold coin memorializing the American bicentennial.

"You know," Steve told him, "the British burned this town," reciting a historic event in the Revolutionary War

"We don't have much use for them where I come from either," said Paul, as if the British army had come through last week.

HE IS STILL remembered for that remark in these parts. And for his jokes. And the broken window. And for the genial, easy-going warmth he projected from a boyhood spent without bitterness in such brutal sur-

Labor secretary blames unemployment rate on aliens

LOS ANGELES (AP) - U.S. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall says illegal aliens are taking jobs from millions of Americans and without these imported workers unemployment in the United States could be reduced to less than 4 percent.

Marshall said he does not favor mass deportations, but warned that those who say the undocumented aliens benefit the United States may be "sowing the seeds of a bitter civil rights struggle."

In an interview published Sunday in the Los Angeles Times, the labor secretary conservatively estimated the number of illegal workers in the United States at 4 million. He took issue with arguments that illegal workers are helpful to the economy because they take jobs U.S. citizens or legal aliens will not perform.

"It is false to say American work-

"The job market in which they (undocumented workers) compete is highly competitive, with a surplus of people vying for a shortage of jobs, no matter how undesirable the jobs may be." Marshall said.

If only half of the illegal workers in the United States are in jobs that otherwise would be held by American workers, "eliminating this displacement would bring unemployment down to 3.7 percent, which is below the 4 percent full-employment target set by the Humphrey-Hawkins Act" and below the current 6 percent, he

Cowboys gun down New York, 28-7

IRVING - The Dallas Cow boy computer, the one coach Tom Landry is supposed to ask all the brillant questions and in return receive a brillant game plan, lately has been throwing out readouts that have been folded, spindled and mutilated. The computer, however, may be back in good graces after going back to the basics of Cowboystyle football for Dallas' 28-7 victory over the New York Giants here Sunday to end a horrible three-game losing streak.

The computer churned out a plan this time which Cowboy fans across the world have come to expect over the years. You know it by heart. The defense is supposed to play good solid football with at least one goal line stand and an interception to help out the offense. The offense, on the other hand, is supposed to let Tony Dorsett rush for at least 100 yards while quarterback Roger Staubach throws only when he needs to, and then to wide receiver Drew Pearson for touchdowns. Now, that's Cowboy football, and it works like a charm. Just ask the Giants or the Cowboy computer.

DALLAS' DEFENSIVE tackle Larry Cole put it best, "We just played good old Cowboy football. We played with them the first half, set them up in the third (quarter) and put the KO on them in the fourth. That's the way it has always been with the great Dallas teams.

And it was played that way to the letter. The Cowboys salvaged a 7-7 tie in the first half when Staubach hit Pearson for seven yards in the second quarter for the first of three TD connections. That wiped out a Taylor on a two-yard run. The Giants' early lead was almost a blessing since Dallas had scored lightning quick in their last two games, only to lose them in the end.

Dallas then set up the Giants in the third period when master Staubach marched the Cowboys 66 yards in seven plays, hitting Pearson again from seven yards out and a 14-7 margin. Then it was Staubach to Pearson for 44 yards and a 21-7 lead.

THE JOB had almost been done, and Pearson was so moved by it all that he tried to spike the ball into the crowd after his second touchdown, and he twisted his knee in the pro-

"I have never caught three touchdown passes in one game in my whole life," Pearson said. "That's why I was so excited. But I have now retired my spike forever because it almost cost me. I twisted my knee, but I don't think it is anything to worry about. It's just a little stiff right now.

That's good Drew. You spiked the ball before you scored your third TD. At any rate, it was a good "season" for Pearson, who only caught only three TD passes all last year.

When Landry was asked about the spiking incident, he said, "I didn't see Pearson spike the ball, but I couldn't see how he got hurt. He was never touched as far as I could tell. I guess that'll teach him.

'New York was giving me a lot of man-to-man coverage with the cornerbacks playing to the inside, and Roger (Staubach) was really reading my moves. You get that type of combination and it usually means six points." Pearson added.

With a 21-7 lead, the Giants tried to get back in the game when rookie quarterback Phil Simms marched the Giants from their own 29 to the Dallas one-yard line, most of it coming on a 47-yard Simms aerial to tight end Gary Shirk. That's when Dallas put up a solid front and stopped the Giants cold. Linebacker Bruce Huther made two big plays to jam up the middle to stop runs by Taylor and rookie Ken Johnson short of the goal, and on fourth and two, tackle David Stalls sacked Simms for a six-yard loss.

'After the long pass set us up, I felt there was no way they could stop us," Giant boss Ray Perkins said after the game "On fourth down, Simms, being a rookie, was too worried about the interception. You don't worry about it at that point. We would have been back in the game with a touchdown there.

Philadelphia assured of spot in playoffs

By The Associated Press

The Philadelphia Eagles became the first team to clinch a berth in the National Football League playoffs Sunday by trouncing the Detroit Lions 44-7 behind two touchdown passes from Ron Jaworski to Harold Carmi-

The Eagles, 10-4, hold a one-game lead in the National Conference East over Washington and Dallas but are assured of at least a wild-card berth.

Philadelphia's defense allowed Detroit just five first downs and only 53 yards rushing. The 44 points and the 37-point margin of victory were 12year highs for the Eagles.

Meanwhile, the Pittsburgh Steelers, behind their brilliant passing combination of Terry Bradshaw to Lynn Swann, grabbed a one-game lead in the American Conference's rugged Central Division by beating the Cincinnati Bengals 37-17 while the Houston Oilers were bowing to the Cleveland Browns 14-7.

Bradshaw completed 17 of 29 passes for 339 yards, giving him a club-record 3,278 yards on the season. The old Steelers record of 2,982 was set by Ed Brown in 1963.

Swann caught five passed for 192 vards, including touchdown tosses of 58 and 42 yards, as the Steelers raised their record to 11-3 with their 13th straight home victory. Franco Harris of the Steelers rushed for 92 years to surpass the a NFL record held by Jim Brown.

Houston dropped to 10-4 as fullback Mike Pruitt keyed Cleveland's ballcontrol offense, carrying 25 times for 111 yards and scoring two touchdowns. Cleveland, third in the Central . Division, remains in the playoff chase with a 9-5 record. It was Pruitt's fourth 100-yard game and raised his season total to 1,062 yards. He scored on a 42-yard pass from Mike Phipps in the first quarter and a one-yard plunge 1:40 into the fourth quarter.

In other National Football League games, the Washington Redskins outscored the Green Bay Packers 38-21, the Dallas Cowboys downed the New York Giants 28-7, the Chicago Bears blanked the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 14-0, the Los Angeles Rams trimmed the Minnesota Vikings 27-21 in overtime, the Denver Broncos edged the Buffalo Bills 19-16, the Atlanta Falcons surprised the San Diego Chargers 28-26, the Kansas City Chiefs beat the Seattle Seahawks 37-21, the New York Jets defeated the Baltimore Colts 30-17 and the St. Louis Cardinals topped the San Francisco 49ers 13-10. Miami beat New England 39-24 on Thursday night. In Monday night's game, Oakland is at New Orleans.

Joe Theismann threw a career-high four touchdown passes, including two in the final quarter, as the Redskins rallied to beat Green Bay. Theismann connected on touchdown pass plays of 39 yards to John McDaniel, 20 yards to Ricky Thompson, 12 yards to John Riggins and 8 yards to Danny Buggs.

Tampa Bay failed for the second straight week to clinch the National Conference's Central Division title, bowing to the Bears, who turnd a blocked punt by Bruce Herron and an interception by Gary Fencik into touchdowns.

Nolan Cromwell ran five yards for a touchdown on a fake field goal with 6:53 gone in overtime to give Los Angeles the victory over Minnesota. Ex-Viking Bob Lee, signed by Los Angeles last month, took over in the second half and guided the Rams on their winning drive, which started following an Eddie Brown interception at the Los Angeles 15-yard line.

Quarterback Craig Morton drove the Broncos 40 yards in 15 seconds, setting up Jim Turner's game-winning field goal from 32 yards with three seconds left as Denver beat Buffalo despite 316 yards passing by Bills QB Joe Ferguson. The victory, combined with San Diego's loss, lifted the Broncos into a tie with the Chargers at 10-4 for first place in the AFC Steve Bartkowski fired a 6-yard touchdown pass to Wallace Francis with 21 seconds remaining to give Atlanta its upset over San Diego.

New cage season sees last year's powers beaten

By The Associated Press It's a new season in college basketball - and no one knows it better than Jud Heathcote and Bill Hodges. They learned it the hard way over the weekend, losing games they presumably would have won last sea-Heathcote's defending NCAA champions from Michigan State, playing without the ubiquituous Ear-"Magic" Johnson and Greg Kelser, now in the National Basket ball Association, took an 88-73 drubbing from 16th-ranked St. John's in the finals of the Lapchick Tournament in New York Saturday night.

Hodges' Indiana State team, playing without the great Larry Bird, had a 20-game home winning streak snapped 66-63 by unheralded Armstrong State Friday night before struggling to a 72-65 victory over Colorado State

'Friday night, we learned a big lesson," said Hodges. "We realized what we now have to do.'

With the loss of Bird, now an NBA rookie with the Boston Celtics, the burden of leadership on the Sycamores has shifted to guard Carl Nicks, who scored 37 points in Friday night's loss and 28 in Sunday's vic-

'Saturday's practice was very goods' said Hodges, college Coach of the Year with last year's NCAA runnerup Sycamores. "Yet we still have things to work on. Mostly, it's a matter of determination.

Michigan State as well will have to be just as determined, considering the loss of their two superstars. But they weren't proficient enough Saturday night to take care of a strong St. John's team.

They're a very good team, Heathcote said of St. John's, "certainly as good as any of the good teams in our league (the Big Ten). You have to play awfully well to beat them on their home court. They can beat you in a lot of ways. They've got strong rebounding, good ballhandling and play a solid defense."

Kush keeps money to self Min Rashad 22 pass from Kramer

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) - Six of 10 Arizona State University football coaches say they did not receive any of the $6,000 that ousted football Coach Frank Kush said he split with his assistants, the Arizona Republic

The newspaper said Sunday that Bob Owens, who was an assistant under Kush and was named to his head coaching post after Kush's ouster, and assistants Don Baker, Gary Horton, Greg Mohns and Bob Karmelowoowicz, along with Bill Kajikawa, who retired at the end of the 1978 season, all said they did not receive any money.

The money was part of a sum raised at a November 1978 appreciation banquet which one of the banquet's organizers said was turned over to Kush for distribution.

Kush, suspended Oct.13 in a dispute over alleged cover-up activities related to allegations that he had struck a 1978 Arizona State football player. said he had split $6,000 received from the banquet.

He declined to say to whom he gave the money but said it didn't go to all ethe assistant coaches because "I didn't think some of them deserved

Larry Kentera, who left the Arizona State staff last February to enter private business, said he received money from Kush after he left but didn't believe it was part of the $6,000. Owens said Kentera was the only assistant who received money.

Reggie Carter, coming back from a two-game suspension, scored 22 points to lead the St. John's attack as the Redmen won their home-grown tourney for the fifth straight year.

In the third-place game, Oral Roberts defeated Princeton 70-62 as Calvin Garrett scored 18 points.

The opening of the 1978-79 college basketball season also featured pretty much of a lost weekend for 14thranked Texas A&M, a participant in last year's NIT and expected to be the strongest team in the Southwest Conference this season.

The Aggies lost two games in a row in the Great Alaska Shootout Tournament, to Iona and Lamar, before finally winning Sunday with an 82-66 victory over the University of Pacific in the seventh-place consolation game. Vernon Smith, playing in his first game of the season for the Aggies, scored 28 points for the

Iona met Kentucky, the nation's second-ranked team, for the Alaska Shootout championship late Sunday

In the consolation game for fourth place Bradley defeated Lamar 82-75 with the help of four free throws by Hasan Houston in the last two mi-

Elsewhere, there were few surprises on college basketball's first weekend, as third-ranked Duke defeated sixth-ranked North Carolina 86-74 for the championship of the Big Four Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. Mike Gminski scored 21 points and excelled defensively for the Blue Devils, who won their third straight game of the season.

"If they play like this, they'll win the national title," said North Carolina Coach Dean Smith. "That was the best Duke team I've ever seen tonight ... the best in their history, in my estimation."

In the Big Four's third-place game, North Carolina State defeated Wake Forest 70-65 behind Art Jones' 17

Top ranked Indiana, meanwhile, opened its season with an 80-52 rout of Miami, Ohio, behind a balanced attack led by Mike Woodson's 14 points and Isiah Thomas' .12. Another Big Ten powerhouse, fourth-ranked Ohio State, whipped Ohio 78-51 as Herb Williams scored 17 points.

Kelly Tripucka's 22 points paced No.5 Notre Dame over Valparaiso 92-66. The Irish scored the first eight points of the game and opened a huge lead of 22 in the first half.

"You can't get down 33-11 and come back against a team like Notre Dame, said Valparaiso Coach Ken Rochlitz. "Notre Dame isn't the power-type team that we've seen be fore. (But) they are a lot quicker than last year in their transition from offense to defense. It was excellent and extremely effective. Seventh-ranked Louisiana State routed Southeastern Conference colleague 112-81 as DeWayne Scales and Durand Macklin teamed up for 55

"I can see why LSU was picked No.1 in our league," said Florida Coach John Lotz. "They certainly played like it tonight."

Kiki Vandeweghe's 31 points' led eighth-ranked UCLA over Hofstra 90-71. The Bruins didn't dominate until the start of the second half, when Vandeweghe scored 13 straight

'We didn't have much pep in the first half and we were sluggish," Vandeweghe said. "We were playing too much as individuals and that's the wrong way for us."

Darrell Griffith tied the game with a jumper and then sent 10th-ranked. Louisville ahead with a free throw as the Cardinals defeated South Alabama 75-73; Red Bruin's 15 points helped No.12 Syracuse beat Cornell 107-66; Jeff Lamp scored 13 as 13thranked Virginia stopped Georgia Tech 55-37; Danny Ainge had 20 as 15th-ranked BYU beat Baylor 100-58; 18th-ranked Marquette trimmed Eastern Montana 75-36 as Robert Byrd scored 20 points and Tony Guy's 28 points led 20th-ranked Kansas over Nevada-Reno 93-75.

for 164 yards. Staubach is deadly when the running game is clicking also and the opposing defense doesn't know if the Cowboys are going to run or throw.

It could have been much worse for the Giants. After all, Rafael Septien missed on field goal tries of 34, 31 and 46 yards. That was about the only negative of the contest and the boobirds let him know it.

"I expected the boos, but fans should be cheering for their team, not against it," Septien said. "At least, I was 4-for-4 on the extra points. The coaches said my timing was right, but my body was moving to the left and I was pulling the ball. I'll just have to practice twice as hard this week and get my concentration back. My bad game is now behind me and it didn't hurt the team. We won and that's the important thing."

Maybe the computer has an answer for Septien too because that darned old pile of transitors has put the machine back into the Cowboys. Computerized results is what the Cowboys are all it," said Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini. "They took away everything from us offensively, and we never got untracked.

Houston Coach Bum Phillips said. "I'm very disappointed they were able to control the ball like that. We probably were looking for them to pass more. I think we were over hyped about Sipe. But they've had a good running game all year. They deserved to win. They made clutch plays and didn't make errors.

Big Sky sets cage schedule for this season

BOISE, Idaho (AP) - Presidents of Big Sky Conference schools may be asked to decide Tuesday whether league basketball games should be played on Thursday and Saturday nights or Friday and Saturday

Commissioner Steve Belko said the Thursday Saturday schedule is being tried out this year, because some schools contend it is virtually impossible to play a game Friday night and travel several hundred miles to another city in time for a Saturday game

Athletic directors, faculty representatives, business managers and student body presidents are meeting in Boise today to prepare the agenda for the presidents' session Tuesday.

Boise State President John Keiser said he may bring up a proposal to allow live scouting of football games of conference opponents. Big Sky rules now limit scouting to the game

Saints, Raiders on TV

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - New Orleans Saints guard Conrad Dobler said the Oakland Raiders are the kind of football team he likes to play against, and the fact that they meet in a Monday night National Football League game just adds spice to it tonight. They've always had the reputation of being a tough, aggressive ball club," Dobler said. "I kind of like that - the old-fashioned type of football." The Saints haven't been in a Monday night game since 1974, when Pittsburgh clobbered them 28-7. Prior to that, the Saints lost to Kansas City 20-17 in 1972 and to Dallas 40-3 in 1973 — the only other times they played on Mondays.

Both teams are 7-6. The Saints need the victory to stay atop the NFC West, and the Raiders need it to keep slim hopes of a playoff shot alive.
