75,000 Texas Farms Have No Chickens

College Station—A total of 75,126 Texas farm families or 15 per cent of all farm families in the state do not have a poultry flock, according to Geo. P. McCarthy, poultryman of the Extension Service of Texas A. and M. College. McCarthy's statement is based on the 1935 agricultural census.

Among the southern state, only Florida, with 30.7 per cent of her farms without chickens, and Mississippi, with 15.4 per cent poultryless farms, rank below Texas.

Texas compares favorably with other southern states with her average of 48 chickens per farm on the farms that have poultry. Only Oklahoma, with an average of 50 exceeds Texas in the list of southern states. Representative states from other sections of the nation show Kansas with an average of 97, Oregon 61, Ohio 87, and Maine 55. These figures, McCarthy stressed, include commercial flocks.

The nutrition experts of the Extension Service tell me that the average farm family of five needs a flock of 50 hens," McCarthy pointed out. "Certainly we would like to see more hens on all the farms in the state and we would also like to see higher and more efficient production."

The average hen on Texas farms produced less than 63 eggs in 1935, the year of the census. Meanwhile in 1938 the 3,926 demonstrators, including 1,092 adults, 1,352 4-H club boys, and 1,534 club girls who kept records and cared for their flocks under the direction of county agricultural and home demonstration agents, had an average production of 170.8 eggs per hen.

The 1938 average was the highest that has been recorded since Extension Service poultrymen began the demonstration in 1930. In 1935, while the average production over the state was 62.4 eggs per hen, demonstrators' flocks produced at the rate of 159.7 eggs.

Community Club Enjoys Meeting

The Quitaque Community Club met Tuesday noon at the Los Lingos Hotel and enjoyed a splendid meal prepared by Mrs. Pitts, proprietor. Eighteen members were present.

It was decided at the meeting that change would be made in the conduct of the club's affairs, that it would be placed on a membership basis, dues being one dollar for each four weeks, payable in advance, thus taking care of the meals served.

A. L. Patterson replaced Grady Starkey as "tail twister" and by Monday noon of each meeting day will report the number of members to be present.

This takes the club out of its haphazard dilemma and places it on a more systematic and business like basis, and will keep the treasury balance on the black side of the ledger.

Those present and enjoying the argument were: Paul Hamilton, Roy Leslie, Bill Middleton, Rev. Geo. Keever, W. R. Scott, E. W. Scheid, A. L. Patterson, Huck Berry, L. E. Graham, J. C. Rhoderick, E. G. Rice, Dr. E. C. Price, J. W. Ewing, C. R. Badgett, S. T. Bogan and Orlin Stark.

There being two candidates for county commissioner present they were extended an invitation to address the membership (provided they both spoke at the same time.) They both very "gracefully" declined.

LOCAL FISHERMEN BRING HOME THE "CHIGGERS"

Dr. E. C. Price, W. H. Hopkins Jr., Charley Clark, R. S. Lewis and Ewel Hamilton spent the week end on Murray Lake near Ardmore, Oklahoma, where they collected more "chiggers" than they did fish. Tall tales of the viciousness and gluttonous habits of the fish in that body of water, which has just been opened to anglers, have been circulated over the country and the local Izaak Walton could not withstand the temptation. Judging from their "catch" reports of fishing in Lake Murray seem to be slightly (maybe we should say grossly) exaggerated.

Small Flood Visits Here Early Wednesday

Rain, Rain, Rain. That is the weather report for this week. Starting last Thursday night with .43 inches J. Pluvius ran his total up to 4.06 inches Wednesday afternoon.

The heaviest fall was early Wednesday morning starting shortly after midnight, when the rain gauge showed 1.93 inches. This was accompanied by a severe electrical disturbance.

Two work horses of J. T. Young, northeast of town, were killed by lightning. He had four horses in his barn lot and when he arose Wednesday morning he found that two had been killed. The others were not injured.

Roads were washed and some made impassable because of inundation. Several bridges were reported washed out by the downpour of Wednesday morning. Much land was badly washed and in many instances terraces were washed away.

Fear is felt that about 50 to 75 per cent of the crops will have to be replanted. Many farmers had already planted twice, some three times.

Beginning the night of May 12 when .92 inch of rain fell, and including the fall yesterday (Wednesday) afternoon, a period of 27 days, 7.21 inches of rain have fallen in Quitaque.

Here are the figures for the past week: Thursday, .43; Friday, .29; Sunday, .44; Monday, .17; Tuesday night, 1.93; Wednesday, .80.

Gasoline Downs Francis In Good Game Sunday

Gasoline came from behind in the ninth inning Sunday to defeat Francis in a very evenly matched baseball game on the home lot before a large crowd of fans.

Gasoline scored first in the third inning, when Glenn Morrison crossed the plate with the only earned run of the game, when his teammate and uncle, Clyde Morrison, laid down a perfect bunt.

Francis turned loose in the sixth inning and shoved two tallies across the plate on Gasoline errors. They came back in the seventh for two more markers, also on Gasoline errors, finishing their scoring for the afternoon.

Gasoline came back in the eighth and marked up two runs on errors by the visitors, then in the ninth rang up two markers, also on errors, to win the ball game.

AGRICULTURAL BRIEFS

BY THE BRISCOE COUNTY AGENT

The call to "Arms" last week not only got a response from the sheiks and sheikesses, but lots of farmers and ranchers got their ire up too. The results are—we have lots of dead grasshoppers now.

This week we're putting out plenty of poison bait for the grasshoppers. We have plenty of it on hand, we want the farmers and ranchers to come in and get it—don't let those hoppers get your grass and crops.

Poison bait has proven by test the ideal way to control the hoppers. The Federal Government is furnishing all the poison and half the bran in order to aid the farmers and ranchers in their battle with the hoppers.—Are you as interested in your own crops as Uncle Sam?

—Information—

Time has come for planting cotton. Many farmers have planted and failed to get a stand. The question now comes up "Do I have to keep on planting cotton in order to comply with the Government program?" For information of those who have this question in mind the following is given: If you have planted as much as 80 percent of your cotton goal you have qualified for 100 per cent of your cotton payments. If you didn't get a stand of cotton you do not have to plant over. The land that you planted to cotton may be summer fallowed, planted to maize, hegar, or kaffir for harvest. This will not affect your payments. When you draw your map just show the acreage that you planted in cotton—even if it has a crop of maize on it when you make up your map.

And since we're talking about this feed crop that may be grown on this cotton land I'd like to remind you that this feed will fit beautifully into a good trench silo. We may get too much cotton on hand but we can never get too much feed stored up. Feed will keep indefinitely in a trench silo.

—Attention—

Many farmers want to summer fallow their soil, conserving acreage this year instead of planting sudan, peas, cane or soy beans. This practice is acceptable but the term "summer fallow" should not be confused with "summer FOUL".

The soil conserving acres must be kept clean if it is summer fallowed—otherwise it will be counted as soil depleting.

BYPU Group Has Interesting Meeting

A very interesting program was given by Group No. 1 of the Intermediate BYPU Sunday evening on "Learning To Think for Myself."

Those on the program were: Charlie Burgess, A World Need. Reba Gowin, Importance of Thinking. Kathleen Hawkins, Power of Choice. Harold Jacks, Creative Thinking. Joe King, Independent Thinking. Edgar Hatton, Christ's Standard of Thinking.

Thought makes us, intelligently cultivated or allowed to run wild; but whether our minds are cultivated or neglected they will "bring forth". We are what we think, so if you would be great, think great thoughts. If we would have minds that are as beautiful gardens filled with lovely thoughts, we must so of such seed-thoughts, for it is an inevitable law of life that we reap what we s-w. In Christ and Christ alone are found the noblest standards for guiding one's thoughts. Train your thoughts in the right channel of life.

Mrs. Iva Matthews was called to Tyler the latter part of last week by the death of her brother, Willie Mack Green, which occurred Friday. Mrs. Matthews and son, Allen Matthews and wife, were driven to Tyler by J. T. Bradley for the funeral service which was held Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Jim Stroup was taken to a Lubbock hospital Monday by her husband for a major operation. They were accompanied by his mother, Mrs. O. W. Stroup, her brother, Clarence Wise and Miss Jane Hughes.

UNDERGOES OPERATION AT LUBBOCK HOSPITAL

Mrs. Stroup required a blood transfusion before the operation and this was administered Tuesday, the operation being performed Wednesday morning. She withstood the ordeal nicely and Wednesday evening was reported getting along as well as could be expected.

ALTON JOHNSON GETS PROMOTION

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Johnson and small son spent the week end here with relatives. Mr. Johnson has received a new assignment, that of appraiser, and was ordered to report to the office at Springfield, Colorado. He is in the same line of work only having received a promotion, his territory covering five states with headquarters remaining at Amarillo.

"Mrs. Johnson and the boy will visit here until Mr. Johnson is definitely established at home.

Misses Rosie Lee, Ruth Simmons and Mrs. Hope VanMeter of Lubbock visited home folks over the week end.

County Parole Boards To Hold Conference

Governor James V. Allred has announced that the Voluntary County Parole Boards of Texas will hold their second state-wide conference on June 17th and 18th. Pointing out that it has been over two years since the first such conference, he stated that a large attendance is expected.

The conference will be held in Huntsville and inspection tours will be made of the penitentiary and of one of the prison farms. The prison officials, according to Burkes P. Dougherty, the governor's assistant, have expressed keen interest in the conference and are cooperating in every way possible to assure a colorful program.

In letters to each Voluntary County Parole Board, Governor Allred said, "It is with regret that I realize the end of my administration as governor will terminate my official connection with you in this movement. Needless to say, I am proud to have had the privilege of organizing this system; I am more than proud of your splendid cooperation. You have served faithfully and well, and your accomplishments will forever stand as a testimonial to the unselfish sacrifices you have made in the interest of the State and your fellow man."

There are over 1,100 members serving on the County Parole Boards in 243 counties. These boards serve the dual purpose of assisting parolees and of protecting society, and although a strict policy of revoking clemency has been followed, it has been found that the percentage of delinquencies under this system compare very favorably with the percentage of delinquencies under systems which employ full time workers.

Be it further resolved, that copies of this resolution be given to the press, candidates for office, consumer and farm organizations, merchants and merchant associates, and that all be requested to join in the campaign against the mounting cost of government.

Be it resolved, First: We insist that the cost of operating the state government in Texas should be reduced in keeping with the ability of taxpayers to pay the cost.

Second: We oppose efforts to shift burdens or to enact any new taxes in any way of Sales, Luxury, Gross Receipts, or Income Taxes.

Third: We endorse a program to provide for the collection of delinquent taxes and for a more equitable system of assessing ad valorem taxes.

Merchants Resolve Against Tax Burden

The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the annual convention of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas at Dallas, May 25, 1938.

Whereas, within the past twenty years the cost of operating the State government in Texas has increased 670 per cent, during which time the population increased only 38 per cent, and property values only 43 per cent, and Whereas, the total cost of all units of government, plus borrowings, now requires almost 30 cents out of each dollar of income which is paid by consumers, and Whereas, some tax paying interests are seeking to shift some of their rightful tax burden to the shoulders of the consumer—also some candidates for state offices are advocating higher taxes on consumers therefore,

Be it resolved, First: We insist that the cost of operating the state government in Texas should be reduced in keeping with the ability of taxpayers to pay the cost.

Second: We oppose efforts to shift burdens or to enact any new taxes in any way of Sales, Luxury, Gross Receipts, or Income Taxes.

Third: We endorse a program to provide for the collection of delinquent taxes and for a more equitable system of assessing ad valorem taxes.

A Lesson in Zoology—For Drivers

'A car is like a cat, according to a new highway safety booklet entitled "Death Begins at 40" recently issued by The Travelers Insurance Company.

It is quiet, except for a low and pleasing purr. Its padded tires are like padded feet. It has powerful eyes that shine at night. And when it is allowed to run wild, it gives an awful screech at the moment before it does its victim to death.

nine times as powerful as at 25. It is nine times as hard to stop, nine times as hard to turn, nine times as deadly.

Thinking of speed in these terms will help you to keep a lighter toe on the accelerator.

Fishing Conditions In Texas

BY WILL J. TUCKER
(Game, Fish and Oyster Commission)

When the first arc light was put in operation at the corner of the block in the small town where I grew to a realization of the wonders of the world, it was a signal of great progress and aroused much civic pride. It presaged the passing of the kerosene lamp. The light tender who sealed the high pole each morning to replace the carbon was a hero to all the boys in the community. He knew something about a mysterious new element. His morning round of peeling climbing brought forth the neighborhood boys, eager to get the small pieces of carbon. He made a friend for life when he brought down the sometime slightly used carbon sticks, not trusting to breaking them by a throw to the ground, and with fine impartiality occasionally gave the smaller boys that which they could not have won in a wild scramble.

The lighted space provided by the arc light of forty years ago was the early evening rendezvous of the boys of the community. There were no automobiles and the street intersection was a fine place to play. It was the drill ground of our juvenile, military company, imitating our elders who were getting ready for the Spanish-American War.

But I came to the arc light area many mornings for a purpose other than getting carbon sticks. I discovered that just about the time the dogwoods began to bloom the lights attracted a myriad of precious insects, many of which fell to the ground, and were there to be taken with little effort. It was there that I first began a serious study of practical entomology. I soon learned to gather only those bugs which fish liked best. The rarer ones I traded with those peculiar boys who were content with mere bug collecting.

By this time you understand that the arc light was an important source of fish bait, and that in my estimation it was justified from that fact alone. It taught me early to know those bugs which the fish liked best. I developed into a "fly fisherman" without benefit of bamboo rod, or dressed line.

When the earlier electric development was in progress we did not see any other possible connection with fishing. But electricity is now so important in every day life that we are making every effort to provide it more cheaply. That is urging the erection of hydro-electric dams, and in many places these dams are capable of producing better fishing, if fish are given proper consideration as one of their by-products. But I shall deal with that later.

Looking back over a life that has brought me to boyhood at the time the Maine was sunk, I find that I am inclined to view all progress in its connection with wild life. Perhaps that is as it should be. Too many are prone to forget that which makes life possible, pleasant or even endurable.

When I had to work in a printing office during vacations, the introduction of the Linotype machine was important in that it made it possible to get the paper out earlier, and thereby provided more time for fishing, swimming and hunting.

The first automobile appealed to me as a wonderful device for reaching the haunts of wildlife. All places in walking or horse distance had been explored long before there was any possibility of automobile ownership, so far as I was concerned. As a matter of fact, however, the first automobile in which I had a direct interest was purchased jointly by Harry Green and me. We pooled our financial resources and went into debt rather deep y so that we might explore some new hunting and fishing places—and get there while they were still good. We alarmedly foresaw that all good places soon would be completely exploited. Why, over some very bad pioneer roads, (if you took along enough cold-patches, spare parts and extra inner tubes) one had reasonable assurance of getting as far away as a hundred miles in a couple of days. It was getting so you could purchase gasoline, if you had the money, in even some of the smaller towns.

We liked hunting and fishing, and we believed in the most up to date methods. Many years before I had seen the late Congressman Buchanan out with a casting rod and reel. Much to my surprise he was catching largemouth black bass, which I then called trout, like most everybody else in the South. My silversides on a Sproat hook were doing fairly effective work. It wasn't long before I saved enough to buy a casting outfit and two lures. They were sure killers, maybe because fish didn't know much about lures in those days.

Finally we got out in the country of white waters, where you didn't see anybody in a day's fishing. We found that where the fish had been fished for the least they struck or bit the best. Most of the waters were good, unspoiled, but there were some places that were just naturally bad. Around the campfire of evenings we would speculate on the possibility of reaching other fishing places on our next excursion—to beat the crowds there that were so sure to come when more and more people bought automobiles. We did not even dream of the time when other pioneer anglers would try to find new fishing places from their aeroplanes. But that epoch in history has long since been achieved.

Harry was down last week. He likes quiet lakes and streams. He thought I ought to know where to find such a place. We were willing to provide an automobile better than anyone dreamed of owning when we started fishing together. It didn't cost but $800. You couldn't have bought one that good twenty years ago for $80,000, and it wouldn't have gone over the ruts of many roads of that time, even if one had owned such a grand automobile.

But I couldn't tell Harry about where to find any quiet lakes or streams, except a few private ones that after all have about them the atmosphere of artificiality. It was because almost everyone owns an automobile as good or better, and the State has spent millions of dollars building country roads better than our city sidewalks used to be.

Exploitation of fishing places no longer requires the endurance of pioneer hardships. You can buy groceries on the banks of some of the favored fishing places, and if you have the habit of some fishermen, there you can get a few bottles of cold beer or the makings of a highball. You can sleep in screened enclosures, with all the comforts of home, where we used to be content to sleep where the rattlesnakes and cottonmouths were not too numerous. If you are an early riser you can go a hundred miles before breakfast put in a day fishing and return after supper and by normal bedtime.

Constipated?

"For 30 years I had constipation, awful gas bloating, headaches and back pains. Adlerika helped right away. Now, I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want. Never felt better." Mrs. Mabel Schott.

ADLERIKA

"My Skin Was Full of Pimples"

But you won't catch as many fish as we used to catch in the same number of hours of fishing, even though you are aided and abetted by fishing tackle manufacturers who are thoroughly versed in fish psychology and by State and Federal fish culturists, who are trying to supplement the work of nature in keeping up with your demands.

But this is no apology for why it is so long between bites or strikes for the average fisherman. It is an effort to show what can be done to keep up with the reasonable demands of an increasing army of fisherman, if we use ordinary intelligence and pursue a course of good public policy.

If we are to provide better fishing we must consider all factors, and bring about such adjustments as are economically possible and socially popular. It is a job that requires technical competency and the bulwark of public support that should come as a result of adequate information. We must approach this subject with an understanding that we are dealing with an important publically controlled natural resource.

Perhaps we never will be able to bring back all of those conditions which my friend Harry has enjoyed, but if you will follow through with me, we can provide him with a better fishing place before he joins Ike Walton and the other fisherman, where the wind is always from the South; where the fish are forever hungry; where the dogwoods bloom at all seasons, and the waters are clear, cool and inviting during the perpetual twilight that casts its soft glow, in those regions of Heaven that are reserved for the most favored angels—the Anglers, who have never done worse than tell a fishing lie.

(Next week: Abuse of public fish resources, and the outlook for the future.)
