

Feds say many Texas sheriffs on the take

TYLER, Texas (AP) — The badges of many Texas sheriffs have been tarnished by graft, federal authorities say, and low salaries, broad official powers and the temptations of big bucks from narcotics and gambling rackets.

U.S. Attorney John Hannah, who successfully prosecuted sheriffs in Gregg, Fannin and Cherokee counties of East Texas during the past two years, believes corruption arises because of widespread authority bestowed on sheriffs by the Texas Constitution.

"When you get absolute authority, it tends to corrupt absolutely. I don't think it is any deeper than that," he said.

Hannah said sheriffs, unlike city police administrators, are not under close official scrutiny.

"People don't realize how tremendously powerful the sheriff is," said Hannah. "He is the chief law enforcement officer in the county and in the rural areas he is still called 'high sheriff'."

"This differs from a city police officer or chief because he is appointed and has 15 people looking over his shoulder ... there is absolutely nobody in the world that tells the high sheriff what to do," he added.

Hannah said a rural sheriff can supplement his income easily without stirring public concern.

"I'd say in an average-size Texas county with a population of 50,000 people, a crooked sheriff could make $30,000 to $40,000 a year without even being blatant about it," Hannah said.

"The biggest possibility for making money would be in condoning narcotics traffic," he continued. "More money is involved in that than any other criminal activity."

Veteran FBI agent Bill Hinshaw, who investigated allegations of corruption in Gregg County, said he believes at least half the state's 254 sheriffs are on the take.

The public's attitude toward corrupt sheriffs is a major problem in obtaining convictions, Hinshaw said.

"I was in once case," said Hinshaw, "where a sheriff stood up in court and said, 'Sure I've taken money from pimps and gamblers but I've never asked for a raise in the years I've seen this county.' And you know, the jury walked him right out of that court a free man."

Hinshaw added that corrupt individuals often carry great weight in local election campaigns, making it difficult for an honest sheriff to do his job.

"One sheriff," said the FBI agent, "told us about an illegal gambling operation in his county and he requested federal intervention and his confidentiality ... he was afraid if it were known that he provided information, one of the people involved in the illegal operation would then back someone to run against him."

"That is a sad commentary when a sheriff in his own county can't be proud of enforcing the law."

One of the problems, Hannah said, is that rural sheriffs' pay is so poor that qualified people don't usually run for the job, which is an elective office in Texas.

Hannah said he hopes the Texas Department of Public Safety and Texas Rangers will begin keeping a closer eye on the sheriff's departments across Texas, an 'g's that his office will continue its aggressive prosecution of lawmen on the take.

"I can't imagine anything worse for citizens than to have corrupt law enforcement," he said.

Chain snatcher kills woman

NEW YORK (AP) — At more than $670 an ounce, the gold boom has given birth to a new type of crime victim — fashionably dressed men and women who display the glistening precious metal on neck chains as they travel on New York City's streets and subways, police say.

Late Saturday, a 21-year-old Maryland tourist became the second woman killed in an attack involving an apparent chain-snatching, police said.

Less than an hour later, a private security guard shot an Ossining, N.Y., teen-ager as he and several companions allegedly tried to rip chains from the necks of two girls in front of the Minskoff Theater on Broadway, police said.

Police said the two incidents apparently were unrelated.

In the first eight months of 1980, nearly 2,000 chain-snatchings were reported in city subways. Since April, police said, there have been an average of about 500 such robberies a month.

When chain-snatching became so widespread three months ago that it was not deemed safe to wear jewelry in city subways, Transit Police Chief James Meehan organized a 30-member task force to combat the problem.

Police warn it is still not safe to display jewelry and have asked commuters and pedestrians to wear gold trinkets beneath clothing until they reach their destination.

The first gold-snatching death occurred June 23 when two men in a car stopped Dora Papapanagiatou to ask directions and grabbed the chain around her neck. She was dragged two blocks to her death when the chain failed to break.

In the weekend incident, Colleen Wall of Ellicott, Md., was stabbed in the back by one of three unidentified robbers who tried to steal her purse and yank a gold chain from her neck as she walked in Manhattan's theater district. The thieves fled empty-handed.

Town's diet didn't hurt his business.

NATCHITOCHEs, La. (AP) — One cannot be too rich or too thin, the saying goes — but portly restaurateur James Lasoyne doesn't like thin and never will.

He gazes with polite bafflement upon the occasional diet-conscious tourist who sits down in Lasoyne's Meat Pie Restaurant to munch water-cress and lettuce leaves.

To Lasoyne, a strict diet goes contrary to human nature. So he was not among those who felt that a state-supported diet experiment in this city of 16,000 would reduce business.

Louisiana put up $40,000 to back a program based on the Pritikin diet, which is fat-free, salt-free, sugar-free, not much meat, lots of vegetables and grains.

"Food like that might make everybody healthier, though there is argument on that point. But there is no doubt that if such a diet ever really caught on it would turn the food industry inside out.

"I knew it wouldn't do well here," Lasoyne said. "There are three things people are always going to do — drive their cars, watch TV, eat the food they like."

Lasoyne prospers by concentrating on the food they like.

He has to laugh when he remembers that everybody told him, 14 years ago, it would be a big mistake to quit work as a butcher and open a shop downtown to sell his subtly spiced meat pies — a kind of fritter stuffed with pork and beef.

"I said, 'Well, I am going to try it, and I have been real successful,'" Today Lasoyne's, a full-grown restaurant instead of a meat pie shop, ranks as one of the city's chief tourist attractions.

Tourist agencies that book groups for scenic trips in chartered buses include a stop at Lasoyne's on the itinerary whenever a bus comes this way.

"One bus from New York was loaded with people from Spain and only one person on the bus could speak English," he said. "They had a heck of a time when some of them wandered off and got lost."

A magazine once contrasted Lasoyne's plain but busy place with another restaurant to speculate on how he could thrive in a town off the beaten track, with little or no advertising, while the other one had to struggle.

Actually, Lasoyne has not lacked for advertising — of the kind you can't buy.

It began with a magazine writer who stopped off for lunch eight years ago and wound up doing an article on the discovery of a jewel of a restaurant.

Since then Lasoyne's has shown up in other magazines, in newspapers, on network television.

A lot of mail comes in but Lasoyne won't handle correspondence.

"I only went to the sixth grade in school," he said. "My English is real bad and I can't type, so my wife handles all that."

Success has not changed his work habits. He puts on a white apron, sweats in the kitchen over hot stoves that redden his cheeks, and personally mixes the ingredients for his special meat pies. He keeps the recipe a secret.

'Squatters' school moves to churches

FOREST HILL, La. (AP) — While their parents' lawyer went back to court, children whose "squatters' school" was put out of business by a federal judge went to classes today in the three largest churches serving this rural central Louisiana community.

It was the third week of maneuvering by parents who want their children enrolled this year at Forest Hill Elementary, one of three schools closed by U.S. District Judge Nauman Scott's desegregation order.

The parents simply took over Forest Hill Elementary when Rapides Parish schools reopened Sept. 8 and conducted their own kindergarten through eighth grade for about 175 children who normally would have enrolled there.

It wasn't integration they were objecting to, the parents said, but Scott's busing some Forest Hill children as far as 30 miles away to achieve it. Many would be riding buses past a perfectly fine school within walking distance of their homes, the parents said.

The parents obediently took their children out of Forest Hill when Scott last week threatened to impose fines ranging from $100 to $300 on any adult who trespassed on the school grounds for any reason whatsoever.

Attorney Chris Roy of Alexandria, the Rapides Parish seat, said he would go through the formality today of petitioning Scott for a reconsideration of his restraining order and — when Scott denies it, as the judge has said he would — then take the matter to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

"This is a rural area whose entire livelihood and existence revolves around that school," said Roy. "He's telling these people they can't step on land that historically has been used for all sorts of beneficial purposes. It's really a scary issue."

The Rapides Parish School Board also was waiting for word on its second petition asking the U.S. Supreme Court to put Scott's order on hold for a year so the transition can be made more smoothly.

The entire Supreme Court was petitioned after Justice Louis Powell denied their original plea.

While lawyers worked their angles, spokesman

Clyde Holloway said parents spent all weekend planning the logistics of holding three sets of classes at the three largest churches serving the Forest Hill area.

Holloway said children in kindergarten, grades four, five and six would meet at First Baptist Church, those in the first, second and third grades at Pisgah Baptist Church, and seventh and eighth graders would assemble at Elwood Baptist Church.

FDA halts sale of venom

MIAMI (AP) — Snake handler Bill Haast has been ordered to stop selling the snake venom concoction that has drawn thousands of arthritis sufferers and multiple sclerosis patients to his Miami clinic.

quickly to form an invisible barrier that stays effective for months.

To keep ants out of the house, brush No-Roach across window frames and door sills.

The agency added that it was taking the action to stop sales only after spending more than a year trying to help Haast comply with the law.

Officials of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society said in New York the FDA would supply venom for more tests, proposed for next year, to determine its effectiveness in treating the diseases.

Haast, who began selling the venom mixture for human use through Sheppard in 1977, continued to sell it through his own clinic after the doctor's death last year.

The FDA letter claimed Haast provided "both oral and written false information" about the types of venom being used and their concentrations.

Contraband food device being made

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech researchers are developing a device to enable customs inspectors to find contraband food in international travelers' luggage without opening each suitcase.

The USDA is charged with keeping certain foreign insects and plant diseases from coming into the United States and harming American agriculture.

The experiment station began last June to develop a machine that can distinguish moist material like food from the surrounding dry clothing and leather of the suitcase.

Judges threaten to sue airline

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines received an unscheduled and vocal hearing from 24 Texas judges who were bumped from a flight to Houston Friday.

The civil appeals, state district court and county court-at-law judges had flown here from an annual judicial conference in Amarillo, but were barred from the Houston leg of the Southwest Flight 65, even though they had tickets.

The judges complained that the airline lied and was rude, and threatened to file a class-action suit on behalf of all Southwest Airlines passengers.

The flight left Amarillo an hour and a half late because of mechanical difficulties. When it landed at Love Field, passengers were told to get off because the plane had been rerouted to Oklahoma City.

W. Ervin James of the 14th Court of Civil Appeals in Houston said the judges left the plane only to find the passengers boarding it were going to Houston.

Judge David Hittner, another Houston district judge, said he and his wife had to be home for Yom Kippur services, which included a memorial service for his mother-in-law.

Mrs. Hittner said. When some in the group asked for assistance in chartering a plane, "we were told to look in the yellow pages," another judge said.

The judges finally left Dallas on a specially scheduled flight that arrived in Houston at 8:20 p.m. — more than five hours late.

"Aside from who we are, it's just not right," said one judge. "What happens to people who don't have influential friends?"

Southwest Airlines spokesman Jim McAward said the delay was caused by mechanical difficulties on Flight 65 and another Houston-bound flight and the heavy passenger traffic.

When the plane was delayed in Amarillo, he said, another airplane made the Dallas to Houston leg of the flight without the Amarillo passengers, who were forced to wait on priority standby.

He said few standby seats were available because of the volume of passengers.

The crew on Flight 65 had been told the plane was being rerouted to Oklahoma City, he added, and had no way of knowing it was continuing to Houston.

THE NEWSPAPER BIBLE

One apple spoils barrel

EVERYONE is talking about the terrible thing that has happened there among you, something so evil that even the heathen don't do it: you have a man in your church who is living in sin with his father's wife.

And are you still so conceited, so "spiritual"? Why aren't you mourning in sorrow and shame, and seeing to it that this man is removed from your membership?

Although I am not there with you, I have been thinking a lot about this, and in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ I have already decided what to do, just as though I were there. You are to call a meeting of the church—and the power of the Lord Jesus will be with you as you meet, and I will be there in spirit—

And cast out this man from the fellowship of the church and into Satan's hands, to punish him, in the hope that his soul will be saved when our Lord Jesus Christ returns.

What a terrible thing it is that you are boasting about your purity, and yet you let this sort of thing go on. Don't you realize that if even one person is allowed to go on sinning, soon all will be affected?

Remove this evil cancer—this wicked person—from among you, so that you can stay pure. Christ, God's Lamb, has been slain for us.

So let us feast upon Him and grow strong in the Christian life, leaving entirely behind us the cancerous old life with all its hatreds and wickedness. Let us feast instead upon the pure bread of honor and sincerity and truth.

She wants to fit pope in pair of Nocona boots

NOCONA, Texas (AP) — More than seven decades ago, Miss Enid danced her way out of school and into the family business.

Now she presides from her wheelchair over a $20 million-a-year boot company. Her creations — fashioned from hides ranging from ordinary bull to eel — have graced some of the richest, the hardest-working, the largest and the smallest feet in the world.

But there's still one pair the 86-year-old chairwoman of Nocona Boot Co. would like to make: a pair for a pope.

During an audience with the late Pope Pius XII, Miss Enid says, she longed to fit His Holiness with a pair of Noconas bearing the papal crest.

"The poor little fellow was standing there in a pair of thin red slippers," Enid Justin recalled.

Miss Enid started designing boots when she was 14, back in the days when a couple dozen bootmakers under the supervision of her father, H.J. Justin, turned out a pair a day of each of Nocona's two offerings — black and brown.

The company's current 352 employees turn out 1,500 pairs a day in alligator, bull, buffalo calf, pig, kid, kangaroo, caribou, lizard, shark, ostrich and eel.

The company was born when Papa Joe, a cobbler at Spanish Fort, made a pair of boots for a passing cowpoke who liked them so much he offered to drum up customers if Justin could take mail-order measurements. He figured out a method.

Miss Enid's life in the business began when she took a turn around her living room.

"Yep. They kicked me out of school for dancing," she said, her blue eyes twinkling. "I never drank or smoked, but some folks around here thought you'd go straight to the boogerman for dancing."

The school board suspended her for three weeks. She never went back.

"I just came to the office with Papa Joe. I did ordering and shipping for him and learned the business."

When Papa Joe died in 1918, Miss Enid's three brothers decided to move the H.J. Justin & Sons factory south to Fort Worth. She didn't want to move, so she created the Nocona operation with the help of a $5,000 loan.

Now, Noconas are among the best-known boots in the country, competing with Justin Industries, run by a branch of the family, and Tony Lamas. Nocona vice president Joe Justin, a nephew, says the company grosses $20 million a year.

The urban cowboy craze hasn't hurt, either. Sales were up 700 percent in Manhattan alone last year, she said.

Meanwhile, there's a family lawsuit in the wings, although Miss Enid's lawyers won't let her talk about it. Justin Industries, headed by

Lennon says the Beatles will never get together

NEW YORK (AP) — In his first major interview in five years, ex-Beatle John Lennon says he wanted to leave the Fab Four as early as 1966 but did not make the move until four years later because he "just didn't have the guts."

In an interview with Newsweek magazine released Sunday, Lennon disputed allegations that his second wife, Yoko Ono, was responsible for the group's breakup in 1970. He said the "seed" to quit the rock band was planted when the Beatles stopped touring.

"But I was too frightened to step out of the palace. That's what killed Presley," Lennon said, referring to the late rock 'n' roll singer Elvis Presley. "The king is always killed by his courtiers."

The singer, who turns 40 on Oct. 9, said "Yoko showed me what it was like to be Elvis Beate, and to be surrounded by sycophant slaves only interested in keeping the situation as it was — a kind of death."

Of his radical political views of the early 1970s, Lennon said, "That radicalism was phony, really, because it was out of guilt." He said he'd always felt guilty that he made money, "so I had to give it away or lose it."

Lennon also told the magazine there is no hope that the group, which hit international stardom in 1964 and sent teen-agers swooning with such songs as "She Loves You," "Yesterday" and "Help," will ever reunite.

"The four guys who used to be that group can never ever be that group again even if they wanted to be."

He added that "going back to the Beatles would be like going back to school ... I was never one for reunions. It's all over."

Lennon said it had been 10 years since he "really communicated" with Paul McCartney, who along with Lennon wrote most of the Beatles' biggest hits, and said if the two ever ventured to try and write some music together again "it would be boring."

He told Newsweek, "About two years ago, he (McCartney) turned up at the door. I said, 'Look, do you mind ringin' first? I've just had a hard day with the baby. I'm worn out and you're walkin' in with a damn guitar!'"

Lennon, who is awaiting the release of a new album entitled, "Double Fantasy," has spent the last several years being a "househusband," baking bread and baby-sitting the couple's five-year-old son, Sean, while Yoko managed the family's business affairs.

"To all housewives," Lennon said, "I say I now understand what you're screaming about."

Lennon told Newsweek that he had "hardly" picked up a guitar in nearly five years, but decided to record again because, "THIS housewife would like to have a career for a bit."

His promotion was 30 years ago

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Omar Nelson Bradley marks the 30th anniversary of his promotion to five-star general today, but the nation's highest ranking military officer has asked that no special celebration be held.

"He's a very humble man," said an aide, Lt. Col. Courtney Rittgers. "He's not overwhelmed with his own importance."

He said General Bradley will spend the day like any other weekday.

— "He'll probably read a little bit and do some administrative work."

It was on Sept. 22, 1950, that Bradley was elevated to five-star rank, joining Dwight D. Eisenhower, Douglas MacArthur, George Marshall, and Henry H. "Hap" Arnold.

Rittgers said Bradley's 69 years on active duty, dating back to his freshman year in West Point in 1911, was also a U.S. record for the longest time on active duty for any serviceman.

Bradley, one of the key strategists of America's victories in Europe during World War II, earned his fifth star after he was named the nation's first chairman of the joint chiefs of staff by President Harry Truman in 1949.

Rittgers said the promotion came "just after the Korean War broke out and MacArthur was commanding in the Far East and at the time MacArthur was a five-star and General Bradley was a four-star."

"This probably led to his promotion to five-star rank — so that he would have equal rank to General MacArthur," the aide said.

During World War II Bradley became known as the "doughboys' general" because of his concern for the welfare of his men. As commander of the First Army, he stormed ashore alongside his troops during the U.S. invasion of Normandy in 1944 and later led his troops to victory against the Nazis in the Battle of the Bulge.

He later commanded the Twelfth Army Group, a million-man force that was the largest command in American history.

Despite claims, Reagan spent more as governor

BALTIMORE (AP) — Ronald Reagan's claims that he was a frugal money-manager while governor of California were challenged by John B. Anderson, the independent candidate for president.

Reagan said during Sunday night's nationally broadcast debate that his administration halved the rate of increase of spending in California, while achieving tax cuts and rebates totaling $5.7 billion.

But Anderson said state spending increased from $4.6 billion when Reagan took office in 1967 to $10.2 billion at the end of his eight years in office, a faster rate of increase than at the federal level.

Reagan responded to Anderson's criticism by saying his administration had reduced per capita spending, in proportion to other states, and the per capita size of government. He said the size of government increased just one-twelfth of the level of the preceding eight years.

A check of Reagan's record as governor reveals that Reagan signed the biggest tax increases in California's 130-year history and presided over a 123 percent increase in spending.

The state work force grew by 4,273 in the first year, and by the end of his period in office, the work force grew 45,000, an increase of 28 percent, while the state's population grew 10 percent.

He signed legislation raising the sales tax from 4 to 6 cents per dollar, the bank and corporation tax went from 5.5 percent to 9 percent, and the top bracket of the state personal income tax jumped from 7 percent to 11 percent. He also raised cigarette taxes and extended the sales tax to gasoline.

Reagan had inherited a state government that was running a deficit of close to $1 million daily and was about to exhaust its accumulated surplus. One of his first orders as governor was a 10 percent budget cut.

However, within two months, he sought a billion-dollar tax hike instead.

Reagan did give back $5.7 billion in refunds, rebates and tax credits to taxpayers, and created a homeowners' property tax relief program that averaged $225 per home. He also left a budget with a $564 million surplus.

Reagan's record as governor wasn't the only subject on which the GOP candidate and his independent rival cited statistics that seemed in conflict. Discrepancies were apparent in their discussions of these additional subjects:

Debaters ignore panel's request for responsiveness to questions

BALTIMORE (AP) — One of the debate panelists, an optimist obviously, suggested to Ronald Reagan and John B. Anderson that everyone would appreciate "responsiveness to the questions rather than repetitions of your campaign addresses."

That was like asking a kleptomaniac not to steal or the ocean to cease its roar. The ideas honed on the campaign trail flew high, mighty and unfettered in Baltimore's convention center Sunday night, despite the request.

If either candidate veered from what he said in Amarillo, or Grand Island, or Chicago, it was merely coincidental.

Could it be otherwise when two candidates for president were given 22½ minutes each to parade their ideas before a national audience?

With the absent Jimmy Carter to snipe at, Reagan and Anderson found they didn't have to be impolite to each other. They came out of their blue-draped corners smiling, shook hands, and went the distance without shedding a drop of blood, Republican, independent or even Democratic.

"It's a shame there are only two of us, because the two of us here are more in agreement than disagreement," said Reagan at one point. "The only one in disagreement is the one who is not here, the president."

To Reagan, Anderson was "John." Anderson referred to his opponent as "Governor Reagan" — and even, "Sir."

As in "I think my programs are far less inflationary than those of Governor Reagan." Or, "I'm not here to debate Governor Reagan's record as governor. After all, this is 1980, not 1966." Not to be outdone, Reagan murmured softly at one point that "some people look up figures and some people make up figures and John just made up some interesting ones." And he pointed out that "John has never held an executive job of any kind."

Until the last moments, the League of Women Voters hoped Carter might join in a lecture for his use waited offstage.

The League figured an empty chair on the stage might be a bit much, but Reagan and Anderson reminded the audience every so often who wasn't there.

Who won?

Debate panel rates Anderson clearly the superior debater

WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Anderson, the outsider with nothing to lose, was clearly the superior debater in his nationally televised confrontation with Republican presidential nominee Ronald Reagan, according to a virtually unanimous panel of forensic experts.

The seven-member panel, scoring the bout for The Associated Press, based its conclusion on a standard point system used in scholastic debate competition. Anderson got 169 points, Reagan 154.

That does not mean, of course, that Anderson was or should be perceived as the victor by the public, since the scoring does not take into account the political preferences of the audience.

Public opinion polls taken prior to the Sunday night debate made Anderson a distant third against Reagan and President Carter, who sat out the Baltimore contest. Those polls doubtless will have much to say in the coming days as to whether any candidate, Carter included, won or lost anything.

Six judges ruled Anderson the better debater; one called the show a draw on points but said if he had to choose subjectively "I would have voted for Representative Anderson on a very narrow basis of superior content triumphing over superior style."

Only in the category of "presentation" did Reagan best Anderson, and then by only one point.

Reagan was cited by the judges for the professionalism expected of a former actor in his delivery, but Anderson was given credit for quicker thinking and more direct responses to the questions.

"I thought that what Representative Anderson had to say was more impressive than how Governor Reagan presented his material," said Dr. James J. Unger, director of forensics at Georgetown University and chairman of the panel.

Here is how the experts scored the debate on a scoring scale which allowed a maximum of 30 points over six categories.

—Unger: Anderson 20, Reagan 20.
—Professor Barbara O'Connor, California State at Sacramento: Anderson 27, Reagan 25.

—Professor James Copeland, Marquette University High School: Anderson 26, Reagan 25.

—Professor Jack Rhodes, University of Utah: Anderson 24, Reagan 23.

—Professor Donn Parson, University of Kansas: Anderson 25, Reagan 21.

—Professor Melissa Wade, Emory University, Atlanta: Anderson 22, Reagan 19.

—Professor William Southworth, University of Redlands (Calif.): Anderson 25, Reagan 21.

The debate was the first in a series planned by the League of Women Voters and patterned after the 1976 debates between then-President Gerald R. Ford and his Democratic challenger, Jimmy Carter.

Carter, however, refused to join this time around because of the presence of Anderson on stage, and Unger said the absence of the White House incumbent lowered the impact of the debate because "there was no presidential standard by which to judge."

But most of the debate specialists said because of his performance Anderson may have benefited from the exposure despite Carter's absence.

"In this particular debate, Anderson had to differentiate himself from both Reagan and Carter to be successful, and I think that he did that to a large degree," Professor Copeland said.

Anderson's ready command of evidence was his strongest suit, the judges felt.

"Anderson just used more evidence, brought more evidence to bear on the things he wanted to say," Parson said.

"I think the thing that made me pick Anderson over Reagan was the more ready use of evidence, "the ability to call forth the information quickly, speak about it confidently and direct his remarks a little more directly to the question," Rhodes said.

"Anderson had better evidence," agreed Professor Wade. "He used more independent sources. I thought he was more specific on various questions, gave more information."

"The more specific was more effective tonight," Professor Wade said.

"I think the problem is that Reagan really does not answer the specific questions that are addressed," Parson said. "What happens is the question becomes a stimulus for saying some of the things he wants to say but not to answer the question."

Southworth said Anderson did "a very good job of being consistent in his reasoning" while Reagan answered "very generally...and also (was) contradictory."

Professor O'Connor said "Reagan was just a little too low key. I found the more serious dimension of Anderson more appealing."

Reaction of Midlanders' is varied

pearing in the debates has about as much logic as if Bush refused to debate Walter Mondale — Carter's vice president — and Patrick Lucey — Anderson's running mate — since both are Democrats, said the younger Bush.

And there are plans in the making for a vice presidential debate in the future, Bush said, but he was unsure about the date.

Other Midlanders who watched Sunday night's debate rated it as good, but compared it to a campaign talk session.

YET, THEY ALL agreed the televised performance was informative and provided them with a better insight to the candidates.

Reagan's performance in the debate ranged anywhere between good to excellent, according to the public. However, "most of what Reagan said last night appealed to what I already believe in," Mrs. Larry Kargl of County Road 143 West said in rating Reagan's performance as excellent.

Brian LaBouff, 3301 N. Midland

Drive, observed that Reagan's performance was smooth and his answers to many of the debate's questions were parallel to his beliefs.

Anderson's "hollering and screaming" caused LaBouff to give the third party candidate a fair rating.

But, Gwen Leeper, 4412 Gulf Ave., gave Anderson an excellent rating because he gave the appearance of believing what he said and of his sincerity.

"I DON'T THINK he (Anderson) is nobody's fool," she said.

Mrs. E.E. Inman of 4422 Gulf Ave. ranked Anderson's performance as very poor, but she based that rating on her beliefs paralleling those of the GOP candidate.

The effect of President Carter's absence from Sunday's debate is undetermined, according to those polled.

Some residents noted his absence would affect his re-election chances, while others added his absence couldn't hurt him.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Keep guests on the menu

DEAR HELOISE:

A dear widow friend of mine has a good idea.

Each Monday she invites a different family from her church home for dinner the following Sunday.

They all know she doesn't drive a car, so each guest family picks her up for services.

In preparation for her Sunday guests, she keeps her house clean through the week, continues to have an interest in recipes and menus in planning the Sunday meal, thus varying her otherwise ordinary weekday meals.

She keeps alert to news around her so that she can be a good conversationalist; and enjoys the extra bonus of being invited occasionally into her guests' homes for a mid-week meal.

Staying active and involved is one of the best 'medicines' one who lives alone can take. Your friend is richly blessed in having many friends, as well as being one to many.

HINTS FROM HIM

DEAR HELOISE:

Find yourself rocking right out the door, when whiling the hours away in that old favorite rocking chair?

Glue some felt weather stripping to the bottom rockers and not only will you stay put, but you'll be quieter about it, and you won't leave any telltale marks on the floor to let someone know how long you've been sitting and rocking. — Edward K.

You and I both know — just 'cause you're sitting, doesn't mean you're idle. Obviously you've been doing a lot of thinking to come up with such a neat way to cover your tracks.

Thanks for taking the time to write. — Heloise

DEAR HELOISE: Steel wool soap pads rusted no matter what kind of receptacle I tried over the years.

But I've finally got the problem licked! I folded a piece of mesh onion bag and placed it neatly in the soap dish.

Now the wet soap pad sits on a cloud of nylon, dries like a bone, and I can use it down to its final service without a speck of rusty goo.

Sure feels good to pull a splinter of irritation out of another daily chore.

DEAR ABBY
TV 'garbage' a turn-off to parents

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We recently got cable television, and our 12-year-old daughter has been watching R-rated movies even though we would prefer that she not do so.

She said there is nothing wrong with it because she knows what is going on in the world. We're afraid that she'll soon think that the behavior portrayed in these movies is the norm.

Are we square in believing that a 12-year-old really doesn't need to watch a constant stream of sex and violence?

What do you think? and what should we tell her? She is a very level-headed girl. — IN A BIND IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR IN: Responsible parents would not permit their children to eat garbage, so why tempt them with intellectual garbage by making it handy and accessible? If you believe you are exposing your daughter to "a constant stream of sex and violence" with cable TV, you shouldn't have it in your home.

Do I think you're "square"? No. However, I do think you're unrealistic to have R-rated movies available on TV at home, while telling your 12-year-old you prefer she didn't watch them.

DEAR ABBY: The last three times we have been invited to a wedding, I have called the bride's mother and asked if her daughter was registered, or if she had some suggestions on what the bride could use.

All three times, the mother has hemmed and hawed, and ended up saying, "They have so many things already," or, "She's been on her own for some time and has everything she needs, so why don't you just give them the cash instead? I'm sure they can use it."

Abby, I have never given money for a wedding gift, and I don't intend to start now.

Revenge may be motive in bombing that killed six

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — A gift-wrapped box delivered in a home here may have contained the bomb that exploded and killed six people in a slaying allegedly motivated by revenge, officials say.

Danny E. Crump, arrested after the weekend explosion in the Kansas City suburb, was being held by authorities. A prosecutor said he would be formally charged today with six counts of first-degree murder.

Crump's 22-year-old wife, Diane, was one of the six family members who died in the blast. Police said the 25-year-old Crump was divorced this summer.

"It appears that it was a revenge motive," Jim Brightwell, assistant special agent in charge for the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Kansas City, said. "It appears to be a domestic situation."

"I can say it (the blast) was obviously directed against his wife," said county prosecutor Dennis Moore, who added that past disturbances between the couple had sometimes been violent.

ATF agents and police said they were certain the blast came from a bomb, but did not know how it was detonated or what explosive was used. Agents believe the bomb may have been dynamite, delivered in the same in a gift-wrapped box.

Witnesses told police someone threw the bomb shortly before 10 p.m. Saturday and placed a box in the trunk of a car parked in the driveway in a parking lot of the house about 1:30 a.m. The blast occurred moments later.

Douglas Stronny, a county deputy sheriff who lived near the home, said he was the first person on the scene after the explosion.

"One of the men (Stronny) was hanging across the foundation. Part of his foot was blown away," Stronny said. "They were parts of bodies all over the yard. I didn't know whether they were parts of different bodies or all one body."

In addition to Crump's wife, the victims were identified as her father, Robert Paul, 51, and mother, Norman Jean, 57, and three of their children, James H. Richard, 21, and Susan, 20, a 6-month-old son of Danny and Diane Crump. Randy, remained safe and uninjured and was in fair condition

Saturday night at an Olathe hospital.

Eraig Weber, 47, who suffered severe cuts in his face and left eye, was in satisfactory condition. The Weber boy was staying James at the Olathe home police said.

Another family member, 35-year-old David Paul, was in the house at the time of the explosion, but was not seriously injured.

The Pauls had ten children, and a neighbor described them as "a happy family" active in community affairs.

Neighborhood children stopped curious motorists Sunday to collect money for their 5-year-old playmate, Laurie, who was visiting neighbors when the blast killed her parents and four siblings.

A member of the Olathe, Kan., police department carried bundles in his arms a dog found in the rubble of a house that exploded late Saturday night, killing six and injuring two critically. Police have the ex-husband of one of the victims in custody and he was expected to be formally charged with six counts of first-degree murder a gift-wrapped box delivered to the house minutes before the explosion may have contained a bomb, police say. — AP Wirephoto

FBI informant to return to stand in Billy Clayton's Brillab trial

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors said they would rely today on the testimony of an FBI informant and the tape of a secretly-recorded conversation to show how Texas House Speaker Billy Clayton became a focus of the undercover Brillab investigation.

FBI informant Joseph Hauser, whose testimony is crucial to the government's case, was to return to the stand today in the trial of Clayton and two co-defendants.

Prosecutors said jurors also would hear the lengthy tape of a Sept. 20, 1978, meeting between Hauser and Deer Park union official L. E. Moore. It was during that conversation that the government said Clayton's name first surfaced.

Clayton and Austin attorney Donald Ray and Randall Wood are accused of extortion, bribery, racketeering and conspiracy in an alleged scheme to secure a multi-million-dollar state insurance contract.

Moore, regional director of the International Union of Operating Engineers, told Hauser during the Sept. 20 meeting he was acquainted with Clayton and hinted the legislator might be helpful in obtaining a lucrative contract, previous testimony revealed.

The government has charged that Clayton, once considered a leading contender for the 1982 Democratic gubernatorial nomination, accepted a $2,000 cash bribe and was promised an additional $200,000 if he respected bidding on a state employees health insurance contract.

The speaker, however, has said the money was pressed upon him as a campaign contribution and he never intended to accept it.

The allegation centers around the tape of a Nov. 8, 1978, meeting between Clayton, Hauser, and Moore, who will be tried later on similar charges.

Hauser, who secretly recorded the conversation while posing as an insurance agent during the FBI's 16-month undercover operation, is the government's key witness in the case.

Woman killed during gun battle in Lubbock

LUBBOCK (AP) — A 25-year-old man has been taken into custody after a woman was shot to death during a gun battle outside a Lubbock County night club, deputies say.

Mary Alice Alvarado, 26, of Lubbock, was pronounced dead at the scene early Sunday after being shot once in the forehead, said Don Goss, Lubbock County Sheriff's Department investigator.

He said the woman apparently was walking out the door of the club when the suspect, who earlier had been told to leave, and security guards began exchanging shots.

Goss said the man was trying to get back into the club when he was confronted by club guards. He said it had not yet been determined who fired the first shot.

The suspect was arrested at his home about 7 a.m. Sunday and was being held in Lubbock County jail pending arraignment.

Eagles even scare Jaworski

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quarterback Ron Jaworski says it's a little scary the way things have gone so far for the Philadelphia Eagles. Jaworski, the leading passer in the young National Football League season, can't believe how well both the offense and defense have played. "And our special teams haven't broken it open yet and we have some return guys who can lay the ball in the end zone," Jaworski said. "I'll tell you, I don't know if the other teams were that bad or we're that good." Jaworski leads the Eagles tonight (8 p.m., ABC) against the New York Giants in the NFL's weekly Monday national television game. The Eagles are a 10-point favorite, and deservedly so, if you compute by statistics. Jaworski tried to evaluate the Eagles realistically. The quarterback noted that the Eagles beat Denver and Denver went on to trample Dallas. He pointed out that Atlanta beat New England after losing to Minnesota, and the Eagles blasted Minnesota.

White never gives boo birds chance

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
IRVING, Texas (AP) — Danny White never gave the Texas Stadium boo birds a chance to stir from their roosts Sunday. Heavily booed in the Dallas Cowboys' final exhibition game, the fourth-year quarterback threw a 28-yard touchdown pass to Butch Johnson on the Cowboys' first possession and they rolled to a 28-17 victory over previously unbeaten Tampa Bay in a National Football League opener. White, replacing the retired Roger Staubach as Dallas quarterback for the first time in the regular season play before the hometown crowd, completed 24 of 33 passes for 244 yards and three touchdowns. "It was great to have the crowd behind you," White said. "I hate to be booed ... it hurts." White hurt the Buccaneers with a 72.7 percent completion ratio. Besides the scoring pass to Johnson, he completed two 9-yard touchdown passes to tight end Billy Joe DuPree. Former Cowboy end Dave Stalls, now with Tampa Bay, took note of White's finest day as a Cowboy and said, "He had a good day and I'm sure he did away with some criticism." Veteran fullback Robert Newhouse, beaten out by Ron Springs, also had a big day when Springs sprained an ankle. Newhouse ran 2 yards for a touchdown and made a 9-yard run on fourth and one late in the game as the Cowboys ran out the clock. "Newhouse always gives 120 percent," Stalls said. "He gives second, third and fourth effort." Newhouse said, "I haven't had a chance to play much, but I'm ready ... all they have to do is call." Dallas and Tampa Bay are now both 2-1 and lodged in second place in the National Conference Eastern and Central Divisions, respectively. Detroit took over the NFC Central lead by remaining unbeaten with a 27-7 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. Tampa Bay ran up a 17-7 lead on Dallas after the White-to-Johnson connection. Buc quarterback Doug Williams scored on a scrambling 11-yard run. Garo Yepremian kicked a 22-yard field goal, and Williams hit tight end Jimmie Giles on a 49-yard scoring pass. Dallas did all the scoring in the second half with Newhouse's 2-yard touchdown run putting Dallas ahead to stay in the third quarter.

Rob replaces Earl ...well, er, almost

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
HOUSTON (AP) — The bottom line on Houston running back Rob Carpenter, who has played his career in the shadow of Earl Campbell, has always been "he's good enough to start for many teams in the National Football League." And Sunday, when Campbell re-injured a groin pull, Coach Bum Phillips discovered Carpenter was even good enough to start for the Oilers. In a rare burst of playing time, Carpenter replaced Campbell in the first quarter and rushed for 114 yards on 24 carries and scored on a 1-yard plunge to lead the Oilers to a 21-16 victory over the surprised Baltimore Colts. Carpenter became the first Oiler runner other than Campbell to rush 100 yards since Campbell joined the team in 1978. The victory also tied Houston for the American Football Conference Central Division lead with Pittsburgh, who lost to Cincinnati, 30-28. "CARPENTER took us by surprise," Colt linebacker Ed Simonini said. Carpenter said he got more confident as the game progressed. "Earl has a lot of confidence already and I got confident about halfway through the game," Carpenter said. "The more you play, the more confidence you have. We have a lot of very capable backs and we know we can do the job if we are called on." Baltimore coach Mike McCormack thought the Colts might have been more alert if Campbell had remained in the game. While Carpenter was filling in for Campbell, quarterback Ken Stabler was picking the Colt secondary to pieces. He directed the Oilers to a 14-9 halftime lead on a 3-yard pass to Rick Caster and Campbell's 1-yard run. Stabler opened the third quarter with a textbook ground drive that kept the Colt defense off balance the entire 80 yards. It ended with Carpenter diving one yard for the score and a 21-9 lead. Stabler finished by completing 18 of 21 passes for 219 yards and two interceptions.

Despite oil Boom, Bartosh fights recession

(The first of a two-part discussion) Don't talk to Gil Bartosh about booming Midland. The Midland Schools athletic director is still trying to contend with the recession. While houses are being shuffled from lot to lot to make room for the this week's modern new office building, Bartosh sees trouble ahead for Midland and Midland Lee high schools as a result of the 1980 recession in the oil industry. "Times were bad and people just stopped having babies," Gil simplifies the situation. "And it's just catching up with us now."

ments than Midland. "The decline will really hit in two years," Bartosh pointed out. "And according to projected school enrollment figures, Midland and Lee won't again approach this year's enrollment figures until 1991-92." Those figures take in a four to 10 per cent margin for error that could be caused by gain or loss of the city's work force, "but in the past they have proved extremely accurate."

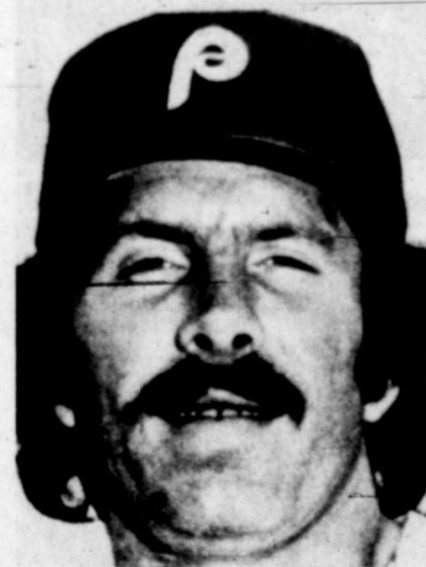

What disturbs Bartosh, who is in his first year as AD after two years as football coach at Lee; is that "any time you fall below 1,800, the consistency and quality drops in larger team sports." BARTOSH noted that when Plano was considering splitting into two high schools a few years ago, it conducted a survey in cooperation with the UIL's Bill Farney and discovered that schools winning 5A, then

4A, district championships averaged 2,200 students. Only one was under 1,800 enrollment. The projected enrollment figures do not come as a shock to Bartosh. He studied the Midland enrollment figures before he took the Lee job and expressed concern. But, significantly, he came to Midland anyway. So Bartosh is rolling up his sleeves rather than throwing in a towel over the Tall City's enrollment dilemma. "What it means is that we are just going to have to work harder," says Gil. He's starting with the junior high programs, not only in football, but in all sports. "A feeder system may be our salvation. In the past, we have had little continuity between the high school and junior high programs," Bartosh explained. "Now we will hold clinics for all sports at the seventh grade level. We want the junior high coaches to feel part of the program whether it's football, basketball, tennis or swimming." Both Bartosh and assistant AD (See BATTLE, 3C)

Cravath or Ott, Mike Schmidt is on his way

Los Angeles Times
Everyone's heard of Babe Ruth, Henry Aaron, Willie Mays, Mel Ott, Roger Maris or Mickey Mantle. But, how many people could identify, right off the bat, so to speak, Wally Berger, Chuck Klein, Gus Zernial, Rudy York, Roy Sievers, Nick Etten, Vern Stephens, Tommy Holmes and Hank Sauer? When it comes to old-time ball players, we all know Honus Wagner, Ty Cobb, Napoleon Lajoie and Rogers Hornsby, but who are Gavy Cravath, Harry Davis, Tilly Walker, Bob Meusel or Frank Schulte? We've all heard of Ted Williams, but did you ever hear of Ken Williams? They were all home run champions. They belonged to that special fraternity of strong men ballplayers who had that special knack for propelling a thrown ball out of a park and leading the league in it. But most of these guys should not ever leave home without that well-known card. They could star in those "Do You Know Me?" commercials. Michael Jack Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies is the logical heir and successor to these home run champions today. Time will tell whether he gets Gavy Cravath's place in history — or Mel Ott's (the National League home run award is named after him). Whether he'll be Ted or some other Williams. Mike Schmidt hits a home run every 14 times at bat. Ruth used to hit one every nine times at bat. Ruth hit home runs with machinelike consistency. Mike Schmidt tends to hit them in explosive clusters. Twice in his career, Mike Schmidt hit four consecutive home runs. No one else has ever done that. Not Ruth, Aaron, Ott, any Williams, Mantle, Mays or Maris. Mike hit four in a row in Chicago in a 10-inning game in 1976 and, last year, he hit a home run his last time up against the Giants, one day, and three in a row his first three times up the next day. Several people had done that. But they were people like Stan Musial, Jimmie Foxx, Hank Greenberg and Mantle. The first team.

TWENTY-SIX times in his career, Mike Schmidt has hit two or more home runs a game. Only five active players are ahead of him. This year, Mike Schmidt will probably lead the league in home runs for the fourth time in his career. Would you believe Ty Cobb never led the league in home runs? Of all the great all-time old-time batters, only Hornsby was a home run leader. The home run (See SCHMIDT, 2C)

Donna Caponi Young ...2nd straight, 5th of year

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Trevino's birdie on 18 good one-stroke Texas Open win

By The Associated Press
GOLF — Lee Trevino rolled in a 25-foot birdie putt on the 18th green to win his first Texas Open championship. Trevino finished at 15-under-par 265 and edged by 1 stroke the 1974 Texas Open winner, Terry Diehl. Trevino, who won three consecutive Vardon Trophies from 1970 through 1972, finished the year with a 69.73 stroke average, which would be the lowest stroke-average to win the Vardon Trophy since Sam Snead averaged 69.23 strokes in 1950. Donna Caponi Young fired a 4-under-par 69 to win her second straight LPGA Tournament and gain her fifth victory this season at Overland Park, Kan. The 69 gave Young a tournament record 9-under-par 283 for four days on the 6,273-yard, par 73 Brookridge Golf and Country Club course. Shelley Hamlin finished second, 4-under-par at 288. Third, at 2-under-par, was M.J. Smith with a final-round 70, while Hollis Stacy, Lori Nelson and Pat Bradley tied for fourth at 1-under-par.

Joe League, 25, of Atlantic City, was the second male finisher at 2:32:16; and Jim Waters, 31, of Collingswood, N.J., finished third in 2:47:19.

BASKETBALL — "Pistol" Pete Maravich, who signed a new contract with the Boston Celtics less than two weeks ago, has quit the National Basketball Association club, ending a 10-year pro career. Maravich, who averaged 11.5 points in 26 games with the Celtics last season, started at guard four times in the NBA all-star game. He won the league's scoring title with the New Orleans Jazz in 1976-77, averaging 31.1 points per game.

AUTO RACING — Italy's Mauro Baldi, in a Martini, led from start to finish and won the Marquis of Cubas Trophy, an auto race counting for the European Formula Three championship at Mardid in 43 minutes 4.45 seconds... Bobby Allison, driving a Thunderbird, slipped and slid to victory in a 400-lap NASCAR race at the North Wilkesboro Speedway, stealing the lead from Darrell Waltrip with 19 laps remaining on the five-eighths mile track and finished 1.9 seconds ahead of Waltrip, who was followed by Dave Marcis' Chevrolet... Ritchie Evans edged Geoff Bodine by less than a second after outdueling Ron Bochar to win the 225-mile Race of Champions for modified stock cars at Pocono Raceway.

HARNES RACING — Nevele Impulse, $15.40, won the $186,022 Dexter Cup at Roosevelt Raceway by a half-length over Final Score.
