Groundbreaking ceremonies were held this morning for Midland National Bank's new 14-story office tower. The addition, shown here on the left in an artist's drawing, will resemble the existing structure in design. Completion is scheduled for early 1982.

Ground broken for twin tower

A second, irregular hexagonal building will grace Midland's skyline before long.

Groundbreaking ceremonies this morning initiated construction for Midland National Bank's second 14-story tower.

The new tower will be a mirror image of the present building that houses Midland National Bank. The two buildings will form the Midland National Center with the present tower named One Midland National Center and the new building, Two Midland National Center.

Both will be located on West Texas Avenue between North Carrizo and Marlenfeld.

The new tower will contain a total of 217,000 square feet of space with an average of 15,000 square feet per floor and will be adjacent to the present tower, connected with a courtyard.

A new multi-level parking facility will provide 900 parking spaces adjacent to the two structures.

Both towers have been designed by Morris Aubry of Houston. Aubry won the 1977 Award of Merit from the Texas Society of Architects for his design of the current building.

The new tower also will include the same "energy efficient practicality" as its sister structure, according to a Midland National Bank spokesman.

A spokesman for Gerald Hines Interests of Houston, manager of the present building and future manager of the new tower, said the main energy conservation feature is the striking "saw-tooth" edges on the east and west.

"We manage about 315 projects with nearly 60 million square feet of properties," the spokesman said, "and the existing Midland National Bank on a dollar per square foot basis, in energy consumption is the most efficient we have."

He explained that the saw-tooth feature results in brick and concrete walls on the east and west being exposed to the sun, thereby preventing loss of cool or warm air through glass windows.

"And yet, there's glass to provide views facing north and south," he said.

According to the spokesman, the mechanical systems, such as heating and air conditioning, also have been designed to save as much energy as possible.

Aubry also won an award for energy conservation for his design of the present Midland National Bank tower.

Two Midland National Center is a project of Midland National Bank and Gerald Hines Interests.

"The Midland National Center reaffirms our commitment to one of the nation's most important energy capitals — the community of Midland and all its people," said Tony Martin, Midland National's president and chief executive officer.

"Our friends and customers have made our dream of the finest financial complex in the Permian Basin possible. And we will continue to repay that friendship and faith with innovative and flexible financial services to the community."

Ray Moudy, Midland's Chamber of Commerce president, congratulated the directors, officers and staff of Midland National for their commitment to Midland.

Calling the new tower "a beautiful addition to Midland's skyline," Moudy said, "It is another example of Midland National's many contributions of services and professionalism to our city."

Two Midland National Center is scheduled for completion in early 1982.

Aide arrives in Algeria with response

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Deputy Secretary of State Warren Christopher arrived in Algiers today carrying the latest American response to Iran's terms for freeing the 52 American hostages.

"We hope, or we expect, to have good talks with the Algerians to whom we are very grateful," Christopher told reporters in a brief arrival statement.

Christopher was accompanied by Redha Malek, Algeria's ambassador to Washington, and a delegation of other American officials.

The group was greeted by Abdelkrim Gheraib, Algeria's ambassador to Tehran, who told reporters the American and Algerian officials would probably meet later today.

Photographs and television shots of Christopher's departure Monday night showed what looked like tears in his eyes. A State Department spokesman said today that if Christopher had been shedding tears, it was probably because it was windy at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington, where he took off for Algiers.

The deputy secretary is scheduled to meet with Algerian Foreign Minister Mohamed Benyahia to relay the U.S. reply. Algeria has been acting as intermediary in the negotiations between the United States and Iran.

There was no immediate indication of a breakthrough on gaining the release of the hostages after nearly 13 months of captivity.

Christopher and other U.S. officials will be prepared to answer any questions the Algerians might have regarding the U.S. position, State Department spokesman David Nail said. Christopher conferred over the weekend with President Carter at Camp David, Md., about the U.S. response to Iran's request for clarification, brought here last week by Algerian emissaries.

The contents of the U.S. message were not disclosed, but it is known that the administration has tried to persuade authorities in Tehran that there are major legal and technical complications to the terms.

A U.S. official said the message represented no change in the basic American position carried to Algeria by Christopher three weeks ago. "It is an attempt to respond fully to the Iranian request for clarification of certain aspects of our position," said the official, who asked not to be identified by name.

Christopher's delegation was ready to caution Iran that there may be less American flexibility on the hostage issue after President Carter leaves office, sources said. But they stressed that Christopher carried no statement or message to that effect from President-elect Ronald Reagan.

One of the sticking points in reaching a negotiated settlement is Iran's insistence that all American claims against the country be canceled. This poses legal complications, since more than 200 lawsuits have been filed in U.S. and foreign courts.

Last month, the administration informed Iran through Algeria that it had prepared legislation to have an international commission handle the claims.

Iran's demands, set by its parliament Nov. 2, call for an American promise not to interfere in the country's internal affairs, cancellation of all American claims against Iran, release of more than $9 billion in impounded Iranian assets and return of the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Odessa's city police absolved

ODESSA — The Ector County grand jury Monday absolved the Odessa Police Department of any alleged wrongdoings.

The grand jury began its investigation about three weeks ago after a front-page article in the Oct. 20 Dallas Morning News charged the Odessa Police Department of being "in partnership with crime."

The article accused police of not cracking down on known high-class prostitutes, especially at the recent oil show, or on gambling operations. The story also said a main control panel in the jail was broken and had been for months.

"That means a jail trustee, for example could open the unlocked panel door and open a half-dozen cells in one of the blocks, allowing inmates to overtake the lone jailer," said the Dallas Morning News.

Two other major allegations in the story were that evidence was improperly stored and that club "bosses" were not prosecuted properly.

The day after the article was published, Police Chief Jack Tomlin called a press conference in which he denied all but one charge — and that one he clarified. Tomlin admitted that one jail cell was malfunctioning but said a purchase order and contract for its repair had been signed in September.

"The headline of the article implied that the Odessa Police Department was in partnership with crime and certainly I want to assure the people here that that is not so," said Tomlin at the press conference.

The Dallas article quoted several unidentified officers. "I don't know what they (the officers quoted in the story) hope to attain by ridiculing — almost implying — there is a criminal activity within the department. It's kind of like they have a death wish," Tomlin said Oct. 21.

"Obviously, more than one person talked to this Dallas reporter. But how many or how representative they are I don't know."

Tomlin urged any officers with complaints to take their information to a higher investigative body. Shortly thereafter, the grand jury announced it would be investigating the allegations. Several patrolmen and higher-ranking officers were called to testify before the investigative body.

Late Monday, the grand jury released a statement absolving the department of involvement in criminal activities.

"The Ector County grand jury has made an in-depth investigation of the Odessa Police Department. This investigation concentrated not only on the allegations made in the Dallas Morning News but also other items related during this investigation.

"While we found the department has the...problems peculiar to any other organization of its size, we found no evidence of criminal activities by the department.

"The grand jury, as previously stated, is always open to citizens for input about matters that they feel should be investigated."

Summer drought now influencing food prices

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Grocery bills jumped by almost 2 1/2 percent last month — six times faster than they did in October, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

Economists, meanwhile, are warning that the worst is yet to come, as the full impact of the summer drought makes itself felt at the supermarket.

The AP survey covers 14 food and non-food items, selected at random. Prices for the items were checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973, and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. A 15th item, chocolate chip cookies, was dropped from the list after the manufacturer discontinued the package size used in the survey.

November brought higher prices up and down the aisles. Eggs increased at the checklist store in 12 cities; milk went up in seven cities; sugar and pork chops each rose in six cities. Coffee — which dropped in price at the checklist store in seven cities — provided the only bright spot.

The AP found that the marketbasket bill went up at the checklist store in 10 cities during November, rising an average of 3.2 percent. The bill decreased at the checklist store in only one city — Atlanta, where it dropped half a percent. The total was unchanged in two cities. On an overall basis, the average cost of the items in the AP marketbasket was 2.4 percent higher at the checklist stores at the start of December than it was a month earlier.

During October, in contrast, the marketbasket bill increased in six cities and decreased in seven, for an overall rise of only four-tenths of a percent.

November's retail price fluctuations generally reflected changes at the farm and the wholesale level. Milk prices, for example, have been boosted by an Oct. 1 increase in the government price support level and by higher marketing costs. Coffee roasters have reduced wholesale prices several times in recent months.

Comparing prices today with those at the start of the year, the AP found that the marketbasket increased at the checklist store in every city surveyed, rising an average of 13.4 percent. During the same period of 1979, the marketbasket total went up an average of 7 percent.

Communist leader warns Polish labor leaders

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communist Party leader Stanislaw Kania opened a two-day session of the party's Central Committee with a warning to militant independent labor leaders to "sober up" and cooperate with the party. He said they are threatening the peace of Europe.

Kania in a speech Monday that was broadcast nationally offered to cooperate with leaders of the independent labor movement who showed restraint. But he warned against "prestige or downright political strikes" and rejected demands of the Warsaw chapter of Solidarity, the largest independent union, for a reduction in the budgets of the prosecutor's office and other police agencies.

"It is high time to sober up, to understand that the basic condition and chance for a further favorable development of the nation is an immediate halt to activities weakening and undermining the functioning of the people's state," he said.

Such activities "threaten to eventually destabilize the peaceful order of Europe," he said, apparently referring to the possibility of Soviet military intervention if challenges to the political system continue.

Kania thanked the Soviets for their "understanding of the nature of our difficulties and the conviction that we shall find a way out of the crisis." He said the Soviet Union provided $600 million worth of goods to Poland in 1980 and would advance $1.3 billion in Western currency next year to pay for consumer goods and other commodities.

Although the committee was expected to take action on the country's grave economic crisis, Kania did not outline a program to restore economic stability, refinance the foreign debt estimated at more than $20 billion and end shortages of food and consumer goods.

There was speculation that the meeting would produce more changes in the party leadership, with Kania boosting men of his choice to key posts. He replaced Edward Gierek as first secretary of the party Sept. 5 following the nationwide strike wave that resulted in the formation of the first legal independent unions in the Soviet Bloc.

Man shot while describing slayings of his family

DALLAS (AP) — A man who allegedly killed his wife and executed his four children after promising them surprises was slain by officers as he described the grisly slayings over the telephone, police said.

Thomas Ray Walker Jr. died Monday night at Presbyterian Hospital, about an hour after he stepped from a phone booth screaming, "Shoot me! Shoot me! Shoot me!" and was gunned down by police.

Police had converged on the phone booth shortly after the man's call to KDFW-TV was traced, police spokesman Bob Shaw said.

Kenny Boles, executive producer at KDFW-TV, said a male caller told a switchboard operator that he "had a good story."

"I've done something terribly wrong," Boles said the man told him. "Then he described in graphic detail how he murdered his wife and children. Basically he said he had murdered his wife in the shower while his children were outside.

"One by one, he brought the children inside, telling them he had a surprise for them," Boles said. "As to why, he simply said he was depressed, that he did not feel his family could live through his suicide."

After Walker, 36, was shot, officers located his address and kicked in the front door of his southeast Dallas home, police said.

Inside the bloodied home they discovered the body of Linda Jo Walker, 35, sprawled in the bathroom, and Traci, 14, Tammi, 11, Tommy, 9, and Nicholas, 7, dead on the floor, Shaw said.

Mrs. Walker had been shot twice in the face while she was in the shower. All were shot in the face, except for Nicholas, who was shot behind the right ear, he said.

"At least three of the children were shot on the pretext of 'I've got a surprise for you,'" Shaw said.

A preliminary investigation showed the shootings began Monday morning, Shaw said. "He (the man) earlier had talked about having a pistol stuck in his pants.

"So, when Duncan confronted him, Duncan said he (the man) went crazy and...reached for his back pocket."

Duncan said the man pulled a pistol.

Duncan fired twice and two other officers fired five times, Shaw said.

"He got the boys out of school about 9:30 a.m. and police theorize the woman was already dead," Shaw said.

Lt. Roger Duncan and Sgt. Bill Parker went to the television station Monday evening after receiving a call from reporter Tom Steyer, who talked to the man on several occasions through the afternoon, Shaw said.

Boles said the man seemed "very depressed" during his conversations with station personnel.

"The man said he wanted the world to know why he had done what he had done," the producer said.

The man called again shortly after the officers arrived at the station, Shaw said, and they were able to trace his location to a phone booth outside a northeast Dallas grocery store.

"When they got there, Duncan got closest to the man and held out his badge and said, 'I'm a police officer' and held his pistol in the other hand," Shaw said. "He (the man) earlier had

Dirt, bug, plant men gathered to judge pecans

By ED TODD Staff Writer

A dirt man, a bug guy and a plant fellow got together in Midland on Monday and pawed, chawed, eyed and nibbled on a common interest: nutty pecans.

They spent about 1 1/2 hours slowly edging, stopping and edging on down an aisle of shelled and unshelled pecans.

"That's the only pecan (kernel) that tastes like the whole (unshelled) pecan — like cardboard," Lindsey said of the Mahan, which is tabbed the "banana" pecan due to its length.

The judges eased over to the Stuart variety. "We can taste them; that's our prerogative," said the nibbler, Kilby, who needed no excuse to excite his taste buds.

Pope tells church to speak out for mercy of mankind

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Deploping that justice is still meted out on the basis of an "eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," Pope John Paul II said in an encyclical today that the Roman Catholic Church must speak out for mercy in the name of all mankind.

Dr. Kenneth Lindsey, left, the agronomist with the built-in smile, holds a pecan up for scrutiny. Sternly eyeing the nut is Charles Neeb, center, an entomologist, and sizing up a pecan of his own is Dr. Michael Kilby, a horticulturist. The three men, all assigned to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, judged 155 pecan entries in the Midland County Pecan Harvest Festival in the Midland Center.

16-year-old girl exhibits two grand champion pecans, wins blue ribbons

By ED TODD Staff Writer

Sixteen-year-old Karen Green likely would have won any sweepstakes award — had any such laurel been cast upon her — on Monday when she exhibited two grand champion pecans in the Midland County Pecan Harvest Festival.

They weren't, though. But Miss Green, daughter of Charlie Green, Midland County's agricultural agent since 1949, won two of the three grand-champion ribbons in the fourth annual Pecan Show in the downtown Midland Center with her batches of Wichita and Cheyenne pecans.

The show featured 155 nut entries, which represent about 30 pecan varieties produced in the county, and pecan-laced snacks and desserts, recipe books and pecan sheller.

The festival will wrap up tonight at 8 when the Midland County Pecan Harvest Queen pageant will be held in Midland Center. Television talk-show host Linda Bond will emcee the pageant, which will feature a score of pecanized gals — mostly teen-agers — in talent acts.

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — The Air Force didn't show up for its own hearing, but 100 residents who were there took the opportunity to create a petition criticizing a proposal to plant the MX missile in the Panhandle.

Carl King, a Dimmitt farmer and president of the Texas Cornrowers Association, said residents should return to Wednesday's hearing "with our minds made up on what we're going to say to them. We should tell them we're not going to have it here and we should quit spending their feasibility money here."

W.L. Edelman, a member of the Plains Cotton Growers Association, warned that deployment of the missile on the High Plains would lead to "a reduction in the beef and foodstuffs this nation is going to need to feed itself."

Three-term legislator ineligible for judgeship

By SUSAN STOLER
Associated Press Writer

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Melchor Chavez spent about $12,000 on his successful campaign for state district judge only to find out he cannot take office.

The three-term state representative became a certified candidate for the post despite a glaring eligibility problem that went undetected throughout his campaign.

The secretary of state's office finally pointed out that Article 3, Section 8 of the Texas Constitution prohibits a legislator from holding a public office that was voted a pay raise during the lawmaker's term.

The Harlingen lawyer served in the 1979 Legislature that gave district judges a pay raise from $35,700 a year to $42,500.

"It's unfortunate. Apparently no question was raised during the campaign," said Jim Cicconi, general counsel to the secretary of state. He informally told Chavez last week of the problem, then wrote him a letter telling him of the official decision to deny Chavez the bench.

Chavez originally filed for re-election but jumped into the judge's race after Judge Filemon Vela resigned to accept an appointment to the federal bench.

Gov. Bill Clements appointed George Storter to fill the vacancy until an election. Storter ran unsuccessfully against Chavez.

"It's unfortunate that it comes up this way. We thought we had it resolved," Chavez said Monday. "We're still reviewing the options."

He did not rule out filing a lawsuit to gain the seat he won and said he probably would decide what to do later this week.

Cicconi said Monday that his office, which certifies all election results, had no choice in the matter.

"Eligibility is determined on the date the candidate qualifies for the office. In this case for filling a vacancy, it was the canvassing date, Nov. 21, and he was ineligible," Cicconi said Monday.

"If it had been for a normal full term, the magic (qualifying) date would have been sometime in January," he said.

Cameron County Democratic Party chairman Rene Oliveira said he was aware there might be a problem during the campaign but decided Chavez was qualified.

Three days after Chavez's victory at the polls, Storter resigned his appointment to take care of "personal matters." The judgeship was vacant for three weeks until the governor asked Storter to return until Chavez was certified.

Clements' request came before the eligibility problem arose, Storter said.

"I'm staying until a successor is qualified," he said.

Reagan's preparations 'leisurely'

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From all outward appearances, preparing to be president, Ronald Reagan-style, is a leisurely undertaking.

While his transition staff assembles a government in the nation's capital, the president-elect has spent the last 10 days visiting doctors, vacationing at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., and appearing at charity benefits. Usually, only one such event is scheduled per day.

Whenever he encounters reporters, the former California governor is asked about the Cabinet he is in the process of selecting. He always maintains progress is being made but says he doesn't know when he'll have things to announce.

Yet Reagan has not met with his advisers in more than a week, and no prospective Cabinet secretaries have appeared for a personal once-over at his Pacific Palisades home.

While he is said to be dictating correspondence, reading reports and conferring on the telephone, Reagan's only public appearances have been unofficial.

Last week, for instance, he was presented with two live turkeys in his backyard. On separate days, he has made three trips to nearby Beverly Hills, his motorcade blending into the daytime traffic.

First, he visited his allergist. On another day he got a haircut. On Monday, he went to the dentist.

The president-elect has sat for an artist hired by Time Magazine who drew sketches one day and mapped photographs a second. Today, Reagan had a date with a sculptor.

There also have been social engagements for Reagan and his wife, Nancy, who seem to like parties. They traveled to Palm Springs, Calif., over the weekend for a benefit for the Eisenhower Medical Center. Monday night, they attended a benefit for the Los Angeles Music Center. Tonight and Wednesday night were reserved for private dinners with friends.

At the Music Center gathering, Reagan told about 700 wealthy patrons of the arts that "our people do hunger...once again for a boldly optimistic and prosperous America. We can have prosperity. Prosperity is created by businessmen and women. Politicians just take credit for it."

At the Palm Springs benefit, Reagan spoke more like an actor than a president-elect. "We are treasuring every minute in California," he said dryly. "I found work, but it means moving." While the audience laughed, Reagan added: "We're going to be living in public housing."

Reagan did not add that his wife has just purchased a new mink coat in honor of her move to the colder climate of Washington. Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Robin Orr, said the first-lady-to-be simply thought it was time to replace the mink she has owned for 25 years.

Perhaps because the Palm Springs dinner honored Bob Hope, who has been a benefactor of the hospital, or perhaps because of Reagan's own background, most of his speech concerned the nobility of the entertainment profession.

The next day, as Reagan was leaving town, he was asked whether he had received any advice from former President Gerald R. Ford, who also had attended the dinner. Reagan said he had not, adding: "It was a social evening. We were both performing." Lyn Nofziger, who was Reagan's press spokesman until Sunday, was asked at his final press briefing how Reagan was preparing for the presidency.

Nofziger said Reagan has been reading reports prepared for him and is in "constant contact" with his White House counselor-designate, Edwin Meese III, and others.

Reagan has consistently said that as president-in-waiting he should stay in the background, planning for the future without interfering with the present.

He reiterated that Monday when asked whether he ordered his foreign policy adviser, Richard Allen, to write a memo directing Reagan's staff not to speak about foreign policy.

Reagan's foreign policy aide warns staff against comments to press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser has told the president-elect's transition team members to curtail their comments on international affairs to journalists and foreigners, to avoid the "distortions that might result from your conversation."

The memorandum from Richard V. Allen was dated Nov. 29, the same day The New York Times reported that some Reagan advisers told a group of businessmen from El Salvador that the new administration will increase military aid to the ruling junta in that country. The strongly worded memorandum to about 120 temporary foreign affairs advisers was made public Monday at Reagan's transition headquarters here.

ATLANTA (AP) — President-elect Ronald Reagan has pledged to use the "moral authority" of the presidency to condemn racial hatred and violence in the United States.

"There can be no place in American life for hatred by one American against another," Reagan said Monday in a message to a meeting of the National League of Cities.

"I will use the great moral authority of the presidency to speak out against the racial animosity and violence that now afflicts many of our cities," he said.

Those 'positive signals'

Sen. Charles Percy is an intelligent man and no newcomer to the world of international diplomacy. He is not naive. But the senator, expected to become the next chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee after Ronald Reagan is sworn in as president Jan. 20, seemed to overlook a basic fact last week when he met with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. Percy said Brezhnev seemed to be sending "positive signals" to the incoming Reagan administration. He went on to note that Brezhnev had offered him "certain assurances that give hope for the future, hope for Soviet-American relations and hope for the world."

The Soviet Union reportedly is nearing the United States' military capability and, of course, the SALT II treaty is dead. The United States cannot live in a dream world in which wishes become realities; the real world doesn't work that way. This nation should do what it can realistically to protect itself and its interests. It should not and, historically, does not seek out aggression. Yet, we have to view the Soviet Union and ourselves honestly. Look at the objectives of the two: The goal of the United States is world peace. The goal of the Soviet Union is world domination. Sen. Percy noted that Brezhnev warned against the United States attempting to gain military superiority. We would expect such a statement from the Soviet leader. After all, how can the Soviets gain the upper hand when we hold it? Certainly we do not want to see a heightening of the tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union. But we've seen these "positive signals" from the Soviets in years past. Keeping the communist goal in mind, it really makes us wonder what's happening when our backs are turned.

BREAKING THE SOUND BARRIER

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Legal loophole let phone tapping continue

WASHINGTON — The secret tapping of the telephones of innocent Americans supposedly came to a crashing halt with reform legislation which was enacted five years ago. But it didn't. A loophole in the law, designed to give the Good Guys a break in the continuous game of espionage with the Russians, permits Uncle Sam's spooks to listen in on any phone conversations the Kremlin's agents have tapped. As a result, thousands of phone calls to and from government officials, businessmen and other Americans have been clandestinely recorded by both U.S. and Soviet spooks. And thanks to the loophole, this eavesdropping — by the American tappers, that is — was perfectly legal. It was also totally unproductive. The operation, code-named "Project Aquarium," has been traced to the early days of the Carter administration, intelligence sources told my associate Dale Van Atta. And one of the unwitting targets was President Carter's good friend and attorney general, Griffin Bell. For reasons that make sense to the convoluted reasoning of the espionage community, the government has done little to stop the Russians' electronic monitoring of phone calls in this country. Since 1977, the bugging has been done from the Soviet Embassy in Washington, the Russian consulate in San Francisco, two of their offices in New York and several other secret locations. The CIA wanted to crack the New York operation. The reason is that two-thirds of all long-distance calls travel by microwave, and much of that traffic is beamed through transmitting towers in New York. The Russians simply rent a hotel room and tap into one of the towers with sophisticated equipment.

Jack Anderson

They use a scanning device to zero in on the few hundred phone numbers they're interested in — government officials privy to state secrets, business executives discussing confidential matters, perhaps the mistress of an important man who would then be susceptible to blackmail. Unfortunately, the CIA just didn't have the electronic expertise to horn in on the Russian spooks. After trying for months with no success, they finally turned to the National Security Agency for help. For the NSA — which once, in "Project Canute," reconstructed messages from the acoustical tape of someone typing — the monitoring was like shooting fish in a barrel. Within a week the agency's wizards were tapping the Russians' radio monitors and hearing everything they heard. One early result was a surprise: The NSA tapped the Soviets tapping Attorney General Bell, who was overheard discussing classified information on an unsecured line. Bell was quickly informed, though the leak was "more of a joke than a serious thing," in Bell's words. Thousands of phone calls by hundreds of individuals were subjected to Project Aquarium's double U.S.-Soviet eavesdropping, long after the furor over Watergate-era domestic surveillance had subsided. But intelligence sources say the project never turned up so much as a nugget of significant information. The most the NSA monitors learned was the identities of Americans who excite the Russians' interest — which in most cases is obvious. "I've never seen the need for that kind of intelligence," said one CIA official. "It's wasted."

CHARLEY REESE

Economic problems caused by a shortage of liberty

If the new administration does not clean out of the government structure that nest of no-growth idiots who swarmed across the Potomac on the coattails of Jimmy Carter, we're heading for bad trouble. I'm not talking about a lowered standard of living; I'm talking about the kind of social upheaval that involves gun, club, torch and bomb. A little reflection will demonstrate the truth of this prediction. Societies remain stable when fear and force are applied, as in a totalitarian state, or when upward mobility and hope are present, as has been the case in the United States. People can tolerate bad luck or even their own failure as long as they believe it's not the system which has frustrated them, and especially so long as they believe their children can improve their lot. This has been the American revolutionary ideal. We were the first to say that a person's destiny ought to be determined by his or her own efforts and luck rather than the circumstances of their birth. Often there was a gap between reality and ideal, but not until just recently have we questioned the ideal. The no-growthers, however, in the name of shortages and environmentalism, did abandon the ideal. They preached limitation and contraction. Growth became a dirty word. We should, they claim, lower our expectations and expect less. However good that may sound in a comfortable upper middle class den over scotch, it echoes like the footsteps of death in the ghettos. When you're comfortably near the top of the economic ladder, it's okay to say let's stop and accept the status quo; if you're on the bottom, it's pure despair. Today, thanks to the work of these no-growth cultists and to the shortsightedness of so many politicians, the machinery of government has been directed against the private economy. The private sector has been strangled with regulation and bled with taxes and government-induced inflation. The result is that there has been a tremendous increase in the number of people at the bottom who have been told that upward mobility and hope are part of the dead past. They haven't accepted that yet; the recent election proves it. But if the loss of hope ever does become a reality for them, you'd better hunker down and put your fingers in your ears. The only way to escape poverty is to acquire and to keep property. The only system which makes that possible for the greatest number of people is the free market economy. The only way to maintain a free market economy is to keep government off its back. People must be able to earn wealth. That means that jobs that really need doing must be available. People must be able to keep what they earn and that means government must take less of it. The way back to the American ideal becomes visible if you consider just a couple of economic axioms. One is that people who can earn and keep only what they consume are consigned to a treadmill existence. That is the fate of most of the Third World's impoverished people. The only hope for getting off the treadmill of labor-and-consumption is to earn and keep more than you consume. That is what is meant by the accumulation of capital, and it is this accumulation of capital which allows people to invest in property so they can eventually free themselves from the necessity of daily labor. The second axiom is that a unit of wealth can only be consumed once. If I produce one apple, either I can eat it or you can eat it or we can both eat part of it. If you take it from me and give it to someone else, you have not increased the number of apples in existence. There is still only one apple and only one person possesses it. So where does this lead us? It leads us to the point where we must reduce taxes and stop inflation so people can accumulate capital. It leads us to the realization that we must reject the insane notion that government can "stimulate" the economy by taking a dollar out of one pocket and putting it in another. It leads us to the knowledge that we must dismantle the regulations and prohibitions which prevent people from investing their capital in wealth-producing properties. Only an expanding economy can provide the jobs that make upward mobility possible. Only a frugal government can create an environment in which people can earn more than they consume and save it. The American people must re-learn a basic truth which I think the new president understands. Our economic problems are not a result of shortages of natural resources or of labor. They are a result of a shortage of liberty.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST

Laughter in Foggy Bottom Dept.: Some secretaries in the State Department's East Asian Bureau, evidently bored by the recurrent talk of drastic budget cuts, prepared an official-looking memo on their supply needs for the coming year. It began innocently with desk calendars, but then escalated to house plants, a 25-inch TV with Home Box Office capability for the reception area, an avocado-color no-frost refrigerator and "last but not least, six Carter crystal stem vases to be filled weekly with longstem roses" by the secretaries' bosses. The memo was circulated among the higher-ups, who enjoyed a well-modulated chuckle over their afternoon tea. Meanwhile, out in the diplomatic foxholes, Ambassador Morton Abramowitz and his wife, Sheppie, have been drawing high praise for their teamwork in Thailand. The country has been all but overwhelmed by thousands of Vietnamese, Laotian and Cambodian refugees, and the American Embassy is doing its best to help the Thais cope. At one point, I'm told, Mrs. Abramowitz and other embassy wives tore up their own sheets and pillowcases to make bandages for the needy refugees.

INSIDE REPORT:

Sen. Dole's unseen hand helped seal fate of William Simon

WASHINGTON — The unseen hand of Sen. Robert Dole, a lethal weapon in the backroom chicanery of Capitol Hill, fashioned the campaign against William Simon that led him to reject the Cabinet post that two weeks earlier he thought was securely his. Quite apart from the desirability of Simon's return engagement at the Treasury, that intensifies post-election questions about Ronald Reagan: Are non-Reaganites like Dole setting Reaganites like Simon in settling policy for the new administration? Can the new president cope with the velvet-gloved grandees of Congress, including those wearing Republican colors? That leads to a broader concern beyond the confines of Congress: the seeming passivity of Reagan. If Simon were really his first choice at the Treasury, surely the president-elect could have shrugged off intrigue to insist that Simon take the job. Dole, who will be finance committee chairman in the Republican Senate, sharpened his knives after he reported Nov. 14 that Simon was telling one and all that he would definitely be secretary of the Treasury. Keeping in the background, Dole created a strong impression that the Senate Republican cloakroom was rising en masse against Simon. The end result within 10 days was a prearranged transcontinental telephone conversation — Reagan offering the post, Simon turning it down. Simon ignored the vicious backstairs Senate campaign against him. The reason he gave Reagan was his disinclination for a revival of wars, with the

Simon, Dole, and Novak

White House staff that he continuously fought in Nixon-Ford days. Simon's injudicious claims that the Treasury portfolio was his quickly spawned this report, circulated through the lobbyist community to the press: Senate Finance Committee Republicans had actually voted 7-to-1 to recommend against the Simon nomination. The source of the information was not hard to find: Bob Dole. Saving his imminent chairmanship, Dole had no desire for four years of combat with hard-driving Bill Simon. During a Nov. 17 meeting with finance committee Republicans, Dole suggested Simon would be in big trouble if he tried to walk over the backs of senators as in his previous Treasury incarnation. A few senators chimed in with support; nobody defended Simon. Contrary to the circulating reports, no vote was taken. Sen. William Roth, Reagan's truest ally on the committee in pursuing supply-side tax cuts, characteristically kept his cards face down when it came to discussing

Simon's abrasive personality. At least one member, Sen. John Chafee, was not even present. The reports of a finance committee campaign against Simon dovetailed with bad-mouthing from old enemies in the Ford administration, possibly including Gerald R. Ford himself. In his Nov. 21 meeting with Reagan, Ford did not attack Simon but may have tried to kill him with kindness by indicating it is a burden for a president to have to deal with a Cabinet member of Simon's competence. The hot-tempered Simon sizzled over the burgeoning attack, complaining to friends it had "injured my reputation." He knew he was still the first choice of the California kitchen cabinet (thanks mainly to efforts by drugstore magnate Justin Dart), and he wanted a speedy announcement. He also was Reagan's choice. But by Nov. 25, Simon had had enough. The Nov. 26 telephone call from Reagan was arranged as a vehicle for Simon to bow out. When that story broke two days later, some Reagan insiders spread word that the president-elect really had decided against him. "That's a lie," Simon told us, adding that he was Reagan's "first choice and only choice." Simon told others that Ed Meese, soon to be Reagan's White House chief counsel, considered Simon "too conservative" and would commence open war against him at the Treasury; Simon did not relish that. Not even veteran insider Simon perceived Dole's hand at work. Earlier, Dole had ensnared the president-elect into endorsing a Democratic tax cut in the lame-duck session of Congress that died thanks to Democratic opposition. Dole is no friend of Reagan's supply-side economics, which has few supporters on the finance committee aside from Roth. That is why a strong advocate at the Treasury is essential. But the quickly-mentioned alternative to Simon, Citibank Chairman Walter Wriston, cannot be expected to face down power-hungry senators in Simon style. The Republican Senate will not be a gentle paradise for the Republican president. His party's leaders there ignored Reagan's wishes in pressing for a lame-duck passage of the anti-toxic Superfund bill. Sen. Charles Percy, the new foreign relations chairman, has been conducting diplomacy in Moscow without Reagan's authorization and Bob Dole has deftly managed to change the secretary of the Treasury, circumventing the president-elect's own wishes.

Polish border closed; Red Army put on alert

BERLIN (AP) — The Soviet Union has closed East German areas along the Polish border to Western military mission staff, allied sources said today, and there was a report that Red Army troops on the Soviet side of the Polish border were placed on the highest state of alert. Reports of the new measures on the Polish border came as Poland's Communist Party Central Committee met in Warsaw to discuss the continuing government-worker conflict that has caused concern to the Soviet Union and Poland's other Warsaw Pact allies. The Soviet Union declared all East German areas along the border with Poland off limits to staff from the American, British and French military missions in Potsdam, according to allied sources in West Berlin. The British Broadcasting Corp. reported from West Berlin that the "western districts" of the Soviet Union bordering Poland have been similarly closed for some weeks. The BBC quoted military sources in West Berlin as saying Soviet troops in those districts have now had their alert raised by four points to level six, the highest in the Soviet army. In Washington, the Pentagon declined comment on the report. Earlier, the BBC had reported that East Germany, one of the harshest Soviet Bloc critics of the labor unrest in communist Poland, had closed its entire 200-mile border with Poland to Western military observers and canceled all army leaves. A spokesman for the East German Foreign Ministry, asked about the Soviet measure, said he knew nothing about it.

Italy's quake survivors bused to hotels on coast

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — More than 3,000 of southern Italy's 265,000 earthquake survivors have been bused to government-requisitioned hotels despite their reluctance to tear up roots. Many of them wept in anger and sorrow Monday as they were driven to hotels along the Tyrrhenian, Ionian and Adriatic coasts that are normally closed for the winter. Major highways from the quake zone were cleared of commercial and private traffic to allow the buses to reach the hotels before sundown. Officials said the survivors probably will be transferred to temporary housing by spring. The survivors taken to hotels were from Avellino, Salerno and Potenza, the worst-hit provinces in the quake that struck Nov. 23, killing some 3,000 people. Some 12,000 hotel beds have been found for the most needy cases, temporary shelter is to be found for about 160,000 others, and the remaining homeless are expected to move in with relatives elsewhere in Italy and abroad. But many survivors refused government offers to move to hotels, preferring to cling to the crumbled ruins of their houses, or in tents. "I worked 15 years in the north, in construction or hotels, but I came back and I'll die here," said Rocco Spadola in the mountain town of Calabritto. His wife, Claudia, said, "I wouldn't like to be away from my husband, and he has to be here to take care of our land."

Pilot escapes pot-laden plane after crash landing on overpass

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Police today hunted for a pilot who escaped after crash-landing his marijuana-laden airplane on an overpass of a busy freeway Monday. The pilot hitched a ride after the plane skidded onto a guardrail and almost toppled onto the freeway full of morning rush hour traffic, police said. Officers found 22 bricks of marijuana, each weighing 25 pounds, aboard the plane. They also confiscated an automatic rifle, three clips of ammunition and what appeared to be the pilot's personal belongings. A witness told police he was approaching the smoking wreckage when the pilot, apparently uninjured, climbed into a car that had stopped near the plane. The plane appeared to be on an approach to the airport, "but then he went low and veered to the left, like a cropduster," Police Cmdr. Ted Bullard quoted the unidentified witness as saying. The twin-engine Piper Turbo Aztec "touched down on the (freeway) access road and skidded to the guardrail," Bullard said. Officers said the plane was registered to a Dallas company, but declined to release the name. Air traffic controllers at Corpus Christi International airport told police the pilot radioed for landing instructions, then dropped from their radar screens about 10 miles away from the field. Police said a small fire after the crash was extinguished quickly. Both of the airplane's fuel tanks were empty, leading officials to speculate the craft may have been trying to land to refuel.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market lost ground today as interest rates continued to spiral higher.

The prime lending rate moved up three-quarters of a point to 18.5 percent at most banks, and Treasury Secretary G. William Miller predicted, "Interest will remain quite high, credit markets set a signal whether the government will continue its high levels of borrowing."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, off 23.89 points Monday, fell 2.04 more by noon to 967.41. Monday's drop was the largest since a 26.45-point decline on Oct. 9, 1979, following an announcement of credit tightening by the Federal Reserve.

Trading came to 21.97 million shares after two hours of trading on the New York Stock Exchange, up from 21.4 million at noon Monday, and declines led advances by nearly 2-1 on the Big Board.

Among actively traded issues, International Business Machines was up 1/4 at 66 1/2, Texaco was up 1/4 at 54 1/4, and Tenneco was off 1/4 at 54 1/4.

Brucellosis laws to be explained

Texas' new laws on brucellosis and how they will affect livestock operations in the future will be explained in a meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Roadrunner Room at Midland College.

Texas' Revised Brucellosis Control Program provides for a Class A control area and a Class B control area. The western half of the state, including Midland County, is in the Class A control area.

Issues discussed in the meeting will include: why there is a need for the program; why brucellosis is so important to control; how livestock operators can reduce the risk of buying brucellosis infected cattle; how these operators can be assured of moving their cattle freely to market in the future; and the calf-head vaccination with reduced dosages of strain 19 brucellosis vaccine.

Speakers at the meeting will be Dr. Nelson Adams, area extension livestock specialist from Fort Stockton, and Texas Animal Health Commission Veterinarians Dr. G.D. Lindsey of Lubbock and Dr. R.M. Zirkle of San Angelo.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Midland County Livestock and Range Committee.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

Even the devil can make himself look really good

Did I do wrong and cheapen myself and make you look down on me because I preached God's Good News to you without charging you anything?

Instead I "robbed" other churches by taking what they sent me, and using it up while I was with you, so that I could serve you without cost. And when that was gone and I was getting hungry I still didn't ask you for anything, for the Christians from Macedonia brought me another gift. I have never yet asked you for one cent, and I never will.

I promise this with every ounce of truth I possess — that I will tell everyone in Greece about it!

Why? Because I don't love you? God knows I do.

But I will do it to cut out the ground from under the feet of those who boast that they are doing God's work in just the same way we are.

God never sent those men at all; they are "phonies" who have fooled you into thinking they are Christ's apostles.

Yet I am not surprised! Satan can change himself into an angel of light.

So it is no wonder his servants can do it too, and seem like godly ministers. In the end they will get every bit of punishment their wicked deeds deserve.

Ketones form when body burns own fat

Dear Dr. Solomon: I read a magazine article that mentioned "Ketones," but it did not explain what they are. Then I tried looking the word up in the dictionary, but the definition wasn't helpful either. Will you explain what ketones are? — Dan

Dear Dan: Ketones are waste products that are formed in the body under certain conditions. When a person does not have sufficient insulin to completely break down food, the body cannot make optimal use of the carbohydrates that are supposed to supply it with energy. As a result, the body obtains energy by burning its own fat, and the ketones are the waste products that result from this process.

Dear Dr. Solomon: According to what I've been reading lately, even if I decrease my intake of cholesterol, it will have no effect on the possibility of my developing coronary artery disease. Is this true? If it is advisable to lower cholesterol levels, how might this best be accomplished? — Don

Dear Don: The association between the intake of cholesterol and the possibility of developing coronary artery disease is not subject to the kind of proof we find in the field of mathematics. For example, two plus two always equal four, regardless of who does the computation or how often the computation is done.

In the absence of such absolute proof, I believe the prudent person should exercise some care about his or her intake of cholesterol. For a detailed discussion of the part cholesterol plays in the diet, you might want to refer to my book, "Dr. Solomon's High Health Diet & Exercise Plan," published by G. P. Putnam's Sons. You should be able to pick up a copy at your local bookstore.

The report to which you refer, which says, in effect, that lowering cholesterol intake does not reduce the risk of coronary artery disease, has been attacked as inaccurate. Dr. Simeon Margolis, professor of medicine at the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, says it is

Hobby turns into business

BOLTON, Conn. (AP) — Fred Luck got his stripes early in life and they've kept him in business since he turned his artistic talent to painting stripes on cars.

"It's always nice to take a hobby and turn it into a livelihood," said Luck, who works out of his home in this eastern Connecticut town.

Using a small, long-bristled brush to paint his patterns of stripes and swirls, Luck adds a touch of personality to all kinds of cars and trucks, giving owners a sense of individuality.

"You can usually tell after meeting the person (customer), and seeing the kind of car, what he would want," Luck said. "I very rarely have anyone pinpoint exactly what they want, unless it's initials."

Luck graduated from high school in 1956, about a year before pinstripping of hot rods became popular, he said. While striping was becoming common in the West, it was fairly new to the East, he said.

"I used to do my own car every month," he said.

"At that time, I thought, what a great way to make a living," he said. "But it was just a hobby then because there was no way to make a living at it."

In 1965, Luck again tried to make a go at striping on his own, and this time succeeded.

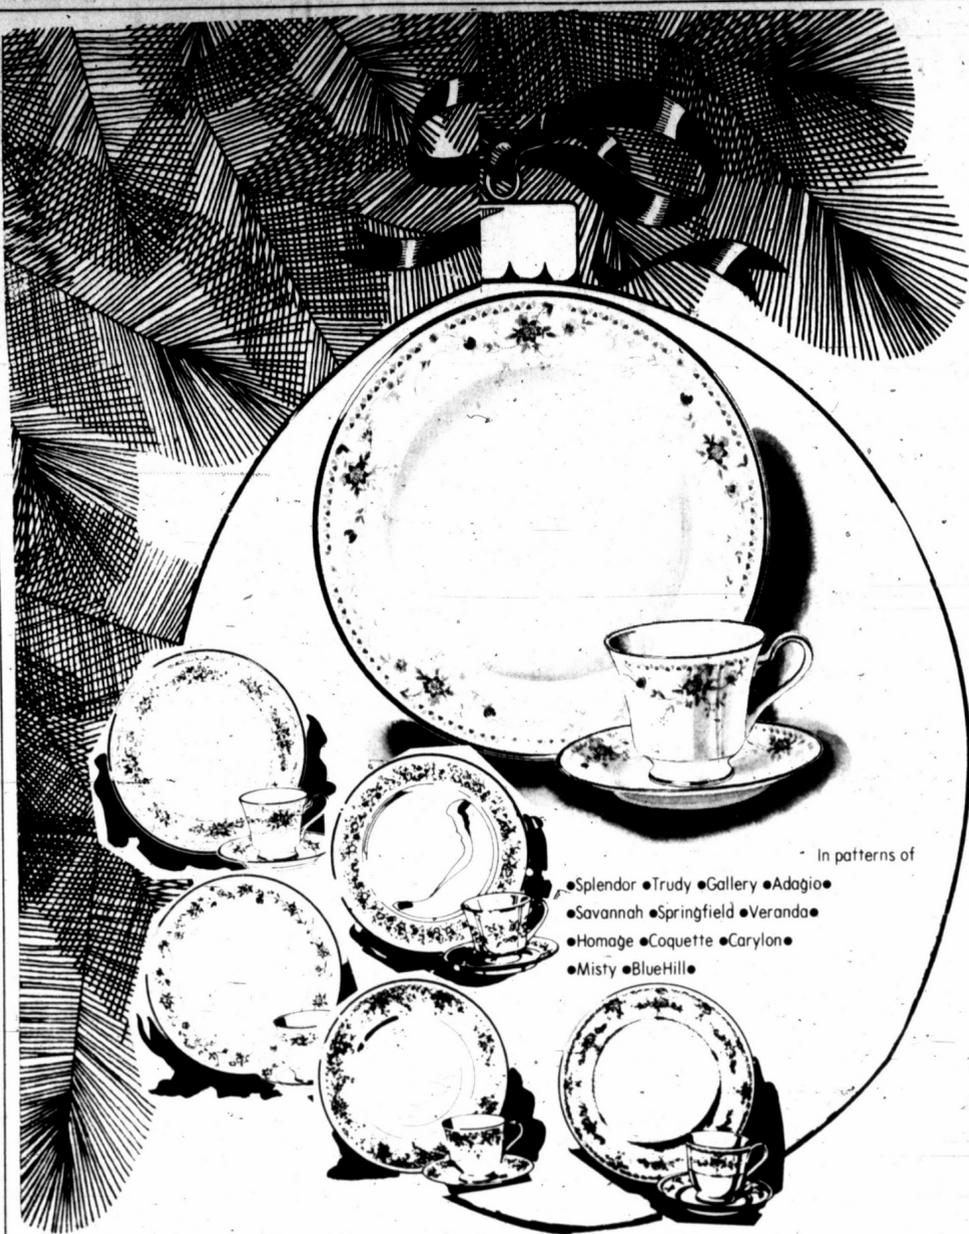

Luck says 1965 was a turning point for automobile striping — that's when Ford put out its first Mustang and "since then it's been steadily progressing."

Striping flourished during the days of the big American car.

Cookie Needle, color consultant

Your looks

You've had your stars charted, but have you had your colors charted?

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

Stop and think a minute. Remember that gorgeous blue dress you bought this fall? You just knew it would be a big hit. And it was. But all you got were comments like "That's a beautiful dress" and "what a pretty color." No one said anything about how great it looked on you.

How can they fail to notice something that looks so good?

What you didn't know then was that the shirt is not YOUR shade of blue. It didn't complement your natural body colors—and made you look terrible.

Susan "Cookie" Needle knows what's wrong. And after consulting with her, you may never hear those comments about your dress again. They'll be talking about how great you look.

A color wardrobe consultant—and president of Colorific Inc. of Houston, Cookie will be in Midland Thursday from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Midland Center, 105 N. Main St.

She will teach individualized color and wardrobe techniques in a special hour and a half seminar. Individuals will also have an opportunity to arrange for a personal consultation with her at the conclusion of the seminar.

Her appearance is sponsored by District Six, Texas Association Extension Home Economists, according to director Sharon Hillis, also Midland County extension agent for home economics.

"Once you have your colors charted, it's good for life," said Cookie, also an associate for Color One Associates.

During a one-hour color consultation, she determines the natural shades of colors already present in your hair, eyes, teeth, lips and skin. She can even predict the approximate shade of gray your hair will turn as you grow older—and what colors will wear well with that gray. The next half hour is for instructions on using a color chart and shopping guide she prepares for her customers.

Cookie uses every color in the spectrum for each individual, choosing the right shade for each skin and body color type. She says that there are four basic types of person, according to their colors. And a person may have characteristics from one or more of the types. These are:

- Light bright. A real golden girl. These are usually blondes with yellow-tinted skin, from light to medium golden-toned skin, and blonde or brown hair with golden highlights. Blacks have a golden undertone to their skin. This type wears the brightest color in her spectrum for her wardrobe.

- Contrast. You're a showstopper. You have clear ivory or dark olive skin (no pink or yellow shading), and extremely dark hair. Black women with "contrast" are light-skinned with ivory undertones. Women of this type can wear a lot of contrasts such as black and white in their clothing because that is what their body looks like.

- Muted coloring. A classic earthy beauty. Your skin is blended—ivory, brown-beige or golden-brown. Your hair is red or brown with bronze highlights. Muted blacks have a brown-black undertone to their skin. If you fall in this category, you should wear colors in soft contrast, such as brown and rust.

- Gentle. Persons with ivory, pinky, beige skin. A soft, subtle, romantic look. You have pale ivory, light beige or pink beige skin with ash blonde, ash brown or red hair. Blacks in this category have a pinkish, rosy skin undertone. This skin coloring type wears soft contrasts and colors that are toned down.

Cookie, along with Colorific vice president Sally Wagner, says that this company is the first of its kind in Houston. Their color charts are used by interior decorators, for purchasing all clothing, jewelry, women's makeup and for changing hair color.

Thursday's "Capsule Wardrobe Seminar" will be conducted in Room Two of the Midland Center. Registration fee is $10 a person.

"Ms. Needle is widely acclaimed for her expertise in her profession, having conducted similar seminars across the country in Texas, California and Arkansas, and is already scheduled in other states in the coming months," said Ms. Hillis. "We are delighted to offer her outstanding teaching seminar to women in the Permian Basin and feel that this is a special opportunity that women in our area will want to take advantage of.

The Home Economists are gathering in Midland Thursday and Friday for the winter meeting. Special arrangements were made with Ms. Needle to offer the color-wardrobe seminar in the Permian Basin area.

"In addition to the capsule wardrobe program, we will be showing how to mix and match colors in a wardrobe," said Ms. Needle. "I can put together 30 different outfits from two suits, five blouses and two accessories."

She also plans to offer other tips and will hold a question and answer period.

In addition to her consulting work, she has also been speaker on "Dressing With Confidence" and individual color usage and capsule wardrobes for conventions and groups. She has also been a professional model for conventions, fashion and photography.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Difference in charcoal

DEAR HELOISE:

I was wondering if you could help me out with a small problem: You know the charcoal packets sold for use in the refrigerator in order to keep it fresh-smelling?

Is there any difference between them and the charcoal which we use for cookouts on the grill? If not, we could use this charcoal for far less money than those packets cost.

Thank you for all the sunshine you give us, even on a rainy day. — Mrs. Coreio

Oh! Bless your heart for those kind words and for sending that sunshine my way (as countless numbers of you dear readers often do, and I love you for it tremendously).

And yes, there is a difference in the two charcoals. The kind used in the packets you describe is activated charcoal, the cookout briquets are not.

Briefly, activated charcoal has been pulverized into a powder and undergone a process to remove its impurities and increase its powers of absorption.

So for this reason, it's better to use it in the refrigerator, but you can use regular cookout briquets, though they aren't as effective. However, they are perfectly safe and, granted, cheaper.

If you do use regular charcoal, though, you will want to place it in a small dish to prevent blackened shelves and change the briquets more frequently than you would change the packets. — Heloise

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: Sometimes, as parents, we find ourselves so busy holding down a job or doing necessary household chores that we find very few chances to do all we would like to do for our children.

So, let's hug them as often as we can and let them feel the warmth of our bodies close to theirs and tell them how much we love them and how proud we are that they are a part of our lives.

Watch their attitudes change (smiles). — A.W.

SAVING WAY

Dear Heloise: Three of my friends and I (we live close together) meet for a weekly card game and, of course, discuss the high price of everything, especially gasoline.

So, we decided to do our grocery shopping together on our card day, taking turns driving. (Since we rotate homes each week, we go in the hostess' car. Easy to keep track of whose turn it is).

One car going for weekly groceries sure beats four when it comes to saving gas. — Kathryn Roth

SEW EASY

Dear Heloise: If you need to take out a machine-made buttonhole, slip a thin needle under the stitches (a few at a time), then take a single edged razor blade and cut the thread on the top side of the needle.

The threads can then be picked out on the other side. — Mrs. Benjamin Davis hole stitches and I never thought of that. Thanks a bunch! — Heloise

HOLIDAY HINT

Dear Heloise: This year, I came up with the perfect place to hang Christmas stockings for those of us who don't have a fireplace.

I bought a planter pole (the floor-to-ceiling variety) and two extra "arms." I then wrapped it, candy cane style, in red ribbon and hung one stocking on each arm.

It looks really cute, doesn't take up much space, and best of all, when Christmas is over, I can hang plants on it and use it all year long. — Lynne Wahnefried

FABULOUS FIFTIES

Dear Heloise: When Lisa was small and would come to stay with Nana and Grandpa, I would put her down for her nap with her shoes on! But over them, I would put a pair of Grandpa's socks. She found that fascinating and I found it saved time in taking off her shoes and then putting them back on. And the sheets were kept clean! — Mrs. M.E. Merriman

RECYCLE TIP

Dear Heloise: Your column makes my day—it's the greatest. Wish I had something helpful to send, but at this time, I don't.

Would you please print again the hint on what to put in an empty roll-on deodorant bottle?

I washed one out, got it nice and clean, and proceeded to forget what went in it.

This taught me a good lesson, though, 'cause now when I read your column, I have my scissors ready. Thanks a million. — Mrs. Kaplan

I had to chuckle at your predicament 'cause you're one of many dear readers who are sure they'll remember a hint but, alas, when they need it, no amount of brain-racking jogs their memory.

Don't despair — I find myself having to refer back to the files 'cause I can only remember part of a hint too!

Once you've mastered getting the roller ball off the deodorant bottle, use the bottle for hand lotion, baby oil, suntan lotion, cologne, or even water for quick cleanups of little fingers on a trip.

Just use your imagination, then let me know what other ideas you come up with. — Heloise

RECYCLE TIP

Dear Heloise: Most of us have pretty slips that have not seen any use for some time. They can be made useful again.

Cut them off below the waist, or any length you wish, hem them and wear under tops for extra warmth on chilly days. — De Pere

Have a recycling idea? Send it to Heloise care of this newspaper. She can't answer your letter personally but will use the best money-savers received in her column.

Volunteer opportunities available in 4-H clubs

If volunteer programs interest you, then the Texas 4-H and youth program offers unlimited opportunities to help young people learn and develop.

Texas 4-H is the youth development program of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System, and focuses on the needs, interests and concerns of boys and girls age nine to 19. Its aim is to help young people develop through practical learning experiences such as preparing a nutritious meal, building bookshelves or growing a vegetable garden, according to Cindy Mann and Willie Stumberg, local county 4-H program coordinators with the extension service.

Since young people do not develop their skills and attitudes overnight, they need and seek guidance from the 4-H volunteer who helps them probe the "why" behind the "how to do it."

Helping youth develop, however, requires different kinds of leadership. For those who prefer to work primarily with youth, 4-H offers leadership roles related to the organization, project or activity aspects of a 4-H group. While the organization leader guides the overall operation of a 4-H group, the project and activity leaders help boys and girls learn by involving them in a specific project, such as clothing, auto repair and bicycle safety.

DEAR ABBY

Just hope you look as good at age 69

By ANIGAIL VAN BUREN
 DEAR ABBY: Now that Ronald Reagan has made it to the White House, do you think he will quit dyeing his hair? Or will he "dye" lying?—
 DEAR CURIOUS: Mr.

Reagan has NEVER dyed his hair. This comes straight from Drucker, the barber who has cut Ronald Reagan's hair for the last 40 years. And if he gets a few gray hairs in the next four years, let's not have any "I told ya" so's." That job is enough to turn anyone gray overnight.

 DEAR ABBY: I know this is childish, but I am going out of my mind. This couple comes over every Friday night to play cards with us. It neighborhood, and everything about it is ideal except for one couple who are neighbors.

 This couple comes over every Friday night to play cards with us. It doesn't matter what we are doing, they come over without calling. It started two years ago when we first bought this house, and now it has become a habit. They have a nice home of their own, but they're never home because they have a place to go every night in the week—and on Fridays, it's our house!

My husband doesn't want me to say anything, but, Abby, this is making me crazy. I love my home and I don't want to start going out every Friday night just to get away from this couple.
 What do you do with people like that?—
 GOING MAD IN MAINE

DEAR GOING: If your neighbors read "Dear Abby," you may not have to "do" anything. If they don't, you have two choices: (1) Tell them the Friday night card game is off unless you call to confirm it; (2) suffer in silence and continue to be stuck with them every Friday night.
 DEAR ABBY: This is for the physician who complained about having $35,000 on the books because of slow-paying patients.
 Let me assure you that lawyers have the same problem. I never cease to be amazed at the people who brazenly telephone wanting free advice, or "just a minute of your time," totally ignoring the fact that all a lawyer has to sell is his time.
 We have had clients phone for legal advice that requires hours of research, and when they are billed for "service rendered," they call and say, "You're kidding about this bill, aren't you?" What then, Dear Abby?—TENNESSEE ATTORNEY

DEAR ATTORNEY: Reply, "No, we're NOT kidding about the bill." And if they don't pay it, sue 'em for services rendered.
 Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

AT WIT'S END
 On taking a bath

By ERMA BOMECK
 Do you ever get the feeling that life is a parade and you're standing behind Bill Russell?

While I was watching television the other night, a commercial came on about a shower nozzle that massaged your entire body with four different sprays. The bathee twisted and squealed with such delight that I sat forward in my chair to see what was turning her on.

Finally, she flipped her head and whispered huskily, "Have a GOOD time with your water spray."
 I shrugged and figured here was a woman who could make a party out of a tax audit and forgot it.

During the next break, a commercial came on of a man so beat I thought he was going to expire before my eyes. All he wanted out of life was a decent burial. Then he stepped into the shower and began to cover himself with lather. Within seconds, his entire body sprang to life. The last glimpse showed him sniffing his soap in pure ecstasy, and yelling to his wife to get his bowling ball out of the closet.

After that I began to watch the bath commercials closely. They were all the same. Everyone had such a swell time I felt guilty watching them. One woman who looked like a walking ad for sweat eased herself into a tub of suds and immediately turned into a sex kitten. She snuggled down under the bubbles, closed her eyes and purred, and invited everyone to join her.

What really sent me to the plumbing supply was a commercial for a water spray filmed at a resort in Florida. A hidden camera and microphone recorded the rapture felt by the people who stood under the assault of water. (The last time I saw that look on anyone's face, it was worn by my mother at my wedding.)

Maybe that's what was missing in my life. I had tried raucous parties, jet travel, and baking from scratch. Maybe all I needed to create some excitement was a shower spray to sweep me off my feet.

It took 45 minutes for my son to relinquish the bathroom to me. The steam opened up pores that had been closed for repairs. Turning on the spigot caused the shower to drench my head in water as he had forgotten to push down the plunger. The soap was in a liquid form in the soap dish. A bottle of shampoo without a lid spilled onto my feet. The spray was at eye level and knocked me into a wall.

I don't think showers will ever replace volleyball.

Chris Sarandon and Alice Krige, as Charles Darnay and his wife, Lucie, are caught up in the French Revolution, in "A Tale of Two Cities." The new adaptation of the Charles Dickens novel will air as a "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special on Tuesday, Dec. 2, on CBS. The story focuses on Darnay, the English aristocrat who is sentenced to death for the crimes of his ancestors, and Sydney Carton (also played by Sarandon), the English barrister whose resemblance to the Frenchman enables him to go to the guillotine in Darnay's place.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, Dec. 3, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Singer Andy Williams celebrates his birth on this day—a day which also marks the beginning of Chanukah. It is entirely your decision as to whether or not certain old, unproductive patterns will be changed in the coming year. A promotion or raise is in the wind, and money is more readily available for investment purposes. Happy romantic developments will add to your over-all feeling of well-being, and you may choose to put down roots in a new locale. Be sure you know what you are doing if you decide to dabble in real estate! Property transfers can be quite complicated.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Business affairs are more profitable now. Pat answers won't satisfy loved one. You must speak from the heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An excellent day for consolidating past gains. Count your change in financial transactions, and be sure to get money's worth when shopping.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your social life is more enjoyable. You may have your heart set on, doing things at certain times.

Recognize the advantages of a compromise.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A good day for making money, probably with the aid of a friend or associate. Legal matters gain impetus. A quick settlement is likely to be in your favor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Love can indeed be blind today! Avoid becoming involved in the madcap schemes of a friend. Everyday expenses can be reduced if you perform more home services yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be practical when deciding which new projects to undertake. Professional advice is essential if dealing with creditors. You may want to sacrifice leisure-time activities in favor of work, reflection tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Group efforts are profitable now. The cooperation of an influential associate is obtainable. Co-worker's secret may provide the missing piece to a puzzle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): This is a day for new beginnings. Cement a recent alliance by going out of your way to do a favor. Consult mate, partner before making a major commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone else's inexperience may be revealed today. Resist the temptation to take advantage of this person's naivete or you will regret it later on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Old and trusted friends are a more reliable source of information than someone you met recently. The gains now coming your way are the result of past efforts.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Although conflicts between business and social obligations can cause temporary tension this should be a highly productive day. Domestic scene becomes more harmonious.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You could be tempted to go overboard while on a holiday shopping spree. Try to control your enthusiasm! What looked good yesterday is still good today.

get to his partner's hand with a heart to obtain a club ruff, which would defeat the contract.

However, that does not mean that declarer must sit back and bow to the inevitable. He is entitled, nay, called upon, to find a way to foil the enemy's plan. There is only one chance. Have you spotted it?

Declarer should win the ace of clubs, cash the ace and king of diamonds, then lead the nine of diamonds. When West perforce follows with a low diamond, declarer is home. Instead of ruffing, he simply stuffs dummy's remaining heart.

East wins the diamond trick, but now he has no way of getting to his partner's hand to get a club ruff. No matter what he does, declarer has time to force out the ace of spades, draw trumps and claim his contract.

Your play to the first trick could decide the fate of the contract! A writer once remarked: "There's no such thing as a blind opening lead, only deaf opening leaders!" Learn to find the winning attack with Charles Goren's "Opening Leads." For your copy, send $1.85 to "Goren Leads," c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 259, Norwood, N.J. 07648. Make checks payable to NEWSPAPERBOOKS.

Losers-on-losers plays occur on more hands than one might imagine. The problem is that they are not always easy to spot. How would you have played today's hand, using this theme?

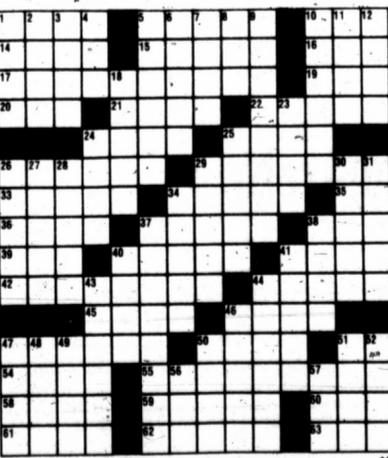

The bidding has several points of interest. We tend to prefer an overall of one heart to a takeout double with the East hand because of the great disparity in length and strength between the major suits. South's redouble was automatic, and West's decision to bid one heart meets with this department's endorsement. If West doesn't bid one heart, his partner is likely to run to one spade. Now the pair will have to find a landing spot at the two-level. East's jump to three hearts was more an attempt to impede the enemy than reach game, but it did not keep South out of the auction.

West led his fourth-best heart. East won the king and shifted to the three of clubs. His intentions were obvious to all.

The club shift had to be a singleton. East wanted to grab the ace of spades at his first opportunity and then,

Import pipeline planned to move Canadian gas to Rhode Island

By THOMAS S. BROWN

BOSTON (AP) — Two U.S. suppliers of natural gas hope to build a pipeline from New Brunswick to Rhode Island and import up to 300 million cubic feet of western Canadian gas daily.

The $600 million project was announced Monday by Algonquin Gas Transmission Co. of Boston and Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp. of Houston, equal partners in the pipeline project, and Pan-Alberta Gas Ltd., the Canadian firm that would supply the fuel.

Officials of the three firms said they hope to complete the hook-up by 1984.

The deal would provide New England and the Middle Atlantic with enough fuel to supply more than 700,000 homes for at least 15 years, according to Algonquin.

The initial price, according to Algonquin Chairman John B. Thorne, would be $4.47 per thousand cubic feet, but likely would be raised by the Canadian government over time, depending on trends in oil prices.

Financing of the pipeline is projected to cost about $1.30 per thousand.

Although Thorne said the purchase agreement would enable more homes to convert from oil to gas, Massachusetts State Energy Secretary Joseph S. Fitzpatrick, presiding at the announcement ceremony, avoided recommending that step.

Instead, Fitzpatrick would only say "gas conversion makes sense to many people who have already weatherized their homes...It's more an individual question—either they industry would lead you to believe."

The project still requires approval from a variety of federal and state agencies.

Algonquin officials declined to provide the exact route of the pipeline at this early stage of the undertaking. However, they said 350 miles of 30-inch pipe would tie in with a proposed Canadian line near St. Stephen, N.B., and run southwest to join an Algonquin system near Burrillville, R.I.

A rough map released by the companies shows the route running near or through Calais, Maine; Nashua, N.H., west of Lowell, Mass., east of Worcester to northwestern Rhode Island.

Algonquin officials said the pipeline would use existing utility, highway and railroad corridors as much as possible to minimize environmental disruption. They said no rights-of-way have been purchased yet.

Algonquin supplies much of southern New England through the Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates of Boston; New England Gas and Electric of Cambridge, and Providence Gas Co.

Transcontinental transports gas from the Gulf Coast to the urban region stretching from Philadelphia to New York.

Robin Abercrombie, senior vice president of Nova, parent firm of Pan-Alberta, said the pipeline eventually could distribute gas not only from western Canada but also from the upper Georges Bank area off Canada's Atlantic coast.

Aminoil potentials discovery from Spraberry in Dawson

Aminoil USA, Inc., No. 1 Greenlee has been completed as an upper Spraberry discovery 11 miles north of Lamesa in Dawson County.

The discovery completed for a 24-hour pumping potential of 47 barrels of 36.1-gravity oil and 320 barrels of water, with gas-oil ratio too small to measure.

Completion was through perforations from 7,199 to 7,206 feet after a 2,000-gallon acid treatment.

Operator has suggested field designation of Akins (upper Spraberry) field.

The following tops were called on ground elevation of 3,030 feet: San Andres, 4,010 feet; upper Spraberry, 6,932 feet, lower Spraberry, 7,522 feet, and Dean, 8,310 feet.

Total depth is 10,228 feet, 5 1/2-inch pipe is set at 7,871 feet and plugged back depth is 7,850 feet.

The discovery is 3 1/2 miles northwest of 7,556-foot Spraberry production in the Adcock field and 660 feet from north and west lines of section 104, block 34, T-7-N, D&SE survey.

Oakland defense performs own 'Save Our Raider' demonstration

By ERIC PREWITT AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland defense put on a "Save Our Raiders" demonstration of its own Monday night.

The offense was again scratching for points, and four scoring opportunities ended with missed field goal attempts by Chris Bahr. But the Raiders made it 12 Monday night victories in a row by beating the Denver Broncos 9-3.

Oakland's all-time Monday night record is 16-1-1, by far the best in the National Football League.

Several thousand fans stayed outside the Oakland Coliseum for the opening minutes as part of a "Save Our Raiders" demonstration. They missed the first of many big defensive plays, an interception by free safety Burgess Owens.

"Whether they came late or not, they were cheering us," said Coach Tom Flores.

But Al Davis, the team owner who is attempting to move the Raiders to Los Angeles for next season, said, "They hurt the team by not being there. They should stay with football, and the commissioner (Pete Rozelle) should mind his own business."

John Matuszak of the Raiders' defensive line said that whatever happens to the franchise, "We won't let the fans down this year."

The final regular-season home game is next Sunday against Dallas, he noted, "But we're going to do our best to see that there are some more games here after that, playoff games."

That's my goal."

The Raiders' defense yielded a first-quarter, 41-yard field goal by Fred Steinfort, but allowed Denver to cross the 50-yard line just once more the rest of the night. The Broncos had only two first downs in the second half.

"We want to do a good job offensively to help them out. They're playing so damn well," said quarterback Jim Plunkett, speaking for an offense which has scored only four touchdowns in the last three games.

He scored on an 8-yard touchdown run in the third period Monday night and Bahr kicked a 44-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Despite offensive problems, the Raiders have won seven of their last eight games and are 9-4, tied with San Diego for the AFC West lead.

They drove 77 yards for the go-ahead touchdown against Denver, with a pass interference call accounting for a 36-yard gain. On a first-down play at the 8, Plunkett faked a handoff left and rolled right to score.

"I was looking for (tight end) Raymond Chester, but he was held up and couldn't get over to that side. Their outside linebacker bit at the fake handoff," said Plunkett. "I got outside him, and I'm not too fleet of foot."

The Broncos came into the game with a three-game winning streak but now, at 7-6, their playoff hopes are very dim.

"This is a hard one to swallow," said Coach Red Miller, whose team was held to 216 yards and turned the ball over six times.

No. 1 teams expected to beat everybody

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Beating Gonzaga might not be much to brag about, but when you're No. 1, you're expected to beat everybody.

So the DePaul Blue Demons, who surged to the top of The Associated Press poll today, were plenty convincing in their 74-56 demolition of the Bulldogs Monday night.

Forward Mark Aguirre, last year's AP Player of the Year as DePaul was ranked No. 1 for most of the season, scored 26 points and picked up nine assists to pace Ray Meyer's crew to its 43rd consecutive homecourt victory.

"It's nice to be No. 1," said Meyer, who didn't really mean it. "But when I really think about it, it really disturbs me. I like to be fifth or sixth. In a nutshell, it gives us nothing to shoot at and I believe that a successful basketball team has to be able to climb over other teams and improve to the point where they feel they are accomplishing something."

Only two other ranked teams were in action Monday, with No. 5 Indiana beating Murray State 59-41 and 12th-ranked Iowa shelling Detroit 98-55.

Isiah Thomas, who missed Indiana's season-opener with a groin injury, was sufficiently recovered to score 21 points against Murray State. But it was the Hoosiers' defense that won the game, holding the Racers to two points in the final 18 minutes.

Vince Brookins played only 16 minutes yet hit a career-high 27 points, including 17 in the first eight minutes, to pace Iowa. Brookins had 17 of the first 23 points by Iowa.

"He just had one of those nights," said Iowa Coach Lute Olson of the 6-foot-6 senior. "Our players weren't really surprised. They see him all the time in practice. They all know that if you give Vince the shots, he'll put them in."

"I think they beat us by 10 points more than this last year," said Detroit Coach Willie McCarter. "I quit watching after 10 minutes."

Kansas Coach Ted Owens was a winner for the 300th time as the Jayhawks rode the play of substitute Booty Neal to a 81-67 triumph over Pepperdine. Neal scored 14 of his 16 points in the second half.

Mike Davis hit for 24 points to lead Alabama to a 90-75 victory over Wisconsin. Ken Johnson scored 21 points and Eddie Phillips added 20 for the Crimson Tide.

Jim Stack scored 24 points, his career-high, as Northwestern topped Colorado State 78-75. Eddie Hughes poured in 33 points for CSU.

Eric Williams' 19 points boosted Houston over Southern California 71-54. Vanderbilt took Iowa State 97-87 thanks to 27 points from Mike Rhodes, and 22 by Charles Davis, freshman center Russell Cross dropped in 21 points in Purdue's 104-75 blowout of Loyola, Calif., while Marquette broke to a 13-0 lead and cruised to a 106-58 verdict over the University of Charleston, W. Va.

Guard Jerome Akins hit his only free throw of the night in the final minute of play as New Mexico State edged Baylor 61-60. Akins, 1-of-9 from the free-throw line, sank the winning point after the Aggies had squandered most of a 10-point lead in the final six minutes.

Navy routed Haverford 91-43, Columbia walloped Brooklyn 84-67 and it was Bryan 67, Trevecca Nazarene 64.

CBS adds Rick Barry

NEW YORK (AP) — Rick Barry has been added to the CBS telecasting crew for the 1980-81 National Basketball Association's Sunday Games of the Week, replacing Hot Rod Hundley.

A network spokesman said Monday that Hundley's option had not been renewed and that Barry had been signed to a one-year contract, with CBS holding an option for a second year. CBS has two years remaining on its current four-year contract to televise NBA games.

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Newly crowned Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers turned down network television interviews because he says he needed to return to classes at the University of South Carolina and he wanted to share his glory with his teammates.

Rogers, who won college football's highest honor in New York Monday, returned home later in the day to a tumultuous welcome from an estimated 10,000 admirers.

"We love you, George," said both fans and placards as Rogers stepped off a jet and waved the No. 1 sign.

Never one to bask in the limelight, Rogers said, "If anybody deserves it more than I do it's my offensive line — they deserve all the credit."

Asked why he returned to South Carolina instead of staying in New York for a round of nationally broadcast interviews, Rogers said, "I had to go to school and I wanted to get back around the guys."

Rogers, who met with reporters for a short news conference before making his way through a crowd packed into the airport lobby, said it appears certain he will play professionally for the New Orleans Saints.

"It don't look like I got much choice. The Saints got first choice," he said, referring to the upcoming NFL draft. The Saints, who have not won a game this year, likely will make the first pick of the NFL draft.

Rogers, who was interrupted several times during interviews by shouts from teammates, said, "Earl Campbell is my idol. I'll have to work real hard to play as well as he has."

The Duluth, Ga., senior tailback said the Downtown Athletic Club, which annually awards the Heisman to the nation's top college football player, does not base its decision on team record. South Carolina finished the regular season with an 8-3 mark and faces Pittsburgh in the Gator Bowl-Dec. 29.

"It was consistency that won the Heisman for me," said Rogers, who averaged 161.9 yards per game and went over the 100-yard mark for 21 straight games.

The Heisman winner earlier had expressed doubts that he would win because of the South Carolina record.

If Rogers had any doubts about winning, fans waiting to greet him did not.

Chaps struggle to win eighth straight cage tilt

By TED BATTLES

After beating Clarendon College 96-68 on a neutral court last Thursday, this was supposed to be a piece of cake for the Midland College Chaparrals. After all, they were opening the Western Junior College Conference season at home and were unbeaten.

The Chaps extended their streak to eight, but won by the tiny hairs on their chinny chin chins, 68-61.

"It was the combination of being tired after two long weekends on the road and trying too hard to look good for the home crowd," explained a far from disappointed Jerry Stone. "I'm just thankful we had them at home and pulled through this one."

THE CHAPS' coach was referring to victory in the prestigious Hutchinson, Kan., and Amarillo tournaments the last two weekends, a couple of trips that took a toll.

Then, too, Monday's game at the Chaparral Center was delayed when Clarendon suffered a bus breakdown en route. "We came out on the floor to warm up three times and we were flat," Stone noted.

The Chaps took an early 13-6 lead eight minutes into the first half, but then were outscored 21-7 by the Bulldogs, experiencing one eight-minute stretch without a point as Clarendon opened up a 27-20 gap.

A couple of free throws by Charles Johnson with 4:51 left and a couple of backcourt steals and solo layups by Virgil Clay snapped the Chaps out of the doldrums. Leif Hodges scored to put MC in front 28-27 and then Clay hit a 20-footer and the Chaps closed out the half with an unanswered 16-point spree to lead 36-27.

MIDLAND never trailed, but never could shake the tenacious Bulldogs, who trailed 60-51 with five minutes left, but whittled that margin to 60-57 with 3:50 to go and hung within a short spurt of the lead until the very end.

Puntus Wilson was one reason Clarendon never did catch up, scoring 10 of his 16 points in the final half. Clay, who finished with 13, contributed four key free throws in the second half while Charles Johnson and Kevin Willingham each supplied eight point efforts in the win.

BARRY Kirk led Clarendon with 14 points, but Valentine Underwood, who had 18 the first game, didn't score his first points until the final five minutes, winding up with six.

Johnson had 12 rebounds to pace MC on the boards, 11 of those caroms coming in the second half, while Ernie Tate hauled in six first half rebounds for the Chaps.

MC returns to action Thursday as the three-day Chaparral Classic opens at the Center with games at 5, 7:30 and 9 p.m. each of the three days.

Plenty of cage action scheduled tonight

Plenty of basketball action is on tap tonight with the Midland Lee Rebels taking on the Class AAAA Synder Tigers in the Chaparral Center at the Midland College campus in boys action while the unbeaten Midland High Bulldogs entertain another AAAA outfit in the Fort Stockton Panthers.

In a girls game tonight, Midland Lee entertains Hobbs, N.M. in the Lee Gymnasium. Junior varsity games start at 6:15 p.m. and varsity tilts are set for 8 p.m. in the boys games. The Lee girls and Hobbs tip off at 5:30 with the junior varsity action and the varsity to start immediately after because of the long distance Hobbs has to travel. MHS girls are open tonight.

Lee's boys take a 3-4 record in tonight's game with the Tigers while the MHS boys are 6-0 after beating El Paso Burges, Eastwood and Irvin to win the Tall City Invitational over the weekend in Chap Center. Lee won seventh place in beating Amarillo Tecosca.

Both the Midland and Lee boys hit the road Friday night with the Rebels playing Coronado in Lubbock and MHS squaring off with Abilene Christian High in the Key City.

Crus suffers injury

HOUSTON (AP) — Outfielder Jose Cruz, voted the team's most valuable player after the Houston Astros won the National League West, was reported Monday to be returning to Houston for treatment of a knee injury.

An Astros spokesman said Cruz was injured Saturday night sliding into second base while playing winter ball with the Caguas team in his native Puerto Rico.

L.A. Dodger lefty named NL Rookie-of-the-Year

By JACK STEVENSON AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Left-hander Steve Howe, the latest of sports' baby-faced assassins, came up to the Los Angeles Dodgers not even listed on their roster and proceeded to become the National League's Rookie-of-the-Year.

He was cool and collected during the baseball season, yet even his wife, Cindy, said she didn't expect her 22-year-old husband to be in the big leagues this season.

Injuries to Terry Forster and Don Stanhouse left an opening in the Dodgers' bullpen and Howe filled the bill to an extent that second baseman Davey Lopes said, "I think he was the most valuable player on the Dodger team. He was our bullpen."

Howe, from the University of Michigan, posted a relatively unimposing 5-7 record but he had 17 saves.

"I'm not going out to the mound and be in awe of anyone," Howe told a news conference celebrating his selection by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

He said he was surprised he was mentioned in a possible trade package to the Boston Red Sox for outfielder Fred Lynn in the event the Dodgers' Dusty Baker became a free agent.

"I got on the phone and told Dusty he'd better sign because it had taken me a long time to get out of the cold country," Howe said with a smile.

Baker did sign and the trade talk stopped.

Almost everybody had expected Howe to be with the Dodgers' farm club at Albuquerque after he was 6-2 at San Antonio in 1979, his first year in organized baseball.

He went to the Dodgers' spring camp and with Forster on the disabled list, Howe won a job. Before his stint at San Antonio, his credentials included being the all-time winningest pitcher at Michigan with a 27-8 record.

"I depended mainly on my fast ball," he said. "I changed up on a few people but mainly it was learning where to throw the fast ball. I hadn't relieved before so I really didn't know what to expect."

Howe became the second straight Dodgers pitcher to win the rookie honors — Rick Sutcliffe being the top NL rookie in 1979.

Howe gained 80 points in the BBWAA voting to top Montreal's Bill Gullickson, 53, and Philadelphia's Lonnie Smith, 49.

"I never expected at the beginning of the year to be with the team at all," Howe said. "But all the people worked with me and helped me and kind of carried me through."

He said he was happy to be returning to the Dodgers and "I'm not thinking about whether I will be starting or relieving. With all the rumors going around, I'm just happy to be a Dodger."

Previous winners of the National League Rookie of the Year award, as voted by the Baseball Writers Association of America (one award given covering both leagues in 1947 and 1948): 1980—Steve Howe, Los Angeles; 1979—Rick Sutcliffe, Los Angeles; 1978—Bob Horner, Atlanta; 1977—Andre Dawson, Montreal; 1976—Pat Zachry, Cincinnati, and Butch Metzger, San Diego, (tie); 1975—John Montefusco, San Francisco; 1974—Bake McBride, St. Louis; 1973—Garry Matthews, San Francisco; 1972—Jim Malack, New York; 1971—Earl Williams, Atlanta; 1970—Carl Morton, Montreal; 1969—Ted Sizemore, Los Angeles; 1968—Johnny Bench, Cincinnati; 1967—Tom Seaver, New York; 1966—Tommy Holmes, Cincinnati; 1965—Jim Lefebvre, Los Angeles; 1964—Richie Allen, Philadelphia; 1963—Pete Rose, Cincinnati; 1962—Ken Hubbs, Chicago; 1961—Billy Williams, Chicago; 1960—Frank Howard, Los Angeles; 1959—Willie McCovey, San Francisco; 1958—Orlando Cepeda, San Francisco; 1957—Jack Sanford, Philadelphia; 1956—Frank Robinson, Cincinnati; 1955—Bill Virdon, St. Louis; 1954—Roly Moon, St. Louis; 1953—Jim Gilliam, Brooklyn; 1952—Joe Black, Brooklyn; 1951—Willie Mays, New York; 1950—Sam Jethroe, Boston; 1949—Don Newcombe, Brooklyn; 1948—Alvin Dark, Boston; 1947—Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn.

Will Dooley leave for his old alma mater

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Auburn football Coach Doug Barfield resigned under pressure on Monday.

The action raised the question of whether the lure of his alma mater and a reported $1 million, five-year contract would be enough to make Vince Dooley leave his top-ranked Georgia Bulldogs and return to Auburn.

Dooley, who was in Birmingham for the Southeastern Conference winter meeting, said in a statement that he met with Auburn officials Monday morning.

"No commitment was made by either side," Dooley said. "I think any further comment beyond that would be inappropriate at this time."

Barfield said in a statement that he had been asked by Auburn President Hanly Funderburk and the board of trustees to resign, "and I am not one to stay where I am not wanted. I have submitted my resignation effective immediately."

The coach said he had confidence that his staff and the players they have recruited could have given Auburn a championship football program, "but we could not do it under the situation that now exists."

"We do not have the united front and the unity of purpose among Auburn people that we need. This division has rendered us ineffective."

Dooley's statement said he planned to meet again with Georgia President Fred Davison again, adding, "This is the only job I have considered in the last 15 years. Certainly Auburn being my alma mater is a major reason I would consider the offer."

An Auburn spokesman, assistant sports information director David Housel, said there probably would not be any more announcements on the situation until later in the week.

Akers seeks to build stronger Longhorn team

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas will get two weeks off, following a 24-14 loss to Texas A&M, while Coach Fred Akers and his assistants seek to build stronger Longhorn teams for the future.

"It should be pretty obvious to people out there who have aspirations of playing college football that we've got some openings," Akers told his news conference Monday.

However, he said, "The day's gone when our second team can beat everybody else's first team — a lot of people used to think that."

Asked what type of players Texas was recruiting, Akers said quarterbacks, receivers, defensive backs, linemen and a punter.

"We need receivers and two or three good quarterbacks," said Akers.

Akers said quarterback Donnie Little suffered possible knee cartilage damage against A&M, and doctors had "pulled up short of saying his knee was OK."

Akers said the loss to Texas A&M "hurt," but he said Texas would not "roll over and play dead."

He said the team would start practice for the Bluebonnet Bowl against North Carolina on Dec. 15.

Akers said an interference call at the Texas 2-yard-line, a fumble at its 48 and A&M's long-play ability accounted for A&M's victory.

"Those (the penalty and fumble) and A&M's ability to get big plays on second and 19 and third and 17—that was the difference right there," said Akers.

McCamey heads 6-AA All-District football team

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

McCamey High School, District 6-AA champions and in post season play for the second consecutive year, heads the 1986 district all-star team with four selections each on the defensive and offensive units.

McCamey's hard-running duo of Ben Ferguson and B.J. Terry, who each rushed for over 1,000 yards in leading the Badgers to an 8-2 regular season mark and a berth in the state playoffs, head the all-district backfield.

Ferguson, 170-pound senior, finished the regular season with 1,281 yards in 153 carries, 12 touchdowns and an 8.3-yard average. Ferguson also latched on 13 passes good for 230 yards and two scores. Terry, 155-pound senior, pounded out 1,034 yards in 115 carries, a nine-yard average and 11 touchdowns.

Other Badgers on the offensive team were Billy Garcia, 150-pound senior, at tight end and Vance Tabb, 160-pound junior, tackle—the only Badger named to both the offensive and defensive team.

Gaining berths on the defensive unit from McCamey were: Tabb down lineman; David Watts, 185-pound senior, down lineman; Ernest Velasquez, 175-pound senior, linebacker; and Mike Hanks, 150-pound senior, defensive back.

Omar Mediano, 145-pound junior from Marfa, was named as quarterback to the offensive unit. Mediano, who finished the campaign with 937 yards in the air on 61 completions in 132 attempts, edged Clint's Paul Estrada, the district's top passer, for the quarterbacking honors.

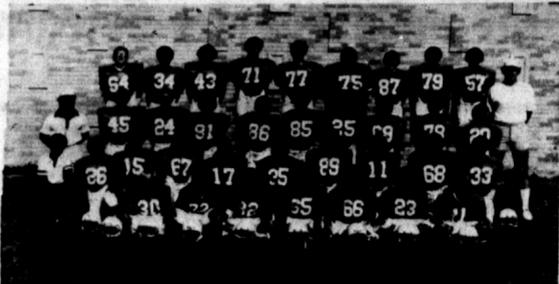

The third running back spot went to Hu Hunger of Van Horn. Hunger, 145-pound senior, galloped for 638 yards on 152 tries and tallied two touchdowns.

Larry Medina, 140-pound senior from Clint, was the runaway winner in pass catching with 17 receptions for 391 yards to nail down a berth on the all-star squad.

Scoring honors in the district went to Ferguson with 84 points while a teammate, Terry, finished runnerup with 68.
