Hostage crisis nears solution

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The 13-month-old U.S. hostage crisis has moved closer to a solution as a result of the latest American response to Iranian demands for release of the 52 captives, the speaker of the Iranian Parliament said in Tehran today.

Hashemi Rafsanjani told reporters that the U.S. clarification delivered Thursday by Algerian diplomats "has come closer to solving the problem" and that the issue would not be re-examined by Parliament, or Majlis.

"In the past the U.S. has accepted our demands in principle," Rafsanjani told a news conference. "But this time it has taken more clear steps in executing them."

His comments come on the heels of statements Sunday by Behzad Nabavi, head of the government commission studying the issue, that the U.S. response is more favorable to Iran.

The developments came as the Algerian diplomats remained in Tehran awaiting instructions from the Iranians for relay to the United States.

Asked about a statement by Nabavi that the issue would be returned to the Majlis if the United States accepted some of the four conditions and rejected others, Rafsanjani replied:

"We (the Majlis) have given our final opinion about the hostages. I do not think that the subject will return. If the U.S. meets our demands, and it seems that they want to, the problem will be settled."

By ruling out further study of the issue by the Majlis, Rafsanjani apparently cleared the way for the government of Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai to act on its own.

"There is little that is unclear," Rafsanjani said. "The commission is studying the response of the U.S. and naturally it will announce its view."

Rafsanjani has previously adopted a hard line on the hostage question and his optimistic assessment of the situation would seem indicate the revolutionary government's general acceptance of the U.S. position.

Iran has demanded the U.S. government return the wealth of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi and his closest relatives, drop lawsuits against Iran, release $8 billion in Iranian assets frozen in U.S. banks and pledge not to interfere in Iran's affairs in exchange for the hostages.

Informed sources said the latest U.S. clarifications contained no objection to the non-interference pledge and unfreezing the assets, and offered assistance in fighting the legal claims against Iran and help in locating the whereabouts of at least some of the shah's fortune.

On Sunday, Nabavi said "Totally, I can tell you that there are some changes, favorable changes for us."

Nabavi's comments, in an interview Sunday with Greek television in Tehran, were the first real indication of government reaction to the U.S. clarifications that were requested by Iran last month.

The response has been under study since Thursday when it was explained by Algerian envoys who are acting as intermediaries at Iran's request.

Nabavi said the hostages, who spent their 401st day in captivity today, were in good health and would soon be transferred to the custody of the government by the militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran since Nov. 4, 1979.

But he refused to state their location, saying only they had to be rounded up from several points. The whereabouts of the captives has not been confirmed since the U.S. attempt to rescue them failed in April.

The United States barred spare parts to Iran's American-made warplanes in protest against the hostage seizure. There has been speculation that an early release of the hostages would help Iran get spare parts and other military hardware from the United States.

Today, Iranian Defense Minister Col. Javad Fakuri declared his country would never "compromise" with the United States to get such equipment for use in Iran's war with Iraq.

In an interview with Iran's official news agency Pars, Fakuri accused the United States of supporting Iraq's war with Iran in order to "destroy the Islamic revolution, one of the most glorious in history."

"They could not afford to see other nations learn from it," Fakuri said. "That is why America, which is more frightened than any other country, is employing all possible means to bring Iran to its knees."

"America ... thought it could break Iran's resistance with the boycott. When this failed it called on (Iraqi President) Saddam (Hussein) to start this war."

Polish army warns against strikes

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The Polish army newspaper warned today against strikes and "social unrest" and hinted the Polish military might be forced to intervene to restore order in the country.

State-controlled media of the Soviet Union and other Warsaw Pact nations stepped up accusations that counterrevolution was threatening Poland's communist regime.

Polish army would always "vigorously stand on guard in this state built and won under the leadership of our (Communist) Party."

"The soldiers of the Polish Peoples Army share anxiety and concern" expressed in letters, speeches and at party meetings about the "prolongation of social unrest in our country," the paper said.

attempt to show the leadership was capable of defusing Poland's economic and political problems without Soviet interference.

Labor leader Lech Walesa made repeated calls for moderation at a union meeting in Warsaw Saturday. Walesa heads Solidarity, the big union-independent party control that was formed after six weeks of crippling strikes last summer.

The summit expressed confidence Poland could work out its problems and continue "along the socialist path," and Poland's Communist Party said Saturday it welcomed the "solidarity and support" shown by the communists.

A senior White House official said Sunday that "preparations for possible Soviet intervention in Poland appear to have been completed. As of now we are not in a position to say whether it is imminent or not."

The new Soviet bloc warnings came a day after the White House in Washington said preparations for a possible Soviet intervention in Poland "appear to have been completed."

It emphasized the army was "an important chain in people's rule and will view the fate of our state with a feeling of utmost responsibility."

Since the end of the nationwide strikes Aug. 1, however, Solidarity locals have been staging walkouts to press demands for higher pay and political reforms that has put them on a collision course with the regime.

However, the official, who requested anonymity, said, "It is our hope that no such intervention will take place."

Brezhnev arrived in India for a state visit today, and Western diplomats in Washington expressed doubt any major decisions regarding Poland would be made until he returns to Moscow later in the week.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II asked the Virgin Mary to protect "Poland, my country" in marking the Feast of the Immaculate Conception. The pope also asked the Virgin Mary's protection for Rome, Italy and the world.

The army paper also launched a fresh attack against several dissident groups, including the Committee for Social Self-Defense, or KOR.

Hardline members of the Soviet bloc, notably East Germany, have been criticizing the Polish hierarchy, claiming it was too lenient with "anti-socialist forces" working to undermine Communist Party rule.

The authority of Poland's Communist Party has been seriously eroded by the continuing strikes, intraparty strife and a virtually complete distrust of the Polish people in the political leadership of the nation.

The Polish army paper, Zolnierz Wolnosci, issuing a warning, said the

"Our answer should be a dignified, restrained but decisive stand."

Polish party leader Stanislaw Kania assured Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev and leaders of the other five Soviet bloc states at a summit in Moscow on Friday that Poland "was, is and will be socialist."

Midland coach Milt Flitts reported Saturday that Terrazas said he felt like he was hyperventilating. After a few minutes sitting on the bench, the youth collapsed and an ambulance was called to the gymnasium. He was pronounced dead at the hospital.

Georgia Demos won't ask Carter to be speaker

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Democrats have decided against asking Jimmy Carter to address their Jefferson-Jackson Day dinner next year, after he turns the White House over to Ronald Reagan, state Democratic Party Chairman Marge Thurman says.

"His role at the J-J dinner will not be in the capacity of a speaker," Ms. Thurman said Sunday, "and whether or not he should be honored at that time is being discussed."

Former Gov. Carl Sanders, who lost a bitter gubernatorial primary battle to Carter 10 years ago, said the March dinner "ought to be a celebration, not a wake."

Sanders said Carter "ought to be recognized and honored, but he should not be the main speaker" at the $100-a-plate dinner to raise funds for the state party.

that "counter-revolutionary groups" in the independent unions are "leading the situation in the country toward further destabilization, toward the aggravation of the political struggle."

Youth's autopsy report won't be ready for couple of days

An autopsy report concerning the death of Midlander Theodore "Teddy" Terrazas won't be ready for a couple of days, according to Scurry County Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway in Snyder.

Terrazas, 15, a member of Midland High School's junior varsity basketball team, died Saturday afternoon at Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder after collapsing at a basketball game. He was playing in the Snyder Junior Varsity Invitational Tournament.

Callaway said that Dr. Martha

Madsen in Midland is conducting the autopsy. She told him this morning she is doing some more study on the autopsy and the report won't be ready until Wednesday, Callaway added.

CAF commemorates Pearl Harbor

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The sign was right on the money:

Joe Mabee's Tire Center
Re-Caps — Flats Fixed

An old, worn-out tire hung from the ranch's cattle guard rail.

The sign — just like the old tire — was no more than a prank to amuse the colonels in the Confederate Air Force and their ladies and friends. It made its mark.

Beyond the sign and tire somewhere on the sprawling, 118-section Mabee Ranch north of Midland, aircraft out of the past were about to make their mark on the 39th anniversary of the Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941.

Before the engines on the old warbirds were revved up, CAF Col. Joe Mabee briefed the CAF pilots in his hangar.

The course was plotted; the "attack" was planned.

"You might want to make a pass over the city," Mabee told the pilots. "I think they'll appreciate it."

It was Sunday, Dec. 7, and the Day of Infamy was recalled.

"You might pass over here and give us a thrill," the ranching colonel said. "Go over the city and come back and give us another thrill."

THE PILOTS sauntered over to their aircraft. There was no scampering, no big rush. No sirens were blaring.

But those old radial, in-line and opposed piston engines fired up, coughed, spat out fire and black smoke and spun their propellers, creating nostalgic "prop wash."

In due time, the aircraft took into the wild blue, but somewhat cloudy yonder.

Tom Dollahite fired up Mabee's Martin A-26 Marauder, a twin-engine attack bomber.

"It was about as mean as they had during World War II as far as speed," said Marshall Tutt, an Abilene fellow who was a WW II flight engineer in the B-25 Mitchell and the B-24 Liberator. "It (the spiffy A-26) could get in there and get gone real quick."

His son Dale, a Mabee ranchhand, gazed at the bomber and the score of other planes on the flight line. He had no wish to go up.

"I just cowboy," he said and looked the role.

Just ahead of the A-26 was the B-25, which Col. Tom Todd fired up.

The otherwise quiet day was no longer peaceful.

Other WW II vintage aircraft cranked up, taxied to the north end of the runway, and headed into the wind.

Col. Dallas Smith, Midland's flying sheriff, sprinted off in the North American P-51 Mustang.

"It's a beautiful airplane to fly," said Col. Bill Stepp, who flew the Mustang during the war.

He also piloted the older Curtiss P-40 Warhawk of Flying Tigers fame before he moved up to the Mustang.

"It took brute strength to fly," he said of the Warhawk.

If so, then Mabee was Mr. Atlas on this Sunday; he was flying the olive-drab Warhawk warbird.

Col. Jim Tilson took off in his BT-13 Vultee Vibrator. Col. George Steding fired up another Vibrator.

Col. Robb Satterfield and Col. Dick Kemper flew off in their Messerschmitt Me. 109s.

Col. Vincent Hinds took to the air in his Val dive bomber — a converted BT-13 — which was used by the Japanese at Pearl Harbor.

Col. Kale Webster disturbed the air in SNJ. Col. David Conoley flew his sky-blue Ryan monoplane; Col. Gail Traweek manned his open-cockpit PT-19.

And about 10 AT-6 monoplanes, including the Nip-marked AT-6 flown by Col. Howard Pardue, streaked off as if they were Zeros and ready for air combat.

Col. George Goebel flew off in the Harvard Mark IV. Col. George Coombes fired up another Harvard — a Canadian version of the AT-6 aerobatic trainer.

"It's a real stable airplane," Col. Joe McShane said of the AT-6. "The only problem is getting it down."

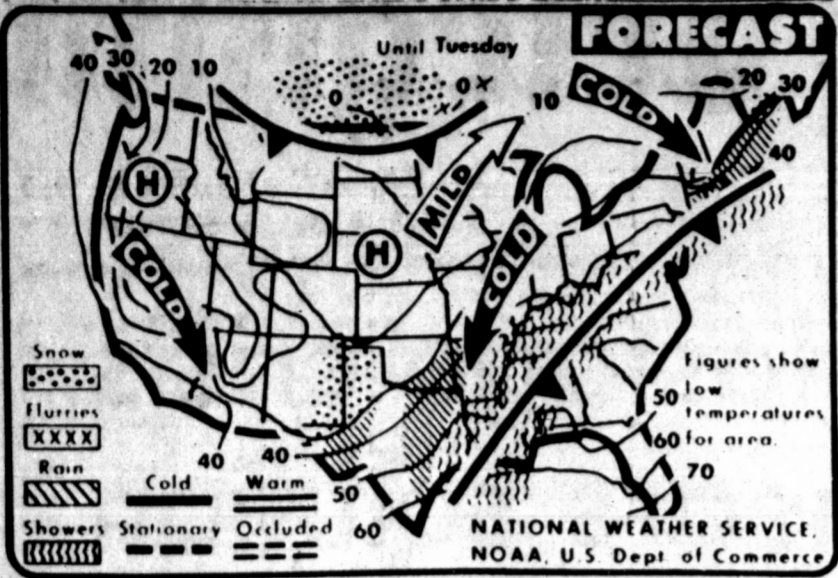

Col. Doug Warren and Col. Sam Holloman were up there in the aerobatic DeHavilland Chipmunk.

The pilots rendezvoused in the wild blue yonder, "made passes over The Mabee Flughafen Ranch, maneuvered into V formations and flew over the city to commemorate Pearl Harbor Day.

BACK OVER THE RANCH, the B-26 and the P-51 make wing-tip passes over the field, and were followed by the thundering of the B-25.

Among the classics at the fly-in, sponsored by the West Texas Wing of the CAF, was the U.S. Navy N3N biplane, which is similar to the old Stearman, and which was built at the Navy's Philadelphia Ship Yard.

"They're built like a ship," observed Col. Ed Lawler. "It's built like a tank."

Not far from the old N3N biplane was a high-wing aircraft that looked more like a giant mosquito or praying mantis.

"It's like some people I know," a CAF colonel said of the German Fieseler Stork, a STOL observation aircraft flown by Col. Lee Callan. "They're so ugly they're interesting."

A CAF COLONEL from Lamesa, A.W. Kluge, admiringly looked over the Stork, which can fly so slow that it can virtually emulate an autogiro.

"They tell me that that thing will just about stand still (in flight)," he said.

At mid-afternoon, as rain clouds started moving in, the World War II aircraft started moving out and headed home.

One by one, the aircraft passed over the Mabee Flughafen and "winged" the aviators' so-long salute. Remaining behind were Mabee's warbird collection: the P-40, the Wildcat, the TBM Avenger and the A-26.

"It's a helluva place," observed John "The Germ" Germata, a Fort Worth air-traffic controller out for the airshow.

The airshow, the fly-in and the party was all over.

And Joe Mabee's Tire Center, recaps and flats, closed shop.

Reagan heading for New York

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan is embarking on a whirlwind visit to the East that is in sharp contrast to the low-key pace he has been maintaining here.

The president-elect and his wife, Nancy, arrive in New York tonight and are expected to dine with their newlywed son, Ron, and daughter-in-law, Doria.

The Reagans will be the guests of honor Tuesday night at a private dinner given by wealthy Republican socialite Brooke Astor. The 60 people invited to the dinner include powerful blacks, fashion designers, financiers, television network personalities and newspaper editors.

On Wednesday, the Reagans fly to Washington for their second visit since the Nov. 4 election.

There, sandwiched between official meetings with top congressional Republicans, the president-elect will dine at the home of Katharine Graham, chairwoman of the board of The Washington Post Co. The Reagans also will tour the White House living quarters before returning to Los Angeles Saturday.

But the lack of visible work on the transition during the 16 days Reagan has been in Los Angeles has led some veteran White House observers to comment that they cannot remember another transition in which the president-elect went underground for days at a time, staying at home with virtually no appointments and no visible attempts at preparing for the presidency.

Reagan spokesman Joe Holmes told reporters one day last week that the president-elect's schedule was "absolutely zero." The Reagans have absolutely nothing planned for the day at all. "It was a scene that characterized the last two weeks, except for occasional social functions and appointments with doctors."

Until he went to church Sunday, Reagan had not ventured from his Pacific Palisades home since Wednesday, and that was for a dinner party at the home of a long-time friend, Alfred Bloomingdale.

None of Reagan's close staff members was even in Los Angeles until aide Michael Deaver arrived at midweek. Yet, when pressed about Reagan's schedule, Holmes said Reagan was very busy, working at a cluttered desk in his large bedroom, answering correspondence and reading.

Holmes said the president-elect was answering congratulatory messages from world leaders and friends, but declined to name them.

Holmes said Reagan has requested a copy of the inaugural speech he delivered in 1966, when he became governor, but he reportedly has not yet set about the task of writing the address he will give at the Capitol on Jan. 20 — 44 days away.

The president-elect has been awakening about 8 a.m., Holmes said, and is briefed by telephone on national security affairs by his foreign policy adviser, Richard Allen. Later, a CIA official appears at Reagan's home for a second briefing and then Reagan goes to work at his desk.

Winter back

Last week's warm break in the weather is now history: winter has returned from a brief vacation.

A cold front moving into the Permian Basin area brought rain Sunday night to the tune of .75 of an inch by 6 a.m. today. This is the only precipitation so far this month and it raises the year's total to 17.36 inches.

The rain, which was expected to fall throughout today, is to be mixed with snow Tuesday afternoon, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

The mercury should drop into the low 30s tonight, rising slightly on Tuesday into the upper 40s, said the weatherman. Northerly winds tonight should shift on Tuesday to the east and northeast at 10 to 15 mph.

Chance of rain tonight and Tuesday is 30 percent.

Sunday's high of 71 degrees barely missed the record high for that date of 79 degrees set in 1966. Today's low of 42 was warm compared to the record low of 15 degrees set on this date in 1978.

Area towns reported rain this morning and added that the rainfall started Sunday night. Big Lake was the only exception as it reported mist, but no rain.

Hit man says Klan has secret training camps

HOUSTON (AP) — A convicted hit man who says he taught jungle warfare at a Ku Klux Klan camp in Texas claims there are two other secret training facilities and an ammunition factory located near here, according to published reports.

John Allen Mosier currently is serving a life sentence at the state prison near Lexington, Okla. The former Marine pleaded guilty last month to killing his father-in-law for $80.

He told the Houston Chronicle he was a guerilla warfare instructor at Camp Puller, a Chambers County facility located about 40 miles east of Houston.

One of the camp owners — who asked that his name not be used — confirmed that Mosier was an instructor at Camp Puller, the newspaper said in its Sunday editions.

Mosier said he knew of two other secret training camps near Houston — one near Mauriceville and the other near Cleveland, the newspaper said.

Mauriceville is about 10 miles north of Vidor in Orange County and Cleveland is about 30 miles north of Houston in Liberty County, on the edge of the San Jacinto National Forest.

"A lot of times these bases are underground," he said. "They know how to tunnel. They keep it secure." He also said the KKK operates an "ammunition factory" near Vidor, located near the Texas-Louisiana border about 85 miles from here, the Chronicle said.

The Klan is "more combat-ready than our regular military forces," Mosier told the newspaper.

Four individuals bought the 50-acre Camp Puller for $75,000 in 1977, the newspaper reported.

Camp owners drew heavy criticism last month after the newspaper reported that Explorer Scouts and Civil Air Patrol cadets had learned commando-style killing and were taught to fire weapons by members of the Klan while at the camp.

One camp owner, John Sisente, denies he is a member of the KKK and has said he will shut down his portion of the camp, possibly to reopen once the "adverse publicity" subsides.

Mosier told the newspaper he first learned about training at Camp Puller from Louis Beam, Grand Dragon of the Texas Klan.

"Louis Beam told me that he wanted everyone in the Klan to go through this kind of training," Mosier said. Beam was not available for comment.

Mosier, a plumber from Orange, Texas, told the Chronicle he joined the Klan in the mid 1970s after serving 1½ years in federal prison for possession of explosives stolen from the Texas National Guard.

He said he later was kicked out of the KKK in a dispute over missing funds.

City police searching for convenience store bandit

Midland police continued to search early today for an armed man who robbed a convenience store of an undetermined amount of cash Sunday evening.

Clerks at Speedy Pac Grocery, 1201 Garden City Highway, told police the man came into the store about 8:35 p.m. Sunday armed with a blue steel revolver with brown grips. He carried the pistol in his left hand, they said.

They described the robber as 5 feet, 3 inches tall, weighing 145 pounds and in his early 30s. He wore rose-colored glasses, a baseball cap and a black or dark blue overcoat that was several sizes too large, according to the clerks.

The man also wore dark knit dress pants and black shoes, the clerks said.

He also wore a beard and a mustache, according to the description given.

Police are using a composite sketch of the robber in their search. They describe the man as armed and dangerous.

A 24-year-old Midland man being booked into city jail Sunday on a public intoxication charge was also booked on a possession of marijuana charge after officers searching him found a plastic bag containing a substance believed to be marijuana.

The man and a 25-year-old companion had been arrested about 9:45 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of Thomson Drive and Wall Street.

Firefighters battled a number of blazes Sunday, including one that destroyed a truck belonging to Gary McEwen of 4511 W. Dengar Ave.

According to fire department reports, the truck became stuck in a pasture north of the 4800 block of Sinclair Street and the truck's converter ignited the grass underneath the vehicle.

Firemen extinguished the blaze with 400 gallons of water, but the truck was listed as a total loss.

A trash and grass fire in the alley behind 311 S. Madison Ave. was quickly extinguished by firemen shortly after 3 p.m. Sunday. They used 50 gallons of water.

In all, firemen responded to 15 total calls Sunday and early today.

U.S. Army 'rotation' reduces Chaffee staff

FORT CHAFFEE, Ark. (AP) — The U.S. Army force at the Fort Chaffee Cuban refugee relocation center was reduced Sunday as 500 soldiers left and another 150 soldiers arrived.

"We're rotating some troops and reducing somewhat," Col. Don Karr, Fort Chaffee Army task force commander, said Sunday. "Most assuredly the Army is going to continue to perform its mission of security."

"We will be here until the last Cuban leaves," Karr said late Sunday, after the troop transfer was complete.

Maj. Tony Geishauer, a spokesman at Fort Hood, Texas, said the 150 soldiers who arrived by commercial bus at Fort Chaffee were members of the A company of the 2nd battalion, 58th Infantry.

Karr said it had not been determined how long the troops would remain before another company from Hood is brought to Chaffee. He said four companies, making up the 2nd battalion, would be placed in a rotating schedule to work at Chaffee.

The reduction drew criticism last week from Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., who sent a telegram to President Carter, asking him to intervene in the planned troop withdrawal.

The telegram said Arkansas has "borne the economic, social and political shock of having Fort Chaffee used as the consolidated relocation center and any suggestion that security be reduced complicates an already difficult situation."

Aides to Gov. Bill Clinton said the withdrawal appeared generally acceptable to members of the Security Advisory Council, a team of local, state and federal officials which reviews security at the base.

Before the rotation, there were about 900 soldiers at the base, Karr said. The transfers Sunday left the number of Army troops stationed at the base at about 500.

The soldiers have performed security duties at the relocation center, which is a temporary home for about 6,529 Cuban refugees who fled to the United States last spring in the "Freedom Flotilla."

"We have sufficient troops on call on an alert basis dedicated to this mission to come in on a short notice and assist if required," Karr said.

Troops at Fort Polk, La., and at Fort Sill, Okla. could also be called upon if needed, he said. The troops leaving Sunday were from Fort Polk.

"I think that the numbers we have at Chaffee are adequate to accomplish the (security) mission," Karr said.

Two military police companies will provide security along with the infantry company from Fort Hood, which has undergone special training the last three weeks in preparation for duty at Fort Chaffee, Karr said.

About 60 civilian law officers will be left at the relocation center later this month when U.S. deputies replace the federal park police, authorities said.

Prizes are real 'Cracker Jacks'

They're the latest craze among collectors

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — In 1912, the kid who dug to the bottom of a box of Cracker Jack was likely to get a metal whistle, a puzzle or a yo-yo. These days it's a miniature pinball game, a super-hero decal or even a chance to win a car.

In all, 16 billion prizes of more than 1 million varieties have been inserted in Cracker Jack boxes over the years, and they are rapidly becoming collector's items worth up to several hundred dollars rather than trinkets worth only a few cents.

"There is a lot of nostalgia connected with Cracker Jack," says Harriet Joyce, an avid collector who says she has about 400 prizes.

She carries her most cherished prizes with her when she travels. "I'm not taking a chance someone will steal them if I leave them behind," she said.

Mrs. Joyce, 41, a registered nurse, said her most valuable piece is a tiny metal model of a horse-drawn meat wagon. She says that prize is worth $300 and puts the value of her entire collection at $10,000.

The Cracker Jack company has its own collection of 10,000 prizes, which it considers so valuable that it keeps them in a vault. The company recently brought Mrs. Joyce and other collectors in for a visit to the vault.

"It makes my collection of 400 prizes look puny," Mrs. Joyce said.

But the company's collection looks puny itself when you consider that more than 1 million different prizes have been inserted by hand in boxes of the popcorn-and-peanut confection since 1912.

It started with metal whistles, puzzles and yo-yos.

In the 1930s, munchers discovered intricately designed, hand-painted metal, wooden and porcelain toys in the boxes. A complete train set could be collected.

In the 1940s came models of World War II pilots and artillery equipment.

In the '50s, little TVs and space toys joined the production line.

The '60s produced little storybooks and tiny tattoos.

And in the 1970s there were pinball machines, super-hero decals and plastic prisms.

Cracker Jack's latest prizes are cars — five Mazda compacts, each filled with toys.

Five coupons redeemable for the "$10,000 Super Toy Surprise" have been placed in Cracker Jack boxes since Jan. 1. A company spokesman said the chances of finding one of the coupons is about one in 34 million.

Kirkland hopes for united unions

By OWEN ULLMANN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland says he hopes the house of labor will reunite in 1981, with the independent Teamsters and auto workers joining his federation for a common defense against adverse political tides.

"We're making every effort and using every approach that we can to bring about that happy conclusion," Kirkland told reporters in an interview marking the 25th anniversary of the merger of the old American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Kirkland also said the 13.6 million-member labor organization should consider its policy of waiting until the political parties have selected their presidential and congressional candidates before deciding who to endorse.

And he said the labor movement should see if it can make new alliances with the Republicans.

"We are not the property and do not intend to be the captive of any political party," he said.

At another point, Kirkland said the AFL-CIO's differences with the Reagan administration "may lead us into conflict (but) I don't want to anticipate that... We want to establish as decent and cooperative a relationship as is possible for the good of the country."

Since he succeeded the late George Meany in 1979, Kirkland has been making overtures to the Teamsters and the United Auto Workers. The Teamsters were expelled from the AFL-CIO on corruption charges at Meany's instigation in 1957, and the UAW pulled out in 1968 in a feud between Meany and Walter Reuther, the late president of the UAW.

Kirkland said he hoped reunification would be "one of those constructive uses of adversity" growing from the AFL-CIO's "beleaguered" status in the aftermath of conservative election gains.

"I'm optimistic," he said. "The relationships are good. I know of no major impediments to it. I strongly hope that 1981 will see the reaffiliation of both the auto workers and the Teamsters.... We're doing all that we can to encourage it."

He said the Teamsters, the UAW and other disaffiliated unions have been invited to attend the AFL-CIO's weekly meetings on congressional legislation and he is pursuing cooperation on other fronts.

Kirkland said the corruption charges that led to the Teamsters' ouster is no longer an obstacle to reaffiliation.

The two million-member Teamsters, the nation's largest union, will vote on the question at its June 1981, convention and Douglas Fraser, president of the 1.3 million-member UAW, was quoted last week as saying his union probably will decide within two weeks to reaffiliate.

Ultimately, Kirkland said, he would like to see the United Mine Workers rejoin the AFL-CIO. But a jurisdictional problem between the American Federation of Teachers, which belongs to the AFL-CIO, and the independent National Education Association, presents an obstacle to the 1.8 million-member NEA coming in, he said.

Round of test flights completed

By MICHAEL A. CHIHAK
Associated Press Writer

MARANA, Ariz. (AP) — The solar-powered airplane Solar Challenger has completed a round of inaugural flights that should help prepare for a Paris-to-London flight planned for June, the plane's designers say.

In six days of flights at Marana Air Park, the plane never completed a planned 63-mile flight over the desert. But designer Paul MacCready said the long-distance flight turned out to be unnecessary.

"It wouldn't have taught us any more than we've already learned in the last few days," MacCready said. "We know it flies a long distance on solar power."

A sixth attempt was made Sunday to complete the 63-mile flight. But trouble continued with the plane's propeller pitch control and related equipment, and MacCready said he wanted to consider some changes before more flying.

"This is not the best place for us to do a lot of modifications on the plane, so we're not going to do any more flying now," he said.

He said he was "mildly disappointed" that the long-distance flight had not been made, but he said the plane had performed better than he expected.

The craft's 47-foot wingspan and the stabilizer are covered with 16,000 solar cells, which gather sunlight and convert it to electricity for the 2.7-horsepower motor, which turns the propeller.

MacCready, an aeronautics specialist from Pasadena, Calif., said the Challenger still is scheduled to fly from Paris to London in June.

With pilot Janice L. Brown of Bakersfield, Calif., at the stick, the Challenger set altitude, distance and longevity records for human-occupied solar-powered flight last week.

On Saturday, Mrs. Brown flew the plane nearly 15 miles, keeping it up one hour and 55 minutes before being forced down by cloudy weather that blocked the sun and reduced power to the engine. Both the distance and the time are records.

Most refugees resettled, Chaffee official reports

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — All but 7 percent of the more than 124,000 Cuban refugees who fled to the United States in the "Freedom Flotilla" earlier this year have been resettled, an official at Fort Chaffee says.

About 6,500 refugees remain at the Fort Chaffee Cuban refugee relocation center. Carl White, an official with the Chaffee task force, said Sunday that the task force hoped to be able to close the center by the end of January.

White said 116,000, or 93 percent, of the refugees had been obtained sponsors as of Nov. 25. Before they can leave the camp, refugees must obtain sponsors who will help them find jobs and housing.

White said the resettlement process has slowed in recent months, partly because of the slow procedure of matching sponsors with refugees and also because of problems between sponsors and refugees.

"In some cases the sponsor was not a good sponsor," White said. In other cases, the refugee could not adjust or did not understand the situation he was in, White said. In such cases, the refugees are allowed to return to Fort Chaffee, White said.

Baylor student, 19, shot to death in Wichita, Kan., hostage episode

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A 19-year-old Baylor University freshman was shot to death after holding two Wichita police officers and a security guard hostage for about 40 minutes at a west Wichita elementary school, police said.

Hiram E. Spoede, who was trying to escape by using Lt. David Pate as a shield, was killed instantly by shotgun blasts when Pate dived out of the line of fire, police said. The shooting took place Sunday outside OK Elementary School, police said.

Officer Ray Hainlein and school security guard Lee Baumann also were held at gunpoint by Spoede, according to police Capt. Mike Hill. Hainlein and Pate had gone to the school to investigate a burglary alarm.

Officials said they were unable to determine why Spoede was in Wichita or what he was doing in the school building. Baylor is located in Waco, Texas. Spoede's drivers' license gave Valley Mills, Texas, as a home address, police said.

Hill said Pate and Hainlein arrived at the school within minutes of the alarm, but waited for school guard Baumann before entering. Baumann was unarmed and the officers' sidearms were holstered while they searched the building, Hill said.

Spoede appeared in the audio visual storage room holding a .38-caliber pistol. Hill said Spoede disarmed the officers and ordered Pate to handcuff his companions together.

Pate spent 20 to 30 minutes trying to persuade Spoede to surrender, Hill said. But Spoede told Pate, "I am not going to go to prison," according to Hill.

A number of other police officers were parked outside the school while the two officers and the security guard searched the building.

Agent says Oswald files removed

DALLAS (AP) — Hours after President John F. Kennedy was assassinated here, the FBI removed documents from the file of Lee Harvey Oswald that referred to his meeting in Mexico City two months earlier with a Soviet agent, a former FBI agent says.

Without that information, investigators were unable to properly consider the possibility that Oswald acted as part of a conspiracy in the Nov. 22, 1963,

Chinese literary critic confesses in Gang trials

PEKING (AP) — Yao Wenyuan, a literary critic who fired the first salvo in the now-condemned Cultural Revolution, confessed today he supported factional fighting and approved an article that labeled veteran leaders as "capitalist roaders," sources said.

Yao is a member of the Gang of Four led by Mao's widow Jiang Qing who are on trial for alleged crimes against the state.

The Gang is charged with trying to usurp power and "persecuting to the death" thousands of people during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution. The trial in its third week also includes as defendants Chen Boda, a former political secretary of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung, and five military officers.

If convicted, the 10 defendants face possible death sentences.

Courtroom sources said Yao, a former Politburo member and propaganda specialist confessed calmly today, in marked contrast to his last appearance Nov. 24, when he appeared flustered and confused.

assassination, says James P. Hosty Jr., the agent who monitored Oswald's activities in Dallas.

Hosty, 56, retired from the FBI last year. He was the most severely punished of 17 FBI men who were disciplined for the way they handled the Oswald case in the days before the assassination.

Hosty, who was suspended for 30 days and transferred from Dallas to Kansas City, decided to tell his side of the disciplinary action, he said, because "one of these days they are going to have to face up and tell the public the truth" about the concealed information.

The Warren Commission, which investigated the assassination, concluded that Oswald, who was later shot to death by Jack Ruby, was the only person involved in the assassination. A House assassinations committee concluded that the slaying was the result of a conspiracy.

Hosty said that FBI intelligence never told him of Oswald's contacts in Mexico City with the man he terms a key to Soviet espionage in the western hemisphere.

When he learned of agent Valeriy V. Kostikov's role as a KGB agent responsible for assassination and sabotage, it was three years too late, Hosty said.

When some Mexico City material did arrive in Dallas — most of it the day before or the day of the assassination — it disappeared from Hosty's work-box after he was instructed to attend Oswald's interrogation by Dallas police the afternoon of the assassination, Hosty said.

The Warren Commission concluded Oswald traveled to Mexico City and visited the Cuban and Soviet embassies in an attempt to get a visa to Russia.

Hosty said at least one of four documents removed from the Dallas file on the afternoon of the assassination was checked out by his supervisor, Kenneth C. Howe.

Howe, retired and living in San Diego, Calif., said he has "no recollection of anything like that."

Howe said anything taken from the file "certainly would be in connection with business and not surreptitiously."

Hosty testified before the Senate Intelligence Committee in 1975 about the material that had been taken from the file, but the testimony remains classified, he said.

We're still the one!

Somewhere between the Vietnam War and the current time, many Americans lost their courage for battling seemingly insurmountable odds.

Large numbers of us seem to no longer possess the courage to forge ahead when all the chips are against us, the quality that, perhaps more than anything else, led to the tremendous strides of the United States during its first 200 years.

We don't know how this trend of defeatism began. Some have speculated that the United States walked away from too many wars that it didn't really try to win. The settlements reached at the conclusion of those wars, some speculative, signed away more than we bargained for.

Since the close of the Vietnam War, the United States has suffered one demoralizing episode after another. Watergate and the ultimate resignation of President Richard Nixon was a crushing blow to the American people. Corruption in government has been widespread. Socially, the face of the nation has undergone the most dramatic change ever in the last decade.

Frustration has piled atop frustration. The American people have been caught up in a maelstrom of sometimes vicious and ugly change that has shaken this nation to its roots.

Topping it all off, the economy in the United States has not been well for several years and the faith of Americans in the ability of their government to solve the economic and other ills has diminished.

Furthermore, Iran continues holding 52 Americans illegally and our hands appear to be tied in that matter, too.

If this nation was a human being, the mood it's currently experiencing would be classified as depression. There seems to be no national unity of purpose, no national pride, no sense of accomplishment.

Whatever sense of pride and fulfillment the people of this nation could have felt has been buried under piles of frustration and discouragement. That self-defeating attitude surely can be as dangerous for a nation as it can be for an individual or a family. This nation is too great and too wonderful to wallow in self pity.

What we all need at this point in our history is to look up in the sky and see Old Glory waving proudly in the wind. Then we must all realize that it's only through our courage and the grace of our Maker that the United States continues to exist today and will tomorrow.

We must shake this mood of national depression and resume our rightful role as leader of the free world. The United States of America still is the greatest nation on this earth and Americans must never forget that fact.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Dec. 8, the 343rd day of 1980. There are 23 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 8, 1941, the United States and Britain declared war on Japan.

On this date: In 1886, the American Federation of Labor was founded at a convention of union leaders in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1923, the United States signed a treaty of friendship with Germany.

In 1949, the Chinese nationalist government moved to Formosa as Communists pressed their attacks on the mainland.

In 1968, the United States and the Soviet Union agreed on a treaty to prohibit nuclear weapons in outer space.

Ten years ago: The United Nations Security Council voted to condemn Portugal for military moves in Guinea.

One year ago: Republican Dave Treen shattered the Democrats' century-long hold on the Louisiana government by beating Louis Lambert in the most expensive campaign in the state's history.

Today's birthdays: Sammy Davis Jr. is 55. Actor Maximilian Schell is 50. Rock star Greg Allman is 33.

Thought for today: Every man's memory is his private literature. — Aldous Huxley, British novelist (1894-1963).

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Three nations alter "balance of terror"

WASHINGTON — Israel, South Africa and Taiwan will soon begin joint production of strategic cruise missiles — small, pilotless jets that can hug the ground to evade enemy radar and deliver nuclear warheads 1,500 miles away.

U.S. intelligence agencies have known for years that the three nations were working together on nuclear weapons development. But the addition of cruise missiles to their arsenals drastically alters the worldwide "balance of terror." Even the Soviet Union is considered to be at least five years away from deployment of these super-smart weapons.

In cold, hard geographic terms, the triumvirate's new missile capability means that Israel — which already has a stockpile of 200 or more nuclear bombs — can deliver warheads from its own backyard to any of its Arab enemies in the Middle East, and even deep inside the Soviet Union.

South Africa could annihilate targets anywhere in the southern part of the continent, and increase the effective range of the missiles by launching them from aircraft.

Taiwan would be able to destroy Peking and other cities in mainland China from secure launching sites on its own soil or from naval vessels far out to sea.

The beauty of cruise missiles from a military standpoint — particularly for countries surrounded or numerically overwhelmed by their enemies — is that they need not be deployed in highly visible launch sites that are vulnerable to attack. Four cruise missiles can be installed on a single truck and hidden, ready to go, in an ordinary garage. This, in fact, is precisely what the United States plans to do with its cruise missiles earmarked for deployment in Britain.

Intelligence sources told my associate Ron McRae that Israel, Taiwan and South Africa probably poised to produce and deploy their cruise missiles in total secrecy. None of the three has even admitted having nuclear weapons, and they have taken extreme measures to keep the outside world from learning their secret. In 1975, for example, the Israelis fired on an American spy plane that got too close to their nuclear facilities, and South Africa expelled the U.S. ambassador, William Edmondson, last year when a hidden camera was discovered in the belly of his private plane.

U.S. intelligence analysts first tumbled onto the nuclear cooperation between Israel and South Africa several years ago when sophisticated Israeli weapons and nuclear scientists began turning up in South Africa.

Monitoring of the joint nuclear program was given high priority, and last year an American spy satellite recorded a mysterious flash in the Indian Ocean off South Africa. From this and additional evidence — includ-

CHARLEY REESE

Disarmament lobby merely worried about themselves

Charley Reese

The disarmament lobby has begun to mobilize. Harvard Magazine has a report on the activities of a group called Physicians for Social Responsibility. They persuaded Harvard to host a seminar on the medical consequences of nuclear weapons and nuclear war.

As you might imagine, the seminar was not a serious discussion but a forum for disarmament propaganda. The participants went through the ritual of describing the horrors of a nuclear war.

Now, why am I so cynical? Well, let's think it through. Do you know anybody anywhere who thinks nuclear war is not horrible? I don't. Nobody in the Pentagon is in favor of nuclear war. I doubt if anyone in the Kremlin is in favor of an all-out nuclear war.

Thus, when these disarmament buffs raise the spectre of people who are allegedly leading us toward a nuclear war, they are creating a red herring. There are no such people.

Their purpose is simple. They want you to identify in your mind those Americans who believe the best way to prevent a nuclear war is to keep America too strong to tempt an aggressor are a group of insane warmongers.

I find the group disgusting. You see, all war — nuclear or conventional — is horrible. If you are within the burst radius of a conventional explosive, the consequences are just as bad as if it were a nuclear device. The main difference between a nuclear device and a conventional bomb is only a matter of scale.

Death is death; mutilation is mutilation; grief is grief; destruction is destruction. What difference does it make to a mother whether her child dies from a bullet in the head or a massive dose of radiation? The firestorms created by incendiaries in Dresden and Tokyo are the same as the firestorms the good doctors say will result from a nuclear explosion over Boston Common.

There is, however, one important difference and that is why I think these anti-nuclear breast-beaters are so disgusting. The difference is that these upper class intellectuals know that a nuclear war would get them. The difference is that when they contemplate war in their laps, they suddenly become pacifists.

Where have they been during the first 80 years of this century? I don't recall all of this weeping and wailing when 80 million people were killed in World War II.

When they contemplate the nuclear warhead married to an intercontinental missile, it suddenly dawns on them that it won't be those funny little brown people in Cambodia who will die. My Gawd, man, it would be us here at Harvard!

Well, they are right. Nobody will make any money off a nuclear war. There won't be much opportunity to advance one's career as resident expert safely ensconced behind the lines. The nuclear war will be the most democratic war in history. The Chivas Regal crowd, what's left of it, will grovel in the rubble just like the common folk have done in a thousand cities and villages. The draft dodgers will die just like the troops on the line.

Forgive me, but those of us who have always hated war, and that includes every professional soldier I have ever known, don't have much patience with panicky civilians who get interested in the problem only when they realize they themselves could get hurt.

Furthermore, cowards behind the lines are as useless as cowards in the foxholes. These people are acting like Stone Age savages who throw ground-up monkey ears on rocks to prevent an avalanche. The nuclear weapon is never going to be banned; it's going to proliferate so it's a waste of time to wring your hands over the existence of a weapon that is far too efficient to be abandoned.

More importantly, it is not the inanimate machines which cause wars. Wars occur first in the heads of political leaders. If you would prevent war you must work in that area and that means you must realize that it is suicidal to press for disarmament in your own country when you have no influence at all in the country of your enemy.

The good doctors did send a copy of their letter to the Kremlin, but even in that useless act, they revealed their amorality. They cannot see the moral difference between a free nation trying to defend itself and an evil totalitarian regime bent on world conquest. The only thing that matters to them is keeping their own skins intact. I'm sure that if they see surrendering to evil as the only way to do that, they will hoist the white flag in a second.

Forgive me, but I enjoy their discomfort. Harvard had a miserable record during the Vietnam Era when most of their students and faculty engaged in an open Hate America campaign and openly supported our enemies. If the worst comes true, I'll be pleased to know that they will suffer the same fate they were so eager to visit on the people of Southeast Asia. It's about time Harvard learned something about the nature of communism.

INSIDE REPORT

Just how much did Democrats learn from the election?

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just how much Democrats learned from their Election Day debacle will be flashed Dec. 10 by the House Democratic caucus when it decides whether to place an LBJ disciple, targeted for extinction by liberal political activists, in a post of tactical leadership.

Rep. James Jones of Oklahoma is slightly favored over his principal opponent, Rep. David Obey of Wisconsin, to be elected chairman of the House Budget Committee — the point man confronting Ronald Reagan's overall program. Superficially, they are similar: tough, smart, young (Jones is 41; Obey is 42) and new legislative masters of the House.

But seldom have Democrats been offered a clearer choice of how they should react to defeat. Obey is a skilled practitioner of liberal constituency-group politics who wants to reform big government sufficiently to save it. Jones wants to throw out liberal spending paraphernalia that has collected in the Democratic attic for generations.

Tried-and-true liberals have viewed Jones as Judas Iscariot ever since he guided through the House the 1978 tax reduction bill backed by Republicans and opposed by President Carter. He is on the secret hit list of the National Committee for an Effective Congress (NCEC), the famous liberal political action group, for 1982 Democratic primary defeat by a liberal in his conservative Tulsa district.

By supporting corporate tax incentives for industrial expansion, Jones has earned cloakroom indictment by liberal colleagues as a mouthpiece for the Business Roundtable. "The problem with Jimmy," one such congressman told us, "is that he'd give the store away to the Republicans."

Evans

Actually, Jones has voted more as a centrist than a conservative: most recently, 32 percent liberal according to the Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), and 45 percent conservative according to the American Conservative Union (ACU). That compares with figures of 89 percent liberal and 11 percent conservative for Obey and 74 percent liberal and 3 percent conservative for Rep. Paul Simon of Illinois, who is running a poor third for budget chairman.

Obey is current chairman of the Democratic Study Group, the House liberal caucus. On the budget committee, he protected health and education spending from many assaults and opposed all increases in defense spending. On the House floor, he manned the barricades against anti-abortion riders. Last spring, Obey talked the Carter administration into relaxing domestic spending restrictions, much to the mortification of Jones.

Differences between Obey and Jones over tactics may be even more significant. Jones, a junior aide to President Lyndon B. Johnson in the mid-1960s, would imitate tactics employed by Senate Majority Leader Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1950s: Oppose the Republican administration only rarely; but when a constructive alternative is in hand, attack in force.

Thus, in reacting to Reagan's tax program, Jones supports tax cuts in principle but would apply a Democratic twist by making upper-income bracket reductions conditional on investment. Jones wants a Democratic label on relief for middle-income voters (earning up to $40,000 a year) who abandoned Jimmy Carter a month ago because they felt the Democrats had abandoned them.

Obey as budget chairman would resist far more than Jones the Reagan run at cherished social welfare programs. That stance is clearly more congenial to Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, as well as to many Democratic congressmen who will vote for Jones in caucus anyway.

The reason is that they agree with Jones that their party has alienated blue-collar voters as the proponent of federal social engineering, the opponent of a strong defense and the defender of permissive personal conduct. That image would not be softened by House Democrats persisting in voting patterns followed by Dave Obey until now.

Jones believes Democrats must change both image and policy to reassert themselves as the majority party. He has told friends that the views of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and Vice President Walter F. Mondale represent the 1970s, not the 1980s, and as such offer no effective alternative to Reaganite Republicanism.

Unlike the preceding two House Budget Committee chairmen, Jones would also sit on the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, where he has grown influential. That gives him unique leverage on the broad scope of government policy, perhaps as a prelude to future leadership. Nobody in the House doubts that Jimmy Jones wants to be speaker someday, particularly not after he turned down a promising race for the Senate this year.

The vote in caucus, therefore, will determine whether he manages the first big step on the slippery ladder to the speakership. But beyond one politician's fate, it will provide the first concrete evidence of whether the Democratic Party truly feels compelled to change its ways after unmistakable rejection by the voters.

Five get Kennedy Center Honors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1980 winners of Kennedy Center Honors for "lifetime achievement in the performing arts" were treated to a night of praise and ovations by a star-studded group of admirers led by President Carter.

The five winners, honored Sunday night at a White House reception and a gala at the Kennedy Center, are: composer-conductor Leonard Bernstein, actor James Cagney, choreographer Agnes de Mille, actress Lynn Fontanne and opera singer Leontyne Price.

The five represent "the finest character of the finest people on earth," Carter said during the Kennedy Center gala, which was taped for televising Dec. 27 on CBS and featured performances and tributes.

The audience sang "Happy Birthday," in honor of Miss Fontanne, who turned 93 Saturday. Miss de Mille was honored with a performance of "It's Parade Time," a work she had choreographed. Twice the audience rose for standing ovations for Cagney. Actor Pat O'Brien saluted him as "an actor's actor and a listening actor — they're so rare today."

Two special songs were sung for Bernstein. His daughter Jamie sang "Thank You, Thank You for the Big Heart," and Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and former football star "Broadway Joe" Namath were among those who joined in the singing of "New York, New York," Bernstein's hit song from the musical "On the Town."

At the White House reception, Carter said Bernstein has made music "part of the lives of literally millions of Americans." He described Miss DeMille's work as representing "the heart and soul of the American experience," and said the 81-year-old Cagney has touched the heart of America "all the way from Public Enemy Number 1 to Yankee Doodle Dandy." He said the greatest thrill of his presidency was hearing Miss Price sing at the White House.

Tension of Nazi march eased

CHICAGO (AP) — Two years ago, concentration camp survivors and other Jews in the suburb of Skokie were filled with anger at the prospect of a march by Nazis through their town. Now some residents are reliving the tension before television cameras.

The occasion is the filming of the CBS-TV movie "Skokie," which deals with the reaction of village residents when a small band of Nazis, led by Frank Collin, announced plans to march in the community.

The 2½-hour program, which stars Danny Kaye and Eli Wallach, also focuses on the legal battle over the march. The village government sought to block the Nazi rally, while the American Civil Liberties Union defended what it said was the Nazis' right to march.

It is that fight, more than the hostilities between the Jews and the Nazis, which makes the subject so dramatic, according to Robert "Buzz" Berger, the show's producer. "One of the basics of good drama is conflict," Berger said. "In this show, we have a lot of well-meaning people in conflict both emotionally and intellectually, and that makes a good show." But, Berger said, "while the show deals with the legal battle, it also deals with the personal story of families in Skokie — a survivor family and how it affects them."

movie. "Skokie," Berger said, will be "historical fiction," employing literary license to tell the story. "It's not a docu-drama," he said. "It's a play. It does not cover every aspect of the story."

Berger said research for the movie began in 1978 as the legal maneuvers to stop the march were set in motion, and a writer was sent to interview several of the village's more than 68,000 residents. For months before the planned June 1978 rally, many residents were gripped by fear of a possibly bloody, certainly emotional confrontation. The confrontation was averted when the Nazis were allowed to march in Chicago's Marquette Park instead.

Teacher raises put in budget

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Budget Board's $26.3 billion budget recommendation includes, for the first time, detailed provisions on school finance and teacher pay raises, a political hot potato.

The recommended budget for the two years beginning Sept. 1, 1981, is $6.1 million higher than the present $20.2 billion budget.

The package, completed Sunday night, also includes state employee pay raises of 14.3 percent for the first year and 8.7 for the second.

Although the recommendation is $280 shy of the spending ceiling imposed by a voter-approved constitutional amendment, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby said it is highly unlikely there would be funds left over for tax relief.

He said the legislature probably will make emergency appropriations and could add new expenditures when it convenes on Jan. 13.

Gov. Bill Clements will issue his own budget recommendations before Jan. 13. He has said he thought there would be room for a billion dollars in tax relief.

"We recommended just under $1 billion for medical education, I don't see any room to cut there," Hobby said. "Certainly not in higher education. I think we took a very conservative position on public school education, and I see no room for cuts there."

The board also voted to recommend $1.4 billion in state aid to public schools, including a 23 percent teacher pay raise.

In the past, public education expenditures have been detailed in a separate bill.

More than half the recommended increase in state expenditures in public schools would go for teacher pay raises.

The 23 percent salary hike over the next two school years originally was recommended by the Texas Board of Education. The Texas State Teachers' Association has proposed a 33 percent increase.

Both the TSTA suggestions and the board proposals include the automatic experience increase that most teachers receive each year.

Under the board proposal, the minimum beginning salary for a teacher with a bachelor's degree would increase from $9,430 now to $10,070 in 1981-82, and $10,750 in the 1982-83 school year.

The state guaranteed salary for a bachelor's degree teacher with 10 years' experience would rise from $14,150 now to $15,110 next year and $16,130 in 1982-83.

Foundation School Program costs — such as minimum salaries for teacher, bus expenses and essential operating fund — would increase by $142 million dollars. The costs are partly borne by local school districts, and the state's share would increase from 87.4 percent to 88 percent.

Colonel removed from Salvador junta

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The military removed a liberal colonel from El Salvador's junta as a U.S. presidential commission interviewed key officials to try to determine if the armed forces were involved in the murder of four American women last week.

Officers of the armed forces voted 300-4 to remove Col. Alfonso Adolfo Majano after he charged in a radio interview that the militant right-wing blamed for most of the 8,500 political killings in El Salvador this year "has infiltrated the high commands of the armed forces and the government."

Majano was considered one of the most liberal members of the five-man junta while the other military member, Col. Jaime Abdul Gutierrez, considered the most conservative.

The two colonels led the coup that ousted right-wing President Carlos Humberto Romero in October 1979, but Majano's power has been steadily eroded by the conservative defense minister, Col. Jose Guillermo Garcia.

A U.S. official who asked not to be identified said he understood Majano would not be replaced, leaving the junta with only four members. And two of the three civilians on the junta, Jose Napoleon Duarte and Antonio Morales Erlich of the Christian Democratic Party, told a news conference they would quit unless "profound measures" were taken to end the civil war between left-wing and right-wing militants.

Duarte said the Christian Democrats are ready to continue working for a solution to the violence, but it is "also ready to declare publicly that it is not going to participate ever in a government that does not have the capacity to confront, and the the authority to resolve, the problems."

The U.S. government

cut off military and economic aid to the junta on Friday, two days after the bodies of three American nuns and a lay Catholic social worker were found shot in the back of the head beside a country road. They disappeared Tuesday between the San Salvador airport and the city.

The acting head of El Salvador's Roman Catholic Church, Bishop Arturo Rivera y Damas, charged in a statement Sunday that the killings were "the culmination of four years of persecution of the church that has increased in quantity and quality in 1980, coinciding with the new political construction of the country by the military and the Christian Democratic Party."

Waco grocers clear shelves in face of poisonings threats

WACO, Texas (AP) — Hundreds of H-E-B Food Store employees at six stores worked into the early hours today in an effort to clear shelves after a telephone caller said he poisoned items in three of the outlets.

"The target is to get all the merchandise out of the stores," H-E-B Co. vice president Bill Ault said late Sunday. "Then we will have them (the stores) inspected and certified and at that point, when everything is off the premises, we will have to start restocking."

He estimated employees had cleared "90 to 95 percent" of the shelves by 9 p.m. CST Sunday. Everything from "meats to baby rattles" was pulled off the shelves, he said.

The clearance was ordered after a series of telephoned threats. Lt. Marvin Horton said the first came Thursday, when an anonymous caller demanded $80,000 to reveal the location of the alleged strychnine.

Brezhnev's welcome to New Delhi mixed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev arrived today to a warm welcome from Indian leaders and a crowd of nearly 1,000 at Delhi airport but the hostile Afghan demonstrators prompted cancellation of a drive through the capital's main shopping center.

Brezhnev is here for a three-day state visit seeking to strengthen ties with India and other Third World countries that have criticized Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Hundreds of Indians waited for about an hour along the scheduled parade route, but Brezhnev's limousine was diverted from the area by security officials with advance knowledge of the demonstration.

About 200 Afghans and some Indians were allowed to march around the Connaught Circus shopping center for about an hour, protesting the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. But the police broke up the demonstration with fists and batons when the demonstrators tried to push through an alley toward the Soviet Information Center.

The protests were organized by Indians from opposition political parties and by Afghan exiles, some of whom were ordered by police to keep off the streets until Brezhnev leaves on Thursday.

President N. Sanjiva Reddy and Prime Minister Indira Gandhi led the 21-gun welcome for the Soviet president and Communist Party chief at the airport. Local units of Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party mustered a crowd of nearly 1,000, and hundreds of uniformed schoolchildren were lined up.

Banners proclaiming Indo-Soviet friendship and youthful-looking pictures of the 73-year-old Brezhnev were plastered along the motorcade route.

Mrs. Gandhi has criticized the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan. But in the opinion of her opponents she has gone out of her way to avoid upbraiding the Soviets publicly.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Wrinkle-removing procedure

DEAR HELOISE:

What can be done to get the wrinkles out of synthetic clothing, which were put there while in a too-hot dryer?

I've tried rewashing, steam pressing and vinegar to no avail. Clothing is just too expensive to be ruined this way, and I surely would appreciate it if you could help me with this problem which I'm sure other folks have also. — Mrs. E. Spirito

I think dryer-wrinkled clothes have happened to each of us at one time or another and, of course, clothing is too expensive not to at least try to salvage.

We printed the following solution in a column recently, which I feel is worth a try, since you don't have a thing to lose.

Namely, try spray starching the wrinkled clothes! (Steam pressing won't work.) Liberally spray a small section of the garment at a time with the starch and iron that portion while it's damp. If the garment is subject to shine, use a dry press cloth between the garment and the iron.

You may want to rewash the garment before wearing. It's O.K. to do so, as I have yet to have the wrinkles return after the clothing has been washed.

But, of course, don't put them in a dryer which is too hot this time or you will have to repeat the process.

Good luck, and hugs for writing. — Heloise

COOKING DAY

Dear Heloise: Our son and his family can visit us only once a year, which is a week at Christmas time. With the usual fruitcake, cookies, etc., out of the way, the menus planned and shopping done, I spend a "cooking" day.

Ham, roast, chicken and various casseroles are prepared, and frozen. Bread is baked. Such things as gelatin salads, sauces, and boiled eggs are prepared and refrigerated. Salad vegetables are washed and stored in the crisper.

This preplanning really makes the time spent worthwhile as it gives me many more hours to enjoy my family. — Viola Pimlott

DO AND DYE

Dear Heloise: I lighten my own hair. Because the roots are darker and more resistant to bleaching, the ends were getting too light and frizzy in the process as I couldn't keep from getting the solution on them each time.

So, I put rubber bands near the ends of small sections of hair — about two inches from the scalp if you have longer hair — keeping it up away from the roots. With the applicator, it is thus easy to apply light-ener only to the roots without getting it on the already light ends.

Results? Perfect! My hair was more evenly colored with no over-bleached ends. It was much easier to do, besides. — Ms. Bonnie Cartledge

LETTER OF THOUGHT

Dear Heloise: Those of you with children whose grandparents live out of town, know how much grandparents cherish hearing from you, especially about the progress and growth of the little ones.

To add a special little lift to your letters occasionally, color the child's thumb tip, using a non-toxic ink, and let the child sign his or her own name.

Grandparents love it! (I know, 'cause I am one!) — Mrs. D.R.

are almost done, put the buns on top of the screen.

Warm buns in a jiffy! — Jan Block

TREE TRIMMER

Dear Heloise: A few years ago around Christmas, I pulled down a box from a closet shelf thinking it was Christmas decorations. Instead, I found the white plastic wedding bells from our wedding cake.

So, I just hung them on the tree, where they have hung every Christmas since.

Not only are they pretty and decorative, but they are a pleasant reminder of that special day in our lives. Stored in a box all the time, we never got to enjoy them. — Wanda Fisher

Miniatures featured

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Reflecting a growing interest in miniatures — along with stamp and coin collecting one of the country's most popular hobbies — the Henry Ford Museum here is presenting an exhibit, "Toys for Young and Old: The World in Miniature."

Six completely furnished period doll houses and more than 1,000 miniatures will be on display until Jan. 4, as part of the museum's annual observation of the holiday season.

The celebration also includes a giant Christmas tree with decorations reminiscent of early days in the nation's history, more than 20 craft demonstrations, and seasonal music. In adjacent Greenfield Village, the historic homes are decorated with period ornaments, and special craft and cooking demonstrations are scheduled.

The six doll houses include a 1930s Long Island-style mansion, complete with maid and cook; Clara Ford's model of Richmond Hill, Henry Ford's Georgia estate that was built for Mrs. Ford as a guide for her to arrange furniture; and a model of a simple, early-20th-century Detroit frame house.

Display cases exhibit a wide variety of miniature items, from carefully crafted tiny pieces of furniture to cast metal replicas of kitchen appliances.

A side exhibit traces the history of model railroading as well as rail-roading itself, and other model trains and working steam engines continue the miniatures theme.

People have been fascinated by small things for ages, report researchers at the museum, who cite the miniature reminders of life on earth placed in the tombs of Egyptian rulers.

Well known furniture crafters and ceramicists have long made scale models of their works.

The first doll house on record was commissioned by Albrecht V, Duke of Bavaria, in 1558 for his daughter. Royalty has been in love with doll houses ever since.

Future English queens have grown up with doll houses furnished with original works of Chippendale, Sheridan and Wedgwood. Queen Victoria delighted in a simple but well-furnished four-room doll house. In 1924, the people of England presented one of the world's most elaborate doll houses to Queen Mary, wife of George V.

Other well known women have also pampered their childhood dreams, among them Colleen Moore, who had a beautifully furnished miniature castle built.

Today, many adults collect and make miniatures. Proper scale and detail are important to these collectors. The search for antique miniatures is as big a passion as the search for full-size antiques, hobbyists say.

Florence Sutton's Story:

Since I started Pat Walker's 10 months ago I have lost 115 lbs. and 130 1/2 inches.

A lot has happened since my first picture appeared in the paper. I have lost more weight and I have even lost a 1/2 size in my shoe size.

Needless to say, I feel and look like a different person. On one occasion a person both my husband and I know wasn't going to speak because they thought my husband was with somebody else. This person is amazed at the change I have made.

I made a New Year's Resolution last year to do something about my weight problem, I think I have kept that resolu-

The biggest thrill I get is shopping for clothes and being able to pick and choose. When you wear a size 24 1/2, you don't have much choice, but size 8 you have a better selection.

I intend to continue the program and get down smaller than a size 8.

I still receive encouragement from the personnel at Pat Walker's and from my family at home.

Reporter infiltrates Ku Klux Klan

Jerry Thompson, reporter for The Tennessean newspaper, left, and Klan leader Don Black shake hands at a Klan rally in Collinwood, Tenn., July 26. Thompson spent more than a year as a Klansman to research a series of articles on the racist organization. (AP Laserphoto)

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A national leader of the Ku Klux Klan says no retaliation is planned against a reporter who infiltrated the Klan for more than a year and then wrote of his experiences for The Tennessean.

Reporter Jerry Thompson, 40, began writing about his life underground in Sunday's editions of the newspaper. The series continued today.

The Klan, he wrote, "grows more dangerous every day" and should be disarmed. He said he was under police protection because the Klan threatens death to members who violate their oaths of allegiance.

Asked about possible retaliation, Bill Wilkinson, imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire faction of the Klan, replied, "If you mean physical, corporal retribution, none as far as we're concerned."

Thompson said he infiltrated two Klan organizations, including the militant Invisible Empire, helped light crosses and demonstrated in his white Klan garb.

Appearing on NBC's "Today" show today, Thompson said Klansmen spend their spare time training with all sorts of weapons. He said people opposed to the racist organization should support laws to disarm the Klan.

When asked what went on during Klan meetings, Thompson replied, "Not as much as I thought before I went in." But, he said, Klansmen always had weapons at the meetings.

As Thompson's story was being published, a convicted hit man who says he taught guerrilla warfare at a Ku Klux Klan camp in Texas claimed there are two other secret Klan training facilities and an ammunition factory in Texas.

John Allen Mosier, who is serving a life sentence in Oklahoma after pleading guilty to killing his father-in-law, said he was a guerrilla warfare instructor at Camp Puller, located about 40 miles east of Houston, according to an article in Sunday's editions of the Houston Chronicle.

Mosier said he knew of two other secret training camps — one near Mauriceville and the other near Cleveland, the newspaper said.

He also said the KKK operates an "ammunition factory" near Vidor, located near the Texas-Louisiana border about 85 miles from Houston, the Chronicle said.

The reporter said he fabricated a detailed identity as J.W. Thompson, a retired Army sergeant who took early disability retirement and went to work as a cabinet maker in Birmingham, Ala.

"Before leaving Nashville for Birmingham I had spent weeks preparing myself for ... when a Klan leader would cross-examine me about my past," Thompson wrote in today's editions.

Thompson's test came Nov. 8, 1979, when Don Black, successor to David Duke as head of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, cornered him in the parking lot of a Sambo's restaurant in Birmingham.

"It was clear that he was suspicious — as he must be about every Klan recruit," Thompson said. "His eyes, staring intently into my own, did not waver. He was looking for that flicker of hesitation, that momentary stumble, that one slip of mine which would tip him off to the fact that I was not what I pretended to be."

"He quizzed me sternly, seriously and thoroughly. I was glad I had spent a month preparing for that ordeal. But when ... (he) finished with me and I stood there in the chilly evening, sweat dripping from my face, I wasn't certain I had passed the test ... Only when he took my Klan initiation fee that night did I know I could say AKIA."

AKIA, he said, means "A Klansman I Am."

"For years I sought to condition my thinking to be aware and sensitive to a changing society," Thompson wrote. "Suddenly, in the Klan, I found myself submerged in a cauldron of racism and intolerance. It was necessary and important for me to undergo an immediate reconditioning.

With a sense of guilt I would find myself engaging in the same sort of 'nigger and Jew talk' that offends decency."

The newspaper said Thompson's assignment began in July 1979, when Tennessean president and publisher John Seigenthaler asked Thompson to go underground to report on the Klan.

The newspaper said it waylaid questions about Thompson's absence from the regular news columns by a staged incident.

At a news meeting in September 1979, Seigenthaler slammed his hand on a stack of papers, yelling at Managan and I've had it with him. I'd like not to see him around here for a while. Can you see to that?"

Later, an editor asked Whitt, "What's the problem with Jerry?"

"I think he needs to dry out a little," Whitt replied.

Thompson then disappeared from The Tennessean's city room and started his double life.

Thatcher in Dublin for talks

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher arrived in Dublin today with a high-powered team for talks on the hunger-strike crisis in Northern Ireland.

lin today with a high-powered team for talks on the hunger-strike crisis in Northern Ireland.

Mrs. Thatcher was accompanied by Foreign Secretary Lord Carrington, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Geoffrey Howe and Northern Ireland Secretary Humphrey Atkins.

The Northern Ireland crisis was top of the agenda in talks with Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey and his ministers at Dublin Castle.

Security was tight following weekend demonstrations in Dublin, Northern Ireland and London on behalf of the seven men and three women who are on hunger strike in the Maze prison, outside Belfast, and Armagh jail. They are demanding "special category" political status.

All but one are convicted guerrillas of the mostly Roman Catholic Irish Republican Army, fighting to end British rule in Northern Ireland. The other, John Nixon, is a member of an IRA splinter group, the Irish National Liberation Army.

The men entered the seventh week of their fast-to-death Monday. The three women at Armagh prison began their hunger strike on Dec. 1.

Britain has ruled out granting the request for political-prisoner status but has said it will discuss "humanitarian" questions involving the prisoners.

Haughey was expected to press Mrs. Thatcher for prison reforms to defuse the crisis before one of the protesters dies.

It was believed to be the most high-powered British government team ever to visit Ireland for bilateral talks, which will touch on Common Market issues as well as the future of Ulster.

Mrs. Thatcher and her party landed by helicopter in a courtyard of historic Dublin Castle. Police stationed marksmen on rooftops to survey the scene amid the tightest security seen here since Pope John Paul II's visit last year. The British team had arrived a few minutes earlier by Royal Air Force jet at a cordoned-off section of Dublin airport.

NEWSPAPER BIBLE

God is my witness

Some of you are saying, "It's true that his visits didn't seem to cost us anything, but he is a sneaky fellow, that Paul, and he fooled us. As sure as anything he must have made money from us some way."

But how? Did any of the men I sent to you take advantage of you?

When I urged Titus to visit you, and sent our other brother with him, did they make any profit? No, of course not. For we have the same Holy Spirit, and walk in each other's steps, doing things the same way.

I suppose you think I am saying all this to get back into your good graces. That isn't it at all. I tell you, with God listening as I say it, that I have said this to help you, dear friends—to build you up spiritually and not to help myself.

For I am afraid that when I come to visit you I won't like what I find, and then you won't like the way I will have to act. I am afraid that I will find you quarreling, and envying each other, and being angry with each other, and acting big, and saying wicked things about each other and whispering behind each other's backs, filled with conceit and disunity.

Yes, I am afraid that when I come God will humble me before you and I will be sad and mourn because many of you who have sinned became sinners and don't even care about the wicked, impure things you have done: your lust and immorality, and the taking of other men's wives.

DR. NEIL SOLOMON

Exercise may lower risk

Dear Dr. Solomon: I've got three of the risk factors for a heart attack—a high cholesterol level, high blood pressure and a family history of heart attacks (my father and an uncle)—but I don't want three strikes to be out in my case. I know I can't do anything about my family history, but I have cut down considerably on my intake of fats and, with my doctor's help, I'm trying to keep my blood pressure under control. But, if possible, I would like to do more. Would exercise have any bearing on lowering either a person's cholesterol level or his blood pressure?—Mr. H.K.

Dear Mr. K.: It is not possible to state unequivocally that exercise lowers cholesterol and blood pressure levels in all cases. However, there is some evidence that exercise does tend to increase the level of high density lipoprotein (HDL) in the blood, and HDL is believed to exert a protective influence against heart attacks.

Moreover, exercise can be an important factor in controlling a person's weight and in conditioning the heart and other muscles so that they are better able to withstand stress and strain. Since you indicate that you are under a doctor's care, I assume that any exercise program you undertake will be under medical supervision.

For a more detailed discussion of the relationship between exercise and HDL, you might want to refer to my book, "Dr. Solomon's High Health Diet & Exercise Plan," published by G.P. Putnam's Sons.

Dear Dr. Solomon: I attended a "health fair" sponsored by a local hospital, and there was a great deal of emphasis on the importance of diagnosing and treating high blood pressure. One of the speakers noted in particular the large number of blacks who suffer from the disease. Is there any logical explanation of why one group of people should be more prone to high blood pressure than another?—Toby

Dear Toby: The fact that blacks have an increased incidence of high blood pressure, and that the condition is an important factor in their shorter life expectancy, is well established. A National Health Survey shows that more than 21 percent of urban blacks suffer from hypertension, compared with 13.5 percent of urban whites. The condition develops at an earlier age among blacks, often is more severe and leads to more deaths at an earlier age.

As to the reasons, a study conducted at the University of Michigan suggests that environment may play a role in the incidence of high blood pressure among blacks. The researchers found that those living in what generally would be considered "good" neighborhoods in Detroit had significantly lower blood pressure readings than blacks who lived in "high stress" areas; and they concluded that persons living under conditions of tension might be prone to high blood pressure.

Of course a great deal more research will be needed before definitive answers to the problem will be available.

(If you have a medical question, write to Neil Solomon, M.D., 1726 Reisterstown Road, Baltimore, Md. 21208. Dr. Solomon cannot give personal replies but will answer as many questions as possible in his column.)

Hometown making plans for hostage

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — This small Dallas County town was not much in the news until Nov. 4, 1979, when Iranian terrorists seized the U.S. Embassy in Tehran and local resident Johnny McKeel — along with 51 other Americans — became hostage to Iran's political ambitions.

McKeel, a U.S. Marine Corps sergeant, is still being held hostage but already his hometown is making big plans for his return.

Cowboys trip Raiders to gain playoffs

Mitchell, Dorsett trigger big victory over Oakland

Tony Dorsett, runningback for Dallas, breaks away from Oakland's John Matuszak for a 20-yard touchdown run in the first period Sunday in 19-13 victory over the Raiders in Oakland. (AP Laserphoto).

OAKLAND (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys are riding into the National Football League playoffs for the 14th time in the last 15 years and it promises to be a rough ride.

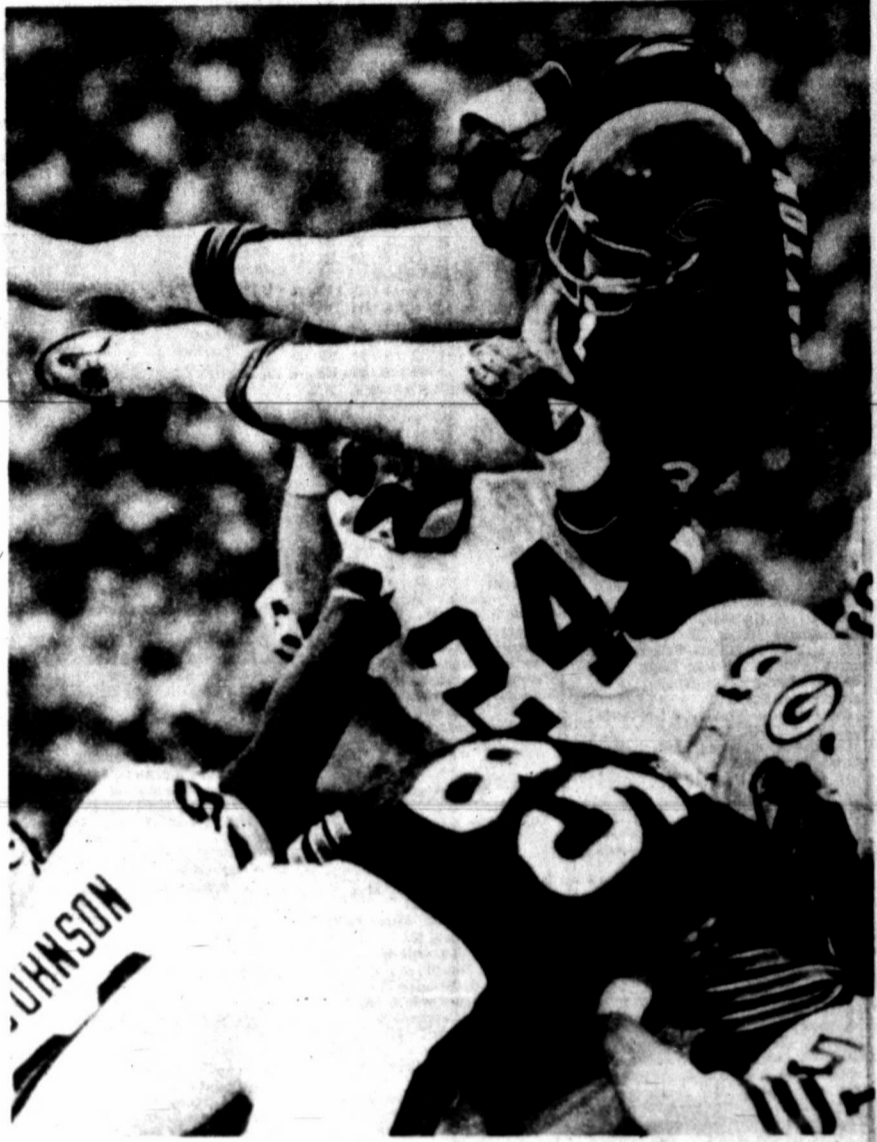

AN ENDZONE interception by cornerback Aaron Mitchell with 1:44 left in the game killed Oakland's last serious scoring threat. Two Dallas scores came after fumble recoveries.

THE RAIDERS' other troubles in the second half included a penalty which nullified a kickoff return to the Dallas 40 and a penalty which allowed the Cowboys to kill extra time in the final minutes.

against the run," said White, who also showed great respect for the Oakland pass rush by throwing most of his 14 completions to running backs and tight ends.

LESS THAN two minutes later, Dallas had a 16-7 lead. The Raiders' Keith Moody, on only his third kickoff return of the year, raced past mid-field but fumbled when tackled and the Cowboys' Doug Cosbie recovered.

Plano, Bay City are upset victims

By ALAN SAYRE Associated Press Writer Do Plano and Bay City just one favor.

Don't say "the opera's not over 'til the fat lady sings." Both teams know. Take Plano for instance. The Wildcats had built the 18-point, third-quarter margin in their 5A quarterfinal clash against Highland Park.

Bullets topple Celtics

By The Associated Press
Boston Coach Bill Fitch has had enough of matador defense. "We looked like a bunch of bullfighters out there," Fitch said after his Celtics were beaten by the Washington Bullets 113-103 Sunday night. "We were just waving them right in."

The Bullets, especially speedy guards Kevin Porter and Wes Matthews, repeatedly drove the lane for easy baskets. Those two combined for 32 points and 15 assists, and Fitch was angry that Boston's big men did nothing to impede their way to the basket.

"I didn't see once where either Porter or Matthews hit the deck," Fitch fumed. "Sometimes, you got to tear the guard's ear off so he'll think the next time before he penetrates."

In other National Basketball Association games, the San Diego Clippers trimmed the New Jersey Nets 98-95, the Portland Trail Blazers edged the San Antonio Spurs 116-115, the Phoenix Suns defeated the Golden State Warriors 106-88 and the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Utah Jazz 113-100.

Elvin Hayes scored 27 points and Greg Ballard 24 for Washington, which outscored Boston 25-16 in the final period.

"Our idea was to stay close," said

Bullets Coach Gene Shue. "You have to play that way against tough teams and hope for that one spurt."

Washington got the spurt it needed with five minutes left to play when Ballard hit three straight jumpers to turn a four-point lead into a 107-97 advantage with 3 1/2 minutes to go.

Clippers 88, Nets 85
Center Swen Nater scored a season-high 30 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Clippers to their sixth victory in the last eight starts.

Rookie Mike O'Koren, who had 25 points and 12 rebounds for the Nets, scored a basket with 13 seconds left to pull his team within two points at 97-95. San Diego rookie Michael Brooks sank one free throw, then the Nets' Mike Newlin missed a three-point attempt at the buzzer.

Blazers 116, Spurs 115
Billy Ray Bates scored 10 of his team-high 21 points in the fourth quarter, but it was a 16-footer jumper by rookie Kelvin Ransey with 36 seconds left that clinched Portland's victory.

Three-time scoring champion George Gervin, who had 41 points, failed in a bid to win the game for the Spurs when he missed an 18-footer at the buzzer.

Suns 106, Warriors 88
Phoenix raised its record to 24-6 behind Len Robinson's 28 points. The Suns led 59-44 at the half and reserve guards Johnny High and Kyle Macy turned back a third-quarter Golden State surge that had closed the margin to six.

"It was our third game in three nights, but that's not an excuse," said Warriors Coach Al Attles. "Everybody in the league has to go through it. We found enough energy to win the other two times, we should have had enough to win three."

Lakers 113, Jazz 100
Los Angeles raced to a 16-6 lead at the start and was never headed in breaking a three-game losing streak. Center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 24 points and grabbed 17 rebounds for the Lakers, while Adrian Dantley topped Utah with 32 points.

Davis Cup in hands of Czechs

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The Davis Cup, for the first time in its 80-year history, was in the hands of an Eastern European and communist nation today following Czechoslovakia's 4-1 triumph over Italy in the final of the year-long multi nation competition.

The stormy three-day competition which ended Sunday is expected to result in further changes in the Cup rules aimed at reducing disputes on line calls that marred the play here, sources in the International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) said.

The most likely and immediate innovation was expected to be the naming of international chair umpires to run the matches, eliminating the match referee, said ILTF President Philippe Chatrier of France.

Many ILTF officials feel that is not enough. They say the linesmen too, and not just the chair umpire, should be from countries other than the two finalists. Under present rules, the ILTF names the referee, but umpires and linesmen come from the country organizing the final.

The Davis Cup had already undergone two major changes to keep alive interest in the tournament. The first was the elimination of the old style challenge round, forcing winners to go through the qualification rounds the following year.

The second change, which becomes effective next year, will eliminate the traditional division of qualification groups by zones. This system pitted the same teams against one another year after year.

Patriots try Dolphins in television contest tonight

MIAMI (AP) — The scene must be all too familiar to the New England Patriots. A late-season loss to a non-playoff contender, an 8-5 record after a fast start and... a Monday night National Football League appointment with the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl, where New England hasn't won since 1966.

A year ago, the Patriots got off to a 6-2 start but had fallen to 8-5 by the time the team rolled into Miami for a crucial American Conference East matchup on national television. By that time, the critics had started the talk about the Pats' annual nose dive and a 39-24 loss to the Dolphins dealt a serious blow to their playoff fortunes.

The scores and some of the opponents are different in 1980. But the Patriots got off to an identical 6-2 start and stand 8-5 and in desperate need of a victory heading into tonight's nationally-televised game with the 6-7 Dolphins. Game time is 8 p.m. CST.

The critics started clearing their throats last week after the Patriots dropped a 21-17 decision at San Francisco and a loss to the Dolphins will again hinder their stretch run for the playoffs.

Texas tries DePaul this weekend

By The Associated Press
The Southwest Conference, just barely ahead of non-conference foes with a 19-16 ledger, takes on a tough workload this week headlined by the appearance of No. 1 rated DePaul at the Super Drum Saturday night against the Texas Longhorns.

The unbeaten Texas Aggies warm up tonight with a meeting with Sam Houston State of the Lone Star Conference in College Station then take their No. 14 rated show on the road to the First Union Invitational in Charlotte, North Carolina Friday and Saturday.

Texas bounced back from a one-point loss to Pacific two weeks ago to rip Biscayne College, New Mexico State and Long Beach State last week.

Biscayne upset previously unbeaten Houston 76-74 Saturday night. The

Palmer nabs title

NORTH MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Arnold Palmer sank a 7-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole Sunday to defeat Paul Harney and win the 42nd PGA National Seniors Championship.

Defending champion Don January shot a closing 2-under-par 70 to finish one stroke behind the leaders at 290. Seven players — Walker Irman, Jr., Julio Boros, Bob Goalby, Art Wall, Charles Sifford, Bob Erickson and Fred Wampler — tied for fourth at 291.

Harney forced the playoff after Palmer, battling strong winds, recorded his second consecutive over-par round — a 3-over 75 — on the par-72, 6,800-yard south course at Turnberry Isle Country Club.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Tuesday, December 9, 1980

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Many stars share this birthday with you, including Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Broderick Crawford, Kirk Douglas, Redd Foxx, Dina Merrill and Donny Osmond. It may be awhile before all of your new professional plans come together, but you can expect to make steady progress on many different fronts before spring rolls around. The spotlight is on preserving what you already have in the areas of finance, romance and friendship. In early summer, you find that you share a very special secret with a favorite companion. A business idea that you discarded some time ago could be resurrected with surprising results. Choose new associates with great care.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Important business negotiations may require you to spend extra time away from home. Try to gain mate's understanding, cooperation. Financial deposits should be made promptly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your career aims are on the line as the year draws to a close. Lay your cards on the table when conferring with higher-up. Traveling off the beaten track can be fun this evening.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Maintain a low profile and tension will subside. The holidays should prove to be a peaceful, healing time. Promotion or bonus is a distinct possibility.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take steps to get out of a rut. Mate, partner offers new challenges. Guard against deception. Be honest with influential people and you will gain their trust.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A calm atmosphere is conducive to the successful handling of difficult individuals, situations. Projects that require intense concentration should get "top priority" status.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Co-workers are helpful but you would be wise to look for hidden motives. This is no time to make sudden financial moves. An erratic schedule may suit you quite well now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Look into monetary arrangements and finish up any long-neglected tasks. Your powers of concentration are at their peak. An urge to plurge should be squelched.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't push your luck where personal resources are concerned. Guard your tongue if you want to improve a love relationship. Partner is sensitive to criticism!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): If you will make clear to others exactly what you are trying to do, you will gain popular support. Communication is easier now, and you can win new admirers.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stick to what you know best and you will gain the trust of those who really count. The way in which you define success could be important to what you are trying to accomplish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Meet any setbacks with renewed determination and continue to look towards the future. Fresh opportunities will soon come your way. When motivated, you are an excellent teacher.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Keep in close touch with those whose good opinion you value. Romance becomes more satisfying when you are honest about your hopes, fears. Act confident of mate's continuing support.

therefore, is adequate support. Bid three hearts.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South with 70 on score you hold:

AKJ10972 AJ8 K6 Q3

What is your opening bid?

A.—This is a case where we would relax our criteria for an opening demand bid. In view of the part score, partner might elect to pass one spade with fair values, hoping to lure the opponents into the auction. We would open two spades and tread lightly thereafter. This action is unlikely to get us overboard, and may make it easy to reach a laydown slam.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

A6 K9 AKJ872 QJ5

The bidding has proceeded: South West North East 1 Pass 2NT Pass?

What do you bid now?

A.—Your side has a combined high-card point count of at least 31, and possibly as much as 33. But points can't describe the tremendous trick-taking possibilities of your hand. Partner may be aceless, but we are willing to take that risk and leap straight to six trump.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as West you hold:

Q10852 72 QJ5 J102

The bidding has proceeded: East South West North 1 INT Pass 3NT Pass Pass Pass

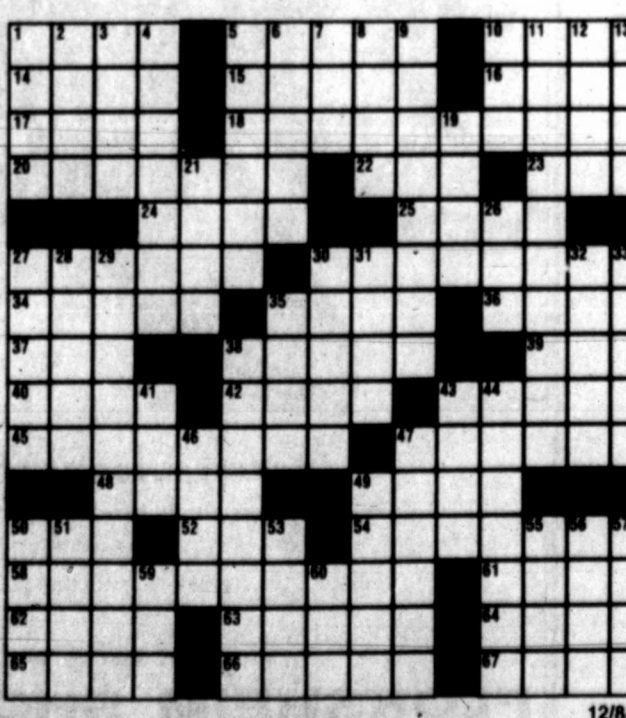

What is your opening lead?

A.—Even though no trump was bid directly over partner's one heart opening bid, don't even consider any lead other than a heart. Partner should have a reasonable holding to open the bidding in the suit. The drawback with a spade lead is that you might set up your long cards, then have no entry to cash your winners. In the process you could give declarer the tempo he needs to land the contract.
